Coventry council makes 2-mill cut

By Jacquelinne Barnatt
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The Town Council cut $304,815 from the budget for the next fiscal year Thursday, bringing it down 2.2 mills to $15,969,382.

The adjustments to the budget were approved 6-0 during a meeting Thursday night at the Town Office Building with council members from both parties agreeing on virtually every point.

"I want to thank everyone around the table for a remarkably reasonable discussion to date," said councilman Peter Halvorson, one of the Democrat majority on the seven-member council.

The budget now goes to the voters at the Annual Town Meeting May 11.

The proposed $15,969,382 budget for fiscal 1990-91, which begins July 1, is up $193,786 from this year. If approved, the budget will mean a 4.52 increase in the mill rate — bringing it to 41.52.

The $15.9 million budget is down from the Town Manager's proposed $16,274,197 budget, which represented a 6.78-mill increase.

Town Manager John Elteser asked the council for authority to make minor adjustments by the next council meeting Monday to bring the cuts to a number that will equal just a 4.5-mill increase — for easier accounting.

The largest cut, $138,776, comes from the Board of Education's proposed $10,149,318 budget, which was a 14.1 percent increase over this year.

The board had already cut about $400,000 from the budget in February, including some teacher and other staff positions as well as eliminating the transitional grade program. It is for children who are not ready for grade 1. Elimination of the program has drawn protests from parents.

Since food will be served, those planning to attend should register before. They can do so by calling 646-2223 or by calling 649-8367 and leaving a message.

Michael Malinowski, schools superintendent, has repeatedly recommended further staff cuts if the budget is cut more.

By state law, the board decides where to cut the education budget; the council can only reduce the bottom line. However, the council has "targeted" potential cuts.

First, an error was found in the board budget, reducing it by $27,704. Also targeted was $30,000 the council can only reduce the bottom line. However, the council has "targeted" potential cuts.

O'Neill holds Coventry's 110-acre lease plan

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The town's plan to lease land from the state to develop a recreation facility is included within a report awaiting Gov. William A. O'Neill's approval, according to the town manager.

Town Manager John Elieser said this week that further negotiations to obtain the land are contingent on O'Neill signing the report from the Mansfield Training School Task Force. He appointed it three years ago to consider reusing the school and its affiliated facilities.

If O'Neill delays signing the report past October, it would then be up to a newly elected governor. But Elieser is confident the change would have little impact on the town's plan.

"It could cause a delay but not a reversal," said Elieser. "Any new administration might want to review, but is unlikely to throw away three years of study by a bi-partisan task force."

O'Neill recently announced he will not seek re-election.

The town has been negotiating with the state departments of Mental Retardation and Environmental Protection over the last couple years to obtain Camp Greaser and Truman Meadows, about 110 acres.

Camp Greaser, owned by the DMR and located off South Street, had been used by clients of the training school for recreation.

It has been studied by the task force for possible reuse since the training school is being phased down. The training school along Route 44 is being considered for use as affordable and senior housing, day care, and agricultural programs for the nearby University of Connecticut. Currently a correctional facility has been moved into some of the buildings there.

Truman Meadows, part of the Nahant Hale State Forest, is owned by the DEP and is adjacent to Camp

Millionaire says he broke tax law

By Larry Rosenthal
The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT — Peter M. Brant, the millionaire businessman, socialite and horseman, has pleaded guilty to federal tax violations for putting housekeepers, cooks, gardeners and other employees at his Greenwich estate on his corporate payroll.

Brant, who entered his plea Thursday in U.S. District Court in Bridgeport and is free on his own recognizance, also used corporate American Express accounts to charge items such as jewelry, clothing and antiques for his family.

Federal prosecutors said Brant and members of his family charged more than $1.5 million in personal expenses to his newprint companies from 1981 through 1984.

His attorney disagreed with the government's tally of the improper expenses but did not give a different figure.

Brant's cousin and business partner, Joseph Allen of New York and two other newprint companies, The Bato Co. Inc. and its subsidiary, Riviere du Loup Newspaper Ltd., also pleaded guilty to tax charges at the hearing in U.S. District Court.

An avid horseman, Brant established the Greenwich Polo Club Inc. in 1983. It was there in 1987 that he played host to Prince Andrew and Sarah Ferguson, Britain's Duke and Duchess of York, in their first trip to North America after their wedding.

Equally renowned as a horse owner and breeder, Brant was ranked 16th among the top money-winning owners in the country last year, with earnings of more than

Another prominent Greenwich resident, hotel queen Leona Helmsley, was sentenced last year to four years in prison for charging off as business expenses hundreds of thousands of dollars of improvements to her mansion.

Natally dressed in a gray pinstripe suit, white shirt and purple tie, Brant dashed up the steps in front of the federal court building to avoid a photographer Thursday morning.

After the hearing, he hurried out through a side door.

With his hands clasped in front of him, Brant answered with a firm, "Guilty, Your Honor," when U.S. District Judge T. F. Gilroy Daly asked him how he would plead to misdemeanor charges of willful failure to maintain records and conspiracy.

He faces a maximum sentence of two years in prison and a $200,000 fine.

As part of a plea agreement, he also agreed to pay $250,000 in taxes due the federal government and a $125,000 civil fraud penalty. In addition, he promised to turn over any Bermudian bank documents in his possession for another possible federal investigation into his financial affairs according to court documents.

Allen, 48, pleaded guilty to the same criminal charges as Brant. The government alleged he and family members charged more than $500,000 in personal expenses to Bato and RDL from 1981 through 1984.

The Bato Co. and RDL Newsprint also pleaded guilty to two felony counts each of filing false tax returns in 1983 and 1984.

to $1 million. Because business losses were so great during the years the improper deductions were taken, corporate attorneys said they did not believe the companies owe any taxes for those years.

Certain management employees knew that personal expenses were being paid for by the corporations, but no steps were taken to establish a line between personal and business expenses, the government said.

Next Monday through Friday the Water and Sewer Department will be flushing mains from 7:15 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the area bordered by Main, Charter Oak, East Center, Autumn, and Kensington streets.

There may be discoloration of water and reduced pressure during the flushing. If water appears discolored, the homeowner should try to avoid using it until it clears. This will prevent rust and sediment from being brought into the home's system.

If sediment does get into a home's hot water tank, the homeowner should call the Water Division at 667-3201.

Cop at shooting finds wife dead

MONROE (AP) — A police officer responding to the scene of a shooting discovered the woman who allegedly shot a nearby neighbor's owner, Robert Wesche, and then turned the gun on herself was his wife.

Monroe Police Lt. Terry Gillette was among the first officers to arrive at The Only One beauty salon Thursday to find his 36-year-old wife, Judy Gillette, had shot the salon's owner, Shari Carrano, critically wounding her, before fatally shooting herself in the head, police said.

Gillette, a 24-year veteran of the police force and the shift commander on Thursday, was led away from the scene by another officer who was in possession of the handgun, Police Chief Robert Wesche said.

"He did not know until he got there," Wesche said. "The got there shortly after the others did."

The shooting incident occurred shortly before 11 a.m., according to Wesche, who said Ms. Gillette walked into the salon and asked Carrano, 42, for an appointment.

When the owner sat down, Ms. Gillette allegedly pulled out a gun and shot Carrano in the eye before turning the gun on herself, Wesche said.

Ms. Gillette died a short time later at Griffin Hospital in Derby, Wesche said.

Carrano was taken to St. Vincent's Medical Center in Bridgeport where she was reported in critical but stable condition Thursday night.

"There was no altercation between her and the owner," said Detective Sgt. Normand Mercier, the officer in charge of the investigation.

While a motive is undetermined, police do know the two women were neighbors, both residing on Cottage Street and that Gillette's "off-duty gun" was used by his wife in the shooting, Mercier said.

Mercier said police have no knowledge of "any ongoing feud" between the two women.

Wesche said he doubted a possible love triangle could have been the motive.

"I don't think a love triangle entered into it at all, in my opinion," he said. "I'd be surprised if it were. I'd put that as the least possible motive."

Governor extends anti-drug bid

By Peter Viles
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Gov. William A. O'Neill has extended his controversial "Save Our Streets" program into the summer and says he expects the Legislature will agree to extend the anti-drug effort for a full year after that.

"I can't picture any group in the Legislature not wanting to continue this battle," O'Neill said Thursday. "It would be a mistake on their part."

The program, which teams state police with city police, began three months ago in New Haven, Hartford and Bridgeport despite the objections of local police unions in all three cities.

The unions contend the program was a political move that breaches their labor contracts. They are challenging the program in separate complaints before the state Labor Relations Board.

O'Neill announced Thursday he will extend the program until June 30, the end of the current fiscal year.

"At one time I was accused of using it as a political ploy for re-election," O'Neill said. "Well, I'm not running for re-election, as we all know. It was no political ploy to begin with and it's not a political ploy now."

In an April 2 letter to O'Neill, State Police Commissioner Bernard R. Sullivan denied the program a success and urged its continuation through June 30.

In a report to the governor, Sullivan said the cooperative effort between state and local police disrupted the drug trade and forced drug dealers to move their operations out of the targeted neighborhoods.

