Police Roundup

Man found asleep in store

A man, apparently unable to tell police his address, was arrested early today after police found him sleeping inside Regal's Mens Store, 907 Main St., police said.

Laurence J. Zukas, 30, of no certain address, was charged with criminal trespassing and held overnight at the police department, police said. He was presented earlier today in Manchester Superior Court and is scheduled to appear again on Wednesday, police said.

Police responded to an alarm at the store at 12:45 a.m., police said. Upon arriving, they found Zukas asleep on the floor in front of the cashier's desk.

Store owner Bernie Apter arrived on the scene and checked the store but said he found nothing amiss, police said. A malfunctioning door lock apparently enabled Zukas to enter the store.

Photographs lead to fight
A 20-year-old Manchester man was arrested Tuesday at 4 a.m. at his home after he and a 20-year-old woman got into a fight over nude photographs the man reportedly had taken of her, police said.

Scott E. Green, of 61-B Congress St., was charged with third-degree assault after the woman told police that he had punched her in the face during their argument, police said.

The argument began when Green refused to give the photographs to the woman, police said. It escalated when the man and the woman kicked each other's cars, police said.

Green was held on $250 non-surety bond and is scheduled to appear Wednesday in Manchester Superior Court, police said.

Thoughts
Through faith in God's Word one can be filled with hope that will never fail and a life that will never end. The prophet Jeremiah knew the secret: "Blessed (happy) is the man who trusts in the Lord, whose confidence is in him." (Jeremiah 17:7)

Hailie Selassie, emperor of Ethiopia, shared observations and advice some years ago which is appropriate for those who are looking for answers all his hopes and aspirations crumbing before him. He is perplexed and knows not, whether he is drifting, but he must realize that the Lord is his refuge and the rallying point for all humanity. It is here man will find the solution of his present difficulties and guidance for his future action, with faith in the Lord, who has created the Bible and its great message, he cannot hope for salvation. For my part, I glory in the Bible.

Historic society seeks corporate sponsors

The Manchester Historical Society is seeking corporate sponsors for its 25th Anniversary this year.

The society has written to business leaders asking them to support the society by becoming corporate members, by spreading word of the society's activities among employees and by other means.

Among special events scheduled for the anniversary celebration this year include a tour of historic Manchester, exhibitions at the Artisans in February, a benefit dinner at the Army and Navy Club April 27, an antique show at the Cheney Homestead in June and an auction in September.

Another project of the society is producing new copies of "A New England Pattern," a history of Manchester by the late William Buckley and published in 1973. The books will be produced from a quantity of unassembled copies recently discovered.

Other projects involve microfilming old newspapers, taping oral histories, conducting tours of historic sites, maintaining the Cheney Homestead and the Manchester Society Museum, and providing slide shows and speakers for civic groups.

As one of its ongoing projects, the society is planning to produce a series of videotapes for use in schools, primarily in the third grade. The tapes will also be made available to local libraries.

Subjects of the tapes will be lives of the Podunk Indians who lived here from about 1600 to about 1700, industry in Manchester and the lives of industrial workers, Manchester landmarks, and the lives of children from the 18th Century to about 1950.

Offering of alcohol at music festival defended by planner

By Rick Santos, Manchester Herald

A town director who is unwilling to endorse a music festival planned for this summer because alcohol will be served at the event is missing the point, says the organizer of the program.

Elizabeth Shluger, of Festivals, Inc. of Hartford, said Thursday, "I couldn't use it (the festival) as a shining example of how to drink responsibly."

Shluger was turned away by directors at Tuesday's meeting when she requested their endorsement of a two-day music festival planned to be held July 21 and 22 at the Matchstick Community Storage Bardsbelle. The directors asked her to re-approach them for the endorsement when she could provide more information about the security and controls on drinkers at the event.

Shluger said she will send the board a letter addressing the members' concerns.

One director, Democrat Stephen T. Casano, has taken a harder stance on the sale of alcohol than others. Regardless of controls, he will not endorse the event if alcohol is sold. The show of support would be inconsistent with town goals of encouraging substance-free programs, he said.

Shluger will not deny there are societal problems associated with alcohol. However, she said, "You don't give the answer is to not have the stuff," adding that prohibition failed.

In Brief . . .

Agostinelli reappointed by Army

Nathan G. Agostinelli, president of Manchester State Bank and a retired brigadier general of the Connecticut Army National Guard, has been appointed to a second two-year term as civilian aide for Connecticut to the secretary of the Army.

Agostinelli is a former town mayor and former state comptroller.

As a civilian aide, Agostinelli has traveled to and met with ambassadors of Panama, Honduras, El Salvador, and Guatemala. He has also attended briefings at the Pentagon and the White House.

His reappointment was announced by M.P.W. Stone, secretary of the Army.

As a civilian aide, he is awarded the courtesies of a three-star general. Aides help attain understanding and cooperation between civilian communities and the Army.

MACC board supports compact

The Board of Directors of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches has unanimously voted to support the Capitol Region Fair Housing Compact on Affordable Housing.

The board will take its recommendation to the town Board of Directors, which is to vote on the matter at Tuesday's meeting. The housing compact is a voluntary program that is to encourage the building of more affordable housing in Manchester and 28 other municipalities in the Capitol Region.

In Bolton, where the compact was rejected, the Ecumenical Council is also urging the Board of Selectman to reconsider the vote.

Tax board appeals sessions

The Board of Tax Review will hold sessions Feb. 21 to 23 in the Assessor's Office in the Municipal Building to hear appeals on the 1989 Grand List and 1988 Supplemental Grand Lists.

The sessions will be from 7 to 8 p.m. each night. There will be one work session from 9 to 11 a.m. on Feb. 24 in the assessor's office. No additional appeals will be heard at this session.

Also, the tax review board will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. Sept. 13 to hear appeals on the 1989 Motor Vehicle Grand List. A work session for this appeal session will be held Sept. 15 at an undetermined time.

All persons seeking appeals to decisions by the Town Assessor must appear and file their complaint at one of these meetings or at an adjourned meeting of the Board of Tax Review.

Rally for drug-free society

HARTFORD (AP) — A group of Connecticut politicians, doctors and others pushing for a drug-free society took their campaign to the state Capitol, dramatizing the effort with a hearse and coffin.

"We want a change in attitude, from a society which is tolerant of drugs to a society which is intolerant," said Dr. Julianne Densen-Geber, head of a Bridgeport drug counseling center, Odyssey Institute.

She told a small rally at the Capitol on Thursday that 20 states were mounting similar efforts. She said the group strongly opposed any effort to legalize drugs, telling the rally that "heroin kills whether it's legal or illegal."

Hearing on lead poisoning

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., says a Senate panel will examine the effect of lead on children's health and educational performance.

The Senate Toxic Substances Subcommittee has not yet scheduled a date for the hearing. But Lieberman, a subcommittee member, said Thursday it was prompted by the release of a major study showing a connection between lead and permanent brain damage in young people.

The report by the New England Journal of Medicine analyzed lead levels and educational performance for 132 Massachusetts children who had originally been studied in the mid-1970s. The report concluded that "exposure to lead in childhood is associated with deficits in central nervous system functioning that persist into young adulthood."

Lieberman said that although lead is no longer allowed in paint sold for domestic purposes, it can find its way into homes through illegal sales to unwitting customers.

"This report provides further evidence of a massive problem confronting children in America today," Lieberman said. "The presence of lead in the environment — particularly the environment inhabited by poor children — can cause permanent brain damage."

Bill on lobbyist to be aired

HARTFORD — After a lively debate over the power of money in the legislative process, a legislative committee agreed to hold a hearing on a bill banning lobbyist contributions to legislators when the General Assembly is in session.

The Government Administration and Elections Committee voted 7-5 Thursday to air the measure, which has repeatedly failed in recent years.

Rep. William A. Kiner, D-Enfield, co-chairman of the committee, voted in favor of having a hearing, but made it clear he rejects the perception that lawmakers' votes can be bought by lobbyists.

"I personally resist that," Kiner said, "but, nonetheless, it's out there."

Rep. Richard Torpy, D-East Hartford, said it made little sense to ban contributions during legislative sessions when contributions immediately before and after can be made.

"All we're doing is changing the date of the sale," Torpy said. "I just don't see any point in this thing at all."

WASHINGTON — Pockets of poverty and poor infant health in the Northeast are masked by the strong early child care, child poverty rates and teen-age pregnancy and education southern New England states, officials said.

A new national survey gives southern New England high marks, among the best in the nation, on many of the topics but the survey does not show the stubborn troubles that still exist, officials in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut said Thursday.

"Even though New England looks good, I think there are pockets where we have real problems and need to look at child health specifically," said Jane Griffin, chief data analyst for the Rhode Island Department of Health.

