Man arraigned in Wesleyan death

HARTFORD (AP) — The man accused of pulling the trigger in the slaying of a Wesleyan University student activist was ordered held on $750,000 bond during his arraignment today on murder charges.

Kumar Viswanathan, 21, dressed in khaki pants and a white T-shirt, did not enter a plea during a brief appearance before Superior Court Judge Samuel Teller.

Ship sinking off Cape Cod

NEW YORK (AP) — Crew members abandoned a Greek cargo ship battered off Cape Cod by Hurricane Bertha today, and at least one seaman died while other merchant ships rushed to help, the Coast Guard reported.

Thirteen crew members were rescued from a lifeboat by a Soviet merchant vessel after nearly four hours in heavy waves. Twelve or 13 more were on a life raft, and six of them were knocked into the water during a rescue attempt.

Election date set in Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Parliament in the central republic of Bosnia-Herzegovina on Tuesday adopted amendments to its constitution calling for free multiparty elections in November, the state news agency reported.

Under the amendments passed by the regional assembly, Bosnia-Herzegovina "has become a sovereign and democratic state of equal citizens," Tanjug said.

Bill will improve women's research

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Democratic senators, introducing a package of bills Tuesday to improve medical research on women, said women have been ill-served in a medical system that is dominated by men.

Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., leader of the effort, said women have been ignored in a "disgraceful pattern of neglect."

Union fights smoking ban

By NANCY FOLEY
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — A labor union, whose membership is made up largely of smokers, is challenging the right of the Board of Education to impose a smoking ban on school property.

Local 991 of Council 4, the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees, has charged that the ban would violate their labor contract with the school board. Local 991 includes school custodial and cafeteria workers. The union wrote a letter to Wilson E. Deakin, assistant superintendent for administration, stating its opposition and that the school board could not impose the ban without negotiations.

"They should leave in place what they have now — designated smoking areas," said Russell Moonan, president of Local 991. Although the contract specifically does not mention smoking, it does stipulate that any change in working conditions must be negotiated between the school board and the union, according to Moonan.

Charles Lombard, staff representative for Council 4, said between 85 and 90 percent of union members are smokers. Because smoking is allowed only in designated areas, it is not a health threat to non-smokers, he said.

"If it bothers non-smokers, they wouldn't go into the designated area," Lombard said. About 85 school custodians and about 75 cafeteria workers belong to the union.

At its August 27 meeting, the school board is expected to approve a comprehensive ban on smoking on school property and in school vehicles. The only school board member who has opposed the ban is Democrat Francis Maffe Jr.

Deakin said he has asked the town attorney to give an opinion on whether the smoking ban must be the subject of negotiation. Deakin

Aparo's status not yet revealed

By DENISE LAVOIE
The Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A closed-door hearing on whether Karin Aparo will be tried as a juvenile or an adult in the 1987 slaying of her mother adjourned late this morning with no immediate word on the judge's decision.

The 19-year-old Glastonbury woman and her attorney, Hubert Santos, emerged from the hour-and-fifteen minute hearing before Superior Court Judge Joseph Purtili without commenting.

Santos cited a gag order imposed before the start of Aparo's first trial, which ended June 28 with her acquittal on an accessory charge and a hung jury on the less serious charge of conspiracy.

If her request is granted and she is declared eligible for youthful offender status, Aparo's second trial on conspiracy charges would be held behind closed doors and she would face a much lighter sentence.

Hartford State's Attorney John Bailey moved July 18 to retry the teen-ager on murder-conspiracy charges. Although he faced intense public pressure to push for a second trial, he said his decision was based only on the facts and the law in the case.

When Aparo was found innocent of accessory to murder charges, Bailey's office was flooded with hundreds of phone calls and letters from people outraged by the acquittal. Bailey spent nearly three weeks considering whether to seek a second trial against Aparo on the lesser charge of conspiracy to commit murder.

After he announced that the state would retry Aparo, Superior Court

MANCHESTER — An Andover woman, who was charged with driving while intoxicated in relation to a fatal motorcycle accident more than two weeks ago, has been charged with second-degree manslaughter with a motor vehicle, police said.

Judith A. Donahue, 29, of 33

Kingsley Drive, Andover, turned herself into police Tuesday afternoon after a warrant had been issued for her arrest, according to police.

Donahue was released on a $1,500 non-surety bond and is scheduled to appear Monday in Superior Court.

Golf proposal gets momentum

By ALEX GIRELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Where to locate an entrance to proposed new holes of an expanded town golf course is one issue a committee of the Board of Directors will address Monday, when they discuss action on the overall expansion plan.

In addition, the golf course study committee will discuss where to locate a new building for the course and what facilities should be provided in the building, which would be designated for public use.

The meeting is scheduled for 5 p.m. in the hearing room of Lincoln Center.

Three possible entrances to the course are under consideration: one directly from South Main Street, one from Lakewood Circle South, and one from Hercules Drive which is accessible from Keeney Street.

Deputy Mayor Ronald Ozella, chairman of the committee, said he hopes the committee will be able to approve an entrance location and the overall concept of the expansion plan at the meeting.

Trinidad accord reached

By DAN SEWELL
The Associated Press

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad — A Moslem militant said in a radio interview today that the coup attempt he is leading in Trinidad is a "small family squabble" and that an accord has been reached to end the standoff.

In an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp., rebel leader Abu Bakr indicated that 40 people being held prisoner by his followers in the Caribbean nation and former British colony would soon be released.

"The negotiations are over. We already have a signed agreement," he said. "We are making preparations now for the evacuation of all the people, all the people at the television house and the people who are at the Parliament building."

Earlier, the government suggested that any agreements reached "at gunpoint" may not be considered binding.

The captives were seized Friday in an armed assault on Parliament and the state TV station. The prisoners initially included the prime minister, but he was freed after offering to step down, to call new elections, and to grant the rebels amnesty. At least 20 people have reportedly been killed in violence and looting associated with the coup attempt.

Deficit continues to grow

HARTFORD (AP) — The O'Neill administration today increased its estimate of the budget deficit for the 1989-90 fiscal year to $244 million, a $13 million increase over the administration's last monthly estimate. The fiscal year ended June 30, but tax collections continue into August, so the state is still estimating the deficit.

The deficit estimate, released today by state Comptroller J. Edward Caldwell, is up from the administration's last estimate of a $231 million deficit, but is slightly SHOOTING SUSPECT — Tony Rupert, center, a suspect in the shooting murder of 9-month-old Rayvon Jamison Monday, is brought to be booked and charged with the murder at the 44th Precinct in the Bronx. The slain infant's uncle apparently had chastised one of the suspects and the dispute escalated into the shooting.

Women's groups fight discrimination suit cap

WASHINGTON — Women's groups are fighting moves to cap job discrimination damages allowed under a major civil rights bill, while the White House supports such a plan as a way to head off a "bonanza" for trial lawyers.

"Women are at risk of being sacrificed once again on the altar of business interests," Patricia Ireland, vice president of the National Organization for Women, told a news conference Tuesday.

The debate over job discrimination damages for women, members of religious minorities and the physically handicapped identified as the House prepared to debate the civil rights bill.

The measure, similar to a bill already passed by the Senate, appears likely to come to the House floor later this week.

The Bush administration says the bill would lead to the use of hiring quotas and has been threatening a presidential veto unless it is changed.

Major provisions range from a ban on harassment in the workplace to reopening court-

Republicans bash bill that cuts SDI, Stealth

WASHINGTON — Democrats are applauding a $283 billion defense bill approved by the House Armed Services Committee for recognizing the end of the Cold War with deep budget cuts in the Strategic Defense Initiative and a halt to the stealth bomber program.

"I felt in the past that the committee would never get the message," Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said Tuesday night after the traditionally pro-Pentagon panel approved the bill, 40-12. "The world's changing and even Armed Services can change."

The administration has asked for more costly weapons than can possibly fit in the years of declining defense budgets ahead," said committee chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis.

Some Republicans gave the legislation low marks.

"It sinks," said Rep. William Dickinson of Alabama, ranking Republican on the committee. "I voted against it and I will strongly urge the president to veto it."

The legislation, which the full House will consider in early September, slashes $24 billion from Bush's proposal of $307 billion in military spending for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. It also marks a drop from this year's $305 billion defense.

The Senate is expected to take up its $289 billion version of the defense bill later this week.

Among major provisions of the House bill is an end to the radar-evading, B-2 stealth bomber at the 15 planes currently in development, a cut of $2.9 billion for the Strategic Defense Initiative, elimination of all money for two land-based nuclear missile systems and a cut of 129,500 military personnel.