"Simply put, we cannot turn our backs on the citizens living in New Haven, Hartford and Bridgeport," O'Neill said. "I strongly believe if we pull the troopers who are working with local police in the neigh-

Parking lot rehab tied to $3.9m school addition

Work on the high school parking lot will begin after the high school addition is built, according to Frank Maffe, a member of the Board of Education.

The work must wait until after the expansion of the high school is completed, Maffe said, because the trucks coming into the parking lot during construction would only ruin the lot.

Money left over from the $3.9 million referendum for a high school addition, scheduled to go before voters in November, could be used for the repair of the parking lot, Maffe said.

Money may be left over because

Republicans listen to candidate's views

State Rep. Mac S. Schindler, (R-Newtown), who is seeking the office of secretary of the state, told members of the Manchester Republican Town Committee that she will back integrity to the office, which she said charged has been poorly administered.

Schindler, serving her fifth term as a representative from the 106th Assembly District, spoke briefly to the committee at its meeting in Lincoln Center Wednesday night.

"She said that during her four terms as town clerk of Newtown she performed duties parallel with those of the secretary of the state."

She said that serving on the General Assembly's committee on Government Administration and Elections has made her knowledgeable about the operations of the secretary of state's office.

She added that she has master's degree in business administration which equips her to understand the operation of the State Division within the office.

"It's going to be an exciting election in November," she said. "I can tell by all the long faces on the Democrats in Hartford."

Fred Blish also reported that LTM will present the second production of its season in mid-June in the auditorium of East Catholic High School.

LTM, which will perform at

Cheney Hall and manage it for other events when it has been renovated, is performing wherever it can find a hall in the interim.

The June 2 event at the Cheney Homestead, from 2 to 8 p.m., will include presentations by several performing groups as well as other features including sculpture, a juried art exhibit and a juried photography exhibit.

STATE 950 workers fight to keep jobs

By Elizabeth Lightfoot
The Associated Press

MONTEVILLE — Employees of UNC Inc.'s Naval Products Division, told last month that the Montville plant where they work will be closing and 950 workers laid off, say they refuse to give their jobs up without a fight.

About 1,000 boisterous UNC workers, their families and friends, packed the auditorium at St. Bernard High School Thursday night, and urged members of Connecticut's congressional delegation to help them save their jobs.

"This is the tip of the iceberg," Bill Lachapelle, a UNC employee for 25 years and chairman of a committee founded to fight UNC's closure, told the politicians. "Help us — no lead us — out of this dangerous water."

UNC, which designs and builds nuclear reactors for the Navy's submarine fleet, became the latest victim of easing international tensions March 12, when the federal Department of Energy announced it had suspended all of its contracts because of reductions in defense spending.

As a result, UNC officials said the 950 employees would be laid off over the next two years and the Montville plant would be closed. Already, 250 workers have been laid off, say they refuse to give their jobs up without a fight.

In the month since they learned of the layoffs, workers have formed SOS — Save Our State — and begun a letter-writing campaign to local, state and federal leaders. On Thursday, the group presented 20,129 signatures to U.S. Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., asking for the help of the state's congressional delegates.

Also attending the meeting were U.S. Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., and U.S. Reps. John Rowland, R-Conn., and Bruce Morrison, D-Conn.

The SOS group is seeking a reversal of the DOE decision or new work with the energy department. It is also asking that former defense funds, made available through the new "peace dividend," be returned to Connecticut and be used to retrain and re-equip the state's defense work force.

On a per capita basis, Connecticut is one of the largest, if not the largest, military contracting states in the nation. It ranked 5th in the nation in 1988 — the most recent year for which statistics are available — with $4.9 billion in military contracts.

Jim Rusiecki, a SOS leader and worker at UNC for 20 years, said the government should be spending its peace dividend at home, where workers are losing their jobs because of the changing world situation.

"We defense workers have paid the premium for peace these many years," Rusiecki said. "We ask you, no we demand, that the peace dividend not be sent to Panama or Nicaragua or to Eastern Bloc countries, but that those dollars be reinvested in the workers and industries from which they came in order to continue to keep America strong and UNC naval products alive."

In making its announcement March 12 that it was suspending its contracts with UNC, the government said it would rely solely on the larger Babcock & Wilcox Co. in Virginia to supply nuclear reactors for three classes of nuclear-powered submarines.

Rowland, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, told those attending Thursday's meeting that he had drafted an amendment to the defense appropriations bill that would force the Navy to maintain competition in the nuclear fuel procurement program, rather than buying solely from UNC's competitor.

Gejdenson, meanwhile, said he has introduced a bill that would allow defense contractors to sell to the nation's allies.

Thursday night's meeting lasted more than two hours and was punctuated by loud applause, chants and standing ovations.

Dodd received a well of applause when he said he, like "everyone else in this room," welcomed democratic reforms around the world.

Indicted Israeli to return

HARTFORD (AP) — An Israeli indicted in both the United States and Israel is scheduled to return to the United States today to face fraud charges in a "historic" case of cooperation between the two governments, federal officials said.

Samuel K. Dagan, formerly of West Hartford, agreed to return voluntarily from Israel to face charges of defrauding the Connecticut Bank and Trust Company and the Connecticut Savings Bank out of $6.1 million in 1987, said U.S. Attorney Stanley A. Twardy, Jr. on Thursday.

Dagan's case marks the first time the Israeli government has worked with U.S. officials to prosecute one of its own citizens for alleged crimes committed here.

"Since the beginning, the Israeli government has worked closely with our office to ensure that these defendants would be brought to justice," said Twardy. "We are extremely grateful for their assistance and honored that our office was able to participate in this historic prosecution."

Morrison's use of loophole prompts probe call by Cibes

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Bruce A. Morrison's use of a loophole in election law to collect more than $200,000 for a second campaign committee has prompted a call for an inquiry by the state Elections Enforcement Commission from one of Morrison's opponents.

Another gubernatorial campaign called it a money laundering scheme while Morrison said his campaign had operated well within the law.

At issue is Morrison's creation of a separate committee to raise money for primaries on May 15 to elect delegates to the July nominating convention.

Unlike traditional candidate campaign committees, there are no limits on the amounts individuals, corporations and political action committees can contribute to such committees.

"I don't blame Morrison for trying to take advantage of a loophole," Pelio said. "But I would not have done that."

The law forbids corporate contributions to candidate campaign committees and limits individual contributions to $2,500 and political action committee contributions to $5,000.

"I don't blame Morrison for trying to take advantage of a loophole," Pelio said. "But I would not have done that."

It may be legal, but it offends the spirit of the law and certainly deserves an investigation of the expenditures," said Pelio, who is also a Democratic state representative.

Torrington synagogue struck by vandals with spray paint

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

TORRINGTON (AP) — In what members of Torrington's Jewish community are calling the worst incident of anti-Semitic vandalism in recent memory, the walls of Beth El Synagogue were spray painted with swastikas, crucifixes and anti-Semitic messages.

A total of eight messages, all in black spray paint, were found on the rear and side wall of the synagogue on Tuesday, the day after the start of Passover. The week-long Jewish holiday celebrates the deliverance of the ancient Hebrews from slavery in Egypt.

Two of the messages on the synagogue threatened violence against Jews, reading, "die Jew" and "Rabbi Stephen O. Parnes, spiritual leader of the synagogue, said he has been in the Torrington area since 1981 and he has never seen an incident like this one before.

"We can clean the graffiti off the walls, but beyond that, there is nothing much the synagogue can do," Parnes said. "What can one synagogue do against unknown people who are intent on venting their hatred? That group will do it again unless they are intimidated by public opinion."

Torrington police Lt. David Gironami said detectives are handling the case as a criminal mischief complaint.

Cells suit asks larger question

There are a couple of important issues in a California Supreme Court suit brought by a man who wants a share of the profits from a drug developed from research conducted in part with cells taken from his body and used without his knowledge.

The man, who suffers from a rare type of leukemia, claims that when medical researchers used blood cells from his spleen in development of the drug, they "wrongfully converted" his personal property to their own use.

The discovery of the unique blood cells was made when the man's spleen was removed in the course of the standard treatment for his type of leukemia.

Over a period of seven years, the researchers conducted tests on the man while they were developing the cells into a self-developing cell line to mass produce an anti-cancer drug, but he was unaware that the research was going on.

The attorney for the defendants argues that the diseased cells in themselves were of no value and that only the research on them gave them commercial value.

The plaintiff's attorney argues that the cells were vital to creating the drug and that the researchers failed to get the patient's informed consent. If there is a commercial profit from the drug, and it has been estimated that it might amount to as much as $3 billion, it seems reasonable that part of that profit belongs to the patient.

There does not seem to be any justification for not telling the patient the research was in progress. Knowledge and consent is an important issue in standard medical treatment. When huge profits are at stake it is essential.

No to tax hike

To the Editor: Dear Bolton taxpayers, most of you are about to receive the largest increase in your local taxes that you have ever had. Whether you understand mill rates or not, the simple bottom line is that Bolton taxpayers are being asked to pay one of the largest increases in the state. The 4.39 mill increase, totaling $2.92, would have been an 11.2 mill increase using last year's mill rate of 47.2. This is a 23 percent increase in your tax bill. "Wake up, people of Bolton, how much longer are you going to take this?"

