

Cameroon gone, but won't be forgotten at World Cup

ROME — Indomitable. Incredible. Eliminated. The Lions of Cameroon are gone from the World Cup. They will not be forgotten.

Attention now turns to England, which eliminated the African champions 3-2 Sunday. And West Germany, which beat Czechoslovakia 1-0.

And Italy and Argentina, the host nation and the defending champion, who also are in the semifinals.

But it is Cameroon that won the hearts of everyone — including its opponents.

"It has been a great experience for all of us," team captain Stephen Tataw said.

"Cameroon was very tough," added Gary Linaker, who scored one of two penalty kicks in England's comeback victory. "They deserve all the credit in the world. They came in underestimated and have shown African football is very strong."

Not quite strong enough, though. The Africans, who began the World Cup by shocking Argentina, ended it with a lap around the stadium in Naples to ringing cheers. They had been undone by the loss of four starters to suspension, and by something else.

"It was not that one team played better or one team played worse," said Roger Milla, Cameroon's 38-year-old superstar, who had a role in both goals. "It was experience that decided it."

England went ahead 1-0 on a first-half goal by David Platt. But Cameroon, the first African nation to get past the second round, took the lead on goals five minutes apart early in the second half. Emmanuel Kumsie tied it with a 60th-minute penalty kick after Paul Gascoigne fouled Milla. Substitute Eugene Ekeke then scored in the 65th minute off a pass from Milla.

Back came England. Linaker was fouled in front of the net with eight minutes left in regulation and scored. He repeated the feat in the 15th minute of overtime.

"We showed character, resilience, spirit, effort and determination," Coach Bobby Robson said. "We had to hang in there in desperation for many periods of the match."

West Germany had no such problems. The 1-0 score is misleading — the Germans dominated the whole game and completely shut down Tomas Skuhravy, the tournament's leading scorer.

"We performed strongly as a defense, both offensively and on defense," Coach Franz Beckenbauer said. "Our main goal was to get to the semifinals, and we are there."

So in Italy, which has a string of five shutouts after a 1-0 win over Ireland on Saturday night, And Argentina survived a penalty kick shootout against Yugoslavia after a scoreless tie, winning 3-2 in the shootout.

In Brief . . .

Johnston wins wire to wire

KITCHENER, Ontario (AP) — Cathy Johnston completed an impressive wire-to-wire performance, beating Patsy Sheehan by two strokes in the LPGA du Maurier Classic golf tournament.

Johnston shot a 2-under-par 71 Sunday to complete four rounds at 276, 16 under for the 6,415-yard course at the Westmont Golf and Country Club.

Sheehan, who finished with a 69 for 278, cut Johnston's lead to two strokes with a birdie at No. 16, but missed a 15-footer for birdie at 17.

Walton wins French Open golf

CHARENTAY, France (AP) — Irishman Philip Walton sank a 20-foot putt on the second playoff hole to beat West Germany's Bernhard Langer in the $39,000 French Open golf tournament, his first-ever triumph on the European tour.

The victory earned Walton a $99,160 prize, the biggest in his career.

Robinson wins Camel GT

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Chip Robinson slipped past Davy Jones' Jaguar with five laps to go to win Sunday's Camel Continental VII IMSA Camel GT prototype sports car race at Watkins Glen International Raceway.

Robinson, whose car was co-driven by Bob Earl, wound up winning by 57.695 seconds over the Porsche 962C co-driven by James Weaver of England and Hurley Haywood of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla. Robinson and Earl won $10,000.

Evs wins Miller 125 race

WEST RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — Defending NASCAR Winston Northwest Tour champion Garrett Evans won the Miller 125 race at the Tri-City Raceway on Sunday and moved within six points of season-point leader John Dillman.

Evans averaged 70.37 mph in his 1990 Chevrolet Lumina for a three-second margin over pole-sitter Tobey Butler of Kirkland for his 22nd career win.

D'Eath sets speed record

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Tom D'Eath in the Miss Budweiser won his first Thunder on the Ohio race at an unlimited hydroplane record speed of 140,988 mph Sunday after his roostered into a battle with Miss Circus Circus.

The turbine-powered boats driven by D'Eath and Chip Hanauer battled it out deck-to-deck in the first two laps. But coming out of the second turn of the third lap, Hanauer's boat hit the powerful spray of water from the Miss Bud. The front end of the pink-and-white Circus Circus boat plucked into the air, allowing D'Eath to open a lead he never lost.

Filly wins Irish Derby

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Salabhill became the first filly since 1900 to win the Irish Derby on Sunday, spoiling jockey Pat Eddery's bid for a sweep of Europe's major derbies.

Trevino makes his point at Senior Open

By TOM CANAVAN
The Associated Press

PARAMUS, N.J. — Lee Trevino came into the U.S. Senior Open needing to prove something, and he did.

Trevino beat Jack Nicklaus and quipped those who said the only reason he was winning so much on the Senior Tour was because the Bear wasn't playing that much.

Not only did Trevino win, he did it the hard way. He came from behind, took the lead and held off a late charge after Nicklaus drew within a stroke on the back nine.

All Nicklaus was left with was excuses about his contacts and his poor start.

"This is great," Trevino said after shooting a final-round 67 Sunday to capture his first Senior Open by two shots over Nicklaus. "I just wish I would have played with him. It would have been the icing on the cake to play with him and win. It's always a feather in your hat to beat Jack Nicklaus in a golf tournament."

The problem for Trevino was that he had not beaten Nicklaus in three Senior Tour events and that tended to take away from his five wins this year.

Although Trevino led the Seniors in wins, money earned, scoring average and several other categories, the rap was Lee couldn't beat Jack.

Heading into the final round, it seemed Nicklaus was in position to tie it to Trevino again. He had rallied from five shots off the pace after the second round and grabbed the lead heading into the final round with a 67 when Trevino faltered with a third-round 73 at the Ridgewood Country Club.

That left two dream matchups for Sunday's final round: Nicklaus and Gary Player paired in the final group and Trevino and an injured Jim Dent in the next-to-last group.

"I was out on a mission today," Trevino said after he finished with a 13-under 275 total. "I had a tough night, but I slept last night. I played very foolish yesterday (Saturday) and I had trouble sleeping. I must have gone over my normal 50 times during the night."

When Trevino discovered what he had not taken enough time to plan his next-to-last group.

Chang feeling no pressure in match against Edberg

By ROB GLOSTER
The Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — Michael Chang just isn't any good at picking his fights.

The 13th-seeded American was giving away six inches and 35 pounds in his fourth-round opponent, Stefan Edberg.

Edberg, the 1988 Wimbledon champion, struggled through five sets to defeat Amos Mansdorf in the third round. He acknowledged he would be the favorite against Chang, who still is more comfortable on slow clay than grass.

"I feel that I have got a good chance on this surface," Edberg said. "I'll play solid, I think I should beat him."

Their last encounter marked Chang's passage into the tennis elite. It made him the youngest man's winner of the French Open and showed he could outlast a superbly conditioned athlete such as Edberg in the June heat of Paris.

Chang has been hampered by injuries for much of the time since then and Edberg also has had a somewhat disappointing record in the last 13 months.

He lost to Becker in last year's Wimbledon final, was knocked out of the U.S. Open by Jimmy Connors, defaulted in the final of this year's Australian Open because of injury and lost in the first round at the French Open five weeks ago.

While Chang and Edberg already were in the fourth round, top seed Ivan Lendl still had to struggle against Bryan Shelton in the consolation of a third-round match halted Saturday by darkness.

Lendl won the first set on a tiebreaker, but Shelton hit him well in the 24-year-old from Alabama, claimed the second set on a tiebreaker before play was suspended.

Preceding the Chang-Edberg clash on Centre Court was the first meeting between tennis' top woman, two-time defending champion Steffi Graf, and the youngster who hopes to replace her someday atop the world rankings.

A twelfth seed Jennifer Capriati, 14, struggled to get past Robin White in a three-set match in the third round, while Graf lost just 10 games in her three victories leading to the fourth round.

The most dramatic aspect of the change will be to make the use of nuclear weapons a highly unlikely last resort. Quietly, however, the NATO allies also will respond to a diminished Soviet threat by thinning out their ground forces along the East-West frontier.

Instead, the officials told The Associated Press on Monday, a heavy proportion of NATO troops will be deployed at various points behind the East-West line, prepared to rush to any breach in Western defenses.

Killer denied probation

STAMFORD (AP) — A motorist from New Jersey who struck and killed a state trooper in Greenwich has been denied admission to a probation program for first-time offenders.

Superior Court Judge Martin L. Nigro said he denied the application Monday because the November 1989 accident resulted in a fatality and because the application was opposed by the State Attorney's office, the dead trooper's family and by the Connecticut State Police.

"I think the family and the state have the right for this to be resolved," Nigro said in state Superior Court. "Culpability, in an issue that might only be resolved by a trial."

The motorist, Michael Murphy, 32, of Jersey City, N.J., has pleaded innocent to a charge of manslaughter with a motor vehicle in the Nov. 22 death of state trooper Jorge Agosto, 27, of Litchfield.

The state, in arguing against Murphy's application, said he failed to take proper care of his diabetic condition and either became confused or passed out while driving, lost control of his car and hit Agosto.

Interest rates may drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve policymakers meeting today are probably tilting toward nudging interest rates lower this summer, many economists predict.

The move, if it comes, would occur at an ideal time for President Bush. He is looking for a rate cut and renewed economic growth as a reward for abandoning his "no new taxes" pledge and reaching out to Democrats for a deficit-reduction pact.

The Federal Open Market Committee, which began its closed-door, two-day, mid-year policy review on Monday, likely will decide to cut rates in coming weeks as signs of economic softness emerge, analysts said. It may even decide to push rates down immediately by a quarter of a percentage point.

Hazelwood lawyers appeal

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Attorneys for the captain of the Exxon Valdez have appealed his misdemeanor conviction, arguing the judge should not have allowed prosecutors to use the skipper's blood-alcohol test.