President Bush had called for two stealth aircraft in fiscal 1991, $4.7 billion for SDI, commonly known as Star Wars; more than $2 billion for the MX and Midjetman missiles and a troop reduction of 38,000.

While chopping money from strategic programs, the panel rejected Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's second attempt in two years to kill the V-22 Osprey, a tilt-rotor aircraft that has widespread support in Congress.

The Armed Services Committee added $403 million for the Marine Corps' hybrid plane, which is manufactured in Texas and Pennsylvania.

"If you like to smell the pork, you'd love this bill," Dickinson quipped.

Although support for the B-2 bomber remains in the Senate, the

Exxon oil spill blame spread on many people

WASHINGTON — Federal safety officials insist that the Exxon Valdez captain was drunk at the time of the Alaskan oil spill. They also blame his third mate, the company that hired them, the Coast Guard and port authorities for the disaster.

Despite Capt. Joseph Hazelwood's acquittal by an Alaskan jury and the Coast Guard's dismissal last week of drunkenness charges against him, the National Transportation Safety Board said Tuesday that his drinking was part of the probable cause of the nation's worst oil spill.

Board members said the Coast Guard needs to develop a more efficient system to monitor and control boat traffic in critical areas.

"One of the lessons of this accident is that if we had a good vessel traffic system, it probably would not have happened," said board member Jim Burnett. "The same or worse results are possible in one of our other ports. I think that's a tragedy that we've had this wholesale neglect of the vessel traffic system."

The board also cited Exxon Corp. for failing to provide its biggest oil tanker with "a fit master and a rested and sufficient crew."

And it said third mate Gregory Hazeledwood failed to properly maneuver the vessel after he was left at the helm, the Coast Guard failed to control traffic in the ice-clogged sound and the state of Alaska failed to provide an effective pilot's service to guide ships out of the sound.

The board voted 4-0 to adopt the five-part probable cause and a long list of conclusions and recommendations resulting from the March 29, 1989, spill of 11 million gallons into Prince William Sound.

"The probable cause reflects the decision of the board that in addition to the alcohol impairment of the ship's master, there are safety issues of equal importance," said Burnett.

Board Chairman James Kolstad said the NTSB hopes its report, which included 36 safety recommendations, will help prevent future oil spills.

The board's analyses carry no force of law and, by statute, cannot be used in court cases. But they often serve as guidelines for congressional, administrative and private action.

Hazelwood's lawyer, Thomas Russo, said the safety board members acted "like they dropped off the moon" in again accusing Hazelwood of being drunk. Twenty-one witnesses at Hazelwood's trial testified that he was sober, Russo said, and authorities botched the blood test showing alcohol in his system more than 10 hours after the accident.

"Their conclusions are not founded in the evidence," Russo said.

Student loan program aided

WASHINGTON — The government-sponsored Student Loan Marketing Association said Tuesday it was pumping another $200 million into a troubled student loan guarantee agency.

The loan to the Higher Education Assistance Fund, HEAF, buys time for government officials who are trying to arrange a takeover to avoid a default by the fund. The association, known as Sallie Mae, had loaned the fund $200 million previously.

HEAF, based in Overland Park, Kan., is the largest of 47 state or private non-profit agencies guaranteeing student loans. A week ago, it disclosed that it was in danger of defaulting on its claims.

Officials from the Education Department and the Office of Management and Budget have been trying to avoid that by arranging for another guarantee agency or Sallie Mae to take over HEAF.

They had said they hoped to resolve HEAF's problems this week, but Eita Fielak, a spokeswoman for the Education Department, said the new loan will carry HEAF into the 1991 fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

"We're pleased with this arrangement because it provides a stable period during which the negotiations can continue," she said.

Sallie Mae said in a statement it was making the loan "as a result of discussions with the Department of Education" and that it had received "assurances from the department as to its continued payment of HEAF's ... claims, which provide the collateral."

The Education Department fully reimburses most of the guarantee agencies for student loan defaults, but provides only partial reimbursement to HEAF and others with a record of guaranteeing too many bad loans.

Fielak said the loan from Sallie Mae will allow HEAF to withhold about $300 million in claims until the next fiscal year. Thus, the guarantee agency will get 100 percent reimbursement from the Education Department for those claims instead of 80 percent.

Weapons, less cocaine cause high murder toll

WASHINGTON — America is heading toward a record-breaking murder toll this year as a result of increasing quantities of assault weapons and drying up supplies of cocaine, according to a Senate committee.

"We are in the midst of a growing epidemic of homicide," Senate Judiciary Chairman Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-De., said Tuesday in releasing the committee's grisly forecast.

The report predicted that there would be 23,220 murders across the nation this year, about 2,000 more

WASHING ASHORE — Clean-up crews start the dirty job of vacuuming up the oil that washed ashore Tuesday along the Texas City, Texas, dike. The oil is from a three-vessel collision in the Houston Ship Channel.

Liberian troops fight back, recapture parts of capital

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — A day after hundreds of refugees were massacred in a church sanctuary, government troops staged a surprise counterattack and recaptured parts of the city center from rebels in heavy fighting.

One area touched by the intense combat Tuesday was the diplomatic enclave.

At the height of the fighting, bullets riddled off several U.S. Embassy buildings at the height of the fighting, but no one was hurt, Assistant Secretary of State Herman Cohen said in Washington.

"None of the combatants have targeted our people," he said.

The United States said it was considering calling for a U.N. peacekeeping force to intervene in the West African nation's 7-month-old tribal war.

State Department deputy spokesman Richard Boucher said there were no plans to evacuate the 400 Americans remaining in Liberia despite a deterioration in the security situation. A U.S. naval fleet has been offshore for weeks in case evacuation is required.

Doe, who rebels accuse of corruption and brutal suppression of opposition, made his first public statement since rebels reached the city's suburbs more than a month ago and repeated that he does not intend to surrender.

He vowed to "fight until the last soldier in the Liberian army die."

He spoke from the fortified Israeli-built presidential mansion that has been under siege by rebel forces led by Prince Johnson.

The battles came a day after up to 600 civilian refugees were killed in a suburban St. Peter's Lutheran church compound. Witnesses said government troops were to blame and used cutlasses and bayonets in addition to bullets.

President Samuel Doe blamed rebels dressed as soldiers.

"I do not want to believe that the armed forces of Liberia would just walk into a church and kill innocent people," he said Tuesday in a telephone interview with the British Broadcasting Corp.

Texas braces itself for onslaught from oil spill

By SUSAN FAHLGREN
The Associated Press

GALVESTON, Texas — A 500,000-gallon oil spill unleashed by a ship-barge collision could be an environmental disaster in the rich fishing grounds and teeming wildlife habitats of Galveston Bay, a state official said Tuesday.

The spill began Saturday when a tanker ship struck two barges in the Houston Ship Channel, which is in part dredged through the bay.

By Tuesday, a 17-mile-long slick had formed. Heavy oil had washed up on a dike in Texas City about three miles northwest of Galveston and on a nearby peninsula and island, the Coast Guard said.

The deaths of two seabirds were blamed on the spill, which has already killed an undetermined number of fish.

The Houston Ship Channel, closed since the spill began, partly reopened during the afternoon. Dozens of ships have been prevented from leaving or reaching Houston at an estimated cost of $1.5 million a day.

Another Texas official criticized what he characterized as a lack of response to the disaster.

Galveston Bay is protected from the Gulf of Mexico by barrier islands which contain delicate nesting grounds for birds and other wildlife. The bay — the richest estuary on the Gulf Coast — is an important fishing ground for shrimp and other commercially valuable species.

Experts fear the spill will take a heavy environmental toll, both because the oil is thick and because it is unlikely to dissipate in the enclosed waters, as did the light crude spilled in the gulf by the tanker Mega Borg in June.

"The worst kind of spill you can have is one behind these barrier islands, which is what we've got," said Larry McKinney, director of resource protection for the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife.

McKinney predicted the spill would rank as the worst in the gulf region.

At least 100 bird species, including the endangered brown pelican, and at least 75 kinds of fish inhabit the Galveston Bay area, he said.

Cleanup crews used five skimmer vessels and a vacuum truck to suck up oil contained by thousands of feet of booms. By Monday night, about 20,000 gallons of oil had been cleaned up. The Coast Guard did not have an updated figure for Tuesday.

Workers also began cleaning crude on the dike and at the Port Bolivar and on Pelican Island, next to Galveston Island.