All three states ranked in the top 10 in terms of performance and improvement between 1978 and 1987, the period covered by the independent survey conducted by the non-profit Center for the Study of Social Policy, Massachusetts and Connecticut ranked first and second while Rhode Island was eighth.

The survey considered 10 categories: early prenatal care, infant mortality, low-birthweight births, child-related poverty, benefits, percent of children in poverty, high school graduation rate, education expenditures per pupil, teen unemployment rate, births to teen mothers, and juvenile incarceration.

In all of the categories but one, the three southern New England states were above, or better than, the national average. The one exception was in Rhode Island where the percent of students not graduating from high school reached 30.6 in 1987 compared to a national average of 28.9 percent.

Despite the favorable comparison of these three states with the rest of the nation, not all of the data put together by the center was good news for the Northeast.

The trend in Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island in several of the categories was downward during the 10 years covered by the study.

For example, the percentage of births in which no early prenatal care was involved rose in Massachusetts from 12.0 percent in 1980 to 19.3 percent in 1987. In fact, births involving no prenatal care in 1987 were 17.2, more than double the rate for whites.

"That gap is of huge concern," said Department of Public Health spokeswoman Mary Ann Hart. "We still have some pockets of problems."

Compared with the rest of the nation, there were many bright spots in which the problems of infancy are greatly magnified.

WASHINGTON — Pockets of poverty and poor infant health in the Northeast are masked by the strong early child care, child poverty rates and teen-age pregnancy and education southern New England states, officials said.

Compared with the rest of the nation, there were many bright spots in which the problems of infancy are greatly magnified.

Hartford, New Haven, Boston, Holyoke, Providence and Pawtucket are all well above the national average in terms of infant mortality, according to state officials. And the rate of infant mortality among blacks is also disturbingly higher than among whites, officials say.

Another stubborn problem gaining attention in poor and urban areas is the death rate among infants between one month and one year old.

"One of the concerns we've had over the past few years is that there's been a lot of emphasis on prenatal care and less of an investment in children," said Griffin, Rhode Island's health data analyst.

"You're sending premature babies home in communities and environments where the parenting skills are not the best."

In Massachusetts, officials are struggling to close the gap in infant mortality between blacks and whites. In 1988, the infant mortality rate among whites was 7.1 deaths per 1,000 births. Among blacks the rate was 17.2, more than double the rate for whites.

Second arrest due in fatal shooting of innocent bystander

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Police are seeking a second arrest warrant in the murder of a woman who was struck by a stray bullet as she stood in front of her house with her children.

A 15-year-old boy was arrested Thursday and charged with murder in the murder of a woman who was struck by a stray bullet as she stood in front of her house with her children.

The death Wednesday of Maria Justo, a mother of three, marked the second fatal shooting of an innocent bystander in a little over a year in a neighborhood plagued by drug trafficking.

In both cases, police said the gunfire was the result of drug-related disputes.

Witnesses said two young men were pursuing another man down the street early Wednesday night when one stopped and pulled out a gun, firing three to four times.

Justo, who was in her early 30s, was hit in the stomach by a bullet that apparently first traveled through one side of a house and out the other, neighbors said.

Her children, two boys and a girl all under age 8, escaped injury but looked on in horror as their mother collapsed on the street. As ambulance crews worked on the woman, her crying children were put in the front seat of a police cruiser. The daughter repeatedly banged on the window and called out for her mother.

Lt. James Sorrentino, a police spokesman, said the 15-year-old was charged with murder, criminal use of a firearm, carrying a pistol without a permit and first-degree reckless endangerment after being questioned at police headquarters in the presence of his father. His identity was not released because of his age.

The boy was not ordered held without bond at the Juvenile Detention Center in New Haven, police said.

A second juvenile who police say may have been the intended target of the bullet that struck Justo was also arrested Thursday night.

Marvin Gore, 21, he was charged with murder, criminal use of a firearm, carrying a pistol without a permit and first-degree reckless endangerment after being questioned at police headquarters in the presence of his father. His identity was not released because of his age.

A shooting in the same mostly Hispanic neighborhood on Dec. 28, 1988, also claimed an innocent bystander, Manuel DeLena. Mal-donado, a 34-year-old carpenter, was struck in the neck with a bullet outside a house he had been helping to renovate.

Police determined that Maldonado was the innocent victim of a dispute between two rival drug gangs, Sorrentino said. A man wanted in the shooting was arrested in July in Puerto Rico.

The District of Columbia since last July, according to a Guard spokesman in the nation's capital.

The helicopters are used as "aerial patrols" from which law officers riding with the Guardmen monitor drug activities, according to Houston Murphy, a spokesman for the District of Columbia National Guard. He said the aerial drug patrols currently operate three nights a week.

At the request of the governor, Adj. Gen. John Gerski submitted a plan in December to the National Guard Bureau in Washington, D.C., requesting approval to use Army National Guard helicopters for surveillance during drug operations in Connecticut.

The governor's office said last week the key question was whether such an urban mission for the Guard was permitted.

The plan submitted to Washington also proposes that Guardsmen be allowed to assist in neighborhood cleanup programs in drug-infested areas, and help drug enforcement units with administrative tasks so that more police officers could be sent into the front lines of the war on drugs.

Gerski said Thursday that he been informed by Guard officials in Washington that the plan sends a good message of being approved, although he said funding restraints may prevent all its elements from being carried out.

He said the aerial surveillance mission assigned to have the best chance of being funded by the Defense Department, but he added no money would be available until the end of March at the earliest.

The biggest expense in operating the helicopters would be the cost of paying for the three-man crews, he said.

The helicopters would be made available to police in New Haven, Hartford and Bridgeport for surveillance during drug operations, in the same way they are used in the nation's capital.

Gov. William O'Neill announced last week he had asked the adjutant general to see if the Connecticut National Guard could assist a new program called "Save Our Streets." Under the three-month trial program, the state plans to send teams of state troopers into the three cities to help local police battle drug-related crime.

Gerski said the latest proposal would probably cost more than three times that amount.

The Defense Department ruled out the direct participation of Guard personnel in law enforcement activities such as arrest and seizure.

Chances good for Guard role in drug battle

NEW HAVEN — There is a good chance that National Guard helicopters and crews will be made available on a limited basis for local drug enforcement operations in Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport.

Halloran said he believes that there will be evidence to prove that most of the plaintiffs' telephone calls were tape-recorded.

State police have denied that any attempt was made to listen to the tapes, which they were made to provide a way to play emergency calls.

The Bristol Savings Bank on Wednesday declined to loan the group money.

"It's not an economically viable prospect," said Edward Loreson, the bank's president.

Lake Compounce asked $900,000 for the carousel, which was appraised for $810,000 by a carousel specialist in New Jersey.

Mayor John Leone Jr. said the park will put the carousel up for auction at the Sotheby's auction house in New York in March.

The carousel could be sold sooner, either privately or through the Churnery auction house in New York, said Michael Blanco, Lake Compounce spokesman.

"At this point, we think we've run out of just about every single option," said Rep. Edward Krawicki Jr., R-Bristol, who, as a lawyer, donated his services to the coalition.

One building inspector, Mark Severt, who is also a district volunteer firefighter, inspected the boiler Wednesday at the request of District Fire Chief John Mace and he became concerned about its condition.

At an emergency meeting Wednesday, the directors decided to ask for a quick formal inspection by the town in hopes of being able to delay the replacement long enough to take formal bids on the job.

Instead the directors Thursday voted to waive the bidding process and hire Imperial for the work.

While the boiler was being replaced today, the firehouse was heated by electric space heaters.

Study revives fears of chemical plant neighbors

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Environmental Protection Agency review of toxic industrial releases is reviving concerns that persons who live near scores of chemical or industrial plants may be exposed to high cancer risks.

The EPA, in providing toxic chemical release data for nearly 150 industrial plants in 34 states, cautioned it should not be considered a clear measure of actual cancer risk because it reflects a worst-case level of exposure over a lifetime.

But the findings caused the agency to pursue field checks at some of the plants with the highest release levels and prompted discussions with industry executives — including some operators of the plants involved — about voluntary cuts in toxic emissions, according to EPA officials.

The EPA also indicated it is considering enforcement action against some of the worst polluters, although no targets of such an action were disclosed.

"We take very seriously the potential problems those emissions could present," EPA Administrator William Reilly wrote Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce health and environment subcommittee.

Waxman, who disclosed the latest EPA toxic release findings Thursday, called the new data "very alarming" and said it confirms preliminary findings made available by the EPA last May. Those findings were released by Waxman after some of the data was found to have been up to six years old and included some plants that were no longer operating.

