Police Roundup

2 face drunken driving charges

Manchester police said they arrested two people on charges of driving while intoxicated.

Robert D. Woods, 26, of Columbia, was charged with driving while intoxicated early Tuesday morning after police observed his car operating erratically near the intersection of Arch and Center streets, police said.

He is scheduled to appear Feb. 26 in Manchester Superior Court, police said. A vehicle search revealed an open case of beer with several empties in the car, police said. A breath test showed Woods' blood alcohol count to be .159, or 59 percent over the legal limit of .10.

In a separate arrest, Lynn M. Banagigo, 22, of 279 Burnham St., was charged with operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol Saturday morning, police said. She was found to be asleep behind the wheel of a car that was running and in gear in front of a residence at 231 Parker St., police said.

Banagigo is scheduled to appear Friday in Manchester Superior Court, police said. She failed an on-site sobriety test and refused a blood alcohol test, police said. Banagigo was issued a temporary license for 30 days during which an appeal can be made, but if an appeal is not won she will lose her license for at least three months, police said.

Man arrested in razor theft

A 33-year-old Torrington man was arrested Tuesday afternoon after he tried to steal 23 packages of razors valued at $14.77, from Heartland Food Warehouse, 1026 Tolland Turnpike, police said.

Claude Sanderson Jr. was charged with sixth-degree larceny, police said. He is being held on bond and is scheduled to appear Monday in Manchester Superior Court, police said.

Thoughts

No many of us can drive by an accident without rubbernecking. Why? Is it to determine whether we can give a helping hand?

We've all recently viewed the effects of a damaging earthquake. Hurricane and flood devastated regions become tourist attractions. We want to see. Why? Is it to help the elderly man remove the tree that is blocking his driveway? Is it to bring hot soup and sandwiches to a family striving to piece their home together?

How many of us would read a newspaper reporting good news only, or even one who relieves bad news to an obscure column?

Have we wondered why we are bad news seekers? One thought such news should evoke: but for the grace of God, I could be the victim. Thanking God is best demonstrated by extending the helping hand.

MANCHESTER Democrats balk at acceptance of town hall proposal

By Rick Santos
Manchester Herald

Republican directors voted Tuesday to accept a report outlining a plan to renovate and expand the Lincoln Center as part of the expansion project was OK'd. Three of the four Democrats on the board voted against the acceptance and Democratic Town Director Stephen T. Cassano abstained.

After the meeting Buckno said, "To accept the plan was not an endorsement. It is just a way to get the item on the agenda."

Buckno is chairman of a directors' subcommittee on the town hall, Cassano and Republican Director Ronald Ouellet also are on the committee.

The latest town hall plan shaves about $2 million off the cost of a $13.9 million plan that was narrowly rejected by voters in a November referendum. The town is facing pressure from the state to expand space available for storage of town records.

Despite the reduced cost, Cassano says voters still are skeptical of the plan. If directors had delayed acceptance, he said, then a large audience of citizens could have viewed the presentation on the town hall plan, and provided their comments at next Tuesday's meeting.

The meeting is scheduled to be broadcast at 8:30 tonight and 11 tomorrow morning on Cox Cable channel 33.

Cassano, who has publicly supported the proposal, said the comments from the two citizens who spoke on the issue at Tuesday's meeting indicate the public has many concerns regarding the proposed project. Dorothy Brindamour, of 5 Dover Road, said she had about 50 questions.

"Once again," Brindamour said, "I don't think you're looking ahead."

She said she opposed the plan because it included the demolition of the Lincoln Center. She said it did not seem to make sense to tear down any town buildings when there are several projects for expansion in the school, police, and fire departments.

Democratic Director James F. Fogarty said he is not sure he favors tearing down the Lincoln Center.

Buckno said the plans had been carefully scrutinized by the town hall committee and were determined to be the best and least costly.

The design for the project calls for the construction of a two-level parking facility and more parking where the Lincoln Center presently stands.

Members of the Manchester Land Conservation Trust Inc., the group managing the dam project, made a report to the town Board of Directors at Tuesday's meeting. The Land Trust was planning to request an additional $100,000 for the project, for which the town has already donated $75,000.

The estimated cost of the project and associated costs, about $475,000, is about $128,000 greater than the funds available for the repair work.

However, the land trust expects to reduce the shortfall by about $32,000 from the sale of timber at Risley Memorial Park, said Malcolm Barlow, vice president of the land trust.

The land trust is working in conjunction with the Public Works Department. Public Works Director Peter Louis said negotiations with the contractor of the dam project were under way. The project cost by as much as $29,000 and a reduction of $19,000 is almost definite.

Land trust President Theresa Parla said she would like to wait until the negotiations are through before submitting a funding request.

Barlow said the land trust must have commitments for funding the total cost of the project before the state will contribute the $200,000 it has appropriated for the project. Other contributions include $60,000 from the town of Vernon, $6,800 from the town of Bolton, and $5,000 in private donations.

Parla said the land trust may be eligible for supplemental funding from the state, but the amount, if any, cannot be predicted. She said state Sen. Michael P. Meoni, D-Macaronie, who took him to introduce a proposal for the funding, Meoni represents the 4th Senatorial District, which includes Manchester.

The legislative session starts today. Republican Director Wallace J. Irish commended the efforts of Parla and Barlow.

Mix-up frees 2 state prisoners described as dangerous felons

HARTFORD (AP) — Two men described by a judge as dangerous individuals were released from state prison last month because correction officials were unaware they faced serious felony charges.

Both men, Darryl Gratic, 22, of Hartford and Bret Therrien, 21, of Enfield, were placed on supervised home release in January. The home release program has come under fire recently for being too lenient in the case of those facing felony charges.

Gratic and Therrien were released in January when the state was within five days of being forced to release hundreds of inmates because the prison had been at more than 110 percent of capacity for 25 consecutive days.

If the 110 percent figure was exceeded for 30 consecutive days state law would require that 1,100 inmates be released to lower the prison population to 100 percent of capacity.

The two men have not been located and on Monday, a Superior Court judge declared them fugitives.

Gratic was placed on the program Jan. 27 after serving time at the Brooklyn Correctional Center. Correction officials said they were unaware that Gratic was also charged with robbery and was to be kept in jail in lieu of $100,000 bond, said William E. Flower, a state correction spokesman.

Therrien was accused of assaulting and seriously injuring a man he thought was dating his girlfriend. State prosecutors said that Therrien should have been held on $75,000 bond. On Tuesday, Superior Court Judge Raymond Norke raised Gratic's bond to $500,000 and Therrien's to $275,000.

Because of the state-mandated cap on the state's prison population, correction officials were hurrying last month to identify inmates eligible for the home release program, Flower said.

Gratic was one of them. Therrien, who had previously violated the terms of his supervised home release and had been charged with the Brooklyn prison in April 1989. He completed his original sentence on Sept. 1, but was kept in prison on the escape charge.

Therrien, who was released about the same time as Gratic, had been taken to the Morgan Street Detention Center in Hartford.

Pay raise plan is slammed

By Peter Viles
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — A commission's proposal to grant dramatic pay raises to top elected officials ran into a storm of opposition from Democratic leaders, who dismissed it as fiscally irresponsible in a tight budget year.

