GOP's pledge on tax may be hard to keep

By Rick Santos Manchester Herald

Read their lips. Republicans today said they would make every effort to honor a campaign pledge not to raise the tax rate... unless of course it's needed. "It's too early to tell," said Republican Director Ronald Osella when asked whether the party could keep its promise. He added that the party, which captured a 5-4 majority on the Board of Directors in the Nov. 7 election, would work its hardest to keep the pledge not to approve a budget that is higher than the increase in the 1989 Grand List. Assuming that other revenues remain stable, the Republicans would have to approve a 1990-91 budget that is no more than 4.1 percent higher than last year's budget of $71.7 million. That would be a budget of $74.6 million. In addition to taxes, the town has income from fees, state and federal grants and reimbursements. With the school budget request already 11 percent higher than last year's, that may be a difficult task. Before making any predictions, Osella said he needs to hear budget proposals from each department and find out any possible changes in state grants to the town. Democratic Director Peter P.

DiRosa Jr. quickly responded. "My immediate reaction is obviously they're (Republicans) waffling on another campaign promise. I will remind Mr. Osella, again and again, that their promise was to not raise taxes," DiRosa said. He added that the GOP pledge was "rather a reckless statement to start with because the community has demands and you have to meet their needs." Osella and Republican Mayor Theunis "Terry" Werkhoven said their preliminary assessment of the Grand List figures is one of satisfaction. However, Osella said he is concerned about "the financial chaos at the state level" and the effect the turmoil will have on state funds for school programs. He said the Board of Education, which is reviewing Superintendent James P. Kennedy's budget request, may have to wield a heavy budget knife. Kennedy has requested $45.5 million for 1990-91. "They're going to have to make some tough decisions," said Osella, who has said a reasonable budget increase for the schools should be no greater than 8 percent. He has suggested the school board may be able to trim Kennedy's proposal by cutting the number of teachers. DiRosa, on the other hand, said the superintendent's budget recommendation primarily includes mandatory expenditures. "I have learned over the years that Dr. Kennedy's budgets are very consistent and very honest," DiRosa said. Last year, Osella and the two other Republican board members, including Werkhoven, recommended a town budget that would have cost $840,000 in education, spending from the previous budget. The budget adopted decreased

Mall paces growth in Grand List

By Alex Grolli Manchester Herald

Manchester's net taxable Grand List has increased by more than $55 million, or 6.6 percent, from 1988. The total Grand List for 1989 is $902,094,409, up from the 1988 figure of $846,343,613, according to figures released Wednesday by Town Assessor Michael Belsch. Most of the $55,750,796 increase in the current Grand List over the 1988 list comes in real estate assessment and most of that increase stems from the construction of the Pavilions at Buckland Hills and surrounding development. The real estate assessment rose from $610,580,333 on the last Grand List as modified by the Board of Tax Review to $654,728,259, an increase of $44,147,966, or 7.23 percent. As a result of construction completed by Oct. 1, 1989, the mall jumped from sixth place among Manchester's top taxpayers to

Deficit estimate up, more cuts planned

HARTFORD (AP) — The state comptroller upped the estimate of the 1989-90 budget deficit again today, to $90.1 million, and Gov. William A. O'Neill ordered another 2 percent cut in spending in non-public safety areas and said grants to cities and towns might also be cut. The 2 percent cut, designed to save $8 million in the final quarter of 1989-90, is on top of a 2 percent reduction for the final half of this current budget year, which is expected to save $20 million. Any reduction in aid to cities and towns would require a change in state law — a daunting prospect for the governor and members of the General Assembly in this election year. Last fall, the comptroller was predicting a surplus as high as $93 million. As tax revenues have declined and spending in welfare agencies has increased, that number has steadily fallen since, leading to today's deficit report. O'Neill said cutting municipal aid is "the last thing in the world" he wants to do, but it may be necessary to keep the deficit to a minimum. "We're all in the same ship here, the ship is the state of Connecticut and the towns are part of it as well," O'Neill said. "We may not have to cut any (grants), but I'm certainly going to have them take a look at it." Today's $90.1 million estimate compares with last month's projection of $65 million for the budget year ending June 30. Please see DEFICIT, page 8

Bush troop reduction wins support

By Jim Drinkard The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush, winning bipartisan acclaim in Congress, is proposing further deep cuts in U.S. and Soviet troop strength in Europe and declaring "that time has come" to swiftly conclude agreements limiting conventional, strategic and chemical weapons. "Today, with communism crumbling, our aim must be to ensure democracy's advance," the president said Wednesday night in a State of the Union speech that blended his new troop withdrawal proposal with a pledge to withdraw the remainder of the U.S. invasion force from Panama by the end of the month. In a surprise overture, Bush proposed cutting military manpower in Europe to 195,000 troops on each side, down from the 275,000 figure that was the U.S. bargaining position at conventional force negotiations in Vienna. The president said he called Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev earlier in the day to inform him of the offer, which already had been endorsed by NATO allies. The move, Bush said, was a response to "the revolution of '89" in which he said the United States "stands at the center of a widening circle of freedom." Bush said Gorbachev seemed "receptive" to the idea and was studying it. Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said on ABC-TV this morning that the Kremlin was "satisfied" with Bush's troop cut proposal "as a beginning." But he said the Soviets want all foreign troops out of Europe and, "if that's Bush's bottom line, it is unfortunate." In Brussels, Belgium, NATO Secretary-General Manfred Woerner said the allies offered their "broad support in principle" for Bush's proposals. "These new proposals are very important, because we were falling behind the curve of popular will," said Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine. "He had to get way out push peaceful change forward, Bush said. "A swift conclusion to our arms control talks — conventional, chemical and strategic — must now be our goal. That time has come," he said. However, Bush's budget provides continued buildup for most nuclear weapons systems and the Star Wars missile defense, a reflection of what the president called Moscow's continued modernization effort in that area. In the only other concrete announcement in his speech, Bush said he would pull back the remaining U.S. troops sent to Panama for the December invasion by the end of February. The Pentagon said Wednesday that troop levels now are about 16,000, or about 3,000 more than the provision number. Amid the agreement, there also were signs that a tough year lies ahead. When Bush repeated his "no new taxes" pledge and again steps take account of new political developments in the East, while remaining consistent with the needs of the alliance's strategy of deterrence." The surprise overture was the centerpiece of an address that also promised to "invest in America" through savings incentives, research and improved education, and called on citizens to "confront and condemn" racism and hate. Bush also renewed his call for a capital gains tax cut, slapped down by Democrats last year, and called on lawmakers to pass clean air, child care, crime and drug legislation. But while Congress applauded the troop cuts — and the savings they eventually would produce — Democrats said Bush's rhetoric on domestic issues did not match the budget he sent to Capitol Hill just two days earlier. On education, "the president's words seem to agree with us, but his actions say something else," said House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., delivering his party's formal response to Bush's primary. The proposal reflects advice of top military strategists, would sustain NATO's needs and would help

Crowding could force early release of inmates

HARTFORD (AP) — The state, once again faced with either releasing a large number of prison inmates early or the emergency release of hundreds of inmates, is easing eligibility rules for supervised home release. For the 28th consecutive day Wednesday, the population of the male inmates exceeded 110 percent of the prison systems capacity. The population Wednesday was 8,383 men, or 94 more than the 110 percent limit. Eight times last year, correction officials made it easier for inmates to obtain supervised home release by ignoring disciplinary problems or recent escape attempts that otherwise would disqualify them from the program. "They're trying desperately to get back under the cap," Correction Department spokesman William Flower said Wednesday. If correction officials fail to get below the cap by Friday, the prison system would be required to release more than 1,100 inmates, Flower said. Man charged in death of baby was on home release. PRESIDENTIAL APPLAUSE — President Bush is applauded by Vice President Dan Quayle and House Speaker Thomas Foley before his first State of the Union address to Congress Wednesday night. Bush has 565,000 troops in Central Europe compared with the U.S. level of 305,000. But the offer could come as a welcome relief for Gorbachev, who is under heavy popular pressure to unilaterally remove Soviet troops from Warsaw Pact countries which are bedding their ties to Moscow. The proposal reflects advice of top military strategists, would sustain NATO's needs and would help

Adopt a pet: Ebony is ready

By Barbara Richmond
Manchester Herald

Ebony, a small male mixed breed dog, found roaming in the Highwood Drive area, is this week's featured pet at the Manchester Dog Pound.

