Aetna trims 2,600 jobs

HARTFORD (AP) — Aetna Life & Casualty will eliminate 2,600 jobs and disband its three domestic insurance divisions as part of a major corporate reorganization aimed at bolstering its financial position, the company said today.

The company said the jobs will be eliminated through terminations and attrition.

Aetna reported a one-time, after-tax charge of $60 million for the severance, benefits and other costs associated with the reorganization, which will be put in place March 4, 1991. The company estimates after-tax savings of approximately $50 million in 1991, $90 million in 1992, and $95 million in subsequent years.

"The overriding principle behind this reorganization is to improve Aetna's ability to provide the right products and services, and to help us compete in increasingly competitive and challenging markets," said Aetna Chairman James T. Lynn.

The reorganization will eliminate the company's three domestic insurance divisions — Commercial Insurance, Employee Benefits and Personal Financial Security. The businesses that now comprise the three divisions will be realigned in two groups for managerial oversight.

Barry gets six months

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Marion Barry was sentenced today to six months in prison, fined $5,000 and given one year probation for his conviction on a misdemeanor cocaine possession charge.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson disregarded Barry's plea for community service, saying that Barry had abused his office and the collective trust of the community.

Weicker called 'greedy'

HARTFORD (AP) — Democrat Bruce A. Morrison has picked up where Republican John G. Rowland left off, calling independent gubernatorial candidate Lowell P. Weicker Jr. a greedy man taking advantage of his position as a U.S. senator to enrich himself at the expense of consumers.

"Plain old ordinary greed is what we see in the way Lowell Weicker behaves," Morrison said Thursday. "It's a damn shame."

Gulf at a Glance

■ Saddam Hussein, who used poison gas to kill thousands of Iraqi Kurds and forcibly relocated many others, is trying to reconcile with his bitter domestic opponents, a Baghdad newspaper said today.

The reported move comes several weeks after Saddam made peace with another longstanding foe, Iran, so he could move tens of thousands of troops from the Iranian border to occupied Kuwait and the Saudi Arabian border.

■ In another development, the official Saudi Press Agency reported Thursday night that President Bush telephoned King Fahd of Saudi Arabia to review the situation in the Persian Gulf.

Town businessman charged with murder

By RICK SANTOS
 Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — A Manchester restaurateur was arrested Thursday by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and charged with a murder and shooting that occurred 15 years ago in San Francisco.

places such as Los Angeles and Taiwan before settling to live in East Hartford, the FBI said.

The murder of Henry Ping Mack allegedly occurred after a fight broke out between Kuo, Mack, and Antony Lee on Jan. 6, 1975, at the popular Hartford Road eatery has allegedly been fleeing justice for 15 years, reportedly moving around to fight and chair-throwing ended when Kuo drew a concealed .38-caliber revolver and fired at Mack and Lee. Each victim was struck twice by the shots and fell to the floor. According to witnesses, Kuo thereafter kicked both victims about the head as he fired the fatal [shot] into Mack's head," a news release from the FBI said.

A fourth person, Dalphine Lin, was involved in the fight, according to agents, but the extent of her involvement is unclear. Lee later recovered from his injuries.

Law enforcement officials are not saying how they tracked down Kuo, who was arrested outside his residence.

Police to probe asst. treasurer irregularities

By ALEX GIRELLI
 Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Manchester police will be asked to investigate alleged irregularities in the office of the town treasurer as the result of a decision made by Republican Town Directors Thursday over the objection of a Democratic minority.

The apparent irregularities involve time records and mileage vouchers for Ruth Staum, assistant town treasurer.

The vote was taken at a brief and stormy meeting of the directors, which was called to discuss discrepancies in salary and expense payments made to Staum.

Republican Director Geoffrey Naab moved to refer the matter to the Police Department, arguing that

Board blasts TNT's tactics

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
 Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Upset by reports that members of a local taxpayers group made disparaging remarks to a Columbia school selection committee, the Board of Education Thursday berated the group for its actions.

"This is a deplorable situation," said board member David Fernald. "To have someone from Bolton go down to a neighboring town and badmouth their own town is [appalling]."

Superintendent denies school warning charges

By JACQUELINE BENNETT
 Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — Superintendent of Schools Michael Malinowski defended himself in front of the Board of Education Thursday night for not immediately informing the entire board of a warning received four months ago that Coventry High School could be put on probation by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges — an agency that accredits secondary schools.

"This was not a crisis situation," Malinowski said during the meeting at Coventry High School. "Everyone acted appropriately," he said, noting that he, CHS Principal Dennis Joy and Patrick Flaherty, board chairman, knew of the situation.

The board had a long agenda and the accreditation issue was added at the request of Flaherty. However, discussion did not begin until almost 10:30 p.m. Malinowski then spent about 30 minutes defending his handling of the matter.

At a Special Town Meeting two weeks ago, it was made public that CHS had received its third warning from the NEASC in July recommending that the assistant vice-principal position be made full time at the high school. The warning asked that just cause be shown why the school should not be put on probation, which means the school's accreditation status could be in jeopardy, according to an NEASC official.

Malinowski said a high school with 367 students doesn't need a full-time assistant principal, but that a reorganization of the current staff is needed. Because a response is not due to the NEASC until February, Malinowski said he did not consider it a pressing matter.

In addition, he said the town spending plan, which was approved Tuesday in a referendum after four

Thompson agrees to a new debate

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
 Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — State Rep. Jack Thompson, D-13th Dist., says he would be happy to debate his opponent, but not at the time or under the circumstances the challenger has proposed.

At a news conference this morning, Thompson said that he did not agree to debate Republican Reginald Preble when the challenger called him two weeks ago.

During that call, Preble said he had arranged a debate to be held at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 2 in Lincoln Center. He also told Thompson that the debate would be limited to four specific issues.