Gov. William A. O'Neill said Tuesday he would veto any pay raise for the legislative branch, and Senate Majority Leader Cornelius O'Leary of Windsor Locks called the plan "dead on arrival," in the General Assembly.

The Commission on Compensation of Elected State Officials voted 5-1 Monday in favor of a series of pay raises identical to proposals that died in the General Assembly two years ago.

Under the commission's recommendations, the governor's salary would go from $78,000 to $105,000 in 1991, and increase to $120,000 by 1994. Pay raises are always a thorny issue for politicians, but this year's circumstances make passage of a pay raise even more unlikely. It is an election year for all state lawmakers as well as top state officials, and state government is projecting a current-year deficit ranging from $90 million to $152 million.

O'Neill said he understood the commission's support for pay raises, but that, "given Connecticut's present fiscal climate, no elected leader should consider receiving a pay raise."

Soon after O'Neill released a statement opposing the pay raise, U.S. Rep. Bruce Morrison, D-Conn., who is challenging O'Neill for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, also weighed in against the plan.

"This is no time for any proposal to raise the salaries of state officials (to be considered)," said Morrison.

Joel Schiavone, a New Haven businessman seeking the Republican gubernatorial nomination, slammed the proposal as "ludicrous."

"How can anyone support a pay raise to the six people that put this state in such a mess," he said.

Meanwhile, House Minority Leader Robert Jackie, R-Stratford, warned Democrats against avoiding the issue entirely.

Tax hikes take courage: O'Neill

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Democratic Gov. William A. O'Neill, trying to mount a re-election bid with his job-approval ratings in the dumps, is running television and radio commercials trying to explain to voters why tax increases are sometimes necessary.

It's a difficult thing to get any voter to accept.

State Democratic Chairman John F. Doney Jr., a staunch O'Neill ally, said Tuesday that once voters understand the courage it took for O'Neill to call for record tax increases last year, they'll rally behind him again, as they did in 1986 and 1982.

"We feel the truth will set us free," Doney told reporters after they heard and watched O'Neill's TV and radio spots that began running this week.

One of the commercials opens with O'Neill inside a bull's eye, and begins, "A governor is always a target. ... But if we give Bill O'Neill the blame, shouldn't he get some of the credit?"

"The record isn't hype, it's real. ... The facts may change your mind."

The commercials were put together by the Squier Eskew Communications of Washington, the same firm that created the ad campaign for Democrat Joseph I. Lieberman widely credited in his upset victory over Republican U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. in 1988.

The two-week ad campaign cost about $150,000, Doney said. Reports two weeks ago said the O'Neill campaign would spend $400,000 on the blitz. Doney dismissed questions about whether the idea had been scaled back because O'Neill might be having trouble raising money in what he acknowledges will be a difficult re-election bid.

"We have enough money to do whatever we have to do," Doney said, adding that the campaign has raised about $600,000 so far. He wouldn't say how much the campaign now has in the bank.

O'Neill plans to seek a third full term in November, although he has not yet formally announced his candidacy — something Doney said he wished O'Neill would get over with.

Jury in murder trial split on racial lines

HARTFORD (AP) — The Superior Court jury that deadlocked on charges against Joseph Lomax in the death of newspaper reporter Kara Laczynski split roughly along racial lines, according to a published report.

Superior Court Judge Francis R. Quinn on Monday declared a mistrial after the jurors informed the judge that they had been deadlocked since the first day of deliberations on Jan. 25, with six for acquittal and six for conviction.

The Journal Inquirer newspaper, quoting an unidentified juror, reported Tuesday that of seven white jurors on the 12-member panel, six voted for conviction. The five black jurors and one white juror voted for acquittal, the newspaper reported Tuesday.

The 24-year-old Lomax, whose first trial a year ago also ended in a hung jury, was charged with murder, felony murder and first-degree burglary in the Oct. 4, 1987, slaying of Laczynski, a reporter for the Journal Inquirer. Prosecutors say they anticipate a third trial.

Laczynski, 24, a native of Union, N.J., was found strangled on the bathroom floor of her Hartford apartment.

Lomax was white; Lomax is black.

Laczynski's attorney, Joseph Montis, raised the issue of race during his summation to the jury, comparing the prosecution of Lomax to the infamous Stuart case in Boston.

Charles Stuart told authorities that a black mugger had shot him and his pregnant wife, Carol, after they left a barbing class at a downtown Boston Hospital. News reports identified a black man as the prime suspect, but Stuart later killed himself and authorities now believe he masterminded the crime.

In Brief . . .

Rowland backs bomber plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan group of lawmakers — including two New England Republicans — have joined forces to propose scrapping the B-2 "stealth" bomber.

The move, endorsed by several House Republicans and Democrats, came two weeks after two Democratic senators made essentially the same proposal. The House legislation would immediately halt new production of the radar-evading aircraft and would save an estimated $4 billion on next year's budget.

"What we have is almost a dozen people of totally different philosophical background and different expertise coming together and saying this is insane," U.S. Rep. John Rowland, R-Conn., a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said.

Teen dies after pool accident

HARTFORD (AP) — A 14-year-old Hartford boy who didn't know how to swim has died — three days after he was pulled from the bottom of the Hartford YMCA pool, police said.

Robert George Dennis Jr. was pronounced dead at Hartford Hospital around 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Dennis apparently drowned after he jumped into about nine feet of water on Saturday, police said.

A spokesman for the state medical examiner's office said no autopsy would be performed.

Fonda protesters drop placards

WATERBURY (AP) — A group that threatened to picket actress Jane Fonda's new film "Stanley & Iris" at every movie house in the state has put down its placards.

After a delay of more than five months, the movie shot partly in Waterbury will open the country on Friday.

But the "American Coalition Against Hanoi Jane," which was so much in evidence at the filming of the movie during the summer of 1988, won't be at Hoyt's Malview Cinema 10 in Waterbury for the opening on Friday.

The coalition has criticized Fonda for actions she took during the Vietnam War. Among these was a 1972 radio broadcast during which Fonda criticized the United States for its role in the Vietnam War.

Mayor's brother faces charges

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A brother of Mayor John Daniels has been arrested on cocaine sale and possession charges following a month-long surveillance of a reputed drug house, police said.

Robert Daniels, 45, of New Haven, surrendered Tuesday to his other brother, Melvin Daniels, a police detective, after a warrant was issued for his arrest, police said.

He was charged with operating a drug factory, possession of cocaine, possession with intent to sell cocaine, sale of narcotics and conspiracy to sell narcotics, and hold at the Union Avenue Detention Center on $50,000 bond, police said.

CLASS urges participation

COVENTRY — The second meeting of CLASS (Committee to Lead Action to Support our Schools) has been scheduled for Monday at 7 p.m. in the Community Room of the Booth & Dimock Library, according to Robert Solomon, the organizer of the group.

Solomon has said the group was formed because it wants the public to understand the educational needs in the town and how the town budget can best fill those needs. He has also said he is concerned about the poor quality of some of the school buildings in town.

PACS padded legislators' wallets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political action committees, led by the insurance and defense industries, gave thousands of dollars to Connecticut congressmen, according to new reports on file in Washington.

Democratic U.S. Reps. Bruce Morrison, Barbara Kennelly and Sam Gejdenson along with Republican U.S. Rep. John Rowland all reported substantial contributions from political action committees, according to Federal Election Commission records. PACs are allowed to give members of Congress up to $5,000 compared to a $1,000 limit on individual contributions.