Joseph Hazelwood is appealing his conviction by a state Superior Court jury on one count of negligent discharge of oil. He was acquitted March 22 of more serious charges that he had been drunk and reckless when the tanker ran aground.

He was ordered to pay $50,000 in restitution to the state of Alaska and to spend 1,000 hours scrubbing still-oiled beaches on Prince William Sound. The sentence was postponed pending the appeal before the Alaska Court of Appeals.

Attorneys raised 20 arguments in the appeal. They contended that trial Judge Karl Johnston erred in allowing evidence of Hazelwood's blood-alcohol test into the record. The test was taken 10 hours after the tanker grounded. They also argued the judge should have allowed the defense to introduce tests showing traces of alcohol and marijuana in the blood of Coast Guard employees on radar watch the night the tanker struck the reef.

Unemployment increases

WEST BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's unemployment has jumped by 50 percent in the last month, East Germany's labor minister says.

The minister, Regine Hildebrandt, said Monday that the latest figures show 150,000 East Germans are out of work, compared to 100,000 jobs at the beginning of June. In mid-April, 45,000 of East Germany's 8 million workers were unemployed.

However, Ms. Hildebrandt said in an interview broadcast on West Berlin's RIAS radio that 50,000 jobs were open.

She blamed slow Western investment for the increase in joblessness.

Bush to propose changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush will urge the NATO allies this week to adjust to changing times by adopting new strategies for repelling a Soviet attack with fewer nuclear weapons and fewer troops along Europe's East-West divide, U.S. officials say.

The most dramatic aspect of the change will be to make the use of nuclear weapons a highly unlikely last resort. Quietly, however, the NATO allies also will respond to a diminished Soviet threat by thinning out their ground forces along the East-West frontier.

Instead, the officials told The Associated Press on Monday, a heavy proportion of NATO troops will be deployed at various points behind the East-West line, prepared to rush to any breach in Western defenses.

Elderly complex opposed

By NANCY FOLEY
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Many elderly people need congregate housing, but a controversial development plan in Manchester will not provide it, according to a chief opponent.

Margaret Jacobson of 143 Boulder Road, said Monday that because the proposed Lyman Spring Village will be privately owned, most of the elderly on a waiting list for housing will not be able to afford rooms there.

"Aside from all our other objections, I don't think there's a marketable need for this," Jacobson said.

A public hearing will be held July 16 on the application by Patricia C. Cook, widow of developer Aaron Cook, for a 322-unit congregate housing complex on a 28.1-acre site located south of East Middle Turnpike off Riverside Drive.

For the frail elderly, the housing would provide shared facilities and services, such as housekeeping.

Lawrence Rubinow, an attorney who is representing Cook, said Monday night that although the complex would not provide subsidized housing, some of the units would be moderately priced. He said there is a great need for the housing, citing a list of several hundred people who want access to town-owned congregate housing for the elderly.

At a meeting of the Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night, Rubinow said because of the public concern over the proposal, his client would agree to holding a public hearing on an inland wetland application for the property on July 16. A hearing has already been set for that date to consider the request for a special exception to build elderly congregate housing.

"Because this is a very controversial matter and because the applicant does not desire to keep the public from scrutinizing this item and keeping it from being heard, we will agree that the inland wetland application may be heard at the public hearing on the 16th," Rubinow told the commission.

"She put me up to it," he said. "It makes me bitter to think that she could walk away from this."

Despite Coleman's testimony against her, Aparo, 19, was found innocent Monday.

Coleman: She's guilty

COLEMAN COMMENTS — Dennis Coleman, commenting at a news conference Monday, said his former girl-friend Karin Aparo is guilty of conspiracy to commit murder.

HARTFORD (AP) — A bitter Dennis Coleman said the jury in Karin Aparo's murder conspiracy trial "didn't have the heart to put her in jail," and she should be tried again on the charge the jury couldn't resolve.

Coleman, speaking calmly and quietly during a 30-minute news conference Monday, said Aparo faked tears and manipulated the jury just as she manipulated him into killing her.

"I'll victim to it and in some ways I think the jury did too," Coleman said.

Koreas agree to meet

By M.H. AHN
The Associated Press

PANMUNJOM, Korea — In a major breakthrough toward reconciliation of the two Koreas, the North and South today completed negotiations on terms for a historic summit by prime ministers of the rival nations.

The meeting would be the first talks between top government leaders of the North since the 1945 division of the peninsula into the Communist North and capitalist South. The talks could be held as early as August.

South Korean negotiator Song Han-bo told delegates at today's session that the summit will open "a new chapter for realizing peaceful unification of the peninsula."

"We cannot stick to the logic of the Cold War and ignore changes in the world any longer," he said.

The North's delegate, Paik Nam Jun, said today's talks "marked a new milestone in the history of the North-South Korea dialogue."

The delegates agreed to meet in the border village of Panmunjom on July 26 to sign a negotiated accord that would outline a proposed agenda for the top-level talks.

The agreement calls for those talks to be held in alternating capitals, starting with the South Korean city of Seoul.

The session was the first in five months. The North suspended dialogue to protest joint U.S.-South Korean military maneuvers.

Although today's developments were hailed as a milestone in Korea dialogue, some longtime observers cautioned the talks could still falter.

Years of hostility have bred distrust on both sides. The two countries are still technically at war because no peace treaty was signed after the Korean war from 1950 to 1953.

Gorbachev opponents launch offensive

By BRIAN FRIEDMAN
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Conservatives mounted a counteroffensive against some of Mikhail S. Gorbachev's reforms today at a crucial Communist Party congress that could help determine the fate of the Soviet president's ambitious program.

Hard-line Politburo member Ygor K. Ligachev won thunderous applause from the 4,567 delegates at the 28th party congress when he angrily denounced what he described as a media campaign against conservative party members and their allies in the military.

"In our day, there are forces going against socialism and the Communist Party ... and they have great influence in the mass media," Ligachev said.

Gorbachev, who is general secretary of the party, sat stone-faced as Ligachev and other conservatives criticized reforms that they said were weakening the authority of the party.

Ligachev, leading the conservatives' attack, was followed to the podium by two other prominent conservatives, KGB chairman Vladimir A. Kryuchkov and Defense Minister Marshal Dmitri T. Yarov.

Gorbachev ally, Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, answered with a strong defense of reform, or perestroika, and of Gorbachev's efforts to shift power from the party to government and legislative bodies.

Shevardnadze, who has been the point man in arms deals with the United States, fended off criticism of "concessions in the security area."

"Squandering a quarter of our budget on military expenditures, we have ruined the country," he said. "We shall have no need for defense, because a ruined country and an impoverished people have no need for an army."

He praised Soviet policy toward Eastern Europe, where since last August new, more democratic governments have replaced what he called "totalitarian regimes that had been imposed on them and were alien to them."

"We forecast this. We sensed that if there were not changes, there would be tragedy," he said.

In a remark that ran counter to Soviet tradition, Shevardnadze said he did not want to see the USSR, page 6.

Kidnapped miner is home for 4th

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Scott Heimdal got a hero's welcome in his hometown from friends and strangers who helped raise the $60,000 ransom his South American kidnappers demanded for the release of the American gold miner.

Heimdal said he intends to return to Ecuador. "It's really a wonderful country," he said.

Earlier Monday during a stopover in Miami, he identified his captors as members of the communist People's Liberation Army. He said they treated him with "great respect" and wished him "good luck" on his release.

TV camera lights, reporters' questions and a jubilant crowd of about 100 well-wishers deluged the Heimdals as they entered Peoria airport.

This has been the longest day of our lives," said Linda Heimdal, one of his sisters.

Marcos, Khashoggi cleared of all criminal charges

By VERA HALLER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Imelda Marcos got a birthday present Monday: A jury cleared her of charges she looted $222 million from the Philippines and hid the money by buying art and real estate with the help of Saudi financier Adnan Khashoggi.

The U.S. District Court verdict, on Mrs. Marcos' 61st birthday, reduced the former Philippines first lady to tears and sent her supporters into jubilant celebration.

The jury also acquitted Khashoggi, the jet-setter once known as the world's richest man, of charges that he helped Mrs. Marcos and her late husband conceal ownership of four New York buildings.

"This is the best birthday present I ever had," said a beaming Mrs. Marcos as she left the courtroom.

"I am in great awe and respect for the jury system that symbolizes the soul of the American people," she said.

Mrs. Marcos went directly to St. Patrick's Cathedral, where she walked on her knees down the aisle to the altar, then bowed her head to the floor and prayed.

From St. Patrick's she went to the Manhattan apartment she has been staying during the trial, where friends and supporters celebrated with her into the evening.

She emerged from the apartment shortly before 10 p.m. Asked about her plans for the future, she said, "Home."

Mrs. Marcos then got into a van with several friends. They were reportedly headed to the party at a Manhattan restaurant, with Khashoggi as host.

Mrs. Marcos, 54, also praised the American jury system.

"I feel very happy for myself and my family and for the United States," he said earlier. A Muslim, he said he planned to leave New York to make pilgrimage to Mecca, Islam's holiest city.

As was his habit during the trial, Khashoggi returned to his posh midtown apartment and worked with strangers and signing autographs. Once above ground, he and his wife used a cellular phone and call friends in France, England and California with the news.

Mr. Marcos was in tears. She smiled and hugged her lawyers.

The prosecutors said the face of the judge, eyes downcast.

In a terse statement, the office of U.S. Attorney Otto Obermaier praised the work of the trial prosecutors and said: "The jury has rendered its verdict. Our system of justice has spoken."

The jury acquitted both defendants of all charges — racketeering, racketeering conspiracy, mail fraud and obstruction of justice against Mrs. Marcos, and mail fraud and obstruction of justice against Khashoggi.

The jury announced its verdict in the fifth day of deliberations after a three-month trial. Prosecutors called 95 witnesses. The defense, led by Marcos attorney Gerry Spence, called none.

"It was a poorly prepared case," forewoman Katherine Ballou said later in a telephone interview.

"There was nothing to convince any of them that there was a case."

When Ballou read the first innocent verdict in court, Marcos supporters cried out, ignoring Judge John F. Keenan's warning against leaving.

