Police Roundup

Man charged with starting fires

A Manchester man has been accused of starting two March fires which damaged an occupied Spruce Street rooming house and an abandoned town-owned building on Pearl Street.

Donald Stephen Whorff, 25, of 709 Main St., was arrested Tuesday morning while in Manchester Superior Court, where he was answering reckless burning charges in connection with four dumpster fires in back of Broad Street businesses one night last month.

This case was continued to May 10, a court official said today.

Whorff also now faces several first-degree charges related to a March 18 fire at 140 Spruce St. The blaze forced eight occupants to seek temporary shelter, police said, and one resident suffered from smoke inhalation.

Whorff is charged with third-degree arson, burglary, criminal mischief and reckless endangerment in regards to that fire, police said.

Also, he is charged with third-degree arson and first-degree criminal mischief in connection with a March 16 fire in an abandoned building at 17-19 Pearl St., police said. In that fire, police said two blazes were started, one on the first floor and one in the cellar.

Whorff is scheduled to address the new charges on Monday in court, police said.

Officer hurt in fight

A Manchester police officer suffered a sprained ankle and knee cuts Tuesday when he struggled with a local teen-ager who tried to avoid being arrested after fighting with another man, police said.

Police caught Vincent D. Sica, 18, of 59 Birch St. as he tried to climb over a fence along Spruce Street at about 2:30 a.m., police said. The teen-ager had been chased by police for several hundred feet, police said.

Sica was charged with interfering with a police officer and assault on a police officer. In addition, he was charged with breach of peace and third-degree assault for fighting with Richard W. Mackiewicz, 22, of 103 Eldridge St., police said.

Mackiewicz also was arrested on breach of peace and second-degree assault charges, police said. Both men were held on $1,000 bonds and scheduled to appear in Manchester Superior Court, police said.

Thoughts

Today Christians around the world remember St. Mark, the Evangelist. Mark was probably the same "John Mark" mentioned in the book of Acts. His mother, Mary, owned the house in Jerusalem where the early Christians gathered. John Mark accompanied St. Paul and Barnabas on the first great missionary journey around the Mediterranean. According to one legend, Mark became the first bishop of Alexandria in Egypt and was martyred on the date in A.D. 64. In the year 829, his remains were taken to Venice to the famous cathedral which was named for him.

In honoring St. Mark we need to recall his Gospel—the first and shortest account of the meaning of the life and death of Jesus Christ. By the hand of God, Mark was led to record those facts about Jesus' life and ministry that were essential to the faithful proclamation of what had taken place in the life and passion of Jesus of Nazareth. His Gospel has endured for hundreds of years as a source of inspiration and new faith for believers. May what we live and write also be a source of God's actions in the world (and) that the witness of the apostles may be seen among us.

Parents ask school board to keep program

By Jacqueline Bennett
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — About 40 adamant parents told the superintendent of schools Tuesday night not to cut the Challenge and Enrichment Program at the school.

"In many respects a gifted and talented program is the hallmark of an enlightened town — it's hard to get back if we cut it. I hope the board will look very favorably to maintain," said Democrat Lawrence Mickel, former chairman of the Board of Education, who retired from that position in November after not seeking re-election.

The meeting was punctuated by an appeal from parent Robert Solomon to the group to support efforts under way in Meriden to file a class action lawsuit against Connecticut because it mandates programs for special education children at the lower end of the spectrum but not the top.

The meeting was called by Superintendent Michael Malinowski, "not to determine if we should have the program" rather to "make sure it is meeting needs," Malinowski said.

Asked point blank if the program was "on the (budget) block," Malinowski replied: "All (programs) fairly are up for scrutiny." However he qualified his statement, "I feel every district should have a program for the academically talented," Malinowski said.

Later in an interview Flaherty agreed "We should have a CEP program in our town," he said.

Parents repeatedly said their concerns that the program is in jeopardy were stirred by remarks from two Republican board members.

Constance Lathrop has called the program "elitist." Both she and Pamela Sewell, GOP board members, have targeted it for cuts, saying it serves only a small and select group.

That contention was challenged by statistics indicating that the 150 pupils in the elementary and middle school "identified" for CEP, constitute 25 percent of the student population. "That is far from 'elitist'" said one parent.

Many said the program impacts affects far more than 25 percent because students not in CEP also participate in special projects and often CEP lessons are presented to entire regular classes.

Denise Ryan said CEP motivates her two sons to do well academically, a prerequisite, so they can participate. "It's an incentive for not slacking off," Ryan said.

Others said it is no more exclusive than varsity sport teams that serve about 40 percent of the students and involve a selection process.

A number of parents said CEP is equally as important as special education programs that also are expensive and serve a select group.

"These are the future leaders of this country — to even think of cutting CEP I can't believe," said Harold Litwina.

The board votes on cuts to the $10.1 million budget Thursday 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

Astronaut tells of love of God

By Dianna M. Talbot
Manchester Herald

Col. James B. Irwin, an Apollo 15 astronaut and one of the first men to land on the moon, came back to Earth after his July 1971 space flight a different man spiritually.

"It was a turning point in my life," said the 60-year-old astronaut-turned-Christian activist and author, who half-jokingly referred to his life experiences as "pre moon" and "post moon" during a Tuesday lecture at The Cornerstone Christian School, 236 Main St., before about 30 people.

On a five-day tour of the Hartford area, the first man ever to drive a "moon buggy" took a moment to reflect on a space program event which had taken place a few hours earlier in Cape Canaveral, Fla.

At 8:34 a.m. the Space Shuttle Discovery blasted into a record-high shuttle orbit carrying the $1.5 billion Habable Space Telescope. The scope will enable man to peer deeper into the universe, Irwin said.

Dressed in a sky-blue, one-piece flying suit with arm-patches, emblem representing astronaut wings and the Apollo mission, the Colorado Springs, Colo., resident spent several hours at the K-12 Christian School.

