Directors appoint charter review board

By ALEX GIRELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — A 10-member Charter Revision Commission was appointed by the Board of Directors Tuesday night and charged with investigating 17 possible charter changes.

The decision of the directors to move forward with the charter study ended an impasse between the Republican and Democratic directors over the charter study. The five Republican members appointed to the commission are Vincent Diana, Paul Burt, Scott Chapman, Beverly Malone and William Humford. The five Democratic members are Eleanor Colman, Kevin O'Brien, Stephen Penny, Leonard Seader, and Kathleen Shanley.

They will be asked to consider technical revisions in the town code, direct election of the mayor and investigating the mayor and town directors, and raising the schedule for budget approval.

The committee will also review appointing a separate inland waters commission instead of assigning that duty to the Planning and Zoning Commission, a provision for recall of elected officials, clearing up some ambiguities in the town code and reviewing the schedule for budget approval.

"I'm very pleased that the directors have taken this step," said Mayor Richard Suter. "The town is always looking for ways to improve itself, and this is a good opportunity to do so."

Housing chief sought

By ALEX GIRELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — A two-member committee of the Board of Directors will be appointed to investigate a charge that Richard Schwoley, a commissioner of the Housing Authority of Manchester, should be removed from the ground that he miscontracted his job.

Director Walter Irish asked Mayor Richard Suter and Town Manager Richard Suter to name the committee Tuesday night after two residents complained that no satisfactory action was taken after their protest about Schwoley at a meeting with Workhoven, Town Manager Richard Suter and Town Manager Maureen Chmielecki.

The residents, George Birge of 8 Packard St., and Stella Brown of 51 Heron St., are among residents of the area who opposed the purchase of three duplex houses close together for rental to low- and moderate-income families.

They spoke Tuesday night at the close of the board meeting after the board had heard a report by Chmielecki criticizing the authority's conduct of a public hearing and two meetings at which the purchase were discussed.

Malcolm Barlow, the authority's chairman and John Fitzpatrick, vice chairman of the authority, defended the authority's conduct. Schwoley was present during the Chmielecki report but did not speak.

He had left the meeting by the time Birge and Brown spoke.

Motorists jam emissions stations

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — October will be remembered as a hellish time for state Automobile Emissions Stations when the stations have been jammed with people trying to avoid a new fine imposed on expired emissions stickers.

"At our 19 stations, we inspected almost 13,000 [vehicles] on Friday alone," said Nancy Steffens, public relations manager for United Technologies Corp's Hamilton Test Systems, which is contracted by the state to run the emissions program.

A state law went into effect Monday in which the emissions program will impose a $10 fine on motorists who are more than 60 days late in getting their vehicles tested.

In 1989, about 500,000 of the 1.8 million vehicles tested were more than 30 days late, Steffens said.

And many motorists were jamming the emissions stations last weekend seeking to avoid the fines.

"Many were late, and a few were as late as six years, she said." On a typical Friday, about 1,000 cars are inspected at each station.

The wait in the lines at some of the stations were as long as one or two hours, even reaching one-way and two-way streets at the Old Saybrook station.

"We thought there might be some angry people because of the long wait," she said, but added that those who skipped deadlines would be hypocritical to complain about the long lines.

For safety reasons on Saturday, police were stationed at some of the larger centers, several of which had opened before the regular 8 a.m. starting time because lines had formed. And they stayed open until 2:30 p.m., an hour-and-a-half after the regular closing time.

"We really wanted to get everybody that made an effort to get their inspections done," Steffens said.

And after the weekend shut-down on Saturday and Monday, stations on Tuesday were again loaded with customers. But this time many had to pay the $10 fine. Information about the number of fines was not available Tuesday afternoon.

At approximately 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday at the testing center on Tollard Street in East Hartford, which is the closest station to Manchester, the station manager Peter Stevens was warning motorists as they entered the driveway that they would have to wait about an hour before being cause lines had formed. And they stayed open until 2:30 p.m., an hour-and-a-half after the regular closing time.

Gulf at a glance

(AP) Here, at a glance, are the latest Gulf crisis:

- Secretary of State James A. Baker III says support is increasing throughout the world for a military solution to the Persian Gulf crisis. And, he said Tuesday, the United States is considering proposing such a solution through the United Nations.
- However, Baker also said the U.S. still wants to resolve diplomatically the conflict that began Aug. 2 with Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.
- Experts say recent talk of peace in the Persian Gulf has driven the price of oil down this week as rapidly as talk of war was driving it up last week.
- The price of crude oil plummeted more than $3 a barrel on the volatile New York Mercantile Exchange on Tuesday, after having fallen more than $2 a barrel the day before.
- Iraq's oil exports to the U.S. are being blocked by a U.S. naval blockade in the Persian Gulf, according to a U.S. State Department spokesman.
- The United States is planning to send 23,000 troops to the Persian Gulf, according to a U.S. State Department spokesman.

Dodd, Lieberman supported Souter

By JOHN DIAMOND
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Connecticut's two Democratic senators said they supported David H. Souter's nomination to the Supreme Court because he appeared willing to consider cases free of the bounds of any political philosophy.

The Senate voted 90-9 Tuesday to confirm Souter's nomination. The only dissenting votes came from liberals who fear he will oppose abortion rights.

As the Senate approached a vote, Sens. Christopher Dodd and Joseph Lieberman joined the growing bipartisan list of supporters of the New Hampshire judge. President Bush nominated Souter this summer after Justice William J. Brennan resigned in July.

"While I do not expect Judge Souter to take Justice Brennan's place on the court's ideological spectrum, I am confident that he will not stay in the court's conservative shadow," Dodd said in a statement on the Senate floor.

"I believe that he will approach the issues before him with an open mind in an attempt to reach a fair and reasoned conclusion," Lieberman said. "He will not decide these cases in the abstract ... he will join the Supreme Court with an agenda" to fulfill.

Brennan's departure and the nomination of Souter touched off a wave of speculation that the court vacancy would tip the balance against the Roe v. Wade decision protecting a woman's right to an abortion.

Souter's refusal to discuss the abortion issue or even the right to privacy as it relates to abortion drew criticism from Dodd. Dodd called Souter's non-answers "troubling."

"He declined to tell the (Senate Judiciary) committee what his position is on the issue," Dodd said.

Bush calls on Americans to support budget plan

By TOM RAUM
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush asked Americans Tuesday night to support a $500 billion package of tax increases and spending cuts that demands sacrifice from all. "Everyone who can should contribute something," the president said.

Claiming rare unity with leaders of the Democratic-controlled Congress, Bush said in a 10-minute televised speech from the Oval Office that the package was written in "eight months of blood, sweat and tears — fears of the economic chaos that would follow if we fail to reduce the deficit."

"It is the best agreement that can be legislated now," Bush said of the compromise. "This deficit reduction agreement is tough, and so are the times."

Bush's address from the Oval Office was nationally televised, but his message was primarily aimed 16 blocks away at Congress, where an initial vote on the plan may be held as early as Thursday.

Although the package generally has support among Democrats, lawmakers from Bush's own party — particularly in the House — have balked at its tax provisions. Bush himself had abandoned his "no new taxes" pledge in the face of the growing deficit. "I'm not, and I know you're not, a fan of tax increases," Bush said. "But if there have to be tax measures, they should allow the economy to grow, they should not turn us back to higher income tax rates and they should be fair."

"Everyone who can should contribute something. And no one should have to contribute beyond their fair share."

Bush pointed out that the agreement had been hammered out by a bipartisan group. "The Democratic and Republican leadership tonight all speak with one voice," he said, and he urged people to tell their congressmen they support the package.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, joined Bush in urging passage of the fragile package, saying the future of the nation "is more important than partisan differences."

In a televised response, Mitchell acknowledged that Democrats and Republicans had "deep differences over values and priorities" that delayed an agreement for months. The Democratic leader called the agreement "imperfect," and warned that the economic budget cuts and tax increases will demand "sacrifice from all Americans."

"But, if enacted, it holds the promise of restoring a sound economy, from which all Americans will benefit," Mitchell said. "Everybody who can should contribute something," Bush said. "Everyone will bear a small burden. But if we succeed, every American the plan was in trouble, and that a presidential address to the nation endorsing the package might be helpful if he expected GOP support for the package with congressional elections just a month away.

Bush also planned to push for the three-day-old package, which the White House negotiated with congressional leaders, in a series of upcoming speeches around the nation.

The budget package would raise taxes on gasoline, alcohol, cigarettes, boats and furs while trimming benefits to farmers and Medicare recipients. It also would reduce tax deductions for people who earn more than $100,000.

Bush earlier Tuesday had pressed his case with skeptical and wavering House Republicans.

He seemed to be making some headway and by late Tuesday, House GOP leaders were beginning to feel more optimistic about their chances of rounding up support from most of their members. "We've made significant progress," said House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill.

One opponent, Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., agreed, saying, "I'd guess right now it would be narrowly defeated. By tomorrow, it would be narrowly passed. ... People are being moved, one-by-one."

Bush said the budget deficit was "a problem that has lingered and dogged and vexed this country for far too long."

Likening the budget crisis to the Persian Gulf stalemate, Bush said "our nation is standing together against Saddam Hussein's aggression" while at home "another threat, a cancer, is gnawing away at our nation's health."

The president said that ending deficit spending was simple "common sense."

"No nation can continue to do business the way the federal government has been operating and survive," he said.

"When you get a bill, that bill must be paid," he said.

Bush said that the plan was not "a magic act" but contained true deficit savings and would put the nation on the path toward lower interest rates and a balanced budget.