The controversy prompted the EPA to review releases at so-called "high risk" plants. The latest findings, reflecting releases in 1988 and in some cases 1989, indicated continuing high toxic pollution in the air at 149 facilities, including chemical plants, pulp mills and other industrial operations.

The findings showed toxic release levels at 52 plants were high enough that persons living closest to the plant could be exposed to a lifetime cancer risk of at least 1 in 1,000.

The potential risk was as great as 1 in 10 at the Texaco butadiene plant in Fort Neches, Texas, and 1 in 100 at 6 other plants. The EPA said the risk was 1 in 10,000 at 97 other plants.

The government in many cases considers a maximum cancer risk of 1 in 1 million to be unacceptable.

"The data should raise a red warning flag in communities where those facilities are located and spur prompt action to investigate the plants further," said Waxman.

"It shows that a great number of plants potentially pose extremely high cancer risks to the public," he said.

The EPA cautioned the cancer risk assessments were in many cases based on mathematical models and were not intended to reflect the actual cancer risk to particular individuals. In the risk assessment, for example, it is presumed a person resides about 200 feet from the source of the release and is exposed over a lifetime.

"Nevertheless, the estimates for all a risk of 1 in 100 — were: an Asarco Inc. lead smelting plant in East Helena, Mont.; a Mobil Chemical Co. plant in Beaumont, Texas; a Shell Oil Co. plant in Deer Park, Texas; a Uniroly rubber processing plant in Fort Neches, Texas; a Goodyear plant in Calhoun, Ga.; and an American Chrome chemical plant in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Waxman said past inaction by the EPA is partly to blame for the high releases. The agency, for example, has known for years about the high toxic air pollution at some of the plants, but has not acted to curb them.

The statistics leave "an unmistakable message" that Congress should enact stronger legislation to regulate air toxic releases than is being considered in bills before the House and Senate, he said.

Provisions in the proposed clean air bill that cleared Waxman's subcommittee and is a priority of Congress this year would require plants to install the best available technology to reduce toxic emissions. Waxman has opposed its provisions on toxic air pollution because it leaves it to the EPA to choose what chemicals to regulate and does not establish specific emission limits.

In addition to the Texaco Chemical Co. plant in Fort Neches, the facilities where toxic releases posed the highest potential cancer risk — all a risk of 1 in 100 — were: an Asarco Inc. lead smelting plant in East Helena, Mont.; a Mobil Chemical Co. plant in Beaumont, Texas; a Shell Oil Co. plant in Deer Park, Texas; a Uniroly rubber processing plant in Fort Neches, Texas; a Goodyear plant in Calhoun, Ga.; and an American Chrome chemical plant in Corpus Christi, Texas.

Lithuanians unwayed by Gorbachev

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev traveled to the Lithuanian countryside today in what so far appeared to be a futile campaign to persuade the Baltic republic to drop its demands for independence from the Soviet Union. The Soviet leader said Thursday upon arriving for a three-day visit that a permitting session was in the works but that a law could lead to "tragedy."

The main goal of Gorbachev's trip is to reverse the Lithuanian Communist Party's decision last month to break with the national party. It is probably the most serious political crisis he has faced in nearly five years in power.

The Soviet leader began his campaign for Soviet unity Thursday by plunging into crowds in Vilnius and debating Lithuanians one on one.

Most Lithuanians greeted their president with warm smiles and handshakes, but they were unmoved by his plea. About 300,000 Lithuanians jammed the central square of Vilnius late Thursday in a candlelight demonstration for independence.

Gorbachev left today for Staliala, about 125 miles northwest of Vilnius, and was to visit a collective farm and a television parts factory, the official Tass news agency said.

Staliala, home to a large concentration of Soviet armed forces personnel, is closed to foreigners, including reporters.

Gorbachev also was to meet with a rival Communist Party organization created by mostly ethnic non-Lithuanians who continue to profess loyalty to Moscow and the Soviet Communist Party that Gorbachev heads.

In remarks to a meeting of intellectuals in Vilnius on Thursday, Gorbachev said he is "for self-determination all the way to secession," according to Lithuanian TV correspondent Eduardas Potvinskas.

He said he had ordered that a law be written and published establishing a mechanism for secession from the Soviet Union, a right guaranteed by the country's 1977 Constitution but not recognized to date.

It was not clear how free Lithuania would be under the framework Gorbachev envisions.

But while speaking of the right to secession, Gorbachev also said: "You may take this complicated road, and then other republics will start dividing among themselves, and then Poland might remember what used to belong to it." He was referring to the prewar Polish possession of parts of Lithuania.

By going to Vilnius, Gorbachev put his personal prestige on the line. He appeared to be in good spirits when he arrived Thursday, but he grew increasingly somber as the day wore on.

At the meeting with intellectuals, he looked "concerned and grim-faced," Potvinskas said.

Lithuanian television showed Gorbachev in a confrontation with an elderly worker at a Vilnius factory, who wore a sign saying "not more rights, but full independence."

Gorbachev told the man Lithuania was provincial before it became part of the Soviet Union, and since then has become a "developed country."

The worker replied: "And do you know how many Lithuanians were deported in the 1940s, and how many died?"

A visibly exasperated Gorbachev said: "I don't want to talk anymore with this old man. If such attitudes and stigmas exist in Lithuania, then very hard times are coming."

To another critic, Gorbachev said: "Remember, if someone succeeds in pitting us against each other in a clash, there will be a tragedy. We should not allow this."

Gorbachev was not explicit about what such a tragedy might be.

But one of his closest allies, fellow Politburo member Alexander N. Yakovlev, was quoted Monday as saying that Lithuania's demand for independence might cause a "domino effect," encouraging Communists in other republics to break from Moscow.

Demands for greater independence have already been made by the two other Baltic republics, Latvia and Estonia, and by people in the southwestern republics of Moldavia, bordering Romania, and Azerbaijan, which borders Iran.

Gorbachev has granted the Baltic republics a large measure of economic and political power, but Lithuanians want the independence they enjoyed before the world wars.

Risley dam deserves extra funds

When the Manchester Land Conservation Trust opened bids for the repair of the dam at Risley Reservoir Wednesday, there were 13 bidders. The three lowest bids all ranged between $390,000 and $400,000.

Other bids rose in clusters up to a high of more than $615,000.

The bid results indicated a high degree of competition for the job and by most standards of judging bids the results were favorable.

Nevertheless the apparent low bid, coupled with the costs of engineering and the need to provide a contingency fund puts the cost of repair higher than expected and beyond the amount the trust has to do the work.

As a result, the trust will ask the town of Manchester, which has contributed $75,000 to the project to contribute still more, possibly an additional $130,000.

Vernon is committed to contribute $60,000 and Bolton $6,800 toward the dam repair which is essential to the preservation of Risley Reservoir and surrounding land as open space. The trust is prepared to contribute $5,000 from its modest treasury and the state is committed to a $200,000 grant.

The town's Board of Directors, with its majority Republicans committed to fiscal restraint, may find the prospect of spending more money on the dam unpleasant. But unless some other source of money can be found or the scope of the project reduced, the dam does not seem to be much choice.

The preservation of open space in the area where Vernon, Bolton, and Manchester come together is an important goal in itself. But Manchester has a greater stake in the project because it claims the right to the water which will be captured behind the dam, and because of the danger of flooding downstream without an adequate dam.

Manchester does not need the water now, but it will some day and providing the additional money for the dam repair may be the most economical way to get it.

When the three towns involved were unable to solve the Risley Reservoir problem, the Manchester Land Trust stepped in and has come up with a solution. It's request for funds should get favorable consideration.

Opposes street closing

To the Editor: In reference to the article by Nancy Foley entitled "Little Effect Seen in Slater Street Closing" in the Manchester Herald Jan. 3 I have come up with three conclusions:

1. The writer lives at the Connecticut/Rhode Island border.
2. The writer is on the Buckland mall publicity committee.
3. The writer is totally misinformed.

As a resident of South Windsor for 53 years, I am sure the closing of Slater Street is the end of South Windsor residents being able to sneak into Manchester without the myriad traffic lights; i.e. no left turn, no right turn, no forward ahead, back up only, and especially what to do at the traffic light at the Buckland Road entrance to the mall which isn't even opened yet. The decision to close Slater Street is totally ridiculous. The reason given, to prevent people from going into the new glorious mall, is absurd.

The simple solution is to make all entrances from Slater Street "Do not enter" and then, strictly enforce the rules. The mall builders have done a wonderful job in handling the traffic problem; they just take three lanes of traffic in Manchester and turn them into one at the South Windsor line. Very considerate!