Throughout the visit, he was treated to student chorus recitals, and he autographed copies of his books and a famous picture of himself standing on the moon and saluting the American flag.

His visit was arranged with help from school principal Marcia Kirby and West Hartford businessman Laird Mortimer, a friend of the former astronaut.

During a 30-minute lecture at the school, the worldly celebrity talked about how his visit to the moon changed his life.

Physically, the three-day excursion to outer space caused him to develop a chronic heart condition, which caused him to cancel an appearance last year in Manchester, he said.

A loud, long applause followed Mickel's remarks, during the meeting.

Current board chairman Democrat Patrick Flaherty asked that he and board member Democrat Kathleen Ryan be allowed to simply listen and not comment. "We really want to hear what the parents have to say about the substance of the program. My vote will be public. Thursday night," said Flaherty.

Former board members spoke up loud and clear, including Republican Robert Christie. "Our little Coventry is a microcosm of our country's problem. ... We are competing against other countries taking their best and brightest and nurturing them," he said.

The meeting was punctuated by an appeal from parent Robert Solomon to the group to support efforts under way in Meriden to file a class action lawsuit against Connecticut because it mandates programs for special education children at the lower end of the spectrum but not the top.

The meeting was called by Superintendent Michael Malinowski, "not to determine if we should have the program" rather to "make sure it is meeting needs," Malinowski said.

Asked point blank if the program was "on the (budget) block," Malinowski replied: "All (programs) fairly are up for scrutiny." However he qualified his statement, "I feel every district should have a program for the academically talented," Malinowski said.

Later in an interview Flaherty agreed "We should have a CEP program in our town," he said.

Parents repeatedly said their concerns that the program is in jeopardy were stirred by remarks from two Republican board members.

Constance Lathrop has called the program "elitist." Both she and Pamela Sewell, GOP board members, have targeted it for cuts, saying it serves only a small and select group.

That contention was challenged by statistics indicating that the 150 pupils in the elementary and middle school "identified" for CEP, constitute 25 percent of the student population. "That is far from 'elitist'" said one parent.

Many said the program impacts affects far more than 25 percent because students not in CEP also participate in special projects and often CEP lessons are presented to entire regular classes.

Denise Ryan said CEP motivates her two sons to do well academically, a prerequisite, so they can participate. "It's an incentive for not slacking off," Ryan said.

Others said it is no more exclusive than varsity sport teams that serve about 40 percent of the students and involve a selection process.

A number of parents said CEP is equally as important as special education programs that also are expensive and serve a select group.

"These are the future leaders of this country — to even think of cutting CEP I can't believe," said Harold Litwina.

Budget proposals unveiled

By Judd Everhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — House Democratic leaders unveiled a series of new revenue and spending-cut proposals Tuesday that may be used to balance the proposed $7.19 billion budget for 1990-91.

House Speaker Richard J. Balducci, D-Newington, said House Democrats would hold another closed-door caucus Thursday in which a head count would be taken on the proposals. If the votes are there to pass a budget, he said, the House could take up the budget bill later in the week, Friday or possibly Saturday.

Meanwhile, with two weeks left to go in the 1990 legislative session, Senate Democratic leaders displayed some anxiety over the House Democrats' inability to come to agreement on a budget-balancing plan and said they may take action on their own, without waiting for the House.

Senate President Pro Tem John B. Larson, D-East Hartford, said that if the House doesn't vote on a budget by Saturday, the Senate would pass its own budget. Although the budget is pending in the House, the Senate could act on its own by drafting an amendment containing the budget to be attached to another bill, or by using emergency bill procedures permitted under legislative rules.

"We've got to give them 'til Saturday," Larson said. "To the extent that we can help with the process, we will."

He said the Senate would prefer waiting for House action before the House takes action "the least desirable alternative."

A 1990-91 budget was approved by the Appropriations Committee on March 31. Since then, the budget has steadily slipped out of balance, to the tune of $220 million.

The Democrats did get some good news Tuesday when they learned that revenues from the capital gains, interest and dividends tax should come in about $57 million better than expected.

Munns' bill helps towns

Municipalities, transit districts and other organizations would be rewarded for trying to increase the use of mass transit under proposed legislation, State Rep. Paul Munns, D-Manchester, has announced.

"Very simply, this bill rewards towns and organizations which make a committed effort to increasing the use of mass transit by saving traffic management plans," Munns said.

The legislation also requires businesses, towns and community and commuter groups to work together to help solve traffic problems, he said.

Under the legislation, which has passed the state House of Representatives and will be considered by the Senate, the state study award grants of up to 70 percent of the cost of the development and administration of a traffic management plan, Munns said.

French students end Bolton visit

BOLTON — Fifteen students from France recently ended a 17-day stay with the families of Bolton High School students. Besides attending classes at the high school, the students visited Sturbridge Village, Boston, and New York City.

They are from Lycee Jean Prevost in Montivillers, a town of 15,000, and stayed either in Bolton or Willington. Willington students also attend Bolton High School.

Before leaving the students were greeted by the superintendents of Bolton and Willington schools and were made honorary citizens of Bolton by Republican First Selectman Robert Moran.

Ames mum on report it has hired specialist to file for bankruptcy

By Denise Lavioie
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Ames Department Stores Inc. is remaining tight-lipped about its financial woes amid reports that the beleaguered company has hired a bankruptcy specialist to prepare a Chapter 11 filing to protect it from its creditors.

William Roberts, an Ames spokesman, said the Rocky Hill-based retailer would not comment on a report Tuesday in The Hartford Courant that said Ames has hired Michael Cook, a bankruptcy specialist at a prominent New York law firm, to begin preparing the paperwork for a Chapter 11 filing.

The filing would allow Ames to continue to operate while trying to work out a plan to repay its debts.