A recent survey of surrounding towns shows that the average taxpayers in those towns are paying less in taxes than Bolton taxpayers, and in some instances, considerably less.

Many Bolton taxpayers whose new assessments were more than 2½ times last year's assessment will receive an even larger increase in their taxes. Increases totaling $800, $900, and over $1,000 will not be unusual.

It is apparent that the members of the Board of Education and Board of Finance are not interested in keeping Bolton an affordable place to live. The only group in town interested in providing you with timely and factual information is T.N.T. It would have been helpful to the taxpayers if the Board of Finance provided you with information via the media, how the projected tax increases will impact on you, the taxpayers. Apparently they feel if you don't care to go to a town budget meeting, you are on your own.

This 23 percent increase will be even higher next year if the proposed $12 million school building project is approved. Keep in mind, the only way to stop these runaway taxes is to send our high school students out of town on a tuition basis or move out of town. Take your choice. Even though our Board of Education has voted to keep the high school open, this does not mean that the people of Bolton have to accept it. Most of the towns in Connecticut, which are as small as Bolton, either have joined with another town (or towns) into regional schools, or they send their students out on a tuition basis. We have two towns (Manchester Vermont) who would welcome our high school students. Our students would have many more opportunities in these schools than they have at Bolton High School. In doing this, the taxpayers can save a million dollars per year. This is a lot of money anywhere, and in a small town like Bolton it is even more. People are already moving out of Bolton because of the high taxes, and many more are attempting to sell their houses or are strongly considering this option.

We need to know if you support the efforts of T.N.T. Please call 646-3839 or 649-4467 and let us know how you feel. T.N.T. is having a meeting at the town hall in Bolton on April 26 at 7:30 p.m. Please plan to attend and show your support to keep Bolton an affordable place to live. If you need help in figuring your taxes, please bring your assessment and someone will assist you.

Crack kids unwanted by society

WASHINGTON — By the turn of the century, the first generation of crack babies will be teenagers. It's then that the worst side effects will surface for the children born now to women who smoke crack.

Not only will the nation be coping with millions of derelict lives, but it will pay billions of dollars for unforeseen health and education costs.

Today, Americans are touched by the pathos of tiny babies struggling for life in intensive care nurseries. Tomorrow, the picture will be less endearing — those babies grown up, with behavior problems caused by addiction, neglect and despair.

The crack babies are already becoming the nation's unwanted infants. A recent New York study on foster care in that state noted that in 1989, over 19 percent of the children in foster homes were under the age of 5. "Today, it is over 50 percent, primarily due to crack," the reporter says.

Anywhere from 100,000 to 350,000 crack babies are born each year in the United States.

The Health and Human Services Department Inspector General's Office canvassed health officials across the country looking for insights into these babies' futures. Our associate Jim Lynch obtained a draft copy of the results of that survey.

"Even if we stopped crack use right now, we would still be dealing with its effects in some way for the next 50 years," one health official said. "The ramifications are forever. ... It's a horrible cycle!"

Crack babies are often born prematurely and need costly medical care to survive. Some of them are born addicted to the drug. If they survive infancy, educators predict, crack babies will have severe learning disabilities.

Educators and health care experts are already starting to brace themselves for this new wave of needy kids growing into needy adults. The Los Angeles Unified School District has already developed a special curriculum for crack-affected preschoolers.

Meanwhile, the nation's swamped child welfare system is scrambling to come to the rescue. The state of New York ranked 26th in the nation in the number of children in foster care in 1989. Counseling, crack-addicted mothers "is like beating your head against a brick wall," one case worker expressed in a recent interview. "They're angry at the control over her life. She's worried about her next hit."

As they try to coordinate services for crack mothers and babies, hospitals report problems with staff turnover and burnout. One hospital administrator referred to the baby care ward as a "M.A.S.H." unit.

Success with crack mothers has been minimal. When the babies leave the hospital, they usually return to the care of maternal grandmothers or foster homes. Their fathers are nowhere to be found.

The crack babies are swelling the numbers of foster children who need a permanent place to live. There are now about 3 million children in waiting homes in the United States.

Health officials are now starting to see an overlap of crack and AIDS risk. Some crack babies are getting high-risk behaviors and give birth to babies addicted to crack and infected with AIDS. The tragic reality is, AIDS may eliminate the need to worry about the long-term fate of many of the babies and mothers.

On the West Coast, crack is old news and the next drug baby crisis is about to arrive. Child welfare agencies are preparing to treat babies born to users of a synthetic drug called ice. It is more expensive and powerful than crack and is known to cause rapid and extensive fetal damage.

As we reported earlier, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, is the lead advocate on Capitol Hill to generate data on the drug baby problem and brace the nation for the side effects.

Spooks and thrifits
It is possible that the fingerprints of the Central Intelligence Agency can be found on the savings and loan debacle? The proposition has enough of a ring of truth to warrant an investigation by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence. Rep. Frank Amodeo, D-Ill., the chairman of the House Subcommittee on Financial Institutions has formally made a request to the intelligence panel.

She's worried about her next hit."

As they try to coordinate services for crack mothers and babies, hospitals report problems with staff turnover and burnout. One hospital administrator referred to the baby care ward as a "M.A.S.H." unit.

Success with crack mothers has been minimal. When the babies leave the hospital, they usually return to the care of maternal grandmothers or foster homes. Their fathers are nowhere to be found.

The crack babies are swelling the numbers of foster children who need a permanent place to live. There are now about 3 million children in waiting homes in the United States.

Health officials are now starting to see an overlap of crack and AIDS risk. Some crack babies are getting high-risk behaviors and give birth to babies addicted to crack and infected with AIDS. The tragic reality is, AIDS may eliminate the need to worry about the long-term fate of many of the babies and mothers.

On the West Coast, crack is old news and the next drug baby crisis is about to arrive. Child welfare agencies are preparing to treat babies born to users of a synthetic drug called ice. It is more expensive and powerful than crack and is known to cause rapid and extensive fetal damage.

As we reported earlier, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, is the lead advocate on Capitol Hill to generate data on the drug baby problem and brace the nation for the side effects.

Spooks and thrifits
It is possible that the fingerprints of the Central Intelligence Agency can be found on the savings and loan debacle? The proposition has enough of a ring of truth to warrant an investigation by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence. Rep. Frank Amodeo, D-Ill., the chairman of the House Subcommittee on Financial Institutions has formally made a request to the intelligence panel.

The request followed the refusal by CIA Director William Webster to answer questions on the allegations. In a letter to the select committee, Amodeo said his staff has confirmed reports that a former Justice Department prosecutor was "told by an FBI agent to drop the investigation of one of the individuals who connected with a bank failure because that individual had CIA connections." The prosecutor was also reportedly told that the person involved had a "get-out-of-jail-free card."

Three U.S. tuna canners pledge dolphin-free meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists and lawmakers are hailing a decision by three U.S. tuna canners — including the world's largest — not to buy or sell tuna caught along with dolphins.

Environmental groups predicted the move by companies selling the StarKist, Bumble Bee and Chicken of the Sea brands will save some of the estimated 100,000 dolphins that die annually in huge nets used to catch schools of tuna.

StarKist Seafood Co. said Thursday it "will not purchase any tuna caught in association with dolphins" and "will sell only dolphin-free tuna."

The action was taken in recognition of increased consumer concern for the environment, and because "the greatest concern in the tuna industry is dolphin mortality," said Anthony A.P. O'Reilly, president of the H.J. Heinz Co., which owns StarKist.

StarKist has a 35 percent share of the U.S. tuna market and is the world's largest tuna canner. The change could cost consumers "a couple or more cents" per can, O'Reilly said.

Bumble Bee Seafoods Inc., a chief competitor, followed suit a few hours later saying it "would now implement its plan to end the purchase of tuna caught in association with dolphins."

"Our tuna cans will begin to reflect the dolphin-safe label in U.S. stores within the next three months," the statement said.

Van Kamp Seafood of St. Louis, seller of Chicken of the Sea brand, said it would "discontinue buying tuna caught in association with dolphins," according to a statement by Jose E. Munoz Jr., company president.

"To do this, we are asking our few existing contract vessels to relocate their operations to the western Pacific, where the dolphin mortality problem does not exist," Munoz said.

Leslie Scheele of the environmental group Greenpeace, which backs a worldwide boycott of tuna caught with nets, said the action could "finally end the killing of dolphins by tuna nets forever. Others are going to have to follow suit."

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., who is sponsoring legislation to require canners to label tuna that is caught by nets that ensnare dolphins, said the announcement made StarKist "not only the largest but the most enlightened" tuna canner in the world.

"Now Charlie the Tuna has a reason to smile," said Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., author of the Dolphin Protection Consumer Information Act of 1990, in a statement read by Biden. Charlie the Tuna is an animated character used in StarKist advertisements.

"I think it means defining a new corporate ethics for the '90s in America," said Sam Labadie, a biologist who gained prominence in 1987 when he sailed for five months undercover as a crewman aboard a foreign fishing boat. He brought back graphic film footage of dolphin kills during tuna catches.