He is about one year and is black with a little white on his chest. Dog Warden Thomas Pascanelli said Ebony is a very sweet dog and probably will not grow any larger.

Tammy, the cute little beagle-terrier cross female, featured last week is still waiting to be taken to a good home. She's very friendly and would make a nice pet. She's tan and white and is about 1 year old.

The yellow Labrador retriever cross, mentioned in last week's column, was adopted by a Manchester family.

The Britany spaniel, also mentioned in last week's column, was to be adopted early this week.

New dogs at the pound, as of this week, included a sweet shepherd cross puppy. She's about 3 months old and is black and tan. Pascanelli said she was roaming alone in the Rossett Drive area on Jan. 30. Another new dog was a male husky-shepherd cross. He was picked up on Oakdale Street on Jan. 28. He's black and tan.

All together there were eight dogs at the pound on Tuesday, several of them had known owners, Pascanelli said.

The dog pound is located on town property off Ocott Street near the landfill area. Pascanelli is at the pound weekdays from noon to 1 p.m. There is also someone at the pound from 6 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The phone number at the pound is 643-6642. If there is no answer there call the police department, 646-4555.

There is a $5 fee to adopt a dog and the new owner must have the dog licensed. Before being licensed the dog must have its rabies shot.

The organization has many cats and kittens in need of good homes. All of the cats are neutered or spayed and given their shots before being put out for adoption, unless too young to wait.

Many of the animals are kept at the homes of volunteers and many are boarded at area veterinary clinics. To adopt a cat or kitten, or for more information, call any of the following numbers in the homes of volunteers: 666-7000, 212-8317 or 242-2156.

Police Roundup

Two charged with DWI

Two men were charged with driving while intoxicated Wednesday in separate arrests, police said.

Dwight G. Petersen, 34, of 46 Hillside St., also was charged with illegal use of a radar detector, driving with a defective windshield and unreasonable speed, police said. He is scheduled to appear Feb. 26 in Manchester Superior Court.

William LaPlant, Jr. of Vernon also was charged with reckless driving, operating a motor vehicle without a license and operating an unregistered vehicle, police said. He is scheduled to appear Feb. 9 in the same court.

According to police, Petersen was driving east on Hartford Road at about 8:32 p.m. when police noticed his van speeding.

In a separate incident, LaPlant of Vernon was observed driving at a high rate of speed south on Buckland Street shortly after midnight, police said.

Neighbors to aid in searches

By Dianna M. Talbot
Manchester Herald

Neighbors of Crestfield Convalescent Home want to make sure that last year's incident in which an elderly Alzheimer's patient wandered away from the home and died does not happen again.

The state Department of Health Services has since cited the nursing home at 565 Vernon St. for failure to protect the patient from accident or incident and has proposed a $500 fine. Cynthia Denne, a supervisor in the department, said today.

In the event of a similar missing person incident, all 40 residents of Knowlwood Road and Vernon Street, near the nursing home, have agreed to band together and help police search their neighborhood to find the person.

Their action follows the death of Dominio Parola, 83, a resident of the nursing home who was found laying face down between some hedge about 40 feet from the intersection of Sage Drive and Kennedy Road at 7:30 a.m. on Nov. 6, almost 10 hours after he was reported missing from the nursing home, police said.

At first, overexposure to freezing temperatures in the early 30s was thought to have killed Parola, who was dressed only in a short-sleeve shirt, pants, socks and workboots, but an autopsy later revealed his cause of death to be a ruptured heart artery.

Two police dogs tried to track Parola's scent from the nursing home's premises for about four hours, but were unsuccessful, possibly due to wrong wind direction and too many people entering and exiting the grounds, police said.

Also, a search of the immediate neighborhood was not successful.

Terrie Dittman, a resident of 236 Knowlwood Road, said she and her husband came up with the idea of organizing a neighborhood search party after hearing about the man's death.

"If everyone would have been out there searching, maybe we could have found him faster and possibly saved him," she said.

Gary Wood, spokesman for the town police department, commended the residents' efforts.

"We are absolutely ecstatic," he said. "The police department did not do everything. We are glad to see the community involved."

Nursing home employees said that another patient may have pushed open a secured door on the nursing home's northwest side and let Parola out or he may have gotten out some other way, police said.

Woman robbed at gunpoint

By Dianna M. Talbot
Manchester Herald

A 40-year-old woman was robbed at gunpoint of her pocketbook Monday evening in the parking lot of 7-Eleven Food Store, 513 Center St.

The robber remains at large and police are looking for information relating to the 7:45 p.m. incident, said Gary Wood, spokesman for the Manchester Police Department.

According to police, the woman had just made a purchase at the store and was walking to her car when a man grabbed her pocketbook, pushed her to the ground and fled on foot to Alexander Street, where he continued running and went right onto Ridgewood Street.

The suspect was described as black, 22 to 30 years old, 6 feet tall, about 180 pounds with a muscular build and possible facial acne, and wearing glasses and dark clothing.

A clerk in the store told police that at the time of the incident he heard a woman scream a few seconds after she had walked out of the store. The clerk said he looked up and saw a black male pulling the woman's purse from her arm, police said.

The woman, whose name is being withheld to protect her identity, was about four feet away from her car, which was the only vehicle in the parking lot at the time, when suddenly the man approached her from the right and pushed a gun in front of her face, police said.

The man said to her, "Hey lady, look at this," grabbed her purse, jerked it off her shoulder, pushed her onto the ground and fled, police said.

She was later treated for bruises and a sprained shoulder at Manchester Memorial Hospital, police said.

Vandalism down, but costs to fix it are increasing

By Nancy Foley
Manchester Herald

Students today are less interested in vandalizing their schools than they were a few years ago, according to Wilfred Dion, director of buildings and grounds for the schools.

The number of incidents of vandalism is down from last year and has been going down steadily for about 10 years, Dion said.

The number of windows broken is only a third of what it was several years ago, for example, he said.

Typical forms of vandalism include breaking windows and writing graffiti, he said. Sometimes, students ruin the lawns of schools by running their cars over them.

No major incidents of vandalism have occurred in recent years, Wilson E. Deakin, Jr., assistant superintendent for administration, said.

The last major incident was about five years ago when a man rained the lawn at Keeney School with his pickup truck, Deakin said. Several years before that, some youths vandalized Highland Park School.

In both incidents, the vandals did several thousand dollars worth of damage, Deakin said.

Deakin said he was not sure why the amount of vandalism has decreased. But he speculated that students today may be more interested in extracurricular activities and recreation programs.

He also said, "I was extremely surprised at the time. My car was only four feet away."

She said she had gone into 7-Eleven to purchase a Slurpee ice drink for her 11-year-old daughter who was ill, and she had recently cashed a check, but had not been able to deposit it in the bank yet because of her daughter's illness.

"I don't know if the robber intended to rob me, someone else, or even the store. I do think that if I hadn't been carrying a purse, he would have let me walk by. I think the purse was like a beacon to him."

She said she intends to carry her money either in her pockets or in a money belt now.

"You don't see men get treated like this because men don't carry purses," she said.

Members of the committee are Sandra Johnson, Marcie Labelle, Chris Mantie, and Grace Pierzyca. The committee will meet Feb. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the hearing room of Lincoln Center to share information and ideas about the Earth Day observance with local groups and individuals who are planning events or projects, or who would like to support such activities. Earth Day is held to draw attention to the need to preserve the environment.

Craft named for naval academy

Corey S. Craft, a Manchester High School student, has been nominated to the United States Naval Academy by U.S. Rep. Barbara Kennedy. Craft is the son of Sandra and Richard A. Cooksey of 218 Charter Oak St. The academy will make its selection from a pool of candidates nominated through Congressional offices. Beginning in July, Kennedy will accept applications for nominations to U.S. service academies for the class of 1991. For further information, phone 246-5120.

Love course begins series

A series of non-credit courses for single people only is being offered this spring by the Continuing Education Division of Manchester Community College. The first course, "What Is This Thing Called Love," begins Wednesday, Feb. 7, and runs for four weeks. It is taught by John Crowley, a sociology professor, who will share with participants in the course his years of reading, reflecting, and teaching on the topic of love.

Each course in the 10-course series is limited to an equal number of men and women and course fees range from $25 to $55. More information on registration can be obtained by phoning 647-6242. Other courses are two one-night wine tasting courses with Gene Spaziani Feb. 15 and March 15; "Clearing Negative First Impressions," March 13; "Walk for Fun and Fitness," beginning April 3; "Bookworms Anonymous," beginning Feb. 15; "Playgroups Anonymous," beginning Feb. 21; "The Cultural Relevance of Star Trek," beginning March 7; "Go: The Game that Shaping Japan," beginning April 17; and "Cooking and Shopping for Fun," beginning March 9.

