Police Roundup

Masked man robs manager

Police are investigating a weekend armed robbery in which a man wearing a Halloween mask accosted the manager of Taco Bell while she was attempting to make a bank deposit at the Manchester Parkade Branch of the Connecticut Bank and Trust Co.

The crime, which happened around 3:15 a.m. Sunday, occurred while the restaurant manager attempted to open the night deposit box with her key. A man wearing a red Halloween mask and brandishing a handgun jumped out from behind the median teller area, police reported.

Police refused to say how much money was taken. The suspect, described as white and about 6 feet tall, ordered the restaurant manager to give him the money, police reported. She threw the deposit bag at him, and he caught it while continuing to point the gun at her.

The suspect then turned to a car parked in front of the victim's and pointed the gun at its occupants, also employees of Taco Bell, according to police reports. When the driver of the car attempted to drive away, the suspect started to give chase and then fled into the wooded area behind the bank.

After the crime was reported to police, a state trooper, helping in the investigation, found a Halloween mask fitting the description of the one worn by the suspect in a dumpster outside Hall's Archery, 291 W. Middle Turnpike, police reported.

Meanwhile, a Manchester police officer found a red jacket, also fitting the description of one witnesses said the assailant had worn.

With these items of clothing, police then attempted to find the suspect with the assistance of dogs, police reported. The dogs led police to an apartment on Homestead Street, but police said an interview of the residents proved they were not valid suspects.

Safety problems are cited at school

The chairman of the Board of Education has authorized an examination of a possible safety problem with the outdoor recreational facilities and the lack of protective fencing at the recently reopened Highland Park Elementary School.

The problems came to the attention of the board when two school aides complained to the board during the public comment sessions at the Monday night meeting.

"We've had a lot of problems keeping the kids within distances of the playground area," said Kim Roy, who lives at 46 Butternut Road, is also a parent. She has children in the first, second, and fourth grades at Highland Park.

Another aide, Tressa Morris of 62 Oak Grove St., told the board she is also concerned about the safety of the children.

"I don't want something to happen for something to get done," she said about the poor conditions of the playground equipment and lack of fencing around the play area.

The fence is needed to protect children from the dangers that may lurk in the wooded area that surrounds the school, the two said.

Children who enter the woods often get Lyme disease or encounter someone who may harm them, they said.

"God knows that things go better with the presence of His sovereign Son and Spirit. Jesus said 'I will not leave you comfortless. I will send you another comforter.' Upon His ascension, He sent the Holy Spirit to be with us that we may know His presence an experience Him at our guide. Enjoy this friendship today my friend. It's God's desire and plan for you.

Language plan irks board member

By Rick Santos Manchester Herald

The Board of Education unanimously voted to re-affirm its commitment to the special focus program planned for the Nathan Hale School, but not before one member questioned the teaching strategy included in the plans.

After being updated on the progress of the development of the program, the board was asked at its Monday night meeting to give a second nod to the program.

The focus program, planned for implementation at the start of the next school year, will be a curriculum offering enhanced study in the areas of computer technology and foreign language.

The purpose of the program is to attract students from all parts of town to Nathan Hale elementary school to diversify the social and economic background of the school population. The Nathan Hale neighborhood is one of the most economically disadvantaged in Manchester.

The method of teaching the foreign language aspect of the program proved to be a source of contention between members of the board. According to the present plans for the program, presented by focus coordinator Margery Bialeck, one foreign language teacher will teach grades three through six for 15 minutes every day.

"You're telling me students will learn a language with 15 minutes a day," said school board member Bernice Cobb.

Allan Chatterton, assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction, said he did not think 15 minutes of instruction each day would work either, until he saw an elementary foreign language program in Glastonbury.

"The entire class was conducted in Spanish, except for a few slip ups in which the teacher would correct the student in English," said Chatterton, the administrator who has overseen the implementation of the Manchester program, which is also expected to be Spanish.

He said the entire program is conversational, and as well as not involving any writing, the language is taught by mixing it with the existing curriculum. So such subjects as social studies can be taught in Spanish.

Bialeck said the computer technology component will be taught in a lab with 24 computer stations. The kindergarten through the sixth grade will use the computers, which will have applications in writing and problem solving.

More than 80 contractual items were set on the bargaining table since negotiations began in the late spring, Deakin said.

"We're going to have to find a way to streamline the process," he said.

Board member Francis Maffie, a Democrat, said, "Although it is not a perfect settlement, it is a fair settlement. We can't always get what we want."

It is unfortunate, Dyer said, that there were so many areas of dispute raises are too high, especially when compared to the private sector.

"Other unions are fighting for 3 to 4 percent increases," said Tucci, a Republican who has been questioning salary and benefit increases for all school employees.

School board Chairman Richard Dyer, a Democrat, said, "Although it is not a perfect settlement, it is a fair settlement. We can't always get what we want."

Custodian contract marked by 'frustration'

By Rick Santos Manchester Herald

Assistant School Superintendent William Deakin said "frustration" is the one word to describe the contract settlement he hammered out between the Board of Education and the union representing school custodial and maintenance employees.

"Frustration, because of the time and effort it took for what I think is minimal advancement on both sides," said Deakin, the assistant superintendent for administration and personnel.