A congressional study released Tuesday showed that the poor would be hit hardest by the package, the rich would feel its increases the least. The increased taxes and reduced benefits would take an average 2 percent of the earnings of Americans with the lowest incomes, according to the survey by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Military force sentiment growing in Gulf crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III says there is growing sentiment among nations to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait and the Bush administration is weighing such a move through the United Nations.

After a week of talking to other world leaders at the United Nations, Baker said Tuesday night. "There is more of a willingness to consider some sort of approach like that, if it became necessary at an appropriate time, than we had anticipated there might be at this stage of the conflict."

But he stressed that sentiments could change quickly, even in one day. And he emphasized the administration prefers a diplomatic and political solution to Iraq's annexation of Kuwait and seizure of the Persian Gulf emirate's oil fields.

Baker spoke at the conclusion of a two-day meeting of 35 foreign ministers to prepare for a European Security Conference summit in Paris on Oct. 19-21.

Asked if the United States had begun to draft a resolution in which the U.N. Security Council would authorize military force against Iraq, as reported Sunday by The Associated Press and Newswatch magazine, Baker replied: "There has been no decision taken at the top levels of this government with respect to going forward now with respect to a particular resolution."

However, he said, "It would not be prudent of us not to be giving some thought to what the various options are and how they would be implemented."

U.S. officials told the AP on Sunday the "back of the envelope" drafting had begun by the United States, the Soviet Union and other governments.

The foreign ministers adopted a resolution condemning Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The statement, proposed by the United States, called for an immediate and unconditional withdrawal.

The 12-nation European Community, meanwhile, approved nearly $2 billion in assistance to Egypt, Jordan and Turkey to compensate for economic hardships arising from the Persian Gulf conflict.

Italian Foreign Minister Gianni

De Michelis said the community would provide $660 million and member nations would provide $1.32 billion.

The European Security Conference ministers took several steps to strengthen the organization in preparation for the November summit in Paris. Among them were the establishment of a small permanent secretariat, a group to monitor elections in Europe and a center designed to prevent conflicts between countries.

But Baker stressed there would be no summit unless a treaty to reduce U.S. and Soviet tanks and other non-nuclear forces in Europe is ready to be signed.

He said the United States and the Soviet Union had made "good progress" but noted they had not settled on aircraft ceilings and definitions of the zones in which provisions of the agreement will apply. In addition, the two sides must settle verification procedures.

He and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze were meeting today to try to wrap up the accord.

With the Persian Gulf crisis dominating events, including the U.N. General Assembly meeting, Baker said there was too much "looking too hard for signals" on how the administration was leaning on a particular day.

No honeymoon for Souter: Judge faces tough issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — David Souter of New Hampshire will take his oath next week as a Supreme Court justice with the nation watching how he'll vote on abortion and other contentious social issues.

The Senate voted 90-9 Tuesday to confirm Souter, 51, as the 105th member of the high court in the nation's history.

The court immediately announced that Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist will swear in Souter next Tuesday morning, just before the Supreme Court begins hearing the second week of arguments in its 1990-91 term.

The first major case Souter will hear concerns a sex-bias dispute. At issue is whether employers may exclude all women of childbearing age from some hazardous jobs, and the court's decision could affect millions of women.

Issues of sex discrimination, race discrimination and especially abortion rights were at the core of opposition to Souter within and outside the Senate.

The handful who voted against him and many voting for the nomination worried about what he would side with the court's conservatives and overrule Roe vs. Wade, the 1973 ruling that legalized abortion.

DAVID SOUTER

"The Judge Souter who testified before our committee did not seem locked to the past," and that was the one he was voting for, Kohl said. He added that he hoped the Senate had not been deceived.

"He's about the best we can expect, from my perspective, from this administration," Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., said of President Bush's first Supreme Court nominee.

But the National Abortion Rights Action League said the Senate "made a dangerous leap of faith" that could lead to the defeat of abortion rights and a return to "back-alley abortions."

Souter toasted the vote with champagne in Concord, N.H., and pledged to return the nation's confidence in him.

"I have been given much and much will be expected of me in return, and I will make that return to you and I will make it in the fullest measure that I can," he said.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and other Democrats who opposed the nomination, said they would not give Souter the benefit of the doubt.

Souter could "solidify a 5-4 anti-civil rights, anti-privacy majority" on the court, said Kennedy.

Thieves sever victim's hand

By NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
The Associated Press

UNION GAP, Wash. — Two holdup men used a chain saw to cut off the left hand of an out-of-work migrant farm worker to steal his expensive watch and two rings, police say.

"They did it for the sheer joy of doing it. That kind of random violence is frightening," Police Chief Lane Roberts said Tuesday.

The victim, a 20-year-old believed to be from Mexico, asked that his name not be released. He was listed in stable condition at Yakima Valley Memorial Hospital.

Investigators said they had no suspects.

The victim, a newcomer to the area who speaks little English, told police through an interpreter he was with his cousin and was looking for work.

The two were at a grocery store Friday night in this poor Yakima suburb and were approached by two men who offered to sell them a chain saw, Roberts said.

One of the men pulled a gun and the two victims were forced into their own car and driven to a remote area, where the hold-up men tried to remove the victim's jewelry, Roberts said.

The police chief said the man's watch, valued at $1,500, had a special security latch that was difficult to open. "It's not something where you reach down with your thumb and pop it loose," he said.

Oil falls as fast as it rose

By DIRK BEVERIDGE
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Oil prices are showing an ability to fall as sharply on the hint of peace as they can rise on the fear of war.

Crude oil plummeted more than $3 a barrel on the volatile New York Mercantile Exchange on Tuesday, a day after falling more than $2 a barrel.

The back-to-back dives left traders wondering where the bottom would be, just as they had wondered last week how high oil could rise as it moved into the $40 range.

"The so-called war premium is being eaten away," said Ann-Louise Hittle, a senior oil analyst with Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc.

Contracts for November delivery of light sweet crude oil, the benchmark grade, closed $3.14 lower at $33.95 on Tuesday. Crude contracts for later months all dropped, most by $1.50 per barrel, their maximum limit for the day.

Oil's fall this week started off in response to more moderate overtures from President Bush and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. Once crude began sliding, it dragged down futures prices for home heating oil and unleaded gasoline.

Heating oil fell 8 cents to 92.03 cents per gallon Tuesday for November delivery. Unleaded gasoline for November delivery fell 6.98 cents to 86.93 cents per gallon. Natural gas fell 2.9 cents to $1.88 per 1,000 cubic feet.

As the tough talk by the Gulf protagonists has faded, the world's oil supply picture has improved. Increased output from Saudi Arabia has begun to reach European markets, easing the strain from the Iraq and Kuwait oil embargo.

"There was a window there where we had the shortfall from Iraq and Kuwait and we weren't really seeing the increase in OPEC production," Hittle said. "That window happened to coincide with the fiercest

Plane crash deaths hit 127

CANTON, China (AP) — Chinese authorities said today that at least 127 people were killed and more than 40 seriously injured when a hijacked plane crashed into two parked jets at this southeastern city's airport.

The Xinhua News Agency said that in addition to 90 Chinese, the dead included one American, 30 Taiwanese, four people from Hong Kong and two from Macao. The U.S. Embassy declined to identify the dead American.

But Scottie Gilbert of Alexandria, Ala., said she believed her daughter, Mary Anna Gilbert, was killed in the crash. Ms. Gilbert had been traveling with the only known American survivor.

A Boeing 737 belonging to China's state-owned airline slammed into the two parked jets at Canton's international airport early Tuesday and exploded in a ball of flames.

One of the parked jets was empty. The other, a Boeing 757, was packed with passengers and bound for Shanghai.

"Many people were injured badly and burned," said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "We have more than 40 seriously injured people now."

He said 80 out of the 103 people on board the Boeing 737 died and 47 of the 124 people aboard the Boeing 757 were killed. Quoting air traffic controllers, the official said the hijacker appeared confused about where he wanted to go.

"At one time he said Hong Kong, then he said Taiwan," the official said. "We are investigating whether he was a terrorist."

The hijacking and crash came as

China hosts its first major international sporting event, the Asian Games. Security forces nationwide have been on alert to prevent any incidents that might embarrass the government.

The hijacker, a 27-year-old man, was killed in the crash and his remains have been recovered, officials said.

Gamblers drawn to Indian casino

FLANDREAU, S.D. (AP) — People attracted by $1 million jackpots and pickup trucks as prizes are trying their luck at South Dakota's first Indian casino, the newest hope of prosperity for the hard-pressed Santee Sioux tribe.

The casino, in the style of Las Vegas and Atlantic City, N.J., opened Tuesday with slot machines, card games and bingo on a dusty plot of reservation land surrounded by cornfields outside Flandreau, population 2,200.

The town is small but the stakes are high for gamblers as well as the Sioux, who stand to earn $750,000 to $1 million in the casino's first year.

Some of the slot machines offer a jackpot of $1 million. Others offer new Ford pickups as top prizes. The tribe is the first of nine in

House set to pass immigration bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House appears set to approve major changes in immigration standards despite Bush administration concerns that it could produce an overflow of new arrivals.

Immigration would rise by an estimated 235,000 a year under the measure, which is designed to reunite families kept apart by current law and bring in more highly skilled workers.

"This will preserve our heritage of getting the best and the brightest from around the world and do it in a way that improves rather than threatens our economic security," Rep. Bruce Morrison, D-Conn., said Tuesday night.

The House planned to complete action on the bill today. A conference committee then must resolve differences between the bill and a Senate version.

The bill would ease obstacles to reunification of families and end 25-year-old barriers against would-be immigrants from northern European countries and others that traditionally sent people here.

The measure also would increase the number of highly skilled and otherwise needed foreign-born workers permitted to enter the United States.

The measure is advancing in defiance of a veto threat from the administration, which says the number of immigrants should be limited to 630,000 annually, the figure in the Senate version. However, the Senate limit could be exceeded under certain circumstances.

