Recession said to be imminent

By JOHN D. McCLAIN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government's chief economic forecasting gauge dropped 0.8 percent in September, the government said today, for its second straight monthly drop.

The September drop followed a 1.2 percent plunge in August, the steepest since a 1.4 percent fall a month after the October 1987 stock market crash. The index was unchanged in July.

Three consecutive declines in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators are viewed as a fairly reliable — although not infallible — sign that a recession is imminent.

In another report, the government said the unemployment rate held at 5.7 percent in October even though the nation's manufacturing and construction industries continued to slump. The index of leading indicators lags a month behind the unemployment report.

Although last month's civilian jobless rate was unchanged from September's 5.7 percent, the Labor Department said the nation's job market continued to show weakness and widespread job losses.

There has not been a recession since World War II without the index of leading indicators turning down for at least three consecutive months. However, the index was negative for six months in 1984 and for five months in 1987-88 and, both times, the economy escaped a recession.

Many economists who believe the nation's economy is in a recession are now debating how long it will last.

Pick-up stymied by pesky leaves

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — When Lee O'Connor looks out the window in his office, all he sees is green. And that's making him see red.

Rain and snow make leaves too heavy for the town's collectors, forcing workers to use payloaders and dump trucks. That slows the work, because the loaders aren't as efficient or neat as the leaf collectors, the administrator said.

On the other hand, a lack of leaves does have a bright side, O'Connor said. Because the work load has been light, crews have been able to go to routes on which they weren't supposed to for another week or two. With luck, O'Connor said he hopes to be able to go through the entire town twice.

The death of fallen foliage has also delayed a contractor that the town hired to help collect the leaves. The company was scheduled to begin work on Monday, but O'Connor said he hopes to be able to go through the entire town twice.

This year, the crews began their work as usual, but the leaves have remained on the trees. O'Connor said he hopes that recent pleasant weather is an indication that it won't snow early this year.

Residents, water-skiers clash over slalom course

By JACQUELINE BENNETT
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — An emotional group of about 50 people Thursday night argued over a water-ski slalom course at Coventry Lake during a public hearing at Coventry High School.

Sides were drawn between residents, who say the slalom course is a hazard and a nuisance, and water skiers who say the course provides an opportunity to practice their sport and promote safe skiing.

In addition, the town Conservation Commission submitted a letter opposing the course for environmental reasons, such as disturbing wildlife and churning up weeds.

The 800-foot course, made by a local water-ski club, was granted trial approval by the Town Council last summer, pending a subsequent hearing. Town Council member Harvey Barrette is a member of that club.

State Department of Environment Protection officials held the hearing jointly with the Town Council after the state received numerous complaints about the course from residents.

After the hearing, DEP Major Randolph Dill said, "I was impressed with the club's attitude and position on the course." He said the slalom seems to give skiers an outlet for energy, adding he would like to see a compromise between residents

OK anticipated for MHS addition

By SCOTT BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The passage of the referendum to expand Manchester High School should be in the bag as long as the word gets out that it is more than a construction project, said the co-chairs of the committee promoting the addition Wednesday.

"Once people understand the whole thing, they seem to be in favor of it," said David Moyer, co-chairman of the Committee for the M.H.S. Addition, who has been working since June to encourage residents to vote for the $3,996,000 addition.

So far, Moyer said he has heard no opposition to the spending project, but thinks that many voters don't know the issues that are behind it.

However, a preliminary tabulation of a poll being taken of members of the Manchester Property Owners Association indicates that 86 percent of the 50 people who have responded so far oppose bonding $3.9 million for an addition to Manchester High School.

The referendum, which will be question No. 3 on Tuesday's election ballot, not only calls for the addition to the high school, but a reshuffling of the school system that would push up sixth-graders into the junior high schools and ninth-graders into the high school. The two junior high schools would then switch to a middle school format under the plan.