But Thompson said this morning that he told Preble that he didn't want the debate limited to just those four issues and that he wanted the campaign to work out the specifics of the debate.

"I have no problem debating [Preble]," Thompson said. "But I won't debate him on the Friday night before the election."

Thompson said he would be available to debate Preble next Tuesday or Wednesday night and said he would prefer to have the debate at a neutral site such as Lincoln Center or Manchester Community College.

Thompson would also like to have a moderator for the debate such as the League of Women Voters or the MCC student senate. Both groups have organized similar forums in the past.

The incumbent said he would also welcome the press to ask questions at the debate as long as both candidates had equal time to respond to the questions.

Lyme disease vaccine possible

By PAUL RECER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Research with mice at Yale University may lead to a vaccine to protect humans from Lyme disease and perhaps even syphilis, said a study published today.
Yale scientists reported in the journal Science that they found a laboratory mouse that can be infected with the Lyme disease spirochete bacteria and then used genetic engineering techniques to make a vaccine that protects the animal against the disease.
The work could point the way to vaccines for humans, said Richard A. Flavell, leader of the Yale team, but that is several years away.
"It's very likely that we'll be able to get a good Lyme vaccine for humans from this technique," he said. "If it works on this disease, then it may be used to develop vaccines against other diseases with spirochetes, such as syphilis."
A Harvard researcher, however, said the success of a Lyme disease vaccine, even for mice, cannot be proven until the immunity is tested against disease in the way it is naturally spread — through a tick bite.

State to appeal killer's release

HARTFORD (AP) — The state plans to appeal a federal district court ruling that could allow a convicted killer to be set free on supervised home release in about 10 days.
U.S. District Court Judge Ellen Bree Burns ruled Wednesday that the Department of Corrections erred when it revoked Steven M. Asherman's home release status last December. The department based its decision Asherman's refusal to testify at a psychiatric evaluation.
Burns said the department's decision violated Asherman's Fifth Amendment rights. The judge said Asherman's refusal to testify was not evidence that he was unsuitable for home release. The decision overrules a state Supreme Court ruling in favor of corrections department.

Asherman, 41, is serving a seven-to-14-year sentence for manslaughter in the 1978 stabbing death of his Columbia Medical School classmate, Michael Arnow, 27. Arnow's body, which had been stabbed more than 100 times, was found in a wooded area of New Hartford. Burns' ruling does not mean Asherman will automatically be released. A federal judge grants an automatic 10-day stay of the order, said Howard G. Rifkin, an aide to Governor William O'Neill.

During the 10-day stay, the governor's office will try to get another stay pending an appeal of the ruling, Rifkin said. He said the governor's office will do everything in its power to prevent Asherman from being released.

If the governor's office is unsuccessful, the state will have to comply with the judge's order and release Asherman after 10 days. It would be the third time that Asherman is set free on home release.

In 1984, "Baby Face," a newborn with a severe heart defect, was given the heart of a baboon in an experimental transplant in Loma Linda, Calif. (Suffly Face lived 21 days with the animal heart.)
In 1967, an investor who had suffered heavy stock market losses shot and killed a Miami brokerage manager and wounded his personal broker, then committed suicide.

Services will be Saturday at 9 a.m. at the D'Esopo East Hartford Funeral Chapel, 30 Carter St., East Hartford, with a mass of Christian burial at 9:30 a.m. at Blessed Sacrament Church, East Hartford.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers
WASHINGTON — A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "high-tech" food tablets would help ease world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.
Researchers in Europe found that an ingredient in the aptly named product Food Source One actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to a study published in the prestigious British journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the development of Food Source One, a project of National Dietary Research, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the discovery has been a windfall for overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Fla. woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two clean bill of clothes which have not fit me in two years but I can now wear."

In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 15 days on the product and was never hungry.
Food Source One is available through physicians and pharmacies without a prescription because it's not a drug and contains only natural ingredients already known to be safe. Copies of the referenced study are available free from National Dietary Research, Suite 553, 137K St., Washington, DC 20005, however please include $2 postage & handling for each request. 20005, however please include $2 postage & handling for each request.

Food Source One is available in chocolate, vanilla or strawberry. A 100 tablet supply only $24.98.

Budgeters work out final details

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budgeters settled disputes over paring Medicare benefits and wrestled over other cuts and tax breaks Thursday as top lawmakers predicted passage of the broad deficit-reduction bill supported by President Bush.

None of the outstanding differences was seen as a deal-breaker for the $250-billion collection of tax increases and spending reductions. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bush liked the emerging bill, and that seemed to stamp the possibility of any last-minute setback.

"With the White House optimistic, one would guess it would be hard to shipwreck the thing," said Rep. Bill Frenzel of Minnesota, ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said he expected the House to approve the measure Friday. And little trouble was expected in the Senate later.

The package would boost the 9-cent-per-gallon gasoline tax by about a nickel and increase levies on alcohol, tobacco and fancy cars as well.

It would raise — from 28 percent to 31 percent — the income-tax rate on the richest Americans, but drop the rate paid by the upper-middle class from 33 percent to 31 percent.

The measure also would reduce the deductions available to people earning more than $100,000 yearly by 3 percent, and phase out their $2,050 personal exemptions.

The plan also aims cuts at veterans, farm aid and other benefit programs. The details were subject to change in late negotiations.

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu and Richard Darman, Bush's budget chief, met for more than two hours on Capitol Hill with House GOP members, answering questions and seeking support.

Sununu said that assuming final details were acceptable to Bush, Republicans should support the package because it contains "real and credible" savings.

"I think we picked up votes today," said No. 3 House Republican Jerry Lewis of California. "I think the president will have substantial Republican support for the package."