The House would increase the annual influx from the current 540,000 to 775,000 and pare down enormous waiting lists of spouses and children waiting to reunite their families in the United States.

The House on Tuesday defeated, 265-143, a move led by Rep. Lamar Smith, R-Texas, to cap immigration at 630,000 a year. It would be an absolute ceiling in contrast to the flexible limit in the Senate bill.

Morrison expressed satisfaction after the House defeated the cap, saying the vote represented "the nearest thing to a test vote on the bill."

Supporters of the limit warned that additional immigrants would strain social services at a higher cost to taxpayers.

"The fact of the matter is, we can't take care of the people we have now," said Rep. John Bryant,

Dartmouth review chief resigns over ethnic slur

By DOINA CHACU
The Associated Press

HANOVER, N.H. — The president of The Dartmouth Review has resigned rather than "wear the albatross of anti-Semitism" because of the publication of a passage from Hitler's "Mein Kampf" in the combatative student weekly.

"I joined a paper which embraced the conservative ideals and attacked issues with daring style, often toeing the line of good taste," C. Tyler White said Tuesday. "Publicly insulting and degrading the Jewish faith is neither a conservative ideal, nor is it in good taste."

The resignation of Tyler and two Review writers came as a petition drive against The Review collected more than 2,000 signatures. A protest rally of students and administrators was planned for Thursday on the Ivy League campus.

"The main message we're trying to get across... is the nation and the national media is that The Dartmouth Review in no way represents the campus," said Brian Elmer, president of the Student Assembly, which represents the 3,200 undergraduates.

The newspaper, which is not affiliated with Dartmouth College, has in the past attacked blacks, women and homosexuals and targeted with profanity.

The latest uproar involved an issue that was distributed Saturday on Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement and Judaism's most solemn day.

The quotation from Hitler was inserted unattributed into The Review's masthead: "Therefore, I believe today that I am acting in the sense of the Almighty Creator: By warding off the Jews, I am fighting for the Lord's work."

Review editors said the passage was put in by an unknown staff writer without their knowledge. The Review called the incident sabotage and offered "heartfelt apologies to Jews at Dartmouth and to the Dartmouth community at large."

REVIEW RESIGNATION — Brian Elmer, president of Dartmouth's Student Assembly, shows resignation letters he's received from staffers of Dartmouth's off-campus weekly paper, The Dartmouth Review, Tuesday. The paper contained an anti-Semitic slur in the issue released last Saturday.

Aspirin may help with migraines

CHICAGO (AP) — An aspirin every other day may help prevent migraines among some of the millions of Americans who suffer the excruciating headaches, scientists reported today.

The findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association are from the same study that found aspirin effective in preventing a first heart attack.

The researchers found that a group of men who took one aspirin every other day reported 20 percent fewer migraines than a similar group took a dummy tablet.

Headache experts called the research results encouraging. But they said aspirin could offer, at best, only a partial solution to the migraine puzzle.

Nevertheless, "there's enough evidence here that health-care practitioners should consider aspirin for migraine treatment," said Julie E. Buring, leader of the team at Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital that reported the findings.

An estimated 20 percent of American adults suffer migraines. Headache experts say there is no known single cause of migraines. The severe headaches, often accompanied by nausea, appear to be triggered in some patients by certain foods and also seem related to stress and a lack of regular sleep, meals and exercise.

Buring and her colleagues analyzed five years of data from the Physicians Health Study, a project involving about 22,000 U.S. male physicians that began in 1982.

The project is devoted to studying the effects of aspirin and beta carotene, an orange pigment found in certain fruits and vegetables, on heart disease, migraine and cancer.

Of the approximately 11,000 doctors who took aspirin, 661 reported migraines at some time after the study began compared with 818 of those who took the aspirin placebo.

A Libertarian message

To the Editor:

When the people of the 12th Assembly District go to vote they should keep a couple of things in mind about the whole picture. For the first time they will have a choice between three Democrats, a Republican and myself, a Libertarian.

I am the best choice. First, I have no enemies and no need to play power games. I can effectively deal with all three candidates for governor. The main advantage in electing me is I don't think like they do; I am not a part of the system. I'm part of the solution.

Government has failed us. While others look for government to solve problems, I ask you, why has the free market failed? If you ask the right question you have a chance to find a solution. I favor the free market and the right to choose. I favor choice in education. I favor lower taxes and I favor limited government. My ideas on government are as old as the American Revolution, but they are new to this century.

The people of the 12th Assembly District have a choice. They should look at all three candidates. While my opponents are good men, they are imprisoned by their political lies. I'm free to think and find solutions that will work.

Arrogant editorial

To the Editor:

Perhaps it is time for the Manchester Herald staff to stop believing they can increase newspaper sales by such blatant sensationalism as the editorial in the Herald's Opinion section dated Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1990. This was an example of poor journalism that will do little to increase circulation in the Manchester area.

Your attitude on the topic of Mr. DiRosa's employment as a teacher is profoundly arrogant considering that the opinion of our town attorney and others found no conflict of interest. I would remind you that in the past, the present majority party had a Town Director who served Manchester and was a Board of Education member.

Name calling of Mr. DiRosa and Mr. Cassano as "unethical politicians" does little to enhance the quality of your editorials. If Mr. DiRosa's job as a teacher is "cushy" (according to your opinion), then can we assume that the Manchester Herald is biased towards all teachers and views all educators in the town as having "cushy" positions? As a graduate of MHS, I and other former students resent your biased innuendos that teachers have "cushy" jobs.

I would hope that future reporting, regardless of your party affiliation, would be more precise and factual. Accusing Mr. Cassano of being "wishy-washy" is true at best.

Please remember, degrading politicians like Mr. DiRosa or Mr. Cassano reminds me that maturity is a quality lacking at the Herald. In the future, be sensitive, be kind, and remember that as children say, "Sticks and stones may break our bones, but names will never hurt us."

Hall-of-Fame publicity

To the Editor:

I would like to congratulate Len Auster and Jim Tierney for presenting the 11th annual Hall of Fame night to the community.

We, the committee of the Manchester Sports Hall of Fame really depend on the "local newspaper" to carry our message.

Thanks so much for your coverage — your people were wonderful and thanks to the Herald, we had another successful evening.

Tom Kelly, President
Manchester Sports Hall of Fame

To the Editor:

Thanks to the Herald, especially Sports Editor Len Auster and Jim Tierney, for the excellent cooperation extended in publicizing the recent 11th annual Manchester Sports Hall of Fame induction dinner.

The space allotted the biggest annual sports program in Manchester was most appreciated. The result helped attract another capacity crowd to the Army and Navy Club. Reporter Scott Brode also captured the program highlights and his story touched all the bases.

School choice favors wealthy

WASHINGTON — Before the opening of each academic year, parents in the Washington suburb of Prince George's County, Md., stand in line for as long as three days and nights to enroll their children in widely acclaimed "magnet" schools.

For anxious mothers and fathers, that wait is essential because the limited number of slots in the county's magnet schools are filled on a first-come, first-served basis. Moreover, the youngsters accepted receive an education of superior quality, flexibility and diversity are far superior to the offerings in other Prince George's public schools.

But those not admitted obviously are not as fortunate. "Some children in Prince George's County get a premium education," says Joyce Charles, a concerned parent. "Others get a discount education."

These inequities illustrate a fundamental deficiency of parental choice — a superficially alluring concept that utilizes open enrollment programs, tuition tax credits, vouchers, magnet schools and other devices so that parents can select the schools their children will attend.

The most enthusiastic proponents of choice portray it as a powerful technique to break the "monopolistic and bureaucratic" hold local school districts have on the families living in their jurisdictions. Even the respected National Governors' Association recommended the option in a 1986 report that said: "If we first implement choice, true choice among public schools, and then the values of competition in the educational marketplace. Schools that compete live.

In Minnesota, a number of initial impressions of the first statewide school choice program suggest that it exacerbates rather than ameliorates similar economic inequities.

"Our choice system favors the white middle class and upper middle class," says Ken Northwick, principal of a Minneapolis high school. "It's going to take a number of years to teach (low income and minority group parents) the skills to use the system."

He adds: "Many white parents know how to beat the system. I don't think it's the same for many black, Indian and Asian parents."

Moreover, a recent report on school choice in the Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune reached a similar conclusion: "Some schools win, others lose and lose too. Because choice is complex, parents who know how to work the system — most often the educated and middle class — are most successful in getting children into desired schools. Those who don't make choices are disproportionately poor and members of minority groups."

Similarly, California Superintendent of Public Instruction Bill Hong warns that school choice "risks creating elite academies for the few and second-rate schools for the many."

Open enrollment has produced its share of initial successes in the country's quest for improved education. But advocates of choice must deal with the still unresolved issue of how to handle the schools and students left behind.

Throwing the rascals out

With any kind of luck, the shots you heard from Concord and Lexington and Bunker Hill on Sept. 18 were harbingers of another revolution.

The citizens of Massachusetts stunned the political world by choosing two outsiders to compete for the governor's office in November. Republican William Weld spent his own money to defeat the party's anointed candidate. Part-tongued Democrat John Silber won public favor by firing verbal missiles at party regulars, the media, academics, bureaucrats, feminists and any ethnic group that crossed his line of vision.

Numerous pundits saw in the result the makings of an anti-incumbency revolt. The primary elections suggested an "electoral powder keg" was awaiting detonation, reported The New York Times. Voters are full of anger and resentment and a sense of betrayal, said one pollster. "People are sick of incumbents," claimed a White House political expert.

The Curmudgeon offers two observations. First, I hope they are right. I knock on wood. I mumble incantations. I tuck pennies into every shopping mall fountain I can find and wish, may pray, that they are right.