The agreement, which was passed by an 8-1 vote of the school board Monday, is a three-year pact that provides employees with salary raises of 7, 6.75, and 6.5 percent for each of the next three years.

Although Deakin said, "I think it's a fair settlement," board member John Tucci, who questioned many parts of the arrangement and finally cast the only vote against it, said the agreement is not a perfect settlement, it is a fair settlement. We can't always get what we want."

-LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORD- DEMOCRATS MANAGE THE TOUGH PROBLEMS

SEWAGE PLANT PERMIT ISSUE

When The Town was expanding its sewage treatment plant to meet Clean Water Act requirements, A controversy developed with the Federal Government. It almost cost Manchester millions. But the leadership of Democratic Mayor Peter DiRosa minimized the impact on the Taxpayers.

Construction on the plant took place in an area designated as wetlands. The town obtained many approvals for the project from numerous State and Federal agencies. But, the consulting engineers for the project missed getting the necessary wetlands permit.

When Federal officials said there was no permit they halted construction. Instead of working out the problem with the Town they threatened to force Manchester to relocate the plant, at a cost of more than $20 million. They then talked of a multi-million dollar fine. That's when Mayor DiRosa stepped in.

He battled with Federal officials to get the project back on track. He urged them to reduce the penalties. At one point, Republican Director Ronald Osella wanted to settle by paying a $1,500,000 fine. Mayor DiRosa wouldn't give up that easy.

The Town and Federal agencies eventually settled on a fine of $300,000. That was too much but the Feds were intent on making an example of Manchester. Mayor DiRosa got the best deal possible for the Town... the plant was expanded... and our environment will get the protection it needs.

Lappen lists his experience with money matters as asset

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

Democratic Board of Education candidate Craig Lappen says his greatest asset to the board, if elected, would most likely be in the area of finances and the school budget.

... "assure people"

Lappen, 42, former president of the townwide PTA Council, said it seems that every time he volunteers as a member of an organization, he ends up working with the money. It probably has something to do with his career.

DiRosa blasts Smyth on housing

Mayor Peter P. DiRosa Jr., a Democrat seeking re-election to the Board of Directors, lashed out against Republican J. Russell Smyth, who is running for the town-owned, affordable housing complex for the elderly on North Elm Street.

Smyth said Friday that the complex is a waste of the town's money and is not his idea of affordable housing. He also said that if the town did not own the property, then it could benefit from the tax revenue it would raise. This he estimated at about $3,000 to $6,000 a year.

Tucci targets health care

Republican Board of Education candidate John Tucci has announced that if he is re-elected, he will propose a commission to study what he calls disparities between fringe benefits provided to school employees and members of the private sector.

According to the school board's budget guidelines for 1990-91, it is being requested that the town pay a $750,000 increase in health-care benefits for teachers.

Rowland aide admits mistake

HARTFORD (AP) — Republican John G. Rowland's use of congressional letterhead to announce his bid for governor was a mistake, his top aide admits, but the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee may yet ask the Ethics Committee to look into it.

"I have been the only board member to question this increase and to suggest that these costs should be shared just as they are being shared in private industry," Tucci said in a news release.

Landlord liable in poisoning

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A landlord who fails to keep his apartment clean and safe can be held liable for damages if a tenant suffers lead poisoning, a judge has ruled in a $1.08 million judgment against a Bridgeport couple.

The Griffin said they did not know there was lead paint in the apartment they had rented to the Hardys in New Haven, their attorney said.

Meeting set on renovations

The Manchester Property Owners Association will hold a meeting Thursday on the proposed $13 million bond issue for an addition to the Municipal Building and renovations to Lincoln Center.

At the Nov. 7 election, voters will be asked to decide on whether to issue the bonds.

Orders for big ticket goods slip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders for "big ticket" durable goods, held back by slumping demand in the transportation category, slipped 0.1 percent in September, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said orders for durable goods, items expected to last three or more years, edged down to a seasonally adjusted $126.68 billion last month after a huge 3.9 percent rise in August.

Krenz to probe police brutality

BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's Parliament today elected Communist Party chief Egon Krenz as president, one day after more than 300,000 Hungarians cheered the proclamation of a democratic republic on the 33rd anniversary of their popular uprising.

Parliament is under the tight control of the Communist Party, and Krenz's election as president was assured after his nomination by the 21-member ruling Politburo.

Baker's top goal in arms talks is cut in first-strike weapons

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reducing first-strike nuclear weapons is the top goal set by Secretary of State James A. Baker III for U.S. and Soviet negotiators trying to complete a new arms reduction treaty.

Baker singled out the deadliest missiles in superpower arsenals, capable of devastating an enemy in a surprise attack, during a speech Monday in San Francisco.

Soviet suggests talks on phasing out NATO

By Alison Smale
The Associated Press

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze says the Soviet Union is willing to negotiate an end to the NATO and Warsaw Pact military alliances and is prepared to eliminate its own overseas bases by the year 2000.

And he has promised that as East Bloc countries move away from one-party Communist rule, the Soviet Union will observe strict principles of non-intervention and absolute freedom of choice.

Residents in Coventry attack plans for 23-lot subdivision

COVENTRY — Residents opposing a 23-lot subdivision on Packer Street made a final plea to the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night not to approve it.

The same half dozen residents who strongly opposed the Thornton Brook subdivision at a series of hearings turned out for the last hearing on the plan at the Town Office Building.