Fear overshadows courtesy

In a world where etiquette and common courtesy often appear to be extinct words, one Manchester resident, who also happens to be a Manchester Herald staffer, was surprised to find evidence of both as she took a walk through a part of Manchester one evening. It was just after a snowstorm had dumped several inches in town and warmer temperatures had turned much of the snow to slush and puddles.

As this woman prepared to cross a street, a small truck whizzed by, sending a torrent of water from a puddle onto the walker. The walker was momentarily surprised, but expecting as much, she shook herself off and walked on.

About a block up the street, the same truck came to a quick stop and a man jumped out and apologized for splashing her. The walker was taken aback by the man's regret and thanked him for his concern. Then he asked her if he might give her a ride somewhere.

The warm feeling the walker experienced when the man expressed his regrets slowly changed to one of suspicion. "No, no thanks," she said.

"Are you sure?" the man asked.

"I'm sure," the walker said, as she quickly moved away.

With each step she took, the walker's own regrets about her suspicion clouded the optimism she had felt just moments before. And still she walked on, into a night that grew darker than it had ever been before.

FILED FATE—The Manchester Herald, like most publications, has files of the stories we write on the major issues and events in town. The files, which are in alphabetical order, include folders with such headings as "Main Street Reconstruction" and "Crime—1988." Call it coincidence or call it fate, if one pages through our files, they will find the folder labeled "Suicides" next to the file on "Taxes."

WHAT'S IN A NAME—The University of Connecticut Huskies men's basketball team has a freshman forward by the name of Scott Burrell out of Hamden High.

He has a namesake in the Manchester Recreation Department's Midleg League that plays at the Mahoney Rec Center. Scott Burrell had four points the other night for his team against the Rockets. Burrell—Manchester's Burrell—played for the Huskies, too—the Midleg League's Huskies.

Team appreciative

To the Editor: On behalf of the wrestling team, our supporters and families, I would like to thank you once again for your sponsorship and coverage of the annual Manchester Town Wrestling Championship Series. We were fortunate enough to win the title due to a well balanced and dedicated group of young athletes. Both the team trophy and plaque are proudly displayed once again in our trophy case. Although we have a largely senior team, the importance of this series is appreciated by all who follow wrestling in Manchester. With so many of our starters graduating this year, we will be hard pressed to repeat as town champions next year. The undersized members of the team have promised to work even harder and attempt to defend the title next year. I know that both

Lorenzo rich, but not loved

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Frank Lorenzo is one of the people Americans love to hate, in a class with Leona Helmsley and Morton Downey Jr. Heaven knows, the president of Eastern Airlines has tried his best to make friends, and when that doesn't work, to buy friends.

While flying Eastern Airlines into bankruptcy court, Lorenzo threw plenty of money out the window and much of it landed in the campaign chests of members of Congress and state politicians.

But the surprise is, in Lorenzo's case, money can't buy love. Members of Congress are still trying to pull the reins on his management style, and Lorenzo-bashing is fashionable on Capitol Hill.

Lorenzo's kingdom includes Eastern's parent company, Texas Air, and a sister airline, Continental. His critics charge that he stripped Eastern of its assets after he bought it in 1986 and then funneled money to build up the non-union Continental as his pet airline.

Last March, Eastern filed for protection from creditors in federal bankruptcy court, five days after the airline's machinists, pilots and flight attendants went on strike. The pilots and flight attendants came back in November, but Lorenzo had already stuffed Eastern with new hires and union defectors, leaving few jobs open for the naughty strikers.

One doesn't temper with a major American corporation without lining up support in Congress. Political action committees representing Lorenzo's companies gave at least $147,000 in campaign contributions to members of Congress last year, and more than twice that amount in 1987 and 1988. Lorenzo also gave $100,000 to the Republican Party—money that helped to put George Bush in the White House.

An official from the state Department of Transportation said "trip," as defined in one DOT study, "is an entry or exit at any location or site."

Hardly regular territory for the reporter, the massusee question sparked an investigation of possible massage parlors in the area. A perusal of the Yellow Pages turned up some rather interesting advertisements for area massage parlors and "health clubs."

One place in Hartford is called "Blondes, Blondes-Blondes, also Brunettes," indicating to the novice that having a certain hair color is a significant, if not prerequisite, attribute for massages. Massage professionals, of course, know that most red heads are genetically incapable of performing massages. At least one must have some expertise though because when another reporter called to find out if the parlor discriminated against red heads, he was told that one red head was on the staff.

But the ad (displayed with the word blondes in much larger letters than the word brunettes) also shows that although blondes and brunettes can't both give massages, a blonde's work is far more marketable.

JUST ONE MORE—For those of you who dispute the University of Miami being voted the No. 1 college football team in the country by both wire services ahead of Notre Dame, Herald correspondent Paul O'Neil has a brainstorm.

"There's a week between the NFL league championship games and the Super Bowl. How about a Spontaneous Bowl with Miami and Notre Dame meeting at the Astrodome in Houston. Houston is a depressed area and I'm sure they could use the money from such an event," he said.

Good idea: but Florida State fans might dispute this matchup. Florida State beat Miami during the regular season, and if you go by how the game they must be ready to accept the consequences. In essence one really doesn't even know who killed these people.

2. Jennifer Casolo's part in this scenario has not yet been clarified in my mind — it starts with a very liberal education, followed by some switches in religion, followed by a leader of an "educational seminar group" in El Salvador which was supposedly a "tour guide" for many, many visitors. The impression of many perspicacious citizens is that these people were more interested in the instruction by the Communists than they were in the "climate and scenery." Speaking of being "soft on Communism," Casolo's lawyer is Ramsey Clark (a well-known defender of liberal and red front causes).

There ends the lesson.

The war is finally over for two who were loyal to emperor

WAR STRAGGLERS — Shigeyuki Hashimoto, 71, left, and Kiyooki Tanaka, 77 wait for medical checkups at a hospital in Bangkok before returning to Japan Saturday. They spend more than 40 years fighting with Malaysian guerrillas.

TOKYO — Two elderly Japanese have emerged from 45 years in the jungle, becoming the most recent of a group of Japanese for whom World War II stretched on for decades.

Shigeyuki Hashimoto, now 71, and Kiyooki Tanaka, 77, were employees of a Japanese company in Malaysia at the end of the war, but they joined Communist guerrillas fighting for Malaysia's independence from Britain, one of Japan's former enemies, rather than return home.

The group, the Communist Party of Malaysia, continued its insurgency after the country became independent in 1957 but officially laid down its arms Dec. 2 when it signed a peace accord with Malaysian and Thai officials.

Hashimoto and Tanaka, who are to return to Tokyo on Saturday, are unlikely to get the massive hero's code that died with the surrender.

After returning home, Onoda decided he did not have the skills to live in modern Japanese society and moved to Brazil, where he danced in discos, got married and lived on a ranch.

"I do not consider those 30 years a waste of time," he said. "I was ordered to go there and I carried out the orders to the best of my ability."

A member of Onoda's platoon, Pfc. Shinichi Kozaka, was shot dead in 1972 after he and Onoda fired on a Philippine Constabulary patrol on Labang Island. People there blamed the two for killing at least 21 people, injuring more than a dozen and burning crops — apparently in an attempt to aid Japan's war effort.

Yokoi surfaced in 1972 on Guam, 27 years after plunging into the jungle, where he tailored his clothes out of tree bark and ate a diet of shrimp, coconuts, snails, frogs and rats.

ABORTION RULING affects portions, not all of law

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A federal court blocked principal sections of Pennsylvania's 1989 abortion law, the most stringent in the nation, but abortion foes claimed victory because other sections were left intact.

The injunction was issued Thursday, just five days before the abortion law takes effect. It struck down requirements that women notify their husbands before having an abortion and wait 24 hours for the procedure after requesting it.

Attorneys representing the American Civil Liberties Union, Planned Parenthood-Pennsylvania Affiliates and the Women's Law Project said the injunction would preserve women's rights to legal abortion.

The ruling "is an important first step in the battle to preserve women's rights to choose abortion in Pennsylvania," said lawyer Thomas E. Zemanis, speaking on behalf of the Women's Law Project.

But abortion opponents noted that sections banning abortions because of a fetus' sex and prohibiting most abortions after 24 weeks of pregnancy were not challenged. They said the injunction could be counted as a victory for their cause.

The real story today is not what was challenged in court but rather what was not, said Mary Beliveau of the Pennsylvania Pro-Life Federation. "This is good news for the pro-life movement in Pennsylvania."

The law's author, Republican state Rep. Stephen Freind, said: "It's a big step forward for the pro-life side. ... Two great provisions go into effect next week."

Judge Daniel H. Hayes III issued the decision only hours after lawyers for the state and pro-choice advocates met in his chambers in Reading, Pa. A complaint challenging provisions in the law was filed by Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pennsylvania and other clinics as an amendment to a pending case against the state's 1988 abortion law.