Course on occult vanishes

NEW MILFORD (AP) — The teacher of an adult education course on metaphysics says it promotes self-awareness and black magic as its detractors have claimed.

The course vanished from the adult education curriculum following a protest from several people who equated the workshop with black magic and Satanism.

"They're dabbling in the occult," said Edmund Kuter, one of several people complained about the course. "They're very anti-biblical and anti-Catholic."

School bus accidents injure 21

WATERBURY (AP) — School bus accidents in Waterbury and Farmington left more than 21 students shaken up, but none seriously injured.

In Waterbury, a slow-moving tractor-trailer truck hit the back of a school bus stuck in a multi-hour traffic jam after 8 a.m. Tuesday near Interstate 84 exit 25.

At least 10 of the 35 students aboard the eastbound bus complained of sore heads, necks and backs, and several were sent home from school after being examined by the school nurse, said John Cleary, principal of the Wallace Middle School in Waterbury.

In another accident in the Unionville section of Farmington, 11 students suffered minor injuries when a car struck their school bus on Route 177 around 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Measures needed on parking

Downtown Main Street cannot be used as a daylong parking lot for retail business in the area.

The reconstruction of downtown Main Street has been delayed for a long time while businessmen in the area, sharply divided over the project should proceed, disagreed with each other and with town officials.

The chief cause of disension has been the loss of parking spots on the street itself.

Along the way a good deal of stress has been put on the need to make parking convenient and readily available to shoppers, preferably on the street but in any event close to stores.

Agreement has now been reached on how to reconstruct Main Street and the plan probably provides for as many parking spaces as it is possible to provide.

But if people who work at Main Street establishments use the street for long-time parking, much of the benefit of reconstruction will have been lost.

The Parking Authority is rightly concerned about that problem and is prepared, if necessary, to pay a constable to enforce the two-hour parking limit.

The authority plans to send Main Street merchants a letter reminding them of the two-hour limit. It would be better, and less expensive, if the goal of keeping the spaces open for shoppers could be met voluntarily without the need for a constable. But if one is needed, the authority should hire one and make sure the limit is enforced.

CLASS outlines goals

To the Editor:

First I would like to express my thanks to Jackie Bennett for covering the forming of our new community action group in Coventry called CLASS. The Manchester Herald is very popular paper here in Coventry because it stays on top of important town news and community interest stories.

I would, however, like to clarify information about the date and place of our next meeting, and also make sure that your Coventry readers are aware of the purpose and goals of CLASS.

The Committee to Lead Action to Support our Schools was organized as a bipartisan community group with the purpose of promoting the ideals and the quality of modern learning environment, and securing the future role of public education here in Coventry.

Public education knows no bounds. It is education for our children, for ourselves, and for our community. We must provide for it for today and ensure its place for tomorrow. Its purpose, purposes, and needs should never again be restricted by partisan activities, nor distorted by incomplete or erroneous information.

Public education, if properly housed, and fairly and sensibly provided for, will ensure that we as a community will always play an important and educated role in determining the future of our town, the future of our country, and the future of the world.

Goals of CLASS

- To provide an alternative resource for educating ourselves and our community about Coventry's education issues.
- To enhance the community's understanding of, respect for, and support for our education facilities and personnel.
- To ensure an accurate understanding of Coventry's education needs which will benefit from each year's education budget.
- To ensure that Coventry's children are provided the most positive and progressive learning environment possible.
- To serve as an important and supplementary vehicle for expanding the avenues of communication between our PTO's, our schools, our educators, our administrators, and our community as a whole.
- To promote a healthy and full-time interaction among all of these groups and individuals who and which together will lay the groundwork for the future of our children and their children and the community as a whole.

Coventry residents please help us to lay the groundwork for achieving these goals. Come to our second meeting, which will be held on Monday at 7:00 p.m. in the new Community Room of the Booth & Dimock Library.

Michael Malinowski, our new superintendent of schools, will be our guest speaker. All community members are welcome.

Election hidden agenda item

The November election may not be on the assembly's formal agenda, but it will be constantly on the minds of majority Democrats. They know they must come out looking better than they do going in if they expect voters to invite them back.

"This will be the most difficult election in twenty years," says Rep. Jon Pihlo of Mansfield, who doubles as political director for state Democrats and deputy majority leader in the House — pointing to the top gun, Majority Leader Bob Frankel of Stratford. Pihlo says that while some Democrats fear defeat for the right, in November, the must avoid a "banker mentality" in the face of unfriendly public reaction.

So this must be an exceptional performance by the Democrats. The best thing they have going for themselves is that they know it.

Political notes

- After his State of the Union address last week, President Bush stopped on his way out of the chamber to shake hands with U.S. Rep. Chris Shays of Stratford, the congressman who represents the Bush family in Greenwich. "I told him it was a terrific speech," said Shays, "and he said thank you Chris." Amazed that Bush remembered his name, Shays said, "That caught my eye by surprise."
- State Rep. Adele Kusanis of Monroe, a Republican, is the first to file papers for an exploratory committee to seek the GOP nomination for secretary of the state this year. A legislator for 10 years, she says it's time to assess her chances at another level.

Tough issues before assembly

The Connecticut General Assembly will convene for its 1990 session beginning today. The assembly will meet to grapple with many important and controversial issues. I would like to briefly outline some of the issues I believe will be focused upon during this session, and invite you to let me know of your opinions on them.

Of course, budget and taxes will again dominate debate this year. The state comptroller recently reported that despite a tax increase of nearly $1 billion last year, the state still has a deficit of at least $65 million before the fiscal year is over. The comptroller also estimates that for the next fiscal year, the state will experience a $400 million shortfall. Cutting spending or raising taxes to cover this deficit, as well as formulating a budget for the 1990-91 fiscal year, will be the central focus of many legislators this year. Like last year, I believe the answer to our budget ills is to cut spending. State spending is out of control. For example, state spending has grown by about 30 percent, even after inflation, since 1986. I voted against the budget because it was simply too large. I also voted against raising taxes to fund this bloated budget. I will continue to vote against taxes until state spending is reined in. It is unfair to go to the taxpayers, time and time again with hands outstretched, asking them to finance yet more government.

On the education front, binding arbitration for teachers, the system by which teacher contracts are settled if no negotiated agreement can be reached, may be modified during the session. The Legislature's Program Review and Investigations Committee held hearings on the binding arbitration system last summer and has voted in favor of making minor modifications to the system. Their recommendations will be considered as legislation this session. Many local boards of education and town governments are seeking more substantive changes to the system. It is possible that amendments will be introduced to make these substantive changes during floor debate over the recommendations of the Program Review and Investigations Committee.

Another proposal on education reform is school choice. Choice allows parents to choose the school to which they will send their children. Proponents of school choice believe that the free market system can be applied to schools and that schools will be forced to become better or face losing students. Opponents of this type of reform believe it will hurt city schools and contend that not all parents are involved enough in their children's lives to make a choice based on the quality of the school rather than its convenience to the workplace or babysitter's home. I believe there will be lively debate on this type of reform this session.