Shelter issue prey to politics

Letiters may be presenting a problem for patrons of the Mary Cheney Library and for businesses near the center of town. And it may be that the existence of a shelter for homeless in town somewhat contributes to the problem although that remains to be established.

If there is some kind of a social problem, it should be addressed. But there is something inappropriate about addressing it in the midst of a political campaign. It is not the kind of question that should be debated on a partisan basis.

When the Manchester Area Conference of Churches proposed to operate a shelter for homeless, the need for which is obvious, one of the fears was that MACC would do the job so well that its shelter would attract to town a number of people who would not otherwise come here.

Perhaps the situation needs to be re-evaluated in the light of experience with the shelter. But that is a matter that could have been broached at a time when the local election was not at hand.

It can wait. The directors can take it up later. When town residents weigh the factors that will guide them in deciding how to vote Nov. 7, they should not give any consideration to the matter.

Whoever controls the Board of Directors after the election can take it up in due course and handle the delicate matter without any political pressures working on them.

Vote for Epstein

To the Editor:
I'm very pleased that Joyce Epstein is a candidate for our Board of Directors and I urge the citizens of Manchester to vote for her.
Joyce is a good choice for our town. Joyce is bright, articulate, and caring. These are the qualities we need in our town. Joyce is also a good person to have on our Board of Directors. She has a good understanding of our town and our community. Manchester is fortunate that Joyce Epstein wants to devote her time to continue to improve the quality of life in our town. She deserves your vote and has mine.

Vote yes on No. 1

To the Editor:
Ever heard the phrase "Paralysis by Analysis?" One way to avoid making a decision is to keep studying the question! After three years, numerous committees and nearly $50,000 in fees to study and re-study the town hall space needs, it's time to make a decision!
The Board of Directors and the Citizens Space Study Committee agree to the desperate need for more space. Both agree that an additional 50,000 square feet is required. Most agree it is desirable that the town hall remain in its present central location.

Oct. 13, a lucky day at reunion

By Douglas A. Johnson Sr.
On Friday, Oct. 13, the stock market was in trouble again and ocean tides were rising, but we, the alumni of Manchester High School, classes of 1929A and 1939B, couldn't have asked for better fall weather or a happier day! We have to give the class committee a lot of credit and the Army and Navy Club staff thanks for a perfect decorating job.
The occasion was our class reunion, and what a time it was.
The Dabaklo Orchestra deserves our thanks too. Man, their music was right up our alley. They played Big Band music from the 30's and 40's and even a little jitter bug music from our era.
Fifteen or 20 of us attended the three committee meetings to feed in ideas and lend our support.
I doubt if the reunion would have been possible if Marion Alley Smith hadn't worked as hard as she did. We all owe her three cheers.

In case you're unaware, Mr. J. ## Soviets ease up on lies

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has eased up on its bizarre campaign of lies about the United States because of a secret "disinformation pact" negotiated by former U.S. Information Agency Director Charles Wick.
For decades, official Soviet publications have printed stories fit for "The Twilight Zone" — that the Pentagon created the AIDS virus, that the United States imports South American babies to sell their organs, that America has a gas that kills only blacks.
Those stories no longer make the official rounds. We learned about the secret pact that led to disinformation doctrine from sources in Moscow, including the current director of the Soviet news agency Tass, Leonid Kravchenko. Wick confirmed the details.

It's a day off for astronauts as shuttle undergoes service

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Atlantis' five astronauts were home with most of today off, while their mission that unofficially lasted 4 days, 23 hours and 41 minutes. The mission's main purpose was launching Galileo, which scientists hope will find clues to the formation of the universe and provide the best look yet at another planet.
About 20,000 people were at Edwards to watch the landing. The crowd was small compared to past touchdowns because of the weekday landing, officials said.
About 45 minutes after landing, the astronauts emerged from the shuttle and performed the traditional walk-around inspection with NASA officials. The other crew members are pilot Mike McCulley, and mission specialist Ellen Baker, Shannon Lucid and Franklin Chang-Deaz.
"The vehicle looks amazingly clean," said William Lenoir, an acting associate administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "We did not see, with a quick inspection, any significant tile damage — a little nick here and a nick there."
The black tiles protect the shuttle during its fiery re-entry into the atmosphere.
Later in the afternoon, the astronauts left Edwards aboard two Gulfstream jets for their home base in Houston.

Health study divides Americans into groups

Gamut runs from fat, frustrated to young and restless
WASHINGTON (AP) — "Young and Reckless" may sound like the name of a soap opera, but a new study says it's the way some 68 million Americans approach diet and health.
On the other hand, the study says 45 million others are "healthy and wealthy" and characterizes other large groups as "fat and frustrated" and "confused and indifferent" about their health.
The survey done for Prevention magazine found that middle-aged women with college degrees lead the healthiest lifestyles, while white, male, blue-collar workers have the worst health habits.
"The report, 'The Fit and the Fat,' found a sizable group of people who want to be healthy but lack the resources, both personal and financial. Many others know what to do to be healthy but lack motivation," said Thomas Dybdahl, director of the study.
Even as the magazine was reporting on Americans' health habits, the National Research Council was issuing new dietary recommendations.
The average American adult can get along on as little as 500 milligrams of salt a day, far less than the usual diet contains, the council said.
The NRC's 10th edition of its Recommended Dietary Allowances also says cigarette smokers need at least 100 milligrams of vitamin C per day as opposed to 60 milligrams for adult non-smokers, and suggests that pregnant women should increase vitamin C to 70 milligrams a day.
The new guidelines are the first update of the nutrient recommendations in nearly 10 years. The RDAs are a major guide for developing nutrition programs and policies.
The Prevention magazine study, based on a survey of 1,250 randomly selected Americans, was conducted by Louis Harris Associates. A survey of that size has a margin of error of about 3 percentage points.
"Clearly, this report demonstrates the need to deliver health information in a method that can be both heard and understood," added Mark Bricklin, editor of Prevention.
The survey categorized Americans into the following

