1 of 4 who challenge DWI law win appeals

HARTFORD (AP) — One out of four motorists who challenged the state's newest law against drunken driving won their appeals and avoided having their licenses suspended, state records show.

Figures compiled by the state Department of Motor Vehicles show that during the four months the law has been in effect, the number of successful appeals has been higher than expected.

State investigates oil price charges

By Peter Viles
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — State officials are charging that oil dealers may have exploited a state program by charging higher prices to poor people whose heating bills are subsidized by a state assistance program.

State Attorney General Clarence Nardi Riddle announced Tuesday that a strike force studying the heating oil market has sent subpoenas to all of the 770 retail home heating oil dealers registered to sell oil under the Connecticut Energy Assistance Program.

"Clearly, the state was taken advantage of," Riddle said. "It's quite possible that the poor were too."

Riddle said several community action groups in Hartford and Waterbury that help administer the low-income program complained to state officials that they were being charged higher prices for oil under the program.

State officials learned of possible price gouging in the program when they compared the prices reported under the CEAP program to those reported to a strike force named by Gov. William A. O'Neill to study last winter's rise in heating oil prices.

"We're disappointed to find that some retail oil dealers have apparently taken advantage of low-income clients during the cold months this past winter," said Bradford S. Chase, the state's chief energy official in the Office of Policy and Management.

His partners on the strike force, Riddle and Consumer Protection Commissioner Mary M. Heslin, also expressed concern about possible abuse of the program.

Riddle said that, on average, the instances of inconsistent pricing involved prices that differed by about 5 cents per gallon.

"This finding may not only be a violation of the agreement that vendors are required to sign to participate in the program, but it may be an unfair trade practice as well," Riddle said.

CEAP, which is administered at the state level by the Department of Income Maintenance and Human Resources, spent $11 million on home heating oil in fiscal year 1989, Riddle said in a news release.

Senate changes stand by approving gun bill

By Judd Ewerhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — A bill requiring a two-week waiting period before the purchase of any firearm has been given new life after the Senate reversed itself on the measure which is now headed for the House.

On Saturday, the Senate had effectively gutted the bill by scrapping the waiting period and inserting a provision that allowed for a background check after a gun buy.

The Senate had approved that proposal on a 19-15 vote, but on Tuesday, that amendment was stripped on a 21-15 vote and the bill itself was approved on a 20-16 vote. The measure now goes to the House, where backers say they're optimistic about passage.

During the two-week waiting period, authorities would conduct a background check of the potential buyer.

"We are looking at the criminal element and trying to keep guns out of their hands," said Sen. Judith G. Freedman, R-Westport, one of those who had supported Saturday's proposals and reversed herself Tuesday.

But Sen. George L. Gunther, R-Straford, who had sponsored Saturday's amendment, saw it differently.

"What we should do is get tough on the criminal that uses the gun," said Gunther. "Let's put them in jail and keep them in jail, ... (not) harass honest people. We all know damn right well that criminals don't apply for permits."

Sen. Margaret E. Morton, D-Bridgeport, — a city she called "the murder capital of the Northeast" — said the measure "sends a message ... that the General Assembly and the state of Connecticut does care about the lives that have been lost."

Morton wears a black ribbon pinned to her sleeve to honor those killed on city streets.

State law now requires a two-week waiting period before the purchase of handguns only. This bill would extend that to all guns.

Anyone with a pistol permit or a valid hunting license would be exempt, as would police officers and members of the service.

Susan Mistora, lobbyist for the National Rifle Association, called the bill "another useless bill."

"They're just interested in what sounds good and not what really will work," she said. What will work, she said, is imposing mandatory sentences on criminals using guns.

Robert T. Crook, lobbyist for the Connecticut Sportsman's Alliance, which opposes the bill, couldn't predict what would happen with the bill in the House.

Rep. Peter Smith, D-Milford, a key sponsor of the bill, said "it looks pretty good" for getting the bill through the lower chamber.

Gov. William A. O'Neill, a Democrat, has said he favors the bill.

Bill to restrict lobbyists passed to state House

By Judd Ewerhart
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — The state Senate, moving to reduce the influence of money in the legislative process, approved a bill Tuesday that prohibits lobbyists from contributing to legislative candidates while the General Assembly is in session.

The Democratic-controlled Senate rejected an amendment designed to remove an apparent loophole in campaign finance law that was expunged when Democratic gubernatorial candidate Bruce A. Morrison reported he had accepted a $10,000 contribution from the Bic Corp.

The bill was approved 34-2 and sent to the House, where passage is uncertain. A similar bill cleared the Senate last year but died in the House.

Corporate contributions are prohibited to traditional candidate committees, but a heretofore unpublicized provision in state law allows unlimited corporate and individual contributions to committees created for convention delegate elections, as Morrison had created, in addition to his candidate committee.

The rejection of the amendment, on a 22-14 vote with Democrat James H. Maloney of Danbury joining all 13 Republicans, enraged Sen. Reginald J. Smith, R-New Hartford, who had sponsored the amendment.

"The problem is here, we know what it is and we know how to solve it," Smith said.

Sen. Philip S. Robertson, R-Chester, called Morrison's acceptance of the money from Bic, as well as a $92,500 from a Greenwich executive and $25,000 from a Mill-ford tire executive, "unethical and immoral." In addition to banning corporate contributions to candidate committees, state law limits to $2,500 the amount an individual can give.