Freind said he expected the case to go to trial by the middle of the year.

Pennsylvania was the first state to take advantage of broader authority to restrict abortion granted under last year's Supreme Court ruling in Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services.

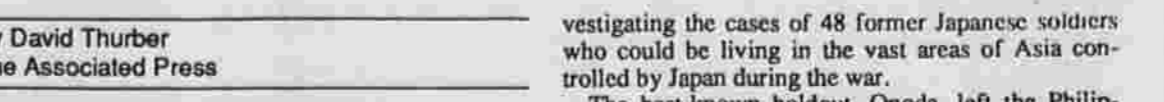

In that Missouri case, the court upheld a law that banned the use of public funds or facilities for abortion and required tests after 24 weeks of pregnancy to determine if the fetus could survive outside the womb.

Anti-abortion advocates have maintained the Pennsylvania law could present the court with another avenue to reconsider the landmark Roe vs. Wade decision, which established abortion as a constitutional right in 1973.

But the two provisions most frequently cited as conflicting with Roe vs. Wade, the ban against sex-selection abortions and a prohibition on most abortions after 24 weeks, were not challenged.

Pro-choice attorneys said Pennsylvania women were not seeking abortions after 24 weeks and that abortions to select the sex of a fetus had not occurred in the state.

Misspelled greeting was the cruellest cut of all

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A banner that took three months to finish was supposed to say "welcome" in Tagalog, the chief native language of the Philippines. But its message left some red-faced instead of warm-hearted.

An embarrassed Filipino security guard noticed the mistake in the banner that went up outside the San Jose Public Library on Wednesday. Senior librarian K. Christie Vogel said the guard explained that the $10,000 sign translated to "welcome."

"There was a heck of a lot of scurrying around — when we found out," she said.

The error was found in the 30-foot-high banner with messages in 27 languages that was on display for the library's rededication. It was renamed after slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., whose birthday is observed Monday.

Vogel said librarians worked with officials from the city's redevelopment office to collect greetings from reference books throughout the world.

The greetings were compiled and sent to a San Francisco sign company that handled the painting.

A four-person crew took the banner down.

The best-known holdout, Onoda, left the Philippine jungle on his 52nd birthday in 1974. An intelligence officer, he received orders in 1945 to stay behind and spy on the U.S. armed forces. Japan surrendered in August 1945.

Onoda refused to give up, despite at least four searches by Japanese officials in which family members appealed to him over loudspeakers and leaflets were dropped from airplanes calling on him to surrender.

Onoda later said he did not give up because no one had reversed his order — until his former commander, Maj. Yoshimi Taniguchi, traveled to the Philippines and ordered him to come out.

In his formal surrender to then-President Ferdinand Marcos, broadcast on national Japanese television, Onoda wore his 30-year-old imperial army uniform, cap and sword, all still in good condition.

Onoda later said he did not give up because no one had reversed his order — until his former commander, Maj. Yoshimi Taniguchi, traveled to the Philippines and ordered him to come out.

In his formal surrender to then-President Ferdinand Marcos, broadcast on national Japanese television, Onoda wore his 30-year-old imperial army uniform, cap and sword, all still in good condition.

After returning home, Onoda decided he did not have the skills to live in modern Japanese society and moved to Brazil, where he danced in discos, got married and lived on a ranch.

"I do not consider those 30 years a waste of time," he said. "I was ordered to go there and I carried out the orders to the best of my ability."

A member of Onoda's platoon, Pfc. Shinichi Kozaka, was shot dead in 1972 after he and Onoda fired on a Philippine Constabulary patrol on Labang Island. People there blamed the two for killing at least 21 people, injuring more than a dozen and burning crops — apparently in an attempt to aid Japan's war effort.

Yokoi surfaced in 1972 on Guam, 27 years after plunging into the jungle, where he tailored his clothes out of tree bark and ate a diet of shrimp, coconuts, snails, frogs and rats.

ABORTION RULING affects portions, not all of law

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A federal court blocked principal sections of Pennsylvania's 1989 abortion law, the most stringent in the nation, but abortion foes claimed victory because other sections were left intact.

The injunction was issued Thursday, just five days before the abortion law takes effect. It struck down requirements that women notify their husbands before having an abortion and wait 24 hours for the procedure after requesting it.

Attorneys representing the American Civil Liberties Union, Planned Parenthood-Pennsylvania Affiliates and the Women's Law Project said the injunction would preserve women's rights to legal abortion.

The ruling "is an important first step in the battle to preserve women's rights to choose abortion in Pennsylvania," said lawyer Thomas E. Zemanis, speaking on behalf of the Women's Law Project.

But abortion opponents noted that sections banning abortions because of a fetus' sex and prohibiting most abortions after 24 weeks of pregnancy were not challenged. They said the injunction could be counted as a victory for their cause.

The real story today is not what was challenged in court but rather what was not, said Mary Beliveau

of the Pennsylvania Pro-Life Federation. "This is good news for the pro-life movement in Pennsylvania."

The law's author, Republican state Rep. Stephen Freind, said: "It's a big step forward for the pro-life side. ... Two great provisions go into effect next week."

Judge Daniel H. Hayes III issued the decision only hours after lawyers for the state and pro-choice advocates met in his chambers in Reading, Pa. A complaint challenging provisions in the law was filed by Planned Parenthood of Southeastern Pennsylvania and other clinics as an amendment to a pending case against the state's 1988 abortion law.

Freind said he expected the case to go to trial by the middle of the year.

Pennsylvania was the first state to take advantage of broader authority to restrict abortion granted under last year's Supreme Court ruling in Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services.

In that Missouri case, the court upheld a law that banned the use of public funds or facilities for abortion and required tests after 24 weeks of pregnancy to determine if the fetus could survive outside the womb.

Anti-abortion advocates have maintained the Pennsylvania law could present the court with another avenue to reconsider the landmark Roe vs. Wade decision, which established abortion as a constitutional right in 1973.

'89 retail sales rose 5%, smallest increase in 7 years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail sales, reflecting a sluggish economy, rose just 5 percent in 1989, the smallest gain in seven years, the government said today. The Commerce Department said sales for all of 1989 totaled $1.71 trillion, down from 1988's 7.1 percent. It was the smallest advance since a 2.9 percent increase in 1982. The economy was pinched through much of last year by high interest rates caused by the Federal Reserve's tight credit policies designed to contain inflation. Retail sales account for about one-third of the nation's economic activity and thus are one barometer of the extent to which the Fed's anti-inflation policies have slowed the economy. The Commerce Department said retail sales rose 0.2 percent in December to a seasonally adjusted $144.4 billion after rising 0.5 percent in November. Part of the November increase was attributed by analysts to the early start of the Christmas shopping during the weekend after

Shuttle

The close-up view of the satellite first appeared on the screen. Dunbar initially held the satellite on the end of the arm, poised above the cargo bay, so it could be photographed extensively. After catching up about an hour before the retrieval, Brandenstein had maneuvered the spaceship to a position about 400 feet directly above the target, with the shuttle flying upside down, its open cargo bay facing the satellite. Brandenstein and Wetherbee then pushed their steering jets to gingerly approach the LDEF as Dunbar flexed the arm. Dunbar was to hold the huge payload on the end of the arm for more than four hours, twisting it slowly, while mission specialists Marsha Ivins and David Low photographed all of its 57 experiments from every angle. "Some might have become so eroded or weakened by the long exposure to space and bombardment by micrometeoroids and atomic oxygen that they could fall apart during the stress of atmospheric re-entry or a return to Earth's gravity," Dunbar said. "We want good documentary photos in case that happens." After photographing the satellite, Dunbar was to tuck it into the shuttle's cargo bay. Brandenstein reported the astronauts first spotted LDEF Thursday night. It was glinting in the sunlight nearly 200 miles away, he said, and was "as bright as could be."

Russian roulette linked to death

BRIDGEPORT (AP) — A 20-year-old Bridgeport man died of a bullet wound to the head, an accidental shooting that police said followed a night of drinking and may have come during a game of Russian roulette. The victim, Augustin Perez, was taken by three friends to Park City Hospital, where he died at about 1:30 a.m. Thursday. After interviewing the three friends, police ruled the death accidental, said police Lt. Michael Kozlowski. He said Perez and his friends had been drinking for several hours and were drinking beer in a parked car when the shooting occurred. Perez and another person in the car were playing with a revolver, which eventually discharged, killing Perez, Kozlowski said.