"This is a mess. I have never in my 25 years being out here seen this crude look like this," said Darnell Vaughn of La Marque, who had her children Rachel, 8, and Jerod, 12, with her.

Coast Guard Rear Adm. Jim Loy, who flew in from New Orleans to survey the spill, said a flyover convinced him the situation was under control.

"It's a very manageable situation, perhaps not being managed as well as it could be," Loy told a news conference.

Gene therapy may be medical breakthrough

By PAUL RECER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Gene therapy, a new medical magic bullet in the war on cancer, diabetes and many inherited disorders, could be used on patients for the first time this fall.

A federal panel approved the use of gene therapy for two disorders on Tuesday and a National Institutes of Health scientist said that if the technique works, it gives medicine a powerful new way to cure the incurable.

"This is the first step in what probably will be a revolution in medicine over the next two decades," said Dr. W. French Anderson, an NIH researcher.

A proposal by Anderson to use gene therapy to treat an inherited immune system disorder and one by Dr. Steven Rosenberg to treat a lethal skin cancer were approved by the Recombinant DNA Advisory Committee at NIH.

The proposals still must be approved by the Food and Drug Administration, but experts said the NIH panel's OK is the most crucial.

Anderson said the plans by his team and by the Rosenberg team were considered experimental models for the eventual widespread use of gene therapy.

"These two proposals are the best ways to demonstrate that gene therapy works," Anderson said. "From here it should open up into a broad range of therapies for cancer, AIDS, genetic disease and cardiovascular disease."

Anderson said that if he and Rosenberg can prove the concept of using curative genes to treat disease, there already are plans to use similar systems to treat leukemia, hemophilia, diabetes, aplastic anemia and cancers of the colon and the kidney.

Rosenberg, also an NIH scientist, said his system of using genes to make tumor-fighting blood cells could be adapted to treat nearly every type of cancer. But first, he cautioned, it has to be proven effective in the medical trials approved Tuesday.

"This is only important if it works," he said. "This is very new and one can never be sure what could happen."

Gerard J. McGarrity, chairman of the NIH panel, called the approval "historic."

Alaskan gambling weighed

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Inaugure Las Vegas with snow at 30 below. Or Atlantic City with moose and spruce.

On Aug. 28, Alaska voters will consider a measure to legalize casino gambling, including blackjack, roulette, poker, craps, slot machines and horse and dog racing.

Alaska's history is rich with tales of gamblers during the wild and woolly Gold Rush years of the late 1800s. Later, during the territorial years, gambling was largely tolerated even where it was illegal.

But times have changed. Support is said to be weak for turning Alaska into a Vegas North, and the measure has received little promotion. Its backers have taken no contributions and plan no media campaign, sponsor Jeffrey Mackay said.

Gov. Steve Cowper, a Democrat, has argued gambling would lead to more crime, corruption and other social ills.

"My guess is not one voter in 10 in Alaska sees this coming," he said last week. "The initiative, if it's passed, threatens to change Alaska into something radically different from what it is today."

The measure would allow gambling in a community only if local voters authorized it. A five-member board would regulate the industry. Licenses would be granted only to municipalities, state agencies or people holding a liquor license.

Supporters say gambling would provide jobs and a stable source of income as oil revenues decline. The measure provides for set percentages of gambling profits to go to the state and municipalities where the gaming takes place.

"We just feel there is some merit to having legalized gambling in Alaska to attract tourism and using the proceeds of that to help the economy," Mackay said.

Cowper said any economic benefits would be offset by increases in crime, the costs of regulating the industry and damage to the state's image as a wilderness vacation destination.

Gadhafi actions brand him as a subtle revolutionary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although he is more discreet nowadays, Libyan leader Muammar Gadhafi is still promoting revolutionary movements around the world — as recent events in both Liberia and Trinidad demonstrate, U.S. officials and analysts say.

"I don't think they (the Libyans) have been less active, they've been less conspicuous," said Robert Kupferman, a terrorism specialist at the Washington-based Center for Strategic and International Studies.

Charles Lichenstein, a distinguished fellow at the Heritage Foundation, also a Washington think tank, said Gadhafi is more prudent than he was during the early 1980s but otherwise hasn't changed much.

He is still "one of the great security threats that we have to contend with," Lichenstein said.

A State Department official, asking not to be identified, said the request months ago for the import of "medical supplies" from Libya, suspecting that the shipment actually consisted of weapons.

Over the past several days, Gadhafi's long reach has been demonstrated by the bloody upheavals under way in both Liberia and Trinidad — two countries where rebel leaders have acknowledged receiving assistance from the North African leader.

The Bush administration has sought to minimize the extent of Gadhafi's involvement in the two countries.

Officials described Charles Taylor, a Liberian rebel leader and Gadhafi ally, as an opportunist with no particular philosophical underpinning. He appears to have sought Gadhafi for help because he had nowhere else to turn, they said.

The Department has said that although Gadhafi has provided rebel organizations with tens of thousands of dollars, there is no indication of a direct Libyan involvement in the conflict.

Liberia and Trinidad? Lichenstein suggested that Liberia is an attractive target for Gadhafi because of the large array of U.S. military and communications facilities in the West African country.

He added that in the event of a rebel success in Trinidad, Gadhafi could use the country as a "launching pad" for destabilizing other Caribbean countries.

Gadhafi seems less of a proponent for the United States now than he was in 1986 after U.S. authorities concluded that he was behind the bombing of a West Berlin discotheque frequented by Americans. A U.S. Army sergeant was killed in the incident.

President Reagan retaliated by ordering U.S. jet fighters to bomb Tripoli and Benghazi.

Apparently chastened, Gadhafi virtually disappeared for an extended period but he eventually "shook it off," Lichenstein said.

Lichenstein said Gadhafi, nurtured by oil revenues, is continuing to support a variety of rebel organizations, particularly radical Palestinian groups.

"He is still involved in various groups we don't know about," Lichenstein said.

Small reserves concern FDIC

By DAVE SKIDMORE
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Amid growing congressional fears over the savings and loan bailout, a top federal regulator is sounding an alarm over shrinking reserves in the fund backing commercial bank deposits.

William Seidman, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., told the Senate Banking Committee on Tuesday that "it would not be unreasonable" to predict a $2 billion loss in the bank fund this year.

Meanwhile, at the Capitol, the House voted 424-4 Tuesday to toughen criminal penalties for rip-offs by savings and loan officials and to create a special prosecutor and a national commission on the S&L debacle.

Seidman said the bank fund lost $851 million in 1989 and $4.24 billion in 1988 as bank failures soared to post-Depression highs.

Nevertheless, Seidman said the fund, which is maintained through an insurance premium paid by banks, should be able to pay for any foreseeable bank failures without help from taxpayers.

"At this point, (looking at) the banks we can actually count on failing, we believe we have the resources to handle them, but that still would put us in a very much stressed position," he said.

The 1989 and 1988 losses reduced insurance backing $2.5 trillion in deposits at the nation's 12,500 banks to 70 cents per $100 of deposits, "the lowest point in modern history," Seidman said.

With another loss this year, institutions and 60 percent coverage could slip to 50 cents or 60 cents per $100, less than half the agency's target of $1.25 per $100, he said.

Seidman's comments were his most pessimistic yet concerning the bank fund. Only two months ago, he said the fund could post a small profit absent major bank failures in 1990.

Seidman indicated the FDIC board in insurance premiums paid by banks. Those premiums, as provided by last year's savings and loan bill, are already increasing, from 8.3 cents per $100 of deposits in 1989 to 12 cents this year and 15 cents next year.

However, the board has the power to raise them as high as 22.5 cents.

Seidman also created new felony categories to close loopholes for those who conceal assets from the government or who try to obstruct government inquiries into financial institutions. He gave the government new authority to go after the assets of failed S&Ls.

The bill would authorize adding $153 million to the federal government's law enforcement efforts, and create a "special counsel" within the Justice Department to oversee a new Financial Institutions Fraud Unit.

Banking Committee Chairman Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, one of the bill's sponsors, said the measure would "fool the American people" that the crisis was being solved.

The Senate passed its version of a savings and loan crackdown as part of an overall crime bill. The two chambers must reconcile their differences before a bill can be sent to the president.

Aparo

Judge Raymond Norco ordered the state to re-examine Aparo's eligibility for youthful offender status on the conspiracy charge.

Aparo was acquitted on the conspiracy charge, but soon revoked it because she also faced the more serious charge of accessory to murder.