Spanish party a success

BOLTON — The Bolton High School Spanish Club held its annual Three Kings party at the school recently. Sherry Gangway and Kate Hill constructed pinatas which were filled with candy and small gifts that spilled forth after the members succeeded in breaking the pinatas. After a taco supper, the traditional "Rosca de Reyes," or Three Kings Bread, was served along with other Hispanic desserts.

Bolton has radon test kits

BOLTON — Radon test kits are available for Bolton residents being offered by the Bolton Board of Health to highlight the dangers of radon in the home. Since the level of radon varies from home to home even within a neighborhood, the health department says every home should be tested.

Kits and testing instructions can be picked up weekdays at the office of the selectmen at the Community Hall from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Mondays, except holidays, from 7 to 9 p.m. For more information, phone 649-8066.

Pageant seeks contestants

Applications are being accepted for the annual Mrs. Connecticut America Pageant to be held at the Ramada Inn in North Haven May 5 and 6.

All judging will be on the basis of poise, personality and beauty of face and figure. Applicants must be at least 18 years old and must be presently married for at least six months. The current Mrs. Connecticut is Anne Davies of Glantonbury.

Those interested in competing must send a brief biography, along with a photo, name, address, and telephone number to Dept. A, Mrs. Connecticut, 40 Central Park South, Suite 14-D, New York, N.Y., 10019. The phone number is 1-212-242-6900.

Model United Nations set

Manchester High School students will be among students from 40 area high schools who will participate Friday and Saturday in the 41st annual Model United Nations at the University of Hartford. Student representatives will role play the countries they represent.

As delegates for their countries, they will take positions their countries would. The students will spend two days meeting in committees similar to those of the United Nations and debate topics such as disarmament, aid, development and debt, refugees and global environmental issues. As part of their preparation, students went to the United Nations in November and had appointments to see diplomats from the countries they represent.

Job Fair slated for March 17

The Fourth Annual Job Fair, co-sponsored by the East of the River Chambers of Commerce Association and Manchester Community College, will be held March 17 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Lowe Building Program Center of Manchester Community College. Workshops will be scheduled throughout the day to address such skills as interviewing techniques and resume writing. In a letter to members, the ERCCA says the fair has proven a convenient and cost-effective alternative to individual recruiting efforts.

Kennedy at chamber program

U.S. Rep. Barbara Kennedy will be guest speaker Monday at the Manchester Country Club at a program sponsored by the East of the River Chambers of Commerce Association.

Her topic will be "Congress 1990: What's in Store for Business."

Tickets for the event are $15 each, including a continental breakfast from 7:45 to 8:30 a.m. Kennedy will speak from 8:30 to 9 a.m. with a half-hour question period afterwards.

MARC bakery now kosher

MARC bakery operation was approved as kosher certified Jan. 14. The procedure required the purification of equipment to be used when producing kosher bakery products.

It does not require changes in any ingredients. MARC entered the kosher baking market in order to expand not only the skills of its clients but also to include more people in its service delivery.

MARC is an organization for retarded citizens.

New retardation head sworn-in HARTFORD (AP) — Toni Richardson, a 21-year veteran of the Department of Mental Retardation, has been sworn in as the agency's new commissioner by Gov. William A. O'Neill. Richardson, who previously headed the agency's Waterbury regional operations, succeeds Brian R. Lenzink, who announced his resignation in September after enduring months of criticism from advocates for the retarded.

Bolton selectmen considering 5-year plan

By Matthew Kirschman
Herald Correspondent

BOLTON — Fearing that the Board of Finance may yield its budget as too free, selectmen are considering a capital improvement plan that would spread needed expenses over five years.

"You can postpone them, but sooner or later they will come back to haunt you," said Executive Assistant Helen Kemp of large expenditures during a budget meeting Wednesday.

Board members agreed that many of the requests for program additions and capital expenditures for the fiscal 1990-91 year are beyond the town's means.

"If the tax is going to fall, that's where it'll fall," said First Selectman Robert Morra, a Republican.

One of those large expenses is about $300,000 needed for a new town garage. Selectmen said they may present plans for the garage to the Finance Board.

Included in the budget requests so far are the $5.8 million schools' budget, up 14.5 percent from this year's budget. The Highway Department request, at $438,597, is up nearly 20 percent from this year's budget of $366,205.

Selectmen will meet Monday and Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Community Hall. They expect to complete their budgetary review by closing time.

Selectmen came to no consensus Wednesday on needed cuts, but agreed that they needed to work closely with the finance board.

"We are faced with the problem of not being able to adequately complete a project," said Morra. "It is better to eliminate specific programs rather than half-funding them."

Selectmen also said they want to bring town residents closer to the budget-making process so that they can choose where they would like their taxes to go.

Newsletter to 'correct' TNT figures

By Matthew Kirschman
Herald Correspondent

BOLTON — A member of the Board of Education wants the board to distribute a newsletter to counter what he calls misleading information about the schools by The Neglected Taxpayers' group.

School board member Pamela Z. Sawyer, a Republican, also said at a board meeting Tuesday that the newsletter would contain more information on the school system's plan to attract students from Columbia. That would offset the loss of Willington students.

Sawyer said the newsletter would "correct in the public mind the figures" that TNT has disseminated, which she said are "grossly inflated."

TNT, a group which is agitating to keep education costs down, issued a figure that exaggerated the cost of each high school student's education per year, board members said.

In a newsletter distributed through the community, TNT estimated that the town spends $12,297 per high school student per year.

But that figure is "inaccurate, misleading and distorted," said Richard Packman, superintendent of schools, during the school board review of proposed solutions aimed at dealing with the problem of Bolton High School's decreasing enrollment.

The meeting — the second between South Africa's two most influential political leaders — comes a day before de Klerk addresses the opening session of Parliament.

The president is expected to make major announcements, possibly dealing with Mandela's release, the legalization of banned opposition groups and at least a partial lifting of the state of emergency.

On Wednesday, in a major policy reversal, de Klerk ordered a judicial inquiry into allegations that his state hit squads have killed anti-apartheid activists on the orders of high-ranking officers.

Activists have alleged for years that the white minority government's security forces were involved in the unsolved killings of more than 60 anti-apartheid figures.

Government officials refused to disclose details about today's Mandela de Klerk meeting, which state radio said was intended to "iron out differences" related to Mandela's release.

BOSTON (AP) — A study today raises the possibility of population-wide screening for carriers of cystic fibrosis, but what happens to parents who ignore the knowledge that their children have the disease.

Making the test mandatory "has the potential for grave danger," warned Dr. Harvey R. Colten of Washington University. "Even voluntary screening programs carry considerable economic and social risk."

Cystic fibrosis is the most common fatal genetic disease of young Americans. It occurs most frequently among whites, striking about one in every 2,500 white newborns in the United States.

For the first time, scientists can detect in newborns the gene that those likely to bear children with the inherited illness. While the test is still too crude for routine use, doctors believe that within a year it will be able to detect 95 percent of all carriers of cystic fibrosis.

One in 25 white Americans carries one copy of the cystic fibrosis gene. They are healthy, but if they marry another carrier, there is a 1-in-4 chance that their children will have cystic fibrosis.

Last summer, Drs. Lap-Chee Tsui of the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto and Francis S. Collins of the University of Michigan pinpointed the genetic error responsible for most cases of cystic fibrosis. The latest study looked at what happened when doctors screened people for this single defect.

Increase in aid set for Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department announced today a proposed $55 million increase in economic assistance for El Salvador as Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani headed into high-level meetings here.

Before the formal announcement, an administration official had confirmed a published report that an aid cut was planned, but the official figures showed $284 million proposed for El Salvador for fiscal 1991 compared with $229 million for the current year. The official was unavailable afterward to explain the discrepancy.

Other Central American countries, however, were cut back as part of a general reordering of priorities the administration is undertaking in light of additional claims on the aid program in Panama and Eastern Europe.

Military aid to El Salvador would undergo a slight increase in fiscal 1991, to $91.4 million from the current level of $84.6 million.

The administration has been concerned that Congress may impose sharp cutbacks on El Salvador in response to continuing human rights abuses in that country.

Cristiani planned a session with members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee today before an early afternoon meeting with Bush.

Some in Congress favor making future aid to El Salvador contingent on a pre-student court in the town's schools.