Budgeters settled a major difference when they agreed informally to trim the projected growth of benefits for Medicare participants — the elderly and handicapped — by $10 billion over the next five years, officials said.

Under the agreement, the $75 annual deductible that beneficiaries pay for doctors' bill would increase to $100. The monthly premium — $28.60 this year — would grow gradually to $46.20 by 1995.

A chief remaining disagreement over Medicare involved cuts in payments to doctors and hospitals. Those reductions were expected to total more than $30 billion over the next five years.

Negotiators worked on other disputes involving: —Medicaid, which helps the poor pay their medical bills. Although the program will be cut, liberals wanted

U.S. force buildup in Gulf tied to Iraqi deployment

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is sending additional troops to Saudi Arabia partly to counter a recent hardening of Iraq's defenses in occupied Kuwait, officials say.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Thursday that more American GIs — possibly as many as 100,000 — will be shipped to the Saudi desert to join the 220,000 U.S. forces already in the Persian Gulf area following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2.

He said no final decision has been made on which additional units will be sent.

Cheney and other officials said the troop addition does not signal a switch in U.S. policy from defending against a possible Iraqi invasion of Saudi Arabia to laying the groundwork for an offensive against Iraq.

Japanese leader waffles on Gulf troop deployment dragged down by fierce resistance in Parliament, and if it fails Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu's job could go with it, analysts say.

TOKYO — Japan's proposal to deploy troops overseas is being largely because of the perception that he is waffling on a decisive issue for Japan in the Persian Gulf conflict.

The newspaper Yomiuri Shinbun published a poll Thursday showing that support for Kaifu's Cabinet has fallen by 10 points since last month to 49.8 percent.

Another leading newspaper, the Mainichi Shinbun, put his support at 35 percent, a drop of 6 points. The polls did not give a margin of error.

In July, a Yomiuri poll had Kaifu's popularity at 62.5 percent, the highest rate for any postwar Cabinet.

These results in part reflected the 59-year-old prime minister's strong showing at the Houston economic summit and U.S. trade talks earlier in the year. The Gulf crisis, however, has been a far more serious test for Kaifu. And he's responded with a series of flip-flops.

After the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion, Kaifu announced a financial aid package for the Gulf but declared the nation's Self-Defense Forces (SDF) would not go. When Japan's senior security partner, the United States, expressed unhappiness over the decision, Kaifu did an about-face.

The result was a proposal to deploy support troops under the United Nations umbrella. That opened a Pandora's box that Japan has preferred to keep shut: whether to reconsider its post-World War II constitutional ban on using force overseas.

"Kaifu himself didn't want to send the SDF from the very beginning. His indecisiveness is the reason why the bill is so unpopular," said Seizaburo Sato, a Tokyo University politics professor and former adviser to two prime ministers.

"If Kaifu really firmly believed it was necessary for Japan to send the Self-Defense Forces, the people would accept it."

Faced with anti-deployment sentiment at home as well as in other Asian countries, Kaifu has been at best confusing, at worst self-contradictory under intense grilling from leading opposition members.

OPINION

A practical expansion

To the Editor:
Before you decide how to vote on the Town Hall renovation plan, consider these facts on this proposed project:
Originally the space committee said an additional 20,000-30,000 square feet would be adequate. This proposal calls for 55,000 square feet — practically double that of the original deal. Why?
It's due to the proposed manager's office — 30 feet by 57 feet — bigger than most ranch houses in town.
I won't detail all the other offices, but they are BIG. Additional hallways and entrances comprise about 10,000 sq. ft., or around one-fifth of the total space. What a waste of our money.
A rough estimate for the proposed bridge and tunnel is a cool $1 million if we pay cash, or $2 million on the credit card. Who authorized this crazy deal and why?
Early in our discussions, we had a local architect (who we paid $27,000) show us some sketches where a building could be added to our present office building. That building was around 22,000 sq. ft. It was very practical and it made a lot of sense.
Be prudent. Vote no and put our leaders on notice we want something practical.

Campaign endorsements

To the Editor:
This year, many of my friends and people who I have agreed with about many issues over the years are supporting Lowell Weicker for Governor. With all due respect and affection for these friends, they're wrong about who should be elected Governor of Connecticut this year.
In some ways, Weicker was a fine U.S. Senator. When he spoke up for black people in South Africa or stood up against Jesse Helms, I cheered. But making idealistic speeches is not the same thing as providing true leadership. Although Weicker was and is a sincere and committed advocate for people with disabilities, he was unable to get a civil rights law passed during 18 years in the Senate. A Governor must do more than take a stand, a Governor must know how to close the deal.
Recently, Bruce Morrison has devoted his considerable talents to the issues of the credit crunch and immigration reform. While perhaps not as emotionally appealing as the issues chosen by Weicker, Bruce has shown knowledge of the ways the nuts and bolts of government policy affect the economy. Bruce has the brainpower it will take to solve the complex problems facing our state. He is also a caring person, someone we can depend on during tough times.
Bruce is also a candidate with considerable personal courage. He had the guts to give up a safe Congressional seat to challenge a 10-year incumbent Governor from his own party. He put a promising career on the line for the sake of the people of Connecticut.
I am an enthusiastic supporter of Bruce Morrison because I know he will be a great Governor if elected. In a confusing, turbulent year, we have, in Bruce Morrison, the opportunity to elect a serious, thoughtful, compassionate and courageous Governor. I hope Connecticut will take the chance.

On Nov. 6, let us re-elect Jack Thompson to the State House of Representatives. Jack works diligently for everyone's best interest, ranging from advocating for children to supporting programs for senior citizens. He is creating a better future for Manchester's families.
I know first-hand because as a concerned citizen, I worked with Rep. Thompson on the Education Committee this past session at the Capitol. I witnessed the sincere dedication of this highly respected legislator in benefiting Education statewide.
We are very fortunate to have Jack Thompson represent our town. We need him to continue. No one can serve us better.