Aparo was accused of masterminding the plot to kill Joyce Aparo. She was 16 when her mother was killed. Kevin Aparo's former boyfriend, Dennis Coleman, confessed to the crime and is now serving a 34-year prison sentence. He testified that he strangled Joyce Aparo only after her daughter planned the murder and begged him to do it for more than a year.

After the trial, jurors said they did not believe Coleman's testimony.

The trial, which featured riveting testimony from Aparo and Coleman, was one of the most closely watched trials in the state in years.

Santos has complained that Aparo has been damaged by the extensive media coverage of her case.

"As it stands now, (Aparo) has to leave the state of Connecticut if she is convicted," Santos said when the state decided to retry his client.

"She gets more publicity than the gubernatorial candidates. Her life in this state has been ruined."

next year. Each 1 cent increase brings the fund about $250 million.

"Our budget will be monitoring this very carefully and obviously that is an action they will be looking at," he said.

Seidman said his revised assessment of the insurance fund was based on a general deterioration of the value of commercial real estate held by banks, not on any new projections of a major bank failure.

So far this year, 217 banks have failed. Last year, 203 banks failed or required federal assistance to stay afloat. The Depression record of 221 in 1988.

"Very frankly we have probably the weakest real estate markets over all that we've had for quite a few years," he said.

Seidman said the weakness has spread from regional pockets in the Southwest and New England to include most areas of the country.

However, Kenneth Guenther of the Independent Bankers Association of America, a trade group, said Seidman's reassessment indicates "there are shoals under the water" and the agency is planning for a major bank failure.

"I wonder where the big bank hits are going to come from. ... Are some of the major Texas depositories?" Guenther said.

The legislation that passed the House would increase the maximum prison terms — up to life in prison for the worst offenders — and boost fines that could be levied against individuals and institutions convicted of savings and loan crimes.

It would also create new felony categories to close loopholes for those who conceal assets from the government or who try to obstruct government inquiries into financial institutions. He gave the government new authority to go after the assets of failed S&Ls.

The bill would authorize adding $153 million to the federal government's law enforcement efforts, and create a "special counsel" within the Justice Department to oversee a new Financial Institutions Fraud Unit.

Banking Committee Chairman Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, one of the bill's sponsors, said the measure would "fool the American people" that the crisis was being solved.

The Senate passed its version of a savings and loan crackdown as part of an overall crime bill. The two chambers must reconcile their differences before a bill can be sent to the president.

Smoking

Even when smoking is confined to designated smoking areas, he said, non-smokers will be affected because they sometimes have to use those areas. Townsend said that only a small number of his union members, which includes principals and vice-principals, are smokers. "I have never seen any of them smoke," he said.

A representative of the teachers' union could not be reached today. In the past, union leaders have said they do not oppose the ban.

A survey conducted by Deakin a couple of years ago found that the school nurses had the fewest smokers in their ranks. Teachers followed, with only 2 percent being smokers, he said. Teachers were followed by administrators and cafeteria workers. And away from the school, the most smokers emerged as the groups with the most smokers, Deakin said.

Although Bakr said in the interview everyone being held would be freed, he also denied that the people were in fact hostages.

"We don't have any hostages, sir. We never had any hostages," he told the BBC interviewer. "You'll have to rephrase that question."

Asked whether the people in question were then free to leave, Bakr responded: "There's a curfew. They can't walk about in a curfew."

A 6 p.m.-to-noon curfew remained in effect throughout most of Trinidad following earlier widespread looting.

When the interviewee expressed disbelief that only the curfew was stopping the prisoners from leaving, Bakr mentioned that his service had been disrupted. He said of the coup attempt, "It was a small family squabble... I'm saying that emphatically."

He did not say when the prisoners would be freed, or disclose other terms of the purported agreement.

The prime minister, Arthur N.R. Robinson, was allowed Tuesday to leave the besieged Parliament building.

"This crisis is far from over," Attorney General Anthony Smart told reporters after Robinson's release. It was not clear whether Robinson would continue as prime minister.

Smart said that negotiations with Bakr, a former policeman, and his 100 followers were "at a very delicate stage." He refused to discuss their content.

Bakr said in today's interview he was seeking a "new beginning in Trinidad," but refused to provide other specifics about his demands.

Fifteen government officials remained hostages at the Parliament building and 25 others about a mile away in the government TV station.

At least nine people were killed when Bakr and his followers took over both buildings on Friday, accusing Robinson of corruption and demanding he resign.

Robinson, 63, was hospitalized for treatment of a leg wound suffered in the takeover, as well as for exhaustion and glaucoma.

Christopher Rudly, was flown by Life Star helicopter to St. Francis Hospital, and was pronounced dead the following Tuesday night.

Rudly, of Lebanon was riding his motorcycle south on Main Street, and Donahue was driving her car north when the collision occurred, according to the affidavit for Donahue's arrest.

The affidavit states that witnesses told police they saw Donahue driving southbound in the wrong lane when the vehicles collided.

The witnesses said also that the rider of the motorcycle was operating at a reasonable speed.

Donahue was found behind the steering wheel of her car with the engine running when police arrived at the scene, the affidavit says. It states she used the car door to escape herself when police asked her to get out of the vehicle.

Injured girl sent home

Erin Mack, of 81 Redwood Road, apparently had been playing in her front yard when the car rolled in the driveway, knocked her down, and rolled over the left side of her face.

Miraculously, the girl got up, walked about 20 feet, fell down, and then got up again and ran into the house. She was flown by Life Star Helicopter to Hartford Hospital.

According to the report filed with police, the accident happened not long after Mrs. Mack had driven her two children home. She parked the car, just at the top of the garage driveway, at the front of the garage.

Mack's mother, Joan Mack, did not want to comment Tuesday, saying only that her daughter was doing fine at home and the accident was a tragedy.

Richardson said the agreement called for Robinson to resign and for elections to be held within 90 days.

But government spokesman Gregory Shaw said there was no agreement. "These are statements of

In Bangkok, Needham said he had no comment on the incident and referred all further inquiries to Drug Enforcement Administration in Washington.

He said that will permit the golf course consultant, Brian Silva, to proceed with the plan to the environmental consultant, Science Applications International Corp. of Lakeville, Mass. With that information, SAIC can determine the impact the course would have on the land, most of which is in the watershed of Globe Hollow Reservoir.

Oella said SAIC would be able to complete an analysis of that impact to present to the state's Department of Health Services six or eight weeks after consulting with Silva.

The state Department of Environmental Protection also may become involved depending on what SAIC finds.

Golf

Director Wally Irish, a member of the committee, has expressed impatience with what he feels is slow progress toward expanding the course. The expansion would add 18 new holes to the town-owned course now located to the Manchester Country Club. The expansion is designed to meet growing public demand for golf facilities. Some residents have complained that there is not enough opportunity for public use of the course, despite the fact that the lease provides for public use.

Methods of financing the expansion, and of managing the new section of the course, have not been settled. The Manchester Country Club has a provision in its newly modified lease which gives it the right to lease any management offer the town receives.

Town's water supply shows low radon levels

By NANCY FOLEY
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Manchester is lucky, according to town officials, because the rock that its drinking water flows through generally does not give off radon, the radioactive gas which is a problem in many communities.

Robert Young, water and sewer administrator, said that extensive testing shows the town's water supply has radon levels far below the established limits.

Young said that the rock that Manchester sits on is relatively soft. Harder, sedimentary rock, such as granite, is more likely to contain radon, Young said. States like Maine and New Hampshire have a larger problem with radon because they have a great deal of this type of rock.

When inhaled, according to Young, radon can cause lung cancer. He said that although the radon in the air is more dangerous than radon in drinking water, he disagrees with federal health regulations that set a lower acceptable level for radon in water than in air.

But according to Town Sanitarian John Salicrus, radon in the air is less of a problem in Manchester than it is statewide. Of homes tested in the state, 20 percent have been found to

Sign post flowers

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Betty Andrews, of 109 Forest St., has found a way to disguise a bit of the unsightliness caused by a major road construction project in her neighborhood.

Andrews decided to improve the look of a construction sign in front of her home by planting morning glories at its base. Now the flowers have become a part of the sign, which marks the end of the construction area.

She said her only concern about planting the flowers was whether her deed would be mistaken for vandalism.

"We were digging around the poles, waiting for someone to say, 'Hey, what are you doing!'" Andrews said.

Since they were planted a couple of months ago, the morning glories have attached themselves to the two green, perforated, steel rails that hold up the sign. And they have climbed about half way up the eight-foot high posts.