Ames stock was the most actively traded issue on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday, as investors learned that the company had hired a bankruptcy specialist.

Ames stock closed at $1.37 1/2 a share, down 62 1/2 cents, on a volume of 3.8 million shares. The company's stock normally trades about 300,000 shares a day, but has been trading at daily volumes of up to 7 million shares in recent weeks.

Analysts said bringing in Cook would be an indication of how deep the retailer's fortunes have sunk since it acquired the Zayre discount stores in late 1988, hoping to solve the retailer's problems and convert them into a format similar to the successful one used for Ames.

Instead, Ames has been suffering from major losses and cash flow shortages since then, and has been trying to negotiate new financing with its bankers since announcing two weeks ago it would post a loss of about $28 million for the fiscal year that ended Jan. 27.

The tablet, which has been tested in over 100 clinics around the world and has scientists totally assured on how it makes people lose weight without changing their eating habits, without exercise and without keeping track of calories.

A prestigious New York physician has treated Beldoxinol on 250 of his patients. After taking Beldoxinol, they were encouraged to eat normally. Every patient lost weight, even those who ate junk food like cake, candy and fast food. One person losing over 100 lbs. in only 2 months, another 15 lbs. in one week.

The best is yet to come — tests have shown that people who are just 10 lbs. overweight have lost weight at the same rate as people who are 100 lbs. overweight. Unbelievable but true — that's why this tablet is considered by scientists to be the best formula ever invented for losing weight. Researchers are amazed at how people who take Beldoxinol can go on eating unlimited portions of their favorite foods and still lose weight.

Lawyer seeks to move Aparo trial

By Denise Lavioie
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — An attorney for a Glastonbury teen-ager accused of plotting her mother's death is trying to have the trial moved to another location because of intense publicity in the case.

Attorney Hubert Santos is expected to argue in Hartford Superior Court today that Karin Aparo cannot receive a fair and impartial trial in Hartford or the state because of the massive publicity that has been generated.

Santos said he will present voluminous newspaper articles written since the August 1987 slaying as evidence.

In court Tuesday, Santos made a series of motions aimed at getting the case against Aparo dismissed, but Judge Thomas H. Corrigan did not immediately rule on them.

Aparo, now a 19-year-old college student, was a junior at Glastonbury High School when her mother's bruised corpse was found under a bridge in Bernardston, Mass.

Aparo's former boyfriend, Dennis Coleman, is now serving a 34-year sentence at Somers State Prison for his role in the murder of 47-year-old Joyce Aparo.

Coleman testified in earlier court hearings that he killed Joyce Aparo in her Glastonbury home Aug. 5, 1987, because Karin Aparo begged and sexually manipulated him into committing a crime he said he now regrets.

Santos said he expects it will take at least another day to argue additional motions before jury selection can begin.

Aparo could face up to 80 years in prison if convicted on charges of accessory to murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

During Tuesday's proceedings, Aparo sat at the defense table, appearing almost shy in a blue and white floral dress as she consulted with her attorneys and occasionally played with her hair.

State work force abuses outlined by consultants

HARTFORD (AP) — At a time when Connecticut faces a $200 million deficit, many state employees are being overpaid and many injured workers are being paid more to stay home than to return to work, according to a new consultants' report.

The report, released Tuesday, also found that the state's health care system is leading employees to go to the hospital more often and stay longer.

The consultants, from the national firm of Deloitte & Touche, were hired by the Thomas Commission, a commission created by the General Assembly to study ways to save taxpayers' money.

The state's system for compensating workers injured on the job is one of the most expensive and generous in the nation. While most private-industry employees receive two-thirds of their pay when injured, many state workers get 100 percent of their base pay tax-free. That means state workers can earn as much as 130 percent of their regular pay while recovering.

"The overall workers' compensation system allows one of the highest maximum weekly payments in the country, more than $600 a week."

The state does not limit medical payments to injured workers.

State employees and retirees go to the hospital more frequently than the average participant in Blue Cross plans. The latest statistics showed that 88 out of 1,000 state employees went to the hospital in a three-month period, compared to an average of 78 of 1,000 in the Blue Cross plans.

State workers stayed an average of 7.6 days while other participants stayed an average of 6.7 days.

"We generally agree," Negri said. Among the consultants' findings were that:

Longest against forum idea

By Alex Grell
Manchester Herald

Eighth District Director Samuel Longest, a candidate for the district presidency, has dismissed the idea of a forum of candidates for mayor district offices.

The forum has been proposed by District President Thomas E. Landers, who is seeking re-election. "I'm not running for president of the United States," Longest said. "I have served as a district director continuously since 1976."

Landers and Longest are the only announced candidates for the one-year term as district president. Three other people have declared their candidacy for directorships and observers of the district political scene expect others to announce their candidacies for directorships.

Candidates do not have to declare in advance and nominations can be made from the floor when the district elects officers at its annual meeting May 23. More than 7,000 are eligible to vote in the district. Last year, 267 people voted in the district's presidential election and in 1988, 293 voted.

Investigation causes Morrison to freeze funds

HARTFORD (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Bruce A. Morrison has effectively frozen the money he still holds in a second campaign committee that is the subject of an investigation by the state Elections Enforcement Commission, according to the commission director.

Commission Executive Director Jeffrey B. Garfield said Tuesday that Morrison's lawyer, Michael O. Sheehan, had "agreed at my suggestion to, in effect, not do anything with the money remaining in the committee until the investigation can go forward."

Sheehan said later that "we will be sitting and talking with the (Elections Commission) before any expenditures are made."

"From the beginning of this case, we asked for the (commission's) advice and we followed that advice," he said. "There has never been any effort to do anything other than what was available under the election laws."

The investigation was prompted by a complaint filed with the commission by Morrison's opponent for the Democratic nomination, state Rep. William J. Cibes of New London, who claims that the $220,000 raised by the committee may have been improperly spent.