The proposal is in response to growing number of students entering elementary schools that are filling some classes up to the brim, Moyer said. Current projection figures say that there will be an additional 500 elementary school pupils by 1994, and that figure could jump to 700 before the turn of the century, he said.

"We have to get the word out that the problem is real," Moyer said. "There is a problem with space in the elementary schools that is going to become much worse in the next five to 10 years."

If voters say "yes" to the project,

Property owners oppose additions

Preliminary tabulation of a poll being taken of members of the Manchester Property Owners Association indicates 83 percent of the 50 people who have responded so far oppose a bond issue of $11.1 million for an addition to town hall, and 86 percent oppose bonding $3.9 million for an addition to Manchester High School.

Betty Sadoski, president of the MPOA, announced the results this morning.

She said responses are still being received.

She said she has not yet tabulated the responses to four other questions asked in the mailed survey, but she said it appears that an even higher percentage of respondents feel that town employees should be required to bear a portion of their health care costs.

Gulf at a glance

(AP) — Here, at a glance, are the latest developments in the Persian Gulf crisis:

■ Four more Americans in Iraq will likely be freed this weekend, diplomats said today. Baghdad reacted angrily to U.S. and British efforts to discourage hostage relatives from traveling to Iraq for the holidays.

■ President Bush, meanwhile, denounced Saddam Hussein's claims that the hostages are well-treated.

Bush suggested Thursday that in some forms of brutality, the Iraqi president had surpassed Hitler — raising some eyebrows by comparing Saddam to the man who ordered the extermination of millions of people in World War II.

■ Kuwait's exiled crown prince and prime minister said economic sanctions had failed, and efforts to find an Arab solution to the gulf crisis are "a waste of time" as long as Saddam won't listen.

The Kuwaiti News Agency, which is operating in exile, carried a statement by Sheikh Saad al-Abdullah al-Sabah reiterating Kuwaiti calls for a military assault to drive the Iraqis out of the conquered emirate.

■ Today marked the beginning of the fourth month of the Persian Gulf crisis, which started when Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Saddam refused to let foreigners leave both nations when the United Nations retaliated by imposing a trade embargo on Iraq and the United States began sending more than 200,000 troops to the region.

The commander of the U.S. forces said American troops could destroy Iraq but that such action might not be "in the interest of the long-term balance of power" in the region.

■ In an interview published today in The New York Times, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf said war could erupt any time but he doesn't expect it to.

"President Bush has stated again and again, our argument is not with the Iraqi people, and that [military action] would cause thousands and thousands of innocent casualties," he was quoted as saying.

■ The London-based Kurdistan Democratic Party, an Iraqi opposition group, said thousands of deserters from Iraq's army are hiding in northern Iraq or have fled to Turkey and Saudi Arabia.

Thatcher faces a crisis as Deputy Minister quits

By MAUREEN JOHNSON
The Associated Press

LONDON — Debate over Britain's integration into the European Community has thrown Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher into a political crisis after her deputy, Sir Geoffrey Howe, quit in protest of her resistance to the process.

Howe's resignation late Thursday prompted speculation that he or another senior lawmaker may try to oust her as leader of the Conservative Party — and thus the premiership — in a challenge this winter.

But many observers believe a leadership challenge would be too risky for the party, now less than two years from the June 1992 deadline for the next general election.

Howe, 63, a soft-spoken man who had come to irritate Mrs. Thatcher profoundly, according to political insiders, handed his resignation to her without notice

India mosque shootings push fatalities past 200

By VIJAY JOSHI
The Associated Press

AYODHYA, India — Police fatalities shot nine Hindu fundamentalists and wounded 30 others today, repulsing a renewed assault on a Muslim mosque in a religious dispute that has left more than 200 people dead nationwide.

The conflict has spilled into Moslem Bangladesh, where two more people died today from anti-Hindu rioting. Pakistan's caretaker prime minister said India is not doing enough to protect Moslem shrines.