TNT, a group which is agitating to keep education costs down, issued a figure that exaggerated the cost of each high school student's education per year, board members said.

Christian forces fight door to door

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Rival Christian forces fought from house to house under raining shells today in a showdown for control of Lebanon's Christian enclave. Police said at least 62 people had been killed and 216 wounded.

Hundreds of thousands of civilians huddled in basements and bomb shelters with dwindling water supplies as troops loyal to renegade Gen. Michel Aoun fought for the Lebanese day with mistletoe of the 13th Forces.

Christian radio stations said a new cease-fire, the third in 24 hours, was called for 9 a.m. in response to renewed Vatican appeals.

But shellfire and bursts of gunfire persisted in Beirut's burning Christian sector well after the truce deal-line, although police reported a slight decrease in hostilities that allowed some casualties to be evacuated.

Conflicting victory claims made it difficult to determine who held the upper hand in the fighting, which left fires raging out of control and morgues packed with bodies.

Aviana pilot ulitized at Mass

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — After the veteran pilot of Aviana Flight 52 was eulogized at a simple funeral Mass, officials drove his body to where he had tried to land a week before: Kennedy International Airport.

The remains of Capt. Laurence Cavides Hoyos, mounted Wednesday at a service at St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, were to be flown today to Colombia for burial.

The remains, who took up only three pews, listened intently as Associate Pastor Rev. Jeffrey Johnston offered them comfort.

"One who spent so much of his life in his home among the stars, now rests beyond them," he said.

Cavides, 36, was an Aviana pilot for 28 years. He was survived by his wife and two sons, ages 13 and 14, who live in Bogota, Colombia.

The Mass was arranged by Cavides' sister-in-law, Yolanda Manos Todd, who lives in nearby Great Neck with her husband and son, Johnson said.

The captain was one of 73 people killed Jan. 25 when the Boeing 707 he was flying apparently ran out of fuel and crashed in the small enclave of Cove Neck on Long Island. Another 85 people were injured.

National Transportation Safety Board investigators have not said who or what was to blame for the crash.

Carolina city recalls sit-ins

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The four blacks who were denied service at an all-white Woolworth lunch counter 30 years ago were greeted today by a black Woolworth vice president before sitting down to a breakfast of eggs, grits, bacon and coffee.

David Richmond, Franklin McCain, Jibreel Khazan and Joseph McNeil entered the store at 7:30 a.m. and, surrounded by dozens of reporters and onlookers, ordered from two women who had been working there on Feb. 1, 1960.

Three of the men wore business suits. Khazan, formerly Ezell Blair Jr., wore a white robe with a headband around his dreadlocks. They were greeted by Woolworth Vice President Aubrey Lewis, who noted that 30 years ago he, too, would have been denied service.

"I'm proud you had the courage to open the doors for a movement," Lewis said.

While the four waited for their meals, some onlookers began singing "We Shall Overcome." Outside the store there was more singing directed by the NAACP and some bystanders carried placards saying, "Feb. 1, 1960. It seems like only yesterday but it could be tomorrow."

"The only thing that's worthwhile is change — Remembering Feb. 1, 1960."

Back in 1960, public buildings in Greensboro had separate water fountains for whites and blacks. They had separate entrances for blacks, who were forced to sit in balconies, away from whites. Blacks had to step to the rear on city buses.

When the four, all freshmen at North Carolina A&T State University, refused to leave the counter 30 years ago, their sit-in touched off protests in nine states and helped ignite the civil rights movement.

U.S. indicts top Mexican officials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The indictment in the 1985 torture-slaying of a U.S. drug agent expanded to include two of the highest police officers in the previous Mexican administration and two powerful drug dealers.

They were among six new names in a 19-page indictment Wednesday that updates charges related to the slaying of Enrique Camarena Salazar and his Mexican pilot, and the killings of two U.S. citizens in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Manuel Ibarra Herrera, former head of Mexico's Federal Judicial Police, roughly equivalent to the FBI, and Miguel Aldana Ibarra, who headed the Mexican branch of Interpol, the international police agency, were charged with participating in a cover-up to protect drug smugglers in Mexico.

Both were officials in the administration of President Miguel de la Madrid, who completed his term in office last year. They were among 15 people named in the indictment who are not in U.S. custody.

Camarena and his pilot, Alfredo Zavala Avelar, were killed after the Drug Enforcement Administration agent led raids on marijuana plantations allegedly operated by Guadalajara drug cartels and brought to justice by the DEA, said Ralph Lochridge, agency spokesman in Los Angeles.

His body was found March 5, 1985, on a ranch 65 miles southeast of Guadalajara.

"Germany should once again become a united fatherland of all citizens of the German nation," Modrow said. "Responsibility, caution and understanding are demanded in order to ensure that there is never any danger to the lives and well-being of neighbors."

Modrow called for negotiations with Bonn soon to devise a joint plan on reunification, but made clear that he had not previously discussed his views with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

He said elections in both Germany would be necessary to set a joint parliament in Berlin. And he indicated that in his view "joint executive bodies" could also function in certain areas.

Modrow said both states must "step by step" proceed toward neutrality.

Modrow's announcement appeared to reject a unity plan proposed Wednesday by West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, who envisioned West Germany remaining loyal to the NATO alliance while making what is currently East German neutral.

Reflecting Bonn's optimism about eventual reunification, Genscher today praised as "an important step forward" President Bush's proposal for sharp reductions in U.S. and Soviet forces in Central Europe.

Bush's proposal Wednesday night in his first State of the Union address to limit each superpower to 195,000 troops in the region also was welcomed by West Germany's defense minister, Gerhard Stoltenberg.

He called it a "balanced combination of disarmament policy and unequivocal recognition of the West's defense readiness and alliance solidarity."

In a speech by the Evangelical Institute in Tübingen, near Munich, Genscher outlined what he sees as a security guarantee for Moscow and a compromise that could appease Washington as well.

Genscher suggested that the territory now constituting West Germany could remain in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, while the area east of the Elbe River, East Germany, would not host any military facilities.

American and West European allies have indicated that they would accept reunification as long as Germany stays within the NATO alliance.

But East Germany is host to about two-thirds of the Soviet Union's 600,000 troops in Central Europe, making the state shaken by democratic upheaval the Kremlin's most crucial defense partner in the seven-nation Warsaw Pact.

NO SURPRISE — Doris Gagnon gestures after a judge evicted her from her trailer. She said she wasn't surprised by the decision and that she plans to appeal.

Judge evicts squatter from home

By Larry Rosenthal
The Associated Press

DERBY — A judge has ordered the eviction of a woman who set up a crude homebased on beach-front land nearby two decades ago after the state demolished her house to make way for a seaside park.

The park has still not been developed, and state officials say it will be two to three years before they begin preparing the site in Milford for recreational use.

But Superior Court Judge Karen Sequino found Wednesday that the long delay in turning the land along Long Island Sound into a park could not be held against the state, and that squatter Doris Gagnon had no right to remain on the property.

The eviction order carried an automatic 20-day stay, and the judge said it was likely that Gagnon would qualify for a stay of up to nine months if she chose to pursue public housing. Attorneys said an appeal would give her at least a year to remain where she is.

Gagnon, 72, has endured squalid conditions since 1971 to remain on land near where her house once stood. Her homestead consists of a collection of shacks and aging trailers with no electricity, no telephone and no running water.

O'Neill's attorney General Grace Dodier said that any hardships Gagnon was suffering were self-imposed, and she said the case boiled down to one in which someone had chosen "to declare public property private property."

But Gagnon's attorney, Karen Torre of New Haven, said the state's treatment of Gagnon had been "shameful and disgusting" and represented "government at its worst when it doesn't care."

Torre asked that Gagnon, who has been battling cancer but appeared quite energetic at the court hearing, be allowed to remain in her homebased until the bulldozers are ready to begin preparing the parkland for recreational use. Torre scoffed at the idea the state would meet its new timetable.

Gagnon said she was disappointed by the decision but did not feel defeated.

"I am sorry our system is this way and our average citizen cannot get justice," she said.

But she also said she felt like "the luckiest girl in the world" because of all the friends she has accumulated during her battles.

"I don't want people to feel sorry for me. I want people to respect me," she said.

Because of her poor health, she said she did not want to look ahead. "I only think of one day at a time," she said.

Gagnon showed no emotion as Sequino ordered her eviction.