Diplomats said about 1,400 pilgrims were killed. Asian and Middle Eastern diplomats, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said most of the victims were Malaysian and Indonesian pilgrims.

The official Saudi media gave no specific casualty figure, though King Fahd acknowledged indirectly that there had been a large loss of life.

He called the dead "martyrs of the Islamic world."

"Had they not died there, they would have died elsewhere and at the same predetermined moment," the king said at a meeting Monday night with pilgrims security officials.

The deaths shattered what had been a peaceful observance of the annual hajj and was the worst pilgrimage tragedy in recent years.

"God willing, we will see no tragedies in the coming years," he said.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY — Financier Adnan Khashoggi and Imelda Marcos were found not guilty of charges in their respective trials on fraud and looting charges, yesterday in New York.

Fireworks feared, could start fires

By E. SCOTT RECKARD
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Infrared cameras zoomed in on the last hot spots at the Santa Barbara fire Monday, and officials warned that July 4 fireworks could touch off a new plague of wildfires in the parched West.

"I hate that term 'safe and sane fireworks' because it's a misnomer," said Santa Barbara Fire Chief Richard Jorgensen.

Jorgensen and other Orange County fire chiefs boycotted a fireworks safety news conference two years ago when they learned that manufacturers of legal fireworks were also scheduled to appear.

"First of all, they burn at a temperature over a thousand degrees," Jorgensen said. "We teach kids all year long not to play with fire, then we turn around on the Fourth of July and put them in their hands and let them lit it's fun."

Independence Day revelers often show lapses in judgment, like some young Fountain Valley adults caught lobbing fireworks back and forth at each other, they stood on a wood roof, he said.

Near Santa Barbara, where 430 houses and 28 apartment buildings were destroyed, an overnight scare reminded edge firefighters that they had only won a reprieve in what promises to be a months-long battle, fire Capt. Christie Johnson said.

At 4 a.m. Monday, gusts suddenly reached 35 mph near where the firestorm began Wednesday. The humidity dropped into the teens. The temperature rose to 79. Sparks were chummed up into air.

Anyone near locations where the blazes broke out was urged to contact authorities no matter how sketchy their information.

"No matter how insignificant they think it is, when they add it to what we've got it may break the case open," Santa Barbara sheriff's Sgt. Tim Graczy said.

Southern California, southern Colorado, southern Utah, Arizona and New Mexico are severely affected by a four-year drought, with big "flash fuel" crops of dry grasses ready to ignite, said national Fire Information Center spokesman Sheldon Winner.

There have been fires in all those places in the past week. In Arizona, U.S. Forest Service officials estimated that a lightning fire in the Tonto Forest did $5.7 million damage and cost nearly that much in firefighting expenses and wages. It was the worst forest fire in Arizona possession. He also is accused of conspiracy and three counts of lying to a federal grand jury about his involvement with drugs.

Barry seven times declined Moore's offer to use drugs during the sting, Mundy said as he went over the transcript of the Jan. 18 hotel room meeting between the mayor and Moore.

"You provided the encouragement by bringing the subject up ad nauseam," Mundy told Moore, a former Barry girlfriend.

Moore didn't deny Mundy's suggestion that she keep bringing up the subject of drugs. But she said Barry readily engaged in discussing drugs and initiated talk about them himself on more than one occasion in the hotel room. Any hesitance on Barry's part stemmed from his suspicions that something was amiss, she said.

On the videotape, Barry said he didn't know how the crack pipe worked and that he had never smoked crack before, Mundy pointed out.

Barry was suspicious of a "hotel room situation" and "felt intuitively something was going on," said Moore. "He was guarding his conversation."

"Then 'why did he go on and hit the pipe?' Mundy asked.

"Because he had a desire to," Moore replied.

WASHINGTON — Marion Barry's lawyer is using the government's videotaped evidence in an attempt to show that the mayor was entraped by the FBI into smoking crack cocaine.

Former model Rasheeda Moore provided "the pipe" — the light and the know-how" for Barry to use crack, defense attorney R. Kenneth Mundy said Monday as he replayed the videotape of the FBI sting at the mayor's drug and perjury trial.

The tape was first played publicly last week by the prosecution. It portrays one of the 10 misdemeanor charges accusing Barry of cocaine

Iran thanks all, except for U.S.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — President Hasani Rafsanjani of Iran sent messages Monday to 96 world leaders thanking them for helping the victims of last month's earthquake, but he left out the United States.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said Rafsanjani thanked the leaders for their sympathy, financial contributions and material aid.

It listed 98 countries, Soviet republics, Arab emirates or U.N. agencies. But the United States, which Iran once called the "Great Satan," was missing from the list.

"Despite the history of ill will between the two nations, the U.S. government provided $760,000 in aid for the earthquake survivors, according to the State Department. The State Department said private American groups have sent an additional $4 million in aid.

The money was accepted, although some Iranians argued fiercely that it should be rejected.

Rafsanjani, who has been seeking to improve relations with the West, is at odds with hard-liners in his government who shun any contacts

1,400 killed in Mecca stampede

MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP) — A ventilation-system failure was blamed today for a stampede in a packed pedestrian tunnel linking this holy city with a tent city. Diplomats said about 1,400 pilgrims suffocated or were trampled to death.

Sources said a power failure caused the air conditioning in the 1,500-foot-long, 60-foot-wide tunnel to switch off in 112-degree heat on Monday, setting off the stampede.

"It was God's will, which is above everything," King Fahd said of the disaster. "It was fate."

The disaster occurred during the hajj, the world's largest religious gathering, which draws about 2 million Moslems. Observances had largely ended, and pilgrims were observing post-hajj rituals or preparing to leave.

Diplomats said about 1,400 pilgrims were killed. Asian and Middle Eastern diplomats, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said most of the victims were Malaysian and Indonesian pilgrims.

The official Saudi media gave no specific casualty figure, though King Fahd acknowledged indirectly that there had been a large loss of life.

He called the dead "martyrs of the Islamic world."

"Had they not died there, they would have died elsewhere and at the same predetermined moment," the king said at a meeting Monday night with pilgrims security officials.

The deaths shattered what had been a peaceful observance of the annual hajj and was the worst pilgrimage tragedy in recent years.

"God willing, we will see no tragedies in the coming years," he said.

MOSLEM PILGRIMAGE — Thousands of pilgrims crowd near Mecca. About 1,400 moslems were killed in a stampede Monday.

Scientists try to improve pictures

By PAUL RECKER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Fuzzy images from the Hubble Space Telescope may be improved to sharp, crisp pictures through the same computer process that cleaned up photos taken by the Voyager spacecraft.

Leonard Fisk, chief scientist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Monday that scientists are studying the possibility of using computer-enhancing techniques to remove the focusing flaw from star pictures taken by the Hubble.

"You are all going to be delighted with the kind of results that the telescope produces in the next few years," despite a manufacturing bug that causes star light gathered by the telescopes two main mirrors to be out of focus, Fisk said.

NASA engineers, meanwhile, stepped up tests designed to find and isolate a hydrogen leak that has grounded the nation's three space shuttles.

Helium under 30 pounds of pressure was forced into the hydrogen rocket fuel system of space shuttle Atlantis as it sat Monday on a launch pad at the Kennedy Space Center. A similar test, using super-cold liquid hydrogen, revealed a leak last week.

Plumbing and valves from Columbia, which was grounded last month when a hydrogen leak was found, are now being tested at the shuttle manufacturer's plant in California.

Engineers hope the tests will pinpoint precisely how the hydrogen leaks from the shuttle and fuel tank while the supercold liquid rocket fuel is being loaded. The leaks, occurring within weeks of each other

Teachers, union battle

By LEE MITGANG
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Just when teacher union chief Albert Shanker was starting to sound like a mellowed elder statesman, the old firebrand re-emerged with an attack on school boards and administrators he accuses of impeding reform.

In his opening address Monday before 3,200 delegates at the American Federation of Teachers annual convention, Shanker virtually declared an end to the decades-old feud with the National Education Association.

The two teacher unions are finally cooperating, seeing eye-to-eye on most key issues, he said — though officials of both unions hastened to add that merger is at best a distant dream.

Moments later, the president of the 744,000-member AFT, once considered so feisty that Woody Allen portrayed him as the cause of World War III in the film "Sleepers," told reporters that school boards and administrators have failed to act on reform despite his union's flexibility.

Insisting he was not trying to "hurt" or "destroy" school leaders, he said, "What I'm shocked about is they're not acting like intelligent managers."

Unless reform proceeds more quickly, Shanker warned, the public will turn to more drastic schemes like giving parents the right to use tax dollars to send their kids wherever they want, including private school.

Such a plan already is in place in Milwaukee, he pointed out.

Those were just his opening shots. Shanker indicated he'd have more to say on Wednesday in an address to the convention.

National School Boards Association, expelled by Shanker, and Thomas Shannon replied by calling Shanker "myopic and forgetful."

"One of the biggest obstacles to change is collective bargaining contracts. You can't always just change things," said Shannon, reached by telephone at his Washington office.

Defending DiRosa

To the Editor:

We were greatly disturbed by your editorial on Wednesday, 6/27/90, entitled "DiRosa's Civic Leadership." As parents of two Manchester High School students, we would be delighted to have our daughters taught by a person of Peter DiRosa's caliber.

The arguments you present are, for the most part, fallacious.

It is precisely because Peter DiRosa has been willing to become involved in the political process and has devoted countless hours to serving our community that he represents the kind of role model we seek for our children. To engage students' minds, a social studies teacher must have more than just memorized the text book and have taught the same lesson plan for twenty years. We are sure that Peter DiRosa will be able to enrich his lessons from the wealth of his experience.

Unlike the Manchester Herald, we feel no need to cast aspersions upon the judgments of James Spafford, the principal of Manchester High School, or Richard Dyer, the Chairman of the Board of Education.

In Peter DiRosa, we feel Manchester High School will get the enthusiasm and creativity of a new teacher with the maturity and life experience of a respected community figure.