The sign stands near the property line between the front yards of the Andrews family and the Desmonds, who live at 115 Forest St.

William Desmond was so pleased with the planting of the flowers that he thought it deserved a little publicity. He has moved the flowers almost every day, Andrews said, and he had warned her husband that he may call the newspaper.

Andrews said she had been told that the radon-testing it offers would be confused with testing offered by a private company, Tri-State Radon, of New Jersey. The company was distributing fliers offering radon testing for $24.95.

Local banker is serving as national military aide

Some of the U.S. Army's most elite command-and-control units are hand-tailored three piece suits. Rather than draw blood, their skills are more suited to steering for negotiations, battling for benefits, and firing their sought-after counsel at public and civilian alike.

The 25th National Conference of the Civilian Aides to the Secretary of the Army was held in Washington recently, hosting more than 60 recognized business and community leaders that act as liaisons between the public sector and the military.

Nathan Agostinelli, a Rockville native and currently a Manchester banker, was one of the civilian aides on hand to represent the interests of Connecticut. He was chosen to tread the sometimes rocky ground between the military and the civilian populace it serves.

Agostinelli is well suited for the position, with strong ties in both the civilian and military communities. The veteran of the Korean conflict retired from the National Guard as a brigadier general and has served as mayor of Manchester and controller for the state, among many other civic and military affiliations.

The civilian aides are quick to note that they are not lobbyists for the Army but consider themselves communicators, mechanisms for exchanging ideas and concerns. Agostinelli accepted the non-paid appointment for reasons both personal and patriotic.

"I'm a retired general from the Connecticut Army National Guard, retired a few years ago. I've had a very strong feeling for the military and what it represents and what it does to defend our country and to protect us. So when I was appointed civilian aide, I said 'this is just the reason I've been in the military since the various service clubs and I bring the mission and the accomplishments of the Army and the problems that exist from time to time. I'll tell the Army story,'" said Agostinelli.

"I see my role as combination of communicator or mediator, depending on what the situation is," he continued.

During the four-day conference, the aides listened to much as talked with senior Army leaders like of Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, Gen. Carl Woono, chief of staff for the Army, in addition to the Army secretary and Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney.

Investigation continues in baby death
HARTFORD (AP) — Police are continuing their investigation into the death of a 6-month-old boy who was found dead in his Hartford home Monday night.

Lt. Frederick Lewis said the preliminary results of an autopsy performed Tuesday show that Terrell Hierrezuelo may have died from sudden infant death syndrome, commonly known as crib death. Lewis said the baby's mother, Sharon Hierrezuelo, 22, originally told police that she found the baby dead after leaving him in the care of a baby sitter. He said she later acknowledged that she had left the baby alone for about three hours.

Police said the baby was found dead in an apartment on Naham Drive in Hartford about 6:30 p.m. Monday. Hierrezuelo called police to tell them her son was not breathing.

No anti-semitism evidence found

WESTPORT (AP) — No evidence of anti-Semitism was found at a synagogue burglarized earlier this week, officials said.

Five silver breast plates, three silver crowns used to adorn Torahs and three silver pointers were stolen early Monday from the altar at Temple Israel, police said.

"There is no evidence of anti-Semitism here, no graffiti, no damage to anything else," said Rabbi Robert Orkand, spiritual leader of the synagogue.

A synagogue in Bridgeport was burglarized about 10 days ago, but police said they were unsure if the incidents were connected.

Record births at Stamford hospital

STAMFORD (AP) — There wasn't a blackout in October, and it wasn't particularly cold, so nobody can figure out why there's a July baby boom at Stamford Hospital.

By 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, 208 babies had been born at the hospital, said spokesman Rick Curran.

The number of births broke the record of 189 set in March, 1989. "People were joking that the fall television schedule wasn't so great," said nurse Laura Auriary. "It was a rainy October, come to think of it."

An average of 165 babies are usually born at Stamford Hospital each month, officials said.

Other area hospitals did not report a significant birth increase for July.

I-84 portions to close today

HARTFORD (AP) — The left lane of eastbound Interstate 84 and all lanes of westbound I-84, at the I-84 and I-91 interchange in Hartford, will be closed Wednesday night at 10 p.m., officials said.

State Transportation Commissioner J. William Burns said Tuesday that all westbound motorists will be detoured off the highway at Exit 52, where they will follow signs along the detour route to get back on I-84 at Trumbull Street.

Once work progresses, Burns said all lanes of eastbound I-84 and the left lane of westbound I-84 will be reopened, while Exit 52 on the westbound side will close. All lanes of eastbound and westbound I-84 and Exit 52 will reopen by 6 a.m. Thursday.

The closings are necessary so that work crews can continue pouring concrete for the final section of the new flyover connection from eastbound I-84 to northbound I-91.

Stabbed inmate in stable condition

SOMERS (AP) — A convicted triple-murderer was in stable condition Tuesday at Hartford Hospital after being stabbed nine times Monday night at Somers State Prison's protective-custody unit.

Marc Chicano, 30, formerly of Enfield, was flown to the hospital by helicopter after the 8:30 p.m. knifeing in the maximum-security prison's E-Block, Correction Department spokesman Joseph Trotta said.

A hospital spokeswoman said Chicano was in stable condition after emergency treatment Monday evening.

Chicano was returning to his cell from recreation when an assailant stabbed him eight times in the upper torso and once in the head, Trotta said.

Officials "locked down" the 147-inmate block and searched all cells, turning up a 10-inch homemade knife used in the attack, Trotta said.

State police and prison officials were trying to identify the assailant Tuesday, he said.

The stabbing involved only Chicano and his attacker, not prison guards, Trotta said. He said the incident does not signal a return to violence at Somers, which this month was placed under new disciplinary guidelines to control recent inmate unrest.

"It seems to be the opinion that this was an isolated incident," he said, "but it will be thoroughly investigated."

Shooting suspect returns to state

HARTFORD (AP) — Kumar Viswanathan, one of three people charged in the shooting death of Wesleyan University student activist Nicholas B. Haddad, was returned to Connecticut Tuesday after arraignment on murder and murder conspiracy charges.

Viswanathan, 21, a former University of Connecticut student, was escorted by U.S. marshals from Ohio, where he has been held in the Justice Center of the Cleveland Police Department since his arrest in a Greyhound bus terminal there July 17.

Hartford State's Attorney John Bailey said Viswanathan was flown from Cleveland to Stewart Air Force Base in New York. He said two Hartford police officers later escorted Viswanathan from New York to Hartford police headquarters.

Viswanathan was being held overnight on a $750,000 bond at the Morgan Street Detention Center while awaiting arraignment in Hartford Superior Court Wednesday.

Police said they believe Viswanathan was heading to California when he was apprehended in Cleveland.

Viswanathan, the son of a Wesleyan University adjunct professor of South Indian music, waived extradition shortly after his arrest, agreeing to return to Connecticut to face charges.

Hartford police believe Viswanathan and another suspect, Carl Lightner, 20, of Hartford, killed Haddad after a drug deal went awry.

Simple tests would detect flaw

DANBURY (AP) — Century-old optical tests that could have found the Hubble Space Telescope's crippling flaw using hair strands and mirrors as probes or razor blades were apparently dismissed because scientists thought they were too simple, experts said.

NASA scientists have said one of the Hubble's two mirrors, manufactured at a former division of Perkin-Elmer Corp. in Danbury, suffers from a flaw that blurred the telescope's view. The Hubble was supposed to record razor-sharp images from the far reaches of space.

Charles Petelin, NASA director of astrophysics, said a procedure known as a knife-edge test could have easily caught the mirror's flaw.

Petelin said Ken Craigo, a professor at the Optical Sciences Center at the University of Arizona, said that the knife-edge test and other simple tests still may have cost several million dollars.

That would have been impractical at the time Perkin-Elmer was checking the mirror in 1981.

"If anyone had proposed setting up a knife's edge test back then, they would have been run out of their respective optical town," Frankan said. "They were already under a lot of pressure to get this thing buttoned up."

The knife-edge test involves the bisecting of a central beam of light by a razor blade after it bounces off a mirror, said Daniel Schulte, a scientist at the Lockheed Palo Alto, Calif., Research Laboratory.

The rebounding light from a perfect mirror will show a clean line and no shadows, Schulte said.

Beach search turns up no mortar shells and small lengths of twisted wire. "Definitely nothing of a military nature," said Ken Craigo, a spokesman for the Huntsville, Ala., Division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which is supervising the excavation.