About 10,000 Hindus tried to storm the hilltop Babri Mosque, which they want to replace with a temple in Ayodhya, 300 miles southeast of New Delhi. The conflict in the northeastern town threatens to bring down the government of Prime Minister V.P. Singh.

Police used tear gas and pushed back the crowds with blows from 6-foot-long bamboo staves. Reporters saw scores of people injured before the crowd retreated down dirt alleys and onto rooftops.

Police opened fire after coming under a repeated barrage of stones from the roofs. Witnesses saw police chasing the militants onto the roofs and firing on the crowds in the narrow lanes below, while others fired from the ground.

Doctors at nearby Faizabad Hospital said they received four bodies and 30 people injured by gunfire.

Five more bodies were later found still lying in the streets, police sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Today was the last day of a four-day pilgrimage period declared by astrologers and Hindu holy men as the auspicious time for beginning construction of the temple.

Proposed saint's grave exhumed

NEW YORK (AP) — It was no accident that officials of the Roman Catholic Church picked Thursday, All Saints Day, to unearth the bones of a former slave who is the first black American proposed for sainthood.

Cardinal John O'Connor turned the first shovel of dirt at the small cemetery at Old St. Patrick's Church in Little Italy, that's where Pierre Toussaint was buried in 1853 when he died at age 87.

Born into slavery in Haiti, Toussaint is now considered the founder of Catholic Charities because he helped the needy for 66 years before formal services for aid existed.

"It would be magnificent if it could eventually be determined that he deserves to be a saint," O'Connor told about 100 spectators pressed against police barricades.

Toussaint was born in 1766 and brought to New York at age 21 by his French owners. Still enslaved, he became a leading hairdresser in the city and was allowed to keep some of his income.

When Toussaint's owner died, he left an impoverished widow and child. In a typical act of generosity, Toussaint secretly supported them for 20 years. The widow freed Toussaint from slavery just before she died in 1807.

Once free, he bought the freedom of slaves and lavished money on charities, including an orphanage and the city's first school for black children. He also entered quarantined sections of the city to help fewer victims.

O'Connor described Toussaint as "an extremely holy man, a great humble man, who made a considerable amount of money. He used that money for the poor. He visited the poor, wherever they were. ... He gave away all his money."

Church officials say the case for sainthood is boosted by one reported miracle: the recovery of a young Haitian with cancer who refused medical care and relied solely on prayers to Toussaint.

In 1989 the church began investigating and examining Toussaint's life, the first formal step it is to be canonized. The process can take years.

House report criticizes HUD chief and Congress

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A congressional investigative report that accuses former Housing Secretary Samuel Pierce of being less than honest in the HUD scandals also points a finger at Congress itself.

The report by the House Government Operations Committee, ending a 16-month investigation of the Department of Housing and Urban Development by its housing subcommittee, said Congress as well as the administration should end practices that bring political influence to federal housing decisions.

"There is a need to take politics and discretion out of housing programs," the report said. "This applies equally to the executive and legislative branches."

Congress allotted some $30 million for 40 housing projects favored by House and Senate members in the supplemental appropriations bill for fiscal 1990, which ended Sept. 30. Similar projects were funded in appropriations for the current fiscal year as well.

"Just as it was wrong for HUD under Secretary Pierce to dole out housing units and grants to former HUD officials and the politically well-connected, ... so too Congress should not earmark funding for housing projects," the report said. "This practice by Congress, which circumvents objective criteria, competition and merit, should be ended," it said.

To the Editor: I am strongly urging the voters of Manchester to vote Yes on Referendum Question No. 2 regarding the $11.1 million renovation and expansion of Town Hall.

I am the Chairperson of the Board of Directors Town Hall Expansion Committee. Our latest efforts evolved from the very narrow 37-vote defeat of last November's $13.9 million referendum.

First, we looked over all the possible reasons why the voters rejected the project. Principally, the Committee felt that size and cost were the major factors.