Second, I find it amazing that anyone is surprised. You don't have to search very far for the roots of our cynicism. Ty Vietnam and the lying president who led us into that fiasco. Or Watergate and another liar who is now trying to rewrite history.

Consider just recent events: The $35,000 pay raise Congress granted itself in the guise of "ethics reform," and the conspiracy to keep it from becoming a campaign issue. Or the savings and loan abolition. Or the effort to divert us with such froth as flag-burning amendments, and the infuriating assumption that we are stupid enough to fall for it.

A few months ago, a retired financial planner in Tampa, Fla., named Jack Gargan used his life savings to start a group called Throw the Hypocritical Rascals Out. He took full-page ads in half a dozen newspapers and called on voters to dump every congressional incumbent, regardless of party.

The flood of letters, calls and pledges has been nothing less than phenomenal. "It's going crazy," he says. "Those congressmen are like dry tinder, and they better pray for rain. The coming elections could be the greatest political story of the decade, maybe of the century."

Gargan has been on "Good Morning America," he has been featured on the David Brinkley program and he has spoken on so many radio talk shows that he has lost count. He has been pictured in Time magazine and interviewed by the Christian Science Monitor. "We're going to make a difference," he says in a tone of amazement. "Honest to God, we're going to make a difference."

The Curmudgeon is not so certain the revolt will be in full roar by Nov. 6, but he is convinced it is coming and there are few things you can do to hasten its arrival.

Join Jack Gargan's effort, if you are so inclined. Write to T.H.R.O., 4127 West Cypress St., Tampa, FL 33607.

Consider Incumbent Dumping as the major issue of the coming elections and use the Curmudgeon's Index. Grade your legislators on the S&L issue (as much as 400 points for those who acted honorably), the pay raise (possible 200), the cap-

Gulf crisis lessons

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — If the Persian Gulf crisis is somehow settled without a shot being fired, the United States will have learned some valuable lessons very cheaply — cheap in the economy of human life.

"The first and saddest lesson is this: that there may be no such thing as 'world peace.' In a year with so much promise, Saddam Hussein is a colossal spoiler. But if it hadn't been him, it would have been some other ego-maniacal bully with delusions of omnipotence."

Lesson 2: There may be no such thing as "World War" anymore. Instead, regional conflicts will keep U.S. forces running from nation to nation, and will demand troops and weapons that can function from the desert to the tropics.

Lesson 3: As unpopular as the notion is, the United States must continue to do policeman for the globe. On a purely selfish level, Americans need what the world has — oil being the pre-eminent need. We hope to see that there is still a spark of compassion that will make Americans willing to protect the downtrodden and bullied even if there is no oil at stake. The United Nations doesn't have the resources to do it, and other countries have shown they don't have the moral will to do it. America must retain that moral will.

Lesson 4: The current system of defense spending is wrong, wrong, wrong. As much as we mistrust the Pentagon with tax money, we mistrust Congress even more.

There are aircraft, weaponry and other military toys that exist only because some selfish member of Congress wants them built in his or her state providing jobs and money for his or her constituents. The Pentagon doesn't want these toys. The troops don't need them. They exist to get some political re-election.

There are strategists so enamored with high-tech weaponry that they have deprived the budget of money for ammunition, runways, fuel and other logistical necessities. The public is fed up with spending billions of dollars on wild goose chases and "Star Wars." As Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., recently put it, "What we're building doesn't fit the threat we're talking about."

Lesson 5: Thousands of troops and billions of dollars in equipment are sitting in the Saudi desert waiting to solve a problem that could be taken care of with one bullet. Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Michael Dugan was fired last week for implying that the United States wanted to kill Saddam Hussein, but who's kidding whom? Dugan may have been impolitic, but he wasn't making it up. Saddam and his manifest destiny are the problem, not his million-man army. His soldiers would just as soon go home, just as American soldiers would.

If the United States is to earn its reputation as protector of global morality, it can't go around killing heads of state, even if those heads aren't screwed on tightly. What America can do is improve its intelligence gathering capabilities, especially in the Middle East. Saddam telegraphed his punch before he invaded Kuwait, but nobody noticed. The regional conflicts of the future will turn on information. The United States needs to know what the Saudis do. It's a tall order, but it can be done, and for less money than it costs to deploy 200,000 people to Saudi Arabia.

Lesson 6: It is not a crime to go to war over oil. The world economy is dependent on it — the lifestyle, the well-being, the security and the future of billions of people literally rest on it. Until the world finds a way to have been oil is worth fighting for — but only once. The next time there is a Persian Gulf crisis, let's hope we'll be defending something more just because we no longer need Saddam's oil.

Mixed message

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has rejected the economic plan of his Prime Minister Nikolai Ryzhkov. Gorbachev aided against Ryzhkov in a showdown with reformer Boris Yeltsin, the president of the Russian Republic. Ryzhkov wanted gradual reforms and Yeltsin favored a deep plunge into free-market economics. Behind the scenes, Ryzhkov has offered to resign, but it is his arch rival, Yeltsin, who has tried to talk him out of it. Apparently, for all their differences, Yeltsin believes the resignation of the prime minister would have a destabilizing effect.

Mini-editorial

A task force in New York City has wisely concluded that AIDS patients should not be segregated in separate hospitals. The notion was a cockamamie one in the first place. There are diseases much more easily spread than AIDS, and they are treated in general-purpose hospitals.

Germany

wants "no servile world peace in a united Europe."

At midnight Tuesday, before the battle-scarred Reichstag, an estimated 1 million Germans from all walks of life joined in an emotional chorus of the national anthem to usher in the birth of their nation.

Eleven months after the Berlin Wall fell in a peaceful revolt that cast aside Communist East German overlords, the city that symbolized the Cold War division of Europe rejoiced. It was again the capital of a united Germany.

Although Berlin was the center of celebrations, ceremonies stretched into the early morning hours today throughout the country. In more than a half-dozen cities, including Hamburg and Leipzig, scattered anti-unification violence marred the festive atmosphere.

In Berlin, police said about 50 people were arrested for fighting or

Housing

Schwolsky could not be reached for comment today.

While the housing authority is an autonomous body created by state statute, its commissioners are appointed by the Board of Directors.

Brown said that she was informed at the meeting with town officials that an appointee could be removed on ground of misconduct.

Director Joyce Epstein said it was the first time she had heard of any investigation concerning misconduct and she asked Werkhoven if he thought the report by Chmielicki was a sufficient response. He said it was.

Birge said this morning that Werkhoven owed an apology to the residents and to the Board of Directors. He said it is obvious from the comments of directors that they did not know some residents had asked for Schwolsky's resignation or removal from the authority.

At a meeting of the authority commissioners May 21, Schwolsky read from a newspaper account remarks made by residents at a public hearing a week earlier and said of those comments, "In my opinion, it's nothing but bigotry."

"We were called a bunch of bigots," Birge told the board Tuesday night.

Emission

The three lanes at the station were jammed with lines extending almost out to the street, about 150 yards.

Stevens reported the lines on Saturday went into the street and beyond that to a carwash 50 yards to the east.

On Tuesday, he was advising those who could come back later without incurring a penalty to do so.

Jeff Gross, of Manchester, who called the lines "ridiculous," could have waited until Oct. 15 to get his inspection. However, he did not heed Stevens' advice because he said he didn't drive into East Hartford only to turn around go back.

His friend, Kenneth A. Cover of Vernon, said, "When you got to go, you got to go."

Hamilton Test Systems is advising motorists that if their stickers are to expire either Oct. 15 or 30, then still have time for a test without penalty. They are advised also to avoid Tuesdays and the 15th and 30th days of each month as they are the busiest times.

Sgt. John Marvin and Traffic Services officer Gary Wood said Monday that the police department's pursuit of violators will not let up even though the state is cracking down on delinquent motor vehicle owners by penalizing them with $10 fines for inspections that are more than 30 days late.

"This has no effect on us," said Marvin about the law, which went into effect Monday.

He agreed with Wood that issuing warnings for violations often leads police to other law violations.

Such problems include drivers who are operating with suspended licenses, drivers without insurance, and drivers with outstanding arrest warrants.

Marvin said the person who has not done his environmental duty in relation to his car is often the same person who doesn't take decent care of his car. And he may also be the same person who has committed more serious crimes, he said.

"It's the whole lifestyle," he said about a group which Wood referred to as "deviants."

But they agreed that not all emissions inspection violators are perpetrators of serious crimes, a point which considering the staggering amount of violators.

other infractions. A few people were injured when they fell to the ground in the crowd, police said, adding that three warning shots from an officer prevented those who fell from being trampled.

Also today, German leaders celebrated unification at solemn services in the ornate Marienkirche, a Lutheran church, in the former East Berlin. Among those attending were the first chancellor of the new nation, Helmut Kohl, the former prime minister of East Germany, Lothar de Maiziere, von Weizsaecker, and Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher.

In his sermon, Lutheran Bishop Johannes Hempel told the hundreds of Germans from East and West to accept each other the way God has accepted you, in praise of the Lord.

World welcomes united nation, but anxiety tinges historic day

LONDON — World leaders today showered congratulations on the new Germany. But in Europe, the continent with a giant new power and also long memories, signs of anxiety tinged the historic day.

"We face the future as friends, allies and partners," Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said in a message today to Chancellor Helmut Kohl of Germany.

But she said in a British television interview this week, "Germany will be very dominant in Europe, so it will be up to the rest of us not to allow it to dominate. Others of us have powerful voices."

Many European newspapers referred today to World War II and some included German words from the Nazi cry of the 30s: "Ein Volk, Ein Reich, Ein Fuhrer — one people, one state, one leader."

