Sullivan wins Spark Plug 300

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Danny Sullivan cruised to a wire-to-wire victory Sunday in the Champion Spark Plug 300-kilometer Indy-car race, closing out his six-year run with the elite Penske Racing team with a near-perfect weekend.

Sullivan, driving a Chevrolet-powered Penske 90, built leads as much as 33.25 seconds and lapped all but five competitors on the way to his second victory of the season, his 12th driving for Roger Penske and the 15th of his career.

The 84-lap, 186-mile race was slowed by one full-course caution, that coming at the start when Willy T. Ribbs and Dean Hall tangled wheels and sent Hall into a tire wall before the leaders had even crossed the start-finish line.

Al Unser Jr., who had 11 top-five finishes and a series-leading six victories in 16 races and came into the race with his first CART PPG Cup title already wrapped up, finished second. He finished with 210 points, breaking the mark of 196 set by 1989 champion Emerson Fittipaldi.

Piquet wins Japan Grand Prix

SUZUKA, Japan (AP) — Nelson Piquet captured the Japanese Grand Prix with an average speed of 123.077 for 53 laps on the 3.66-mile Suzuka layout Sunday as Ayrton Senna took the season-long Formula One championship.

Senna gained the title when Alain Prost of France crashed his red Ferrari into Senna's McLaren-Honda, sending parts of the car flying into the air only seconds after the start of the race.

Because neither driver could finish, Senna walked away with the title. His points lead now is big enough that even if Prost wins the season's final race at Adelaide, Australia, Nov. 4, he can't overtake Senna.

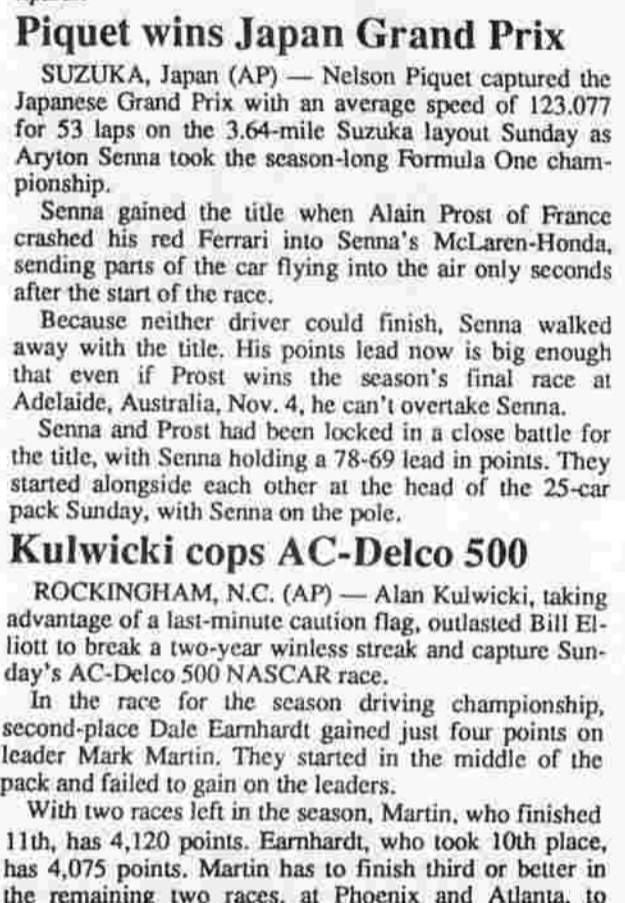

Senna and Prost had been locked in a close battle for the title, with Senna holding a 78-69 lead in points. They started alongside each other at the head of the 25-car race Sunday, with Senna on the pole.

Kulwicki caps AC-Delco 500

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — Alan Kulwicki, taking advantage of a last-minute caution flag, outlasted Bill Elliott to break a two-year winless streak and capture Sunday's AC-Delco 500 NASCAR race.

In the race for the season driving championship, second-place Dale Earnhardt gained just four points on leader Mark Martin. They started in the middle of the pack and failed to gain on the leaders.

With two races left in the season, Martin, who finished 11th, has 4,120 points. Earnhardt, who took 10th place, has 4,075 points. Martin has to finish third or better in the remaining two races, at Phoenix and Atlanta, to clinch the championship.

Notre Dame is back in national title picture

By The Associated Press

Welcome back, Notre Dame, into the national championship picture. And say goodbye to defending champ Miami, Tennessee and Florida State.

While Virginia celebrated last week's first-ever No. 1 ranking with a 49-14 victory over Wake Forest, no fewer than eight members of the Top 25 went down over — four of them losing to unranked teams — and two others tied on another Saturday of surprises.

Foremost among the losers were second-ranked Miami (4-2), winner of three national championships in the last seven years but victims of a 29-20 setback at the hands of No. 6 Notre Dame (5-1) in the final scheduled game between college football's bitter rivals.

It marks the first time since 1984 that Miami has lost more than one regular-season game to a team that has ever won the national championship with two losses.

"We can still have an outstanding season, win nine games and go to an outstanding bowl," coach Dennis Erickson said. "I've never seen a year (of upsets) like this one. A team can win it with two losses, not that we could. Our chances are slim and none."

Notre Dame's Lou Holtz, still upset over last year's runner-up 12-1 finish, has said he doesn't think the Irish can win it with even one loss. Holtz apparently is unaware that Notre Dame had a loss in two of its eight championship seasons — and had a tie in two others. Anyway, the Irish must still play Tennessee and Southern Cal on the road.

"It's not who can win the title, but who's left," Holtz said. "It's like getting up in the morning and reading the obituary column — you're happy if you're not in it."

Third-ranked Tennessee had its hopes crushed with a 9-6 loss to Alabama and No. 7 Florida State (4-2), the nation's No. 1 bridesmaid with a second-place finish and two thirds in the last three years, wrote its own obituary with a 20-17 loss to No. 5 Auburn.

So who's left?

Besides 7-0 Virginia, unbeaten teams include No. 4 Nebraska (7-0), a 31-3 winner over Oklahoma State; Auburn (5-0-1); No. 9 Houston (6-0), which trounced Southern Methodist 44-17 (the Cougars are on probation and only Auburn in 1997); and Oklahoma in 1974 have won national championships under those circumstances). No. 11 Georgia Tech (5-0-1), whose season was dinged in a 13-13 tie with Virginia on Oct. 21. Wyoming (8-0), which struggled past Division I-AA

Waters hit by hefty fine

NEW YORK (AP) — Andre Waters of the Philadelphia Eagles was fined "a substantial amount," by the NFL on Saturday for hitting Minnesota quarterback Rich Cannon below the knees after Cannon released a touchdown pass Monday night. League spokesman Greg Aiello said the fine was levied by commissioner Paul Tagliabue after a review of tapes of Monday night's 22-24 victory by the Eagles.

Official returns to work

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two weeks after the controversial "fifts-down" game between Colorado and Missouri, one of the officials who was suspended was back on the field in Big Eight action Saturday.

Seven officials were suspended after confusion late in the Oct. 6 game inadvertently gave Colorado an extra down. The Buffaloes scored on that play for a 35-31 victory. Earlier this week, Big Eight commissioner Carl James declined to say whether any of the officials would be reinstated.

Reports from Big Eight game sites indicated that field judge Terry Turlington worked the Oklahoma-Iowa State game Saturday.

Chelios invigorates the Blackhawks

By The Associated Press

Chris Chelios didn't enjoy a brief stay on the bench earlier in the week. He's trying to make sure it doesn't happen again.

Chicago coach Mike Keenan benched his star defenseman during Tuesday's game with Detroit for poor play and lack of effort. But there was little for Keenan to complain about Sunday night as a rejuvenated Chelios had a goal and three assists in the Blackhawks' 7-1 rout of Minnesota.

"I knew exactly why I was taken out and for very good reason," Chelios said after the best offensive night of his career. "It isn't something like, but I deserved it."

NHL Roundup

Chelios scored a power-play goal in the first period to give the Blackhawks a 2-0 lead, then set up Chicago's first three goals.

"Very few players get past him and he has so much hockey sense, he just makes the right play at the right time," said Minnesota's Bobby Smith, a teammate of Chelios' in Montreal.

Goalie Jacques Cloutier, also in Keenan's doghouse for ineffective play, stopped 24 shots for his first victory of the season. Cloutier lost his shutout with 2:47 remaining on a goal by Mike Modano.