A job well-done

To the Editor:

On behalf of the Bowers Elementary School P.T.A., I am writing to thank the many town employees and officials who helped and supported the preparations for our recent presentation of Vidler's Old Time Circus at the high school. Members of the Police Department, town Fire Department, Town Manager's office, buildings and grounds office in the Education Department, zoning enforcement office, and Building Inspection and Permit department are all to be commended for their efforts. We also acknowledge the support of Reliable Refuse Company in South Windsor, and want to express special thanks to the many members of our community who attended or contributed to our fund-raising event. We are pleased that everyone under the "big top" had a great time and helped us meet our goal. It was our efforts to build a first-class playground that the entire community can enjoy.

Music awards

To the Editor:

Last Monday evening, the Board of Education, in Manchester had a special ceremony for three children from each elementary school to receive their awards.

The children were from different grades. They were awarded certificates for having different achievements in several fields.

Our granddaughter, Kim, was delighted with one in music. She loves it. Manchester has music, violin and other instruments too. Art, too. We were so thrilled that Manchester schools recognize that children "hear" different "drummers" and encourage it too.

I am tired of hearing how awful the schools are. The administration and the teachers, parents too, work hard to help children reach their potential.

Thank you, Manchester, that includes you taxpayers, who are willing to foot the bills to bring us today's children opportunities to grow and become a credit to society... and their families. God bless you all!

Animal rights

To the Editor:

I was very disappointed with the minimal news coverage of the June 10th March for the Animals. This march was historic in significance in that it was the first march ever on behalf of non-human animals, not unlike the civil rights marches and women's suffrage in recent past. The purpose of the march was not only to stop animal research in medicine, as seemed the predominant theme in media coverage, but also to organize to draw attention to the plight of non-human animals without regard to specific issues. On Monday, June 11th, following the march, representatives met with members of Congress to support bills affecting both wild and domestic animals. Many of these issues are environmental as well as "animal" issues. Unfortunately, none of this was presented. What often followed was coverage of Fran Truitt's case seeming to again present the viewpoint that all of us who care about animals are "terrorists."

We believe that the future of this planet depends on the diversity of life and a respect for all creatures. We maintain that each species serves a purpose and since it has been the human animal who has been responsible for exploiting non-human animals, we are also responsible for their protection and preservation. Most of us take educational approaches to presenting animal issues, not militant ones. We believe in informing the masses about these issues and letting everyone come to their own conclusions, though we would hope that this conclusion is at least a respect for animals and the environment.

The other fallacy often perpetuated is that we don't care about people. We respect ALL life which, incidentally, includes humans, non-humans, and the rest of the biosphere. Compassion and concern transcend the species barrier.

It was unfortunate that this historic event was downplayed. Had it been properly researched and reported on it could well have been one of the best social and environmental stories of the year, if not the decade.

Choice needed in schools

By Vincent Carroll

Memos to public-school administrators: Better brace yourselves. As rough as the 1980s were on your reputations and peace of mind, this decade is going to be worse.

No doubt you hoped that the idea of strengthening schools by forcing them to compete was a piece of fancy, promoted mostly by former President Reagan and a few right-wing enemies of public schools. No doubt you cheered when your mercurial critic Bill Bennett resigned as secretary of education a couple of years ago, to be replaced by the milquetoast Lauro Cavazos, an apparent pushover for the education establishment.

Even the election of George Bush as president must have been mildly soothing for you—for when had this mild ascendant ever promoted a radical notion in his life?

And yet, surprise of surprises: Educational choice and competition are ideas that just won't die. Bush has outtraced them. Even Cavazos, ever the obedient bureaucrat, has climbed on board.

Far more ominous for the educational establishment, a growing number of liberals have stopped defending the

Taxpayer, Congress, vs. IRS

By Jack Anderson and Dale van Atta

WASHINGTON — In June 1988, Alex Council of Pflafftown, N.C., killed himself, blaming his fate on the Internal Revenue Service. He left a note for his wife Kay: "I have taken a life in order to provide capital for you. The IRS and its lieus, which have been taken against our government have tried up all sources of credits for us. So I have made the only decision I can. It's purely a business decision. I hope you can understand that. I love you completely, Alex."

The Council family has been fighting a running battle with the IRS for nine months. Four months after Alex Council's death, Kay Council went to court when the IRS refused to pay the $300,000 in taxes, penalties and interest that it claimed the Councils owed.

Tangling with the IRS does not normally have a fatal outcome. But many taxpayers who square off with the tax man experience losses and repercussions that last a lifetime. Challenging the feds' major ship review, even when you know you are right, can be overwhelming and, in some cases, impossible.

A congressional investigation recently concluded that the IRS audit was wrong anyway. If it happened to you, would you accept defeat and pay the money or would you stand up to the IRS?

The Navy has strongly supported the concept of two contractors building submarines to promote competition between Electric Boat and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co.

Some senators recognize the advantage of the IRS has and they have tried to shift the odds toward the taxpayer. Most recently Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., introduced a series of "Fair Play for Taxpayers Bills." They provide for taxpayers to get their expenses back if they win their cases, allow taxpayers to sue the IRS for carelessness and make the IRS pay the same interest as the taxpayer would on disputed taxes.

Armstrong told our reporter Paul Zimmerman that the IRS can be "very creative." He added, "Even if you win your case in court, you lose by paying court costs."

One provision in Armstrong's plan would put an end to a bit of IRS skulduggery — the use of tax accountants to lit on their clients.

The IRS uses between 750 and 900 "controlled informants" a year — people who spill information that the IRS subsequently uses to go after a delinquent taxpayer. Incidentally, an estimated 20 of those informants are tax accountants.

Unlike lawyers, accountants are not bound by confidentiality requirements with their clients. The American Association of Public Accountants deplores the practice, but it happens anyway.

A St. Louis man recently discovered, "We're very glad to have lit," said Bernie McKenna, a spokesman for Save Our State, a group of UNC workers lobbying for continued government contracts. "We're making progress with them."

Naval base is not needed

By Tom Tiede

QUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE, Cuba — When Capt. John Boyd has something to say to the nearly 7,000 people under his command at this unique American facility, he often prints a note in his personal hand and has it posted on the bulletin board. He calls it the "Skipper's Message," and it is normally a cheerful composition of modest humor and straightforwardness.

Recently, however, Boyd got indignant and angry. He quoted statistics that indicate that two out of three members of Congress have never served in the military, and he suggested that Navy people have an obligation to "vote out the SOB's who don't recognize Navy and Marine contributions to the national defense."

The message was remarkably grouchful for an officer who owes his rank to congressional confirmation. Yet the reason was written between the lines. Peace is breaking out all over the world, and America's military leaders are extraordinarily sensitive to the related efforts in Washington to cut back on service spending.

The sensitivity is especially evident here at what is said to be the armed forces' oldest overseas base. It may be old, but it's not venerated. In fact, it has never enjoyed universal popularity. There have been critics right from the start — some of them in Congress — who have felt that Guantanamo is defensible.

That start, chronologically, was after the Spanish-American War. The United States leased land and water rights here in 1903, partly to protect a friendly Cuba from any Spanish. Critics immediately complained that the installation was an imperialistic encroachment in the Caribbean portion of the hemisphere.

The objections continued through World War I, because the cost of running the base had to be subtracted from the fighting and dying in Europe. And there was more grumbling during the World War II, when the argument was that the Navy should have come home from the Antilles to take care of the thin U.S. coastal defenses.

The condemnations of this U.S. base were heightened by Fidel Castro's seizure of Cuba in 1959. The U.S. present mediocre system and have begun to ally themselves with reformers who would strip districts of their suffocating bureaucracies, force schools to compete with private schools, and empower parents and teachers.

The most potent new advocates for such restructuring are John Chubb and Terry Moe, authors of "Politics, Markets, and America's Schools," a book just published by the liberal Brookings Institution. Chubb and Moe were right to the heart of why America's schools have become assembly lines of intellectual mediocrity: "We believe existing institutions cannot solve the problem, because they are the problem — and that the key to better schools is institutional reform."

In other words, none of the favored tactics of the past decade — merit pay, revised curricula, higher salaries, greater accountability through regular testing — will give America the schools it needs. Incentives must be changed. They radically and diversity of schools must be increased and control over them supplied decentralized. Parents (and teachers, too) must be free to choose the type of school they prefer so that schools will either shape up or fail in the marketplace.

Chubb and Moe outline a series of steps that any state could take to achieve

Choice needed in schools

By Vincent Carroll

goals, while taking special care to prevent at-risk children from falling through the cracks.

Not everyone needs the eloquent prompting of Chubb and Moe to get moving. Wisconsin state Rep. Polly Williams, who hails from inner-city Milwaukee and who twice has chaired Jesse Jackson's campaign in Wisconsin, persuaded her legislature to pass the nation's first experiment in school vouchers for low-income children.

Having despaired over Milwaukee's public schools, she designed a bill that would allow 1,000 low-income students to attend private, non-sectarian schools that fall. Those schools will receive $2,500 for each public school student who enrolls, while the same amount will be subtracted from Milwaukee's dismal (but far richer) system.

Naturally, the education establishment is in a frenzy, and a teachers' union is suing to have the law declared unconstitutional. If the union wins, it will crush the dreams of 1,000 parents and children who prefer to see their children in a better education, too — and not only in Milwaukee. Which means this decade's educational battle could make the 1980s look like a long afternoon snooze.

Finally, Boyd claims it does not make political or economic sense to pull up stakes at this time. He says Castro may have been weakened by the global communist fallings and by his growing isolation in the Americas, but "he is still as consistently radical as ever, he is still hanging on to his power."

And even if the dictator were to fall, the captain says the United States would be wise to stay put. He maintains that the policies in Cuba have always been volatile and probably would remain unpredictable without Castro. "So I don't think we would want to give up the base and one day have an unfriendly force take it over."

As for the economics, well, this is something Boyd can yet put into his Skipper's Message: The U.S. lease of Guantanamo Bay may be the best real estate bargain since the Alaska purchase. The nation used to pay $2,000 a year for it; now the price is $4,000. Thus, since the beginning of the 20th century, it has cost something in the neighborhood of a few pounds of large Navy ordnance.