But others focused on the realization of a dream — what Norwegian Foreign Minister Kjell Magne Bondevik called "the end of the postwar division of Europe."

European royalty sent congratulations. "I know that the British people rejoice with you," said Queen Elizabeth II.

Before she voted in favor of naming a commission, Republican Director Ellen Burns Landers said she was concerned that there was an

But Dodd noted that Souter was willing to discuss other constitutional issues that might come before the court and that "other Supreme Court nominees have been more forthcoming and have distinguished personal views from judicial views when appearing before the committee."

For those concerned about the freedom of choice on the abortion issue, Dodd said Souter's comments acknowledging an "unenumerated right of privacy" in the Constitution and his commitment to remain open minded on the Roe v. Wade case should be comforting.

Both Lieberman and Dodd noted that Souter had demonstrated his legal intellect throughout his career

Town officials only reluctantly complied with audit

He said some town administrators were enthusiastic and some refused to cooperate.

Thibodeau, a principal in the firm conducting the town audit, said, "some people felt we were Republican hit men."

He was alluding to the way Democratic town directors had questioned the qualifications of the firm, Bennett, Katz, and Thibodeau, selected by the Republican majority on the board.

Thibodeau said he discussed the problems with Town Manager Richard Sartor and the discussion seemed to resolve that problem.

Thibodeau also reported to the directors on the progress of the audit.

He said there are some problems involved, but he declined to specify what they are beyond saying the auditors have given some department deadlines for producing some information or producing it in different formats.

Director Geoffrey Naab asked Thibodeau why he was being vague about the problems. Thibodeau responded that it might be misleading to discuss details now because the problems appear to be on the way to resolution.

"Three weeks ago, I would have given a different report," Thibodeau said, and pointed out that some matters are better discussed in private.

Thibodeau explained that in most cases, the information the auditors sought was not where it should be, but the answer was available elsewhere.

He said some issues to be resolved are changes in accounting methods.

Thibodeau also said he found that there was no financial statement to audit, which he said is not unusual, but that the information needed to prepare a financial statement was weak and records were scattered.

Holland said he has been in touch with the two men in the past, trading ideas about how to keep taxes down.

There will also be two petitions circulating at the meeting. One will ask the town to limit teacher salary increases to 5 percent during this year's contract negotiations. It will also ask the town to cut teacher positions for every 1 percent salary increase over 5 percent.

The second petition will ask the town to split its budget. Careless Holland said the town budget and the Board of

Second zoning hearing

BOLTON — Residents will get a second chance to express their concerns about the proposed zoning regulations at a public hearing tonight.

At the first hearing, which took nearly two hours, residents discussed only one-third of the new regulations.

The residents characterized the new regulations as too vague and frequently too restrictive.

The discussion tonight is expected to focus on the new Open Space Conservation Plan.

Under that section, developers of subdivisions would be allowed to build houses on lots that are little more than half an acre, provided that 50 percent of the total project is set aside as open space.

For example, if a developer with a 10-acre parcel was to build a subdivision under the conservation plan, the builder could use smaller lots if five acres of the land were left undeveloped.

Zoning Commission Chairman Mark Johnson says the plan allows developers to put up the same number of houses on less land, which is more economical.

Developers will still have the option of building under the traditional lot size requirement, which is 40,000 square feet, a little less than one acre.

Directors delay funding cafeteria fund deficit

School superintendent lambasted by board

By SCOTT BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Despite grilling School Superintendent James Kennedy for close to an hour, the Board of Directors took no action Tuesday night on appropriating $90,000 to save the School Cafeteria Fund.

The vote was cast off at least until next week when the board reconvenes because the directors said they needed more time to discuss the issue.

At the board meeting, the directors berated Kennedy and the Board of Education for not being alert to the cafeteria deficit before the problem got out of control.

"It seems like a lot of money [was lost] before you applied the brakes," said Director James Fogarty, wondering why an increase in prices and other cost saving methods had not been taken when the cafeteria deficit first started going downhill.

Kennedy said that this is not the first year that the cafeteria program has been in the red, but in past years, shortage costs were paid out of money from a retained earnings fund that is now bankrupt.

"Now that [your retained earnings] are down to zero, you have to pump some money into the account," Director Geoffrey Naab said.

Kennedy said he and the Board of Education would have gone before the board earlier when the deficit became apparent, but he was waiting to see how much revenue would come from an unexpected surplus state payment to the town. Kennedy is suggesting that the $90,000 to make up the cafeteria deficit should come from that extra state funding.

Right now, Manchester will receive at least $218,313 from the windfall and could be receiving as much as $291,071, Kennedy said.

When I was casting for words to come up with my feelings [for having to come before the board for more money], the best word I could come up with is chargin'," said Kennedy, noting that the possible difficulty that the school system may have meeting fuel costs because of the recent sharp increases in oil prices.

"I can't stand here and tell you that I will not be here again," the superintendent said, noting the possible difficulty that the school system may have meeting fuel costs because of the recent sharp increases in oil prices.

Tax revaluation phase-in possible

By ALEX GIRELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The possibility that the town will phase in its new tax revaluation was broached at a meeting of the Board of Directors Tuesday night.

Director Stephen Cassano asked if the effect of a phase-in was part of the public education program being conducted by Michael Bekech, the town assessor. Bekech said he has not included it in his presentations.

Cassano said people are asking if the town will keep the phase-in program and Director Geoffrey Naab questioned whether the town has a phase-in in effect. Cassano said the board voted 5-3 for the revaluation in 1988, before an in-house revaluation was abandoned because of many problems associated with it.

Under the phase-in plan, the new assessments would have gone into effect over a five-year period with the full impact being felt in the fifth year.

The decision on whether or not to phase in the revaluation will be up to the Board of Directors.

The report on the progress of the revaluation was one of several heard by the board Tuesday.

Another was a report on leaf collection.

Public Works Director Peter Lozis told the directors that town residents will be told this year as in past years to pile leaves for townwide pickup at the edges of their properties and not in the gutters.

Lozis made the comment in connection with a report to the board on plans to lease a new type of leaf-pickup machine which gathers the leaves from the street surface.

He said two workers will accompany the machine to rake the leaves into the road.

About 1,900 Connecticut Light and Power Co. customers in Manchester, Bolton, and Glastonbury lost power Tuesday, but all had their power restored within about an hour, according to CL&P.

The power went out at 10:22 a.m. Almost 1,135 of those who lost power were Manchester residents, 20 from Glastonbury, and the rest from Bolton, CL&P spokeswoman Barbara Wilbur said. About 1,070 Manchester customers had their power restored at 11:05 a.m., and the remaining customers were restored at 11:24 a.m.

The power failure was caused by a short circuit on Gardner Street in Manchester, LeBeau said.

Some of the primary streets affected in Manchester included Hackmatack, S. Main, Spring, and Gardner. Also affected were streets in Danvers and Timrod roads and Sunnybrook Drive.

In Bolton, the main streets affected included Boston Turnpike and Linwood Drive. Also affected were Notch, Bolton Center, Hop River, Vernon, and South roads.

Redford stumps for Moffett bid

By KIM S. MARTIN
The Associated Press

DANBURY — Actor and director Robert Redford arrived in Connecticut Tuesday to campaign for his friend and fellow environmental activist Toby Moffett, a 5th District Congressional candidate.

Redford, who accompanied Moffett at a news conference at his Danbury campaign headquarters, said the former Democratic congressman should be elected to look out for the state's environmental well-being.

"Fairfield County is one of the wealthiest counties in the United States and it's also one of the most polluted," Redford said. "What that tells you is a simple fact — you can't buy help."

Redford, who owns a home in Weston, said the Bush administration made many promises concerning the environment in 1988 such as cleaning up the polluted Boston Harbor.

"Well, here it is two years later and we've seen it and it's nothing," he said.

Both Redford and Moffett stressed the urgency of cleaning up the environment.

"We're living in a world that's tipping dangerously out of balance," Redford said. "I don't think we've ever experienced the naked greed and rap of our land (that) we have seen in the last few years."

Moffett said federal support for local environmental projects, such as the upgrading of Danbury's sewage treatment system, was slashed by the Reagan and Bush administrations.

"Ten years of federal neglect of the environment has resulted in local governments struggling to pay for the skyrocketing costs of cleaning up," Moffett said. "Danbury is a classic example of the federal government leaving the taxpayer holding the check for the cleanup."

Moffett served as a congressman from 1974-1982. In 1982, he left Congress to run for the Senate, but lost to independent gubernatorial candidate Lowell Weicker Jr.

While in Congress, he was voted one of the ten best on environmental matters by the League of Conservation Voters. He formed the PCB Citizen Watchdog Committee to fight for the removal of the carcinogens from the Housatonic River and founded the Connecticut Hazardous Waste Task Force.

He said he wanted to fight for federal funds to improve sewage treatment, something he said his opponent, Waterbury Alderman Gary Franks, was against.

"My opponent wants to get the government out of our lives instead of getting the government on our side," Moffett said.

President Bush plans to campaign for Franks on Thursday at a $500 per person fund-raising reception for Moffett and Franks are running for

Desegregation panel's progress slow

HARTFORD (AP) — Three months before its deadline, there are lots of doubts about whether a commission seeking voluntary ways to desegregate Connecticut's schools can complete its report on schedule.

After working for more than a year, the commission, appointed by Gov. William A. O'Neill, has yet to make specific recommendations. Some members worry that the work has been too abstract.

Rowland: limit congressional terms

By JUDD EVERHART
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Members of the U.S. House of Representatives, some of them entrenched for decades, should be limited to 12 years in office, says Republican gubernatorial candidate John G. Rowland, himself a member of Congress for the last six years.

Rowland said his proposal would reduce voter cynicism and keep new ideas flowing in Washington.