Congress at its very worst

If the Bush-Congress budget fiasco has proven nothing else, it documents with startling clarity a bipartisan pattern of hypocrisy, deceit and unaccountability that makes Richard M. Nixon look like a disciple of Mother Teresa.
The budget-reduction bill that finally staggers into the daylight of reality will not be stamped with the imprimatur of the American people. Instead, the final product will be a raggedy pastiche that the president and his two Rasputins, White House aide John Sununu and Office of Management and Budget Director Richard Darman have stitched together with the congressional leadership and rambunctious members of both parties.
So far, the American people have not unlearned the same firestorm of protests that forced Congress to shove its attempted pay increase two years ago.
If a final budget-reduction bill antagonizes a majority of the American people, it will be their fault. With apologies to Flip Wilson, it will be a case of "what you see is what you get."
It is also unlikely that members of Congress will be punished at the polls if they again vote for a budget-reduction bill that body-presses the middle-class — and they know it.
These cases in point: Two members of the Democratic leadership, Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., chairman of the House Budget Committee, and his predecessor, House Majority Whip William H. Gray III, D-Pa., were joined by House

CHUCK STONE

Minority Leader Robert H. Michel, R-Ill., in voting for the poorly conceived budget deficit bill that was defeated 254-179 in the wee, wee hours of the morning on Oct. 5.

Although all three men brazenly sabotaged the best interests of their constituents on that bill, the chances that their constituents will turn them out are about equal to that of a snowball in the Saudi Arabian desert.
Such apathy is what allowed Panetta, Gray and Michel to place what they view as the good of their parties above the welfare of the people — and get away with it!
But a few days ago, Panetta did a President Bush-style flip-flop and became a born-again populist.
"I don't think there's any question in my mind, but that we've hit a raw nerve in American society when it comes to the issue of the wealthy doing their part to reduce the deficit," the bespectacled Panetta said with a straight face.
Gray, meanwhile, was completely unaccountable to his 75-percent-black con-

Marines spend big ad bucks

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The Marine Corps is trying to get new mileage out of a 4-year-old recruitment ad, one of the most expensive ever produced by the Pentagon for television. The ad — a medieval fantasy worthy of George Lucas or Steven Spielberg — is now airing during Sunday afternoon football games.
The ad shows a knight in shining armor being dubbed a king. With the help of lightning bolts, the knight turns into, what else, one of the few, the proud — a Marine.
When the ad was produced in 1986, it cost the taxpayers $355,000. That year the Marine Corps took in 35,000 recruits, up about 1,200 from the year before. Recruitment numbers dropped in 1987, rose slightly in 1988 and fell again last year to about 33,000. A Marine spokesman told our associate Scott Steek that the service doesn't worry about big numbers. He said the ad was designed to attract people who have the qualities the Marines want.

For the kind of money the Marines spent on the ad, they should have stuck to reality. The Marines sweltering in the Persian Gulf waiting out Saddam Hussein would have a hard time identifying with King Arthur. A Marine spokesman from the Gulf will speak louder than the half-time hype of swords and sorcery.
Television advertising is a big expense for the Pentagon — $203 million this year for all the services. Until the knight in shining armor came along, ads produced for the Marines over the years averaged about $20,000. The most expensive for the Marines over the last five years cost $77,000 to produce.

The Army tops the Marine dollar figure spent on a single ad, but that ad at least has some relation to reality. It is the $555,046 ad showing a woman soldier holding up a high-tech mobile communications post during a training exercise.

Harrison has said that he feels Haven was best suited for the job. Louis also said that he wouldn't have hired Haven at the time regardless of whether Totten was able to fill the position because he said he felt she wasn't qualified.
With more training, she could have been a viable candidate, he said.
Haven claimed tests she took

Most Republicans don't see human misery in America, which explains why five-term Rep. Bill Collins, R-Fla., who is against all taxes, voted against that Oct. 5 bill. Collins believes in protecting the rich at the expense of the poor.
Nobility likes budget deficits. But the American people must live with one economic reality: 25.8 percent of all families earn $50,000 or more, while only 9.7 percent earn $10,000 or less. Clearly, the richer families, who are also more numerous, are in a better position to pay higher taxes.
And that is the quintessential meaning of democracy. But if you remain silent on this issue, "what you see is what you get."

The brass is anxious to get free air time any way it can, including movie-length recruitment tools such as "Top Gun" and music videos filmed on battlefields. One Army source told us with pride that actor Bruce Willis sang the Army's "Be all that you can be" ditty in an episode of "Moonlighting."
The plan involves replacing the fixtures, bulbs and wiring throughout the building. Lights at the elementary school were replaced earlier this year.

The total cost of the project is estimated to be $28,073. However, the town is eligible to receive a $25,846 rebate through a special Northeast Utilities program. That would make the net cost to the town only $2,227. Combined with an estimated annuual energy savings of $6,753, the project is expected to pay for itself in less than four months.

The low cost and the big savings sounded too good to be true to commission Chairman Art Menzies. "It seems like a lot of education magic," he said.
But Board of Education member Barry Stearns said there's no video on sight. The program is part of NU's policy to help municipalities save energy.
The town will use money from the elementary school project's $14,000 rebate to cover the cost of the high school plan. Stearns said the same contractor that performed the elementary school work will do the high school project because he is willing to wait and accept the rebate as his payment.
Once NU confirms the amount of the rebate, the work will begin at night and on weekends.

Propaganda or reality? George Bush is peeved at the American media for what he thinks is too state or propaganda on news TV. The networks have shown footage of well-stocked grocery shelves, rigorous war preparations and anti-American demonstrations in Iraq. Iraqi officials and people on the streets have been interviewed in a police state where no one is free to say anything they wouldn't want Saddam Hussein to hear. Accidents at our White House sources, Bush thinks the American media has been had.