But the plucky 4-foot-10 woman let her chairmen of the Milford Housing Authority, Keith Rubenstein, have an earful when she approached her after the hearing. Gagnon scolded him for testifying that he could get her moved ahead of other people on the waiting list for public housing. She said that would not be fair, and called it an example of the government corruption she has been fighting.

Gagnon, whose only income is $4,000 annually in Social Security, had testified she was not interested in public housing because she needs room for a garden and her pets, which now include three cats, three dogs, two geese, 12 ducks and about 50 chickens. The animals roam freely around her beach-front compound, which is surrounded by chicken-wire fencing.

"Doris Gagnon should not be made to live in a place that is so contrary to what she is all about," said Torre in her closing arguments.

Gagnon said she would have moved willingly if the state had been willing to fairly compensate her for what she lost.

But the state argued she did receive due compensation, and the judge found there was no evidence to the contrary. She was awarded $15,000 after her house was ordered taken by eminent domain in 1969, but she refused to accept the payment, and the money was disbursed by the state to satisfy two liens.

Gagnon's attorney sought to prevent her eviction by making use of a law under which a balancing of hardships is used to determine whether a landlord-tenant action is appropriate. But the judge ruled the special defense was not applicable in Gagnon's case.

The state would like to evict Gagnon last year after Milford health inspectors found bags of human sewage piled up behind her living quarters.

Hatchings was arraigned Wednesday in Superior Court on a charge of first-degree manslaughter with a firearm. He was ordered held in lieu of $250,000 bail at the New Haven Correctional Center.

O'Neill steps up efforts to raise profile

HARTFORD (AP) — Gov. William A. O'Neill, facing a tough legislative session and a difficult reelection bid, says he's raising his profile because "the story has to be told" about problems facing the state, particularly the budget crunch.

On Wednesday, O'Neill was able to take advantage of some free media coverage by announcing reports to his office to talk about a package of bills he'll be presenting to the General Assembly on drugs and criminal justice.

O'Neill, who in the past five days has been the guest on three radio and television programs, outlined a five-point plan that includes mandatory prison terms for drug sellers, buyers and repeat drug offenders and community service or occasional drug users who are arrested.

O'Neill also endorsed recommendations of his Prison and Jail Overcrowding Commission that would require that inmates serve at least half their sentences, phase out the controversial home-release program by 1993 and expand the state's prison system by another 4,000 beds.

Further, O'Neill said, the 1990-91 budget he'll release next week will contain $6.5 million to expand drug treatment programs and $500,000 for a study for the prison expansion. He indicated that at least some of the $6.5 million will come from soon-to-be-available federal funding.

Although it wasn't part of the package he was announcing Wednesday, the governor said he would support a ban on the sale of assault weapons in Connecticut.

O'Neill is planning to seek a third full term as governor in November, although he has not yet formally announced his re-election plans.

"I think the story has to be told,"

POSSE passed up opportunity

The students of Bolton High School gave themselves a hands-on lesson in civics and political action last week when they held an assembly at the school to rally in favor of retention of the school.

The students, fearing a move on the part of some town residents to close the high school, have organized a drive to influence town leaders in favor of their view that the school is viable and educationally effective and should be allowed to continue.

They adopted the structure and symbols of political activists, including the somewhat awkward acronym POSSE for Members of Perturbed Yet Optimistic Students for Saving Education.

They plan to go door-to-door in Bolton pleading their cause.

The students obviously have a right to an opinion, and a right to organize to promote a cause.

They also have as much a right as anyone else to use a publicly-owned building for a meeting to discuss a public matter.

But there was a flaw in the proceeding, nonetheless.

The students, as advocates, are not separate from the students as part of the high school educational community. The fact that the assembly was held during school time and that nearly all of the students attended indicates tacit approval of the proceedings by the school's administration, members of which would probably be out of jobs if the high school were to close.

From an educational point of view, it would have been more appropriate if the assembly had been held during school time and that nearly all of the students attended indicates tacit approval of the proceedings by the school's administration, members of which would probably be out of jobs if the high school were to close.

Granted the argument for closing Bolton High School and sending the town's high school students out of town has been well publicized, but if the POSSE leaders had included another view in the presentation, the event would have been sounder educationally. It would also have strengthened POSSE's position.

Deplores arrogance

To the Editor: I am taking this opportunity to vent some frustrations I feel by attending the Jan. 23 Board of Directors' meeting.

As a resident in the Bryan Farms (north-east) section of Manchester, I was made aware through local papers and various flyers distributed in my neighborhood of the potentially hazardous situation my family and neighbors may have to live with.

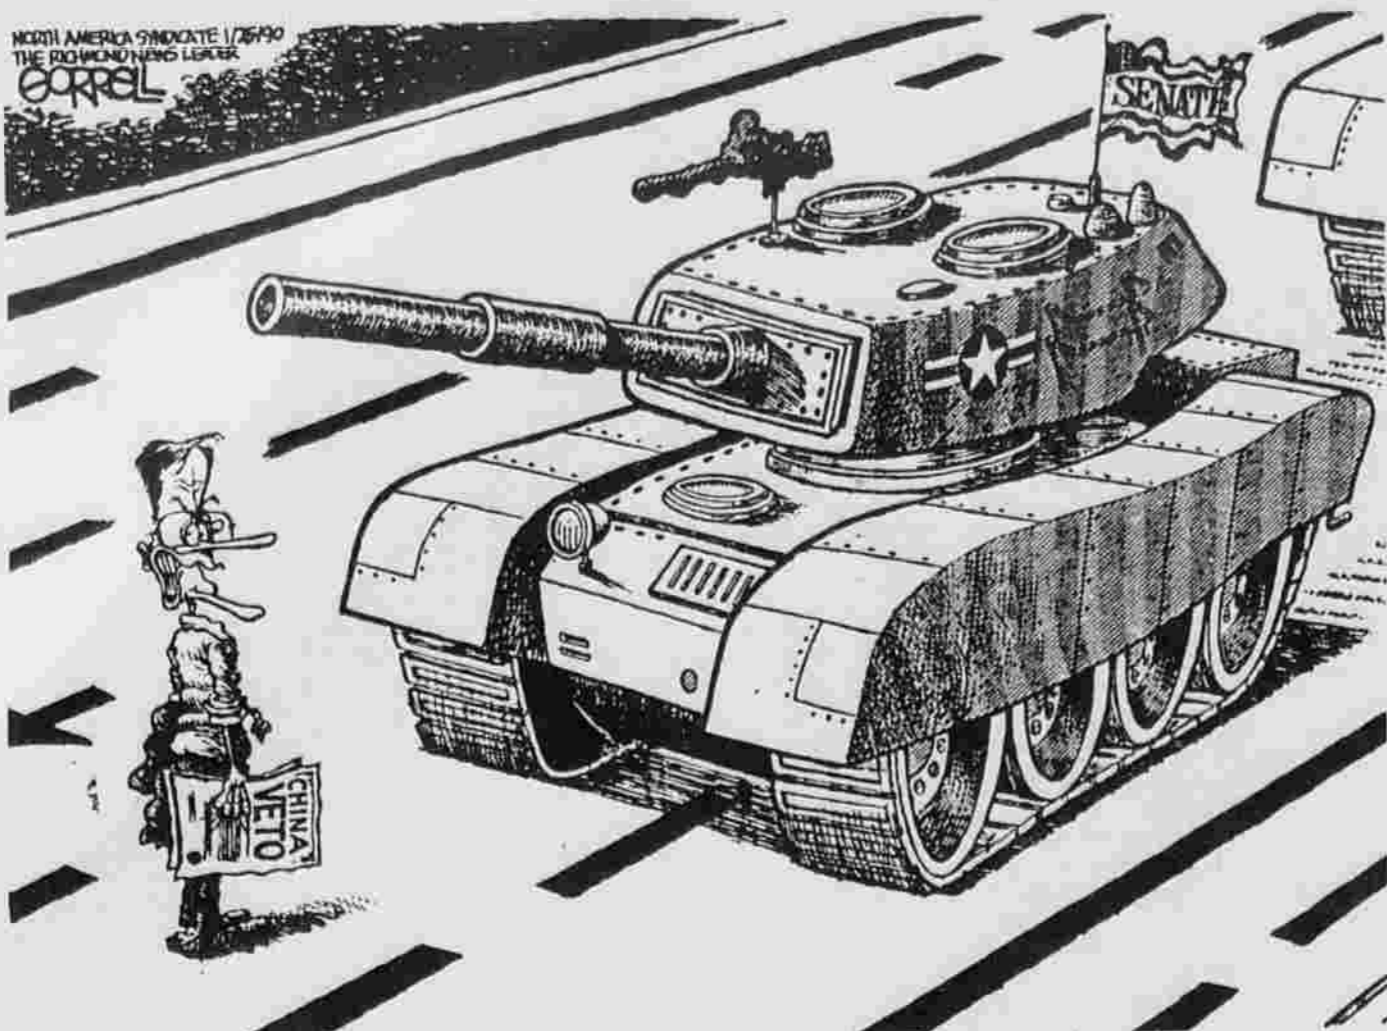

As I sat and listened to the issues raised by the Republican officials I hoped they

There were approximately eighty people attending, several of whom took the opportunity to address the firehouse issue at the podium. The facts were clearly stated. An agreement was reached — a cash price to be paid by the Eighth District for Firehouse #5 and the building of a new firehouse, location yet to be determined which would service the Bryan Farms area. The land was purchased with the monies to construct the building put aside. All the directors were in agreement, reflected in a 9-0 vote.