The three Morrison contributions are among the largest recorded in modern campaigns, if not the largest, officials said.

Senate Majority Leader Cornelius P. O'Leary, D-Windsor Locks, said he favored removing "an obvious problem" in campaign finance law, but he said it could wait until next year when lawmakers have had more time to study the idea.

He noted that Smith's amendment was effective Jan. 1, 1991, and would have done nothing to influence this year's gubernatorial election. He also said the proposal had not been aired at a public hearing. Legislative rules require public hearings — unless the majority works around the rules.

O'Leary's logic was ridiculed by Smith.

"This is the same (Democratic) crew that passed a budget last year without a public hearing. They raised taxes by nearly $1 billion last year without a public hearing," Smith said. "But their candidate's practices can't undergo any scrutiny without a public hearing."

Slaying conviction to stand

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A federal judge has rejected Steven M. Asherman's claim that his constitutional rights were violated during his state trial and that he is being unlawfully incarcerated.

U.S. District Judge Jose Cabranes ruled Tuesday that jury convicted Asherman was given ample evidence to conclude he killed a fellow medical school student while under extreme emotional distress.

In denying Asherman's bid for freedom, Cabranes also found that the state judge who presided at the trial had not instructed the jury to consider manslaughter charges.

Asherman was indicted on a charge of murder in the 1978 slaying and slaying death of Michael Aronow, a friend and classmate of his at Columbia Medical School. But at the close of his trial in 1979, the prosecutor requested the jury be instructed to consider manslaughter charges.

He was convicted of first-degree manslaughter, after the jury concluded he had committed homicide while acting "under the influence of extreme emotional disturbance."

"One of the things is the cost of doing business there for different types of industry," said Keith Biogno, a spokesman for PHH Homequity. "They'll find that moving to Dallas will be better for them. It just makes sense."

He said the average appraisal value of a home in New York was $295,511, compared to $142,500 in Dallas, $117,057 in Houston and $116,379 in Denver.

"In a sense, New York is a victim of its own success," said John Lord, a spokesman for Mobil Oil Corp., which decided two years ago to move its corporate headquarters from New York to Fairfax, Va.

PHH Homequity, a Wilton-based consultant, said Dallas and Houston were the most popular cities among the 37,000 relocations the company handled last year.

Denver moved up from 11th to seventh place, while Chicago slipped from third to fifth and New York from second to fourth.

New York also lost the most transferees, with 1,292 employees and their families moving out.

Aronow was stabbed more than 100 times in the face, back, buttocks and left leg and had his throat slashed.

Asherman's attorney, William J. Tracy Jr. of Bristol, had argued the state failed to give adequate notice of the charges Asherman faced and failed to present enough evidence of "extreme emotional disturbance" to justify the manslaughter conviction.

He asked the federal court to throw out the manslaughter conviction and let stand the jury's initial finding that Asherman was innocent of the more serious offense of murder. He did not seek a new trial.

A federal magistrate Jan. 26 found no merit to Asherman's claims, and Cabranes concurred.

Asherman is currently due for release from prison by June 1992.

After a lengthy series of appeals, he served less than three years in prison before being sent to a halfway house in January 1988 for three months. He was placed in a home-release program last May, but state prosecutors successfully fought to have him re-incarcerated and he was returned to jail in December.

Cabranes said Asherman's murder indictment put him on notice that he could be convicted of a lesser offense.

PHH Homequity, which bills itself as the nation's largest corporate relocation firm, said it moved 1,294 families into Dallas and 1,180 into Houston in 1989. Washington ranked third, New York fourth and Chicago fifth, followed by Atlanta, Denver, San Francisco, Philadelphia and Los Angeles. San Francisco had been fourth in 1988.

Biogno said relocations to the Southwest have grown for the last few years, after a spate of transfers to California and the Northeast.

"Ten years ago, the West Coast and the Northeast were just expanding and bubbling and popping. Things were really happening," he said.

But New York ranked first last year on the list of departures. Dallas, Houston and Denver ranked second, third and fourth, but Biogno said a significant number of those workers were transferred to other Southwest cities.

Fifth on the departure list was Chicago, followed by Atlanta, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh and San Francisco.

For corporate transfers, Southwest hot, New York's not, research says

By Jill Arabas

STAMFORD — The Southwest has become a hot spot for corporate transfers, while New York has cooled off because of the high costs of living and doing business there, according to market research by one of the nation's largest relocation firms.

New Ames chief's $1.5m post cleared by bankruptcy judge

NEW YORK (AP) — The appointment of a new chief at financially troubled Ames Department Stores Inc. has been approved by a federal bankruptcy judge who likened the financially troubled discount chain to a "ship without a rudder."

The interim approval Tuesday will also allow the discount retailer to borrow $40 million to keep operating during the upcoming shopping seasons.

The new chief executive officer, Stephen L. Pister, would be paid $1.5 million a year, plus a bonus of $500,000, to take on the job of trying to bring the company through and out of bankruptcy.

The $2 million in total compensation Pister would receive is more than twice what the chief executive at K mart, the nation's largest discount chain, received in 1989 and more than $400,000 above what the top executive received last year at Sears, the nation's largest retailer.

When U.S. Bankruptcy Court

Judge Howard C. Buschman III gave the company's plan interim approval Tuesday, he said he was comfortable that the salary is within the range that any executive would demand to take on the Ames job.

"The board members of this company have determined that the company is a ship without a rudder," Buschman said. "They have determined that there is low morale within the company and with creditors of the company, and that the appointment is needed to begin to address the problems faced by the company."