EB won't close, says Pentagon

By JOHN DIAMOND The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon says it has no plans to close one of its two submarine shipyards due to budget cutbacks but that hasn't kept the yard owners from nervously following internal Defense Department deliberations.

The Department of Defense denied reports Monday that it is considering eliminating either the General Dynamics Electric Boat Division in Groton, Conn., or Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. in Newport News, Va.

The denial contradicted reports in a defense industry weekly publication, inside the Navy, and a broadcast report on CBS News indicating that two top aides to Defense Secretary Richard Cheney recommended cutting one of the two submarine yards as a cost-saving move. The recommendations reportedly came at a "major warship review" being conducted by Cheney.

"Deputy Defense Secretary Donald Atwood and Undersecretary John Bell have not made any recommendations to Cheney," said spokeswoman Chris Cimko. "Under the major ship review, they've presented a menu of alternatives. Cutting the submarine shipbuilding capacity was not one of them."

The Navy has strongly supported the concept of two contractors building submarines to promote competition between Electric Boat and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co.

Laid-off workers given $1 million

By JOHN DIAMOND The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Workers at the troubled UNC Naval Products Division in Montville, Conn., welcomed a Labor Department grant to help their laid-off colleagues, but they need contracts, not job training.

The Labor Department announced a $1 million grant Monday to help hundreds of workers laid off by UNC after the Navy canceled nuclear submarine reactor purchases.

The money, approved by Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole, will go to fund on-the-job training or classroom and vocational training. The grant amounts to $2,650 per worker, a figure based on the assumption that not all the laid off workers will participate.

A UNC employee involved in an organized effort to save the company said the grant was good news for the roughly 400 workers who have lost their jobs but did not address the deeper problem of keeping UNC from closing its doors.

"We're very glad to have lit," said Bernie McKenna, a spokesman for Save Our State, a group of UNC workers lobbying for continued government contracts. "We're making progress with them."

UNC employees have said the discussions surrounded a possible UNC role in the Strategic Defense Initiative project, which involves research into an anti-missile defense system. A source confirmed that Virginia-based contractor for providing nuclear submarine engines. Originally, the Navy preferred buying from two sources to promote competition. But with submarine construction expected to slow, the cost advantages of having two contractors diminished.

UNC announced that given the discussion about cutting one of its two submarine contractors stemmed from a plan to cut production of Seawolf submarines from three to two per year. Both CBS and the Virginia Navy reported that if one contractor was cut, it would likely be Newport News since the Virginia facility is a high-speed, deep-drafting vessel designed to attack and destroy enemy submarines.

Electric Boat spokesman Neil Ruenzel said "we have no hint as to what their recommendations will be," said Schmaecher, a spokesman for Newport News, said the company was aware of the reports but would not comment.

Register sold to investment firm

By LARRY ROSENTHAL The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN — A New York investment firm's acquisition of the New Haven Register should help strengthen the newspaper's financial position and prevent further reductions in staffing, said the Register's chief executive officer, who survived the change in ownership.

Publisher Ralph Ingersoll II announced Monday he had agreed to sell the Register to a group of investors, which will be Ingersoll's partner for the past eight years.

"They are not strangers riding over the hill but people I've known over the years," said Thomas P. Geyer, chief executive officer of the New Haven newspaper.

Warburg, Pincus and Co., which will be the new owner of the Register and the rest of the Ingersoll papers, is a New York investment firm that has been Ingersoll's partner for the past eight years.

"They are not strangers riding over the hill but people I've known over the years," said Thomas P. Geyer, chief executive officer of the New Haven newspaper.

Like other newspapers, the Register has been suffering from a nationwide slump in advertising revenues that has resulted in staff reductions. At the Register, the new staff has shrunk by about 7 percent in a little over a year, at a time when advertising volume has dropped by 20 percent, Geyer said.

A Warburg partner, John Vogelstein, called Geyer to say "the wishes of peace and continued good things," Geyer said.

"I think this should guarantee we don't have to get any thinner," Geyer said.

GETTING HEALTH INSURANCE IS IT A PROBLEM FOR YOU?

If it is, we've got the solution. The Health Reinsurance Association (Connecticut) was established in 1975 by the Connecticut legislature. HRA provides health insurance for all Connecticut residents who are individuals who qualify for Medicare due to age. HRA provides a comprehensive health insurance program with a million-dollar maximum and an in-hospital medical loss of your health status.

The program covers:

- Hospital charges
- Physician charges
- Nursing Care, Skilled Nursing Facility Care and Home Health Agency expenses
- Prescription Drug charges
- Emergency Ambulance charges
- Hospital Outpatient fees

AND MUCH MORE

Of course, there are limitations. For example, charges for medical conditions existing or treated within 90 days of the start of coverage will be excluded under the program for the first 12 months of coverage.

For more information on coverage, costs, limitations and exclusions, contact your local health insurance agent. Or write HRA, One Lower State Street, New Britain, Connecticut 06105.

Fleet/Norstar sued by shareholders

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Norstar shareholders are suing Fleet-Norstar Financial Group Inc. for allegedly concealing the extent of problem loans at the company's banks.

Three lawsuits filed in U.S. District Court in Providence allege that the company failed to make timely disclosure of its loan problems, thereby artificially inflating its profits and the price of its stock.

The shareholders also allege that Fleet did not do that after the lawsuits were filed in early April.

"We've done everything that's required," said Fleet spokesman Charles T. Conway Jr. He declined to comment on the lawsuits, citing the bank's policy against commenting on pending litigation.

The lawsuits were filed by shareholders Stanford Wynn and Steven Wallerstein April 4, by Joseph Weitzman April 5 and by Robert Abramsky and Rodney B. Shields April 6.

Each seeks to represent all shareholders as a class action, and none requests specific monetary damages.

General Signal buys Italian co.

STAMFORD (AP) — General Signal Corp. says it has acquired a majority interest in Borri S.p.A. Electronics Industriale, an Italian manufacturer of mid- to large-size uninterruptible power supplies.

Edmund M. Carpenter, chairman and chief executive officer of the Stamford, Conn. company, said Monday the Italian company, which posted sales of $16 million in 1989, will augment the uninterrupted power supplies product lines of General Signal's Sola Electric unit.

"The Borri acquisition also reflects General Signal's continuing effort to expand internationally," Carpenter said.

Police Roundup

Passenger leaves accident scene

A passenger involved in a two-car accident Sunday at the intersection of Cooperhill Street and Fairfield Street fled the scene before medical personnel arrived, police said.

Tyler Sacoccia apparently fled the scene because he was wanted by East Hartford police, police said. The accident occurred when one car went through a stop sign striking the other, police said. The driver of the vehicle in which Sacoccia was traveling, Anoupheng Lengsavath of Hartford, initially denied Sacoccia's involvement in the incident, but subsequently identified him, police said.

Man charged with interference

A Manchester man was charged with interfering with a police officer following a fight at his residence Sunday, police said.

Richard D. Millbury of 90 Rachel Rd. and Stanley Stulpin of East Hartford both were charged with breach of peace, police said. Upon their arrest however, Millbury resisted attempts by a Manchester police officer to handcuff him, police said.

Millbury was released on $250 non-surety bond. Stulpin was released on $100 non-surety bond. Both are scheduled to appear July 11 in Manchester Superior Court.

Thoughts

"Naked I came from my mother's womb, and naked I will depart." These are the words of Job, a man the Bible calls "the greatest man in the East." This was his response to having lost all his dearest possessions in a single day. He lost not only his houses, lands, and material things, but his family (children, grandchildren, friends), everything that one holds close to the heart. Now, without trying to be a pessimist, imagine with me for just a moment and see if you can picture yourself in these circumstances. Everything that means anything to you has all been swept away in an instant. What would you do? What would you say?

You may be interested to know that this man Job went on to say, "May the name of the Lord be praised." Did he have no emotions? Was he less than human? I don't think so. I'm sure he felt every emotion you and I would feel. Yet in the midst of his despair there was one thing that changed everything.

"Never will I leave you, never will I forsake you."

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Family rate is adequate

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my sister's son (I'll call him Steve) was in minor trouble with the law, and my husband, who is an attorney, represented him in court. It involved only a few hours of his time, but took time away from other things he was working on. When my husband presented Steve with a bill for $75, my sister was furious. She thought he should have represented her son for nothing because he was family. Normally, my husband would have charged at least $300, but he gave his nephew the family rate. Incidentally, Steve is 20 years old and works full time.

Now, instead of appreciating the fact that my husband saved her son $225, she thinks he took advantage by charging him anything at all, and they aren't speaking to me. I realize that your opinion won't change things, but I'm curious. Who do you think is right?

IN THE MIDDLE
DEAR IN: I think your husband was not too generous to have charged his nephew only $75. And if that money does not come out of Steve's paycheck (if it's only $10 a week), it should! He needs to learn that he is responsible for his own actions and his own bills.

DEAR ABBY: Last night, I got a telephone call from a man who said his name was "John," but he wouldn't tell me his last name.

He said he was calling to tell me that my husband had been cheating on me for quite some time, and he thought I should know because I have three children. (It's true, I have.)

Besides his husband, he has given this woman an engagement ring last Christmas, and that she had followed my husband to Florida so she could be near him while he and I were there on vacation! Abby, I couldn't believe I was getting this call, but I kept calm and let the man talk. He said he was mailing me some proof so I could get a divorce. (It's true, we did vacation in Florida last winter.)

Should I file for divorce, or wait and see what the proof is? Should I tell my husband about John's call and ask him to explain it? I am all confused and upset. Please answer soon, as I need to know how to handle this.

ALL SHOOK UP
DEAR SHOOK: Don't expect anything as fast from an anonymous telephone informer who appears very eager to "help" you get a divorce! First, wait to see if "John" sends you the proof he promised.

Calcium build up clogs arteries

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 72-year-old female. About five years ago, I began having dizzy spells with sudden onset. An MRI found a calcium buildup in the left carotid artery. In lieu of surgery, my doctor prescribed Persantine and one baby aspirin daily, which has solved the problem, but I'm concerned about the long-range effects of this medication. Should I just have the surgery? Is it safe to remain on this medication?