Minnesota is 0-6-1 in its last seven games. The North Stars are 0-7-2 at Chicago Stadium since March 28, 1988.

After Keith Brown scored his first goal of the season just 2:12 into the game, Chelios scored his third of the season at 13:34. He and Doug a power-play tally by the Blackhawks.

Chelios also set up Jeremy Roenick's power-play goal at 17:29, and Steve Lamm, who scored his second of the season 40 seconds into the game, had an assist on Trent Yawner's power-play goal at 7:49.

Chelios said the win was important after Chicago's poor showing in a 6-2 loss at Toronto on Saturday night.

"We needed this one after last night," he said. "But the coach talked to us before the game about being ready for this one. We didn't lay back."

Flames 2, Oilers 1 In Edmonton, Calgary got second-period goals by Brian MacLellan and Theoren Fleury and limited Edmonton to 16 shots on goal to win one of the Battle of Alberta.

Edmonton took a 1-0 lead 4:56 into the game when Dave Brown converted Petr Klima's centering pass. It was Brown's first goal in 138 games, dating back to the 1987-88 season when he was with Philadelphia.

MacLellan pulled the Flames even at 8:59 of the second period and Fleury scored on a power play at 14:09.

Edmonton goalie Bill Ranford made 29 saves to keep the Oilers in the game.

"It's great when you make those stops, but the bottom line is we didn't win the hockey game and you can't be happy about that," Ranford said. "They played a good hockey game. We only had 16 shots."

Cannucks 3, Nordiques 2 In Quebec, Steve Bozek scored the go-ahead goal with 9:09 remaining in regulation and added the game-winner just over five minutes later.

Bozek beat Ron Tugnutt with a 10-footer from the slot, then swatted a loose puck barely over the goal line at 16:11. Quebec's Mats Sundin scored with eight seconds remaining.

Petri Skirra's first-period goal gave the Canucks a 1-0 lead and Aaron Broten tied it late in the second period.

Nebraska 31, Oklahoma St. 3 Nebraska, ahead by only 7-0 at halftime, pulled away on Mickey Joseph's 39-yard touchdown and his 3-yard TD pass to Johnny Mitchell. The Cornhuskers are 28-0-1 against Oklahoma State in the last 29 meetings.

Tyrone Hughes' 40-yard kickoff return set up Greg Barrios' 31-yard field goal and his 19-yard punt return set up Joseph's TD run. Leonis Flowers rushed 21 times for 138 yards, including a 12-yard touchdown pass to Rodney Culver with 6:16 left.

No. 1 Virginia 49, Wake Forest 14: Wake's 268 all-purpose yards — he rushed 13 times for 100 yards, caught one pass for 24 and returned three kickoffs for 144 — helped Notre Dame overcome a 355-yard passing performance by Miami's Craig Erickson, who threw two costly interceptions.

No. 1 Virginia 49, Wake Forest 14: It's not easy being No. 1, especially for the 57-yard drive when Florida State's attempt "fumbledrooked" play backfired.

Florida State quarterback Casey Weldon put the ball on the ground for a lineman to pick up, but Auburn's Walter Tate intercepted it.

Stacy Danley tied the game with his first touchdown of the season, a 2-yard run. Auburn began the 57-yard drive when Florida State's attempt "fumbledrooked" play backfired.

Florida State quarterback Casey Weldon put the ball on the ground for a lineman to pick up, but Auburn's Walter Tate intercepted it.

The victory enabled Illinois to retain its share of first place in the Big Ten (3-0) with Iowa and Minnesota.

No. 9 Houston 44, SMU 17: David Klingler, the nation's total offense leader, finished with 48 completions and 76 passes in throwing for 461 yards and five touchdowns, three to Manny Hazard.

It was the fifth time in six games that Klingler passed for more than 400 yards.

No. 22 Iowa 24, No. 10 Michigan 23: Matt Rodgers, who passed for one touchdown and ran for another, led an 85-yard drive to the winning touchdown in the closing minutes. Iowa recovered a fumble, intercepted a pass and held Michigan to just three first downs in the yards and a touchdown to pace Wesleyan offensively. Corey Witfield's 2-yard run capped an 80-yard drive late in the fourth quarter to give Wesleyan a 21-7 lead.

Amherst (4-1) closed the gap to 21-14 on a 1-yard plunge by Kevin Capone.

The victory puts Wesleyan atop the Little Three, the mythical New England Division III alignment that includes Amherst and Williams.

"The Little Three games are the big ones for us," Hatter said.

Wesleyan plays Williams on Nov. 3.

In Kings Point, N.Y., Matt Venezia's 1-yard scoring run with 2:58 left gave Western Connecticut a 12-10 win over Kings Point. Nat Libby's fumble on the Mariner's 1-yard line set up Venezia's touchdown for the Colonials (7-2).

The Mariners, who had won three straight, dropped to 3-3.

Kennelly, Dodd say budget passage likely

By MELISSA B. ROBINSON Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Barbara Kennelly, D-1st Dist., predicted Monday that congressional Democrats favor increased tax rates for that group.

Kennelly, who voted for the first budget that did not raise taxes for the richest Americans and included provisions no longer being considered like a home heating oil tax, has consistently stressed that passing a deficit-reducing budget is more important than the plan's individual parts.

"Everyone hates taxes," said Kennelly on the daily public affairs forum hosted by NPR's Diane Rehm. "It goes against the grain of everyone running for office. . . . [But] if we go home and the wrath of the people falls upon us, so be it. We're here to do a job, not to keep our job."

Students study space and stars

By BRIAN M. TROTTE Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Imagine a mild autumn evening with about 40 high school students spending the night gazing at the stars.

No, it's not a scene from the local "lover's lane." It's part of an Earth and Space Science class being offered to ninth-grade students.

Teacher Karen Cordero will take her class outdoors tonight, weather permitting, to look at the stars and the planets through a school-owned refracting telescope, along with the students' own telescopes and binoculars.

Cordero said other amateur astronomers are welcome to join the class when it meets at 7:30 p.m. But it's strictly a "BYOT" (Bring Your Own Telescope) affair, she warns. Maps of the stars and constellations will be provided at the event.

The hour-long class will take place at Bolton High School, which Cordero said is a nearly ideal location. "There's almost no light pollution at all," she said. "It's in a very remote area in a large cleared field."

Autumn is one of the better times for stargazing because the clear, cool air makes it easier to see into space. Some of the sights examined the night will include the planets Mars and Saturn, a meteor shower and the moon.

In addition to the planned stargazing session, students have also examined the sun through a telescope equipped with a special lens which blocks ultra-violet light. Looking directly at the sun without such a lens could cause blindness.

"It was very exciting for the students to be able to see the sun spot activity," Cordero said.

Shortfall seen in garage plans

By BRIAN M. TROTTE Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Plans for a new town garage literally came up short of the expectations of the town's Public Works director.

The drawings of the proposed 8,000-square-foot building were presented Monday to the Public Buildings Commission by Sudhakar Nagardolakar, an architect with Russell and Dawson of East Hartford.

But Public Works Director Dan Ratuzzi said the interior of the building is not high enough to drive in some of the town's larger dump trucks and raise the bed for maintenance. Moving the maintenance of town vehicles indoors is one of the primary reasons the facility is being built.

The problem stems from the heating system that had been designed into the building. The architects planned to use an oil-fired furnace with large, round heating ducts tugging from the roof supports. However, the bottom of the ducts would be only 12 feet off the floor. The doors to the facility are 14 feet high.

"It would be foolish to put in anything lower than the door," said PBC Chairman Art Mensing.

Currently, the town's largest truck is 10.5 feet tall. But if the trend toward reducing manpower continues, the town may need to purchase bigger trucks, which wouldn't fit under the ducts as they are now.

Rights veto helps Bush

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush's veto of civil rights legislation hurts him with a constituency he yearns to attract, but it helps him win voters who put him in the White House.

That was the assessment Monday of Republican political operatives who emphasized the importance of making it clear that the president's opposition was to quotas, not to civil rights.

"The temptation to support a bill such as any bill — simply because its title includes the words 'civil rights' is very strong," Bush said in his veto message.

"But when our efforts, however well-intentioned, result in quotas, equal opportunity is not advanced but thwarted," the president added.