The Rocky Hill retail chain also got the court's approval to borrow up to $40 million from Chemical Bank of New York during the next week to begin paying its bills and start restocking its 680 stores.

During nearly a year of five-hour hearings Tuesday, Buschman heard testimony about Ames' need for a new leader and money to keep the company operating.

Stabbing fails to stop wedding plans

NORWICH (AP) — A Norwich couple is not letting a stabbing get in the way of their plans to be married next month.

A discussion about wedding plans turned into an argument about money on Feb. 18, when Tammie L. Kinsey, 23, stabbed her fiancé in the abdomen. She was then charged with first-degree assault.

In court Tuesday, Kinsey's lawyer, Ralph U. Bergman of Norwich, said alcohol brought out the worst in his client and asked that she not be sentenced to jail and be allowed to go forward with marriage plans, especially because the couple has a 9-month old daughter.

New London Superior Court

Judge Seymour L. Hendel, after hearing Bergman's argument, asked the couple: "You two are getting married?"

"It doesn't speak well for the success of your marriage, you understand that?" You both showed no sense in this case."

Hendel on Tuesday granted Bergman's request that she be placed on probation rather than be sent to jail.

Assistant State's Attorney Lawrence J. Tysia said Kinsey and Michael F. Gromko, 21, were sitting in her car about 3 a.m. when the couple started arguing after coming home from a tractor-pull event in Hartford.

A police affidavit said Kinsey criticized Gromko for depending

Senate committee ready to vote on $1 trillion budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Budget Committee is finally ready to approve a Democratic $1.2 trillion federal budget for 1991 that gives the Pentagon $9.8 billion less than President Bush wants, congressional sources say.

Acceptance of a package that allows to shrink the deficit by $43 billion is expected as early as today.

The Democratic-run House on Tuesday adopted on a party-line vote a spending plan that rejects Bush's more generous plan for defense programs. The administration countered with an announcement that the cuts would cause cancellation of military projects in many lawmakers' home districts.

The chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., has been unable for weeks to find a majority in favor of his spending plan because of solid Republican opposition and a few Democratic defections.

But a former opponent, Sen. Charles Robb, D-Va., told Sasser on Tuesday that he would support the $43 billion package, a congressional source said. Robb would be Sasser's 12th vote on the 23-member committee.

Sasser denied he had noded down enough support to win, but he conceded that he was close. "Close but no cigar," he said. "But we can smell the aroma of that cigar."

The plan would set defense spending at $294 billion in the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. That is $9.8 billion less than the figure Bush has proposed and about $2 billion below this year's spending.

It also calls for $13.9 billion in new tax revenues — the same amount Bush wants — and $6.2 billion in new user fees and other receipts. The growth of benefit programs such as Medicare would be slowed by $5.6 billion, while other domestic and foreign aid efforts would be cut by $1.5 billion.

With all 174 voting Republicans opposing the package, the House adopted its own $1.24 trillion spending plan on a 218-208 vote.

The plan's key contrast with Bush's proposal was its defense figure: $295.5 billion, $8.3 billion less than the president. It also spent more for social programs than the president requested.

Republicans accused Democrats of forcing through a plan that excessively weakens American military power.

"All you have to do is say, 'I'm really mad about Lithuania and I'll prove it. I'm going to get the Navy,'" said Rep. Newt Gingrich of Georgia, the No. 2 House GOP leader.

But Democrats said their proposal merely acknowledged the obvious: The Cold War has ended and it is time for the government to focus on domestic issues.

"The key problems we face as a nation are addressed in this budget," said House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.

After the vote, Democratic leaders said they viewed their budget as a strong bargaining position for future talks with the Senate and the administration.

Foley, House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif., and others conceded that negotiations with the administration will be needed for the budget's priorities to be translated into future spending and tax laws. The budget merely maps the government's fiscal plans.

The House-passed package claims to slice $36 billion off the deficit, relying on defense cuts, $13.9 billion in new taxes and other savings. This allows it to meet the Gramm-Rudman law's requirement of a 1991 deficit of no more than $64 billion.

Meanwhile, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney ordered a review of 207 military projects for possible cancellation. He complained that some members of Congress "want to cut the defense budget even as they fight to save the projects in their own states and districts."

Reed reported angry over hostage inaction

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — The wife of freed U.S. hostage Frank Reed said today her husband was sometimes kept with as many as five other Western captives and is "angry at everybody" that some are still being held.

Reed was released to the Syrians in Lebanon on Monday after 3 1/2 years in the hands of Shiite Muslim fundamentalist kidnappers. He is at the U.S. Air Force Hospital in Wiesbaden for medical tests and debriefings.

Fahima Reed told a news conference that her husband was angry the hostage crisis has not been resolved.

Asked specifically if Reed was upset with officials in Washington, she said: "He's angry at everybody for the length of time he and others were kept, and that others are still there, too."

While the 57-year-old educator underwent medical tests, Mrs. Reed disclosed details of her husband's imprisonment. She said he was blindfolded and bound for almost his entire captivity, except for 90 minutes during the evenings.

Mrs. Reed, 39 and a Syrian Muslim, was asked how many Western hostages there were in the room at one time.

"Sometimes, five or six, sometimes two, sometimes he was alone," she responded. "They weren't allowed to communicate."

"He did see Terry Anderson," she said, referring to the longest-held Western hostage in Lebanon. Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, was kidnapped on March 16, 1985.