The committee was created when Morrison was still planning to wage elections for delegates to this summer's nominating convention when he was challenging Gov. William A. O'Neill for the nomination. O'Neill has since dropped plans for reelection and there will be no delegate elections as previously scheduled on May 15.

Garfield said the Morrison campaign is fully cooperating with the investigation, which Garfield said could take as long as two months.

Morrison's second committee, the Choice for a Change Committee, is limited to expenditures solely for delegate elections. Cibes questioned the use of funds from that committee to pay for polling and retaining a media consultant for campaign commercials.

It raised $220,277 primarily from three sources: $100,000 from the Bic Corp. of Milford; $92,500 from Richard Tribick of Greenwich, head of Cellular Info Systems of New York; and $25,000 from Neil Melton, head of Town Fair Tire Centers of Stratford.

"There are no limits on the size of contributions for delegate committees and no ban on corporate contributions, as there are for regular candidate committees. Candidate committees are also limited to contributions from individuals of no more than $2,500."

Cibes also has questioned an $18,131 transfer from the Choice Committee to Morrison's candidate committee, the Morrison for Governor Committee.

Cibes has called on Morrison to return the Choice Committee money to contributors, a suggestion not taken seriously by the Morrison campaign.

State college affiliated with Japanese university

WATERBURY (AP) — Post College, founded 100 years ago as a two-year business and secretarial school, will now be known as Salem Teikyo University in West Virginia and Teikyo Post University.

Post, which in recent years established the only accredited four-year degree programs in business and liberal arts in Waterbury, has become the fourth U.S. school to affiliate with Japan's Teikyo University.

The affiliation will allow the school to grow, expand its programs and attract more American and international students, said Post President Dr. N. Patricia Yarbrough.

"This is and will continue to be an American university," Yarbrough said Monday in announcing the association. "This is not going to become a Japanese school."

Teikyo University enrolls 30,000 students at 10 locations in Japan and on campuses in England and Holland, according to Mamoru Melnick, a spokeswoman at Teikyo Westminster University in LeMars, Iowa, one of the other American schools with similar arrangements with Teikyo.

She said the Japanese university gets far more applications than it has openings, and so has been searching outside of Japan for places to send students.

School officials refused to comment on the financial agreement between the two schools but said Teikyo Post will be governed by a seven-member board of directors, four of whom will be from Teikyo.

Similar arrangements between the Japanese university and two other U.S. colleges — Salem Teikyo University in West Virginia and Teikyo Westminster in Iowa — infused the campuses with millions of dollars to renovate facilities, pay debt and establish endowments.

Yarbrough will remain as Teikyo Post's president.

Takashi Yamanaoka, who represents Teikyo University, said the university seeks to "create an international higher education institution which will recognize the changing structure of our world economy."

University officials anticipate that in five years the school could double its current enrollment, which totals just under 2,000. About 100 Japanese students are expected to begin classes at Teikyo Post University next year, and their numbers are expected to increase as the affiliation develops.

Although Yarbrough said that the agreement doesn't include Japanese and American student quotas, Teikyo's pact with two other U.S. colleges guarantees that non-American student enrollment won't exceed 50 percent of total enrollment.

Percy Ashcraft, assistant to the president and director of university relations at Salem Teikyo University, said Salem received $12 million from Teikyo. About $5 million was used to retire school debt, and the rest went to faculty and staff salary increases, maintenance, scholarships, and to establish an endowment.

$800,000 Matisse ignites feud

By Jill Arabas
The Associated Press

BRIDGEPORT — A Connecticut woman's estate is battling the Museum of Modern Art for control of an $800,000 painting by French modernist Henri Matisse, a fight that has driven a wedge between the New York museum and one of its dearest benefactors.

The painting, "Vue de Collioure a l'Eglise," has belonged to the family of Edward Steichen since the photographer received it from Matisse in 1938. Two years ago, it was bequeathed to Steichen's granddaughter, who lives in Pennington, N.J.

But the museum has refused to give the painting, a view of a town in southern France, to the girl's parents, and the estate of Steichen's daughter has gone to court to retrieve it.

get the work, said Bridgeport attorney L. Douglas Shrader, who filed the lawsuit in U.S. District Court in Bridgeport two weeks ago.

The suit is a sad development in the family's long relationship with the New York museum. Steichen ran its photography department for 15 years, and his daughter, Charlotte Kate Rodina Steichen, had felt so close to the museum that she willed it to the painter in 1973.

"She had given the museum works by her father, works of Rodin, and she's a woman of very modest means. She's been very generous to that museum because of the Steichen family connection," Shrader said. "Why they're taking this tack with a family that's been so good to them over the years is a mystery."

Museum officials are also sorry the relationship has soured, but say the work is theirs.

Lithuania seeks new trade relations

By Carey Goldberg
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Lithuania is urgently seeking direct trade links with Soviet regions and factories as a way around the Kremlin's suffocating economic blockade, a spokesman for the Baltic state's parliament said today.

reported little success.

Lithuanian officials have estimated that the republic can only hold out about two to three weeks without fuel from the Soviet Union, its sole supplier.

Paunus said democrats who have come to power in Moscow and Leningrad, as well as other regions, might be willing to deal with Lithuania, but their supplies might not be able to reach the republic along Kremlin-controlled train and truck routes.

On Tuesday, Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis denounced the United States for failing to impose economic sanctions in retaliation for the embargo.

"Can the freedom of one group of people be sold for the freedom of another? What then is the idea of freedom itself?" the Lithuanian leader said in a statement released by his press office in Vilnius, the republic's capital.

President Bush had been expected to announce some punitive measures Tuesday, but said it was not the right time.