However, the American Tunaboot Association criticized the new policy as "politically and marketing motivated."

August Felando, ATA president, said the move was "devastating" for the U.S. tuna fleet. "Basically, we have now lost our market. The Eastern Pacific is the most productive area in the world for yellowfin tuna fishing and it's our traditional grounds," he said.

"U.S. boats ... will be forced to other fisheries, or even go out of business," while foreign boats will sell their tuna to non-U.S. buyers, StarKist's new policy was aimed at purse seine net fishing in the eastern Pacific Ocean because it is the only fishery where dolphin swim with tuna.

Stokes estimated the cleanup cost at around $100,000, while Iowa's secretary of agriculture, Dale Cochran, has placed it as high as $1.5 million. The FmHA sold the corn for $2.866.

If the deadline is not met, the state could clean up the grain and then sue the FmHA and the elevator, Stokes said.

Aflatoxins are chemical substances produced by certain soil fungi. The Food and Drug Administration says aflatoxin concentrations above 20 parts per billion are unsuitable for human consumption and concentrations above 300 parts per billion are unsuitable for animal feed.

FDA tests of the corn found concentrations as high as 32,300 parts per billion in one sample. In its bill of sale, the FmHA disclosed that the corn contained aflatoxin concentrations greater than 5,000 parts per billion and assigned any liability to the purchaser, who bought the corn, declined comment.

The corn has been placed under quarantine in a sparsely settled area three miles from Lowden in eastern Iowa.

"Whatever is going to be done is not going to be cheap," said Allan Stokes, director of the state environmental agency. "We're waiting to see if either 'old the FmHA to destroy the corn, the FmHA would do it,' Bird said.

Gary Deans, director of compliance at the FDA's regional office at Kansas City, said the correspondence between the FmHA and the Oklahoma Department of Agriculture advised the FmHA of the guidelines. He said the FDA could not become involved until there was an interstate shipment.

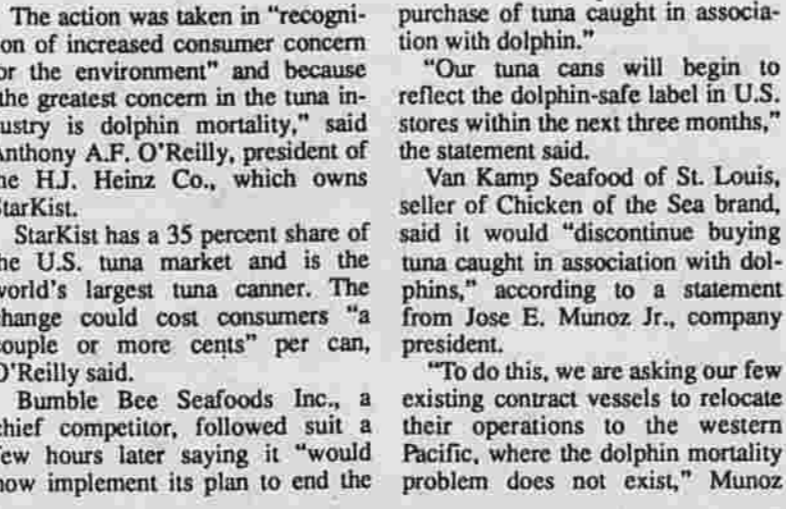

Under federal law, contaminated grain cannot be moved from one state to another.

Oklahoma officials notified the FmHA of the problem and closed the aflatoxin concentrations in the early March shipment from the foreclosed farm, and Iowa inspectors were on hand to quarantine the corn as it arrived.

Their action prevented the grain from being fed to animals or standing up in milk or meat products. But inhaling dust from the corn could prove a health risk, and state officials are in no rush to disturb the pile until they have an acceptable cleanup plan.

Aflatoxin is produced by two soil fungi, Aspergillus flavus and A. parasiticus. State officials said they believe the toxin flourished because the corn was unusually moist when harvested and became heated as it dried.

The FDA and the Oklahoma Department of Agriculture both knew in advance of the intended

Obscenity controversy divides conservative Midwestern city

By Joe McDonald
The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Large crowds visiting a museum being prosecuted for showing sexually graphic photographs reveal that for many residents, this city's clean-cut, conservative reputation is an unwanted burden.

City police last week charged the Contemporary Arts Center and its director with pandering obscenity and scaling with sculptures of women in the nude.

The charges seemed characteristic of a city that gained its reputation by closing all of its adult bookstores, banning the sale or lease of X-rated videos, and starting one of the first citizens' anti-pornography groups in the country.

"Cincinnati is no more conservative than the rest of the nation," says Al Tuchfarber, director of the University of Cincinnati's Institute for Policy Research.

Tuchfarber says anti-pornography groups draw much of their strength from the traditionally working-class, Roman Catholic west side of the city, which he said is slightly more conservative than the east side.

The city of 370,000 is home to Dr. John Wilke, president of National Right to Life, and the Rev. Jerry Kirk, founder of the National Coalition Against Pornography. Phoenix financier Charles H. Keating Jr. grew up in Cincinnati and was a defender of outdated standards.

"They're pushing for corporations to locate here," Moore said. "I think if I'm the head of a corporation in New York or San Francisco, I could imagine my employees saying, 'Why do I want to go to Cincinnati?'"

The Chamber of Commerce has spent $6 million since 1984 on its "Blue Chip Campaign" to promote the city's cultural attractions, and to cite economic reasons for companies to move to Cincinnati.

But while anti-pornography advocates have attacked rallies against the exhibit, open pending a court ruling, more than 14,000 people have lined up to see the 175-photograph exhibit since it opened last Friday. The museum's list of dues-paying patrons has increased from 1,600 to 2,300 two weeks.

"I think the people in Cincinnati are like people in any city," said Todd Kamm, a social worker and artist. "It's just that the people in power in the county ... are pretty archaic."

A researcher who surveyed local attitudes in 1988 says anti-abortion and anti-pornography groups are led by talented conservative leaders who happen to live in the city.

A federal judge has barred local authorities from taking further action until the arraignment Monday in Hamilton County Municipal Court.

Two pictures in the exhibit feature nude children and five depict sex acts. If convicted, Barrie and the museum each would face fines of $6,000 and Barrie six months in jail.

The city's last public debate over an art case after the 1988 announcement of plans to erect sculptures of winged pigs to commemorate the Cincinnati's history as a hog-butcher center. The pigs eventually were unveiled in a city park, although many argued they were ridiculous.

Moore said the city is doing itself more harm than good by casting itself as a defender of outdated standards.

"They're pushing for corporations to locate here," Moore said. "I think if I'm the head of a corporation in New York or San Francisco, I could imagine my employees saying, 'Why do I want to go to Cincinnati?'"

WASHINGTON (AP) — The male prostitute at the center of ethics allegations against Rep. Barney Frank has pleaded innocent to drug and assault charges stemming from a traffic confrontation with an off-duty police officer.

Dist. of Columbia Superior Court Hearing Commissioner Kaye Christian on Thursday ordered Stephen L. Gobie held in lieu of $2,500 bond and scheduled a status hearing for May 8 before Judge Joseph Ryan.

Gobie was charged with possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia, simple assault and destruction of property in connection with the Wednesday incident. Each of the four misdemeanor charges carries a maximum penalty of one year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Gobie did not speak during his four-minute appearance. His plea was entered by his attorney, Lawrence E. Baskin, who attorney asked for a jury trial.

Heart

Ultrasound uses ultrasound, or sound waves, to create an image of the heart, its chambers, valves and vessels. It also uses color coding to describe the direction and speed of blood flow to help detect abnormalities of the heart.

In addition, the new system updates the hospital's 10-year-old echocardiograph system by providing more specific information about the condition of patients' hearts. One-time use of the older system cost about $300, Dr. Kurien said.

In a healthy and normally-functioning heart, blood flows from the right atrium to the right ventricle to the lungs and then to the left atrium and the left ventricle and through the rest of the body until it again reaches the right atrium, where it goes through the sequence again, the physician said.

However, when there is a problem, such as a clogged valve, sometimes blood will be pumped, but not all will go through the valve and the blood will flow in the wrong direction, he said. Ultramar's color coding shows the direction and flow characteristics of the movement of blood within the heart chambers and across narrowed or leaking heart valves, he said.

Physicians can use the resulting image to determine the most appropriate corrective procedure, Dr. Kurien said.

Millions

"So you can speculate that we're talking about extraordinary amounts of money," Lopez said.

"The FBI is interviewing a number of people to find out where the money came from and what legal action to take," he said. "But we can't make anything public about the investigation."

Newspapers reported residents were snapping up new houses, boats, cars and VCRs with the cash. They said federal authorities descended on the town after a car mechanic paid $170,000 cash for a house and a sports car, and deposited $50,000 cash in a bank.

Lopez said the FBI interviewed several people and many local residents were returning goods bought with the found cash.

Many also weren't, he said.

El Vocero, the tabloid that broke the story, said the FBI had confiscated "millions" — mostly in $100 and $20 bills — from residents and from the drum recovered by agents.