"Our joy will not be complete until every single one of them is free," Mrs. Reed told a news conference.

A special State Department team was to resume questioning Reed for a second day today. They seek clues about the 16 remaining Westerners held hostage in Lebanon, six of whom are American.

In telephone calls to his daughter, Marilyn Langston, and Anderson's sister, Peggy Sky, Reed said he was held with Anderson and Thomas Sutherland until about a year ago and was surprised to find out they had not been freed. Sutherland, acting agriculture dean at American University of Beirut, was abducted on June 9, 1985.

Mrs. Reed said she saw Terry "the last time he saw Terry" was in January 1989. Terry was in reasonably good health, although he had been having physical problems ... He said Terry's attitude was still feisty, as far as the guards go, and he was always screaming for something to eat.

Mrs. Reed said her husband was "moved around a lot" and when other hostages were taken from the room permanently he thought they were being freed.

Asked if other hostages were in the same room as her husband the day he was freed, Mrs. Reed replied: "I think two, but refused to say who they might have been."

She said Reed was allowed to watch television or read magazines or books for about 90 minutes during the evenings, but he refused. "These things were so trivial compared to the things that were snatched away," she said.

Greyhound talks scheduled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal mediators called negotiators for Greyhound and striking drivers to Washington today in an effort to get bargaining talks reopened in the violence-plagued walkout, now in its third month.

Bernard E. DeLury, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, was scheduled to meet with Greyhound Vice President Anthony P. Lannic and Edward M. Strail, president of the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions.

It was the first movement toward reopening contract talks since negotiations broke down March 18 in Tucson, Ariz., when the company walked out over the shootings, bomb threats and other violent incidents occurring nationwide.

Since then, the company has refused to resume negotiations until a week passed without violence; the seven-day deadline was marked on Monday. The union has contended the company used the issue as an excuse for not resuming bargaining talks.

Greyhound spokesman George Gravely said Tuesday that today's meeting "is not negotiations," but merely a discussion between top negotiators for both sides.

Still, it was expected to give negotiators, along with DeLury's help, their first chance since mid-March to discuss strike issues and possible ground rules for talks if and when they do resume.

When the company's 6,300 drivers and 3,000 clerical workers and mechanics walked out March 2, the union cited wages and job security.

However, now there is also the question of whether the 2,500 replacement drivers that have been hired will get to keep their jobs. The union plans to demand that they not be given seniority over striking drivers while the company maintains they will remain on the payroll.

If talks are restructured, they would likely occur in Tucson, a neutral site that is convenient for union officials based in Phoenix and company officials based in Dallas.

Gravely said Greyhound's replacement drivers and about 500 union members who had crossed picket lines were providing 83 percent of the bus line's normal service.

"We really challenge those figures as wildly inflated," countered union spokesman Nick Nichols. "Putting a bus on a route once a week when they used to run two or three routes a day is hardly what we consider delivering service."

About 40 shootings have occurred at buses and terminals since the strike began. The union said it supported prosecution of four striking drivers who have been arrested in some of the shootings.

Baker to Europe for talks on future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III headed to Europe today for talks on the future of Germany and the Western alliance with Senate criticism of U.S. policy on Lithuania ringing in his ears.

Baker's first stop is Brussels for separate sessions Thursday with NATO and European Community foreign ministers. This will give the administration a chance to say how fast it wants moves toward the political union of Western Europe to proceed and what the alliance's future role should be.

Britain, with some support from Denmark and Portugal, is trying to slow the pace being set by France and West Germany. The United States has kept its distance from what is essentially a European decision, but it intends to keep close ties to its old allies.

Ahead on Friday in Bonn is a round of talks on how the union of East Germany with West Germany will affect the security of neighboring European nations, such as the Soviet Union and Poland.

Baker is intent on promoting membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for the reunified Germany, but the Soviets are uneasy about their former ally, East Germany, slipping into the Western military camp.

There will be meetings of the Big Four allies that stopped the Nazis in World War II — the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union — and separate talks by Baker with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze.

Lithuania's drive for independence, and the Soviet economic blockade of the breakaway republic, is high on the agenda.

On Capitol Hill Tuesday, Baker came under pressure from several senators on the cautious stance President Bush is taking toward Moscow. Last week he withheld economic sanctions while U.S. and Soviet negotiators in Paris completed the framework of a new trade agreement.

Participation is key to referendum

It appears that the Coventry budget is on its way to a referendum. Roland Green, the Coventry resident who has been successful before in challenging the budget in townwide referendums in the past is determined to do so again and is confident that he can get the signatures he needs to do so.

Green will no doubt find support among Coventry residents for his position that the proposed $16 million budget with a 41.5-mill tax rate is too high.

But Green insists that his motive in pressing for a referendum is to give voters several hours in which to cast their votes at their convenience and not have to attend an evening meeting and remain there until the vote comes around.

That argument illustrates a perennial problem that arises from a mix of direct and representative democracy in government.

The town meeting provides a forum at which interested citizens can influence each other's view on question of public policy incorporated in the budget. But it is limited to those who are able to attend and motivated to do so.

The townwide vote, in itself, does not provide that democratic exchange on the spot, but it does widen the chance for participation after the issues are debated and views become public.

If the budget vote does go to referendum, the results will be better if a large part of the electorate casts votes and if all of them do so after having learned all they can about what the budget provides for in services.