TODAY'S HER DAY — Violeta Barrios de Chamorro throws back her head and laughs while receiving guests at home Tuesday. She was scheduled to be inaugurated as president of Nicaragua this afternoon.

Political infighting flares up on eve of Chamorro swearing-in MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — On the eve of her inauguration, President-elect Violeta Barrios de Chamorro infuriated leaders of her political coalition with her apparent decision to retain the Sandinistas' longtime military chief.

Gen. Humberto Ortega, a leader of the Sandinista revolution, is to stay on for a time to promote reconciliation between the pro-U.S. administration and the leftists who ruled Nicaragua for a decade, an administration source said.

Nicaragua is emerging from nine years of civil war that claimed 30,000 lives and left the economy in tatters, and Chamorro, 60, has promised its 3.5 million people peace.

But by keeping outgoing President Daniel Ortega's brother at the helm of the military, Chamorro could be making it more difficult to persuade the U.S.-supported Contra rebels to disarm.

The upper-class housewife and newspaper publisher who takes office in this war-ravaged nation today also runs the risk of alienating the leaders of the ideologically diverse coalition she led to victory in Feb. 25 elections.

Bomb builder's suicide seen as an indication of his remorse

By Beth Harris
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — A man who committed suicide shortly after a bomb he built maimed a 5-year-old girl at a K mart a year ago may have taken his life because "a good little girl was the victim," his stepfather says.

David L. Swinford, 19, shot himself in the head in a car on a rural road on April 19, 1989, two days after the bombing and hours after having discussed the blast with his mother and sister, authorities said Tuesday.

Swinford, of rural Noblesville, was identified as a possible suspect within days of the bombing, but investigators only recently developed conclusive evidence he built the device, said Charles Petersen, agent in charge of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Indianapolis.

During the discussion, Whitesell said, his wife, Grace, wondered aloud who would commit such a crime involving a child.

"David replied, 'What business did a little girl have to do in the trash bag department?'" Whitesell recalled. "If he really did do this, I think it was a real blow to him to find out that a good little girl was the victim."

Erin Ewer, now 6, now wears an artificial limb to replace the left hand she lost in the blast. She was scheduled this month for a cornea transplant in her left eye, also damaged in the explosion.

Her mother, Maureen Bower, expressed sympathy over Swinford's death. "I'm sorry the boy felt he had to take his life over it. Somehow I think that as well as Erin has done, we could have found forgiveness for him," Mrs. Bower told WTHR-TV Tuesday night.

It's official: Milken enters his guilty plea

NEW YORK (AP) — Three years, five months and 10 days after Ivan Bosky promised to hand over other Wall Street cheats, investigators corralled the biggest name he dangled before them: Michael Milken.

The emotional guilty plea in federal court Tuesday by the former head of Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.'s junk bond department was the Holy Grail in the government's crusade to weed out financial crime.

Milken, 43, admitted to six counts of violating securities and tax laws and agreed to pay $600 million in penalties. He faces up to 28 years in prison as sentencing Oct. 1.

But with the exception of one case widely considered intractable — the fraud conviction and four-year prison term for Florida investor Paul Blazerian — the government has been criticized for bringing weak prosecutions on technical violations.

Now the government has succeeded in getting its main target, a man who built a $200 billion market for high-risk paper and used to feed a takeover boom. His plea including a record fine against an individual.

Milken supporters had maintained he was persecuted because of the enormous power he wielded over the nation's financial markets from his X-shaped trading desk at Drexel's Beverly Hills, Calif., office.

Australian opal is reputed to be the largest ever

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Miners in the small Outback town of Coorber Pedy claimed today to have found the world's biggest opal, an uncut rock that weighs 11.6 pounds and is worth an estimated $3 million.

Named "Jupiter 5," the stone is a milky-white opal that the miners said was unearthed last July. They did not explain why its discovery was not announced earlier. The miners said the stone is 9.2 inches long and 4.8 inches wide, with a total of 26,350 carats.

A mine spokesman said the gem was found 56 feet underground in Coorber Pedy, a town in New South Wales state known for its underground homes and motels.

The miners also showed pictures today of a polished opal dubbed "Unnamed Lady" that they said was about half the size of Jupiter 5 and worth about $1 million.

Another look pays off for 8th District

The directors of the Eighth Utilities District have come up with a far more realistic budget proposal than the one they tentatively offered to the district residents for consideration at a public hearing April 16.

This one doesn't require any increase in the current rate of seven mills. In times of economic strain "no increase in taxes" can become a mere catchword. Curtailing services merely to avoid a tax increase is a hollow goal.

But that was not the case in the district. The latest budget proposal does provide for the expanding responsibilities of the district and it does provide for improvements in equipment, even though it does not include all the improvements some of those who serve the district would like to have.

However, the district is in the happy position of having had a rather dramatic increase in its Grant List. The increase is almost 12 percent in raw terms, but that is reduced somewhat by the fact that most of the increase is in territory where the district can levy only half its mill rate.

Much of the cut from a tentatively proposed tax rate of 7 3/4 mills comes from a recalculation of revenues. The calculation had been more complicated this year than normally, and as a result of some errors had produced confusion and some doubts about its accuracy.

But the district political leaders were willing to examine their own work on revenue estimates when challenged and they came up with a more accurate calculation to the benefit of district taxpayers.

"If Mattingly is worth $19.3 million, I ought to get AT LEAST three or four million!"

LSM reunion

To the Editor: I have just received details of the annual National LSM Association reunion to be held this summer in Norfolk, Va. Last year the association organized and now an attempt is being made to locate our shipmates who served on LSMs. These amphibious ships (some 500 were commissioned by the U.S. Navy during WWII and Korea with 60 personnel each) were similar to the LST and were used in island invasions in the Pacific and Korea.

Anyone who served aboard an LSM during WWII or Korea who is interested in the reunion June 6-10, 1990 in Norfolk, Va., should contact me at the address below or at 649-8652.