Withdrawals from thrifts continue despite bailout

WASHINGTON (AP) — Deposit outflows from the nation's savings institutions in August shot up to the worst level in four months even as President Bush signed legislation protecting S&L depositors, the government said Monday.
Net withdrawals, which do not include interest credited to savers' accounts, totaled $5.1 billion, compared with an inflow of $54 million in new deposits in July. It was the highest level of withdrawals since $5.3 billion left thrift accounts in April, the Office of Thrift Supervision said.
James Barth, chief economist of the thrift office, said the deposit outflow, as well as a record $13.4 billion reduction in assets, largely reflected a deliberate strategy of shrinkage by the industry, which is trying to meet tougher financial standards in the new S&L legislation. The bill, signed Aug. 9 by Bush, requires institutions to hold more capital for every loan or other investment they make. If an institution cannot earn enough profits to add to capital or raise it from outside investors, its only alternative is to scale back its operations before the new standards go into effect on Dec. 7.
"This was the third consecutive month in which thrifts... shed assets to adjust to the new regulatory environment," Barth said.
Bert Ely, a private thrift analyst in Alexandria, Va., said the sell-off is a positive sign.
"Shrinkage is the order of the day," he said. "Is the only effective way that marginal S&Ls can meet the higher capital requirements."
Thrift holdings of mortgages and mortgage-backed securities fell by $7.8 billion in August, while cash and investment securities dropped $3 billion.
The data shows that mortgages originated by thrifts rose to $16.4 billion in August, up from a six-year low of $13.2 billion in July. However, the institutions are selling an increasing proportion of the mortgages to investors and retaining fewer in their portfolios.
Savers withdrew a record $10.8 billion from thrifts in January and net withdrawals have exceeded $1 billion in every month except July. In the first eight months of the year, $44.5 billion drained from thrifts. August marked the 15th month of withdrawals in the 16 months beginning in May 1988.
The earlier outflows were attributed to interest rates, which were rising through the spring, and to depositor uncertainty about the S&L bailout.
With the August report, the thrift office for the first time began reporting separate statistics for insolvent S&Ls under government control and the rest of the industry.

quished the gavel to Marvin, moved for a 15-minute recess. Tripp called the motion a ploy to provide time for Ferguson to get to the meeting. Tripp argued that a motion to recess did not have parliamentary privilege and could not be considered while another motion was on the floor.

Attorney John D. Labelle Jr., the district's legal counsel, said the motion to recess was a privileged one.

The vote on the motion to recess was three-to-three.

Arguments over the issue were interspersed between the motions.

Lenders said he thought of the mutual aid offer when he was contacted by the press about whether the campaign dispute over the town firehouse construction and location would affect the district and the agreement. He said his response was that the district should not be interfering in town matters but might offer assistance if the town wanted it. And he said he emphasized then that his motivation was not political.

One of the Republican candidates for town director who proposed a study before a decision on the town firehouse is made is Burns Landers, who is the wife of Thomas Landers.

Landers argued again that the mutual aid proposal is a policy matter that should be decided by the district directors.

Tripp, Longest, and Marvin repeated the arguments they made a week ago that the fire chiefs should decide what measures if any are needed.

The question was on the agenda for the district directors' meeting scheduled for Oct. 16. The meeting was not held because there was not a quorum of directors.

At the meeting Monday, Boutin asked District Fire Chief John Mace who he felt should make an special arrangements. Mace said the policy decision could be made by the directors if they wanted to act but the logistics should be worked out by the chiefs.

At one point, Tripp said a fire station in South Windsor is closer to part of the area in question and a Vernon station is closer to another part of it than the district stations. He said those two stations would be in a better position to provide mutual aid to the town.

And Longest said the district might be overextending itself if it offers the cover area.

Labelle said the additional liability that might come from expanding service is a reason the final decision is a policy matter that should be decided by the directors.

after the collision. The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

The accident injured five other people. Torrez and Yvette Guerra, 18, were taken by Lifeguard helicopter to Hartford Hospital. Angelica Torrez, 36, and Elizabeth Lopez, 14, were taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital by ambulance and were treated and released, a hospital spokesman said today. Yvette Guerra was in stable condition this morning.

which are all up for re-election next year, as is the governor.

The Democrats hope to avoid any tax increases to balance the 1990-91 budget. They were forced to raise taxes about $1 billion in additional revenues this year, to balance the 1989-90 budget and eliminate a deficit in the final quarter of 1989-89.

Milano said talks are continuing on the likelihood of a modest budget surplus in the current year.