Inflation

government securities dealer in New York. "Normally, what you want is strong growth and low inflation, if you can get it." The wholesale price number for 1989 masked a roller-coaster ride that had prices rising at better than a 9 percent annual rate in the first five months of the year, slowing to a 1 percent annual rate from June through November and then soaring again in December. Prices had fallen 0.1 percent in November and risen 0.4 percent in October. Energy prices increased 1.4 percent for the month and 9.6 percent for the entire year, compared with a 3.6 percent rise in 1988. The deep freeze that gripped much of the nation last month helped boost fuel oil prices 7.1 percent and natural gas costs 1.6 percent. Gasoline prices were unchanged after falling 7.1 percent in November. For the year, fuel oil was up 33.9 percent, the biggest rise since 1979 when fuel oil prices rose 70.5 percent. Gasoline rose 9.2 percent for the year and natural gas, 5.5 percent. The cold also played a role in food costs last month, which rose a moderate 0.5 percent overall. Prices for vegetables shot up 4.1 percent and for eggs, 4.7 percent. But those gains were somewhat offset by substantial price drops for pasta, pork, turkey and shortening and cooking oil. Food inflation for the year was 5.0 percent, an improvement over 5.7 percent in 1988, when a summer drought seared the nation's farm regions. The inflation rate excluding the volatile food and energy sectors shot up 0.6 percent last month, in large part because of a 4.5 percent jump in tobacco prices. Auto prices rose a brisk 0.6 percent, but for the year were up only 2.1 percent because of weak sales. Economists often look to the prices of goods other than food and energy for an indication of underlying inflation pressures. For the year, that sector rose 4.2 percent, down slightly from 4.3 percent in 1988. Economists attribute the stability outside food and energy to the

MHS girls thriving on team concept

Third-year Manchester High girls' basketball coach Joe DePasqua related an incident at a recent practice which captures the essence of his unique squad this year. "I said to (junior forward) Jen Brindisi, 'Geez, you really like hitting the floor all the time?' To which Brindisi responded, 'No coach, I hate doing that. But you have to do it to win.'" And win is the only thing the Indian girls have done so far this season. They are a perfect 8-0 and stand atop the CCC East with Enfield at 3-0, heading into tonight's game at South Windsor at 7:30. Manchester is ranked seventh in the state poll. "When you have players telling you that, you know you have players with heart," DePasqua said. Question marks and a genuine concern pervaded the Manchester girls' basketball team before the season even started. Two starting players — 6-foot senior center Kathy King (knee) and junior Julie Holmes (anterior cruciate ligament) — were lost for the season. Also, 5-11 junior Shelly Dieterle, the team's leading returning scorer and rebounder, was recovering from a broken foot and would miss at least the first part of the campaign. Senior point guard Tammy Dubois was unable to practice until right before the first game. "The last thing on DePasqua's mind was an 8-0 start. "I sat down with the girls and we talked about our goals for the year," DePasqua said. "I thought we could give a run for it (league title) even with the injuries. I thought we could be very competitive because we had a good JV team (16-2 last year)." The first, and perhaps, most dramatic turning point of the Indian girls' season occurred in the championship game of the Ellington Holiday Classic Tournament versus host Ellington. Trailing, 37-19, after three quarters, Manchester blanked Ellington, 19-0, during the fourth quarter and came away with a thrilling 38-37 victory. At the time, Ellington was ranked among the top 10 teams in the state. "I played in high school. I played in all-star games. I played in a national championship in Division II (at Sacred Heart in Bridgeport). I played at every level and I've never seen a game like that," DePasqua said of the Ellington win. "To shut out a team ranked in the top 10 is unbelievable." After that victory, Manchester was 5-0 and Dieterle had returned to the lineup in the fourth game of the season. "I was figuring if we could come out of the first five games 3-2, that would be good," DePasqua said. "Then we'd be getting Shelly back and we'd be all right. (But) everybody pulled together knowing the injuries."

Cromwell foils Coventry plan

By Len Auster
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The Coventry High game plan as it went for its second win in as many tries against Cromwell High was simple enough; concentrate on the Panthers' big three and take its chances with the other two. But, like any well-conceived concept, sometimes the opposition refuses to cooperate. "Our defensive plan was to stop three people and assume the other two wouldn't hurt us. But all five shot well," Coventry coach Ray Dimmock said after visiting Cromwell signed the cords en route to a 72-56 victory in a well-played Charter Oak Conference girls' basketball matchup Thursday night. "I'm not sure what they shot, but I'm sure it's over 50 percent," added Dimmock after the Panthers (10-1 overall, 7-1 in the COC West) avenged their only loss of the season. Cromwell, which shot a sizzling 27-for-48, 56.3 percent, fell to Coventry in the season opener for both schools on Dec. 7 in triple overtime, 49-43. Coventry sits comfortably atop the COC East at 6-2, 6-5 overall. The main weapons for Cromwell were talented 6-1 sophomore Kristen McCrory (31 points) and 5-10 senior point guard Robyn Alsop (18 points and a fine floor game). But they got plenty of support from Amy Schulkoske (10 points), Kerrie Travers (9 points) and Mary Webster (10 rebounds). They were an iron-man five until Cromwell first-year coach Frank Seidl substituted for McCrory with 2:30 left. "We don't have much of a bench," Seidl admits. The starting five, however, is plenty good. "We let two unattended and it backfired," Dimmock said. "In other games Webster had big scoring games against us. But in other games Alsop didn't have good games against us and tonight she killed us from the top of the key," he added. Alsop hit 5 of 5 outside shots in the first quarter, opening up the inside for McCrory, as Cromwell moved to a 17-11 first-quarter lead. A nine-point run, with four different Panthers figuring in the scoring, proved critical in the opening eight minutes. Coventry, which relies on defensive pressure to help its offense, didn't apply any early. "We knew they'd handle our press," Dimmock explained. "We didn't let their press hurt us." Seidl said. "The idea was to get the ball into the middle to Webster or hit McCrory long."

LOOKING UP — Coventry High's Jenny Davis (10) and Cromwell's Kristen McCrory (23) keep a sharp eye on the unseen basketball during Thursday night's COC game in Coventry. McCrory had 31 points and Davis 18 in Cromwell's 72-56 victory.

"She's been under control since the first game of the year. She had never been a point guard before last year she was a forward. But she's taken on the responsibility of (handling the ball) and unfortunately a lot of times just leaving her out there alone," he said. "I was figuring if we could come out of the first five games 3-2, that would be good," DePasqua said. "Then we'd be getting Shelly back and we'd be all right. (But) everybody pulled together knowing the injuries."

NFC title game matches totally diverse coaches

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — John Robinson and George Seifert grew up five years and about five miles apart in the Bay area. They were on the same coaching staff at Oregon in the late 1960s. Both are polite and well-spoken. And they are totally different coaches, although it won't be obvious to the casual fan when Robinson's Los Angeles Rams play Seifert's San Francisco 49ers for the NFC title Sunday at Candlestick Park. Call Robinson the administrator, a man who left a job as a university vice president to take over as coach of the Rams, a man who had already earned a big-time reputation as coach at Southern California. Call Seifert the technician, a career assistant whose office is stacked with charts, graphs of tendencies and probabilities. Also call him one of the few head coaches who has taken over a successful team and made it more successful. In 1982 in the regular season with a 41-13 playoff victory over Minnesota under his belt. "George is one of the reasons we're here," said linebacker Keena Turner, who played on Seifert's defensive units for the 49ers' Super Bowl championships in 1981, 1984 and 1988. "Instead of coming back with the attitude that we'd just won, he made it seem like it was a new team." Seifert, who went to high school next to the 49ers' old home at Kezar Stadium and sold concessions there in the '50s, almost didn't get the job. An assistant under Bill Walsh at Stanford and then with the 49ers, he seemed typecast as a backup, particularly after going 3-15 in his only major head coaching job at Cornell in 1975 and 1976. When Walsh stepped down after last year's Super Bowl victory, he recommended Seifert. Owner Edward DeBarolo Jr. was looking for a bigger name and actively sought Jimmy Johnson, then at the University of Miami. Seifert was on a plane bound for Cleveland to interview for the Browns' job when his wife had him paged at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport. She told him to come back, that Walsh had prevailed and Seifert had the San Francisco job. He stepped in slowly, letting his assistants run training camp. He first made his presence felt when he suspended Tim McKyer, one of his best defensive backs, for two weeks. Please see COACHES, page 12

Younger Gretzky looks for identity

By Ken Rapoport
The Associated Press

Most people in their early 20s are still looking for their own identity. In Keith Gretzky's case, that's been doubly difficult.

As the younger brother of the world's greatest hockey player, Keith Gretzky is not only trying to make it in professional hockey, he's also trying to escape from Wayne Gretzky's huge shadow.