DEAR READER: The presence of a calcified plaque in your carotid artery, one of the major blood vessels to the brain, suggests that you are experiencing a progressive blockage in the artery. Aside from the obstruction itself, the calcium deposit has a rough surface on which small blood clots may form. When these clots break off, they are carried in the bloodstream to the brain, where they cause temporary neurological abnormalities, called transient ischemic attacks, which are often associated with sudden dizziness.

Treatment involves two basic approaches: medicine to reduce the incidence of blood clots and surgery to remove the calcified plaque.

Your doctor has properly chosen to give you low-dose aspirin and Persantine (dipyridamole), both of which inhibit platelet adhesion. In other words, the drugs reduce the stickiness of platelets, the tiny blood cells that adhere to form the basis for a clot.

As a result of this combined therapy, blood is far less likely to coagulate on the plaque in your carotid artery. You may notice a slightly increased tendency to bruise or bleed, but both aspirin and Persantine have few other significant side effects. As long as your therapy is effective, you can safely remain on the medicine and avoid surgery.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you elaborate on interstitial cystitis? I understand it is more prevalent in women than in men, however, our doctor doesn't seem to know very much about it. Is there a cure?

DEAR READER: Interstitial cystitis causes urinary bleeding, burning and frequency — symptoms similar to those produced by infectious cystitis (bladder infection). However, interstitial cystitis is not an infectious disease. It is more common in women and is associated with an irritated bladder lining that can, over time, thicken and scar, leading to diminished urinary capacity. The cause is unknown.

Treatment consists of fulguration (burning of the inner bladder tissue) in conjunction with repeated stretching of the bladder wall (to prevent contraction). Because interstitial cystitis is difficult to treat, patients with the affliction should be under the care of urologists.

Cruise is happy with lackluster film results

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even though the film trailer considered the opening weekend receipts for "Days of Thunder" less than thundering, Tom Cruise says he's happy with the results.

"You can't buy yourself an opening by putting your picture in 1,500 theaters and spending a lot of money. The important thing is to have legs," the star of the racing movie said, using the industry term for staying power.

"Days of Thunder" finished atop the box-office charts but grossed just $15.5 million, a weaker opening than "Dick Tracy," "Total Recall," "Another 48 HRS.," "The Untouchables," and "Back to the Future Part II."

The figures released Monday by Entertainment Data Inc. showed the $55 million movie could be headed for trouble. The lightly regarded "RoboCop 2," by comparison, grossed $14.1 million in its first weekend.

ALL SHOOK UP — "They don't affect me or the film, a lot of filmmakers whom I respect have called me to say how much they liked the movie."

Composer, wife, to divorce

LONDON (AP) — Composer Andrew Lloyd Webber is ending his six-year marriage to singer Sarah Brightman.

Lloyd Webber, the 42-year-old composer of such hits as "Phantom of the Opera" and "Cats," issued a statement Monday saying he had become "close friends" with another woman, Madeline Gardner.

"The well-known is there," said singer Steve Forshaw. "Neither Willie nor I party as hard as we did 10 years ago, but I believe the music has gotten better for all of us."

O'Connor predicted a crowd of 25,000 to 30,000 for this year's picnic, which will be held in Austin's Zilker Park. Nelson lives near Austin.

The first Willie Nelson picnic was on July 4, 1973. The last picnic was held in 1987 near Dallas. Only about 8,400 people showed up for a concert planned for 80,000.

Today In History

Today is Tuesday, July 3, the 184th day of 1990. There are 181 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: One hundred years ago, on July 3, 1890, Idaho became the 43rd state of the Union.

In 1508, the city of Quebec was founded by Samuel de Champlain.

In 1875, Gen. George Washington took command of the Continental Army at Cambridge, Mass.

In 1863, the three-day Civil War Battle of Gettysburg, Penn., ended in a major victory for the North as Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee's army was forced to retreat.

In 1898, the U.S. Navy defeated a Spanish fleet in the harbor at Santiago, Cuba, during the Spanish-American War.

He lives in Barcelona, has a wife, and a son, 17, and daughter, 11. "They both study music but don't show any special talent," he says. "They're going to be normal people."

Carreras did not lose religious faith when he was so sick. "I think my faith grew after that. I have to be honest."

"At the beginning after you recover, you think your life is going to change dramatically. Slowly, slowly, slowly, you go back to the same mistakes. What you plan for is a fantastic new life, you keep your word for only 20 percent."

"But this 20 percent is a big change. In many things, you probably see things from a more relaxing, quiet, peaceful way. You have time to think about certain things. Before, there were there but you didn't think it may be."

"After such an extreme moment of your life, you become more mature for the important things in life. What is wonderful is that after such a bad period, many of the conclusions are very positive, so that if life were extended before, now it is 100 percent wonderful in so many aspects. I think I'm richer inside."

Fighting the computer virus

By LARRY BLASKO
Associated Press Writer

Hooplums prow the pathways of computing no less than other areas of modern life, and their easiest target is the person who thinks they aren't a threat.

In personal computing, the hooplums are programs who create programs commonly known as "viruses" for their designed ability to replicate themselves and pass from host to host, doing harm along the way.

A virus program may do anything from flashing a mocking message to destroying valuable software or data. It may bog down a vital computer network.

Virus programs typically travel on the telecommunications networks and through the sharing of home-brewed programming on floppy disks. Both telecommunications and home-brewed programming are positive things that contributed to the remarkable flood of ideas unleashed when computing power came within reach of almost everyone. And they contribute still — but common sense advises precaution.

Range though you might that creating a computer virus that destroys data or ties up critical national networks is on a moral par with spreading a disease or poisoning wells, it's being done.

One (not foolproof) strategy is to never run anything but commercial software fresh from its factory wrapping and never telecommunications. That's like preventing flu by living in an antiseptic bubble — effective, probably, but not exactly living.

Another approach is to use one of the several commercial anti-virus systems. These programs check the software on your system for infections and either destroy them by the spot or simply report, depending upon your instructions.

ViruClid, by Parsons Technology, is a straightforward program that's easy to install and use. It costs $49 and comes bundled with a 235-page book, "Computer Viruses, Worms, Data Diddlers, Killer Programs, And Other Threats To Your System" by John McAfee and Colin Haynes (St. Martin's Press, $16.95).

Cats await fate; pig, dog revel

By GREG SMITH
Associated Press Writer

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Mr. Pig is rolling in it.

The 150-pound gray rumped hog, along with a German shepherd named Calamity Bob, will be taken care of for the rest of their lives after inheriting part of a $600,000-plus estate left by Margo Lamp of Davenport, who died in February at 81.

Chico the Amazon parrot is also living comfortably, despite losing a large chunk of an inheritance to its late owner's grandchildren. But the fate of four cats — Clementine, Martha, Gene and Smudge — hinges on what happens in probate court.

The animals belonged to three Iowans who stipulated in their wills that money from their estates be used for the well-being of their pets. The owners all died over the last eight months.

"I don't think it's strange at all," said Susan Halberstadt of the American Humane Association in Denver. "It's a very special bond that exists between people and their animals."

"Many people are doing this," she said. "Obviously these people had a very deep, profound love for their pets."

Ms. Lamp willed the bulk of her estate to the Scott County Humane Society but set aside money for her dog and her hog, Mr. Pig. She had no close relatives and left $1,000 to a friend, said her lawyer, George Goebel.

"I think that what you have is older people, that because of advanced age, their sphere of friends die — disappear. Their pets become close companions to them," he said.

Chico's owner, Ellen "Goldie" Bengston of Clinton, left most of her $70,000 estate in a trust for her parrot and a poodle named Pipi. Pipi died soon after and Harold Bengston, the executor of his sister's estate, asked a judge to reduce the amount set aside for the bird.

The amount was lowered to $18,000, with the rest of the money going to two of Ms. Bengston's godchildren.

Melody Stanton of Camanche willed her $12,000 estate to the four cats. Her mother, Eleanor Hodge, said it was stipulated that the money be used "for the care and comfort of the only possessions I have in my life — my animals, my cats."

But Ms. Hodge said a number of debts will have to be paid out of the estate, which is being contested by a man who lived with her daughter. A hearing is set for July 17.

FILTHY RICH — Mr. Pig, a 150-lb. gray rumped hog, hovers over his feed dish in his pen on a farm just outside of DeWitt, Iowa. The pig, along with a German shepherd dog named Calamity Jane, will be taken care of for the rest of their lives by part of a $600,000 estate.

USSR football team gets whipped 61-0

By LUIS CABRERA
Associated Press Writer

TACOMA, Wash. — It started looking bad for the first Soviet football team to play on American soil when the players heard the Turkish national anthem played in their honor.

The Soviet national champion Moscow Bears were whipped 61-0 Monday night by the year-old Tacoma Express, a minor-league football team, in an exhibition game before 1,300 spectators in the Tacoma Dome.

The game was billed by promoters as Glasnost on the Gridiron.

Bears coach John Ralston, a former Denver Broncos head coach, didn't talk game strategy or give his players a fiery pep talk before the game. He explained to them how to suit up in full pads.

"Don't forget, you need your thigh pads, your knee pads and your elbow pads," he said through an interpreter. "You don't want to land on that Astroturf without your elbow pads."

The Moscow Bears are among some 20 teams in the fledgling Soviet Union American Football League founded a year ago. For the past eight weeks, Ralston has been trying to mold the group of outcasted professional football players.

After Monday night, it was clear he still has a ways to go.

"I'm disappointed in our fundamentals," he said after the game. "I don't think we do the fundamentals very well."

The Bears are playing at least four American exhibition games arranged by an Alabama sports promotion company. The team is to play in Fresno, Calif., Oklahoma City and Macon, Ga., with a possible match in Charlotte, N.C.

The starting quarterback first touched a football seven months ago, and he's the veteran. Ralston's biggest player tips the scales at 250 pounds.

Ralston had said he mainly wanted to ensure his players finished the game intact — especially his starting tight end, since both backups had been detained in the Soviet Union by the KGBs the night before departure.