He had raised the issue Monday in a debate with his opponents, Democrat Bruce A. Morrison and Connecticut Party candidate Lowell P. Weicker Jr. Neither Morrison, who's been in Congress for eight years, nor Weicker, who spent 20 years in the U.S. Senate and House, endorsed the idea.

But Rowland, a three-term congressman from Waterbury, said voters would welcome the idea.

"The people who are making the decisions, the people that are the committee chairmen, generally are senior Democrats," Rowland said. "They've been there 30 or 40 years. Most of them never return to their districts."

Rowland would like to see the U.S. Constitution amended to allow U.S. House members elected to four-year terms, as opposed to the current two-year terms, and limit them to three such terms.

Nationally, there seems to be growing sentiment in favor of limiting the tenure of officeholders. Oklahoma voters decided by a two-to-one margin to put a 12-year limit on service in their state legislature.

Term limits will be on the general election ballot in California and Colorado, the latter measure applying to members of Congress as well as state officeholders. Leaders of an effort to do that nationally with a constitutional amendment claim they are gaining support.

Police Roundup

Man charged with harassment

A Manchester man was charged with 12 counts of harassment after allegedly hounding a Manchester Herald employee with threatening letters and attempts to contact her by phone, police reported.

The man arrested Tuesday, Emil Haberern, 65, of 454 Main St., has an extensive criminal record, which includes similar types of harassment, police records show.

On Sept. 5, police received the initial complaint against Haberern, who had allegedly sent the victim such gifts as a container of car wax and a Popular Mechanics magazine, the report said.

On one occasion, he tried to telephone her at the Herald, but spoke with another employee who pretended to be the victim, the report said.

The letters Haberern allegedly sent to the woman included such phrases as "blood and gas" and "road to hell."

Two arrested for possession

One Massachusetts resident faces charges of possession and intent to sell crack cocaine and another faces possession charges only, after the two were arrested at the Buckland mall Tuesday, police reported.

Patricia Kay Clark, 33, of Boston, Mass., who faces the narcotics sales charge, also was charged with tampering with evidence when she allegedly tried to hide the drugs just before a strip search at the police station, police reported.

John Banks, 33, of Framingham, Mass., was arrested after police found a quantity of the drug on his person, police reported.

Thoughts

And there was this fellow who lived long ago. His father favored him and his brothers were jealous. He said strange things and told dreams that brought anger. He was sold into slavery and had more downfalls than most. Yet a little phrase stands out in the life of Joseph, Jacob's son: "And the Lord was with Joseph." Genesis 39:2. This made all the difference in the world. This kept Joseph on a good path. Forgiveness was in him like the One who came after him in those days when Caesar Augustus ordered a census. "Who thought evil against me; but God meant it for good." Genesis 50:20.

last chance to enjoy outdoor dining

Warm, lazy days. Long days that entice us outdoors, clinging to the last remnants of good weather before the chill of fall finally settles in. Easy days to linger over a tall drink and a light supper, dining outdoors to relish each glorious day while they last.

POTATOES FOR A NUTRITIOUS, YET SATISFYING SALAD
 How to plan your menu? Be sure to have a potato salad, the dish no outdoor meal is complete without. Potato Salad defies convention by adding such "extras" as bacon for meaty flavor and smoky taste, sautéed vegetables for color and crunch, and a vinaigrette dressing instead of mayonnaise to bind the flavors. Because this salad is served at room temperature, it's a great candidate for fall picnics or tailgate parties.

To make Potato Supper Salad or any other potato dish, select potatoes that are fairly clean, firm and smooth. Until you're ready to use them, store potatoes in a cool, dark, well-ventilated place. Clean potatoes before cooking with a gentle scrub from a vegetable brush or cellulose sponge.

Celebrate with a menu that transcends the seasons. Start with staples that are available year-round, such as potatoes and fresh mushrooms, combined with colorful squash, red peppers, tomatoes and fresh basil in quick-to-fix salads and sandwiches. Fruited tea drinks will quench your thirst for cool, light refreshment.

Potatoes are a convenient way to add important nutrients to the diet, while curbing calorie, fat and sodium intake. A medium potato has only 110 calories, yet provides half your daily need for vitamin C, as well as a good supply of fiber and complex carbohydrates.

FRESH MUSHROOMS ENHANCE SIMPLE SANDWICHES
 Sandwiches are a deliciously easy, no-fuss menu option for outdoor dining. Golden Toasted Mushroom Sandwiches start with a handful of ingredients that are still in good supply—chopped tomatoes, fragrant basil and crisp lettuce—combined with mushrooms, which are available year-round. Serve on grilled butter-Parmesan toast.

Fresh raw mushrooms are crisp in texture and light in flavor. Mushrooms are exceptionally low in calories (only 14 per 2 1/2 cup), fat and sodium.

Select mushrooms that are smooth, with few blemishes. Should you buy open or closed caps? It's a matter of personal preference. Mushrooms with open caps are more mature and consequently have a more intense flavor than mushrooms with closed caps. Size, too, is a matter of preference. Use small or large mushrooms, as you like.

The key to mushroom quality is proper storage. If purchased in bulk, keep mushrooms in a paper bag in the refrigerator to allow them to breathe. Store pre-packaged mushrooms in their original container. Once opened, transfer packaged mushrooms into paper bags. Clean fresh mushrooms with a damp cloth or soft vegetable brush just before using.

HOT OR COLD, SPECIALTY TEAS ARE DELICIOUS YEAR ROUND
 A warm day deserves a cool drink. Specialty drinks are easy to make when you start with Lipton® Specialty Teas in convenient tea bags. Choose from any array of varieties. These recipes feature three: Orange & Spice is a delectable blend of natural orange and sweet spice flavors with a special blend of quality teas and is available in regular and decaffeinated varieties. Cinnamon Apple herbal tea combines two classic flavors, cinnamon and apple. Lemon Soother herbal tea is fragrant with lemon, mellowed with hibiscus and orange peel and contains no caffeine.

These teas, wonderfully comforting when brewed hot during cold weather months, make delectable bases for cool drinks. Start cold drinks by brewing hot tea and adding sugar while hot to dissolve thoroughly. Then chill the tea and add spices, fruits and juices.

For your menu, serve Fruit and Spice Margarita using Orange & Spice tea with a blended mixture of frozen strawberries, lemon juice and tequila for a colorful, fruity drink. Cinnamon Apple Wine Cooler adds white wine and lemon juice to Cinnamon Apple herbal tea, with a splash of fizzy club soda. Whirl Lemon Soother herbal tea and fresh watermelon in a blender for cool, refreshing Watermelon Lemon Slush.

Serve potato salad, mushroom sandwiches and flavored tea coolers together in a single menu or separately, to mix and match with other warm-weather menus. When the weather grows colder, the key ingredients—potatoes, mushrooms and Lipton® Specialty Teas—will continue to serve fall and winter menu plans.

Fruit and Spice Margarita
 2 cups boiling water
 6 Lipton® Special Blends Regular or Decaffeinated Orange and Spice Tea Bags
 2 1/2 cups sugar
 2 cups frozen strawberries
 3 tablespoons lemon juice
 2 tablespoons tequila (optional)
 2 cups ice cubes (about 12 to 16)

Watermelon Lemon Slush
 (Not Pictured)
 3/4 cup boiling water
 4 Lipton® Lemon Soother Herbal Tea Bags
 2 tablespoons sugar
 4 cups cubed and seeded watermelon
 1 1/2 cups ice cubes (about 9 to 11)

Cinnamon Apple Wine Cooler
 1 1/2 cups boiling water
 6 Lipton® Cinnamon Apple Herbal Tea Bags
 1/3 cup sugar
 2 cups cold water
 1 cup white wine*
 2 teaspoons lemon juice
 Club soda, chilled

Quick Fall Salad Ideas

- Split and fluff a baked potato. Fill with a fresh vegetable slaw made with crisp, finely shredded red and green cabbage, carrots, zucchini and crookneck squash tossed with a light yogurt-dill dressing.
- Coarsely mash hot, cooked potatoes; mix in some cottage cheese, chopped green pepper and sliced green onion. Season with salt and pepper; chill. Serve on a nest of shredded crisp vegetables or greens.
- Blend softened cream cheese with shredded Cheddar cheese, chopped cilantro, green onions and ripe olives. Spoon into mushroom caps; chill. Toss into green salads or serve on a bed of mixed greens.
- Toss sliced or chopped fresh mushrooms with toasted walnut pieces, thin slices of Parmesan cheese, chopped red onion, pitted Greek olives and a garlic vinaigrette seasoned with chopped fresh or dried oregano. Serve in hollowed tomatoes or green pepper cups.

Creamy sauces add texture, satisfaction to fall cooking

Pleasing the palates of all ages, creamy sauces are a welcome addition to fall and winter dishes. A natural accompaniment to high carbohydrate foods, such as pasta, potatoes and rice, sauces dress up a dish for a heart-warming, cool weather presentation.

The recipes offered here, Shrimp with Fettucine and Pasta, Potato-Pepper-Carrot Gratin and Creamy Chicken with Artichokes and Mushrooms are served over pasta or rice have been specially created to add an ingredient which simplifies the making of creamy sauces — Kraft Spreadable Cheese Snacks.

The Spreadable line includes seven spreadable cheese snacks that are made with natural cheese and other wholesome ingredients, are low cholesterol products and have 25 percent fewer calories than cream cheese or regular cold pack cheese food.

In celebration of the versatility of Spreadable Cheese Snacks, Kraft is offering a recipe booklet which includes appetizers, soups & breads, sandwiches and salads, and serving suggestions.