Benefit success

To the Editor: As chairman of this year's American Cancer Society Daffodil Days, I would like to thank the people of the Greater Manchester/Vernon communities for their generosity and support. More than 88,000 daffodils were sold during the event, raising $28,000 for the American Cancer Society's research, education and patient service programs. The outstanding support received proved that the people in our area are truly committed to the fight against cancer.

A special thanks should go to the many Daffodil Days volunteers who worked on advance sales, promotion and coordination of this event. And, as always, the cooperation

Rowland tries to break out

By Bob Conrad

John Rowland won "a major battle" within his staff over playing it safe, as he says other candidates for governor are doing in their campaigns, or laying it on the line as to what the state can expect if he wins the job in November. Rowland, the Republican congressman from Waterbury and probable GOP nominee for governor, says he intends to "break out of the pack" — meaning away from Democrat Bruce Morrison and independent Lowell Weicker — with this tactic. He says they've been coping out on addressing issues.

So Rowland, whose campaign hasn't been creating a whole lot of excitement up to now, insisted on talking tough about the choices he sees ahead for the state despite fears by staff advisors that it would be politically risky to do so. That was behind proposals Rowland offered last Friday and continued discussing this week in State Capitol press conferences. He believes that Connecticut people are upset about a healthy state's nose-dive into deficits, are convinced that state spending is out of control, and will support a candidate who says it's got to stop.

The three-year plan Rowland unveiled this week propels him into touchy political areas, especially when he suggests "dramatic layoffs" as a likely option if the state cannot "give back" some benefits for its workers or take other serious cost-cutting steps.

Rowland believes the serious public will relate to that, just as it will continue to agree with him that an income tax is no answer.

Mosbacher prefers the finer things

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — Most Americans would be honored simply to carry the title of a Cabinet secretary. But Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher has a taste for finer things.

An oil barrel by trade, Mosbacher was accustomed to the life of a corporate fat cat before he signed on as a public servant. Evidently some habits are hard to break.

For instance, Mosbacher had a bright red canopy installed outside his private entrance to the Commerce Department building in Washington. That cost $6,300 — perhaps the amount you paid in federal income tax last year. Now you know where your money went.

On an official trip to Canada last year, Mosbacher wanted the red carpet treatment. A high-level Commerce Department source said Mosbacher had his staff ask the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to meet his plane and bring along a band. The Canadians declined the honor.

Mosbacher is arguably the most glibly Cabinet secretary in recent history. His blue eyes and mane of gray hair make a striking impression. He is said to be charming and gracious. He made his fortune — estimated at more than $200 million — as an oil and gas prospector.

Mosbacher and his wife, Georgette, a cosmetics executive, had heavy advance billing as the couple that would take Washington by storm. That didn't pan out. They give lavish parties, but Mrs. Mosbacher now spends much of her time taking care of business in New York.

Cabinet secretaries don't apologize for winning a Cabinet post because he is a generous Republican party supporter who can bring big bucks out of his friends. In fact, after he became Commerce secretary, he complained that not enough prime political appointments were going to those who had paid their way by contributing heavily to Republican campaigns.

In Capitol Hill, Mosbacher has received a mixed reception. He is accessible and likable. He won points last year when he persuaded Bush to keep certain technological secrets from going to the Japanese in the joint manufacture of the PSX warplane.

But Mosbacher has not lived up to that early billing as a defender of American business interests. Some congressional sources told our associate Scott Steek that they had expected Mosbacher to be at the forefront of solving America's competitiveness problems. Instead, they said, he has taken back when it comes to it. "I'd never resign," he said in interviews in "Cross Talk," published by Sullivan & LeShane Public Relations, Inc., Hartford.

Polhill says Steen escaped in '87 but was recaptured

BOSTON (AP) — American hostage Alann Steen escaped from his kidnappers in Beirut in 1987 but was quickly recaptured and beaten, freed hostage Robert Polhill reportedly told Steen's wife.

Polhill talked to Virginia Rose Steen at her home in Jackson, Mich., by telephone Monday from Wiesbaden, West Germany. Steen's brother, Craig Steen of Orlando, Fla., said in today's Boston Herald.

Polhill was freed by his pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem kidnappers Monday after 39 months in captivity. He was taken to the U.S. Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden.

Polhill also told Mrs. Steen that her husband became very ill about three months after they were kidnapped.

Shiite leader accuses America of ill will

BAALBEK, Lebanon (AP) — A Shiite Moslem leader today accused the United States of responding to the release of an American hostage with ill will and urged pro-Iranian Shiite Moslem militants to continue holding their captives.

Hassan Mousawi, who played a key role in Robert Polhill's release Sunday, complained that a U.S. House of Representatives resolution Tuesday endorsing a united Jerusalem as Israel's capital complicated efforts to release another American hostage.

"The Moslems in Lebanon offered a rose only to get a stone thrown on them," Mousawi told the Associated Press. He said the United States intentions were demonstrated by the congressional resolution, which is non-binding. Mousawi said the hostage-holders have been repeatedly urged to prove goodwill by freeing a captive.

"So they did and released Polhill," he said. "But upon that release we heard the news of the House of Representatives resolution on Jerusalem. If every release will be matched by such a monumental ill-intentioned American response, why then should any hostage be freed?" Meanwhile, the leader of an Israeli-backed militia in southern Lebanon canceled plans for a holiday prisoner release because of publicity linking such a move to Western hostages, sources said today.

In Beirut, an independent newspaper said Shiite Moslem fundamentalist groups in Lebanon will not release any more U.S. hostages until Arab prisoners in Israel have been freed.

Sunday's release of Polhill, 55, of New York, after 39 months in captivity raised hopes that another Western hostage could be freed.

But the An-Nahar newspaper said Tuesday that the Shiite Moslem militants holding 17 Westerners, including seven Americans, also expect the release of 15 radicals from a Kuwaiti prison before they free more captives.