The Bears suffered no major injuries.

The anthem mixup wasn't the only glitch. Fans found their programs carried no numbers for the Soviet players. The announcer searched in vain for starting lineups while waiting for a Soviet interpreter who never got to the booth. She stayed on the field to play Ralston's play calls and other assignments.

Cuomo to study dwarf tossing

By MARC HUMBERT
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. — Gov. Mario Cuomo said Monday that he wanted to study the controversial barroom activity of dwarf tossing before ruling on whether it should be outlawed.

A measure to ban the Australian-horn games of dwarf tossing and dwarf bowling in New York was given final legislative approval Saturday and sent to the governor.

"I can't anticipate not signing it," said Cuomo.

Nonetheless, the cautious governor said he wasn't making any promises.

"If they said you could toss female dwarfs, but not male dwarfs, then I wouldn't sign it," he said.

Dwarf tossing involves a competition to determine who can throw a dwarf the farthest. In the bowling version, a dwarf is strapped to a skateboard and pushed toward bowling pins.

Both activities have been banned in Florida.

Under the New York bill, any bar or restaurant permitting the games could lose its liquor license. Sponsors of the measure said the games have been found in bars on Long Island and in New York City and Schenectady, among other areas.

"This is human exploitation of the worst sort," said state Sen. Nicholas Spano, a Republican who sponsored the bill. "It perpetuates the belief that little people belong in carnivals as objects of ridicule and entertainment."

Cuomo was first asked about how he might act on the dwarf tossing bill at a news conference. He later telephoned a reporter to elaborate.

"I didn't know about the dwarf thing, but it is something I'm going to take very seriously," Cuomo said in the telephone interview. "I want to know how far this syndrome goes."

"These are human beings," Cuomo added. "This disturbs me, I don't know why."

Londoners honor Henson

By MATT WOLF
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Big Bird was there, and Fozzie Bear, and Oscar the Grouch, as more than 1,400 colleagues, family and fans paid tribute to Muppet creator Jim Henson in a verdant St. Paul's Cathedral.

England was a second home to Henson, who died in May at the age of 53.

"He loved England and the English; we claim him as ours," said Duncan Kenworthy, chief of Henson Productions in Britain.

For the tribute, the cathedral was transformed to resemble a north London parkland Henson loved. The 17th-century building was festooned with greenery, its aisles full of Henson's creatures and portraits of his creator.

Friends and colleagues of Henson had worked into the night adorning the cathedral with garlands, plants and birches.

A May 21 memorial for Henson at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York included a Dixieland band and Muppets singing their way through the crowd. Henson died May 16 in New York of pneumonia.

Henson's family asked well-wishers not to wear black, saying the event would be as much a celebration and thanksgiving for Henson's life as a traditional memorial service.

"He has left a heritage that will never be forgotten. Jim Henson will always be with us," said Lord Lew Grade.

It was Grade who contracted Henson in 1976 to make 24 half-hour episodes of "The Muppet Show" after the Muppeteer failed to find American backing for the variety show.

The show became one of the most widely seen television programs in the world, with an estimated 235 million viewers in 100 countries.

Most of Henson's films were made in Britain as well.

Henson owned a home in north London's leafy Hampstead district, across the street from the one-time Victorian post office housing the Creature Shop where his puppets are made.

Muppet performer Richard Hunt led a quartet in a medley of Henson's favorite songs.

Henson's wife Jane and four of his five children attended.

"When I was young, my ambition was to be one of the people who makes a difference in this world," daughter Cheryl, 29, recited from an essay written by her father.

State lawyers are steaming mad

By MICHELLE LOCKE
Associated Press Writer

PITTSFIELD, Mass. — County commissioners turned up the heat on state authorities they accuse of paying too little rent for space in the Berkshire County courthouse.

They shut off the air conditioning. Lawyers in Chief Administrative Justice Arthur Mason's office, not surprisingly, are hot under the collar. They're considering appealing to the state Supreme Court, asking that the air conditioning be restored to the 19th-century courthouse in this western Massachusetts city.

"We've had both phone calls and correspondence ... indicating that the situation is very uncomfortable," Michael Edgerton, a lawyer for the Massachusetts Trial Court in Boston, said Monday.

Massachusetts pays rent to counties for space in local courthouses for state courts and offices.

County Commissioner Peter F. Menard said the state plans to pay $305,000, about $100,000 less than the amount the county believes is owed. A dozen other counties are unhappy with the amount of rent they are getting from the state.

Rose to find out soon if he'll get some jail time

By JOE KAY
The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose's illicit activities cost him a place in baseball. In two weeks, he'll find out whether they cost him his freedom as well.

A federal judge will sentence Rose on July 19 for his admitted tax offenses. Baseball's career hits leader could get up to six years in prison and a maximum fine of $500,000 on two felony counts of filing false tax returns.

Rose has been getting treatment for a gambling disorder and waiting for the other shoe to drop from his April 20 guilty plea in U.S. District Court. Aside from his weekly radio sports show in Cincinnati, Rose has been keeping a low profile lately.

"At this point, he doesn't have anything on his calendar for July," spokeswoman Barbara Pinzka said Monday.

Pinzka called Rose on Monday to inform him of the sentencing date.

Although he's not expected to get the maximum sentence, there's a possibility Rose could be sentenced to some prison time under federal guidelines. The judge also could allow him to avoid jail.

"He's concerned and very much aware of the seriousness of the situation he's in right now," Pinzka said.

U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel, who accepted Rose's guilty plea April 20, has given no indication how he'll rule.

One of Rose's tax offenses falls under federal sentencing guidelines that went into effect Nov. 1, 1987. The guidelines, intended to provide more uniform sentencing, require judges to look at a specific grid of factors in determining a sentence.

Rose could receive probation on the first count, but the second — subject to the sentencing guidelines — appears to fall on the border between a prison sentence and probation. Rose's position on the grid depends in part on how the judge factors in acceptance of responsibility, level of involvement in the crime and the amount of money involved.

Even if the grid suggests incarceration for Rose, the judge could depart from it and grant probation, but would have to explain his reasons for doing so.

Rose's lawyers received a copy of the report at the end of May, and responded privately to its contents. Assistant U.S. attorney William Hunt didn't return a telephone call Monday for comment. The government has made no sentencing recommendation to Spiegel.

General Oil a winner

GLASTONBURY — General Oil topped Glastonbury, 10-4, Monday night in JC-Courant Junior Division action. Andy Bartley and John Bowers combined on a three-hitter with Bartley getting his fourth win without a loss for General. Jamie Lockwood tripled and singled and drove in three runs and Mike Bontoro played well defensively for General, now 6-1 in league play.

Lavery leads soccer squad

Heather Lavery of Manchester coached the Connecticut Central District (girls 12 and under) team in the Pocono Cup Tournament last weekend. Local players with the team were Meghan Buckley, Dawn Migliore and Christine Parsons.

Auriumma agrees to terms

STORRS — University of Connecticut women's basketball coach Geno Auriumma has agreed to a four-year contract to remain with the Huskies, it was announced. Delaying the signing is that UConn has a lame-duck president and an interim athletic director.

Auriumma, 36, signed a five-year contract when he came to Connecticut in 1985 after serving as an assistant coach at Virginia. In his five years at UConn, Auriumma has a 92-51 record. The 92 wins equals the total won by the UConn program from 1974-85.

After a 12-5 mark in 1985-86, UConn has had four straight winning seasons. It has appeared in the NCAA Tournament the past two years, its first ever appearances in NCAA play.

Britsox beat Reading

READING, Pa. (AP) — Stuart Weidie drove in three runs as the New Britain Red Sox defeated the Reading Phillies 6-4 in the Eastern League.

Weidie singled in two for New Britain in the fifth inning of Monday's game, after Vladimir McGifico singled and David Milstein doubled. He also beat a double play in the seventh as Eric Wedge scored.

Wedge had opened the inning with a walk off David Holliday (6-7) and got to third on a sacrifice and a single.

The Red Sox got their first run in the second inning on a leadoff homer to deep center by Jeff Bagwell, who was named the EL player of the week earlier in the day.

Johnson pitcher of month

NEW YORK (AP) — Randy Johnson, who threw the first no-hitter in Seattle Mariners history on June 2, was named the AL pitcher of the month and Cleveland's Brock Beatty was selected AL player of the month.

Two other pitchers who threw no-hitters in June, Dave Stewart of the Oakland Athletics and Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, were named the AL and NL players of the week, respectively.

Johnson, traded to Seattle from the Montreal Expos last year in the Mark Langston deal, was 5-0 in six starts last month, allowing 30 hits and 12 earned runs in 45 innings. Jacoby, meanwhile, hit .394 (41-of-104) with 21 RBIs and 17 runs scored. He had six homers, four doubles and a triple.

Stewart no-hit the Toronto Blue Jays 5-0 on Friday at the Skydome. About three hours later, Valenzuela no-hit St. Louis 6-0 at Los Angeles.

Andy Hawkins of the New York Yankees, who lost a no-hitter 4-0 on three teammates' errors, received an honorable mention for the weekly AL honor.

Backley shatters world mark

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Steve Backley of Britain shattered the world javelin record with a throw of 293 feet, 11 inches in the DN Galan Grand Prix track and field meet.

Patrik Boken of Sweden set the previous mark of 292-4 in March at Austin, Texas.

Danny Harris of the U.S. ran the 400 hurdles in 47.98, fastest in the world this year, and Kenny Harrison of the United States came within 1/16 inch of the world triple jump record, jumping 58-10, the third-longest in history.

Leroy Burrell of the U.S. blazed a wind-aided 9.95 seconds to win the 100 and Joe Falcon won the 1,500 meters in 3:35.52.

Among women, Lynn Jennings took the 5,000 in 15:07.92 after a duel down the stretch with fellow American Pauline Plumer.

Floyd signs 4-year deal

HOUSTON (AP) — Guard Eric "Sleepy" Floyd has signed a four-year contract with the Houston Rockets. Terms of the deal were not released.