Keeping in mind the need to reduce size and cost, we went back to the groundrules that had been discussed at length by the Citizens Space Study Committee. We reconfirmed and reevaluated the following groundrules for any plan:

1) General government offices should remain in the historic and geographic center of Town.

2) The Town Hall, Lincoln Center, and an addition should be optimized in a combination to meet future needs.

3) The combination should produce at least 50,000 net square feet to satisfy space needs for 25 years.

4) Parking must meet minimum PZC requirements of 4 cars/1,000 S.F.

5) The annual principal and interest payments for the project when added to existing debt payments should not exceed the current level of $3.9 million each year to minimize tax impacts.

Some people, including myself, have been skeptical about the 50,000 square feet of office space projected for future growth. But, my conclusion is if we control staff increases to 2 or 3 employees each year, the space will support a workforce of 200 out to 2050 years, essentially the bond repayment period.

Do I think it is the best solution for the Town and the taxpayers? Yes. The scaled down project meets all the groundrules reevaluated by my committee. The project's cost has been reduced, some $2.8 million in bonding and $3.5 million overall, or 25 percent.

It meets the needs of our expanded workforce for some 20 to 30 years and corrects handicapped access and OSHA violations and public record storage deficiencies.

It is a perfect plan! It is a perfect solution possibility that can achieve the objectives, needs and problems after conscientiously examining the facts. Decision making is the balance of pros and cons to arrive at a consensus or best adapted proposal achievable that meets most objectives and addresses public concerns.

The renovation of existing Town Hall is essentially the same as last November, at a cost of $1.3 million. The 3-level above ground parking structure has been scaled down to a cost of $1.65 million. Renovations to Lincoln Center have been eliminated.

The new addition has been reduced in size and design to a cost of $6 million by shrinking it six feet in width and length and eliminating attic expansion space. Conference rooms have been reduced to four and an open, well lit grade level walkway between Center Church and parking areas have been provided for.

Even after the Referendum we will continue to refine the project through oversight by the Town Building Committee of architect selection, final plans and specs, contractor selection and construction, to be responsive to citizen concerns over details.

Finally, there are legitimate concerns about tough economic times of Connecticut's recession and whether or not Manchester taxpayers can afford this expenditure at this time.

While it is true that Connecticut is experiencing tough economic times, that benefits the project. Because of the marked decline in construction activities this past year, we will be able to secure a very favorable construction price and shortened construction time.

We've designed the bond repayment schedule to be less than the existing annual repayment level or "debt service." The Town Hall project along with the Manchester High School addition and other future bonding projects must be planned incrementally to keep below $3.9 million annually so that impact on annual budgets increases and taxes will be minimal.

Please vote Yes on Question No. 2 as well as Question No. 3, the Town Hall and Manchester High School additions, as in the best interest of Manchester and its future.

IT'S NOT TRUE!

To the Editor: What started out to be the answer to a critical and justified need for Town Clerk multi spaces, has grown to be an out-of-control monster that must be contained.

It stretches from the sidewalk along Center Congregational West to the sidewalk of Trotter, 350 feet away, then North to the edge of Center Springs Park.

It is composed of solid amesite, sidewalks, a two-story building, a two-story garage, a three story garage equivalent to the footprint of the new Manchester Memorial Hospital garage, a 36-foot bridge between buildings and a 48-foot tunnel basement connector.

It overwhelms the site much like the Civic Center in downtown Hartford.

In March of 1988, you, the taxpayer, authorized and paid $27,500 for Architect committee guidelines. The space committee recommended an addition of 20,000 to 30,000 square feet (gross) to the rear of the Town Hall with a 77 percent to 81 percent efficient floor space and total gross from 62,000 to 65,000 for all three buildings.

A case in which three proposals of less than 22,000 sq. ft. One addition was attached to the existing Town Hall building, as it should be to avoid wasteful spending. With 218 parking places plus 100 on Trotter Street property, the total is 318 spaces.