Various issues concerning public safety will also be debated this year. Due to the rash of accidental shootings involving children this summer, legislation to hold parents liable for accidents involving children may be considered. Gun control measures, including proposals to ban assault weapons and to change gun permit requirements, are sure to be introduced. With the flap over state police paying scandal, legislation that will provide more oversight or restructuring of the department of Public Safety may also be considered.

Over the past several months, there have been reports of criminals who are out of prison on early home release or bail committing additional, sometimes

Subsidy extension is sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scores of blind people are lobbying Congress to overturn a proposed Federal Aviation Administration rule that would bar them from seats next to emergency exits in airliners.

The blind say they have the same rights as anyone else to sit by the exit door.

The FAA, which has not yet announced its final rule, is proposing the seats be unavailable to blind people or anyone else who might not be able to operate the doors quickly or lead other passengers to safety.

More than 150 blind people crowded a hallway outside a congressional news conference Tuesday to protest the FAA proposal which they predicted soon would become final. Using seeing-eye dogs and white canes, they then spread through congressional office buildings to lobby for the legislation.

The FAA proposed last March to prohibit blind or deaf passengers or passengers who might inhibit the use of an airliner emergency door from sitting in the exit row seats. The agency called the matter "a critical safety issue" and said the rule would enhance the safety of all passengers.

FAA spokesman Dick Stafford said the agency is in the final rule-making procedure, which means it still could impose the rule as proposed, modify it or withdraw it.

Bob Marx, Transportation Department spokesman, said the department is expected to issue next month an access rule that would not preclude the FAA from imposing safety restrictions on seating.

Leaders of the National Federation of the Blind said the government actions would be discriminatory and decrease a blind person's chances of surviving an airplane crash. Some airlines already prohibit blind travelers from sitting in exit-door seats and several blind people have been arrested in recent years for refusing to move from the seats.

A half-dozen members of Congress expressed support for bills that would ban rules to bar passengers from certain based on whether the passengers who might inhibit the use of an airliner emergency door from sitting in the exit row seats. The measure has passed a Senate committee.

"Blind people must not be treated as second-class citizens and pushed to the back of the bus," said Rep. James Trafletti, D-Ohio, chief sponsor of a bill in the House.

Alaska Pulp Corp. and Louisiana Pacific have used the federal subsidy to gain a strong foothold in the region's timber market. Now they're fighting to keep it.

Part of the strategy is to present a united front to Congress. Alaska Pulp, with the help of a lobbyist, launched a letter-writing campaign to senators. But not all of the letters come with strings attached. Alaska Pulp employees have been offered a free lunch for every two letters they write to Congress to plead for the continued subsidy.

Some Alaska Pulp workers told us as much as $40 million is at stake.

Baker said the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada and the 32 countries of Europe also should join in sending observers to monitor upcoming balloting in Warsaw Pact countries "to ensure that people power elections of 1990 genuinely represent the will of the people."

"Let me be clear," he said in a speech at Charles University in Prague. "The peaceful transition to democracy now under way in Central and Eastern Europe will not tolerate rear guard maneuvers from any quarter."

Before the speech, Baker went to Wenceslas Square, the city's commercial center, and placed a wreath in the state of King Wenceslas, the monarch who brought Christianity to Bohemia.

TAKING LEAVE — The Rev. Bruce Ritter, founder of the Covenant House for runaways, has been placed on leave in the face of allegations of sexual misconduct and financial improprieties. Ritter has denied the allegations.

Covenant House founder relieved of duty as director

NEW YORK (AP) — Church authorities directed the Rev. Bruce Ritter to relinquish his duties as director of Covenant House, a former shelter for runaways, after he was placed on leave in the face of allegations of sexual misconduct and financial improprieties. Ritter has denied the allegations.

The events unfolded after The New York Times disclosed the Franciscan priest who founded Covenant House and has seen it grow into the nation's largest shelter system for runaways reassessed his innocence Tuesday, even as he found himself the subject of new charges.

In a statement, Ritter said he had decided to take several weeks off so he could rest and recuperate from stress. Later in the day, however, church officials said they had instructed him to relinquish his duties.

Franciscan officials "have directed Father Ritter to begin a period of rest and recuperation without responsibility for Covenant House until this inquiry is completed," their provincial leader, the Rev. Conall McHugh, said in a statement. A spokesman said he had no idea how long that may be.

Ritter, 62, had not considered resigning.

Chrysler and GM form joint venture

DETROIT (AP) — The first joint manufacturing agreement between two of the nation's Big Three automakers began like "the mating of porcupines," a Chrysler official said.

Chrysler Corp. and General Motors Corp. announced the formation Tuesday of New Venture Gear Inc., a Troy, Mich.-based company operating two plants in New York state and Indiana.

Big Three automakers have been involved in joint research projects before, but never a manufacturing business.

It began as if it were the mating of two porcupines. Chrysler Vice Chairman Gerald Greenwald said at a news conference. "The agreement begins a new era for the American automobile industry."

Greenwald and GM Executive Vice President William Hoglund said no other joint venture between the two automakers or with Ford Motor Co. was in the works.

"It has taken some time to bring us together," Greenwald said.

Six killed in house fire caused by wood stove

POTOSI, Mo. (AP) — Relatives say they listened helplessly to screams for help but were kept back by intense heat as a young couple and four children died in a fire that destroyed their mobile home.

A woodburning stove that had been moved and reinstalled in the mobile home just a day earlier caused the fire.

"Apparently the fire pipe was a couple of inches too short where it ran through the ceiling," said Washington County Sheriff Ronnie L. Skiles. "The stove had also been mounted on wooden blocks."

Robert Jacobson, of the state division of fire safety, said the fire probably had smoldered for some time before bursting into flames and that the residents probably could have gotten out had the trailer been equipped with a smoke detector.

Skiles said wood stoves were becoming more prevalent in trailers in the area, 65 miles southwest of St. Louis.

U.S. offers to monitor Eastern Bloc elections

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The United States wants leaders at a proposed 35-nation summit meeting this year to endorse free elections as a fundamental human right, Secretary of State James A. Baker III said today.

Baker said the United States, the Soviet Union, Canada and the 32 countries of Europe also should join in sending observers to monitor upcoming balloting in Warsaw Pact countries "to ensure that people power elections of 1990 genuinely represent the will of the people."

"Let me be clear," he said in a speech at Charles University in Prague. "The peaceful transition to democracy now under way in Central and Eastern Europe will not tolerate rear guard maneuvers from any quarter."

Before the speech, Baker went to Wenceslas Square, the city's commercial center, and placed a wreath in the state of King Wenceslas, the monarch who brought Christianity to Bohemia.

Weight Watchers

Introducing an exciting new way to lose weight.

I can't believe it. Late pizza with my kids, the same meals I cooked for my family, and even had a snack with my coffee. And you know what? I lost every single pound I wanted.

It works fast.

New Fast & Flexible Program from Weight Watchers fits so comfortably into my lifestyle that I thought I wouldn't notice results right away. Was I surprised when my husband told me how great I looked after just one week?

What's more because I can live with this program, I stuck to it and reached my goal. And believe me, there's nothing more satisfying than success.

And it fits my lifestyle.

Budget

The "Budget In Brief" prepared by the O'Neill administration, shows a total budget of $7.24 billion, up from the General Assembly-approved 1989-90 budget of $6.84 billion — a 5.8 percent increase.

