boom years may be thinking twice, now that the economy has slumped and licenses are more expensive. "A lot of those people who entered the market when it was hot probably found they couldn't survive, or didn't choose to survive, when things got back to normal," said Jeanette Newton, executive officer of the 330-member North Central Connecticut Board of Realtors Inc. in Enfield. She said membership in her group has dropped about 5 percent from last year. The number of licensed agents swelled to 39,000 in the boom years of the 1980s, when people put their paychecks into housing and developers tried to cash in on the region's booming economy. The number of new units authorized grew from 10,855 in 1981 to a high

Bolton High team on winning streak

Bolton High School, after 86 games and almost seven years, has a victory on the baseball diamond. The Bulldogs, who dropped baseball as a varsity sport for two years in 1987 and hadn't won since a May 18, 1983 decision over Cheney Tech, ended their years of futility Tuesday afternoon with a 9-8 victory over East Hampton High School in East

"This is the best feeling I've had in a long, long time," 28-year-old Bolton coach Mark O'Neill said. "We had 21 happy faces today. They've worked hard all year and never gave up on themselves." Bolton lost 66 in a row before being forced to forfeit a game on May 11, 1987 when it didn't have enough players to face Bacon Academy. It forfeited the final seven games of that year. It lost its first 13 games of the 1990 season. Until Tuesday.

Police Roundup

Man allegedly threatens witness A Hartford man was arrested Monday on charges of tampering with a witness after he allegedly verbally threatened a Manchester woman who previously had filed charges against him, police said.

Narcisco I. Santiago, 27, also was charged with two counts of harassment for allegedly repeatedly threatening the 29-year-old woman. Santiago, who prior to this incident had been arrested on charges of physically abusing the woman, was held on a $2,000 bond and appeared in court that day.

According to police, the woman said she received numerous telephone calls from Santiago in which he said he or someone else will attempt to physically harm her. Woman charged with assault A 34-year-old Manchester woman was arrested Tues-

While company officials refused to comment on the problem, Hartford Det. Alfred Pepin said that stolen guns have become part of the city's drug trade. The Colt guns are among the new, high-priced, powerful, and compact semiautomatic guns being carried by

Police and federal authorities say they are not sure how the guns are leaving the factory and do not know if the losses have continued after the recent change in the company's ownership. They referred questions about security to company officials. Richard F. Gamble, president of Colt's Manufacturing Co., the company that was formed after the buyout by company managers, the workers' union, private investors and the state of Connecticut, would not comment. The state bought 47 percent of the company, using $25 million in state pension funds in a buyout announced March 22. Law enforcement officials say it is impossible for them to tell how many stolen Colt guns are on the illegal market. The company only reports as stolen those guns that police find. Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Clothes really make the man

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one I cannot discuss with anyone else because it's very personal and some-I am a divorced, 45-year-old woman. I recently met a very charming, handsome, 48-year-old gentleman. I was attracted to him immediately. He is divorced, intelligent, masculine and well-educated. On our first date, he told me that he was very much attracted to me, but he had something to tell me if we were to have a second date. Then he told me that he enjoys dressing in women's clothing occasionally! He insisted he is not gay or bisexual, but he has a "need" to crossdress occasionally. (This includes makeup, high heels, a wig and women's clothing - which I assume includes women's underwear.) He told me that his first marriage broke up because his wife couldn't deal with his need to cross-dress oc-

Abby, this man is totally masculine and I am very much turned on by him, but I don't want to become involved in a situation I can't handle. What can you tell me about men who cross-dress? can't believe they are 100 percent male. Are there any women who have dated (or married) such men who can give me some advice?

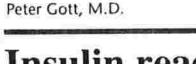

PEG IN SACRAMENTO DEAR PEG: Your charming, intelligent, masculine friend is a transvestite. Contrary to popular belief, not all transvestites are gay or bisexual; they are biological males who have an emotional need to dress as women occasionally. Many transvestites marry and have children. In some instances, their wives are aware of their need to cross-dress and are very supportive. However, some wives find this kind of behavior bizarre and disgusting and are unable (or unwilling) to

Your friend rates high marks for being honest with you on the first date. Whether you choose to become seriously involved with him will depend on your ability to be non-judgmental about his sexual needs. If you cannot accept this kind of behavior, say goodbye and forget him. But if you choose to have a relationship with his man, I suggest that you contact women who are happily married to transvestites. (Their numbers would startle you.) There are groups of transvestites who get together with their families to socialize and exchange experiences. If you are interested in contacting such a group, write to: Sacramento Gender Association, P.O. Box 417701, Sacramento, Calif. 95841. Please send a long, business-size, self-addressed,

Insulin reaction can be avoided

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is an insulin reaction? DEAR READER: Insulin reactions occur most commonly in diabetics who, for one reason or another, misjudge the amount of insulin they need and inject too much. In this circumstance, the insulin drives too much blood sugar into the cells, leading to hypoglycemia (low

Such a reaction causes lightheadedness, hunger, sweating, nervousness, palpitations and weakness. If the blood sugar is not restored to normal (above 50 milligrams per deciliter), patients can progress to confusion, convulsions, unconsciousness, coma and death.

Insulin reactions can also occur in diabetics who are using prescription pills, such as glyburide and sulfonylurea. These reactions are a dangerous but preventable consequence of modern diabetic therapy.

To avoid insulin reactions, diabetic patients should carefully monitor their blood sugar levels under a physician's supervision, be extremely cautious about increasing their doses of insulin or oral anti-diabetes medicine and always have an antidote at hand. Some experts recommend hard candy as an antidote, while others prefer sweetened fruit juices or commercially available