Vega Baja, a bustling community of 30,000 nestled between a pristine beach overlooking the Atlantic Ocean and tropical hills, was quiet Thursday and few residents would talk about the money. Most said they didn't know anything about it.

City Hall was closed and many shops shuttered their doors early in preparation for Good Friday. Parents took children to the beach and fishermen climbed atop coral hills to cast for red snapper.

"I found that money, I wouldn't have touched it for anything in the world. It's dirty money — that's for sure. Something real fishy about it," said one woman who ran an outdoor cafe and gave her name only as Carmen.

There was some confusion as to where the money had actually been buried. Many said the beach. Others said a field.

Lopez said the location of the buried treasure couldn't be revealed because "there would be a gold rush to the site."

"We can't give that information. We shouldn't and we won't," he said.

The U.S. attorney said it was a good bet the cash was drug trafficking money.

"That's one of the strongest possibilities, but I can't say with certainty," he said. "It's probable that somebody knew where it was buried and blew the whistle."

El Vocero quoted unidentified sources as saying the Puerto Rico Justice Department had estimated up to $20 million may have been buried.

Miguel Rodriguez, a police narcotics agent in Vega Baja, said Thursday a car and a motorcycle had been turned in to FBI agents investigating the case.

"This is so confidential the FBI is not even telling us anything," Rodriguez said. "There is a report of lots of money floating around, but we don't know from where."

The FBI office in the capital of San Juan has refused to discuss the case until the investigation is completed. Because the Caribbean island of Puerto Rico is a U.S. commonwealth, its investigatory matters come under federal jurisdiction.

Under Puerto Rican law, anyone who finds treasure on private property is entitled to half, with the remainder going to the commonwealth.

But the FBI could invoke a federal law entitling the U.S. government to confiscate funds tied to the illegal drug trade to pay for the costs of the investigation.

Campaign

There is a real hunger for leadership and my success in raising money is an indication that the hunger is being satisfied," Rowland, a three-term congressman from Waterbury, said in a statement issued with his quarterly campaign finance report.

Morrison, a four-term congressman from Hamden, said he was encouraged by his own totals and said he was gaining momentum.

Peter W. Gold, Weicker's co-chairman, said the totals after just a few weeks of fund-raising showed strong support for Weicker and said that the "prospects are bright for raising the $2 million necessary to mount an effective campaign."

Weicker is a former three-term Republican U.S. senator running as an independent.

Cibes said he wasn't discouraged by his low total and noted that he had been raising money for less than a month.

"We're raising the money to pay for what we are doing and will continue to raise enough," Cibes said.

Katyn

officers was first disclosed in 1943 by the Nazis, who attributed it to Stalin's secret police. More than 4,000 bodies have been found in mass graves in the forest. An additional 11,000 Polish officers were killed elsewhere and their bodies have never been found.

Records indicate that only 394 of the prisoners held at Katyn were transferred to the Grayzyevskiy prison camp, and the rest were turned over to the NKVD, the predecessor of the KGB.

Although the Tass statement referred specifically to Katyn, it tied the fates of all 15,000 officers together.

The Soviet statement said archive material discovered recently allowed officials now to blame Stalin's secret police Chief Lavrenti Beria, his protégé V.N. Merkulov and "their henchmen."

The Soviet side, expressing its deep regret in connection with a Katyn tragedy, states that it is one of the most horrifying Stalinist crimes, Tass said.

Today's Soviet admission came one day after East Germany's new Parliament apologized to Jews for Nazi atrocities and apologized for the deaths of 20 million Soviets during World War II.

In Warsaw, Poles received Soviet acknowledgment of responsibility with renewed expressions of anger at the delay and tears over the massacre that has seared the national consciousness for 50 years.

"I regret that my mother could not live until this day," said Wanda Zadrozna, crying as she recalled her father's murder in the Russian woods.

"It's good that criminals admit their crimes," Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said in Gdansk. He called the Soviet admission "an act of moral justice which has been awaited for a long time."

He said there must also be "punishment of those guilty of the genocide," reparations stemming from the Soviet occupation of eastern Poland in 1939 and free access to Soviet territory that is "emotionally important" for Poles.

Several Soviet newspapers' reports recently have placed the blame for the murders on the Soviet side, but until today, the government

Prices

The various changes put the index for all finished goods, one step short of record, at 117.0 in March. That means a hypothetical selection of goods which cost $100 in 1982 cost $117 last month, up from $112.10 a year earlier.

Price pressures in earlier stages of the production process also eased in March. Intermediate goods showed no change while crude goods fell 1.4 percent. An example of the three processing stages would be bread for finished goods, flour for intermediate and wheat for crude.

The moderate inflation report should please the Federal Reserve Board which has been using relatively high interest rates to dampen demand and thus cool inflation.

But, analysts cautioned against reading too much into recent monthly numbers, which have been sent on a roller-coaster ride by the effect of the weather on food and energy prices.

"The numbers in the next few months could give us a false sense of euphoria just as a false sense of gloom," said economist Robert G. Dederick of Northern Trust Co. in Chicago.

Zoo draws line at group's call to ban balloons

DENVER (AP) — First, the Denver Zoo banned animal feeding. Then a halt was put to "explorative" rides on elephants and camels. Now, an animal-rights group wants to stop balloon sales.

"Drifting balloons can find their way into many of the open-air enclosures and can cause great harm, even death, to unsuspecting animals who might ingest them," the Rocky Mountain Humane Society wrote in a Feb. 6 letter to the zoo.

The zoo's board of trustees stopped elephant and camel rides this week after the humane society charged animals were being exploited for human pleasure and greed.

But enough is enough, zoo spokesman Tom Peterson said.

"We've never had a problem with balloons here," said Peterson. "A lot of people are asking, 'What will be left for the kids to do that's fun?'"

LEAP FROG — Fermi second baseman John Pohorylo straddles Manchester High's Steve Leonard after the latter stole second base in the second inning of Thursday's game at Kelley Field.

Helin in control as MHS nine rights itself

Manchester beat Fermi High of Enfield, 9-3, in CCC East action Thursday afternoon at Kelley Field.

Manchester, which hosts Newington Saturday at 1 p.m., is now 1-1 in the league and 2-1 overall. Fermi slips to 0-2 in the league and 1-3 overall.

Helin walked five and struck out nine.

"He had his curveball working real well today and he was mixing it up with his fastball," Manchester coach Don Race said. "He had them back on their heels. He pitched better than he did against East Catholic."

Leading, 5-1, Manchester broke this one open with a four-run fifth inning.

Sophomore Dave White walked and stole second base. Helin walked and senior Steve Joyner singled to load the bases. Senior Ryan Barry

(two runs batted in) reached on a fielder's choice, scoring. White Leonard followed with a fly ball to right field which Ken Mahon couldn't handle allowing Joyner and Barry to score. Junior Mike Gilbert singled to score Leonard and the Indians led, 9-1.

Leonard tripled to centerfield in the first inning. Senior Lindsey Bouttler added two hits for Manchester.

"It was a complete turnaround from the Rockville game," Race said.

Leonard announced on Thursday that he will attend the University of Hartford on a full baseball scholarship. Georgia Southern and Florida Southern were also interested in Leonard, who earned All-State honors last spring.

Whalers have questions to answer

BOSTON (AP) — There's no doubt the Boston Bruins can fight back from adversity. The question now is whether the Hartford Whalers can.

The answer comes tonight when the Bruins, buoyed by a 6-5 victory in which they erased a three-goal third-period deficit, try to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-7 Adams Division semifinal.

"The key is to forget Game 4 and come out and go right at them," Hartford coach Rick Ley said. "We learned from it."

"If you dwell on the fact that you could have gone up 3-1, should have gone up 3-1, you're not going to be ready for the next game," Whalers forward Scott Young said. "The series is tied right now, so it's best-6-5. We have to win one in Boston."

That could be together if Bruins defenseman Ray Bourque returns tonight from a left hip injury that kept him out of the last two games. His absence hurt, but they may have helped the Bruins in Wednesday night's victory in Hartford.

"I can see where this kind of comeback, without Ray, can be a boost to the team," Boston general manager Harry Sinden said. "Raymond is the guy who generally leads all the comebacks."

The Bruins needed one in Game 4 because of subpar play in the first two periods by their remaining defenses and goalie Reggie Lemelin. Trailing 3-2, Coach Mike Milbury put Andy Moog in goal for the third period.

Until the four-goal rally, the improbable — first round elimination — became very possible for the Bruins, who had the NHL's best regular-season record. They would have had to win three straight games to stay alive.

"If we'd lost," defenseman Garry Galley said, "it's over."

But Moog stopped all seven shots he faced, while Dave Pulin got two goals and Bob Beers and Dave Christian added one each. Pulin's goal with 1:44 left broke the 5-5 tie and opened an all-out, aggressive offensive.

The Whalers used to play more intelligently and adjust to game situations. There's no reason to take chances, as they did Wednesday night, with a comfortable lead.

"I wouldn't really blame it on our defense," Ley said. "We had a lot of situations where our third man (entering the offensive zone) gambled and lost. We didn't use our heads. Our defense starts backpedaling because they can't trust the forwards."