To the Editor:

In a recent Letter to the Editor, the leadership of the Neglected Taxpayers claimed that they were the only group in Bolton providing factual information about town finances. That remark is incredible considering the inaccuracies and misleading information found not only in that letter but in past flyers and letters written by that group. Just to set one of many matters straight, if the present town and education budgets had been passed as submitted, the mill increase would have been 3.32, not 4.39 as claimed by TNT. According to the Board of Finance, this would have resulted in a 16.9% tax increase, not 23% as stated by TNT. The Board of Finance has since cut $247,000 from the town and education budgets bringing the increase down to 10.2%.

TNT has stated that their goal is to keep taxes from rising uncontrollably but their target is almost exclusively the education budget. They have attacked this budget in an arbitrary manner showing little regard for the negative consequences their demands will have on our students. This approach is irresponsible and will serve only to undermine the quality of education provided by the Bolton school system. They are calling for major cuts in services and seeking tax relief at the expense of the children of Bolton.

Taxes are increasing as a result of a complex set of circumstances including reduced state funding to municipalities, inflation, deferred maintenance, increasing elementary school enrollment and, in some cases, the recent revaluation. Any frustration over these issues should not cloud our judgment in dealing with the education budget. The Boards of Education and Finance have worked very hard to deliver an education budget with only a 9.8% increase, 83% of which are fixed costs. It is a lean, workable budget prepared in a fiscally responsible manner. Combined with the town proper budget, Bolton taxpayers will be looking at a 10.2% total tax increase, considerably less than the 21% initially proposed.

The budget will be voted on at a town meeting on May 14th or in a referendum soon thereafter. The negative approach taken by TNT and the detrimental effect it could have on this town and its children should not be underestimated. It is imperative that the residents of Bolton who recognize the importance of providing a quality education to the youth of the town take the time to vote in favor of the budget. We urge you to make your voice heard.

Give 'em Hull, Lowell

By Bob Conrad

Lowell Weicker seems to be doing nicely, thank you, at casting his net for a running mate in his run for governor. But if he wants to assure voters of a lively campaign and he's hung up over which would add that touch, I'll bet another option is available.

He could give 'em Hull. T. Clark Hull, that is, a non-player at this point. Hull is a Danbury lawyer who excelled — make that revolved — in politics and government for a decade until he was made a judge seventeen years ago and had to put all that behind him. Now he is an associate justice on the Connecticut Supreme Court.

Let's get one thing straight right from the start. I have no information that anything is cooking that would involve Hull in Weicker's Connecticut Party plans. I have not walked with Weicker or any of his campaign team about it and I don't know whether Weicker would be interested. I certainly have not talked with Hull.

Hull, locked in the sterile environment of the court, couldn't say anything anyway. Nor am I suggesting that he is walking around with a beeper under his black robe, just in case Weicker should call.

The idea struck me one day last week as I drove up to the Capitol, and I saw Hull walking along Trinity Street absorbed, no doubt, in thoughts about the nuances of some case at bar.

Hull for lieutenant governor? It probably won't happen, but why not think about it? You can't say he doesn't know the territory.

For openers, he has on-the-job experience. Hull was lieutenant governor during the first two years of GOP Gov. Tom Meskill's administration. How Hull got to be Meskill's running mate is a story in itself. It was there.

Meskill was ready to go with Malcolm Baldrige at that 1970 GOP state convention. But when nominations were opened, Hull's fan club among delegates started a "We want Hull" chant from the back of the Bushnell Auditorium, and he swept the convention.

Hull is 68, two years away from the mandatory retirement age for judges — a fate this dynamic guy doesn't deserve. He is a graduate of Yale and Harvard Law School. He had four terms in the State Senate, then service on the Superior and Appellate benches before he was named in 1987 to the Supreme Court.

Hull is also a bit of an imp. He has an uproarious sense of humor and can brighten the most boring or routine proceedings with devastating lines. But other judges and lawyers say he is serious, incisive and smart as a jurist. It's no secret in political circles that Hull always longed to be governor. The right year or set of circumstances never seemed to work out. That suit as lieutenant governor with Meskill was as close as he ever got.

Weicker has been away from state government more than twenty years. If he is elected governor as an independent, he could have problems working with a Legislature made up of Republicans and Democrats. As lieutenant governor, an ever-popular Hull would probably be the Democrat where he could be a valuable ally.

Weicker is narrowing the field of possible running mates now. If the final choice — his, not a convention's — is a

Watchdogs suffer in power grab

By Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department has given crooks an across-the-board reprieve and a good reason to laugh.

Thousands of criminal investigations have been thrown into permanent limbo because the Justice Department has usurped the authority of the inspectors general in all federal agencies. Inspectors general are assigned as watchdogs to each agency, looking for fraud, abuse and waste. Over the years they have become accustomed to a wide range of investigative powers.

But, in a shockingly worded ruling, the Justice Department's Office of Legal Counsel has handed many of those investigative powers over to the FBI.

"It's a power grab," one Senate investigator told us. "This is about power."

No longer can inspectors general probe allegations of fraud in the food and health industry. No longer can they nail construction companies that endanger their workers by ignoring safety laws. No longer can they pursue passport and visa fraud. No longer can they freely probe the activities of the rich and powerful.

At least, not without taking a number at the Justice Department and asking for permission to investigate. In other words, Attorney General Richard Thornburgh wants to be the rich guy's cop.

The consequence is that leads will be abandoned and investigations will grow old and die of neglect. In the Labor Department alone, investigators have had to abandon more than 1,000 leads.