"I don't think it's going to play very well in the black community," Republican former Gov. Thomas Keane of New Jersey said of the quota argument.

Keane, who got more than 60 percent of the black vote in his landslide 1985 re-election campaign, said he believed Bush did what he thought was right, "although I'd like to have seen him sign it."

The way the legislation was described by its proponents and opponents defined the political issues.

To supporters, it was civil rights legislation needed to nullify six Supreme Court decisions that made it more difficult for women and minorities to prove and win job discrimination suits. The measure banned racial harassment in the workplace and allowed punitive damages in the most serious discrimination cases.

To opponents, the issue was quotas, not civil rights, and quotas is a potent issue in American politics.

"Republicans are trying not to call it a civil rights bill," said Michele Davis, executive director of the Republican Governors' Association.

"We've got to do a lot better job explaining what this legislation does."

The key for Republicans is convincing people it is quota legislation.

The strength of that issue was seen in the race for governor of California, where Republican Pete Wilson succeeded in portraying Democrat Dianne Feinstein as advocating quotas in state hiring.

It brought some Republicans home, said Davis.

There were reports that Bush got conflicting advice from White House aides, some arguing he should continue negotiations until he could find a compromise, others arguing that the measure should be signed.

Board: drugs, booze are out

By SCOTT BREDE Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The Board of Education sent out a message loud and clear Monday night: drugs and alcohol will not be tolerated on school grounds.

In an effort to rid the school district of the drug plague that is sweeping across the country, board members voted unanimously to begin a policy of stiffer punishments for those students caught selling or using drugs or alcohol.

"Drugs will not be accepted on school grounds," said Allan Chesteron, the assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum.

Gulf at a glance

(AP) Here, at a glance, are the latest developments in the Persian Gulf crisis:

- Saudi Arabia's King Fahd today urged Saddam Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait and said the Iraqi president would not lose face if he did, according to news reports. The statement appeared to be Saudi Arabia's most conciliatory message yet to the Iraqi leader since his forces seized Kuwait on Aug. 2 and subsequently massed on the Saudi border.
- A peaceful dream could help prevent the nightmare of war. The Kuwaiti newspaper Al-Sayass is reporting that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein told top aides that he dreamed Mohammed appeared before him and told him: "I see your rockets deployed wrongly." The dream could be an attempt to prepare Iraqis psychologically for a pullout from Kuwait, which Iraq invaded Aug. 2.
- Hopes for a peaceful settlement to the crisis also came from Saudi Arabia, where the defense minister, Prince Sultan, reportedly said Arab nations are willing to discuss Iraq's most conciliatory message yet to the Iraqi leader since his forces seized Kuwait on Aug. 2 and subsequently massed on the Saudi border.

ATLANTA (AP) — The doctor who first identified Lyme disease 15 years ago says doctors are overdiagnosing the tick-borne illness.

"It's being used to cause a number of conditions it is not causing," Dr. Allen Steere of the Tufts University School of Medicine said Monday. The bacterial disease, which causes a distinctive bulls-eye rash, fever and arthritis and is carried by tiny ticks that are often found on deer, is being diagnosed for conditions ranging from chronic fatigue to stress, Steere said.

Jury orders white racist to pay $5M to family

By SALLY CARPENTER HALE
The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — White supremacist Tom Metzger and others must pay $12.5 million in damages to the family of a black man beaten to death by racist "skinheads" Metzger is accused of inciting, a jury ruled Monday.

Metzger, 52, a former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, was assessed $5 million and the jury awarded the family of the slain man $3 million in damages. His son John, 22, was must pay $1 million in damages.

Metzger was accused in the lawsuit of inciting the murder by sending an agent to Portland to organize skinheads and teach them how to attack minorities.

Metzger, a TV repairman from Fullbrook, Calif., who said his family lives on $1,200 a month, said he couldn't come close to paying the judgment and probably would appeal.

"I'll be broke, and under the Constitution I can advocate violence now and nobody can sue me anymore," said Metzger. "So all the things I'm accused of that I didn't do, I can do now."

The jury decided that Kenneth Mieske and Kyle Brewster, two skinheads who pleaded guilty in the slaying, must pay $500,000 each in damages.

The wrongful-death suit brought by the family of Malageta Seraw sought $12.5 million, and the jury awarded the entire amount. It wasn't immediately clear how the remaining $2.5 breaks down among the defendants.

Seraw, a 27-year-old Ethiopian who planned to attend school in Portland, was attacked by three racist "skinheads" as he returned home from a party in November 1988. His head was split open by a softball bat.

"People from this country... have avenged my son's death for me," Seraw's father, Seraw Tekeneh, said through an interpreter after the verdict was announced. "This is the happiest I feel since my son died because I know he has not died in vain."

The lead plaintiff's attorney, Morris Dees of the Southern Poverty Law Center in Montgomery, Ala., noted the jury awarded all the damages he sought.

"Back home, we say, 'It cleans his plow,'" Dees said of the verdict. "This jury, I believe, has said there will be a new season for justice in the Northwest and the hate and violence as preached by Tom Metzger hopefully will be shut down forever," Dees said.

Jurors deliberated about five hours before reaching the verdict on an 11-1 vote.

The Multnomah County Circuit jury found that the Metzgers and White Aryan Resistance conspired to do violence to minorities and that they were reckless in sending Dave Mazzella to Portland as their agent.

Metzger, who served as his own attorney, said the white separatist movement wouldn't be deterred by the ruling.

The verdict "will cause the ire of a growing underclass of this country," Metzger said. "They made a fatal mistake, I believe. I think they shot themselves in the foot and as conditions change in the country, I think you're going to see it."

The Metzgers never faced criminal charges in the beating.

Mieske pleaded guilty to murder and racial intimidation, in the beating, Brewster to manslaughter and racial intimidation and a third skinhead, Steven Strasser, to manslaughter.

Three years ago, Dees won a $7 million jury verdict against the United Klans of America after two Klansmen from Mobile, Ala., killed a 19-year-old black man.

chestrated by the fanatic right wing within the ranks of the South African government security forces," he said. "It is an attempt to weaken the African National Congress and to derail the peace process."

"It is the logic of white racist domination, that those who have enjoyed the ill-gotten privileges of apartheid should seek to retain them."

Mandela said he had presented evidence of government complicity in the violence to the Australian Cabinet that included affidavits from witnesses. But such evidence has not been shown to his government because people who have spoken out in the past "have been harassed," he said.

The meeting between Mandela and Buthelezi would be their first since Mandela's release in February from 27 years in prison.

The ANC later proposed that Buthelezi attend a meeting with other black homeland leaders, but Buthelezi turned down the invitation because he wanted to attend as the Inkatha leader rather than in his capacity as head of the KwaZulu homeland.

The ANC opposes the homeland system, saying it is part of the apartheid system. But Inkatha sees the homeland system as an interim step to black rule in South Africa.

Parlow said Ms. Johnson made a "substantial contribution" in giving birth to the child. But her relationship to the baby was like a foster parent who takes a child in when the parent can't, the judge said.

"I think a three-parent, two-natural mom claim in a situation is ripe for crazy-making," he said. "I decline to split this child emotionally between two mothers."

The decision upholds a contract under which the Calverts agreed to pay Ms. Johnson to carry an embryo created from the couple's sperm and egg. A hysterectomy prevents Mrs. Calvert, 36, from carrying a baby.

"We are entering into very dangerous times if we allow the creation of a breeder class of women whose parental rights can be signed away in a business deal," said Ramona Ripston, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Southern California.

The measure retains the prohibition on the use of federal money for abortions for poor women, except when the mother's life is in danger.

Abortion-rights advocates had hoped to add language expanding that exception to include cases of rape and incest — a move that prompted Bush to veto the bill a year ago when it passed the House and Senate.

But they were stymied when the Senate added language to that provision that would have required parental notification before a teen-age girl could obtain an abortion at any hospital or clinic receiving federal money.

Supporters of legal abortions decided to drop efforts to add the money for rape-and-incest abortions rather than accept the parental notification provision. Both provisions were removed in the conference committee.

In other action Monday, the House: — Voted to spend $2.2 billion on farming, nutrition and rural development programs. By voice vote, the House accepted compromises worked out by conferees on the appropriations bill that pays for farm subsidies and most Agriculture Department functions, as well as the Food and Drug Administration.