Overcoming third-period deficits is an NHL rarity. During the regular season, the Bruins were 4-1-3 in games they trailed after the second period. Hartford was 1-2-4.

Sinden, in his 18th season as Boston's general manager, said, "I can't remember a Bruins' playoff comeback quite like this."

"This game is going to bring us back to being the Boston Bruins. We haven't been the Bruins in this series until now."

Winfield feels like a rookie

NEW YORK — Before he was hurt, Dave Winfield could hit and run with the best of them. In his first post-injury game, he showed he still can.

Winfield, who missed the entire 1989 season because of back surgery, seemed like his old self Thursday as the New York Yankees, on pinch-hitter Luis Polonia's go-ahead single in the eighth inning, beat the Cleveland Indians 6-4 in a much-delayed opening game of the season.

"To get the first hit, to score the first run, it felt good," Winfield said. "Everything I do is kind of new. It's like I'm a rookie."

Winfield went 1-for-29 in spring training, causing some to think he might not be able to come back at age 38. But he led off the second inning with a hard double down the left-field line for his first official hit in 568 days.

"I got one last night, but the game was snowed out," Winfield said. "I have never really done anything in spring training. I wasn't worried about it."

Mel Hall followed with a single and Winfield went charging around third base, but got tangled up and stopped. He then scored on Bob Geren's single.

"That's the only way I know to play — aggressive," said Winfield, who went 1-for-4 as the designated hitter. "I'm not thinking about hurting myself. You can't worry about things like that."

Don Mattingly, who signed a five-year $19.3 million contract extension this week, worried all winter about another of his notorious slow starts. He is a career .285 hitter in April, 47 points below his lifetime average, and hit just .221 with no home runs and no RBIs in last Sox open a series in Boston with the Milwaukee Brewers.

"Tony Phillips is a small major league player," Trammell said. "He's a feisty little devil. He's been called a utility player, but he'll prove to anyone he's a bonafide big leaguer."

The record will show that Lou Whitaker's 150th career home run was the blow that shook the cobwebs off the Tigers' offense. But there are times when numbers don't tell all — even in baseball, a game replete with statistics.

Phillips went 4-for-4, scoring two runs and driving in three. But more importantly he:

— Started the first inning with a bun single and stole second.

— Made good plays on two pop fouls, one dangerously close to the dugout steps.

"He'll do that all year," Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said. "There's not a statistical ballplayer. He's a baseball player. That's the way he is. He'll be in the dirt. It's how he goes about everything."

Phillips came to the Tigers as a weekend series with the Yankees.

Coventry whips Bolton, still unbeaten

BOLTON — It took visiting Coventry High while before it got the timing down against Bolton High's Scott Magrath Thursday afternoon. But the unbeaten Patriots got untracked in the final frames en route to a 14-1 win in COC baseball action.

Coventry improves to 4-0 while Bolton is winless at 0-4. Coventry has a makeup game Saturday at 2 p.m. at home against Tolland High while Bolton next tosses action Tuesday at 11 a.m. when it hosts East Hampton High.

"Their pitcher (Magrath) was a bit slower than we've seen. We were out in front and he had us off stride the first three innings or so," Coventry coach Bob Plaster said. "The Patriots had a 2-0 lead going into the fifth frame when it added three runs on just one hit, that a leadoff infield single by Rob Tozelli. A couple of Bolton miscues abetted the Patriots."

Coventry scored six times on six hits, including Derek Moulton's two-run double, in the sixth. "The kids were going up with their normal swings and I told them to take a little off and time it better," Plaster said.

Gary Onnen and John Totten combined on a five-hitter for the Patriots. The left-handed Onnen (2-0) worked the first five innings. He allowed three hits, walked two and struck out nine.

Bolton batters in all struck out 12 times. "We just couldn't hit the ball today," Bolton coach Mark O'Neill said. "We watched a lot of third strikes (5). We weren't aggressive at all at the plate."

Magrath worked the first six innings in taking the loss for Bolton. "I thought he pitched well," O'Neill said. Brian Neil, still with a cast on his left wrist, pitched the final inning for Bolton.

Totten, Jeff Rheault and Kevin Quintiliano were each 2-for-4 and Steve Poulain and Chris McCarthy each 2-for-3 for Coventry.

ENFIELD — You can never have enough runs, is one axiom many a coach will tell you.

"That was never more in evidence than Thursday afternoon as two runs in the top of the seventh inning proved to be the difference as Manchester High held on for a hair-raising 24-22 victory over Fermi High in CCC East Division girls' softball play.

The host Falcons scored 12 times in the bottom of the final inning, only to fall through two runs short. The win moves Manchester to 2-1 while Fermi drops to 0-3 with the loss.

"I was getting gray hair," Manchester first-year coach Candy Walz said, recalling the final frame. "All I wanted to do was get the outs. And when they (Fermi) kept scoring and we weren't getting any outs, I kept on asking coach (assistant coach) Diane Ladabouché how much of a cushion we had. I didn't want the kids to think about the score."

Manchester had 18 hits, Fermi 21 in the three-hour marathon. One key was behind the plate. The Indians were able to take advantage of a truckful of passed balls.

Bolton. The baseball arrived in time and Onnen, right photo, was tagged out. Nevertheless, the Patriots easily prevailed, 14-1.

only one passed ball. "She did a real good job behind the plate," Walz complimented. Coventry's Shawn Siegros collected two hits for Rocky Hill.

The Indians, victimized by a 37-minute, 19-run first inning by Rocky Hill, were in their last outting, were at the plate for 25 minutes in their first at bat, scoring eight times.

Manchester scored in every inning, with a second eight-run burst in the sixth opening the margin to 22-10. "I thought he pitched well," O'Neill said. Brian Neil, still with a cast on his left wrist, pitched the final inning for Bolton.

Starting all set to take on Nunn

By Tim Dahlborg
The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Marlon Starling doesn't consider it a big deal to move up two weight divisions and challenge Michael Nunn for the middleweight title.

The welterweight champion has even weighed goals in mind. "I wouldn't be surprised if I fight for the light heavyweight title next year," said Starling, who fights Nunn Saturday night for the International Boxing Federation version of the 160-pound title. "When I get down to welterweight, I look poor, like I'm suffering from malnutrition."

Starling tries to become the first reigning welterweight champion to capture the middleweight title since Emilio Griffith took a unanimous decision over Dick Tiger on April 25, 1966.

In 11 years of fighting at 147 pounds, Starling has declared himself something of a weight division free agent, ready and willing to fight anywhere from 140 pounds to 175 pounds.

"I'm like Sugar Ray Leonard. I'm a money weight fighter," said Starling, who will earn $675,000 to fight the undefeated Nunn. "Whenever the money is, I'll fight at that weight."

Starling's World Boxing Council welterweight title won't be at stake against Nunn, who will be making the fourth defense of the IBF title won in July 1988 from Frank Tate. "The financial future of the veteran fighter, however, is in a boat that could catapult him into some big-money fights should he manage to upset Nunn."

"He can make a lot of money by beating a Michael Nunn," Nunn said. "But if I was Marlon Starling, I would have fought first in the junior middleweight division. He'll find that out in the ring Saturday night."

"I'm comfortable at this weight right now," Starling said. "In my last fight in September, I started training weighing 169, which is really my walking-around weight."

Starling and Nunn sparred verbally during their final pre-fight press conference Thursday at the Mirage, with Starling at one point suggesting the fight be a winner-take-all affair. "That's no problem," said Nunn, who will make $1.1 million. "Put your welterweight championship, too. I've always wanted to be the welterweight champion."

Odds-makers make Nunn a prohibitive 6-1 favorite, despite the middleweight champion's recent split with the Goosen brothers, who have trained and managed him since he turned pro six years ago.

Nunn has trained under former fighter Cassius Green since walking out of training camp three weeks ago in a dispute with the Goosens, who attended the press conference. "I did not speak to my fighter," Nunn said. "I didn't realize what a big hole this was," Dan Goosen said. "I've been here four days and this is the third night I've seen Michael."

Starling, the 31-year-old Hartford, Conn., fighter who has built a career of winning fights he wasn't supposed to win, is 45-5-1 with 27 knockouts. His last fight was in Sep. 1989, when he retained his WBC title with a 12-round decision over Yungki Chung in Hartford.

"The better of these people will realize I'm fighting at 147 pounds," Starling said. "I can't win with the media, but I can win in the ring."

Starling will face a three-inch reach disadvantage and a five-inch height disadvantage against Nunn, a stylish southpaw who is 34-0 with three successful title defenses.

But he expects to enter the ring weighing the same 160-pound class limit as Nunn. "I'm comfortable at this weight right now," Starling said. "In my last fight in September, I started training weighing 169, which is really my walking-around weight."

Celtics burn Heat in the end

NBA Roundup

By The Associated Press

Anything the Miami Heat can do, the Boston Celtics can do better.

Miami shot a blistering 88 percent (22 of 25) in outscoring Boston 47-31 in the third period, rallying from a 61-47 halftime deficit to a 94-92 lead.