Floyd, 30, averaged 12.2 points and 7.3 assists in 1989-90 and was an unrestricted free agent, meaning if he chose to sign with another team, the Rockets would have received no compensation.

Floyd averaged 10.3 assists in four playoff games and holds the franchise playoff record for most assists in one game, 18.

Fines can be deducted

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Last winter, after the latest of numerous fines during the season totaling $45,000, the Philadelphia 76ers' Charles Barkley cracked, "I'll take it off my income tax."

Everybody laughed. The thought prevailed that you can't deduct a fine from your income tax.

Well, the laugh may be on somebody, but it isn't Barkley.

After a six-week check, the Internal Revenue Service says athletes can deduct fines or salary lost due to a suspension.

"We couldn't find anything that would deny a deduction," said Wilson Fidelity of the IRS in Washington.

"The indication is that it's probably deductible. It could be considered as being an ordinary expense."

Before you rush to your accountant, keep in mind that fines assessed by federal, territorial, state and local authorities for breaking laws are not deductible.

But if you are a professional athlete and your team and/or your league fine you for whatever reason, the IRS views it as a business expense.

Boris Becker is peaking at the right time

By STEPHEN WILSON
The Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — Boris Becker seems to be peaking at the right time as he bids for his fourth Wimbledon title.

The second-seeded West German played his best tennis of the tournament in beating former champion Pat Cash 7-6, 6-1, 6-4 on Monday to move into the quarterfinals.

Becker had trouble in his first three matches, but he lit up Centre Court on Monday with the dominating power game that earned him the champion's trophy in 1985, 1986 and 1989.

"I had three tough matches," he said. "My draw has been much more difficult this year than last year. So I had to play much better much earlier. But I have done that. I have survived that and that's good."

Cash had two set points in the first set, but Becker saved both and went on to take the tiebreaker 7-3.

"After I won the first set, it kind of clicked and it was much easier for me and more difficult for him," Becker said.

Cash, who won Wimbledon in 1987 but is making a comeback after a long injury layoff, said Becker will be hard to beat.

"If he plays as well as he did the second and third sets, I can't see too many people stopping him," the Australian said.

Relations between Becker and Cash have been strained the past few years. During a quarterfinal meeting two years ago, Cash was incensed when Becker dived over the net to intimidate him after he tumbled going after a set. Cash then threw a red clown's wig to his news conference, mimicking Becker's red hair.

The Australian said American David Wheaton 6-7, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 6-1, 6-4, 6-4 in the completion of a third-round match halted Saturday by darkness after two sets.

Becker, the defending champion, overcame Cash in a first-set tie-breaker and then swept past him 6-1, 6-4 in the final two sets.

Gilbert had to fight off two match points before squaring the fifth set at 5-5 and then got the critical break in the set's 21st game.

Old order prevailed, somehow, at the World Cup

ROME (AP) — Cameroon threatened to gatacrash the party of World Cup traditionalists. In the end, though, the old order prevailed.

Just don't ask how.

England and Argentina scraped through to the semifinals on grit and sheer luck, losing some of the luster and glam they accumulated during their soccer history.

Of the final four, only West Germany and Italy performed up to standards throughout. Both were in control in quarterfinal games, despite the closeness of the scores in 1-0 victories against Czechoslovakia and Ireland, respectively.

Mercifully, the two World Cup powerhouses do not meet in the semifinals. Italy plays defending champion Argentina in Naples today, and West Germany plays England in Turin on Wednesday.

Argentina, Italy and West Germany have won at least two World Cup each and England, which invented the game, has won it once and also loses experience.

"With the last four being great traditional countries, what more can the world of soccer ask for?" West German coach Franz Beckenbauer said.

How about better soccer, for a start, with less conservatism? From Italy, such a style is more acceptable because the team is built around the defense, making 1-0 games the norm.

But England and Argentina supposedly possess strong attacks. Where have they been?

England used its savvy and more than a little luck to survive in a World Cup in which upsets were the order of the day until the burden of achievement became too heavy.

SOCCER HERO — Argentina's Diego Maradona, the soccer star who plays for Napoli in the Italian first division, practices Monday at Naples Stadium.

Argentina got into the semifinals almost by default because Yugoslavia booted three of five penalty kicks, compared to two misses for the defending champions, in a shootout after a dull scoreless tie.

Now it is up to Argentina and England to perform to the standard such an occasion and their histories merit.

Morrison picks Bender

HARTFORD (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Bruce A. Morrison has picked former South Windsor Mayor Sandra Bender as his running mate for lieutenant governor, the Morrison campaign confirmed today.

"I certainly can't deny that she's the choice," said Thayer Baldwin Jr., Morrison's campaign manager said.

Baldwin said he wasn't surprised that word had leaked out at mid-morning at the Capitol. Morrison was to announce the selection and introduce Bender at a Capitol news conference this afternoon.

Bender, a former high-level official with Connecticut Bank & Trust, is little known outside the Hartford area. She served as mayor of South Windsor, a town of 20,000, from 1975 to 1977.

Following a time-honored tradition, Morrison sought to balance his ticket geographically. He is from Hamden, in the New Haven area, so it made political sense to pick someone from the Hartford area.

CIA used drug ranch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The CIA trained Guatemalan guerrillas at a Mexican ranch owned by a drug lord convicted in the murder of U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena, a federal report says.

But the Drug Enforcement Administration report does not detail why the guerrillas were being trained, nor whether the Central Intelligence Agency knew who owned the ranch.

The CIA denied the report, details of which the Los Angeles Times published today.

"The whole story is nonsense," agency spokesman Mark Mansfield said today. "We have not trained Guatemalan guerrillas on that ranch or anywhere else."

"The CIA did not engage in drug-running activities," he said Wednesday.

The report, completed in February, said the Guatemalan guerrillas were trained during the early 1980s at a ranch near Veracruz owned by Rafael Caro Quintero, and that a guerrilla clash there left 19 Mexican police dead.

Japan rules on lawsuit

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese court has ruled for the first time that female workers were denied promotions due to sex discrimination, awarding 18 women a total of $640,000 in lost wages.

The lawsuit, which took 10 years to wind its way through the court system, was filed by women who worked for a semi-governmental medical insurance fund.

"This is an epoch-making ruling that will lead to making other corporations review their labor practices," said Eiko Shinotsuka, a labor economist at Tokyo's Ohanomizu Women's University.

"There are many other Japanese companies discriminating against females," she said after Wednesday's ruling.

In addition to the $733,000 requested in the lawsuit, the plaintiffs asked that the women be given promotions allegedly denied on the basis of sex.

The Australian said Japanese companies discriminating against females," she said after Wednesday's ruling.

Homeless panel lambasted for untrue assumptions

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The leader of a church-based organization dedicated to helping the homeless is concerned that Republican Mayor Terry Werkhoven's homeless panel is making inaccurate assumptions about that population.

Christina Edwelich is chairwoman of Helping Others Stand Tall (HOST), an organization founded by members of the Center Congregational Church.

Edwelich said she became aware of what she terms confusion on the part of the committee when she talked with its chairman, Werkhoven.

"I'm concerned that he confused mental illness with mental retardation," Edwelich said. "It's a misunderstanding that's not helpful."

A former teacher, who works in the planning division of the state Department of Mental Retardation, she acknowledged there are people who are both mentally ill and retarded. However, to confuse the two in relation to the homeless problem is a gross mistake, said Edwelich, who served in the early 1980s on the Governor's Task Force on the Homeless.

Werkhoven's six-member committee was formed in February with the charge of looking for solutions to the town's problems with the homeless.

The specific comment which has got Edwelich concerned is Werkhoven's statement that the increase in the homeless population is largely attributable to Connecticut's policy of deinstitutionalization of the mentally retarded whenever possible.

The retarded, however, are not in the streets, she said, but primarily living supervised lives in group homes and other facilities.

Werkhoven, however, defended his comments. "She might have a different impression," he said.

Police Chief Mahlon Sabo said the rocket skidded across the ground from the launch site, injuring spectators 400 feet away.

Police detectives were on the scene late Wednesday night trying to determine why the shell misfired.

Torrington Fire Marshal Ron Corey said today that his office is working with the state fire marshal's office and Torrington police to determine the cause of the explosion.

Corey said officials are investigating several possible causes, including whether there was too much gunpowder packed into the shell.

"We're looking at whether the charge was excessive, meaning too much gunpowder, so that instead of propelling it, it blew out," Corey said.

Corey said such rockets usually propel upward through a tube that is set in the ground. This time, the rocket exploded before it left the tube, sending it shooting across the field and into spectators, he said.

Corey said the operator of the fireworks display had put on similar displays in Torrington for several years and had never had any problems. He said the operator, Ken Lupoli of Hamden, is a subcontractor who uses fireworks supplied by Vitale Fireworks Display Co. Inc. of New Castle, Pa.

"He's always done an excellent job. He even goes beyond the (fire) code," Corey said.

Lupoli could not be reached for comment today.

Pension Board slammed

Board, Negro shirked duty

By ALEX GIRELLI

MANCHESTER — The Town Pension Board and Town Treasurer are being heavily criticized in an independent audit of the Manchester pension fund for shirking their responsibilities to provide proper fiscal oversight.

The audit was conducted after officials admitted that they had apparently lost more than $200,000 of pension money by investing in a heavily-troubled company.

The auditors said in their report that the pervasive factor in all weaknesses they found "is the apparent lack of pro-active oversight of the Pension Board over the investment activities of the retirement fund."

The report by Bennett, Katz, and Thibodeau, the certified public accountants who conducted the audit, was obtained by the Herald this week through the office the town attorney.

Fred Ceyer, chairman of the Pension Board, declined to comment on the report Tuesday night, saying he had not seen the final version of it.

Mayor Terry Werkhoven also said he had not seen the report and would not comment on it.

The audit was authorized by the Board of Directors after it was disclosed that Town Treasurer Roger Negro had invested $200,000 in promissory notes of the Merus Corp., a blood bank company which appears to be in deep financial trouble. The town has filed a lawsuit against the defunct company in an attempt to recover the money.

The report also said that Negro had not seen the report and would not comment on it.