Except for a swimmer who had to be pulled from the water when he crossed into the restricted area, and a young man ordered away after he sailed his boat smack up onto the closed beach as a truck began digging for mortar rounds, park officials encountered no problems Tuesday.

Hundreds of beachgoers crowded onto the open portion of beach, most of them showing little interest in the activities on the other side.

Parks officials said the spot sweep of the beach was prompted by the discovery this past winter of two 12-inch Winchester mortar shells inside, a large piece of an angle iron.

Police Roundup

Man charged with possession

An East Hartford man was arrested and charged Sunday with possession of marijuana and tampering with evidence after an officer allegedly observed him hide a small plastic baggie containing a substance inside a car he was standing near.

Anthony R. Spada, 34, of 46 Larrabee St., East Hartford, was arrested in a parking lot at 218 Hartford Road, when an officer on patrol observed him hide what looked like a baggie near the wheel well of the car as he leaned over to tie his shoe, according to police reports.

Spada denied hiding anything, the report said. But a search of the car revealed a baggie containing marijuana. He said the marijuana was not his, but that it had been given to him earlier in the evening, the report said.

He is also a second-year representative to the Student Bar Association. He is a graduate of the Loomis-Chaffee School in Windsor and a cum laude graduate of Tufts University, Medford, Mass.

FOOD

Zucchini excels in recipes

By BARBARA RICHMOND, Manchester Herald

"Is the season when anyone who has a vegetable garden is harvesting tons of zucchini squash and are trying to find friends and neighbors to help them use it up."

There was a time when zucchini was just an extra vegetable, cut up and boiled and served with a little butter on it.

It can be used in everything from a simple casserole to a chocolate cake.

The recipe for zucchini and tomatoes is especially good served with grilled meat and chicken.

The following are some of the most interesting and true recipes using this most maligned of vegetables.

Chocolate zucchini cake: 4 ounces unsweetened chocolate, melted, 1/2 cup vegetable oil, 1/2 cup softened butter, 2 cups sugar, 3 eggs, beaten, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 2 cups flour, 1/2 cup cocoa, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup buttermilk, 3 cups coarsely grated zucchini, 1/2 cup chopped nuts.

Orange cream cheese icing: Combine chocolate and oil in small bowl. In large bowl cream sugar and butter until light and fluffy. Add eggs and vanilla and beat well. Stir in chocolate mixture until well mixed.

Sift dry ingredients into the batter and add the buttermilk. Stir until smooth then mix zucchini and nuts into batter. Pour into 9 x 13-inch pan inserted in center comes out clean. Cool completely on wire rack.

When cool, frost in the pan. Orange cream cheese icing: 8 ounces softened cream cheese, 6 tablespoons softened butter, 1 pound confectionary sugar, 2 tablespoons grated orange rind, 1 tablespoon orange juice.

Cream cheese and butter blend in sugar. Add rind and juice and mix until smooth.

Zucchini Mexicali: 4 cups thinly sliced zucchini, 1 large carrot, shredded, 1/2 medium green pepper, cut into thin strips, 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt, 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt, 1/2 cup Taco sauce, 2 teaspoons prepared mustard, 2 medium, tomatoes, Dash of pepper.

In skillet cook and stir zucchini, carrot, onion, celery, green pepper, garlic salt, basil and dash pepper in hot oil, covered over medium heat for 4 minutes.

Mix taco sauce and mustard and stir into vegetables. Cut tomatoes into wedges. Add to skillet. Cook uncovered for another 3 to 5 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Here's what you need to make four servings: 1 cup vanilla ice cream, 1/2 cup milk, 12 Oreo cookies, Additional vanilla ice cream or whipped topping for a garnish.

In an electric blender container, blend ice cream, milk and eight cookies until well blended and smooth, about 1 to 2 minutes.

Pour into four 6-ounce glasses. Garnish with remaining cookies and additional ice cream or whipped topping if desired.

Friendly is 55: July is National Ice Cream Month, according to Friendly Ice Cream, Wilbraham, Mass., which is celebrating its 55th anniversary.

Friendly was started in 1935 by then 18-year-old Curtis L. Blake and his brother, S. Prestley, 20. The brothers borrowed $547 from their parents and bought a two-and-a-half-gallon ice cream freezer, ice cream cabinet, tables and chairs.

The brothers began by scooping ice cream into dishes, but after only four days they decided to use cones, which were invented in 1904. Five-cent double-dip ice cream cones became the mainstay of the flourishing business that summer.

Since then, the number of Friendly locations has grown to 815.

Cold zucchini soup: 3 medium zucchini, 1 medium onion, 1 sprig of thyme, 1 bay leaf, 1/2 cup chicken stock, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon white pepper, 1/2 cup plain yogurt.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Heat oil in a large skillet over medium heat and saute zucchini and onion for 5 minutes, or until soft. Remove from the pan and put into large bowl, add the sausage to the same skillet and break it up with a wooden spoon and cook over medium heat until pink color is gone.

Drain sausage on paper towels. Add sausage to zucchini and onion and mix. Then add remaining ingredients. Mix well and pour into 9 x 9-inch baking dish. Bake for 40 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan on wire rack. Cut into squares to serve.

Simmer for about 10 minutes or until zucchini is tender. Remove thyme and parsley sprigs and the bay leaf and puree the rest of the mixture in blender or food processor. For a smooth soup strain the puree by pressing through a sieve with the back of a spoon. Add remaining chicken stock, lemon juice, salt, pepper and yogurt and stir well to blend. Pour into 1/2 quart container and chill for at least one hour before serving.

Zucchini and sausage pie: 1/4 cup vegetable oil, 2 cups shredded zucchini, 1 medium onion, chopped, 1/2 lb. bulk sausage, 2 cups grated Swiss cheese, 1 cup milk, 1/2 cup half & half, 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese, 2 eggs, slightly beaten, 1 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon white pepper, 1 tablespoon melted butter, Dash ground nutmeg.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Heat oil in a large skillet over medium heat and saute zucchini and onion for 5 minutes, or until soft. Remove from the pan and put into large bowl, add the sausage to the same skillet and break it up with a wooden spoon and cook over medium heat until pink color is gone.

Drain sausage on paper towels. Add sausage to zucchini and onion and mix. Then add remaining ingredients. Mix well and pour into 9 x 9-inch baking dish. Bake for 40 minutes or until knife inserted in center comes out clean. Cool in pan on wire rack. Cut into squares to serve.

Tolland resident top chef

TOLLAND — Frank James, a former chef at Manchester Memorial Hospital, has been named 1990 Chef of the Year by the Connecticut Chef's Association.

Presently an assistant professor of culinary arts at Manchester Community College, James started his 32-year culinary career as an apprentice chef with Hotel Hershey in Hershey, Penn., in 1958. He then studied in the primary cooks and bakers training program with the U.S. Air Force, and cooked for enlisted men and officers at Olmstead Air Force Base in Middletown, Penn.

In 1966, he was hired by Szabo Foodservice at Pratt and Whitney, East Hartford, so he migrated to Connecticut. Since then, he has been employed as a chef at the University of Connecticut, Storrs, and as an executive chef at Manchester Memorial Hospital and Glastonbury Hills Country Club.

Summer isn't the same without a picnic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Summer is prime picnic season. What makes a picnic different from other meals is that it is packed to go. Food is stored in containers that will keep it safe, appetizing, and ready to serve at the desired temperature.

"Safety is the main issue," says Edith Stovel, author of "Picnic: An Invitation to Enjoy Outdoor Dining" (Gardner Way Publishing, Fowlton, Vt.; $16.95 hard-cover; $8.95 soft-cover).

She says cold food should be refrigerated until it is thoroughly cold. Do not let meats, poultry or fish thaw at air temperature because bacteria could form on the warm outer surfaces.

Meat, poultry, or fish that is to be grilled can be carried frozen to the picnic in a cooler and slowly thawed en route. Leftovers can be packed in a cooler for not more than four hours.

Hot food should be kept at 140 degrees F, Stovel says. It's best not to bring home any leftovers. Other tips for keeping hot foods hot and cold foods cold:

• Wrap sandwich bread in a plastic bag. Pack the filling ingredients separately. Chill them both in the cooler.

• Cold food can be packed in cold thermos bottles, coolers with ice or freezer packs, or wrapped in heavy tablecloths, quilts or layers of newspaper and placed in the picnic basket with a chunk of ice.

• For hot liquids, bring the food to as high a temperature as you can. Pour it into a thermos bottle that has been rinsed with boiling water. For other foods, bring them to a high temperature, then foil and place in an insulated bag or heavy cloth.