Developments haven't escaped the notice of Congress. Today, April 25, the Senate Committee on Government Affairs, chaired by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, is scheduled to hold a hearing. Expect to see a long line of inspectors general seeking help.

Until this point, they have grumbled quietly and privately about the Justice Department's limited view of their mission. One associate justice has seen the complaints submitted to Glenn's committee.

Department Inspector General Sherman Funk wrote that the Justice Department unfairly treats the inspectors general as "figure cops." Funk said that the ruling has "disheartened the IG community."

Health and Human Services Inspector General Richard Kasserow wrote that the decision "will continue to impair critical enforcement in HHS operations."

The Justice Department ruling came in response to a Labor Department investigation, and now Justice officials claim that the ruling only applies to the Labor Department. But the inspectors general aren't buying it, especially in light of the fact that last December, Justice officials told the HHS inspector general's office to keep its hands off Food and Drug Administration investigations. That was after the inspector general broke the FDA generic drug bribery scandal.

Defense lawyers haven't missed the significance of the ruling. Lawyers representing defendants in cases originated by inspectors general have already begun to question the authority of the watchdogs in court.

Inspectors general are now muttering that they want legislation to protect them from further power grabs by the Justice Department. Glenn plans to introduce protective legislation.

It's more than coincidence that the Justice Department turned a cold shoulder to inspectors general about one month before it begrudgingly received its own first inspector general. The department had resisted the appointment of an internal watchdog for more than 10 years.

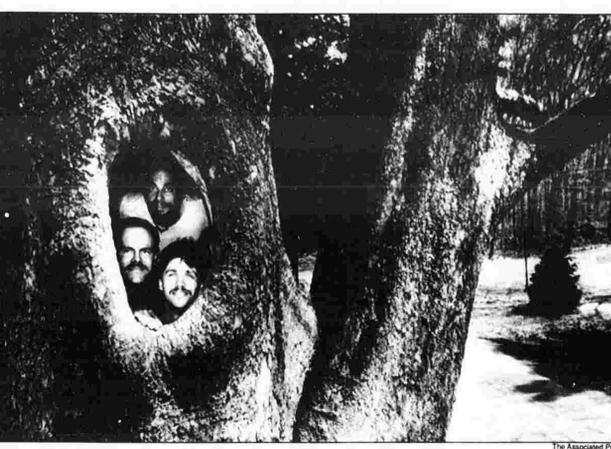

Pendulum swings

There is no question that for years banks were too loose with their lending policies. But now the money market, junk bond market and faltering real estate, the pendulum may swing too far in the other direction. The government regulator on the hot seat is Robert Clarke, comptroller of the currency. His examiners have been cracking down on bank real-estate holdings. Clarke refuses to back off.

Mini-editorial

George Bush has found more variations on the word "tax" than Carter has little liver pills. Bush promised no new taxes, but that doesn't mean no "user fees," no new "revenue enhancements" and no new ways to squeeze the taxpayer. The latest is a new airport tax added to the price of a plane ticket. The money would fund airport improvements. Nobody in the administration likes to talk about the already overflowing aviation trust fund that will have $7.6 billion in it by the end of the fiscal year. Bush would rather keep that money as a way of making the deficit look smaller while he lives Van Atta.

Three classmates commit suicide in 2 days

By Ron Fournier
The Associated Press

SHERIDAN, Ark. — Parents and teen-agers cried and held hands and counselors were placed on 24-hour call as a shocked community attempted to recover from the suicides of three high school students in two days.

Counselors were assigned to every classroom at Sheridan High School today after a 17-year-old was found dead of a gunshot wound Tuesday.

On Monday, two of his classmates shot themselves to death. One of them killed himself in front of a history class after professing his love for a girl.

Scott Stamper, 16, said the latest suicide shook up most students. "People who didn't even know him were crying. It was quiet. I walked in school today and saw zombies," he said.

"It's going to be a tough day. I can't tell you how tough it's been," school Superintendent David Robinson said.

The body of the latest victim, Jerry Paul McCool, a 17-year-old sophomore, was discovered in his home by his father, Saine County Coroner Sam Ballard ruled the death a suicide.

Hours later, parents and students packed the school's 1,000-seat auditorium to discuss the suicides. Some held hands. Some cried.

Robinson said school would go on because routine is important "when things begin to crumble. They need something to hang on to."

In addition to calling in counselors, school officials also handed out a list of phone numbers for nearby three dozen counselors and faculty members on call around the clock.

"Our community and our school is just in the middle of a tremendous tragedy that we're all trying to deal with and get a handle on it improve," Robinson said.

McCool's death was the fourth suicide in little more than a month by high school students in the community of about 3,000, about 25 miles south of Little Rock. A 17-year-old killed himself March 28, authorities said.

"It's just too much for a town like this. This is something you hear about in a big city," said Elbert Sanders, a police clerk.

Police said the two students who died Monday had at least one class together and had been friends for years. Thomas Smith, 17, shot himself after declaring his love for a girl, Thomas M. Chidester, 19, was killed by a shot to the head late Monday.

Lt. Lenard Lewis said McCool knew the other boys but was not in any of their classes. He had spoken with his father about the boys' suicides.

"His Dad said he said something like, 'How could somebody do that? Why would they do it?'" Lewis said.

McCool had stayed home from school Tuesday, complaining of pain from a hernia operation, two weeks ago, Lewis said. The boy was at school Monday when Smith killed himself but wasn't in the classroom where the shooting occurred.