Mini-editorial
A new Gallup poll says the poorer an American family is, the more likely it is to give generously to charity. Among households that contribute to charity, those making less than $10,000 a year give an average of 5.5 percent of that to charitable causes. While those making more than $100,000 give only 2.9 percent. The pollsters concluded that most wealthy Americans are downright stingy. It looks like the real philanthropists are scrambling to make ends meet. They are the ones who understand what it means to be needy.

Bias complaint is voted down

By SCOTT BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Experience gained through 11 years of working for the Cemetery Division apparently was not enough to qualify Patricia Havens for the post of cemetery superintendent.
The town's Human Relations Commission unanimously voted Thursday night that her snubbing was not motivated by sexual bias.
Havens, who served as a clerk/stenographer and then as a secretary for the division, said her knowledge of the administrative end of the superintendent's job should have given her the edge over Floyd Totten, who was awarded the position by Public Works Director Peter Louis.

After being turned down for the job in August, Havens filed a complaint with the HRC over the matter saying she didn't get appointed because she was a woman.

Thursday night, the HRC held a hearing over the issue in the Coffee Room of the Municipal Building, so that the two sides could get their say.

At the hearing, Havens said that her past dealings with setting budgets, working with computers and handling personnel problems, among other areas, should have made her the first pick for the post.

Louis later refuted her statement saying he chose Totten to fill the vacancy, created when former Cemetery Superintendent Robert Harrison retired on April 1, because of his ability to interact with others and his knowledge of the cemetery grounds around town.

Harrison has said that he feels Haven was best suited for the job. Louis also said that he wouldn't have hired Haven at the time regardless of whether Totten was able to fill the position because he said he felt she wasn't qualified.

With more training, she could have been a viable candidate, he said.
Haven claimed tests she took when applying for the job were operated with a sexual bias. She also cited the fact that all three members of the selection committee were men as another sign of being discriminated against.

Joseph Sweeney, one of two HRC members who were asked to form a subcommittee to look into the matter, said he didn't believe the test was operated under sexual bias, and that a good reason she didn't get the post was because her 81.7 average was nearly ten points behind Totten's score.
Harrison defended his former employee.

"When I made the decision to take an early retirement, it was with Phil Havens in mind," he told me, Harrison said. "I thought she was the best-suited, most logical person to fill the position."

"Many of the duties she performed as secretary were those of an administrator," he said.

Harrison could not say in public which candidate he thought was best to produce Deputy Town Manager Steven Werber said that he could only discuss Totten's job performance in executive session if Totten so requested and he did.

Werber also said that it was against the Freedom of Information Act to discuss in public hearing the hiring of certain materials to the cemetery, created when former Cemetery Superintendent Robert Harrison retired on April 1, because of his ability to interact with others and his knowledge of the cemetery grounds around town.

Barbara Collins, the attorney representing Havens, objected to the hearing of certain materials to the cemetery, created when former Cemetery Superintendent Robert Harrison retired on April 1, because of his ability to interact with others and his knowledge of the cemetery grounds around town.

Harrison has said that he feels Haven was best suited for the job. Louis also said that he wouldn't have hired Haven at the time regardless of whether Totten was able to fill the position because he said he felt she wasn't qualified.

With more training, she could have been a viable candidate, he said.

FIGHTING THE DRUG PROBLEM — Tom Cantone, president of the Manchester Board of Realtors, hands out drug education audio tapes and booklets to Martin School students, Carol Baez and Ben Horn, behind the school Wednesday. The Board of Realtors is donating tapes and booklets to all third grade students in Manchester. The tapes, to be played at home, include songs advising children not to use drugs and will augment the regular drug education programs, according to Martin School Principal Ray Whinnem.

'Living wills' advised for all

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Most of the about 100 people who attended a recent presentation about "living wills" at Manchester Memorial Hospital were elderly or approaching old age.

However, living wills — legal documents which allow people to state limits on artificial life support provided to them — should not be the concern of older folks only, according to medical and legal officials from the hospital's Ethics Committee.

A good question, said attorney John C. Yavis, is when to prepare such a document.

"I would say at any time in your life," Yavis said, adding that age 18 is not too young. It is possible at an even younger age, but Yavis did not want to express a formal opinion regarding that issue, he said.

The attorney stressed the importance of writing such wills. The necessary documents can be obtained through hospitals or such organizations as the Society for the Right to Die, a New York organization, Yavis said, adding that an attorney's services are not required.

"I can guide your physicians, family members, or hospital at a time when they have to make a difficult decision about your health," Yavis said.

He gave advice on state guidelines regarding such documents. Because the statute is both brief and vague, the attorney recommends that people fill out two supplemental documents, one specifying details about restrictions on the

Maids service cleaning up big

By SCOTT BREDE

MANCHESTER — For Earl Lavoie, an employee of the Maids of Manchester/Glastonbury, mildew stains are mild.
Waxy yellow buildup is a breeze. But, dusting is a downer.
"People have a lot of expensive stuff [in their homes]," said the 19-year-old maid. "I'm always afraid of dropping something."

Lavoie said this time of year — fall — is the busiest cleaning season.
"We get more one-time cleaning assignments [during this time] because people are coming back from their vacations and preparing for the coming holidays," he said.

Most houses at this time of year are basically clean, Lavoie said.
"You might get a heavy dust buildup or a lot of that cosmetic stuff on sinks," he said.

"Most of our customers are two-income families whose time is still valuable," he said. "They don't want to spend their free time at home cleaning up their house."

"Families look at it as their time is more valuable, but what it is going to cost them for the service," Pfalzgraf said.