That includes $6,604 million in General fund spending and $637 million from the Transportation Fund, along with about $4 million in other miscellaneous funds.

The budget contains no new General Fund taxes, as O'Neill has repeatedly promised, although a previously approved 2-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax will take effect July 1, the first day of the 1990-91 budget year.

Jackie said he found that O'Neill plans to shift $38 million in school construction grants that had come from the General Fund, that is from tax revenues, to be borrowed through the sale of bonds.

Jackie also found that O'Neill plans to take $182 million of the $215 million left in the property tax relief fund and shift that to "a whole host of municipal grants" that would have come from other funds and $29.1 million to be dumped into the General Fund.

Only $42 million of the property tax relief fund was to have come from that fund in 1990-91, Jackie said.

Jackie, one of the governor's most outspoken critics, said O'Neill was "shifting things off budget" to keep the bottom line as low as possible. "I had certainly feared this would be the case."

"When he said (the increase) was only 4.5 percent, I wondered," Jackie said.

O'Neill, told of Jackie's claims as he left a gathering of Democrats at the Hartford Club Tuesday, said, "That's what he's claiming?"

Assembly

Larson of East Hartford used a short speech to echo one of the O'Neill administration's themes of the session: that Connecticut's fiscal mess is no worse than the "economic clouds hanging over the entire Northeast."

"These are difficult economic times," Larson said. "Times that will draw the distinction between rhetoric and fact, sloganeering and the truth."

The governor says to address a joint session of the Assembly shortly after noon when he formally unveils the spending plan Jackie leaked Tuesday night.

The specifics of O'Neill's spending plan had been so closely guarded that Senate Democratic leaders told reporters earlier in the day they knew little about the budget except that it limited the overall increase in state spending to 4.5 percent.

Jackie immediately began criticizing the budget that he said would be handed to the O'Neill plan is loaded with gimmicks designed to keep the total as low as possible and will send spending more than 8 percent higher, not the 4.5 percent claimed by the governor.

Jackie's sniping notwithstanding, Democratic leaders had already pledged their support to the governor's budget.

Budget at a glance

HARTFORD (AP) — Here, at a glance, are highlights of proposed spending in Gov. William A. O'Neill's 1990-91 budget, totaling $7.24 billion, as released Tuesday by House Minority Leader Robert G. Jackie, R-Stratford.

General Fund
Education, libraries and museums: $1.94 billion
Welfare: $1.83 billion
Non-functional (debt interest, some employee benefits): $965.6 million
Health and Hospitals: $761 million
Total: $4.4 billion

Transportation Fund
Total: $637 million

Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Fund, and Regional Market Operation Fund
Total: $4 million

Corrections: $419.8 million
General Government: $327.9 million
Regulation and Protection of People and Property: $177.1 million
Judicial: $143.7 million
Conservation and Development: $55.5 million
Legislative: $36.8 million

The governor denied he was misleading the public, but said the possibility exists there would be transfers from one fund to another.

Jackie said he would spend the next day or two explaining "the plain truth in a disheveled budget."

One idea that's already raised some eyebrows is O'Neill's plan, released earlier this week, to merge the Department of Housing and the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority into a single agency to be funded entirely with borrowed money, through the sale of bonds.

In other moves to keep the total at a minimum, O'Neill is calling for a reduction in the state's car fleet by 500, to save $6.8 million, and plans to consolidate the way the state collects child support payments from delinquent parents to save another $11 million. He also hopes to reduce the state employee work force by 2,000 through attrition by June 30, 1991.

O'Neill's 4.5 percent increase figure was based on a comparison of

"We're totally unified," Larson said Tuesday.

While the budget figured to dominate the day's news, the Judiciary Committee was planning to begin debate today on abortion bills. The committee was expected to raise bills supported by pro-choice groups as well as pro-life groups.

A potentially embarrassing issue for the Democrats, an election-year pay raise for top elected state officials, appeared to be diffused Tuesday when the governor and other top Democrats dismissed it as fiscally irresponsible in a tight budget year.

The Board of Directors has announced that it is conducting an active search for a new long-term chairman and CEO. Bullock is president and CEO of Monichan Management Corp., an investment and management company headquartered in New York, and is former chairman and CEO of UniDynamics Corp., Stamford.

Bullock said that Bank of New England Corp., a Boston-based interstate bank-holding company with assets of $29 billion, expects to recover through its ongoing management reorganization, internal restructuring and sale of $6 billion in assets. In addition, the bank will benefit from selling its credit card business to Citicorp for $828 million, a sale which became official this week, he said.

Bank of New England also plans to explore a merger or the sale of all or part of the company, he said. If the bank is not sold, a series of layoffs probably will occur as the bank tries to tighten its operations and hire more talented people, he said.

"We are scared, maybe even bloody, but I suggest to you that it has made us stronger bankers, not weaker," he said.

"We also admitted the bank has been hurt by municipal and personal withdrawals, but he could not be specific about how much.

"Any withdrawal is a hurt, so any municipal deposits that we lost have had an effect," the chairman said. "We've been able to handle that though."

He added, "I think it will continue until we convince people that all of the problems are under control. We are in a fix-it mode."

Responding to an inquiry, Bullock said that the bank cannot provide full collateral for municipal accounts because if it did so for everyone the bank would be out of business. All accounts up to $100,000 each are federally insured, he said.

"We would you want to leave the Big East in basketball," he asks, "it's the best league in America, on television every time you turn around, and the schools recruit from over the country," Tolkan adds.

Those involved in the talk about forming a super-conference, with football the No. 1 sport, include Miami of Florida, West Virginia and Rutgers. Tolkan believes some of the talk about an all-encompassing conference comes from other schools. "I think some of them (in the Atlantic 10 such as West Virginia and Rutgers) may be unhappy and they're the ones who are looking for an all-sports conference. But you have to remember everyone has their own priority," he said.

Tolkan said he has not heard anything negative about the Big East from the respective athletic directors: Ed Bozick (Pittsburgh), Jake Croushorn (Syracuse) and William Flynn (Boston College).

"I haven't heard really too much, just what I've read," Tolkan said. "But I know those schools are happy with their Big East affiliation."

The Big East in its first decade of operation has won two NCAA basketball championships (1984 and '85), won two NIT championships (1988 and '89) and has had eight team appearances in the NCAA Final Four with four runner-up finishes on top of the two titles. Arguably, the Big East is the best basketball conference in America.

Runs about schools thinking about leaving the Big East can be unsettling. But, hopefully, that's all it is — just talk.

At 27 years of age, Danny Strawberry of the New York Mets still has time to change his life around. Maybe, in the process, he can turn his baseball career around. Too.

Strawberry, the oft-troubled outfielder who has never lived up to his "superstar" label, checked himself into the Smithers Center for Alcohol and Drug Abuse Saturday at Roosevelt Hospital in Manhattan. Mets general manager Frank Cashen said Strawberry entered Smithers voluntarily for an alcohol problem. Drugs, it's said, are not involved.

Strawberry had a horrendous 1989 season, even for him, batting .225 with 29 home runs and 77 RBIs. He was embroiled in controversy in spring training a year ago when he almost came to blows with now ex-teammate Keith Hernandez at a photo session. He also nearly got into fistfights with two other ex-teammates, Lee Mazzilli and Wally Backman.