And Israeli radio said Shiites in southern Lebanon were "embittered" by a refusal by the South Lebanon Army to release some of the 300 mostly Shiite Moslems it holds in the al-Khiam jail just north of the Israel border.

Antoine Lahad, a retired Lebanese army general who heads the 2,500-member South Lebanon

Army, refused to act on amnesty requests from the prisoners' families. He had allowed holiday releases for the past two years.

"There will not be a prisoner release for the Id al-Fitr," one source said, referring to the Moslem holiday marking the end of the month-long Ramadan feast. It is expected to start Thursday.

The South Lebanon Army said on Tuesday that four Lebanese had been freed after being investigated on suspicion of belonging to a terror group. Sources close to the army said the release took place last week and was unrelated to the holiday or the release of Polhill.

South Lebanon Army sources had said earlier that they expected Lahad to free 10 or 11 prisoners for the holiday, and a report in London suggested more than 30 would be allowed to go home.

Iran had demanded goodwill gestures such as the release of Arab prisoners held by Israel and its militia ally as a way to encourage further hostage releases. Israel holds about 9,700 Palestinians in connection with the 28-month-old uprising against Israeli occupation.

Fine performances lead MHS track to victory

WINDHAM — Whenever the Manchester High and Windham High boys' track teams collide, it is usually a memorable meet.

The Indians won no exception Tuesday afternoon when they defeated Manchester by a score of 100-200 meters dashes for Manchester and anchored the winning 4x100 relay.

Manchester will compete in the New Britain Invitational Friday and Saturday at Willow Brook Park in New Britain.

Senior Harold Barber took the 100- and 200-meter dashes for Manchester and anchored the winning 4x100 relay.

Senior Alexia Cruz led the way for Manchester with four first-place finishes in the 100- and 300-meter hurdles, long jump and javelin.

"We had another great meet against our rival Windham," Manchester coach George Sutor said. "In the last out of six years the meets have been very close, and this year was no exception."

Cook wants part of waiters' tips

DEAR ABBY: I am a cook in a small but very popular restaurant. At the end of our shifts, the waitresses count their tip money, and believe me, it's a healthy "take." Add this to their hourly wage, and they do very well.

I make an hourly wage that is slightly over the so-called poverty level, yet nobody seems to remember where all the excellent food came from. Good service is important, but if a reduction in help is necessary, the waitresses would be the first to go.

Abby, is there some way to enlighten the public to share their tip money with the cooks?

LIKES TO ROLL IN THE DOUGH

DEAR LIKES: I sent your letter to the owners of three of the most popular restaurants in the Los Angeles area. Their responses:

DEAR ABBY: Every restaurant—large, small, plain or fancy—pays its waiters, waitresses, bartenders, etc. the minimum wage required by law, simply because it is understood that this amount will be supplemented by tips.

I feel that because the dining public is aware that the price of the meal includes the cost of the labor to prepare it, there is no need to leave a gratuity for the kitchen.

Although I am sure the restaurant business was not upmost in the mind of Harry Truman when he said it, it fits this situation best: "If you can't stand the heat—get out of the kitchen!"

BRUCE VANDERHOFF, RESTAURANT, LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: As a general rule, cooks are paid far more than waiters and waitresses whose wages are supplemented by tips. Chefs who are talented and reliable are always in demand and are well-paid by the management. Sometimes, when the chef makes an extraordinary effort for a private party, the host will present him with a gratuity appreciation.

I suggest that your correspondent who signs himself "Likes to Roll in the Dough" take steps to perfect his craft so that he can "take in the chips."

JIMMY MURPHY, JIMMY'S IN BEVERLY HILLS

DEAR ABBY: With regard to the cook who felt that he was entitled to a portion of the waiters' tip money: No way! I am reluctant to express my opinion on the subject of tipping because I am an expert at putting my foot in my mouth.

If I had my druthers, tipping would be abolished altogether since it makes the recipients feel second-class citizens.

In most European countries, the gratuity is included in the cost of the meal. This covers the preparation as well as the serving. I feel quite certain that if the choice were up to the diners, they, too, would prefer to do away with tipping.

Thank you for including me in your survey. I respectfully prefer to remain anonymous.

LONGTIME RESTAURATEUR, DEAR BRUCE, JIMMY AND LONGTOME RESTAURATEUR: If I had my druthers, I, too, would do away with tipping waiters and waitresses unless, of course, a special service had been performed.

Each time I make this suggestion, a howl goes deep from service people who say, "If we were paid a decent wage, we wouldn't have to depend on tips in order to survive!"

And the restaurateurs scream, "If we had to pay our waiters and waitresses what they were worth, we couldn't stay in business."

Pilot's chest pain brings numbness

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 43-year-old male commercial pilot. I'm 25 pounds overweight but haven't smoked in five years. Two years ago, I experienced numbness and pain in my chest. A stress test, 24-hour Holter monitor and heart catheterization were normal. Yearly flight physicals are normal, yet the pains still persist. Should I take the inquiry further and risk my career? Is it safe and advisable to resume a physical-conditioning program after a hiatus of two years?

DEAR READER: A normal stress test and heart catheterization, during which the doctors investigated the circulation to your heart muscle, mean in all likelihood—your heart is normal. However, I am uncomfortable that the cause of your chest pain and numbness remains elusive. In my opinion, you should bring the symptoms to your doctor's attention and continue the investigation.

As a medical examiner for the Federal Aviation Administration, I am well aware of pilots' concerns about health issues. Commercial pilots, whose livelihoods depend on continuing certification, are often understandably reluctant to volunteer information which, although inconsequential, may be used by the FAA to ground them. Nonetheless, you have an obligation to follow up your symptoms until a cause is found.