He filed a $10 million damage suit against Broderick, Short and the hospital.

Ten million dollars seems like a lot of money to me. However, Nancy Klein's health was compromised by having to wait for an abortion until an advanced state of pregnancy, and Martin Klein endured great emotional duress because of Broderick and Short's actions. I have no idea how much that pain and suffering was worth, but I was totally unprepared

Bank loses $255 million

BOSTON (AP) — Bank of Boston posted a $255 million loss or $3.53 per share in the third quarter, the victim of the deteriorating Northeast economy and a weak real-estate market, bank officials said Thursday.

The bank last month predicted a heavy loss of at least $200 million and said it could recoup $50 million, partially by reducing its 18,700-person workforce by at least 1,500 employees by early next year.

"That's within the range we forecast a month or so ago," bank spokesman Wayne J. Taylor said of the loss. "We telegraphed this more than a month ago. It should not come as a surprise."

Aetna charges retracted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The consumer organization Public Citizen backtracked for a second time in a week Thursday from its critical study of the insurance industry, saying it had been wrong in saying that Aetna's property and casualty surpluses had declined.

Last Friday, the consumer group admitted a similar mistake in its analysis of the surpluses of the TTT Hartford insurance group.

"We have concluded that neither Hartford nor Aetna should have been highlighted in the report," Public Citizen said.

Xerox earnings fall

STAMFORD (AP) — Xerox Corp. reported a 14.8 percent drop in third-quarter earnings partly because of a weak performance by the company's insurance and financial services businesses.

For the period ended Sept. 30, profits totaled $132 million, or $1.16 per share, on revenue of $4.5 billion. That compared with earnings of $155 million, or $1.41 per share, on revenue of $4.4 billion in the same 1989 period, the company said Thursday.

Income from continuing operations in Xerox's insurance and other financial services fell 98 percent, to $1 million from 1989's $50 million. Pretax capital gains totaled $4 million in the third quarter, compared with $207 million in the corresponding 1989 quarter.

"Given the adverse forces in our markets, including both the weak pricing environment in the property and casualty insurance industry and the turmoil in financial markets, it is important to note that our results were essentially in line with the second quarter of this year," said Stuart B. Ross, Xerox executive vice president and chairman and chief executive of Xerox Financial Services Inc.

Income dropped 64.5 percent from Crum and Forster's property and casualty and life insurance operations.

 The first state budget proposal for 1990-91 shocked school systems across the state, including Manchester's. More than $1 million was cut from promised funds. State Representative McCavanagh helped see to it that most of that money was restored. Manchester's schools opened as planned.

"Public Citizen stands by its report," the consumer group said. "The insurance industry is vulnerable to a pattern of insolvencies and urgently requires stronger federal and state regulation to ensure that consumers are protected."

CLEARING IT — Hartford Public's Al Granger (10) drives the ball away from in front of the Manchester's Dwayne Goldston (9) jumps in during Thursday's game. Manchester won and clinched at least a tie for its third straight CCC East Division title.

ON THE RUN — Hartford Public's Juan Martinez gives chase along with Manchester High's Jason Dieterle (7) during their CCC East clash Thursday in Hartford. The Indians' Nigel Cooper, left, and Evan Milone, rear also head for the ball. The Indians won in overtime, 2-1.

MHS tips Public in OT; clinches CCC East tie

By JIM TIERNEY
 Manchester Herald

HARTFORD — When the Manchester High-Hartford Public CCC East boys' soccer match went into overtime Thursday afternoon, after battling to a scoreless tie through regulation, one may have thought the first-place Indians would have been content to sit back and take the tie and be none worse for wear.

The Indians did anything but retreat during overtime.

Seniors Jason Dieterle (team-leading 11th goal) and Brian Wry each scored goals in the first five-minute session as Manchester held off Public, 2-1, in an intensely fought match.

Leading Public by half a game beforehand, Manchester (10-2-1) clinched at least a tie for its third consecutive CCC East league championship. Public fell to 8-3-2.

The victory was the seventh straight by the Indians.

After a non-league game Monday at home against Hall, Manchester can win the outright CCC East title by defeating East Hartford next Wednesday at 3 p.m. at Memorial Field.

"If we win against East Hartford, it's all over," Dieterle said.

Indian goalie Mike Milazzo, whose spectacular save off a left-footed shot by Juan Martinez with 6:40 left in the first half denied the Owls a certain goal, was again supported well by his defenders.

"I can't say enough about my defense," Milazzo said. "We were up for it. We've got one more league game and I think we just captured our CCC East championship."

Both sides had a couple of near-misses in the first half, in which the Indians outshut the Owls, 9-7. Most of the Indians' chances came from Dieterle head attempts off long throw-ins by Dwayne Goldston. A total of four yellow cards (three to Public) were issued in the first half.

"At halftime, I told them to stay emotionally into it," Manchester coach Bill McCarthy said. "Our defense was playing well. It was a great win. We were on the brink after that second loss (to Public on Oct. 2)."

Manchester seemed to retreat into a defensive mode during the final 25 minutes of regulation.

"We weren't playing for the tie," Dieterle explained. "We were playing not to lose."

Fourteen seconds into the first overtime, Wry broke loose and fired a bullet which deflected off Public goalie Bounto Chanthavong. Twenty-five seconds later, Joey Stephenson's corner kick sailed in front of the Owl goal and Dieterle's head found it and deposited it into the side of the net for the 1-0 edge.

"Joey hit the corner kick and the goalie thought I was going to go in so he didn't punch it out and it went off the crossbar," Dieterle explained. "I was just standing in the right place at the right time and I just headed it into the side of the net."

Wry put Manchester up 2-0 with 1:07 left in the first overtime. He stole the ball from fullback Tafari Cooper and, on a 1-on-1 opportunity, beat Chanthavong from 15 yards out. It was Wry's eighth goal of the season.