Now, it appears there is discussion in the ranks. The re-elected Republicans have changed their minds, without any new information or facts to warrant a change in their sentiment. Maybe I could understand if Mayor Werkhoven and Mr. Osella voted no in the original vote.

It truly appears that the Republicans openly disregarded the public support for fire protection and paramedical services in our area. Why? So that the Republican majority can exploit their new-found power base? Where will the people of Manchester turn to if we can't have faith and trust that our Board of Directors will be impartial in key decisions affecting the people of Manchester?

What will happen when the Board of Education submits its budget? Will the Republican Board of Directors refuse to hear the public again, or reject the Board of Education's proposed budget, because they

WASHINGTON — Put this story under the heading of inconceivable greed.

An ordained American minister who ran a U.S. food aid program in Rwanda allegedly sold that food and used the money to build himself a house and two tennis courts.

Criminal investigators for the U.S. Agency for International Development insist general are wrapping up a two-year criminal investigation into the Rwanda director and 28 of his staffers who worked in the AID Food for Peace program.

Rice, vegetable oil and flour were bought by the U.S. government and shipped to Rwanda to help ease the hunger pangs in that East African nation. The American director of the distribution effort in Rwanda was supposed to be a loyal soldier for AID.

The inspector general's account of the investigation, obtained by our associate Jim Lynch, alleges that the director authorized the sale of what was supposed to be free food and also swapped some of the food for labor and materials to build himself a house and a tennis court.

The punishment to this story is that investigators say by the time they arrived in Rwanda, the director had already built a second court.

Gene Richardson, head of criminal investigations for the AID inspector general told us why. The first court faced north-south and the players were blinded by the rising and setting sun. So the director allegedly built a second court facing east-west and used the first court as the foundation for a building.

The investigators say they discovered that the 28 employees also sold the "free" food. There have been many stereotypes, jokes and even movies made that portray the car sales person and the dealership in a less than favorable light. The days of the load-mouled, cigar smoking salesmen in a loud sports coat are gone forever, if that person truly existed. The time has come to recognize our business organization that performs a highly technical and very necessary service.

When dealing with today's sophisticated and well-educated buyer, an auto dealer needs to be prepared to give the customer the best buying experience he can, and then follow it up with the best service that he can provide. There are many options for car buyers today and the dealer that provides the best service and customer satisfaction is the one who will be the most successful. The bottom line is that we do care about our customers. We realize that next to their home, a car is the most expensive item that a person can purchase. We want to make sure that they make a good choice and then keep them a happy driver.

This is in addition to the numerous commitments to several charities they support during the year. The auto dealers feel that the community supports them and in return they help the community. Most of the dealers do their charitable work with no fanfare or publicity. Their concern is

Boy tells court of mutilation

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — An 8-year-old boy recounted how a man raped him and cut off his penis in an attack that has pushed legislators to draft tough new laws on sex predators.

Embarrassed but determined, the boy, who was 7 at the time of the attack, identified in court Wednesday the man accused of the crime.

The boy did not look at the defendant, Earl Kenneth Shriner, but pointed toward Shriner at the defense table and said, "Yes... over there."

Shriner, 40, has pleaded innocent to first-degree attempted murder, first-degree assault and two counts of first-degree rape.

During 30 minutes on the witness stand in Pierce County Superior Court, the boy told of the May 20 attack.

Judge Thomas R. Sauriol limited attendance in the courtroom friends the testimony to about 15 friends and relatives of principals in the case and 10 reporters. The boy's testimony was not announced in advance "to avoid hoopla as much as possible," Deputy Prosecutor James Roche said.

Deputy Prosecutor Barbara Corey-Roulet had the boy identify the small red bicycle that he rode into a wooded area near his home the day of the attack.

"Did something happen to you the last time you rode this bike?" she asked.

"Yeah," the boy answered. "She asked if he met anyone in the woods."

"A guy," said the boy, who nodded when Corey-Roulet asked if the man did something to him.

"Did the guy do something that you are embarrassed about?" Corey-Roulet asked.

"Uh huh," he said.

He then described the attack. The boy said the man was wearing "a fishing coat... green and white."

Under cross examination from defense lawyer Lloyd Alton, the boy repeated his description of the jacket. The jacket introduced into evidence and described by detectives as the one Shriner likely wore is gray with a maroon lining.

The savagery of the case has sparked proposals in the Legislature for dealing with predatory sex offenders that range from civil commitment to castration.

The trial, which began Monday, is expected to last about three weeks. Prosecutors have said they would seek a life sentence for Shriner, who has a history of sexual attacks and completed a 10-year prison term shortly before the boy was attacked.

Cobb is among 1,700 workers being laid off indefinitely from the 83-year-old Jefferson Avenue plant, his of the factory's oldest, closes Friday.

But the 22-year Chrysler veteran, whose youthful appearance belies his experience of previous layoffs at a variety of new-entrant assembly and component plants, won't be back on the assembly line again.

"I'm going back to school, probably into law. My wife is doing that now," Cobb said.

Cobb has had much experience with labor law during his eight years at the plant, where he represents United Auto Workers Local 7 on the plant floor.

Coast Guard fires on suspect freighter

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Mexican government promised an "exhaustive inspection" of a Cuban-owned freighter that drew machine-gun and cannon fire from a Coast Guard cutter after refusing to stop for a drug inspection.

The 250-foot Panama-registered freighter, the Hermann, took several hours from the cutter Chincoteague as the vessel steamed across the open Gulf of Mexico. Coast Guard spokesman Joe Gibson said. The ship was hit 50 times by Coast Guard fire, but there were no injuries, a Mexican official said.

The vessel escaped into Mexican waters, but two Mexican navy ships seized the Hermann and escorted it to Tampico, about 300 miles south of the U.S. border.

"The situation is not over. There's action still being taken," Coast Guard Lt. Steve Koska said late Wednesday. "I can't go into it, but there are things we can do. We can go through diplomatic channels."

The delay also drew criticism from Mexico's Foreign Ministry said in a statement that authorities began the "exhaustive search" of the vessel in Tampico.

The inspection, expected to take at least 24 hours, was to include a search for drugs and an examination of the ship's navigation diary, said Javier Trevino, a spokesman with Mexico's embassy in Washington, D.C.

The Cuban government, which had demanded that the United States not attempt to board the ship, first made a formal complaint to the State Department over the incident, said a Cuban diplomatic representative in Washington.

The official called the incident a provocation. "It was not an attack and a provocation," Baker said. "We were engaged in a legal law enforcement activity."

Bird, who made all nine of his foul shots, extended his streak of successful free throws to 59, matching his career high. Only Calvin Murphy with 78, Dan Issel with 63 and Rick Barry with 60 have done better. Bird leads the NBA with a 94.5 free throw percentage.

"I'm not hitting my field goals I'm usually shooting my free throws very well," he said.

Mute swans big headache to the state

The subject of mute swans, and their nuisance problems, has been in the news quite a bit lately. In order to control the ever growing population, the state has suggested that the eggs in new clutches be shaken, or added, thus eliminating future hatching in each shaken clutch.

Final curtain ready to fall on Willie the Shoe's career

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
The Associated Press

Listen my children And we'll tell you Of the midday ride Of Willie the Shoe.

With apogee to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, who penned "Paul Revere's Ride," which contains the line: "the midnight ride of Paul Revere," you probably know, beat the British in match race at night.

Bill Shoemaker has ridden against the British on several occasions — on much freerider terms — almost 41 years after his debut on a filly named Waxachie at Bay Meadows.