Maybe this admission to alcohol abuse explains the strange behavior he's exhibited on and off the baseball diamond.

He's asking for help, finally. Hopefully, he'll get it.

East five able to handle pressure and South

HIS BALL — East Catholic's white-shirted Chris Paradiso controls the basketball during Tuesday night's game against South Catholic at the Eagles' gym. Paradiso had 15 points and 10 assists in East's 91-77 victory.

With Len Auster leading the Rebels' press with relatively easy and dominating early on route to a 91-77 victory Tuesday night in non-conference boys' basketball action at the Rev. Robert E. Saunders Gymnasium.

The victory snaps a two-game losing streak for East and moves them to 9-7, South, which was ranked No. 7 in the coaches' small-school poll, is now 11-4.

"That was a big win for us," said East first-year coach Bill Finnegan. "South Catholic is a good team."

All five Eagle starters were in double digits, led by sophomore Rob Penders who netted a career-high 20 points. Chris Conklin, P.J. Monahan and point guard Chris Paradiso each added 15 markers and Billy Evans chipped in 14.

"That's how the game should be played. When you do that, they can't concentrate on anyone," Finnegan said about having all five in double figures.

"That was a big win for us," said East first-year coach Bill Finnegan. "South Catholic is a good team."

All five Eagle starters were in double digits, led by sophomore Rob Penders who netted a career-high 20 points. Chris Conklin, P.J. Monahan and point guard Chris Paradiso each added 15 markers and Billy Evans chipped in 14.

"That's how the game should be played. When you do that, they can't concentrate on anyone," Finnegan said about having all five in double figures.

The Rebels' press with relatively easy and dominating early on route to a 91-77 victory Tuesday night in non-conference boys' basketball action at the Rev. Robert E. Saunders Gymnasium.

The victory snaps a two-game losing streak for East and moves them to 9-7, South, which was ranked No. 7 in the coaches' small-school poll, is now 11-4.

Jets look to Coslet to turn things around

By Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. — Bruce Coslet, the new coach of the New York Jets, is ready for all New York can throw at him, even if the "Joe Must Go" chants that preceded the firing of Joe Walton turn into something like "Turn Bruce Loose."

Coslet was named coach of the Jets on Tuesday, culminating a six-week search by Dick Steinberg, whose hiring as general manager preceded Walton's firing by a week. Coslet, who was the offensive coordinator of the Cincinnati Bengals, faced a press corps that he conceded was six times as large as any he had faced in Cincinnati.

The constant question: Can he handle New York?

The first time was the Anthony Munoz and Boomer Esiason of this league. I can coach anyone anywhere," Coslet said of the Cincinnati stars known for their independence.

The 43-year-old Coslet is the NFL's second youngest coach, 20 months older than the Los Angeles Raiders' Art Shell.

Coslet got the job after Steinberg interviewed 12 candidates and tried to hire one — Michigan State coach George Perles, who two weeks ago agreed to a $6 million, 5-year contract only to back off in favor of accepting the school's offer to become athletic director.

Losing Perles may be a good omen for the Jets. Twice before, Perles has accepted coaching jobs, only to pull out at the last minute.

"I can coach the Philadelphia Stars of the USFL in 1983. Jim Mora was named coach instead, led the Stars to two titles in three years before the league folded, then coached the New Orleans Saints to the first winning seasons in history.

The second job that Perles backed out of was with Green Bay two years ago. Lundy Infante ultimately got the job and this season the Packers improved from 4-12 to 10-6.

"Things work out," Coslet said. "Look at my friend Lundy Infante. He went to Green Bay instead of George Perles and now he's coach of the year."

Many of Coslet's former associates seemed to think it would work out for the man who spent eight years with the Bengals as a tight end and got his start in coaching when hired by Bill Walsh as a summer intern with San Francisco in 1980. He stayed with the 49ers for a year, then took a job as tight end and special teams coach with the Bengals.

Coslet said he's "not a tough guy" but his ability to deal with players is one reason Steinberg chose him over the other finalist, San Francisco offensive coordinator Mike Holmgren.

Holmgren called Steinberg on Monday to withdraw his name after the 49ers said they would match any contract offer by the Jets. Steinberg said he had already decided on Coslet anyway.

"One of the things I found I liked in him was his ability to deal with the modern athlete," Steinberg said.

Manchester hockey secures a critical victory

BOLTON — Determined Manchester High came out and scored two goals in the third period to take the lead and then held off a late Enfield High surge for a 4-3 victory in CCC East Division ice hockey action Tuesday afternoon at the Bolton Ice Palace.

The Indians improved to 1-5 in the CCC East and 7-6 overall with the win while the Raiders slip to 4-5, 6-10 with the loss. It was Manchester's first win over a Division I opponent since 1986.

Manchester is back in action today at 3:30 p.m. against Newton High in a make-up clash at the South Windsor Arena.

The game was marred by a skirmish between the teams immediately after the final buzzer with four fights breaking out. Two players, one from each team, received disqualifications and will sit out the team's respective next games.

"We wanted it in the third period and it showed getting two goals," Manchester coach Eric Farno said. "Enfield kept coming at us, but we didn't allow them to come all the way."

Valentine's Day good time to make chocolate recipes

Valentine's Day and chocolate are closely associated in the minds of most of us. Perhaps this is because almost everyone romantically connects beautiful red foil heart-shaped boxes filled with delectable chocolates and a perfect gift for someone we love.

Today's column should serve as an inspiration to cupid everywhere, and chocolate lovers, especially. It is devoted to lovely rich chocolate recipes that will bring an outpouring of delight from loved ones of all ages.

Egg Beaters a substitute for those worried about cholesterol

By Bonnie Tandy Leblang and Carolyn Wyman
Fleishmann's Egg Beaters Vegetable Omelette Mix, $2.49 per package of two, 7.5-oz. cartons of frozen mix

Bonnie: The U.S. government and the American Egg Board recently reanalyzed the cholesterol value of the egg and discovered it only contained 213 milligrams, not 273, as previously thought.

If you're watching your cholesterol and want to eat an occasional omelette, I'd suggest using two egg whites and one egg yolk (discarding the excess yolk) to make an omelette providing about 213 milligrams cholesterol.

But for those on severe cholesterol restrictions who find it hard to limit themselves to an occasional omelette, this new vegetable omelette mix from Fleishmann might be something to try.

It contains no eggs, cholesterol and therefore no cholesterol. Beware though, it does contain the artificial colors, Yellow 2 and 6. Yellow 6 has been linked to liver cancer, while Yellow 3 should be avoided by those sensitive to aspirin.

Carolyn: I have no problem limiting my intake of omelettes, cookies or cakes — I just eat all of them that I want. Those who aren't so lucky cholesterol-wise might be happy knowing this product tastes a lot like regular eggs and contains no substantial pieces of pepper, mushrooms, onion and potato.

Land O Lakes Spread with Sweet Cream, Regular and unsalted, $1.29 per 1-lb. box of four sticks or $1.39 for two, 8-oz. tubs.

Bonnie: If you're considering buying this vegetable oil spread because you think that margarines or spreads have less calories and fat than butter, think again. Each teaspoon of either butter, margarine or Land O Lakes Spread with 6 percent cream contains about 100 calories, all of which are from fat. The only difference is the amount of saturated fat and cholesterol. Butter has about 2.5 grams of saturated fat and 10 milligrams of cholesterol per teaspoon to margarine's 1.5 to 3 grams and 0 milligrams, and Sweet Cream's one gram and less than one milligram.