Approved, 343-67, a bill providing $20.9 billion for the Treasury Department, U.S. Postal Service and offices of the president. The bill provides all federal civilian employees — except members of Congress, federal judges and highest-ranking officials in the executive branch — with a 4.1 percent pay raise.

NO CASE — White supremacist Tom Metzger holds up an empty lunch box as he tells the jury during closing arguments Monday in a Portland, Ore., court that the plaintiffs have an empty case. The jury then rendered a $12.5 million judgment against Metzger and his son, John, in the case of a black man beaten to death by racist skinheads in Portland two years ago.

Genetic parents win baby over surrogate mother

By LYNN ELBER
The Associated Press

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Carrying a child does not make a woman a parent, a judge ruled in awarding a test-tube baby to the boy's genetic parents instead of the surrogate they hired for $10,000.

Civil rights advocates and ethicists charged that the ruling Monday by Superior Court Judge Richard Parlow ignores the law and creates a "breeder class" of women.

"The judge is saying gestation doesn't count, it counts for nothing, and I think that is a very disturbing outcome," said Susan M. Wolf, an associate for law at the Hastings Center, an ethics research institute in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.

In giving custody of the 5-week-old boy to Mark and Crispina Calvert instead of surrogate mother Anna Johnson, the judge said, "A surrogate carrying a genetic child for a couple does not acquire parental rights."

Parlow said Ms. Johnson made a "substantial contribution" in giving birth to the child. But her relationship to the baby was like a foster parent who takes a child in when the parent can't, the judge said.

"I think a three-parent, two-natural mom claim in a situation is ripe for crazy-making," he said. "I decline to split this child emotionally between two mothers."

ANC proposes meeting of Mandela, Buthelezi

By TINA SUSMAN
The Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — In a conciliatory move aimed at ending black factional fighting, the African National Congress has proposed a meeting between Nelson Mandela and rival black leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi.

In its statement Monday, the ANC backed down from months of resistance to a Mandela-Buthelezi meeting. It did not say when the two should meet, only that it should take place in the "near future."

Zulus loyal to Buthelezi's conservative Inkatha Freedom Party have been involved in bloody battles with ANC supporters since the mid-1980s.

Buthelezi said he welcomed the invitation.

Mandela, who is visiting Australia, said he hoped the meeting would ease tensions. Violence between ANC and Inkatha in black townships around Johannesburg has claimed about 800 lives since early August.

"The meeting raises the hope of a peaceful resolution," Mandela told a news conference in Canberra.

He blamed outside groups for inflaming the violence.

"We are convinced that it is or-

Palestinian stabs Israelis

By ALYNN FISHER
The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — A Palestinian truck driver stabbed two unarmed women soldiers in northern Israel today in a third straight day of Arab knife attacks in the country, police and radio reports said.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens accused Palestinian groups of escalating violence in Israel to divert world attention from the Persian Gulf crisis.

The wounded soldiers were rushed to a hospital in nearby Haifa and the assailant was shot by other soldiers, said police spokesman Yehoshua Butbul.

One of the women was injured in the chest and the other suffered a superficial back wound, said the hospital's deputy director.

The attack occurred as the soldiers waited for a ride to their base at a hitchhiking post at a major intersection, Butbul said.

A truck with blue license plates, indicating ownership by a Palestinian from the occupied West Bank, stopped and the driver got out, Israel radio reported from the scene.

"He took out a knife and started to stab the soldiers," the radio said.

Radio reports said civilians assisted in the capture. "We beat him, grabbed him and put him in the police van," an unidentified civilian told the radio. "It was with four soldiers."

An off-duty bus driver identified only as Albert told army radio said he pursued the assailant as he ran toward farm fields.

"I saw him throw the knife and then I grabbed him," the driver said. "Then I heard shots fired in the air, and the soldiers came and helped me grab him."

The bus driver said he and the assailant exchanged punches, and Israel radio said the Palestinian was hospitalized with beating wounds.

Israel radio said the suspect, who was taken to a hospital for treatment, told police he had driven into Israel with the intent of attacking Jews.

The suspect was identified only as a 39-year-old Palestinian from the Jenin area, about 20 miles southeast of the crime scene.

In Jenin, a town of about 20,000 people surrounded by refugee camps, soldiers shot and killed a 14-year-old Arab youth during stone-throwing protests on Monday. Eight others were wounded.

There was no immediate indication of whether the suspect was averaging the teen-ager's death.

The ban was aimed at preventing clashes following the stabbing deaths of three Israelis by a Palestinian man in Jerusalem on Sunday.

A 19-year-old Arab construction worker was arrested in the Sunday stabbings, which resulted in the deaths of an unarmed woman soldier, a gardener and a policeman who tried to stop the Palestinian's rampage by shooting him twice in the legs.

On Monday, an Israeli delivery man was stabbed and slightly wounded by a Palestinian in Jerusalem. Jerusalem police later foiled an attempt by an Arab to stab them, police said.

Two other stabbing attacks by Palestinians against Israeli soldiers occurred in the Gaza Strip. Neither was fatal.

Unwed mother wants privacy

DEAR ABBY: When I was 16, I became pregnant out of wedlock. I was so ashamed that I told no one. When I was four months along, I told my parents, who were very loving and understanding.

I was sent to live with an grandmother in another state and stayed with her until I graduated from high school. No one in the family knew about this pregnancy except for my grandmother and my parents—not even my siblings were told. In those days, a pregnancy out of wedlock was a terrible disgrace, so I gave my baby up for adoption.

Over 20 years have passed, and now my most horrible nightmare has come true. I received a letter from the adoption agency wanting to know of my whereabouts. The letter was sent to my parents' home in a state where I no longer reside. They are as devastated over this invasion of privacy as I.

Abby, I gave the child up for adoption in order to close that chapter in my life, and I do not want to be located. So far, I have done nothing about answering the letter from the agency because I don't know where to turn. Fear is consuming me, and it's making me sick. Had I known this could happen, I may have chosen another option.

Please tell me what course of action to take.

CLOSED CHAPTER
DEAR CLOSED: Have a lawyer write to the adoption agency and advise it that you gave up the child for adoption with the understanding that your identity and whereabouts were not to be disclosed. And that's the way you want it.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the issue of whether it's proper to drink soup from a soup bowl, here's a day-brightener I read in the Omaha (Nebr.) World-Herald:

"A man was sitting in a restaurant, drinking his soup from a bowl, when he accidentally spilled some soup onto his lap. He stood up and yelled, 'Waiter! There's a soup in my fly!'"

Stomach pain needs attention

DEAR DR. GOTT: I experience sharp pains right below my esophagus and the top of my stomach. Often the pain spreads to my left arm and heart area. I take Domnamal, which offers some relief, and I avoid spicy foods. Is this an ulcer?

DEAR READER: It could be. Or you could simply be suffering from symptoms of stomach irritation (gastritis) or hiatal hernia. You should see your family doctor, who will probably order an X-ray study (GI series) of your upper alimentary tract. This test should show the cause of your discomfort.

If the GI series is inconclusive, you may be a candidate for upper endoscopy, during which a specialist examines your esophagus, stomach and part of your small intestine with a lighted fiberoptic tube.

The fact that Domnamal, an anti-spasmodic, relieves your symptoms suggests that your pain originates in the intestinal tract, rather than in the heart or lungs. As you know, angina (heart cramp) may masquerade as stomach pain. Therefore, in addition to checking your digestive tract, the doctor may choose to obtain a cardiogram and chest X-ray — to rule out the unlikely possibility that your pain has a cardiac or pulmonary basis.

I recommend you seek medical attention immediately so that a diagnosis can be made and you can be prescribed treatment specific for your disorder.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hiatal Hernia." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Schools won't switch fuels

By SCOTT BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Facing an unpredictable market, School Superintendent James Kennedy said he'd rather be safe than sorry when it comes to heating schools.

Kennedy told Board of Education members that the district has put off its plans to switch some school buildings over to natural gas because the move may not save as much money as earlier thought.

The school superintendent said that on Friday he was all set to go ahead with the plans of using natural gas instead of oil in the heating of Manchester High School, and Washington and Verplanck Elementary Schools.