Sheriff Cary Clark said the deaths of Chidester and Smith appeared connected. Both teen-agers participated in the school's junior Reserve Officers Trainer Corps and were classmates for several years.

Chidester's body was found Tuesday by his grandmother, who lived with him.

Salvador fighting worst since autumn

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas dynamited power stations and attacked strategic targets in the capital early today in what appeared to be their biggest such action since a huge November offensive.

The attacks, which began late Tuesday, appeared timed to coincide with the scheduled start of preliminary peace talks today.

There were no immediate reports of casualties, but half the city was without electricity and automatic weapons fire and explosions ripped through several neighborhoods, including the wealthy Escalera district.

Rebels had dynamited five high-voltage utility towers and a power plant on nearby San Salvador volcano, the privately owned YSKL radio station reported.

Indirect preliminary talks were to begin today between President Alfredo Cristiani's rightist government and the guerrillas' Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front.

A representative of U.N. general secretary Javier Perez de Cuellar was due to arrive in San Salvador today to act as a go-between in setting up an agenda and arranging other details for the negotiations.

The first guerrilla attack — on the power line towers — began at about 10 p.m. Tuesday, hours after about 40,000 people attended a huge May Day rally organized by labor unions and opposition parties to criticize Cristiani's economic austerity program and urge peace talks.

At the peaceful rally, militant leftists joined the moderate Christian Democrats whom Cristiani succeeded in one of the largest opposition protests in a decade.

Gunfire and explosions, likely from hand grenades or rockets, continued sporadically until the early today, and military helicopters could be heard buzzing several areas of the capital.

Guerrillas shot out with government soldiers near the hotel in Escalera where Americans had been trapped for a time during the November offensive and the gun-fight spilled over into the Tasmal neighborhood, residents there said.

Apollo craft to be entombed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Apollo capsule in which three astronauts died 23 years ago will be entombed with the debris of the space shuttle Challenger in an abandoned missile silo.

The remains of the capsule will be transferred from the Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., to the Cape Canaveral Air Force Station in Florida about May 20, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Tuesday.

Astronauts Virgil "Gus" Grissom, Roger B. Chaffee and Edward H. White II died when fire flared through the capsule during a countdown rehearsal for the first manned Apollo mission.

The fire, in a cabin filled with 100 percent oxygen, was triggered by a spark when a broken or bruised wire beneath Grissom's couch contacted metal. The astronauts were trapped by a wall of flame and died within seconds.

The spacecraft has been kept in a container along with its heat shield, other hardware and investigative data at Langley, as directed by a board that investigated the fire.

Defense Lawyers Haven't Missed the Significance of the Ruling. Lawyers representing defendants in cases originated by inspectors general have already begun to question the authority of the watchdogs in court.

Inspectors general are now muttering that they want legislation to protect them from further power grabs by the Justice Department. Glenn plans to introduce protective legislation.

It's more than coincidence that the Justice Department turned a cold shoulder to inspectors general about one month before it begrudgingly received its own first inspector general. The department had resisted the appointment of an internal watchdog for more than 10 years.

Pendulum swings

There is no question that for years banks were too loose with their lending policies. But now the money market, junk bond market and faltering real estate, the pendulum may swing too far in the other direction. The government regulator on the hot seat is Robert Clarke, comptroller of the currency. His examiners have been cracking down on bank real-estate holdings. Clarke refuses to back off.

Mini-editorial

George Bush has found more variations on the word "tax" than Carter has little liver pills. Bush promised no new taxes, but that doesn't mean no "user fees," no new "revenue enhancements" and no new ways to squeeze the taxpayer. The latest is a new airport tax added to the price of a plane ticket. The money would fund airport improvements. Nobody in the administration likes to talk about the already overflowing aviation trust fund that will have $7.6 billion in it by the end of the fiscal year. Bush would rather keep that money as a way of making the deficit look smaller while he lives Van Atta.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Widow's fiance worries neighbor

DEAR ABBY: My sweet, little, naive neighbor lady, at least 70 years old, is being romanced by a 49-year-old attractive man who she hired to help with taxes and financial matters.

Her husband died last year, leaving an estate of close to a million dollars, which, of course, this man is aware of. She has no family. She tells me that he has proposed marriage and she has said yes. No date has been set as yet, but she is on cloud nine and flitting around like a teen-ager. She says he just wants a companion and, due to a physical problem, he cannot be a husband to a younger woman. (I presume he's impotent.)

I called the police to see if there was some way they could quickly check up on this man. They said there was nothing they could do. And since he has no criminal record, they cannot make a formal investigation.

Abby, I think I smell a rat. Is there anything I can do to protect this woman from being taken advantage of?

DEAR WORRIED: WORRIED NEIGHBOR, you are right. I think I smell a rat. Is there anything I can do to protect this woman from being taken advantage of?

DEAR WORRIED: WORRIED NEIGHBOR, you are right. I think I smell a rat. Is there anything I can do to protect this woman from being taken advantage of?

DEAR ABBY: I just returned from the beauty salon more than a little dispirited.

The entire time the operator was setting my hair, she had the phone perched on her shoulder while she argued with her ex-husband about their children. I was so angry, I considered withholding partial payment, as I felt that I had about 50 percent of her attention.

I wonder if others have encountered a similar problem.

DEAR ILLINOIS: You are very wise. You probably need more than she needs you. Had you told her off, she might have suggested that you find another therapist. This, what I'm here for.