Pruss said the department had received a call for medical assistance at about 1:30 p.m. Sunday. After finding that it was a false alarm, the approximately 20 firefighters started back to the department. While driving back, Pruss said, the firefighters saw the accident.

Pruss said there were two people trapped in the back seat when the firefighters arrived, and firefighters were able to put out the blaze with fire extinguishers.

Pruss said three teen-agers who happened by the scene, including Timothy Roberts, 18, of Manchester, assisted rescuers on the scene. He said a letter will be sent to them commending them for their efforts.

Flynn was driving a vehicle owned by a relative with Vermont registration, state police said. Police said Flynn's uncle, the owner of the car, has residences in both Manchester and in Vermont.

Is 'negative outcome' less painful than death?

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the world uncovered by Professor William Lutz, nobody is ever laid off.

When a company has to fire people, the departing employees are:

- "Discharged."
- "Non-retained."
- "Non-renewed."
- "Selected out."
- "Or, if all else fails, 'released.'"

You see, the company is having "work force adjustments." Or "head count reductions." Maybe experiencing "negative employee retention." Or it may be "initiating a career alternative enhancement program."

The company is "restructuring." Or "downsizing."

When General Motors closed a plant in Massachusetts, it announced "a volume-related production schedule adjustment." When Chrysler downsized in Wisconsin, it "initiated a career alternative enhancement program." Some 5,000 workers were non-retained.

In Lutz's book, hospitals don't charge for services; they seek "reimbursement." A patient who'd experienced "negative patient care outcome."

"Lutz laughs at these things — if he can laugh through gnashed teeth. He thinks using words to cloak meaning is perverse, pervasive and dangerous to democracy. He prefers his language low-falutin'."

He's written "Doublespeak," a book that looks at the word product of the mind capable of writing a government safety pamphlet that says: "Exit access is that part of a means of egress that leads to an entrance or an exit."

"Doublespeak is not a slip of the tongue, or language used out of ignorance, but is instead a very conscious use of language as a weapon or tool by those in power to achieve their ends at our expense," he writes.

Sometimes doublespeak is so clever it is funny. People riding a roller coaster at an exhibition in Vancouver, Canada, might throw up? No, but Expo 86 said they might experience an "occasional protein spill."

A black-and-white television set is "television with nonmulticolor capability." The death house in New Jersey is the "capital sentences unit." The executioner is an "execution technician." In New York State, death row is the "Unit for Condemned Prisoners."

Aid solitary confinement cells are "individual behavior adjustment units."

"I have a real sense of outrage that something as beautiful and powerful as language is being perverted," Lutz said in an interview. "I think that language is the most precious invention of human beings."

Lutz, 48, teaches English at Rutgers, the state university of New Jersey, and is chairman of the Committee on Public Doublespeak of the National Council of Teachers of English. He has clipped examples of doublespeak for 16 years.

He makes these points:

• "Words needn't be convoluted to be doublespeak. When an advertiser says its product 'helps fight the symptoms of dandruff,' that's doublespeak because it seeks to evade meaning. 'Helps' is a weasel word; it doesn't say how much it contributes to the fight. 'Fights' doesn't say it succeeds, just that it tries. 'Symptoms of dandruff' aren't dandruff, just a condition that accompanies the malady."

• "Government uses doublespeak, but so do businessmen, admen and educators — such as the college officials who shunned the term 'raiding' when they told of luring faculty members from other campuses. Instead they engaged in 'selective development' at George Mason University, 'quality recovery' at Indiana or 'revenue retention' at Minnesota."

• "Doublespeak doesn't come easily. It is crafted, at great effort and cost, with committees hard at work, staffs meeting, drafts drafted."

Aid

"The need is there. It's not going to go away," said Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., of San Francisco.

"It was speedy and it was a good first start," said Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.

"But obviously, everybody knows the cost is going to be greater than that," added Rep. George Miller, D-Calif. "We're going to have to work to keep (the money) going."

The California delegation request included the $1.1 billion for FEMA and $1 billion for the highway emergency fund. But it wanted $1.2 billion for SBA loans and $100 million loan fund for poor people, and a $400 million discretionary fund for the president.

The White House, by contrast, said the SBA should handle the disaster out of its existing funds, sought no presidential funds, and wanted $600 million for the federal share of repairing the highways. In all, the $2.5 billion administration proposal included just $1.5 billion in spending above what was already in the federal budget.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., the senior Republican on the committee, said the Bush administration could accept the proposal passed by the committee. He and others at the committee meeting complained that the powerful California delegation was asking for too much too soon.

He said Congress needed to meet the need and "to do so, is to pass more holes in the lining of an empty federal pocket."

Rep. Bob Livingston, R-La., proposed and then withdrew an amendment giving his home state $5 billion to compensate for all the hurricanes it has suffered since the turn of the century.

"We are the Golden State and I think there is a certain amount of jealousy," Pazo said afterward. Committee Chairman Whitten said he would consider a request for more money later.

"My whole pitch is to do something new, straighten it out later, and don't waste any money in the meantime," he said. "We don't attempt to put all the money in here it's going to take."

The Californians said their estimates of the damage were more than $7 billion and climbing.

The California quake came on the heels of Hurricane Hugo, which devastated U.S. islands and parts of the East Coast. Congress is pushing federal dollars to work on both disasters but in both cases is dodging its budget rules.