But after learning on Monday that oil prices dropped from 90 cents to 80 cents per gallon over the weekend, he said he decided to stay it safe by keeping oil as the buildings' primary source of heating.

Kennedy said the switch over to natural gas would cost the district more money than they are paying for oil now, and only would be worth while if a dramatic increase in oil prices occurred.

"It's a gamble [to keep oil], but it's a gamble either way," Kennedy said.

Board member Francis A. Maffa asked Kennedy if he would look into the possibility of buying oil futures to lock into the set oil price now that it appears to be down.

"This plan has one drawback in that if you buy it today and the price goes down tomorrow, then you're a horse's patootie," Maffa said.

Raymond Demers, the district's business manager, said it might not be possible to lock into an oil future because of the instability of the current market.

House thinks they're bringing to the table," said Dodd, noting that some House Republicans like Whip Newt Gingrich have already refused to support any plan that calls for a tax increase. "The White House storming around doesn't really have a constituency."

Dodd agreed with Kennedy that Congress would pass a budget that could be signed by President Bush by the Wednesday deadline.

He also said passing a budget was more important than finding fault with its individual provisions, arguing that he supported the Senate version even though he disliked the increase in the gasoline tax and the size of the cuts in Medicare.

"If no one in my state suffers any part in deficit-reduction," Dodd said, "it isn't a worthwhile package."

The Monday session was called so that the board could discuss the agreement with Town Attorney Maureen Chmielecki. Chmielecki told board members they are not under an order to attend the FOIC workshop. She said attendance by Mayor Terry Werkhoven and Director Wally Irish is mandatory, but attendance by Pension Board members is not.

The issue in the case is whether it was proper for Werkhoven and Irish to have attended the executive session. The FOIC complaint was filed by Democratic Director Stephen Cassano against the board.

Chmielecki said that if the Pension Board is vehemently against the workshop arrangement, the case could go forward with a formal hearing before the FOIC.

Teeter noted that in recent polls Bush has received high marks from more than 40 percent of blacks, a ranking that was far higher than the 10 percent approval ratings President Reagan generally had in the black community.

designed, Rattazzi said.

Nagardolekar said he would investigate two options to eliminate the problem. The first option would be to increase the overall height of the building. As it is now designed, the garage would be 16 feet at the eaves; that could be increased to 18 feet.

The second option would be to use unit heaters which could be hung from the ceiling in places where they would not interfere with the bays.

Nagardolekar said both would cost more money, but the unit heaters would likely be the less expensive alternative.

The garage, which includes four bays, offices, locker rooms and a hazardous materials storage area is expected to cost about $350,000 and could be ready by next spring.

First charter meeting set

By ALEX GIPELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The newly named committee to study possible revisions to the town charter will hold its first meeting Nov. 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the hearing room of Lincoln Center.

The 10-member Charter Revision Committee has been asked to consider a wide range of charter questions, including direct election of a mayor, creating a Water and Sewer Commission, electing the Planning and Zoning Commission, eliminating the post of elected treasurer and having the treasurer's duties handled by a finance officer.

Republican members of the committee are Vincent Diana, Paul Bertic, Scott Clendaniel, Beverly Malone, and William Hamiford.

Democratic members are Eleanor Coleman, Kevin O'Brien, Stephen Penny, Leonard Seader, and Kathleen Shanley.

The committee was appointed by the Board of Directors Oct. 2 as the result of an compromise between the board's Republican majority and the Democratic minority. The two sides had disagreed over the scope of matters to be considered by the committee.

Manchester teacher is lauded

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Personal involvement and commitment, says South Windsor High School teacher James O'Loughlin, are important characteristics of any good teacher.

O'Loughlin, of 45 Fairview St. in Manchester, estimates he spends anywhere from a half hour to 45 minutes on the phone with students every night. It is that dedication that earned him the town of South Windsor's teacher of the year award.

"The most important thing you can do for children and students is to give them your time and be very generous," he says.

And although math is the only subject O'Loughlin has taught in his 26 years of teaching, he thinks education goes beyond any formal disciplines.

"I'm a teacher first, a math teacher second," he says, adding that he is comfortable visiting students and parents at their homes.

The philosophy of giving as much time as possible to others, he says, comes from his father, who passed away last year.

In announcing O'Loughlin's winning of the award, South Windsor's Superintendent of Schools Joseph Wood said: "This philosophy permeates Mr. O'Loughlin's teaching. He believes his greatest challenge as a teacher is to make what teachers do in the classroom relevant to the lives of students."

"It is a tenet of his teaching that a teacher should never ask a class to do something they have not done themselves," the superintendent continued. "Mr. O., as he is affectionately known by his students, does all the homework he assigns, takes every quiz that he gives to his pupils, and does every project that he assigns."

"The second teaching revelation came to him while he attended Providence College and was enrolled in a math course.

The instructor, who regularly asked students to work out problems on the chalkboard, noticed O'Loughlin had a gift for teaching. That instructor directed him into an educational program. O'Loughlin graduated from Providence with bachelors' degrees in both math and education.

Later, O'Loughlin earned his master's at Trinity. He lives with his wife and daughter on Fairview Street.

His three oldest children, all boys, are students at Boston College, the University of Connecticut, and Southern Connecticut State University.

Meotti endorses term limitation

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — If re-elected, State Sen. Michael P. Meotti, D-4th Dist., is planning to propose an amendment limiting state legislators to a maximum of 12 years in office.

Meotti, who is seeking re-election to a third legislative term, said the purpose of such an amendment would be to prevent Connecticut from being run by career politicians.

"They're likely to lose sight of what the average person needs," he said. "Also, they are more likely to build too much power."

The 12-year limit is one Meotti thinks is reasonable. However, as a member of the Government Administration and Elections Committee — which considers all amendments — he said he would be willing to agree to a lower limit.

The proposal is not in response to the longevity of any specific assemblymen, nor is it geared to either political party, he said.

Currently, he noted, there are few lawmakers who have been in office for lengthy periods, but added he thinks such a trend is forming and wants to nip it before it becomes a problem.

Where Meotti notices the roots of such long-term political careers is in the districts that are heavily weighted by either party — the rigors of running campaigns in such districts tends to impose a term limitation," he said.

Another problem with career politicians, Meotti said, is by their very nature they are more inclined to be concerned about securing votes than they are about representing the people.

While acknowledging that residents should be allowed to choose whoever they want to represent them, he said that Connecticut is small enough geographically to maintain the legislator as a citizens group as it was founded.

"There is a value in that, in having the representatives live regular lives and have regular jobs," Meotti said.

Housing Authority loses $2,000 deposit

By ALEX GIPELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — A Small Claims Court magistrate has decided that a $2,000 deposit made on a house the Housing Authority of Manchester had planned to purchase, but did not, can be retained by the owners of the house.

The case was heard in court Thursday and the authority's attorney, Malcolm Barlow, was notified of the decision Monday.

The house, at 12-14 Horace St., was one of seven the authority had planned to buy for rental to low- and moderate-income families.

The magistrate decided that the owners of the house, Roger Soucy and Margaret B. Soucy, were entitled to retain the money. The Soucys were also owners of another house on Horace Street and one nearby on Bidwell Street, which were among the six purchased.

Residents of the area protested the purchases of three houses close together and the housing authority voted to recommend the purchase of the house. Roger Soucy and Margaret B. Soucy, were entitled to retain the money. The Barlow contended that the purchase contract called for return of the deposit if the house was not purchased for any reason.

While the magistrate, Martin Waterman, gave no reason for his decision, Barlow said remarks he made at the hearing indicated he felt the authority had done more than simply failing to recommend purchase.

TNT's role in school selection

To the Editor:

Recently, I attended a meeting in Columbia where an advisory committee to the Columbia Board of Education concluded a lengthy process of analyzing various options for their high school students by recommending Lyman High School in Lebanon over Bolton High School. The discussions of the pros and cons of each school and town were both candid and enlightening, and the decision to recommend only one school as opposed to suggesting both options to the Board of Education appeared to be a difficult one for several members.

One interesting observation was that discussion was not limited to the merits of the school facilities, staff and curriculum, but also included distinct references to the political environment in Bolton. Specific mention was made of the "Neglected Taxpayers" comments at previous meetings concerning attempts to dissuade the committee from selecting Bolton. It appears that Bolton's taxpayer watchdog group had determined, in their infinite wisdom, that the interests of the Bolton taxpayer would be best served by turning away revenue generated by incoming students. Why else would they openly criticize the Bolton Board of Education's efforts to attract Columbia students, and visibly warn the Columbia committee of the "many problems" facing the Town of Bolton?