"It was a very good soccer match," Public coach Stephen Kasoy said. "The battle was at midfield. The overtime was to Manchester's advantage because we had to win. A tie wasn't good enough for us. Whoever won this deserved it."

Outside of the steady, excellent play from sweeper Scott Salonen, stopperback Troy Guntulis and backs Jeff Ross and Matt Kohut, Dieterle, Evan Milone and Goldston were superb at midfield.

Just 58 seconds into the second overtime, Garfield Green scored for Public to slice the deficit to 2-1.

"Jason did a heck of a job," McCarthy said. "And the second goal (by Wry) was pure hustle. Since he (Wry) got that hat trick against South Windsor, he's been playing very well."

McCarthy isn't taking East Hartford lightly.

"They're going to be dangerous," he said. "They might need it (a win) for the state tournament."

Douglas goes out quietly as Holyfield takes title

 The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — The James "Buster" Douglas of old returned to the ring against Evander Holyfield, and a new heavyweight champion climbed out.

The fighter who shocked the boxing world by knocking out Mike Tyson was nowhere to be seen Thursday night, replaced by the other Douglas, a blubbery journeyman with questionable heart.

When an overhead right from Holyfield crashed into his face a minute into the third round, Douglas went to the canvas, where he obligingly stayed on his back as his brief and inglorious championship reign came to an end.

The first big punch of the bout and the fight was over, leaving Douglas, who weighed 246 pounds, destined to go down in boxing lore as a one-fight flake.

"He made no effort, however, to try and get up before referee Mills Lane counted him out at 1:10 of the third round."

"I was just hoping he wouldn't get up," Holyfield said. "I knew I hit him with a good shot, so I got quick-

Meanwhile, East Catholic (1-5) and Northwest Catholic (1-5) will look up in a 10:30 a.m. affair Saturday in West Hartford. East is coming off a 31-0 loss to Notre Dame last year, Facchini said.

Local woman helps AIDS effort

MANCHESTER — The face on the poster is haunting. The words printed on it are heartbreaking. Designed to promote understanding of people with AIDS, the stark black-and-white poster is the brainchild of a newly formed group of Hartford area residents: The Concerned Citizens for Humanity. The poster is being distributed throughout the state and nation to AIDS organizations. Among the volunteer Concerned Citizens is Ann Clementino, a Manchester resident and graphic artist who came up with the poster's typographical design. At the top of the poster read the words "Hurt, Anger, Fear, Loneliness." The message is designed to portray a desperate cry for help from within the mind of the man on the poster. At the bottom, another message portrays an answer to the cry and represents a wish of the man in the poster: "It's only human when you have AIDS. Please understand people with AIDS."

"I wanted to contribute," said Clementino of her part in a growing effort to help people relate to the plight of AIDS victims. Speaking for herself and other Concerned Citizens members, Clementino said, "We are all at a point in our lives where we feel it's time to give something back to society. I hope this helps."

The poster gives the message that AIDS victims should not be ostracized, its creators say. "The message says that AIDS isn't 'gross,'" said Darrell Decker, an East Catholic High School graduate and Burlington resident who came up with the idea for founding the coalition. "The people who have it still have a valuable contribution to make in the last years of their lives."

Since learning he had the disease one year ago, Washington has lost 65 pounds and developed AIDS-related illnesses, including sores on his face which the poster shows. He is estimated to have less than a year to live, Decker said.

The poster is the coalition's first project designed to carry out its ultimate goal of "moving public opinion" to help reverse a variety of social ills. The coalition's next effort probably will involve the nation's infant mortality rate and will promote adequate pre- and post-natal health care, Decker said.

A total of 13,000 copies of the AIDS poster have been printed, 4,000 of which are in Spanish, according to Darrell Decker, the poster is being well received by groups of people across the country who are involved in the AIDS crisis. "We are having wonderful responses," he said. Bride wants to disinvite woman

DEAR ABBY: How does a bride disinvite someone from being in her wedding party? When I announced my wedding four months ago, I asked five of my best friends to be bridesmaids. They all accepted. I just found out that one of my bridesmaids has been seeing a married man for the last eight months. She has mentioned this man's name, but she neglected to say that he's married. I've never approved of this type of behavior. I've always felt that if people are dissatisfied or unhappy in a marriage, they should either try to improve it or end it. Now I can't even look at this girl in the same way I did before I found all of this out. Furthermore, I feel that it would be a slap in the face to the institution of marriage to have her as my bridesmaid. My mom says I'm stuck with it. The other bridesmaids say, "Replace her!" My fiance says I should explain my feelings about the sacredness of marriage and tell her about the circumstances I prefer that she attend my wedding as a guest — but not a bridesmaid. What do you think?

ON THE FENCE — You and your fiance. Also, give her a chance to deny or confirm what you "found out." If it's true, when you "disinvite" her, offer to reimburse her for any expense she may have incurred on your behalf unless her bridesmaid's gown and shoes can be worn by her replacement or returned. I know there wouldn't be a problem with white people getting it, especially urban, hipper folks."

Guns N' Roses has filed a $2 million lawsuit against K mart Corp. for alleged unauthorized use of the rock band's picture and name in an advertisement for a toy drum set.

The lawsuit, filed by attorney Kevin F. Ruff, seeks $1 million in special damages and $1 million in general damages. It alleges commercial invasion of privacy, misappropriation of the band's name, unfair competition and trademark infringement. K mart's corporate offices in Troy, Mich., were closed late Thursday and no one was available to comment on the lawsuit, said a security guard who answered the phone.