So Boston promptly outscored Miami 47-24 in the final period as Larry Bird scored 21 of his 40 points and beat the Heat 139-118 Thursday night.

And while the Celtics shot "only" 71 percent in the final period, they were 100 percent at the foul line for the game — 35 for 35, the second-best free throw performance in NBA history.

The 47 points are the most Boston has allowed and scored in one period this season.

"A great player took it from us," said Miami rookie Sherman Douglas, who scored a career-high 37 points. "What can you say? He's taken a lot of out of other people."

The Celtics may have been listening for the Philadelphia score during their third-period slumber. The 76ers skinned the Minnesota Timberwolves 110-77 to remain 17½ games ahead of Boston and reduce their magic number for clinching the NBA Atlantic Division title to four.

The Celtics have five games left, the 76ers four. "We didn't show a whole lot of emotion out there" in the third period, Boston coach Jimmy Rodgers conceded. "It was kind of quiet here. You could hear the popcorn popping and sweat dripping on the floor."

Meanwhile, the defending Atlantic Division champion New York Knicks were eliminated from the first-place race despite a 108-100 victory over Indiana.

Boston matched a season high with its fifth consecutive victory and Miami lost its sixth straight.

For Boston, McHale had 24 points, Robert Parish 23 and Lewis 22. Glen Rice, another Miami rookie, had a season-high 28.

The Celtics' foul shooting was second only to Utah's 39-of-59 at Portland on Dec. 7, 1982.

"If it wasn't for Larry, we'd have been in trouble," McHale said. "Larry kept his concentration and pulled us through."

"There's nothing you can do to stop him," Miami's Telfis Frank said.

"76ers 110, Timberwolves 77: Ron Anderson's 20-point performance in relief of a hobblid Charles Barkley paced Philadelphia to its 10th win in 12 games. Hersey Hawkins scored 19 points and Rick Mahorn grabbed 11 rebounds for Philadelphia. Tyrone Corbin scored 12 and Tony Campbell had 11 rebounds and five rebounds, three assists and one turnover.

Knicks 108, Pacers 100: Patrick Ewing scored 40 points on 18-for-26 shooting and grabbed 13 rebounds as New York slowed Indiana's playoff drive. Ewing hit four key baskets in the final 4-23 defeat by the Pacers, who led for less than two minutes in the game, led the scores lead 95-95 while the Knicks' All-Star center was on the bench with five fouls.

Jazz 107, Lakers 104: Karl Malone scored 45 points and grabbed 13 rebounds as Utah, after blowing a 23-point lead, came back to beat Los Angeles in the final eight seconds. John Stockton had 15 points and 23 assists at the Jazz evaded the season series with the Lakers at 2-2.

Heat 139, Celtics 118: Larry Bird scored 21 of his 40 points and beat the Heat 139-118 Thursday night.

Spurs 105, Clippers 98: Willie Anderson matched his season high with 26 points, including 12 in the final nine minutes, as San Antonio came from behind. David Robinson's 32 points led the Spurs, who have won 51 of 60 games, 30 more than last season. The Clippers were paced by Danny Manning's 23 points. Benoit Benjamin had 21 and Charles Smith 20.

Cavaliers 102, Bullets 100: Brad Daugherty scored eight of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as Cleveland moved into a tie with Atlanta for the final Eastern Conference playoff berth with five games remaining.

The Associated Press

I'LL TAKE THAT — Philadelphia's Charles Barkley takes the ball away from a fallen Tod Murphy of Minnesota during their game Thursday night at the Spectrum in Philadelphia. The 76ers trounced the Timberwolves, 110-77.

Suns 116, Kings 114: Tom Chambers hit a five-point shot with 1.5 seconds left as Sacramento secured its fifth straight home loss. Kevin Johnson scored 32 points as Phoenix won its third straight and remained one game ahead of San Antonio in the battle for fourth place in the Western Conference.

Eddie Johnson scored 12 of his 29 points in the final quarter for the Suns. Wayman Tisdale led Sacramento with 29 points while Danny Ainge and Rodney McCray each had 21.

Spurs 105, Clippers 98: Willie Anderson matched his season high with 26 points, including 12 in the final nine minutes, as San Antonio came from behind. David Robinson's 32 points led the Spurs, who have won 51 of 60 games, 30 more than last season. The Clippers were paced by Danny Manning's 23 points. Benoit Benjamin had 21 and Charles Smith 20.

Cavaliers 102, Bullets 100: Brad Daugherty scored eight of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as Cleveland moved into a tie with Atlanta for the final Eastern Conference playoff berth with five games remaining.

Washington's Jeff Malone led all scorers with 39 points, scoring 22 in the third quarter, making his first 11 shots before missing in the closing seconds of the period. He made only one of three in the final quarter and scored only three points. Mark Price led Cleveland with 25 points and Larry Nance had 18.

Rockets 117, Hornets 110: Akeem Olatunji had 34 points and 19 rebounds as Houston reached the 500 mark (38-38) for the first time since Dec. 13. Buck Johnson, a fourth-year forward, added a career-high 30 points while Armon Gilliam led the Hornets with 30, 26 in the second half.

SuperSonics 113, Nuggets 103: Dale Ellis scored 15 third-quarter points as Seattle outscored Denver 37-20, Ellis, who made only one of six shots in the first half, hit six of eight in the third period.

The victory moved the Sonics within one game of Denver and a half game of Houston in the Western Conference standings. The Nuggets are in seventh place and the Sonics in ninth.

Mavericks 140, Warriors 133: Sam Perkins scored 45 points, surpassing his previous career high by 13, as Dallas snapped a three-game losing streak and all but ended the Warriors' playoff chances.

The Kings were the last team to recover from a 3-1 deficit, rebounding last year to eliminate defending champion Edmonton.

Joe Nieuwenk had a power-play goal and two assists for the Flames, who out-shot the Kings 35-19. Dana Murzyn and Gary Roberts also scored for the Flames.

Rob Blake ruined the shutout bid by Calgary goaltender Mike Vernon with a goal in the third period.

Nieuwenk scored the Flames were motivated by fear.

"We were all afraid of what might happen," he said. "The guys were quiet, not saying anything. We knew it was going to be tough, but we showed a lot of composure."

Oilers 4, Jets 3: Mark Messier scored the winning goal early in the third period as the Oilers kept their playoff hopes alive.

Goaltender Bill Ranford made a brilliant save on Jets forward Dale Hawerchuk with less than a minute left in the third period to preserve the fragile lead. The Oilers also killed off a late Jets power play.

"I don't know about a perfect game, but I know we played well from start to finish," Blackhawk coach Mike Keenan said. "We skated well and went after them. We had good checking. (Goaltender) Greg Miller had a very strong game."

Miller stopped 26 shots.

"Defense was the key and we were relentless," Miller said.

Smythe Division: Flames 5, Kings 1: Defenseman Ric Nattrott, who had only one goal during the season, scored twice as Calgary stayed alive in a bid to repeat as Stanley Cup champions.

"That's his favorite shot," said Riendeau, who made a glove save. "He tries to hold on, hold on, get you back in the net, then throw it up and in."

Blackhawks 6, North Stars 1: Jeremy Roenick and Dennis Savard scored first-period goals, leading the Blackhawks over the North Stars.

The Blackhawks were in such command in the first period that they had a 14-2 edge, who shoot on goal.

The North Stars never seriously threatened.

The Blackhawks wringed it up on goals by Michel Goulet and Steve Thomas in the final four minutes of play.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Teen-ager needs fatherly advice

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Too Young," the boy who found himself to be a prospective father at the tender age of 15, missed the mark. You suggested that he and his parents seek legal advice, personally visit the girl and her parents, and try to work out the best possible solution for all concerned — and above all to finish high school.

You overlooked one very important aspect, Abby, these children had met on a skiing weekend eight months ago and had not seen each other since. They had talked on the telephone a few times, the boy wrote once, but the girl didn't answer his letter. No mention was made of a "pregnancy" until the girl was in her eighth month — then she called him up saying she was due to deliver in two weeks. Something is terribly amiss here.

I am all for accepting responsibility for one's actions which this 15-year-old boy was willing to do — but you should have advised him to make absolutely certain that he is the father of this soon-to-be-born baby. It is entirely possible that the girl was pregnant when she met him and deliberately took him to bed in order to name him as the father. That trick is old as the hills, Abby.

BEEN AROUND IN COLORADO

DEAR ABBY: I've advised young man to seek legal counsel. A lawyer is aware of all the tricks and will surely be able to protect the young man if he has been wrongfully accused.

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I were married, I chose to retain my own last name.

When our son was born, we decided to give him a hyphenated last name — using both our names. This seemed logical at the time.

Came time for our son to get a Social Security number, we learned that there was no hyphen in his last name. I called the Social Security office and was told, "Our computers cannot put hyphens in names."

This was very frustrating. Two names were separated by a space instead of a hyphen, the name is alphabetized incorrectly, if two names are joined together, everyone mispronounces the resulting name.

Abby, wouldn't you think that in this day of technological miracles someone could make possible hyphenated names to be recorded correctly on our official documents?