Carolyn: Land O Lakes already makes a spread with a buttery taste. It's called Country Morning Blend and it has 40 percent butter, apparently the amount that's needed to make margarine taste like butter.

Swanson Natural Goodness Clear Chicken Broth with Less Sodium, $9 cents per 14 1/2-oz. can.

Carolyn: A friend recently called in a panic because his Cornish game hen was stuffing was burning on the stove. Turns out he used three cups of chicken bouillon cubes instead of three cups of bouillon. I told him that idiot cooks should always use chicken broth in cans. If you're a cooking idiot too, this new canned broth from Swanson tastes more like real chicken drippings than the standard stuff.

Bonnie: Finally, a chicken broth that's not loaded with excess sodium. In fact, this is the first canned chicken broth nationally available that does not have the sodium-laden flavor enhancer monosodium glutamate (MSG). I really like this.

One cup of this broth still contains a significant amount of sodium, mainly from salt added for flavor. Making it yourself by simmering chicken, vegetables and herbs, you could have an almost sodium-free broth. But Swanson's new broth is true to its name, containing a third less sodium than their regular MSG-containing broth and about a third less than a Wyler's

Black bottom chiffon pie
2 cups homogenized milk
2 eggs sugar, divided

1 envelope (1 1/2 ounce) unflavored gelatin
4 tablespoons water
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar

2 cups whipping cream
1 cup whipping cream
Shaved chocolate or chocolate sprinkles for decoration

Filling: Measure milk into a 2-quart batter bowl. Microwave on high power for 4 minutes. Mix 1/2 cup sugar and cornstarch, beat into milk using a wire whisk.

To make Black Bottom: Take out 1 cup of thickened custard and add chocolate squares and vanilla. Stir until chocolate melts completely. Pour into ginger pie crust.

To make Chiffon layer: Combine gelatin and water in a 1-cup glass measure. Microwave on high for 1 minute, or until gelatin is dissolved. Add remaining hot custard, blend well, and let cool.

Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until stiff. Beat in 1/2 cup sugar. Using a rubber spatula, fold whites into cool custard along with rum. Pour on top of black bottom layer. Chill for several hours.

Ginger snap crust
4 tablespoons margarine
1 1/2 cups ginger snap crumbs
2 tablespoons sugar

Place margarine in a 4-cup glass measure. Microwave on high power for 45 seconds, or until melted. Add ginger snap crumbs and sugar. Blend well. Press crumbs mixture onto bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate.

Chocolate angel pie
1 cup milk
8 ounces marshmallows (about 30 to 32 large size)

1/2 cup whipping cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup heavy cream, whipped (no substitutes)

2 squares (1 ounce each) baking chocolate, grated
1/2 cup chopped nuts, baked
1/4 cup shredded coconut

Place butter in a glass mixing bowl and microwave on high power for 1 minute, or until melted. Using a wooden spoon, stir in cocoa, sugar, eggs and vanilla.

Add flour and baking powder and beat well. Blend in nuts. Pour batter into prepared pan and level with the back of a spoon.

Rotating every 3 minutes, microwave on 70 percent (medium-high) for 8 to 9 minutes, or until cake tests done. Break chocolate bar into pieces and place evenly over surface of cake. Cover pan with plastic wrap (do not let it touch chocolate). Let stand for 5 to 10 minutes. Remove plastic wrap and smooth melted chocolate over top of cake. Let cool before cutting. Yields 16 squares.

Mud pie
1 1/2 quarts coffee ice cream (coffee-almond-fudge, English toffee, or butter pecan are also good)
1 (9-inch) pecan crust

1/2 cup chocolate fudge sauce
2 cups whipped topping or sweetened whipped cream
2 teaspoons instant coffee (powder, not freeze-dried)

To soften ice cream, microwave on 30% (medium-low) power for 1 to 2 minutes. PEEK into each pecan crust, and top with fudge sauce. Freeze until hard.

Blend topping with instant coffee. When ready to serve, spread topping over pie and garnish as desired. (Can also be frozen after topping is added.) Makes 6 servings.

Fudge cake squares with chocolate bar frosting
1/2 cup butter or margarine (1 stick)
1/2 cup brown cocoa
1 cup sugar

2 large eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 cup flour

Marge Churchill is a Manchester resident who is an authority on microwave cooking. Questions should be sent to: Microwave Kitchen, Manchester Herald, P.O. Box 591, Manchester 06040.

1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup chopped nuts
1 (100 gram) Swiss or milk-chocolate bar without nuts (about 3 1/2 ounce)

Using solid shortening, grease an 8-inch square glass baking dish. Do not flour. Shield corners with foil. Set aside.

Place butter in a glass mixing bowl and microwave on high power for 1 minute, or until melted. Using a wooden spoon, stir in cocoa, sugar, eggs and vanilla.

Add flour and baking powder and beat well. Blend in nuts. Pour batter into prepared pan and level with the back of a spoon.

DEAR ABBY: I am in a pickle with my mother. My first wife and I were divorced 13 years ago. I remarried eight years later. My former wife remains close to my family — especially my mother's house — and they refuse to budge.

My mother has continually invited my former wife to family get-togethers — Christmas dinner, Thanksgiving, etc. — when she knows full well that I, my current wife and our children will be there. This has been a problem since my divorce.

I have talked to my mother and ex-wife about this, and they refuse to budge. My current wife is very uncomfortable in that situation, so I declined Mother's Thanksgiving and Christmas invitations for 1989.

HELLO TOKYO — Mick Jagger, the lead singer of the Rolling Stones, right, waves to the crowd as he arrives at New Tokyo International Airport Tuesday. Charlie Watts, the group's drummer, stands to the left of Jagger.

Prince Charles makes plea to save rainforest regions
LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles appealed to architects and planners to minimize their use of tropical hardwoods, whose harvest is one cause of rampant deforestation.

The sun of time in the tropical hour glass are running out fast and we can't turn it upside down and watch the sands run out again," Charles said Tuesday in a speech to the Royal Botanical Gardens.

Despite agreements to import only timber grown in sustainably managed forests, it is impossible to know whether ship shipments come from properly managed forests or not, he said.

Charles criticized the International Timber Organization for making no mention of the rights and needs of the forest-dwellers in its articles of agreement, and said new mechanisms are needed to protect rainforest regions.

"This is clearly a massive challenge, but it seems to be that we cannot simply go on talking about the need to protect the world's rain forests and not create the kind of institutions and mechanisms which will actually make that possible," Charles said.

Wills causes a stir
LEAVENWORTH, Wash. (AP) — Film star Bruce Willis caused young hearts to throb when he turned up unannounced at a ski area while the set for "Die Hard II" was being arranged.

"Oh yeah, he created quite a stir," said Gordon West, a manager at the Mission Ridge ski area. "He had every lady going 'ooh ah ooh.' He came in incognito and rented his ski under some other name."

He got up and left because everyone was looking at him," Storme said, and then youngsters poured into his stable grabbing the water glass and other items the star had touched.

Scenes from the thriller "Die Hard II" were filmed this week in Leavenworth, said Chamber of Commerce director Laura Johnson.