Debris Barrie, acquitted of obscenity charges for showing photographer Robert Mapplethorpe's controversial photos, says the controversy may put his museum out of business. Cincinnati's Contemporary Arts Center and Barrie, its director, were acquitted this month of obscenity charges stemming from an exhibit of Mapplethorpe's photos, some of which showed nudity and graphic sexual behavior.

Actor Edward Woodward is returning to television after a heart attack and exhaustion associated with working on the old show "The Equalizer." When he quit two years ago, Woodward said he wouldn't be back in another TV series, but he says he got restless and liked the role offered him in the new CBS show "Over My Dead Body."

Edward Woodward (l) of "The Equalizer" and Jessica Lundy (r) star in "Over My Dead Body." They play a blocked novelist and a young obituary writer who team up in San Francisco to solve baffling crimes. The new CBS mystery series has a special two-hour premiere on Friday, Oct. 26.

Pneumonia needs more follow-up

DEAR DR. GOTT: In November 1989, I was hospitalized with double pneumonia. During this time, I was also diagnosed with pseudomonas. IV antibiotics brought the problem under control, yet on two occasions I've had a flare-up. Can you explain pseudomonas and advise if anxiety plays a part in the overall picture?

DEAR READER: Pseudomonas are a type of bacteria that can cause infection anywhere in the body. They are particularly dangerous because, unlike other common microorganisms (such as staph and strep), they are resistant to most antibiotics. Pneumonia pneumonia is unusual. The fact that you had it on three occasions suggests that the resistance of your lungs is somehow defective. This could be due to severe chronic bronchitis, lung abscess or similar conditions.

Many newer antibiotics, such as the penicillin derivative called Cefazidime (Fortaz), are effective against pseudomonas; therefore, such infections no longer carry a high mortality rate. Nonetheless, as you've discovered, treatment is not always curative; either you failed to receive a proper amount of antibiotic or your immunity is deficient, resulting in repeated infections.

Because your case is unusual, I suggest you query your doctor about the reasons for the pneumonia — and your prognosis. If your pulmonary resistance is compromised by, say, lung abscesses, the doctor may wish to administer long-term antibiotic therapy or refer you to a pulmonologist (lung specialist) for further testing and treatment. Anxiety does not play a role in your susceptibility to pneumonia, which is a bacterial infection — although I can understand why you would experience stress as a result of repeated episodes of pneumonia and the uncertainty about having another flare-up. Your doctor, by answering your questions, should be able to alleviate your anxiety as well as to plan a sensible approach to your physical problem.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses: P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Reliving the trolley car

By GLADYS S. ADAMS
Special to the Herald

MANCHESTER — The trolley car, run by the Hartford, Manchester and Rockville Tramway Co., made a big hit when it first reached Manchester at the turn of the 20th Century. The town was jubilant. For the first time, residents didn't need to own a horse to travel around town without walking. "The Electric Here!" announced the Manchester Saturday Herald of May 11, 1895. The first car was unloaded at Woodland Crossing. All along the trolley line, people ran from their houses at the sound of the trolley going, cheering and waving as the car passed. At the end of the day, the trolley car was housed at the trolley car house, later called the "car barn," near the current Town Hall on East Center Street. Tramway had extended its trolley tracks from Burnside Avenue in East Hartford to Manchester's West Middle Turnpike and Center Street. At Center Street, the tracks turned south and went to Hartford Road. Middle Turnpike was built through Manchester in 1879 by the Boston and Hartford Turnpike Co. A hill at the west end of the turnpike was known for years as the McLean Hill, for the large family of Deacon Alexander McLean, who had lived there previously. Francis Buckland, who had lived most of his life on Tolland Turnpike near the Vernon line, was the owner of the McLean place when the trolley tracks were being laid, and he loudly protested installation of the trolley lines on his land to Tramway Co. Chapman ended up solving the problem by buying the farm from Buckland.

Gladys Adams is a Manchester resident who enjoys writing about history.

Church celebrates dual anniversary

MANCHESTER — South United Methodist Church will celebrate a dual anniversary — 200 years since Methodism was introduced in Manchester and 65 years since the present church was dedicated — on Sunday. The sounds of trust are best

When I ask people if the trust their mates, they often think I am asking if they think their mate is having an affair. But I am referring to a different type of trust. By "trust," I mean the following: Does a mate allow his or her partner to act naturally and feel at ease? Can he or she be entrusted with the partner's inner thoughts? Is the mate understanding and supportive of the partner? Trust is tough. It involves surrendering personal opinions and views to another person. Trust also involves consulting another person's point of view without changing his or her own. And trust means sometimes asking for something and accepting "no" for an answer.

For example, a woman who asked her husband to help her move a heavy piece of furniture was confronted with a situation involving trust when she refused. The wife wanted him to do what she had asked because she wanted to rearrange the furniture and get the house ready for the holidays. However, the husband did not share this interest. He might not have wanted to lift heavy furniture moved, she might find a way to accomplish it without his help.

This disagreement could have remained a block in the relationship. The wife could have said, "I do not want to lift heavy furniture. I want you to help me." In this way, each spouse got what they wanted — the resented him and gotten revenge in other ways. Instead, she examined the situation and realized that her husband had a different opinion. His refusal to help did not necessarily paralyze her into not getting what she wanted. The woman realized that she could change the furniture without her husband's help. He had no objection to that and the wife was empowered to find another means to solve her problem. Her husband trusted her enough to say, "No, I do not want to lift heavy furniture." The wife heard his "no" and stated her "yes." She said, "I want this done." In this way, each spouse got what they wanted — the Love has nothing to do with disagreements and difference of opinions of the kind discussed. In a trusting relationship, each person has every right to do what he or she wants and to be accepted on his own terms. That is the feeling that most people long for in a relationship — to find someone who lets a person be himself. People can begin achieving this goal by trusting another person and claiming trust for themselves. Please send suggestions for topics to Agnes F.