That one piece for most of his career has been 98 pounds in a perfectly proportioned 4-foot-11 frame. It was made of steel and velvet — the steel of determination which enabled him to rally from serious injuries, the velvet of sensitive hands that communicated to horses and made them want to run for him. The package was wrapped in patience and style.

The legend's last ride, "is what they're calling the one-time-only stakes, which will serve as the farewell to the Texan who has ridden through a lot of social and political history while making racing history.

That well-known owner of racehorses, Queen Elizabeth II, ascended to the British throne in 1952 when Shoemaker was the second-leading rider in money won to the great Eddie Aronoff.

Fehr frustrated as baseball talks are going nowhere

By Ronald Blum
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — After 14 sessions of baseball's collective-bargaining negotiations, no agreement is in sight.

Meanwhile, spring training gets closer with every day — as does the possible lockout of players by owners.

"I'm a little frustrated with it," union executive director Donald

Fehr said after Wednesday's three-hour session. "The strategy is to talk about their stuff. It's clear they are not of a mind to seriously discuss the players' proposal."

The sides met today and Friday and will talk for three days next week before owners meet in Chicago and debate whether they should shut down spring training.

Owners have said they will not open training camps as scheduled on Feb. 15 unless the union agrees to some form of revenue sharing.

Management's current proposal calls for the players to get 48 percent of the money from ticket sales and broadcasting contracts.

"We focused on the union's concerns regarding economic issues in addition to such issues as roster size and the waiver system," management negotiator Chuck O'Connor said in a statement. "In a subsequent meeting later in the day, we reviewed economic data requested by the union and showed them how we arrived at that data."

The New York Times reported in today's edition that the players also rejected the owners' proposal on collusion and the owners' negotiators withdrew it. The players want the new contract to be col-

The players are asking that the minimum salary rise from $69,000 to between $100,000 and $125,000, that the service time for salary arbitration be reduced from three years to two, that rosters go back to 25 players from 24 and that draft-pick compensation for certain free agents be reduced.

"They're not willing to agree to any of the suggestions we've made," Fehr said. "The reason they say is, 'No, but they can't quantify the cost.'"

Owners say they need revenue-sharing because they fear there will be a gap in income between teams from large and small cities. But they have been unable to tell the union when they think it will happen.

FOCUS

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Scalper advice is off the mark

DEAR ABBY: Sorry, I disagree with your compliance with the pair who wanted to sell $100 tickets to a sporting event to their co-workers for $400.

First of all, people who buy more tickets than they need to a sporting event, theater, rock concert, etc., are revving others from acquiring tickets at the stated price. This may be OK under laissez-faire capitalism, but it strikes me as unconscionable and greedy.

Second, some cities are "ticket scalping" ordinances that make it a misdemeanor to sell tickets above the stated price.

Your comment, "The early bird gets the worm," was off the mark. It would have been better to suggest that the co-workers simply treat the "early birds" to a nice dinner to compensate them for their legwork rather than encourage the early buyers to seek an unscrupulous profit.

JERRY P. IN SEATTLE

DEAR JERRY: Where were you when I needed you? Yours was one of the few printable letters I received in response to my inspired (?!?) answer in which I failed to mention that in most cases, "scalping" is illegal.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 15-year-old girl. A few months ago, my 13-month-old brother, Ricky, had a life-threatening accident. Mangling to get out the front door, he walked behind my mom's van just as she was pulling into our garage. Mom didn't see Ricky, so she pressed the button to close the garage door, then she went inside.

After looking for Ricky for about five minutes, we heard my sister who was outside scream. Mom and I ran out to see Ricky's head sticking out from under the garage door! When we got him, he was limp, blue and not breathing. We thought he was dead.

After a two-week stay at Loyola University Hospital, Ricky came home and is as alive as ever. He was expected to die or at least have severe brain damage, but he is perfect.

I would like to thank the Loyola University Hospital staff, our neighbor, Sue Waite (who administered CPR), all our friends and relatives — and most of all my Heavenly Father for giving our family a second chance with our littlest.

Abby, please tell your readers to be careful with their garage doors and always watch them go down.

I don't want anyone else to have to go through what we did. You may print my name.

LINDSEY MITCHELL, NAPERVILLE, ILL.

DEAR LINDSEY: Thank you for writing. I alerted my readers to this hazard a few years ago, but your letter will remind them that electrically operated garage doors can kill a child, or a pet.

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Six months ago, I supposedly suffered congestive heart failure and was put on Lanoxin. Since then, I've suffered from diarrhea, headaches, excessive salivation, skin rash, vomiting and other symptoms. My former doctors were quick to point out I've had diabetes for 20 years, which probably caused the symptoms.

I researched Lanoxin and found it could produce all the effects I experienced. My doctor took me off it immediately, and things are returning to normal. Can a patient exhibit toxic effects of any medication that might not reach a dangerous level in the blood?

DEAR READER: Absolutely. Some people are highly sensitive to the effects of drugs and will experience many symptoms of toxicity — even though the drugs are properly administered in the appropriate quantity.

Lanoxin, purified digitalis, is a heart stimulant. It is beneficial medicine that has a narrow therapeutic range, meaning there is little difference between the effective dose and the toxic dose.

For many patients with heart failure, newer drugs — such as enalapril — that reduce the work of the heart are more readily tolerated than older compounds, such as Lanoxin.

To give you more information, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips on Medicines." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any help for double vision? I'm an 80-year-old non-insulin diabetic with pernicious anemia. A brain scan revealed a mild stroke this past year, which left me with poor balance.

DEAR READER: The type of diplopia (double vision) you describe is probably due to an imbalance of the ocular muscles that control eye movement. You could be helped by using prism-lens glasses that correct for the inappropriate "wandering" of one eye, or you may need to use an eye patch — sometimes on one eye, sometimes on the other — to prevent the double image from disrupting your vision.

You should be examined by an ophthalmologist who will test you to find the precise cause of your problem and suggest a remedy.

Remember to pay attention to your medical afflictions, because diabetes, anemia and stroke can, if untreated, worsen your visual difficulties. You will need to follow a diabetic diet and the instructions given by your physician.

Also, vitamin B-12 injections are an antidote for your pernicious anemia and may help your diplopia. Finally, many stroke patients can avoid another attack if they take one aspirin a day; ask your doctor about this safe and inexpensive therapy.

Coleman wins control of $7 million fortune

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Gary Coleman defeated his mother's effort to take control of his $7 million fortune, despite her claim that she only wanted the best for the diminutive 21-year-old.

Edmonia Sue Coleman had asked a court conservator to take over Coleman's finances, saying the former "Diff'rent Strokes" star was unable to make decisions rationally because of the effects of a kidney disease and what she viewed as the bad influence of a close friend.

But on Wednesday, Superior Court Judge Martha Goldin disagreed.

"The very things you claim he doesn't have, he's got," Goldin told an attorney for Coleman's mother.

Coleman's attorney, Charles Wake, said the actor was pleased.

"It was an emotional experience for him," said Wake.

Coleman, who played the precocious Arnold Jackson on the hit TV show, has filed a separate lawsuit alleging his parents and former business manager mishandled his money and funneled away more than $1 million for themselves. The lawsuit has yet to come to trial.

Coleman's mother said she is worried that her son is getting poor advice from his friend and former chauffeur, Dion Mial, with whom he lives in Denver.

"Gary is my son and I love him very much, regardless of what Mr. Wake says," said Mrs. Coleman. "And what I have done has been in Gary's best interest."

Coleman was born with an atrophied right kidney and lost the other one when he was 5. He took immunosuppressive drugs for his condition and they stunted his growth at 4 feet, 8 inches.

Tomlin back on the road

DENVER (AP) — Lily Tomlin, who gained national fame in the early 1970s on the TV show "Laugh-In," says her career became more interesting when she began her "Search for Signs of Intelligent Life in the Universe."

Tomlin, who also has appeared in several movies, starred in the play on Broadway from 1986 to 1988, "wining" the Tony Award for best actress. She decided to take the show back on the road, including a two-week run in Denver.

Tomlin portrays a variety of characters in the play, each of whom searches for meaning in their lives and the lives of those around them. Their collective search, handled deftly with humor and honesty in Jane Wagner's script, emulates real life, Tomlin said Wednesday.

"The play is so human, so funny ... it's moving, satiric, sharp, insightful, compassionate. Everybody sees someone they know in the characters," she said. "It's challenging and so tough to do. But I love this play. It shows me the best of anything so far."