• "Eat all you bring," she says, "but bring plenty of food because fresh air enhances the appetite. Plan well and cook well and there won't be many leftovers."

So many summertime picnic favorites are off limits to those watching their fat and cholesterol intake.

Well, Tom Mills, after his emergency by-pass surgery, was not pleased about having to give up "good" eating, so he set about changing his favorite recipes to satisfy both his doctor's orders and his gourmet taste buds.

The result was The Healthy Heart Gourmet Cookbook ($13.95 comb-bound), a collection of more than 250 recipes for a wide variety of great-tasting dishes low in fat, low in cholesterol, and low in calories.

Harmless deviled eggs: 6 large eggs, 1 cup Fleischmann's Egg Beaters, 1/4 teaspoon Dijon style mustard, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, 4 tablespoons light mayonnaise, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, paprika.

Yield: 1 dozen. Hard boil eggs. Cool, peel and cut in half, discard yolks. Meanwhile, pour Egg Beaters into heavy 8-inch skillet, and cover with a tight fitting lid. Cook over very low heat for 10 minutes. Remove from heat, and allow to stand covered for 10 minutes. Mash with a fork.

Add remaining ingredients, except paprika, and mix until smooth. Fill the egg white halves with paprika, and chill overnight.

Picnic-basket chicken made easy

By NANCY BYAL, Better Homes and Gardens Magazine

Declare your independence from day-long picnic preparations, yet treat your family to chicken so crisp they'll swear it was fried. Your treat is its 13-minute microwave cooking time.

Rub-a-dub-dub microwave-fried chicken: 2 cups crisp rice cereal, 1/4 cup toasted wheat germ, 1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Place a microwave-safe rack in a 12- by 7 1/2- by 2-inch microwave-safe baking dish. Arrange chicken on rack with the meatiest portions toward the outside of the dish. Sprinkle any remaining crushed cereal mixture on top of the chicken. Cook loosely with waxed paper. Cook on high 12 to 14 minutes or until tender, giving dish a half-turn after 8 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

New frozen kids' meals show high salt and fat content

By BONNIE TANDY LEBLANG and CAROLYN WYMAN

Bonnie Tandy Leblang is a registered dietitian. Carolyn Wyman is a junk food fanatic. Each week, they critique new food items.

Banquet Kids Cuisine Frozen meals. Spaghetti with meat sauce, chicken nuggets, macaroni and cheese with mini-franks, cheese pizza, fish nuggets, mini-chicken ravioli, fried chicken and beef patty sandwich with cheese. $1.89 per 6.25- to 9.25-ounce frozen tray.

Bonnie: Banquet designed this new line of frozen meals just for kids by selecting eight of the top 10 food favorites chosen by them in a recent Gallup survey and turning them into frozen dinners, complete with stickers, games and puzzles. The idea is great, the execution not so great.

Most of these meals are high in fat and sodium and low in calories (none have more than about 400). This latter amount may be enough for an adult who wants a light meal, but school-age kids need more calories each day in order to grow and thrive. Even when served with a glass of low-fat milk, this meal won't provide one-third of the calories needed per day by an active 6-year-old. So after eating one of these, some kids will still be hungry.

At the same time, these meals unfortunately provide a lot of sodium and fat. For instance, nearly 50 percent of the 430 calories in the fried chicken dinner comes from fat, while the macaroni and cheese with mini-franks contains 1,000 milligrams of sodium. The National Academy of Sciences recommends people restrict their daily sodium intake to 2,000 or less milligrams a day.

Despite these problems, Kids Cuisine can occasionally be worked into a healthy diet. They just shouldn't be eaten every day. One more caveat: Children should not be allowed to cook these meals by themselves. They can get severe steam burns from either opening the dimers too close to the face or by biting into an unevenly heated dinner. In cooking, as in all other potentially dangerous tasks, parental supervision is important.

Carolyn: In a sense, TV dinners have always been a kid's cuisine. The hard reality is, most kids prefer choosing a meal from the freezer case to eating one Mom made. So what could be more natural than a company making TV dinners of such kid-approved foods as cheeseburgers, pizza, chicken nuggets, macaroni & cheese, ravioli and spaghetti?

The chicken nuggets, cheeseburger and pizza got the highest marks from our kid tasters. The chicken nuggets were peppery like Kentucky Fried's appliance-chunky and full of cinnamon; and the potato puffs, our 6-year-old taster declared happily, "taste just like french fries." The cheeseburger dinner had the same appearance and taste as a real cheeseburger, but the pizza tasted just like school cafeteria fare, which might be why the kids liked it.

The chicken wings dinner was our least favorite. When cooked in the microwave according to package instructions, these came out slimy, sticky and "yucky" and "gross" from our tasters. The corn came out partially frozen and the potatoes dry as a reconstituted powder. Thankfully, all the entrees come with jokes and a game card—otherwise this particular dinner would have been a total loss. The microwave directions for several of the meals were fairly complicated—requiring kids to take food out of the tray, peel off cellophane and put things back so many times that these could replace IQ tests as a way of measuring youthful intelligence.

Freda Habanero Pepper. $1.99 per packet of one, 25-ounce pepper. Bonnie: Now you can purchase the world's hottest pepper dried, so you can keep it in the pantry. The habanero pepper is hotter than hot. It's 60 times hotter than the fiery jalapeno. In Scoville Units (a heat measurement), the habanero measures 300,000 units compared to the jalapeno's 5,000.

Use this as you would any other pepper: in salsa, chili or dips, but use only a small amount at first, testing as you go, so you don't add too much. One pepper is more than enough for a whole vat of salsa. Reconstitute it by covering the pepper with boiling water and letting it stand 10 minutes to soften. Like any hot pepper, the habanero contains volatile oils that can burn your eyes, skin or lips. So use gloves when handling these chilies, and keep your hands away from your face.

Carolyne: If the extra hot salsa you can buy in the supermarket isn't hot enough for you, you might want to try making your own with this new type of pepper. I personally find the jalapeno to be plenty hot. In fact, I've ruined more than one spicy dish by adding too much chili sauce too fast. Moreover, I'm a bit wary of any food you have to handle with as much caution as nuclear waste.

Dole Frozen Dessert Bars. Chocolate yogurt and Fresh Lites chocolate chip. $2.39 to $2.69 per bar of six, 2.25-ounce bars or eight 1.65-ounce Fresh Lite bars. Bonnie: These two new frozen dessert bars from Dole are similar in many ways. The chocolate yogurt bar contains 70 calories, while the chocolate chip frozen dessert bar has 60.

The main difference is that the chocolate chip dessert bar contains the air of the microwave. Whole chickens roasted in the microwave require only 9 minutes per pound at power level high. So, the average just-size chicken can be cooked in just about 30 minutes. The skin of the microwave cooked chicken will be tender and juicy—ideal for chicken salad. When served with crisp cucumber, tomato wedges, and warm rolls—chicken salad makes a well-balanced meal for a hot summer day.

Perhaps the recipe suggestions given in today's column for main dish chicken salads will be just what you are looking for to feed your family on a hot and steamy summer day.

Mediterranean chicken salad. 2 1/2 to 3 pound whole broiler-fryer chicken, quartered. 1/2 teaspoon salt. 1/4 teaspoon pepper. 1/2 cup red wine. 2 cups peeled chopped eggplant (1/2 inch cubes). 1/2 cup chopped red onion. 1/8 teaspoon instant minced garlic. 2 medium tomatoes, seeded and chopped. 1/3 cup sliced black olives. Dressing: 3 tablespoons olive oil. 2 tablespoons lemon juice. 1 tablespoon snipped fresh parsley.

Remove bacon with a slotted spoon; set aside. Leave bacon dripping in the casserole. Stir in chicken, onion, marjoram and salt. Mix well. Cover and microwave at high power for 3 1/2 to 4 minutes, or until the chicken is no longer pink, stirring 2 or 3 times during the cooking period. Drain the cooking liquid into a small bowl, blend in the mayonnaise and bacon. Pour mayonnaise over hot cooked spaghetti; toss to coat. Add cantaloupe to the chicken mixture; serve over spaghetti. Top with avocado cubes. Yields 4 to 6 servings.

No slaving over a hot stove in summer with a microwave

Fish meals offer healthy lifestyle

By EMILY HOLT

The Associated Press

America's love affair with seafood shows no signs of cooling off. Due to consumer desire for healthier, low-fat foods, fish and shellfish are replacing the more traditional protein foods on the grill.