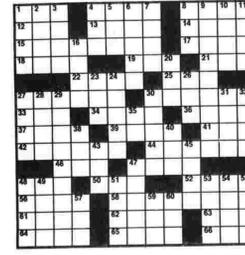

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 16-year-old daughter wets the bed. She began when she was 5 or 6 years old. My husband was a bed wetter until about 13 years of age, and he believes she will outgrow the condition. We've never seen a doctor for her problem because of my husband's feelings on the subject.

DEAR READER: Bed-wetting (enuresis) can be caused by urinary infections and anatomical abnormalities of the urinary tract. It is not hereditary. Your daughter needs professional attention to discover the cause of her embarrassing problem—and to correct it

FOOD

Become a microwave chef by preparing ethnic foods

How many languages does your kitchen speak? French, Italian, German, Spanish, all can be a part of the vocabulary of your kitchen, and as yet to be explored and reputation as a chef - a microwave chef, that is.

Microwave Kitchen

Marge Churchill

1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
Place the bacon in a 2-quart simmer pot, cover and microwave on high power for 4 to 5 minutes. Toss sirloin cubes with flour and add to bacon drippings. Toss to coat with drippings. Sprinkle any remaining flour over the meat. Add mushrooms, onion, garlic, bay leaf, parsley and thyme. Combine wine with bouillon, salt and pepper; pour over all.

Spanish Zarzuela

1-4 cup olive oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1-2 cup toasted blanched almonds
1-2 cup dry white wine
3 garlic cloves
3 sprigs parsley
1-3 cup pimiento-stuffed green olives
1/4 cup flour
8 ounces fresh mushrooms, sliced
1 medium onion, cut into rings
1 clove garlic, minced
1 bay leaf
1 tablespoon fresh snipped parsley
1/2 teaspoon thyme
1/2 cups burgundy wine
1/2 cups instant beef bouillon

Put oil and onion into a 4-quart casserole. Cover and microwave on high power for 3 to 4 minutes. Meanwhile, pure almonds, wine, garlic, parsley and 1/2 cup olives in a blender or food processor until smooth. Add mixture to canned tomatoes, including liquid, to onion in casserole. Cover and microwave for 6 minutes on high, or until mixture boils. Add clams, including the liquid, crab meat, shrimp, scallops, cod fillets, olive halves, salt and pepper. Cover and microwave on high power for 10 minutes, or until shrimp are opaque and cod flakes easily. Serve immediately in soup bowls, yields 6 servings.

Cheese manicotti

Meat Sauce:
1-2 pound ground beef
1 package (1.5 ounces) spaghetti sauce mix
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
2/3 cups water
Cheese filling:
4 ounces cottage cheese (1 cup)
1/4 cup shredded mozzarella cheese (4 ounces)
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 egg, well beaten
1 tablespoon parsley
1/4 teaspoon pepper
8 uncooked manicotti noodles

Combine ground beef with 1/4 cup glass measure. Microwave on high power for 3 minutes, breaking up meat midway through cooking. Pour off grease. Stir in sauce mix, then tomato paste and water. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave on high for 10 minutes. To make cheese filling, combine cheese, egg, parsley and pepper. Fill uncooked manicotti, using a small spoon. Spoon sauce over each. Microwave on high power for 10 minutes. Turn each piece of chicken over and arrange as before. Bake with liquid in dish; recover. Microwave on high for 10 to 12 minutes. Salt and pepper chicken to taste. Combine flour and half and half in same 4 cup glass measure. Pour liquid from dish into measure. Put green onions and parsley into a blender or food processor. Add 1 cup of liquid and puree. Return puree mixture to glass measure. Microwave in high power for 3 to 4 minutes, stirring midway through cooking time. Cook until mixture thickens. Pour sauce over chicken and serve. Makes 8 servings.

World's smallest restaurant serves only two at a time

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) - Nancy Briggs and Juanita Crampton claim their restaurant is the smallest in the world. Let's put it this way: If it were any smaller, you couldn't bring a date.

Kenmei Rice Bran lacks snap, crackle and pop

By Bonnie Tandy Leblang and Carolyn Wyman
Kellogg Kenmei Rice Bran. Regular and with almonds and raisins. $3.59 per 17-ounce box.
Bonnie: The nutrient-rich components of brown rice known as rice bran are the latest grain touted to have cholesterol-lowering properties. Kellogg's response to this news has been to introduce Kenmei Rice Bran cereals - plain and with almonds and raisins.
Carolyn: These are Rice Krispies without the snap, crackle, pop. Instead of the little puffy capsules, these are flakes with blisters. But they taste just as good.
Bonnie: Melinda's pepper sauce is a good idea unless you prefer the taste of raisins to Rice Krispies (for the raisins overwhelm the delicate puffed rice). In that case you might be better off buying a box of Raisin Bran.
Carolyn: The hottest news in the food business these days is hot. The scientific fact that taste buds grow less sensitive as we grow older, combined with the baby boomers' habit of eating spicy Cajun, Caribbean, Chinese and Mexican cuisines, means that hot food sales are catching fire all across the country.
Melinda is hoping to fuel the flames with a new line of hot sauces made from the hottest peppers known to mankind as well as such healthful ingredients as carrots, onions and garlic.
Regular Tabasco sauce actually tastes hotter than Melinda's regular. But the extra hot and XXXtra hot sauces live up to their names.