The race was just a formality. A 500-mile parade lap. They forgot to consult Her Ladyship, the car. The trumpets. She wasn't about to be taken for granted.

They no sooner dropped the green flag than she showed her bitchiness. First, Fitzpatrick flashed past her, then Mario Andretti. And they hadn't even reached Turn 1.

She was rubbing Rick Mears' face in it. Pole sitters do not like to relinquish first place that quickly nor do they decide. They'd almost rather hit a wall.

The least the car should have done was let him do it gracefully, 10 laps into the race. She would have none of it.

"It was a pop-off valve," recalls Mears, ruefully. "We were only getting 42 inches of boost (from the turbocharger). We were supposed to be getting 45 to 46. We could never make any horsepower. We had to struggle to get 217 (m.p.h.) and were hard-pressed to stay up with the field."

A race driver knows rejection when he sees it — and Mears tried everything. He romanced the lady but on this day she was tramp. He contacted the pit. He recommended changes in the angle of the wings, he discussed the steering, the stagger. She kept hanging up on him.

"This is why you have to be sensitive to the car's needs nowadays," he says.

You have to recognize every nuance of her behavior. If you don't, you might as well park and walk home.

An uncooperative car can ruin more than your evening, as Rick found out at Sanair in Montreal in August of 1984, when his car slithered him under a guard rail and almost severed his toes, to say nothing of the rest of him. His feet looked like two pounds of ground round for months but, with special shoes, he went back to racing.

Mears would be a four-time Indy winner today, but for an injudicious pit stop in the final laps of the 1982 race. Eleven seconds behind Gordon Johncock with 12 laps to go, he caught Johncock's slower car on the white flag lap but his heavier fuel load kept him from passing and enabled Johncock to stay just a hair's breadth in front of him in the closest finish — 0.16 of a second — in Indy history.

Two weeks ago, he handed Fitzpatrick the CART PPG national driving title when he tried to race out of the pits with part of the fueling equipment still attached. Black-flagged in, he lost the race — by five seconds. At Portland this year, she ran out of gas on him. Fitzpatrick went by him to win.

Mears takes his Pennzoil Penske sophisticated lady to a doubleheader at Laguna Seca Raceway next weekend, a Marlboro Challenge race-off and a Champion 300-kilometer FPG event.

But what he really wants to do is get on good terms with his escort for next year. He'll have to be very attentive to her needs and do everything short of singing under her balcony, otherwise, she won't, so to speak, return his calls again. Or, maybe, when she gets him out in public, she'll jilt him at the first turn again.

It's getting so he can't talk her anywhere.

Israelis accept plan with conditions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Arens has notified Secretary of State James A. Baker III that his government accepts a U.S. plan for Palestinian negotiations, with two reservations.

Arens informed Baker in a letter that Israel "accepted basically" his five-point proposal for a meeting with Palestinians, Mrs. Yaron said.

Baker's proposal included an assurance that Israel would be "satisfied" with the composition of the delegation and it assigned Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak a middleman to be restricted to arrangements for the balloting, said Ruth Yaron, the embassy spokeswoman.

However, Mrs. Yaron said Arens also requested what she called two "tactical changes." One would assure Israel that the PLO would not participate in the meeting and the other would limit the agenda to the election itself.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, Arens and other members of the ruling Likud coalition have been concerned from the outset that the meeting would turn into a negotiating session. Shamir's election plan provides for negotiations after the 1.4 million Palestinians on the West Bank and in Gaza choose their representatives.

The PLO, meanwhile, has rejected both the Shamir and Baker proposals. It was not clear whether an Israeli-Palestinian meeting could be held without at least PLO acquiescence.

"We have been saying all along that we do want to advance the peace process," Mrs. Yaron told a reporter. "However, we had two concerns — participation of the PLO and the agenda — in order not to set back the peace process."

Baker was expected to reply to Arens, but the Israeli foreign minister was on a trip to Brussels, which could delay temporarily further contact between the two officials.

Last week, as Baker's drive to set up negotiations approached a critical point, Shamir appealed for U.S. help in drawing Palestinian Arabs into the election plan.

Shamir, in a letter to Baker delivered last Wednesday, urged the administration to help overcome "animosity" keeping Palestinians on the West Bank and Gaza from participating in the prime minister's proposal for elections, diplomatic sources said.

Shamir also asked Baker to try to enlist moderate Arab governments, to set back the peace process.

"The need is there. It's not going to go away," said Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., of San Francisco.

"It was speedy and it was a good first start," said Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.

"But obviously, everybody knows the cost is going to be greater than that," added Rep. George Miller, D-Calif. "We're going to have to work to keep (the money) going."

The California delegation request included the $1.1 billion for FEMA and $1 billion for the highway emergency fund. But it wanted $1.2 billion for SBA loans and $100 million loan fund for poor people, and a $400 million discretionary fund for the president.

The White House, by contrast, said the SBA should handle the disaster out of its existing funds, sought no presidential funds, and wanted $600 million for the federal share of repairing the highways. In all, the $2.5 billion administration proposal included just $1.5 billion in spending above what was already in the federal budget.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., the senior Republican on the committee, said the Bush administration could accept the proposal passed by the committee. He and others at the committee meeting complained that the powerful California delegation was asking for too much too soon.