Travis swept into finals

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Randy Travis swept into the finals for five country music awards, including entertainer of the year and No. 1 male singer.

His other nominations announced Wednesday were for single of the year, "It's Just a Matter of Time"; best music video, for the same song; and album of the year for "No Holdin' Back."

Travis dominated the balloting among readers of the Music City News, a monthly country music publication in Nashville. Winners will be determined in a second round of voting and will be announced at the TNN-Music City News Country Awards show at the Grand Ole Opry House on June 4, to be broadcast on cable TV's "The Nashville Network."

Other finalists for entertainer of the year were Alabama, Ricky Van Shelton, the Statler Brothers and George Stripling.

The other top male singer finalists were Clint Black, Rodney Crowell, Shelton and Strait.

Finalists among the women were Patty Loveless, Kathy Mattea, Reba McEntire, Loretta Morgan and Tanya Tucker.

Benson helps musician

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jazz guitarist George Benson gave a pep talk to a would-be musician suffering a rare form of cancer. Then he backed up the kind words with a valuable gift.

When 22-year-old David Romito talked with Benson after a show here last fall, it gave him hope.

"Benson talked with me a long time," Romito said this week. "He knew I was sick, of course, and said he

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Gary Coleman defeated his mother's effort to take control of his $7 million fortune, despite her claim that she only wanted the best for the diminutive 21-year-old.

Eight years of dogs, kids and fastfood feats had taken their toll on the Volvo's good looks. Though its seats were worn and it still wore its original metallic blue paint, my sister's Volvo was definitely looking a bit lousy.

A proper "detail" job would do wonders, I assured her. And that's how I met Vern and Donna Gunther, professional auto detailers in Riverside, Calif.

After a day of their TLC, the Volvo seemed to shed about seven years of its age. In fact, I was so impressed with the car's rejuvenation, that I asked Vern Gunther to share some of the secrets of his trade.

PB: What's the difference between a detail job and a car wash?

Gunther: About $125 and a solid day's worth of elbow grease. We start by hand washing the car, including the wheels inside the wheels wells, the door jams and the engine.

PB: You mean you wash the engine?

Gunther: No, we don't. Steam doesn't do anything good for the electrical system on modern cars. You put steam on certain electrical components on certain cars — GM and Nissan cars come to mind — and they're gone. Instead, we use an over-size toothbrush, a solution of soap and water, and a garden hose.

PB: Plain "old" soap? You don't use one of those special engine cleaners that comes in a spray can?

Gunther: Most of the special car cleaners that line the shelves of auto parts stores are marketing gimmicks. A gentle soap like Simple Green or Ivory dishwashing liquid is all you need. Besides, it's not the soap that cleans; it's moving the brush that does it.

PB: What's next?

Gunther: We vacuum the interior. Using the soap solution, towels and various brushes, we clean the carpets, upholstery, the door panels, the dash, the headliner, and even the individual levers on the car seats.

PB: And once you're in a beautiful again, how should you keep it that way?

Gunther: Wash your car frequently, but never in the sun. Don't use any soap if the car isn't terribly dirty. Dry the car with a clean chamois or very cloth towel immediately after rinse off the car. The sun and harsh soaps promote water spots, especially if you don't dry the car right away.

NEW CASTLE, Del. (AP) — The Baby Broncos have been swapped in three of the last four Super Bowls, but Theresa Collurafi has had better luck twice delivering Super Bowl babies on days the Broncos lost the big one.

While the New York Giants defeated Denver 39-20 on Jan. 25, 1987, Mrs. Collurafi gave birth to Amanda Lauren.

On Sunday, when the San Francisco 49ers whopped the Broncos 55-10, she delivered 7-pound Amanda Is Fine and her parents are happy, but befuddled.

"I don't know what's going on here," said husband Anthony Collurafi, 30. "It just seems kind of strange, you know?"

A presidential present

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A retired Army sergeant nearly flipped his lid when he received a baseball cap from President Bush to add to his collection.

It was shaking while I opened it. That's how excited I was," said Jay Mundy of Ormond Beach.

Inside the first-class package was a letter from the president and a cap that says "White House Tennis" on the front.

Known around his neighborhood as "the cat with the hats," Mundy wrote Bush after his collection of 1,027 baseball caps was featured in the Daytona Beach News-Journal. His hats are tucked to the wall of his garage in four neat rows.

Mundy, 61, claimed he wouldn't stop stockpiling the brimmed headgear until he topped off his exhibit with Bush's fishing cap.

That defeated the Spanish Armada," he said. "It was originally a small house, but it's had some Victorian and Edwardian additions."

Suchet grew up in London, where his father was a doctor. He studied acting at the London Academy of Music and Arts, where one of his classmates was John Lithgow, who starred in "Harry and the Hendersons."

He's a former member of the Royal Shakespeare Co. and has appeared in numerous British television productions. In one recent BBC production, "Bingo," he played William Shakespeare after the bard's retirement to Stratford.

"My career has been very fortunate," Suchet said. "I don't believe actors can plan a career. My measure of success has nothing to do with money or fame. It has to do with being offered enough scripts that you can pick and choose."

He played the Soviet contact in "The Falcon and the Snowman" and an Israeli spy in "The Little Drummer Girl" and also had roles in the movies "Harry and the Hendersons" and "The Last Innocent Man."

Iowa State nearly pulls off upset of No. 1 Missouri

By The Associated Press

How to upset No. 1. Stop its leading scorer, shoot well and get the Iowa fans howling. Iowa State did all of that, and still lost to top-ranked Missouri 95-93 Wednesday night. "It's a tough game to lose," Cyclones coach Johnny Orr said. "I thought we did a good job."

NCAA Hoop

(20-1) won at Iowa State for the 11th time since 1984. The Tigers' 11th straight victory took them 6-0 in the Big Eight. Peeler's two free throws with 1:26 left pulled Missouri within 91-89. He stole the ensuing inbounds pass, was fouled, and made both shots for a 91-81 tie with 1:22 remaining. Missouri then again stole the inbounds pass and Peeler made a cross-court feed to Ford, whose jump shot put the Tigers ahead. After Iowa State's Victor Alexander made two foul shots with 39 seconds left, Peeler passed to Ford, who made the game-winning shot. Peeler, a 6-foot-5 sophomore, set a career high for points and established a Hilton Coliseum record for foul shots in a game. Ford's two late baskets were his only field goals of the second half. "I really concentrated on my free throws tonight," Peeler said. "The big thing is we couldn't have won without a team effort. I got a lot of support from Doug Smith and everybody kept telling me not to let up and keep shooting the ball."

Phil Kuz and Alexander scored 20 points each for Iowa State. Missouri won the last 29 meetings at Lawrence. Rick Calloway scored 17 points for the Jayhawks (21-1, 4-1 in their 13th straight victory at home. No. 3 Arkansas 70, Rice 66; Todd Day scored 23 points as Arkansas held off Rice for its 10th straight victory. The Razorbacks (18-2) lead the Southwest Conference with a 9-0 record. Manchester, Conn. — A City of Village Charm

Newsstand Price: 35 Cents

Board of Ed looks at ways to cut budget

By Nancy Foley Manchester Herald
The school board is controlled by a Democratic majority. He called the Republican's plan not to raise taxes "penny wise and pound foolish."

A LOT OF WORK — Lance Raybigne lines parking spaces this week in a lot near the Pavilions at Buckland Hills.

Cities decry suggestion by O'Neill to cut grants

HARTFORD (AP) — The suggestion by Gov. William A. O'Neill that grants to cities and towns might be cut in the next couple of months has prompted protest from both advocates for cities and towns and one of his sharpest Republican critics.

8th president arrested on check complaint

By Dianna M. Talbot Manchester Herald
The president of the Eighth Utilities District was arrested Thursday on a charge that he wrote a bad check to cover a missing $500 bond and is scheduled to appear Wednesday in Manchester Superior Court.

Baker gives nod to summit if troop reduction pact ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's proposal for a 35-nation summit meeting next year now has the qualified approval of the Bush administration — provided a treaty is completed to reduce troops and tanks in Europe.

A NEW LEAF — Ed Tomaszewski of Bolton poses next to a cut tree that continues to grow. The new growth is lighter in color.

Christmas conifer sprouts growth more than a month after ax falls

By Rick Santos Manchester Herald
BOLTON — Call it a tall tree tale. Lisa Trombly, of 166 Boston Temple, was amazed to find her Christmas tree had grown about four inches after it had been chopped down.