Architect B's proposal has 55,000 sq. foot addition with a Civic Center type second story bridge, plus a 48 foot tunnel connector between basements. We are now up to 40,000 square feet over the original space committee guidelines.

Now add a 78,000 square-foot three-story connector to supply 305 parking places for 140 employees.

These glaring architectural discrepancies raise many questions as to which plan is most feasible and cost efficient. Would you pay for a 55,000 square foot addition, when another architect, using town planning report space requirements issued a report stating he has a plan for 22,000 square feet? It is your money.

The State examiner asked for and additional 800 square feet of vault space through 2021. What Town officials have not told you, is a bonded fireproof vault of nearly 400 square feet is directly above the Town Clerk's office and practically empty. This bonded vault is to be

To the Editor: As a result of the nature of the political process, the Democratic and Republican parties often have different views on how best to address major issues confronting the town.

One issue, however, on which the parties are in agreement is the need for additional space at the Town Hall.

The present proposal for an $11.1 million bond issue is well thought out and has been thoroughly reviewed by members of both political parties, as well as a non-partisan citizen committee.

This type of project will help to stimulate jobs in a difficult economic climate. Due to much of the town's existing debt being paid off over the next several years, the principal and interest required to fund the Town Hall project will not require a rise in taxes.

We would urge residents, regardless of party, to carefully review the facts surrounding this issue and support the proposal at the Nov. 6.

To the Editor: The 1990 elections promise to be the most dramatic in our nation's history.

As the quality of life in America slips steadily lower, this Proper Bostonian lady is still a reminder to me that refinement and dignity do make a happy difference in life.

This is one of the roles of idols — to keep us aware of high ideals we might otherwise lose sight of.

Perhaps it cannot be said that fine manners and good taste are indispensable to the enjoyment of life. But they give it an elegance "without which good fortune is but vulgar and with which failure and disappointment have a charm."

Heroes do that for us. The call us back to our better selves.

The best compliment a hero-shipper can receive is to be "mistaken," if only in a small way, for his hero.

A case against 'the bums'

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — If you're considering throwing the bums out on Nov. 6, here's some added incentive.

If you don't vote congressional incumbents out this time around, you will buy them gold-plated pensions.

Congress has written itself the fastest pension plan in the country, but in order to reap the full benefit, the member has to hold his or her seat until 1993.

At that point, their future pensions will be based on the generous pay raise they recently slipped themselves.

Anyone who loses this year will get a pension based on the old pay rate.

The difference is substantial. For example, if voters decided to dump Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., he will start collecting an annual pension of $53,897 next year.

But if Annunzio can hang on another term, his pension will start at $73,996 and climb from there, according to calculations by the National Taxpayers Union.

For 20 members of the House, re-election this fall will ensure them a pension of at least $90,000 a year because of their salary record while in office.

George Brown, D-Calif., is in a nail-biter of a race. If he loses, his pension will start next year at $69,898.

If he wins, he could retire in 1993 with a more comfortable pension of $95,083.

The national disgust with those in power has made "incumbent" a dirty word this year and has given hope to challengers with no political resumes.

That disenchantment has led to proposals for term limits to members of Congress.

Some states require a two-term limit on their congressmen, and some have put term limits on their state legislatures.

Camouflage leads to hunting success

Whether hunting elk with a bow in Colorado, shooting ducks in Michigan or taking advantage of the fall turkey hunting season in Alabama, choosing the proper camouflage is important to hunting success.

With more than 25 types of camouflage available for today's avid hunter, some common sense about the area being hunted and the prey the hunter is after can aid in choosing the proper attire for each species.

"Think about the animal you're going after and where they're found," said Gordie Hinds, a member of Columbia Sportswear's Hunters Advisory Board.

"You want your outline to blend in with the surroundings, so think about the angle a bird or deer is going to see you from."

For deer, elk, turkey and other animals found on the lower levels of the forest, a vertical pattern is appropriate.

"The vertical pattern is appropriate," Hinds said. "For hunters who use tree stands, they need a camouflage that matches the forest at this level."