For a copy of the booklet, simply print your name, address and zip code on a plain 3x5 piece of paper and send it with your check or money order in the amount of 50 cents made payable to Easy Recipe Ideas for postage and handling to:

EASY RECIPE IDEAS, PO Box 8450, Clinton, IA 52736-8450. (No cash or stamps please.) Add try the following recipes:

Shrimp with Fettucine and Pasta
 1 lb. shrimp in shells, peeled, cleaned
 1 tsp. dried basil leaves, crushed
 1 garlic clove, minced
 2 Tbsp. olive oil
 1 (10.5 oz.) container Spreadable Cheese Snack Neufchatel Cheese with Garden Vegetables
 1 cup frozen peas, thawed
 1/2 cup milk
 8 oz. fettucine, cooked, drained
 Salt and pepper

Saute shrimp, basil and garlic in oil in large skillet 3 to 5 minutes or until pink. Reduce heat to low. Add cheese snack, peas and milk; stir until melted. Add fettucine, toss lightly, continue cooking over low heat until thoroughly heated, tossing frequently. Season to taste. Garnish with fresh basil leaves.

Makes 4 servings with a prep time of 20 minutes and a cooking time of 10 to 15 minutes.

Potato-Pepper-Carrot Gratin
 1 medium red-skinned potatoes, unpeeled, cut into 1/4-inch slices (about 4 cups)
 4 large carrots, cut into thin slices (about 2 cups)

1 medium red or green pepper, cut into thin strips
 4 green onions, sliced
 2 Tbsp. margarine
 2 cups mushroom slices
 1 (14 oz.) can artichoke hearts, drained, quartered
 1/2 cup chopped onions or shallots
 1/2 cup dry white wine
 1 (10 oz.) container Spreadable Cheese Snack Neufchatel Cheese Salt and Pepper

Saute chicken in 2 Tbsp. margarine in large skillet until tender; remove from skillet, leaving drippings. Saute mushrooms, artichokes and onions in drippings, adding additional margarine, if necessary, until tender; remove from skillet, leaving drippings.

Spoon over mixture into greased 12x8 inch baking dish, spreading evenly; cover with foil. Bake 35 minutes. Mix crumbs and margarine; uncover casserole. Sprinkle crumb mixture over vegetables; continue baking, uncovered, about 30 minutes or until cheese is melted. Pour over vegetables; toss lightly.

"Nothin' says lovin' like something from the oven" and despite what some people say about dieting they're right there to take the first taste as the cook takes muffins or quick breads out of the oven.

The mention of muffins conjures up a picture of something sweet and probably fattening. This isn't always the case, although a sweet-type muffin certainly tastes good with morning coffee.

With muffins and quick breads it's fun to experiment and substitute various ingredients.

If you've ever made a regular Linzertorte, you'll love the Linzertorte muffins. I use homemade raspberry jam for this, but store-bought jam is perfectly fine to use.

Bacon-cheddar muffins
 1/3 cup flour
 1/2 cup butter
 1/2 cup cheddar cheese
 1 egg
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 cup sugar
 2 tsp. baking powder
 1/2 tsp. salt
 Dash ground red pepper
 8 slices bacon, cooked, drained, and chopped
 1/2 cup shredded cheddar
 1 cup milk

1 egg, lightly beaten
 3 Tbsp. butter or margarine, melted and cooled
 1/2 tsp. Dijon-style mustard
 Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Stir flour, cornmeal, sugar, baking powder and salt and pepper in large bowl. Stir in bacon and cheese to coat. In another bowl, stir together the milk, egg, butter and mustard until blended. Make a well in center of dry ingredients and add milk mixture and stir to combine. Spoon batter into prepared muffin cups. Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until test done. Cool five minutes before removing from tins. Serve warm or cool completely and store in airtight container in refrigerator. Makes 10 regular muffins.

Apple-almond bread
 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 1 cup brown sugar
 2 eggs
 1 tsp. vanilla
 1/2 cup grated orange rind
 2 cups flour
 1 tsp. baking soda
 2 tsp. sugar
 1/4 tsp. salt
 1/2 cup orange juice
 1 cup finely chopped apples
 1/2 cup chopped almonds

Preheat oven to 400 and grease muffin cups. Stir dry ingredients together. In another bowl, cream sugars with butter until fluffy. Beat in egg, lemon peel and vanilla. Stir in milk. Make a well in center of dry ingredients; add butter mixture and stir just to moisten. Add milk. Spoon half of batter into muffin cups. Place 1 tsp. jam in center of each portion of batter. Don't let jam touch sides of cups. Spoon remaining batter over jam. Bake 15 to 20 minutes.

Canned pears, of course, do well in any course

Canned pears can be enjoyed at any course of any meal and between meals as well. In fact, they can be considered as much a kitchen staple as flour, sugar and salt. That's because canned pears can be used to enhance — or stretch — so many other foods.

Hot or cold, served with cereals or atop pancakes or waffles, they give zest to breakfast. At lunch or dinner, canned pears are an ideal accompaniment to meats, poultry and seafood entrees. They also combine well with vegetables, cheese and other fruits in salads.

And all manner of delicious desserts and between-meal snacks can be made with the fruit.

Canned pears are a versatile and practical shelf staple. Because they are a good source of fiber, easy to digest, and are a low fat, low sodium food, they can be enjoyed by those on special diets.

Whether they are packed in their own juices, in water, or in a traditional sugar syrup pack ranging from light to heavy syrup — canned pears are a natural for the 1990s.

Try the following recipes:
Pear Shake
 1/2 cup canned pear halves
 1/2 cup vanilla yogurt
 1/2 cup reserved pear liquid
 3 ice cubes

Drain pears; reserve 1/4 cup liquid for each serving. Mix all ingredients in blender until smooth and thick. Makes 1 serving. Per serving: 238 Cal., 5.9 g. pro., 1.6 g. fat, 52.1 g. carb., 6 mg. chol., 1.9 g. fiber and 81 mg. sodium.

Breakfast Pears (Microwave Method)
 1 can (16 oz.) pear halves
 2 Tbsp. maple-flavored syrup
 2 tsp. lemon juice
 1/2 tsp. butter or margarine
 1/4 tsp. ground nutmeg

Bake at 325 degrees F. 15 to 20 minutes or until thoroughly heated and golden brown on top. Serve warm. Makes 4 to 6 servings. Per serving: 118 Cal., 0.7 g. pro., 2 g. fat, 29.1 g. carb., 0 mg. chol., 1.3 g. fiber and 45 mg. sodium.

*Almonds omitted in analysis.

PEAR PERFECT — Canned pears can be used in many dishes to add a unique flavor and healthy twist.

What's new on supermarket shelves?

By BONNIE TANDY LEBLANG and CAROLYN WYMAN

One ounce of each variety contains 290 milligrams per ounce. That's more than the amount of sodium in regular mozzarella (106 milligrams) and cheddar (176 milligrams), but less than the 490 milligrams in regular American.

Fat-free cheeses do not have the texture of regular cheese. But if you shred the cheese and use it in cooking, you won't notice the difference.

Bonnie: That may be true, but I couldn't bring myself to chop up and melt this stuff over good food. Not only does this not have the texture of regular cheese — it doesn't have the texture of any foodstuff I can think of. (Rubber and plastic come more readily to mind.) It wouldn't be quite so bad if these cheeses tasted good, but only the

Cookbook awards set

NEW YORK (AP) — A new "Julia Child Award for Best First Cookbook" will be presented next year by the International Association of Culinary Professionals.

Other IACP award categories: Food Reference-Technical; Entertainment-Illustrated-Photography; Literary Food Writing; Wine, Beer, or Spirits-Beverage; Ethnic-Regional; Baking-Pastry-Conficcationery; General; Health-Diet; Single Subject.

Eligible contenders for the awards include all cookbooks and other books on food and beverages published during the 1990 calendar year.

Selection and judging will be conducted by an independent committee of judges selected by IACP, a not-for-profit professional association with headquarters in Louisville and 1,400 members worldwide.

The awards for the best books of 1990 will be presented at IACP's 13th annual conference to be held in Vancouver in May 1991.

Colonial's Shuch home searched; FBI is called in

WEST HARTFORD (AP) — The FBI has launched an investigation of Colonial Realty Co.'s chief financial officer following allegations that millions of dollars from the troubled real estate firm and its business associates may have been misappropriated.

Agents Tuesday raided the West Hartford home of Frank M. Shuch, 39, a Colonial partner, looking for money and business records.

An FBI affidavit, upon which the search was based, said agents were looking for evidence of mail fraud, bank fraud, wire fraud, racketeering, conspiracy and income tax evasion. Authorities would not say what they found.

Shuch has not been arrested, but the affidavit contains information from several Colonial employees, including founding partners Benjamin Sisti and Jonathan Goebel, that suggests Shuch was involved in numerous questionable transactions.

Shuch denied all the charges Tuesday, through his lawyer, James F. Byrne.

"The charges brought against Mr. Shuch are denied by Mr. Shuch and without merit. Mr. Shuch will be cooperating with the appropriate authorities both to clear his name and diligently defend any charges of impropriety that may be levied against him," Byrne said.

Colonial Realty Co. and its investment partnerships are among the largest property owners in Connecticut. The West Hartford company has organized more than 80 investment partnerships since it was founded in 1966, raising more than $1 billion from individuals who wanted to invest in those deals.

The company's partnerships currently control more than 25,000 apartment units and 4 million square feet of office space in Connecticut and 17 other states. In the Hartford area, its properties include the Gold Building and Constitution Plaza office buildings, the Century Hills apartments in Rocky Hill and Cromwell Commons Shopping Center in Cromwell.

The company was forced into bankruptcy court Sept. 14 and has since filed for reorganization. There is no suggestion in the affidavit that Shuch's transactions were responsible for Colonial's financial difficulties.