The Barbecue Industry Association says home grilling of seafood has increased nearly 20 percent in the last few years. It's not hard to figure out why.

Fish is quick-cooking, delicious and healthy. Most fish and shellfish are low in fat, calories, cholesterol and sodium, but rich in protein. New research findings confirm earlier reports that omega-3 fatty acids, beneficial polyunsaturated fatty acids found primarily in seafood, help reduce the risk of coronary disease.

There's even more good news: July is a prime month for seafood. The National Fisheries Institute says consumers can expect good supplies of swordfish, salmon, tuna, halibut and shrimp, items well suited for grilling.

GRILLING TIPS
To make your Fourth of July celebration a seafood sensation, follow these tips from the National Fisheries Institute:

FISH STEAKS
A moderately hot fire is best; it sears the flesh of the fish so that it retains its natural moisture. Thoroughly clean the grill with a brush and wipe it down with cooking oil. Start the fire 30 minutes before you intend to start cooking. Let it burn until white hot. Or, preheat an outdoor gas grill or electric barbecue grill. Adjust the grill height to 4 to 6 inches above the heat.

Brush steaks with sauce, marinade or oil and place in an oiled fish basket or directly on a well-oiled grill to prevent sticking. Cook, uncovered, 1 to 2 minutes to sear fish, then close lid or cover fish with foil tent if desired.

Allow 10 minutes cooking time per inch of thickness of the fish. Fish is done when it just flakes when tested with a fork. Turn steaks and re-oil grill halfway through cooking time. Baste fish frequently to retain moisture.

SEAFOOD KABOBS
Use square-sided or flat skewers, not round. All ingredients on the skewer should cook for the same length of time. If necessary, cook shellfish, finfish and vegetables on separate skewers.

Turn and brush kabobs frequently with basting sauce, reserve marinade or herb butter to prevent drying. Allow 6 to 8 minutes total cooking time for a 1-inch piece. Shrimp, scallops, crab and lobster turn opaque throughout when done. Kabobs of cook fast; watch closely to avoid overcooking.

The following recipes are provided by the National Fisheries Institute:

SEAFOOD KABOBS WITH HERB BUTTER
1/2 pound firm fish, such as halibut, shark, swordfish, monkfish, salmon or tuna, cut into 1 1/4-inch cubes.
1/2 pound shellfish, such as peeled devilled medium shrimp, whole sea scallops, or lobster tail cut into large chunks.
1/4 red onion separated into segments.

Herb butter (recipe follows)
4 branches fresh herbs, soaked in water and dried, or 1 teaspoon dried herb (such as oregano, thyme, rosemary, basil or dillweed).
Arrange seafood and onion on skewers. Brush with herb butter. Toss herbs onto moderately hot coals just before cooking kabobs. Place kabobs on well-oiled grill. Cook, basting frequently, for 2 to 3 minutes per side for a total of 6 to 7 minutes or until fish begins to flake when tested with a fork and shellfish is firm throughout but still moist. Serve with remaining herb butter. Makes 3 or 4 servings.

Herb Butter: Combine 1/4 cup softened butter or margarine, 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley and 2 teaspoons minced fresh herbs (such as oregano, chives, thyme, basil, dillweed or dillweed) in the teaspoon dried herbs in a bowl or food processor. Beat or process until fluffy. Makes about 1/4 cup.

Astrograph
 Your Birthday
 August 2, 1990

Notable advances are likely in your chosen field of endeavor in the year ahead. Promotions are possible and you may even be selected over people with more qualifications.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Do not discount any bright ideas you might have today for making money. Even if they sound a little outlandish to your friends, you're in the best position to judge their value. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you to understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.00 to Matchmaker, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.
VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Spontaneous activities are the ones that are likely to afford you the most pleasure today. Toss out your schedule and fly by the soles of your shoes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unusual circumstances may develop today that will suddenly enable you to grab onto something that has hitherto eluded you. It's the break for which you have been hoping.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be warmly welcomed today if upon impulse you drop in on an old friend without an invitation. This person has been very eager to see you.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A delicate career matter about which you've been a bit apprehensive could work out remarkably well today. Keep your nose out of it - don't let doubt enter the picture.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll have a happy faculty today for saying things to others that will buoy their spirits. You may not be aware of this gift until later.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Two good friends might be doing things for you today that you are not in a position to do for yourself. What you see occur, they may not even tell you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Participate in arrangements today that could afford you a chance to meet new people. You're in a lucky cycle where friends are concerned and you can't have too many.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be extremely imaginative and resourceful today when confronted by challenging situations where you need new ideas. Consider. Contention awakens your vigor.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll be happiest today if you are able to associate with people who have an adventurous spirit and who likes to try new things or go to new places.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something fortuitous may develop for you today, but from a least suspiciously. It could involve an old friend as well as someone you barely know.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you are not only likely to be a fast thinker, you could probably expect a good judgment that will be important to your well-being. Be sure you are available at the time you need it.

Disposition of Chandler a headache for the Colts

By The Associated Press

While the Indianapolis Colts are still trying to figure out what to do with Eric Dickerson, Chris Chandler has suddenly posed another problem for them.

The Colts traded the disgruntled quarterback to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Tuesday, but the deal may backfire unless Chandler gets the kind of contract he wants from his new team.

Chandler must agree to terms with the Bucs by Thursday or the deal is off, according to his agent, Mike Sullivan. Their first discussions began Tuesday.

"We explored the concept of how you pay somebody who is a starting-caliber player but in a backup role," Sullivan said.

Left unresolved, however, is Chandler's lawsuit against the Colts seeking a $500,000 off-season workout bonus he says has been improperly denied him. The suit also seeks to have his contract with the Colts voided, leaving him a free agent able to negotiate his services to any club.

Also unclear is what the Colts will receive in compensation for the third-year quarterback. Neither team is saying anything.

"Both teams have agreed not to release terms of the trade," Colts general manager Jim Irsay said Tuesday.

The Colts thought they were resolving their long lackluster quarterback situation when they traded with Atlanta to receive the top pick in this year's NFL draft, which they used to pick hometown high school hero Jeff George of Illinois. What they got as well were two unhappy quarterbacks in Chandler and four-year veteran Jack Truadeau.

NFL Camps

Irsay said the Colts had been talking with Tampa Bay for several weeks about Chandler and Truadeau, and the trade for Chandler came together in the last few days.

Chandler was seeking to renegotiate the final two years of his contract, which was worth $195,000 this season. He has said the presence of George and his six-year, $15 million contract endangered his future earning potential because he was expected to be a low-paid backup.

Chandler now appears headed to Tampa Bay as a backup to Bucs starter Vinny Testaverde, but Sullivan indicated that would not be a problem if the money is right.

On average, starting quarterbacks earn about $1 million a year and backups receive from $200,000 to $500,000, depending on experience, he said. Chandler is seeking something in between.

Raiders' Bruce Davis, an offensive tackle who had been released by the Houston Oilers, joined the Los Angeles Raiders on Tuesday after signing a contract.

Davis, who was a Raider originally, arrived early Tuesday morning in London, where the team is practicing for Sunday's exhibition game against the New Orleans Saints.

Ronald Lewis took part in his first practice with the 49ers after signing a two-year contract worth a reported $500,000.

"The holdup was strictly financial," Coach George Seftor said.

Lewis, the 49er's third-round draft pick, missed the first five days of practice. He played rookie baseball this summer with the American League team.

Details were not released, but it reportedly will pay Lewis $500,000 over two years, including a $125,000 signing bonus.

The defending Super Bowl champions now have all their draft picks in camp. Veteran nose tackle Jim But also has agreed to a one-year contract worth a reported $1 million but isn't expected to report until the weekend because his sweater is ill.

Chargers' defensive back Gill Byrd ended a four-day holdout Tuesday when he signed a contract with the San Diego Chargers as the club reduced its list of unsigned players to seven.

An eighth player, defensive lineman Lee Williams, remained absent from camp after walking out Saturday to protest the Chargers' refusal to renegotiate his contract.

Cottle resigns post as GOP registrar

By ALEX GIRELLI, Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Patricia Cottle has resigned as Republican registrar of voters in the aftermath of a dispute with the Democratic Party.

Her letter of resignation was read at a meeting of the Republican Town Committee Wednesday night.

Cottle said after the meeting that Steven's budget request provided for a salary increase of 12.79 percent for the two assistants to the registrar.

Flake said the major change that is a portion of the $36,000 transportation budget for the non-profit housing project was used for personal expenses.