Clapton to tour U.S.
NEW YORK (AP) — Guitar virtuoso Eric Clapton is planning a six-week U.S. tour that will bring the British rocker to 27 cities in the spring.

It will be Clapton's first U.S. tour since 1987, although he appeared with the Rolling Stones several times during their just-completed "Steel Wheels" tour.

Chapman named finalist
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Steve Curtis Chapman was named a finalist for eight Gospel Music Association awards, including artist of the year and top male vocalist.

Chapman, 27, will vie for songwriter of the year, southern gospel recorded song of the year, inspirational recorded song of the year and contemporary album of the year, the association announced Tuesday.

He joined perennial gospel award-winner Sandi Patit from among the five finalists for the artist of the year award.

Documentary on Afghanistan to be repeated
By Jay Sharbutt and The Associated Press
NEW YORK (AP) — "In a documentary producer," says Jeff Harmon. "What I do is document history."

During the war in Afghanistan, he did the hard way — we were one program about the rebels, then another about the Soviet troops.

On Sunday, Ted Turner's CBS Superstation, which aired Harmon's first show in 1986 and the other in December, is repeating the second, "Afghanistan: The Soviet Experience."

Vietnam vets in particular might find some of its scenes especially familiar. There's no triple canopy jungle, to be sure. But here are the contour-flying helicopters, the door gunners watching the ground, the dusty hill outposts resupplied by chopper and the convoy-guarding armored personnel carrier rolling along, its young driver listening to Western rock on his boom-box.

Another day vu moment, in a Kabul hospital: The wounded Soviet grunt who, according to the show's English translation, complains that in this war, "you can't understand who are the civilians and who are the noncombatants."

The two programs — the first is "Afghanistan's Holy War" — were filmed three years apart and shown on CBS' National Geographic Explorer series.

Harmon, 36, was born in Los Angeles. Based in London, but "living out of my suitcase now," he says, he's "basically self-educated," with a year logged at New York University's film school.

He did his first Afghanistan war documentary out of plain curiosity: "The image of these 19th century tribesmen battling a superpower intrigued the hell out of me. And I got sucked into the image and went."

Bankrolled by the BBC, Harmon and cameraman Alexander Lindsay emulated other correspondents trying to cover the rebels after Soviet troops were sent to Afghanistan in 1979. The two slipped across the border from Pakistan in 1983.

His aim, he says, was to show the war from the grunt-level perspective of the Soviet-fighting rebels, the mujahideen. "The muj" (pronounced "mooj"), as some Westerners call them.

"I don't go in with a correspondent or make myself a correspondent," he says. "I tell the story of the people I'm covering. I do it through their eyes. ... I don't

Businesses help pay for college

Business leaders are in high anxiety about the quality of education in the United States and the difficulty in finding both managers and workers with the skills to handle complex tasks. Their worries increase as they face stiffer world competition.

The response of many executives is to become more directly involved in the education process. What's more, they are spending money at both the secondary and college levels to bring about change.

This is happening at the time the federal government, the chief source of student financial aid, is tightening up its largess. Levels of funding for post-secondary education may be cut by Congress and qualifying regulations already have been stiffened.

Whatever changes are made this year or next in government funding of student aid, it is unlikely that any worthy and ambitious student will be denied funding. That's because private sector aid programs are growing. The aid may come as a scholarship, a grant, a loan or as work-study. The assistance may be available to any qualified student, or it may be restricted to specific groups such as women, blacks, union families or children of company employees.

Some programs are long established and well known. For example: the Westinghouse Science Talent Search (since 1942) awards cash grants as high as $12,000 for outstanding science projects. Some National Merit Scholarship (since 1955) winners are awarded four-year scholarships worth up to $2,000 annually.

New sources of private sector aid come into existence every year and should be sought out by high school seniors. One newcomer is the Princess Grace Foundation, honoring the late Grace Kelly, which provides scholarships for students in the performing arts. Some other sources are not publicized but are known to academicians in specialized fields.

One of the most innovative private sector initiatives is the ConSem program of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Designed to provide low-interest loans with long-term repayment plans, it addresses the need of the vast majority of American families who do not qualify for federal loans or grants.

"Obtaining quality education at affordable cost is as much a business concern as a family concern," says R. Bruce Josten, group vice president for development of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. "Tomorrow's leaders are in school today, ConSem means companies can help parents fund the training their children need."

This month ConSem begins its third year as a national program. More than 10,000 companies participate, including approximately 100 major corporations such as AT&T, Warner-Lambert, Chrysler Corp., Reader's Digest, Johnson & Johnson, Acta Insurance and Xerox.

For additional information on the program, call (800) SOS-LOAN.

Today in History

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 7, the 38th day of 1990. There are 327 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 7, 1964, thousands of screaming fans welcomed the Beatles at New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport as the "Fab Four" began their first U.S. tour.

In 1812, author Charles Dickens was born in Portsmouth, England.

In 1931, aviator Amelia Earhart married publisher George P. Putnam in New York.

In 1936, President Franklin D. Roosevelt authorized a flag for the office of the vice president.

In 1974, the island nation of Grenada won independence from Britain.

In 1983, Elizabeth H. Dole was sworn in as the first female secretary of transportation by the first woman to sit on the U.S. Supreme Court, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor.

Soviet officials in Kabul this week were already aware of a propaganda film for you. But I'm not going to do a hatched job on you, either. All I want to do is show you the war through the eyes of the ordinary man.

Word of the unusual travels fast in any army. Most Soviet grunts and helicopter pilots he met already knew he'd covered the rebel side of the war, Harmon says. But he found little, if any, animosity toward him, he says.

"They were fascinated by the fact we covered the war on the other side. The soldiers they were so curious as 'What was the struggle like?' I think they looked at me as a chance to see what it was like on the other side."

SAIAK'S NEW LOOK — THE SF-QUEL: If you've been watching CBS' "The Pat Sajak Show" this week, you might have noticed yet more changes in the struggling late-night series, cut last month from 90 minutes to an hour. The show's coach is gone, replaced by two black leather chairs; one for Sajak, one for the guest. Other changes include new graphics and a roundtable discussion by the host and the guest.

word yet, though, on whether an ejection seat is planned for dall guests.

Arizona's English-only law dismissed as overly broad

PHOENIX (AP) — Arizona's voter-approved "Official English" law is unconstitutional, a federal judge ruled Tuesday.

Reserve bank governors warn zero-inflation goal has cost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Federal Reserve Bank presidents are supporting a congressional resolution calling for an inflation rate near zero within five years, but warn it will require temporarily higher unemployment and slower economic growth.

Campus eyes ways to fight rape

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — A survey that found nearly one woman in six at the University of Illinois had been raped could lead campus authorities to stop performances of the pom-pom squad and campus drink parties.

Arizona's English-only law dismissed as overly broad

The judge said the amendment would have forced lawmakers, officials and judges to either violate their sworn oaths to obey the state constitution... or to curtail their free speech rights.

Reserve bank governors warn zero-inflation goal has cost

The initiative, approved 503-569-993 in the 1988 election, required state and county governments to conduct all business in English, with certain exceptions.

Campus eyes ways to fight rape

The survey, conducted last spring, found that 16.4 percent of the 537 women who responded said they had been raped. That is in the same range as two 1985 college studies on the topic.