"Every interview I do with a reporter, I know I'll have to answer questions about being Wayne's brother," Keith said. "It's just a matter of time. Some of the questions can be pretty stupid, like, 'What's it like being Wayne's brother?'

"What can you say to that? He's my brother. I've gotten everything he's deserved. I've gotten used to the questions, but I think it's a waste of time to make comparisons. Wayne's Wayne. We have our own styles."

At 22, Keith Gretzky still is trying to size up in more ways than one. He began the season playing for the Phoenix Roadrunners, an independent in the International Hockey League, but had problems keeping up with the big boys because of his size. He is listed in the press guides as 5-foot-8 and 150 pounds.

Just last week, he asked the figure in Buffalo's plans.

At Phoenix, he had six goals and six assists in 23 games for the Roadrunners this season. Unger liked to use him on the power play, where he scored four of his goals.

"If he has to work on anything, it would be his defensive play," Unger said of Gretzky. "I don't think Keith has had a lot of work done with him defensively. The hardest thing is to be a complete player when you don't have the puck."

Isles' LaFontaine continues his show

NHL Roundup

By Ken Rapoport
The Associated Press

Welcome to the Pat LaFontaine Show.

"He's made some plays that have surprised everyone, he's definitely on a different level," New York Islanders coach Al Arbour said after LaFontaine put on another impressive performance to key an 8-4 victory over the Minnesota North Stars on Thursday night.

The red-hot center extended his goal-scoring streak to 11 — an Islanders club record — and added five assists as New York won for the 10th time in 11 games.

That's the fifth-longest streak in NHL history, only five games behind the record of 16 set in the 1921-22 season by Harry Punch Broadbent of the old Ottawa Senators.

LaFontaine has scored 18 of his league-leading 39 goals in his torrid streak while breaking Mike Bossy's club record set in 1981. LaFontaine, who had only 21 assists coming into Thursday night's game, fell one short of Bossy's Islanders record with his five-assist night, a personal high.

"I didn't realize I was on that pace," LaFontaine said. "Streaks like that are nice, but what really matters is that we're 14-3-1 in our last 17 games."

LaFontaine, who also has a 13-game point-scoring streak, has 11 assists in his streak.

The Islanders scored four second-period goals to break the North Stars' three-game home losing streak. The victory moved the surging Islanders into a second-place tie with Philadelphia in the Patrick Division, just four points behind New Jersey.

Brins 3, Nordiques 1; Randy Burridge, Cam Neely and Ken Linseman scored goals in a 4-0 shutout win for the Bruins beat the Nordiques for their fifth consecutive victory.

Boston goalie Andy Moog had only 19 saves, losing a shutout bid to Tony McKegney's 65-foot slap shot midway through the third period.

Linseman then checked a Quebec rally with an empty-net goal in Bos-

The Nordiques, last in the Adams Division, remained last overall in the NHL with an 8-29-6 record.

Blackhawks 5, Flyers 4; Al Seaman scored three goals as the Blackhawks extended their unbeaten streak to six games.

Jersey's Keselock scored an empty-net goal for Chicago with 59 seconds left to put Chicago ahead 5-3 and that proved to be the winner after Jerry Huffman connected for the Flyers at 19:23.

Flames 5, Sabres 3; Paul Reinhart's goal midway through the third period capped a five-goal comeback for Calgary.

The Flames rebounded from a 3-0 deficit to send Buffalo to its sixth straight loss.

Oilers 3, Kings 3; Wayne Gretzky scored with 5:04 left in regulation as the Kings overcame a two-goal deficit in the third period to beat the Smythe Division-leading Oilers.

'Other' Malone stars

By Bill Barnard

Throughout his career, Jeff Malone has been the 'other' Malone in the NBA.

Despite a 19.6 scoring average going into his seventh season and two All-Star appearances, Jeff Malone has been overshadowed by Karl and Moses Malone.

Jeff took the spotlight Thursday night, scoring the 10,000th point of his career on the way to a season-high 39 points as Washington beat Miami 100-89. It was the Washington player in double figures in 14 games and the Heat's 12th consecutive loss.

Malone reached the milestone with a reverse layup in the second quarter, then scored 22 points in the third quarter, hitting nine of 12 from the floor and four of four free throws during the period.

"It's a great feeling when you score like that," Malone said. "I just want to take the shot every time."

"He couldn't stop him," Heat coach Ron Rothstein said. "He got on a roll and broke our backs."

Malone began to assume control of the game late in the second quarter, scoring 10 points in the final 4 minutes, 14 seconds of the period, including a layup that tied eight points of the half, which ended with Miami ahead 52-50.

"Basically, Jeff Malone just got hot," Washington coach Wes Unseld said. "I'm smart enough not to start coaching when Jeff gets hot."

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Lamont Middleton scored 21 points and had seven rebounds as Hartford defeated Duquesne 76-73, extending the Duquesne losing streak to a school-record 10 games.

Duquesne's only victory in 12 games was a two-point win over Rice on Dec. 2. The record was set in 1966-67 and matched in 1987-88.

Ron Moyo scored 15 on Thursday and David Thompson added 12 for the Hawks, who won for the fourth time in the last five games. Hartford is 7-4 and off to its best start since the program joined the NCAA's Division I in 1984-85.

Mark Stevenson led the Dukes with 26 points.

Fairfield gets fourth win
FAIRFIELD (AP) — Marvin Walters scored 15 points to lead four players who scored in double figures as Fairfield defeated Niagara 60-54, in a Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference clash.

Walters 19-foot jumper with about three minutes left in the game on Thursday gave Fairfield the lead for good, 53-52.

Fairfield raised its record to 4-7, 1-2, while Niagara fell to 3-11, 2-5.

Walters in double figures were Ed Duncan, Kevin George and Harold Brantley, all with 10 points.

Barkley, Jackson each fined
NEW YORK (AP) — Charles Barkley made a bet with Mark Jackson, and they both lost.

The NBA fined each player $5,000 on Thursday after learning they had a running 500 bet on who makes the big play when Barkley's Philadelphia 76ers meet Jackson's New York Knicks.

Commissioner David Stern levied the fines after meeting with the players.

"While I am persuaded that there was nothing more going on here than some verbal jockeying between two friendly rivals, it is my responsibility to make it plain to Messrs. Barkley and Jackson, and everyone else in the NBA, that on the subject of gambling, even the slightest appearance of impropriety is a serious matter," Stern said.

Ex-Steelers among finalists
CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Two pillars of the Pittsburgh Steelers' four Super Bowl victories — running back Franco Harris and linebacker Jack Lambert — head the list of 15 finalists for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Harris and Lambert, Oakland Raiders quarterback Ken Stabler, Los Angeles Rams defensive end Jack Youngblood and Dallas Cowboys coach Tom Landry, all are finalists in their first year of eligibility.

The class of 1990, which will include as few as four or as many as seven members, will be announced Jan. 27 in New Orleans.

Alabama appoints Stallings
TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Alabama coach Gene Stallings took over the Crimson Tide football program Thursday at what amounted to a Bear Bryant reunion.

With former Bryant stars such as Lee Roy Jordan on hand, athletic director Hootie Ingram introduced Stallings, a former player and coach under Bryant, as the man to succeed Bill Curry. Stallings signed a five-year, $104,000-a-year contract.

Curry resigned Sunday to become head coach at Kentucky, citing "inordinate pressures" on his family and players that built during his three years at Tuscaloosa.

PGA Tour sponsor pulls out
NEW YORK (AP) — RJR-Nabisco will withdraw its sponsorship of the richest tournament in professional golf as well as other golf programs valued at several million dollars a year, Nabisco and the PGA Tour said Thursday.

The huge cutback, scheduled to begin in 1991, will eliminate the $2.5-million, season-ending Nabisco Championship tournament the $1-million Individual Championship pool for the top 30 money-winners on the Tour; the $1 million charity competition and sponsorship of the Tour's statistical program.

All those programs will remain in place for the current season, said the announcements by RJR-Nabisco in Winston-Salem, N.C., and from Tour headquarters in Ponte Vedra, Fla.

The total value of the programs is about $5 million a year and represented the largest commercial sponsorship on the PGA Tour.

McGowan takes Tucson lead
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Pat McGowan led a massive assault on a little municipal course with a 10-under-par 62 for a three-shot first-round lead at the Tucson Open.

McGowan scored eight birdies and an eagle and did not have a bogey on the Randolph Park course, which was no match for golf's touring pros. Five players had 65 on the flat, 6,902-yard layout — one of two courses being used for the first two rounds of this event.

Falcons' Hanifan is arrested
ATLANTA (AP) — Jim Hanifan, the interim coach of the NFL's Atlanta Falcons, was admitted to a hospital for treatment of head injuries after his arrest on charges of driving under the influence and simple battery.