BARBARA IN OAKHURST, CALIF.

DEAR BARBARA: Someone has. The symbol for the hyphen was programmed into the Social Security computer in August 1988. Contact your local Social Security office and request your son's hyphen.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column concerning the wedding in which the bride wore $900 bridal gown and the minister was paid $200 officiating at the "fee" my uncle received for officiating at a wedding back in 1934.

The parents of the bride presented my uncle (a minister) with a pair of leather gloves.

My uncle said, "Thank you," and his wife said, "Leather gloves? That's a strange gift to give in June — but by October they will come in handy?"

Came October, when my uncle was putting on the gloves for the first time, he found each "finger" of the glove stuffed with a $10 bill, wrapped in tissue paper! In 1934, $100 was a small fortune.

My uncle told that story often, adding, "That's when I learned never to judge a book by its cover."

Disease unrelated to smoking drugs

DEAR DR. GOTT: What would be the effect on a person who unknowingly had celiac disease — an inability to digest fats — and who also consumed a fair amount of marijuana (a fat-soluble substance) during his late teens and early 20s?

DEAR READER: First of all, celiac disease has nothing to do with the digestion of fats. Rather, it is an hereditary disorder of fat absorption, caused by intolerance to gluten (wheat protein). Symptoms may be minimal: bloating and occasional diarrhea. Or patients may show anemia, weight loss, skin rashes and chronic diarrhea.

Patients usually respond to a gluten-free diet. Because gluten is ubiquitous used in commercially prepared foods — such as soups, sauces, ice creams and processed meats — patients usually need counseling from a dietician who is familiar with celiac disease.

The issue of marijuana and its storage in the body is unrelated to celiac disease. THC, the active ingredients in marijuana, is stored in fat cells, particularly those in the brain and reproductive tract. However, to my knowledge, no expert has defined how long significant quantities are stored, what constitutes a significant quantity and what effects stored THC has on a person's health. Marijuana is a dangerous substance because it is habit-forming and affects thinking, coordination, vision and emotions.

To answer your question specifically, a person with celiac disease would experience the same effects from marijuana as would any person without gluten sensitivity.

To give you additional information about the addictive characteristics of marijuana (and other drugs), I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help! My Mental/Substance Abuse." McLEAN, Va. (AP) — Yulia Sukhanova is capitalizing on her victory in the first Miss U.S.S.R. pageant by making a yogurt commercial for American television.

"She did the commercial because she wanted to dispel American attitudes that Russian women aren't beautiful," said Tricia Erickson, owner of the Erickson Agency, a McLean-based modeling agency handling Miss Sukhanova's career.

The ad for Dreyer's and Edy's Frozen Yogurt Figurines is being aired in Los Angeles, Baltimore, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Denver, Seattle, San Francisco, San Diego and Washington, D.C.

Miss Sukhanova, 17, was chosen Miss U.S.S.R. last year.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Count Maria Muldaur among those who were inspired by Bonnie Raitt's Grammy-winning year.

The 46-year-old performer, whose song "Midnight at the Oasis" sold 1 million copies, is in Nashville gathering songs and musicians — including Raitt — for an album to be recorded here and in Memphis.

"Starting the day after the Grammys, the labels started calling me," Muldaur said.

"Bonnie Raitt proved that R&B is alive and well — that's what I've been doing all along," she said. "I think there's a real backlash now against all this techno-trash that's out now."

Muldaur said she expects collaborative help on a record with the "soft, sensual Memphis sound" of Raitt, Aaron Neville, Dr. John, J.J. Cale and Linda Ronstadt. Muldaur had 12 LPs, including 1974's "Midnight at the Oasis."

Sylvia Porter 'Funeral rule' may be scrapped

Should we keep, modify or abandon what has come to be called the "funeral rule"? The Federal Trade Commission will decide this summer.

Established six years ago, the funeral rule is a set of regulations designed to protect consumers who, through sadness, guilt or suggestions from greedy funeral directors, may spend more than they can afford when a family member dies.

For the last two years, FTC staff experts have been reviewing recommendations as to whether the rule should be scrapped and, if not, what, if any, changes should be made in it, says Raouf Abdullah of the FTC staff.

Hearings have been held in several cities around the nation. The outcome: consumers and consumer groups generally favored keeping the funeral rule. Funeral directors' associations opposed it.

After the staff issues its reports, there will be a 60-day comment period, during which anyone may lobby the commission. Then in early autumn, the commission will make its decision. Abdullah says.

The backbone of the rule as it stands is the requirement that funeral directors provide a detailed price list of services and supplies the consumer can consult before making any choices. Consumers who testified said that they find the lists helpful and kept them from going beyond their means in making funeral arrangements.

Funeral directors say that the price lists force them to be insensitive at a delicate time. Prices are driven up by the requirement, they said, and the rule itself unfairly characterizes the funeral industry as unscrupulous.

After 15 years, 150,000 deaths, civil war drags on

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's civil war entered its 16th year today, and an Arab League envoy renewed efforts to settle the conflict, which has killed 150,000.

The latest stage of the war, a battle for power in Lebanon's Christian enclave, continued with artillery and machine gun skirmishing.

Lakhdar Ibrahim, an Algerian diplomat, arrived in Beirut late Thursday with proposals for implementing a peace pact to end the conflict.

The pact was worked out by Lebanese legislators under Arab League auspices in the Saudi Arabian resort of Taif in October.

It calls for equal distribution of political power between Moslems and Christians.

The plan has not been carried out, however, because it has been rejected by renegade Gen. Michel Aoun, whose troops have been fighting the rival Lebanese Forces militia for 73 days in a struggle for control of the Christian enclave.

Aoun accuses Lebanese Forces chief Samir Geagea of trying to force implementation of the Taif accord in the 310-square-mile enclave northeast of the capital.

Aoun has described the accord as "a pact of capitulation" because it does not include a fixed timetable for the withdrawal of Syria's 40,000 troops from Lebanon.

Syrian soldiers have been deployed in predominantly Moslem regions of Lebanon since Nov. 1976, in line with a peacekeeping mandate from the 22-nation Arab League.

Aoun's troops and Geagea's

Troubles predicted for Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA Director William H. Webster foresees a "deep and prolonged" crisis in the Soviet Union, with a deteriorating economy and ethnic unrest, accompanying President Mikhail Gorbachev's resignation.

U.S. specialists on the Soviet Union generally agreed with the assessment offered by Webster in a speech in Boston on Thursday, although some said better times may be ahead for the Soviet economy.

"I would say it's just one side of the story," said Stephen F. Cohen, professor of politics and director of Russian studies at Princeton University. "It's the downside of the story. I think there's an upside of the story, too."

"Generally, there is continued decline," said Vladimir Petrov, professor emeritus of international affairs at Georgetown University. "At least people complain more. But Russians are used to deprivation. How long their patience will last is another matter."

"Some say that maybe they are coming to a turning point with the economy in a year or two, but who can tell?" Petrov added.

Eric Green, Soviet analyst with the American Committee on U.S. Soviet Relations, said, "I think the events in the Soviet Union would tend to justify that they are deteriorating. The one bright spot is that talk is now turning toward really radical economic reforms."

Webster, addressing the World Affairs Council of Boston, said, "The crisis we now see in the U.S.S.R. will likely be deep and

Pentagon says N. Korea has nuclear capabilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States believes North Korea has the facilities to build nuclear weapons but is not moving rapidly on the work, says a senior Pentagon official.

U.S. officials have evidence the North Koreans have built a reactor as well as a reprocessing facility to separate plutonium, the material used to make nuclear weapons, Henry S. Rowen, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, said Thursday.

"I would not want to characterize it as a slow pace but a deliberate pace," Rowen told reporters at a news briefing in which he assessed North Korea's work on manufacturing nuclear weapons. "However, it's not galloping ahead at a great rate. ... It's a concern to us and the Japanese."

The Pentagon official said the United States raised the issue of North Korea's building nuclear weapons in talks in Washington last weekend between Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet militiamen skirmished today in east Beirut and the Christian hinterland of Kesrouan province.

The savage intra-Christian confrontation broke out Jan. 30, and by police count it has killed 875 people and wounded 2,369.

Aoun's rejection of the Taif accord has prevented Syrian-backed president Elias Hrawi, elected Nov. 24, from spreading his authority to the Christian enclave.

A government source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Taif accord "will not be put into effect before a settlement to the Aoun obstacle."

"Geagea has declared loyalty to President Hrawi and has called on the legitimate government to spread its authority to his areas of influence. Aoun is the obstacle now," the source added without elaboration.

Ibrahim held a two-hour meeting Thursday night with Hrawi's prime minister, Salim Hoss, in Moslem west Beirut.

Ibrahim told reporters later that he informed Hoss of a plan worked out by the foreign ministers of Algeria, Morocco and Saudi Arabia to carry out the Taif accord.

Heads of state of the three nations were asked by an Arab summit last May to form a special committee to work out a settlement to the Lebanese conflict, and their effort resulted in the Taif accord.

The national leaders then asked their foreign ministers to prepare the plan to carry out the accord, and they reached agreement in meetings last week in Rabat, the Moroccan capital.