He said Congress needed to meet the need and "to do so, is to pass more holes in the lining of an empty federal pocket."

Rep. Bob Livingston, R-La., proposed and then withdrew an amendment giving his home state $5 billion to compensate for all the hurricanes it has suffered since the turn of the century.

"We are the Golden State and I think there is a certain amount of jealousy," Pazo said afterward. Committee Chairman Whitten said he would consider a request for more money later.

"My whole pitch is to do something new, straighten it out later, and don't waste any money in the meantime," he said. "We don't attempt to put all the money in here it's going to take."

The Californians said their estimates of the damage were more than $7 billion and climbing.

The California quake came on the heels of Hurricane Hugo, which devastated U.S. islands and parts of the East Coast. Congress is pushing federal dollars to work on both disasters but in both cases is dodging its budget rules.

The race was just a formality. A 500-mile parade lap. They forgot to consult Her Ladyship, the car. The trumpets. She wasn't about to be taken for granted.

They no sooner dropped the green flag than she showed her bitchiness. First, Fitzpatrick flashed past her, then Mario Andretti. And they hadn't even reached Turn 1.

She was rubbing Rick Mears' face in it. Pole sitters do not like to relinquish first place that quickly nor do they decide. They'd almost rather hit a wall.

The least the car should have done was let him do it gracefully, 10 laps into the race. She would have none of it.

"It was a pop-off valve," recalls Mears, ruefully. "We were only getting 42 inches of boost (from the turbocharger). We were supposed to be getting 45 to 46. We could never make any horsepower. We had to struggle to get 217 (m.p.h.) and were hard-pressed to stay up with the field."

A race driver knows rejection when he sees it — and Mears tried everything. He romanced the lady but on this day she was tramp. He contacted the pit. He recommended changes in the angle of the wings, he discussed the steering, the stagger. She kept hanging up on him.

"This is why you have to be sensitive to the car's needs nowadays," he says.

You have to recognize every nuance of her behavior. If you don't, you might as well park and walk home.

An uncooperative car can ruin more than your evening, as Rick found out at Sanair in Montreal in August of 1984, when his car slithered him under a guard rail and almost severed his toes, to say nothing of the rest of him. His feet looked like two pounds of ground round for months but, with special shoes, he went back to racing.

Mears would be a four-time Indy winner today, but for an injudicious pit stop in the final laps of the 1982 race. Eleven seconds behind Gordon Johncock with 12 laps to go, he caught Johncock's slower car on the white flag lap but his heavier fuel load kept him from passing and enabled Johncock to stay just a hair's breadth in front of him in the closest finish — 0.16 of a second — in Indy history.

Two weeks ago, he handed Fitzpatrick the CART PPG national driving title when he tried to race out of the pits with part of the fueling equipment still attached. Black-flagged in, he lost the race — by five seconds. At Portland this year, she ran out of gas on him. Fitzpatrick went by him to win.

Mears takes his Pennzoil Penske sophisticated lady to a doubleheader at Laguna Seca Raceway next weekend, a Marlboro Challenge race-off and a Champion 300-kilometer FPG event.

But what he really wants to do is get on good terms with his escort for next year. He'll have to be very attentive to her needs and do everything short of singing under her balcony, otherwise, she won't, so to speak, return his calls again. Or, maybe, when she gets him out in public, she'll jilt him at the first turn again.

It's getting so he can't talk her anywhere.

Send letters to Operation Abby

DEAR ABBY: Last year, through Operation Dear Abby/America Remembers, your readers sent more than 6 million pieces of mail to our troops in Okinawa, Germany, the Philippines, Iceland, Korea, Europe and beyond...

This year, the Pentagon has provided us with a list of ships and units ranging in size from five people to 500. Wouldn't it be wonderful if groups of caring Americans — schools, service groups, business clubs, and perhaps towns and cities — would "adopt" a unit for the holidays?

I hope that this, in addition to the usual Operation Dear Abby deluge of mail, proves successful. With deepest thanks to you, your staff and your millions of readers for all your love and concern.

DEAR ABBY: I participated in Operation Dear Abby in 1987, never dreaming what it would lead to. Given the odds, I thought my chance of winning the lottery were far more favorable than finding a husband!

I lived in Cleveland, and Cesar was stationed in Iowa. I sent one Christmas card with a letter to each of the five addresses you printed in your column. That was in December of 1987. The other correspondences faded out, but the one with Cesar remained, and we really go to know each other through our letters and the pictures we exchanged.

Our meeting was a dream that had come true. We were married six days later — Sept. 6, Abby, this is the best thing that has ever happened to us. I tease him and call him my "mail-order groom."

How can I thank you? SHELLY K. DAVILA, MAYFIELD HEIGHTS, OHIO

DEAR SHELLY: You just did. Congratulations and best wishes for a lifetime of happiness.

In your social life in a slump? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $1.00. Dear Abby, Popularity Booklet, P.O. Box 47, Mount Morris, IL 61054. (Postage is included.)

Blood poisoning is serious disease

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please tell me about septicemia. Can it come from a hard jolt or from a fall? How is it best treated? I was hospitalized in 1977, and my lab work came back with this diagnosis. I am looking for a permanent cure.