Police spokesman Glenda Locke said Hanifan was arrested about 4 a.m. in north Atlanta after his car was stopped for driving without headlights. Hanifan registered a .13 blood-alcohol level, over the legal limit in Georgia 10.

McCortney coach of the year
NEW YORK (AP) — Bill McCortney of Colorado has named 1989 Kodak Football Coach of the Year in Division I-A, the American Football Coaches Association announced Thursday.

McCortney led the Buffaloes to an 11-1 record and No. 1 national ranking before losing 21-6 to Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl.

U.S. soccer players balk
LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — None of the 16 players of federated contracts by the United States National team have signed and backup goalkeeper David Vanole continued his holdout Thursday after a meeting with U.S. coach Bob Gadsby.

Vanole is the only player boycotting the team's training camp in La Jolla but 15 of his teammates have joined him in refusing to sign standard player contracts.

"The scenario for me is I won't report until this is resolved," Vanole said after Wednesday's meeting with Gadsby. "I would love to be out there. I love America and I love playing for the national team. But I felt this was something I had to do. It probably was the most difficult decision in my life."

Howard Weitzman, Vanole's lawyer, said the USFFA offered one-year contracts worth for $25,000 and $35,000 and the players want $50,000 to $60,000.

Tulane's win a cause for celebration

By The Associated Press

It's Carnival Season in New Orleans and Tulane's basketball team provided unexpected cause for celebration.

The Green Wave resumed the sport this season after a four-year suspension in the wake of a point-shaving scandal. On Thursday night, they upset No. 20 Memphis State 81-80 on Michael Christian's 3-point shot with 28 seconds left. It was only the third victory in 11 tries for Tulane and the first in three Metro Conference games.

The last time the teams met, in 1985, was one of the games the conspirators said they fixed. In a repeat of the 1985 game, Tulane students threw Mardi Gras beads onto the floor after the Green Wave's first field goal.

"Look at the face of President (Ramon) Kelly. Look at our students. That's what this is all about," Coach Perry Clark said after Tulane's sweetened out the final seconds. "Even with the ball and two seconds left I was nervous as heck."

Tulane's Christian was only 2-of-6 from 2-point range but hit three of five 3-pointers, including his game-winner with two seconds left on the shot clock.

Anthony Reed led Tulane with 25 points. Memphis State (9-4, 1-1) got 18 from Elliott Perry.

The Tigers took an 80-78 lead on Perry's jumper with 1:14 left but Tulane broke a full-court press and held the ball until Christian's game-winning shot.

Perry missed a shot following a Memphis State timeout but the ball went out of bounds off a Tulane player with two seconds left. However, the Tigers threw away the inbound pass and Tulane ran out the clock.

"Tulane played inspired," Memphis State coach Larry Finch said. "They played hard for their first Metro Conference win, and they deserved it. The big kid (Reed) killed us inside and the shot Christian hit was a tough shot."

No. 10 Duke 96, No. 9 Georgia Tech 81
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Duke's Christian Laettner 23 for Duke, which overcame a 10-point deficit in the final nine minutes, Henderson scored seven points and Laettner hit five free throws in a 17-2 run after Tech had built a 78-68 lead.

The Blue Devils, 11-2 overall, tied 2-0 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, and 2-0 at 80-80 Henderson's 16-footer with 4:20 left, took the lead on two free throws by Laettner with 3:52 to play, and built the lead to 85-80 Henderson's 3-point basket with 3:22 remaining.

Tech (10-1, 1-1) fell to victory shy of tying the school record for the best start in a season. The 1962-63 Jackets won their first 11 in a row to a 21-5 campaign.

Owners, players put spring training on hold
Owners will meet on Feb. 9, six days before camps are scheduled to open. The Major League Baseball Players Association has advised players not to make plans for spring training housing.

There are 410 exhibition games scheduled from March 1 to April 1, the day before the 1990 season is to open. All but 37 of the games are scheduled to be played in Florida and Arizona, where the 36 teams are based before the season.

Percy Snow out to impress in Hula Bowl

By Steve Elliott
The Associated Press

HONOLULU — It's tough to name defensive honors Michigan State's Percy Snow hasn't won. Beyond two All-American, the Lombardi and Butkus awards and All-Big Ten Conference, there's little left.

Yet the 6-foot-3, 244-pound middle linebacker says even an All-American has something to prove in Saturday's Hula Bowl, a game featuring 68 outstanding seniors.

"I'm out here to impress the scouts, too, you know. I haven't made it yet," said Snow, projected as a first-round pick in the National Football League draft.

"I'm looking it just like everybody else. I'm out here to do what I have to do and show my abilities," Snow said.

Snow led the Big Ten in tackles this year with 163, one short of the Michigan State record he set in 1988. He had 464 tackles, including 272 solos, in his career.

Snow is the only player ever to win both the Butkus Award, presented to the team's top backfielder, and the Lombardi Award, given to the best lineman or linebacker.

He even finished eighth in the 1989 Heisman Trophy balloting.

"We all know Percy is going to be a high first-round draft choice," Michigan State coach George Perles said. "He blocks field goals, he intercepts passes, he makes big plays. He's a well-rounded player."

"I can't imagine there's anyone who does more things than Percy in a college football game that is playing right now than Percy."

Snow considers it a good sign the Hula Bowl will be played at Aloha Stadium, where Michigan State defeated Hawaii 31-13 in the Aloha Bowl last year. He had nine tackles in the game.

Snow is one of six All-Americans in the all-star game. Another is teammate Bob Kula, a 6-5, 282-pound fullback.

"I'm here to win the game and show off my talent for the scouts," Kula said.

NCAA Basketball

Dennis Scott scored 30 points to lead Tech, Brian Oliver had 24 and freshman Kenny Anderson 19.

"It was a dogfight," Henderson said. "They made a run and we made a run and we just came out ahead at the end."

No. 11 Louisville 79, S. Carolina 66: Keith Williams made eight of nine shots and scored a career-high 24 points. Williams, whose previous high was 19 against Virginia Tech a year ago, scored eight of Louisville's first 14 points to help the Cardinals take a 3-16 halftime lead over error-prone, cold-shooting South Carolina.

Louisville (11-2, 1-1 Metro) led 31-13 in the first half and stretched it to 51-28 with 14:03 left. South Carolina cut the lead to 54-44 with 9:36 left but could get no closer. The Gamecocks were led by Jo English with 20 points.

No. 13 Indiana 77, Northwestern 63: Eric Anderson scored an 18.2 second-half run with 11 points as Indiana turned a six-point deficit into a 10-point lead and made Bob Knight the winningest coach in Big Ten history.

Anderson scored 24 points, 20 in the second half, and Greg Graham had 21 for the Hoosiers (12-1, 2-1). The victory was the 229th in the Big Ten for Knight, putting him one ahead of former Purdue coach "Lefty" Lanner with 22 points.

Rex Walters scored 20 points for Northwestern, which led 46-40 early in the second half before the Hoosiers put on their big spurt. Anderson tied it 48-48 and broke the tie with another basket that put the Hoosiers ahead to 56-46.

Purdue 86, No. 16 Minnesota 78: Ryan Bering scored all 13 of his points in the final nine minutes, including six free throws in the final 71 seconds, as Purdue snapped Minnesota's 10-game winning streak. Purdue (10-2, 2-0 Big Ten) led 43-30 at halftime and stretched it to 71-53 before the Gophers (10-2, 1-1) rallied in the final seven minutes.

The Boltemakers overcame 23 turnovers, including several during Minnesota's charge. The Gophers' Willie Burton led all scorers with 22 points. Tony Jones led six Purdue players in double figures with 17 points.

No. 18 Arizona 90, Southern Cal 75: Bud Buchner had 22 points and 10 rebounds in Arizona's eighth straight victory. Sean Books added 18 points for Arizona (9-2, 4-2 Pac-10), which also won its eighth straight game against Southern Cal. Harold Miner had 26 points and Chris Munk 20 for the Trojans.

No. 19 UCLA 62, Arizona St. 53: Trevor Wilson scored 17 points and Don MacLean added 12 for UCLA. Arizona State's Alex Austin kept the Sun Devils in the game by scoring 15 points that had the teams tied 19-19 with 2:44 left in the first half.

UCLA (10-2, 4-0 Pac-10) scored the next seven points and led at halftime 26-19. Austin finished with 31 points. Arizona State made only six of 34 shots in the first half.

No. 23 Loyola Marymount 113, Santa Clara 100: Bo Kimble, the nation's leading scorer, had 35 points and Hank Gathers, last year's leader, added 22 as the Lions (10-3) won their West Coast Conference opener and scored at least 100 points for the 11th time. Ron Reis led Santa Clara with a career-high 30 points.