I am sure that visibility will prevent them from publicly acknowledging their efforts, so let me do so here. One must marvel at their single-mindedness that they would willingly sacrifice a financial windfall for Bolton in order to move closer to their ultimate goal of closing Bolton High School. Their arguments are not only unconvincing, but also the result of a major assets, even at the cost of foregoing substantial income from another community, is an inspiring example of fanatic dedication. The citizens of Bolton should be aware of those negligent taxpayers' recent accomplishments. While the Accreditation Report also played a significant role in the committee's decision, we shouldn't dismiss TNT's noble efforts lightly. Should we?

It's your budget

To the Editor:

I am concerned with Coventry's many attempts at a budget. I realize many before me have written on this topic and it has literally become a joke in many surrounding towns. I do not understand how anyone trying to balance their household budgets can possibly imagine their town can survive on two years with no increase in their budget. I don't think too many people would be happy to go two years with no increase in their income.

In the past few years I have been involved in many discussions concerning the amount of fund raising done by our school children. Having been active in the PTO, I have served on some fund raising committees. We do not raise money to buy new curtains or put down carpeting, but to purchase necessary equipment for our schools.

When budgets are continually cut, much of the equipment necessary to educate today's children seems to go out the window. Computers are necessary, so are globes, maps, printers, copiers, audio-visual aids and much more to provide the education our children need to be productive citizens in the Twenty-First Century.

The Board of Education Budget should include the equipment necessary to run a school today. There would not be the need for children to raise money if this were the case. If we cannot educate our children with a town supported budget, then possibly each child's parents should be required to provide a yearly substantial contribution towards education. Is this what it will take?

Fund raising does not seem to be as much the issue as the fact that we, as parents, are sitting back and letting a minority of people, who do not get out and vote, decide what will be offered to our children in school. Every parent in this town should be voting on Oct. 23. Please do so at the Coventry Town Hall. It is the responsibility of all parents to pass a budget in the Town of Coventry and put an end to the game playing we have been doing since May.

Town Hall spending

To the Editor:

Can Manchester afford to spend $20 million ($11.1 million principal... $9 million interest) to solve a $1 million to $2 million space problem at Town Hall? I think not.

When the town fathers say the project will not increase taxes, they are not telling the truth. You cannot bury $20 million over 20 years. The cost to the property owners will be $1 million per year for 20 years.

This is reason enough to vote "no" on the Town Hall referendum question.

Washington doublespeak

By WALTER R. MEARS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Casting himself as an outsider, President Bush has taken an unusual step in complaining about "inside the beltway hogwash." He's telling voters that Washington doublespeak is hiding the real issues.

It is a campaign against Democrats with the flavor of a campaign against Washington, one in which the Republican president sides with "real people" in their frustration at what's happening in government.

That is a different tack for a man whose Washington resume dates back nearly 25 years, to the first of his two House terms. Bush has worked in the federal government ever since; he was dubbed the resume candidate when he first ran for president. But this is not a promising political season for insiders with lengthy federal resumes.

"You've... heard a lot coming out of Capitol Hill about soaking the rich," he told White House staff interns the other day. "And let me translate this bit of Washington doublespeak for you. When some members of the Congress talk about soaking the rich they really mean raising taxes on everybody."

Congressional Democrats, of course, have their own translation. They say Bush and the Republicans are trying to protect the wealthy and take the heaviest toll for deficit reduction from lower income benefits and middle class taxes.

Defining those terms also is a matter of debate. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., said she wanted to be sure that people like Leonia Helmsley, Donald Trump and Mike Tyson pay fair shares of the burden.

Rep. Bob Michel, R-Ill., the minority leader, had said that when Democrats talked about taxing the rich they seemed to mean everybody who didn't vote for Michael Dukakis or Walter Mondale for president.

Bush told one campaign audience about an "awful, high-tech word" that figures in the deficit debate — continuing resolution. That's a measure to permit continued spending to maintain federal programs for which appropriations have not been enacted. Right now, that means all of them.

"There have been 37 of these emergency measures since 1981, seven in one year alone, just to keep the government's door open," Bush complained.

Make that 38. He signed one Friday to keep the government in funds through Wednesday midnight. It is the third this year.

Bush signed it so that a conference committee of congressional negotiators would have more time to try to draft a consensus bill out of a 13-pound stack of paper representing the rival budget measures passed by the House and Senate.

"The process by which this government operates is hard to understand," Secretary of the Treasury Nicholas F. Brady observed as he tried to explain it at a stockbroker's conference.

Be heard: vote on Nov. 6

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Some terrible conception of common sense by leaders has been dragging down the American people.

Our leaders have defaulted on their responsibilities. They have permitted the federal government to run up a massive public debt. Now they can't figure out how to pay for yesterday's bills with tomorrow's grim prospects. Yet they continue to spend as if they will never have to pay.

Congress and each successive administration has stood by while foreigners have taken American inventions, developed them and sold them back to America. The resulting trade imbalance now threatens our economic stability.

Who has all the money gone, and why hasn't it bought the nation a modicum of security? The money has been poured into wasteful programs that were abused and mismanaged. For instance, the government has spent billions of dollars ostensibly to prop up family farms, but most of the money has gone to big corporate farms. In spite of all the spending, the family farm is nearly extinct.

The government also guaranteed savings and loan deposits under the name impression that home-loan thrifts would make the American dream a reality. In the end, the savings and loan industry is in a state of near collapse.

Thoughts
"We pray for the courage to walk with those who are living with HIV."

A Litany in the Time of AIDS,
The National Episcopal Church

During my first week as a new chaplain in a New York City hospital a few years ago, I was approached by the friends of a young man dying of AIDS. The young man was comatose, and expected to die within a few days. The friends asked if I might visit the dying man several times a day. I was happy to oblige, but confused: "Who could I possibly do for this comatose man I'd never met? After a few awkward visits in the stony silence of his hospital room, it finally dawned on me that his friends didn't want me to do anything for the dying man, but simply to be with him. They were asking me to have "the courage to walk with" them and their beloved friend.

In search of fun maternity clothes

By DIANNA M. TALBOT
Herald Features Editor

MANCHESTER — Quality, comfort and style intermingled to become the theme of a fashion show for expectant mothers held Sunday afternoon at Manchester Memorial Hospital.

The second annual show was held in conjunction with an open house and fair for the hospital's Family Birthing Center, which tries to involve the families of expectant women in the pregnancy/birth process.

About 25 career and casual outfits for expectant mothers were featured during the show. Price range of the outfits was $56 to $106.

Clothing was supplied by Baby in the Works, a Manchester maternity and children's wear shop. The store also sells books, baby shower gifts, baby toys and plans to expand into infant christening clothes.

About 200 people attended the fashion show, a considerable increase over the number who attended last year, said Amy Avery, a spokeswoman for the hospital.

"It was a great turnout," Hartford resident Melinda Macca was one of several pregnant clothing models in the show. She said she was beginning her fifth month of pregnancy and was interested in comfortable yet flattering clothes.

A certified public accountant for Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Hartford, Macca said she planned to buy one of the dresses she was modeling — a conservative black one with lace around the collar — to wear to a work-related social event.

Kim Bottone-Diana, another model who was eight months pregnant, said at this stage of her pregnancy, comfort is the most important factor in deciding what to wear. But, as general manager for Bottone's Restaurant in Bolton, she also she wants to look professional as well.

Bottone-Diana said she planned to buy a wine-colored, two-piece, casual outfit she was modeling because it was comfortable and looked stylish.

Spec-tacular eyewear focuses on fashion; becomes 'in'

By FRANCINE PARNES
The Associated Press

Eyewear, which used to be called "glasses," is a hot accessory, and four-eyed followers of fashion won't be disappointed with this season's selection.

The Vision Council of America says 98 million American adults wear some form of prescription eyewear, much of it bearing the same designer labels as their clothes.

But they aren't the only ones focusing on the latest styles, mostly borrowed from bygone eras. Untold others, with 20-20 vision, seek placebo lenses strictly for looks. And tinted lenses are promoted for year-round protection from the sun's rays. According to the Sunglass Association of America, 225 million pairs of non-prescription sunglasses were sold last year.