The affidavit contains the following information:

One of Shuch's administrative assistants said that in February or March of 1986 Shuch instructed her to enhance the financial statements of potential real estate investors by adding fictitious assets.

The enhancements appear to have allowed Colonial to circumvent federal law regarding the net assets required of investors in private offerings. The law is intended to protect the financial integrity of private limited partnerships.

Shuch instructed an assistant to create a number of totally fictitious investors in one of the company's limited partnerships, the affidavit says. False promissory notes from those fictitious investors were sold to various banks.

Biotech patent backlog

By PAUL RECER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The backlog of patent applications for inventions in the biotechnology field has grown to 8,213 and some applicants are waiting almost four years for final action by the Patent and Trademark Office, a study says.

The General Accounting office, in a report released Tuesday, said the inventory of unexamined biotechnology patent applications increased by about 33 percent in 1989 and 1990 and that efforts to accelerate the process "have been less effective than anticipated."

Waiting time for biotechnology patents, the study said, averaged about 26 months last year, compared to 19 months in other technology fields.

Rep. Ron Wyden, who ordered the study by the GAO, called the finding "very, very disturbing."

"These sorts of delays not only put struggling, young biotech companies at risk, they may also hold up distribution of new, lifesaving drugs, need for superbugs or engineered organisms to clean up pollution," the Oregon Democrat said.

To obtain a patent, applicants must file descriptions of the new technology. Patent examiners then determine if the proposal is new, useful and significantly different from earlier patents.

SEES TALKS ENDING — United Auto Workers Union President Owen Bieber told reporters that he sees contract negotiations between the union and Ford Motor Company coming to a close by Friday.

Local talent is still at it with Yankees

If you're in the Tampa, Fla., area in the next three weeks or so, and want to see some local talent in action, stop in at the New York Yankees' minor league training camp and take a look at former East Catholic High School teammates Larry Stanford and Bill Masse.

Stanford, a 1985 ECHS graduate, and Masse, a 1984 grad, are Manchester natives but their immediate plans are to return to the area for awhile. The pair, who are sharing an apartment in Tampa, plan to stay in the Sunshine State after the instructional league season runs its course on Oct. 26 and train there until spring training camp opens.

Rep. Ron Wyden, who ordered the study by the GAO, called the finding "very, very disturbing."

Public bests MHS in defensive struggle

By LEN AUSTER
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — It was an ecstatic bunch of Hartford Public soccer players at the conclusion of Tuesday's match with host Manchester High at Memorial Field.

The Owls had good reason to celebrate, getting their first victory over Manchester's home turf, 1-0, in a battle of two of the top clubs in the Central Connecticut Conference East Division.

"It was our first win ever here," said Public's J.R. Eschloe, who tallied the game's only goal. "It definitely was a big win for us."

"This was the first time we've ever beat Manchester at home. We deserved to be excited," Public coach Steve Kassy said.

The decision keeps the Owls atop the CCC East at 5-0-1 while the Indians, defending league champs, fall back to 3-2-1. Manchester resumes conference play Friday at 3:30 p.m. at East Hartford High.

"Hartford is a real skilled team," Manchester coach Bill McCarthy said. "I don't think they let us get into our game. We did have some opportunities, but they always seemed to diffuse them."

It was a tactical first half with the teams combining for four shots, three by the Owls. Hartford pressed the attack, but the Indian defense led by sweepback Scott Salonen, stopper Troy Guntullis and defenders Matt Belcher and Jeff Ross were more than equal to the task.

Hartford almost had a goal early in the second half as Juan Martinez, on an obvious offside to everyone but the Mike Milazzo (4 saves). But Guntullis was able to keep it out of danger with a header.

The Owls finally broke through at 7:34 of the second half. An Indian defender, tangled up with Martinez, and Milazzo had a momentary lapse in communication. That allowed Eschloe to roam free and drill it into the center of the cage from relatively short range.

"The one goal they were able to convert, but I think our defense played pretty well," McCarthy added. "We were pretty organized in the back. They didn't have too many chances on Michael. I do think we can play with them."

Public in this defensive struggle did outshoot Manchester, 8-5.

There were several strange calls, including a yellow card on Owl goalie Bounio Chanthanavong with about 20 minutes left. He came out for the ball, and punched the Indians' Dwayne Goldston as the wostwome went for the ball. There was some confusion about the call, the Owls inserted a field player as keeper for a minute in which Manchester could get no shots, and wound up with the ball.

"They (the officials) said the ball was out of bounds when it happened," McCarthy advised. "I've never heard that one before."

Later, Goldston was nudged inside the penalty area. It didn't bring about a penalty kick, either, but maybe the whistle shouldn't have come, too. The call was just as weird. "(The official) said it was charging at an inappropriate time," McCarthy said.

The Owls, who pressed most of the way, seemed to fall back toward the end in a defensive posture. "We tend to (fall back) when we get ahead," Kassy said. "It is something we have to work on. We fell into the trap the beginning of the second half. But I kept telling them to keep the ball on the ground and it seemed to work well although Manchester did put some pressure on."

Manchester's best bid came with 18 1/2 minutes left, but Matt Kohu's boot was squarely at the stomach of the Owl keeper.

"Hartford is a skilled team which knows how to work the clock," McCarthy said, noting the times when it took the Owls three or four minutes to restart play. "We practiced a lot on our defense (Monday), tacking, but they take you out of your game with the stoppages. You just have to mentally stay on top and I think the kids did well."

Manchester goes to 6-0 in the CCC East while the Owls are now 0-6 in the conference and 0-6-1 overall. Manchester, ranked fourth in the nation in the latest Gatorade/National Soccer Coaches Association of America Top 20 poll, has outscored its opponents to date, 47-0.

"The key to our success this year has been the off-season improvement of three players," Manchester coach Joe Erardi said. "Amy Mizoras, Missy Jolly and Sharon Fish have all brought their level of play up two notches."

Kathy Cumberbatch, Sharon Fish, Patti Hornoski, Mary Moriarty and Cumberbatch again scored within a five-minute span in the first half for Manchester. Cumberbatch's first goal was a one-timer off a cross from the wing from Shelly Dieterle. The two goals gives Cumberbatch nine for the year, a figure matched by Hornoski.

Mizoras and Doller Chanatavong had second-half scores for Manchester.

"We've made tremendous improvement in our overall match play as we approach the halfway point of the season," Erardi said.

Manchester will next see action Friday at 3:30 p.m. at Memorial Field against once-beaten East Hartford High. "East Hartford (4-1-1) comes to us with only one loss. They're fast and physical. It should be a good match," Erardi said of the upcoming clash.

Reaugh optioned

HARTFORD (AP) — Kay Whitmore has won the battle to be the Hartford Whalers No. 2 goalie, with Daryl Reaugh being sent to the Springfield Indians.

Whitmore became the Whalers No. 2 goalie last season when Mike Liut was traded to the Washington Capitals, but Reaugh challenged him for a roster spot during the preseason.

Whitmore, 23, had a 2-59 goals against average in six preseason games. He posted a 4-2-1 record for the Whalers last year with a 3.53 goals against average.

Reaugh, 25, had a 2.72 goals against average in five preseason games.

Peter Sidorkiewicz is the Whalers top goaltender and is expected to start when the Whalers open their season at home Thursday against Quebec.

The Whalers announced Wednesday that defenseman Joel Quenneville has been traded to the Washington Capitals for future consideration. Quenneville is the second player to be sent to Washington. Dave Tippett was sent to the Capitals on Sunday. The Whalers will receive a sixth round pick in 1992.

MHS girls rolling along

HARTFORD — And the beat goes on for the Manchester High girls' soccer team.

The Indians, who were expected to do well in the preseason, maybe have even surpassed those expectations. The 1990 season is seven games deep, and Manchester has yet to surrender a goal — let alone a shot.

The Indians held punchless Hartford Public without a shot as they pummeled the Owls, 7-0, in CCC East Division play.

Manchester goes to 6-0 in the CCC East while the Owls are now 0-6 in the conference and 0-6-1 overall. Manchester, ranked fourth in the nation in the latest Gatorade/National Soccer Coaches Association of America Top 20 poll, has outscored its opponents to date, 47-0.

ROCKY HILL — The Coventry High boys' soccer team began its match with humbling Rocky Hill on a positive note.

Unfortunately for the Patriots, that was as positive as Tuesday afternoon would get. After Coventry took a 1-0 lead four minutes into the match, Rocky Hill scored six unanswered goals and won, 6-1.

The Windham Invitational, Dave Hoagland and Bill Scheideman ran great races. Sophomore Scott Herman had his best race of his young career.

Results: 1. Eric Slowertson (R), 15:29 for 3.1 miles, 2. Trak (R), 3. Hoagland (M), 4. Werdell (R), 5. Johndrow (R), 6. Butter (R), 7. Scheideman (M), 8. Malone (R), 9. Herman (M), 10. Moriarty (M).

East girls lose to Mercy

MANCHESTER — The East Catholic High girls' cross country team, running without three of its top four runners due to injury, lost to Mercy High of Middletown, 21-37, Tuesday afternoon at Wickham Park.

East is now 4-3 and will compete in the Wickham Park Invitational on Saturday.

Single senior Nancy Byrne was the individual winner with a time of 16:27 for the 2.5-mile course. Senior Alison Macdonald was sixth for East while Sheila Murry and Sara Gilbertie took ninth and 10th, respectively.

Gooden's bid for 20 wins falls short

By JOHN KREISER The Associated Press

The Pittsburgh Pirates added one more unhappy moment to the New York Mets' disappointing season. The Pirates, who spoiled the Mets' season by winning the NL East title, ruined Dwight Gooden's hopes for 20 victories Tuesday night by beating New York, 9-4.