For example, your abilities in the cockpit may be affected by your chest discomfort; this could jeopardize the lives of innocent passengers. Also, your health is more important than your pilot's certificate.

It's likely your symptoms are caused by a relatively minor condition, such as muscle strain or chest wall syndrome, a poorly understood ailment due to inflammation of tissues between and around your ribs. If so, medication may help relieve your pain. This should not affect your commercial pilot's status, especially since the FAA is quite willing to grant waivers in special cases where health problems are not hazardous.

If, on the other hand, you have an unusual heart or lung disorder, you mustn't deprive yourself of appropriate treatment.

Officials clear the way for McCartney concert

NEW HAVEN (AP)—City officials have cleared the way for a promoter to resume negotiations with Paul McCartney for a July concert at the Yale Bowl.

Deciding that the potential profits for the city were too great to pass up, the Board of Aldermen voted 19-6 Tuesday to grant a permit for the ex-Beatle's show despite strong opposition from people living near the arena.

One condition was that the city receive at least $325,000 from the concert, which is being negotiated with both Yale and McCartney's representatives, said Tuesday by New Haven already is listed on the musician's itinerary.

Nixon plans to move
SADDLE RIVER, N.J. (AP)—Richard Nixon is moving on down to a three-bedroom townhouse. The former president put a for-sale sign on his seven-bedroom house in this northern New Jersey community and plans to move into a three-bedroom, four-story townhouse in nearby Park Ridge, spokesman John Taylor said Tuesday.

"The Nixons have decided that they would prefer to spend their energy on activities other than maintaining a large house on four acres," Taylor said. Taylor said he did not know the purchase price of the new home or the asking price for the 15-room contemporary house in Saddle River. The Nixons bought it in 1981 for $1.25 million and made $300,000 in improvements, he said.

Jennings revisits Vietnam for ABC special

By Jay Sharbutel

NEW YORK—On this month 15 years ago, Phnom Penh fell to Khmer Rouge troops. Thirteen days later, Saigon surrendered to North Vietnamese forces. The Vietnam War was over.

But as an ABC News special coming up Thursday reminds us, the Khmer Rouge's takeover of Cambodia marked the beginning of a murderous four-year reign of terror in which an estimated one million Cambodians were killed.

The Vietnamese drove the Khmer Rouge out, but fighting continued. Guerrillas from a coalition of two non-communist groups and the communist Khmer Rouge are battling those of Cambodia's government.

Reported by Peter Jennings, ABC's special, "From the Killing Fields," examines if the United States, in supporting that anti-government alliance, might be helping the Khmer Rouge come back.

Jennings, anchorman of the top-rated "World News Tonight," spent a week over January traveling to Cambodia and Vietnam for the special.

He also flew to Beijing for an interview with the nominal head of the anti-government coalition, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the former Cambodian ruler whose overthrow in 1970 by American-backed forces was followed five years later by the Khmer Rouge takeover.

He also took a drive that would have been a suicide run during the war, motor-

Health insurance can be costly

Leaving your job does not mean you will lose your health insurance.

Employees who are let go are entitled legally to continued coverage in their former company group plan for up to 18 months under the Consolidated Omnibus Reconciliation Act (COBRA). Other members of their immediate families are eligible for an additional 18 months.

Even though this means footing the monthly premium, "it can be a very good deal," says Edward Graves, professor of insurance at the American College in Bryn Mawr that instructs Chartered Life Underwriters and Chartered Financial Consultants. A company's plan usually is more extensive and less costly than private insurance, he points out.

very defensive on other issues," the anchorman said. "When I asked him about the conventional wisdom that he's a puppet of the Khmer Rouge, he became extremely defensive. He said he's in charge."

Jennings' Vietnam trip was his first since 1965, when he was on his first tour as an anchorman of ABC's weeknight news newscasts. He was a veritable kid then as newscaster, go sent for two months to cover the early part of the long U.S. military involvement in Vietnam.

His dossier now is full of foreign-correspondent credits. But on his first time in Vietnam, he candidly says, he didn't really know much about the subject and was "more than a dilettante than anything else."

Still, his return to Vietnam contained his share of deja vu experiences, softened by time and nature.

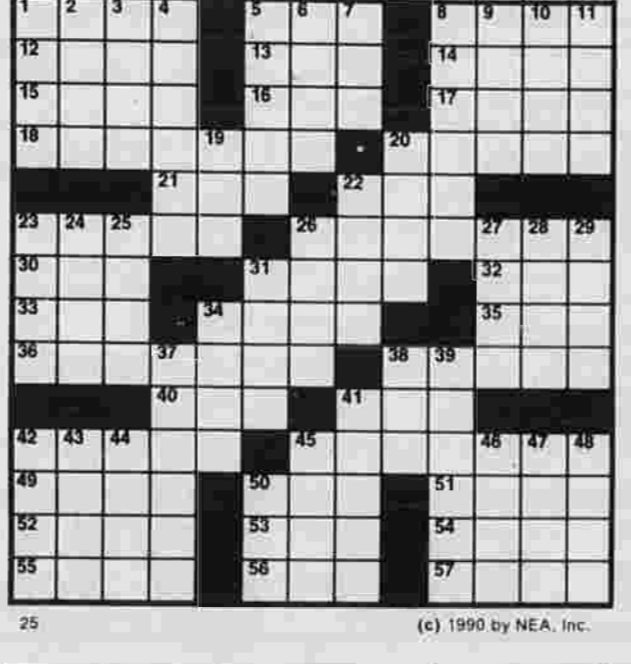

That may give many viewers "a basic knowledge" for understanding Thursday's special, he said. "I think people know the Khmer Rouge have the title of the worst barbarians since the Nazis."

The special, shown in the same week as Time magazine's cover story on Vietnam and Cambodia, marks the second time this year ABC and Time have simulated news coverage of major stories on the same subject.