"Their popularity can be attributed to the new emphasis on proper eye protection," says Sharon Stone, marketing manager of Serengeti Eyewear, the sunglasses division of Corning Optics. "Consumers want frames and lenses that are particularly suited for changing weather conditions and various activities."

Revival styles in eyewear range from cat eyes that give a nod to the heyday of Hollywood glamour to saucer-sized frames recalling Jackie Kennedy of the 1960s to little round wire-rims that would have made granny and John Lennon proud. Colors range from subtle antique metal tones to screaming brights.

With so much available, retailers are touting a wardrobe of eyewear.

"People accessorize their outfits, change their shoes, belts, whatever — why not change their glasses?" suggests Richard Baum, owner of The Eye Man in New York, an optical store with more than 5,000 frames.

"I have 40 to 50 pairs of shoes," says Irene Lees, "but face it, do people look at my feet first? No. They look straight at eye level."

"So," says Lees, products manager for Rainbow Optics, which makes Anne Klein and Anne Klein II eyewear, "the accessory on your face is all the more important. Your eyewear should be consistent with everything else you're wearing."

Many of today's top eyewear designs are small and round, and Robin Bugbee predicts they'll stay that way for a while.

"Envision eyeglasses that your great-grandmother wore, but updated for the '90s," says Bugbee, marketing vice president for Viva International Group, a frame company with more than $50 million annual wholesale sales.

At the turn of the century, he says, eyeglasses were smaller because it was difficult to make large lenses. "But now they're small for stylistic reasons." Also, Bugbee says, with smaller lenses fewer wrinkles are magnified around the eyes.

The Beau Monde collection from Savvy Eyewear is based on styles found in an old eyewear catalog. The collection, around $200 to $300, features antique brass, copper, tortoise and yellow-gold matte frames. They evoke the era of the Great Gatsby and F. Scott Fitzgerald, "kind of like stepping into a vintage photograph," says Harvey Ross, president.

In Los Angeles, where sunglasses are a fashion staple, Oliver Peoples, which makes as well as sells eyewear, has some vintage looks in delicate metal and faux tortoise shell. Peoples also features some authentic vintage pieces, which include classic, gold-filled frames and clip-on sunglasses with filigree and detailed etchings.

Oliver Peoples, the man behind the quirky nomenclature, was an itinerant purveyor of spectacles during the 1920s and '30s. He left behind a legacy of antiquarian fortunes: a cache of vintage eyewear in its original packaging. The originals are selling in Los Angeles for $145 to $210, with clip-ons an additional $70. Knockoffs are a best seller at The Eye Man.

"There's something about the Peoples' antique reproductions that takes people back in time," Baum says.

Oliver Peoples has cat's eye sunglasses in tortoise plastic, around $140, reminiscent of Hollywood of the '50s and '60s with its glamour icons such as Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor. They're available at The Eye Man in New York and L.A. Eyeworks in Los Angeles.

Norman Saltik, vice president of promotions, says 60 percent of the '80s and '90s sales are based on the 1950s and 60s. The company makes Ray-Bans and DKNY and Donna Karan eyewear, among others. But L.A. Eyeworks says the '60s look there is already coming to a head.

"It's pretty much peaked last year, along with bell bottoms," says Ruth Handol, publicist for the company.

If you're unsure which of the retro is the most up-to-date, opt for the funky.

At The Eye Man, there are frames that spell out "LOOK," about $230, and Batman eyewear — a grey three-dimensional plastic bat in flight, also around $230. They're made by Anglo American Eyewear, which customizes exotic eyewear for entertainer Elton John that is of museum quality.

"They fit beautifully on the face," says Baum, "but they're more of a store-window piece."

Eyewear accessories

Eyewear in the shape of cat's eyes is flattering to most any face shape, according to image consultant Carole Jackson.

"They're wonderful for a round face because they give a slimmer look," she says. But if you have a long nose, they'll make it look longer.

Those little round frames Meryl Streep wears in the movie "Postcards from the Edge" are great for everyone except people with round faces. "Then you're just repeating the roundness," she says.

No matter the style, the eyes should be in the center of the lenses and the eyewear should complement skin tone and hair color, according to Jackson, founder of Color Me Beautiful Inc., an international image company based in Chantilly, Va. The company and its consultants are working with select eyewear as a fashion accessory, write to the Vision Council of America, 1800 North Kent Street, Suite 1210, Rosslyn, VA 22209 or call 1-800-533-5503.

Weights carry gains, risks for children

By IRA DREYFUSS The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Weight training can make even children stronger, but the American Academy of Pediatrics worries about young would-be Olympians working out in their basements or in loosely supervised programs.

The organization's revision of its 1982 policy statement reflects recent findings that weight work can strengthen children as young as 7 or 8, said Dr. Michael A. Nelson, chairman of the academy's Committee on Sports Medicine and Fitness.

"It is reasonable to assume that strength training might be of benefit to elementary school age children who might participate in formal sports programs," said Nelson, who practices in Albuquerque, N.M.

However, Nelson advises young athletes not to try to train themselves.

"Strength training programs for prepubescent, pubescent and postpubescent athletes should be permitted only if conducted by well-trained adults," the policy statement said.

"So much of this depends on good coaching and supervision," said Dr. William L. Risser, professor of pediatrics at the University of Texas Medical School in Houston, the statement's principal author.

Adults should be able to prove their knowledge, with certification from a professional organization

Women not getting enough mammograms

By ROBERT BYRD The Associated Press

ATLANTA — More American women over 40 are having mammograms to check for breast cancer, but most don't have them frequently enough, a new survey shows.

The survey, conducted earlier this year and reported Thursday by the Centers for Disease Control, found that 64 percent of women 40 and older had undergone a mammogram — up sharply from 37 percent in a similar survey in 1987.

But only 31 percent in the new survey followed the recommended mammography schedule: one every year or two for women in their 40s, and once a year thereafter.

Researchers said problems appear to be doctors who don't tell their patients to have mammograms, and patients who don't think they need them.

"Forty-five percent of the women who had never had a mammogram said it was because no doctor ever told them to."

"Doctors are going to have to do a much better job of recommending that women get mammograms, and get them on a regular schedule," Dr. Douglas Marchant said in a statement from the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

The college's Jacobs Institute of Women's Health commissioned the study, which was conducted with the National Cancer Institute.

Forty percent of the women who had never had a mammogram said they weren't at risk because no one in their family had been a breast cancer patient.

"For years, we've been telling women, 'Look, if you have a history of breast cancer in your family, you need a mammogram.' But women have translated that as, if you're older than that, you got by, you escaped. I don't think older women understand that you don't escape; you need to keep going back every year."

The survey also found that nearly 40 percent of the women questioned said "mammograms cost too much" and half said they wouldn't pay as much as $150 for an annual mammogram.

Mammograms can cost from $50 to $250, although most are $100 to $125, said Dr. Marion Nadel, a CDC cancer specialist.

The CDC noted that 29 states require insurance companies to provide some level of mammography coverage.

Researchers estimate that 44,000 American women will die this year of breast cancer. Previous studies have estimated that breast cancer death rates could be lowered 30 percent if women received mammograms as recommended by the NCI, the American Cancer Society and other groups.

The survey questioned 980 women in a national sampling, with a margin of error of about 3 percent.

Feds seeking $30 million from banker

By MARCY GORDON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators are seeking $30.8 million in restitution from the former chairman of the failed CentTrust Bank of Miami, but a lawyer says the executive doesn't have the money and will fight the government's action.

Officials of the Office of Supervision on Monday accused David L. Paul of "instillable vanity and greed" contributing to the collapse of CentTrust, once the biggest savings and loan institution in the Southeast. The failure will cost taxpayer an estimated $1.7 billion. Paul will "vigorously contest" the regulators' demand for restitution, his attorney, Aubrey Harwell, said in a telephone interview.

"I would find it hard to believe" that Paul would be able to put up the money, Harwell said. He said he hadn't yet seen the government's order against Paul.

The attorney said Paul is in Israel but he is not there to evade regulatory action and is expected to return soon.

"He will be back and we will respond on his behalf," Harwell said.

Paul was CEO of CentTrust from 1981 until its failure in 1989. He was also CEO of the parent company, CentTrust Corp.