DEAR READER: Septicemia is bacterial infection of the bloodstream. Formerly called "blood poisoning," septicemia is extremely serious because bloodstream infections spread to the brain, heart, lungs and other vital organs where they can cause dangerous abscesses.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 76-year-old mother has had cold sweats after midnight every night for the past two years. She's been to several specialists, two psychologists and one psychiatrist. No one has been able to diagnose the problem. Her thyroid, hormone and routine blood tests have been normal. Can you help?

DEAR READER: Night sweats can indicate a wide range of diseases, including tuberculosis, sarcoidosis (a lung disease of unknown cause) and cancer. In view of your mother's normal routine blood tests, I believe she needs to be tested for unusual conditions.

PEOPLE The Who joins Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP) — The Who, The Four Tops, The Platters, Bobby Darin and Hank Ballard have been selected to enter the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, the Daily News reported today.

Joining those rock notables, in the forefathers category, will be Louis Armstrong and Ma Rainey, the newspaper said.

The hall's announcement was expected at a news conference today in Cleveland, where the four-year-old Rock and Roll Hall of Fame has raised $37 million of the $40 million necessary to build a museum honoring the new members as well as the 56 people and groups already inducted, said the hall's director, Larry Thompson.

"I like what (mythologist) Joseph Campbell says about marriage," the actor said in an interview in Fame magazine's November issue. "He says that it's nothing more than a symbol for the sacrifice of the ego and of the individual towards something larger, which is the union that is made from two individual egos."

BASIC program now has muscle

By Larry Bischo, The Associated Press

For years, the BASIC programming language would lie on PC beaches, and the programming bulimia named C and Pascal would kick silicon in its interface — but no more.

BASIC's got muscle now and even versatility and elegance — besides the popularity that makes it the most used PC programming language.

BASIC (Beginner's All-Purpose Symbolic Instruction Code) was created in 1964 at Dartmouth University by John G. Kemeny and Thomas E. Kurtz. The idea was to make it easy for humans to program without having to understand all the computer's electronic plumbing.

Another criticism of BASIC is that its reliance on line numbers fosters coding programming and "bug" program structure and habits. Line numbers are no longer required in many versions of BASIC, and any program that does what it's supposed to do is, by definition, not "bugged."

As a language that allows most of us to take direct command of our computers, BASIC is literally unmatched. It can be used to write programs ranging in complexity from simple games and checkbook-balancers to full-blown commercial applications. It's equally at home handling letters or numbers, screen graphics, printers or music.

The version of the language that comes with most IBM PC compatibles, Microsoft's GW-BASIC, isn't the best available, even from Microsoft, but it's hard to argue with the "included" price. And for many, poking around GW-BASIC will fire an interest in programming, itself a fascinating — and sometimes rewarding — hobby.

For those who want to move beyond the version of the language bundled with their computers or who just want to catch up on what's happening to BASIC, the Oct. 31 issue of PC Magazine reviews 10 versions of the language.

When PC Magazine, one of the handful of serious chroniclers of micro-computing, prints "... BASIC in many ways is now more powerful than even C or Pascal," it's worth some notice. Besides, to most of BASIC's faithful, it just feels good.

Today In History

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 24, the 297th day of 1989. There are 68 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: Fifty years ago, on Oct. 24, 1939, nylon stockings went on sale for the first time as several stores in Wilmington, Del., began offering the much-awaited hosiery made with Du Pont's new synthetic yarn. The price of 4,000 pairs of nylon stockings, ranging in shipment from $1.15 to $1.35 a pair, sold out quickly.

On this date: In 1537, Jane Seymour, the third wife of England's King Henry VIII, died 12 days after giving birth to Prince Edward, later King Edward VI.

In 1648, the Peace of Westphalia ended the Thirty Years War and effectively destroyed the Holy Roman Empire.

In 1861, the first transcontinental telegraph message was sent as Justice Stephen J. Field of California sent a telegram to President Abraham Lincoln.

In 1939, Benny Goodman and his orchestra recorded their signature theme, "Let's Dance," for Columbia Records in New York.

New 'Saint' television movies filmed

By Jerry Buck, The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Author Leslie Charteris was skeptical when Simon Templar, the 12th actor to play Simon Templar in "The Saint," told him his mother had named him for the famous semi-retired detective.

Charteris, who wrote the best-selling novels about the dashing character, asked Dutton whether he actually had been named for the character or if he'd made it up "for the newspapers," the actor said.

"When I assured him my mother was a fan he invited her to his 81st birthday party in London."

"The Saint" that Charteris created is a swash-buckler of dubious morality, a "Robin Hood of crime" dedicated to justice. Roger Moore, who played him on TV from 1967 to 1969, is perhaps the best-remembered of those who have tackled the role.

Dutton's version is part of the syndicated "Mystery Wheel of Adventure." Six two-hour movies of original "Saint" mysteries are among the 10 shows being telecast by 102 stations.

Since "The Saint" sought adventure all over the world, the new six TV movies about him were filmed on location in London, Paris, Berlin, Luxembourg and Australia. All the stories are original.

Dutton met Charteris during a visit to the British actor, 31, who has been on television before. He starred in a CBS movie based on Agatha Christie's "Man in a Brown Suit." He also was in the British miniseries, "By the Sword Divided," a story of the English civil war. That show was televised in this country.

"The Saint" also has appeared in movies, television, radio and comic strips.