CentTrust Corp. had assets of $1.5 billion when it failed. The company had 15 branches in Florida and 10 in other states.

Digital changes market strategy

By BART ZIEGLER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Digital Equipment Corp. has joined the move toward "open" computer standards, planning an announcement for later this week about modifications to its flagship line.

The world's second-largest computer maker plans to announce Thursday that it is changing its VAX computers so they can run software designed for the popular Unix operating system.

Digital said it will release a new version of its VAX operating system next year that will address to an open-system standard called Posix.

Posix, in turn, is compatible with Unix.

Digital also said it intends to push into the change by a slumping market for its proprietary machines, which cannot easily be connected with computers made by other companies or operate software designed for those machines.

An operating system is the base layer of software that controls a computer's internal housekeeping functions. Applications software, such as word processing programs, provide specific functions for the computers and run on top of an operating system.

Digital officials admit the move to open systems is driven by the marketplace.

"It is apparent that open-systems computing is the way of the future and Digital intends to address that market," said Phil Aubrey, marketing manager for the VAX software line.

While Digital's move is important for a company that has recently lost market share to other computer line, it isn't unique.

Such restrictions also have limited Forschner's growth.

"We have to have all our products made in Switzerland, where the factories are small, inefficient and expensive," Kennedy said.

Nonetheless, in the past 16 years, Forschner's profits have grown 4,000 percent. Last year, Forschner sold $33 million worth of knives, up from less than $1 million in 1974.

From 200 to 500 patients with AIDS will go through the second and third phases of testing, Marade said. But if the drug works, the numbers may escalate to 10,000 or 12,000 patients, he said.

VIMRx is pushing to have the second and third phases of testing conducted concurrently, to save time.

If successful in the trials, VIMRx executives believe the drug will be introduced on the U.S. market in late 1992, under the name VIMXryn.

From blades to shades, Forschner expands line

By KIM S. MARTIN
The Associated Press

SHELTON — The company that brought the all-purpose Swiss Army pocketknife to America is now offering products that do more than open wire bottles, strip wire or get fish.

Forschner Group Inc., the U.S. distributor of the multiblade red knives with silver crosses, has expanded into the sunglasses and watch business with its new subsidiary, Swiss Army Brands Ltd.

The company is banking on consumers' familiarity with the Swiss Army name to get these products off the ground.

"There is a high-quality image associated with the knife," said Forschner President James Kennedy.

"It has always been known as a useful, utilitarian product and we were able to transfer that to the watch's image."

Sales of the Swiss Army Brand watches totaled around $4 million since its debut last fall, double the projections, Kennedy said.

The simple watch with a large face, big numbers and black strap was designed in the United States and manufactured in Switzerland. It sells for $95 retail.

The Swiss Army Brand aviator-style sunglasses were introduced in April and sold for around $115 retail. But sales have been disappointing.

But sales have been disappointing in April and sold for around $115 retail, thus far, totaling just $385,000 in the first nine months of this year.

Kennedy said the glasses came out too late to be included in many retailers' summer catalogs.

The new products are targeted at upscale, outdoorsy types who frequent camping and hunting stores.

The company does minimal advertising and its products are sold by exclusive retailers such as Horfritz and Schlemmer.

The Swiss-based Victorinox Cutlery Co. founded in 1884 by Karl Elsener, developed the original Swiss Army knife in 1891. Its patent on the pocketknife expired in 1908, and since then, many imitations have surfaced.

About half the soldiers in the Swiss Army carry Victorinox knives. The rest are manufactured by their rival, Wenger, which also sells Swiss Army knives in the United States through retailers like K.Mart and L.L.Bean.

Victorinox makes 295 different models of the knife, but Forschner sells only about 50 in the United States.

The "Scientist" model features a magnifying glass, while the "Tinker" contains two can openers and a Phillips screwdriver. A saw, pliers, scissors and a file are part of the "Craftsman."

When Kennedy came to work at the company in 1975, it decided to stop selling butcher scales and to halt sales of the pocketknives to its 40 wholesalers. Forschner began selling the pocketknives directly to specialty retail stores.

Initiation of the watches began in 1987. Forschner has planned watches for years, but when knockoffs of the watches started showing up in stores for $20-$25, the company took immediate action against some Asian manufacturers for violating trade laws.

Such restrictions also have limited Forschner's growth.

"We have to have all our products made in Switzerland, where the factories are small, inefficient and expensive," Kennedy said.

Nonetheless, in the past 16 years, Forschner's profits have grown 4,000 percent. Last year, Forschner sold $33 million worth of knives, up from less than $1 million in 1974.

Stamford firm stakes future on new AIDS drug

STAMFORD (AP) — A promising new drug that effectively blocks the AIDS virus from multiplying in animals in laboratory tests will be tested on human subjects within a month, according to the tiny Stamford company that developed it.

The drug, hypericin, is found in the stem and petals of the common Saint Johnswort, a plant used as a folk remedy for centuries. While not a cure for the deadly disease, hypericin could treat those already infected with the virus.

If successful in clinical tests and approved for sale on the commercial market, it could vault VIMRx Pharmaceuticals Inc. out of obscurity.

"If this drug is as effective as we think it's going to be, VIMRx will become a major pharmaceutical company overnight," said Richard Marade, company president.

Hypericin showed signs of success in laboratory tests on monkeys. Researchers claim it is unique because it inactivates HIV, preventing the virus from replicating and affecting normal cells.

"It's structure and mechanism of activity, as best as we can determine, are unique from other systems," said Dr. Howard Hochster, assistant professor at New York University and a principal researcher of the drug. "That in itself is very interesting and exciting from a scientific point of view."

Hochster said the drug is promising, but cautioned that it has been tested only in laboratories and on animals, not in humans.

"We have nothing at this point to say it will work in people," he said. "That has to be looked at."

Undunted by bad split

By James Jacoby

The Women's Knockout Team Championships finals in Boston last July ended in a dead tie with a subsequent 12-ball playoff held in late August.

Usually a defender is delighted that the opponents are playing in a suit contract when she holds five paces of trump. This deal from the playoff features Gail Greenberg playing and making four spades against just a bad split.

After North's takedown, East preempted in diamonds. Greenberg had the values to bid three spades, and North was happy to raise to game. Declarer took the ace of diamonds and

High School Roundup

Bolton girls will not defend conference title

BOLTON — There will be a new Charter Oak Conference girls' soccer champion in 1990. Bolton Academy assured that Monday as the Bobcats clinched the COC East title, eliminating defending champ Bolton High in the process, 2-0.

Bacon 1-1 with one game to go is assured a berth in the conference championship game against COC West representative Rocky Hill High.

Bolton beat Rocky Hill for the championship a year ago. The Bobcats improve to 10-1-1 overall. Bolton even off at 4-4-1 in the COC East and is 7-4-1 overall.

Bacon's opportunistic style paid dividends twice. Freshman Karen Roy, with her eighth assist to go along with 10 goals, set into motion the first Bolton square. She clipped one into the area to left wing Maria Baraybar, and the latter drove it home from 12 yards out. That was at

Rangers win; take hold of first place

NEW YORK — The New York Rangers had all summer to live with their frustrating playoff failure after winning the Patrick Division last season.

Following the victory in the NHL's only game Monday night, the Rangers hoped that something else would become habit-forming for them — their residency in first place in the Patrick. With the rest of the league idle, the Rangers took the opportunity to jump into first place by a point over the Philadelphia Flyers.

game, but to our credit we played well defensively in a game that could have been out of hand."

The Rangers hoped to score early on a Toronto team that has a habit of giving up a lot of goals.

"You cannot play this game if you don't check," Toronto coach Doug Carpenter said. "And to allow 46 shots a game compounds the problem."

Ogrodnick scored from the slot at 1:01 of the first period, Miller on a give-and-go with Ray Sheppard at 7:21 and Broten from the right circle at 8:53.

Darren Turcotte assisted on Broten's first-period goal, then scored one himself in the second period to extend his NHL-high scoring streak to 10 games.

Along with the great play of the Rangers, Turcotte has been a key factor in the Rangers' fast 7-3-0 start that has figured up to a league-high 14 points.

Miller's goal was his first since Jan. 15, 1989, and Broten's his first since March 27, 1990.