Waterfowl hunting presents an entirely different environment to match. Ducks and geese have a wholly different view of the world when coming into a lake or pond.

"Waterfowl, if they see you, are going to spot you as they're flying overhead. Even if you're not moving, they're going to dart faster than lightning if your outline is distinguishable," he added.

"From the sky, everything around a lake is just a jumble of browns, greens, tans and blacks. Our Delta Marsh pattern mixes with the various shapes and colors the bird would see."

Obviously, the average outdoorsman doesn't have the money to buy a jacket for every hunting situation and season, so Columbia offers their Interchange System on many of their jackets, providing both a cold-weather outer shell and a lighter, inside liner that can be zipped out for warm-weather hunting.

Many states require blaze orange for some or all hunting, so be sure to check your local laws before making a purchase, notes Hinds.

In deciding the proper camouflage pattern for your hunting apparel, think about the animal you're pursuing and where it is found.

The making of a hunting buddy

A young girl or boy often can be a hunting buddy for life, once taught the sport of hunting. Here's some tips on training a lifetime hunting companion from the folks at Nikon Sport Optics.

Teach the youngster to study the game he hunts, and learn about its habits, haunts, preferred foods and mating cycle.

Purchase a single shot .22 rifle with a quality, shockproof and waterproof scope like Nikon's 1.5-4.5 X 20, which has a lifetime warranty. The single shot will teach the youngster to take his time before shooting and the bright scope will help him shoot more accurately.

Spend plenty of time on the shooting range where a child can build his shooting and safety skills.

Realize you must give your hunting day to build a hunting future for you and your young friend. The teaching is more important than the hunting.

Teach the youngster to talk in close, moving in slowly, deliberately and silently until within range.

Instruct the young hunter when to shoot, if he has a clear shot, and when not to shoot.

Emphasize gun safety. The hours you spend teaching firearm safety not only insures the health and safety of your young friend, but of all who hunt with him.

Make the hunt an adventure. The planning, preparation and the anticipation of the hunt, the ride to the hunt site and home after the hunt, as well as the recalling of those shared moments outdoors, later can often be as enjoyable as the hunt itself.

Poll says general public supports hunters

A recent poll by the Gallup Organization shows a notable lack of support among the general public for the goals and actions of animal rights activists, with the majority of those surveyed disagreeing with the animal rights groups.

In an overall rejection of the animal rights' goals and strategies, 89% of those surveyed indicated that they disagreed with the positions and activities of animal rights groups.

When asked "Which of the following best describes your attitude about animal rights activists," 46% of the respondents indicated they thought animal rights activists were well meaning but disagreed with their positions when they placed concern about animal rights over people's rights, and 43% thought animal rights groups were well meaning but their positions were too extreme.

Only 7% agreed with what these groups are trying to accomplish and approved of how they were going about it.

The poll was administered by the Gallup Organization for the National Shooting Sports Foundation, a non-profit trade association, and was based on 1,000 random telephone surveys with individuals aged 18 and older across the U.S. The maximum expected error range on a sample of this size is plus or minus 1%.

Perhaps the best-known goal of animal rights groups — a total ban on medical research involving animals — was opposed by 63% of the survey respondents, while only 35% supported this goal.

The efforts of the animal rights activists to stop all forms of hunting have even less public support, the survey showed. Only 21% of those surveyed supported this activity while nearly 77% opposed it.

When asked their opinion of the animal rights' strategy of entering the woods during the hunting season to disrupt the hunt, 90% of those surveyed said they opposed this activity and only 9% said they supported it.

"We commissioned this study because of our serious concern over the hunter-harassment activities of these groups," said Robert T. DeLay, executive director of the National Shooting Sports Foundation. "Some of these people would follow hunters into the woods with blaring radios and carry on in such a way that a hunter had little choice but to leave the woods and go home. We were bothered by this ironic abuse of human rights in the name of animal rights and wanted to see if the American public shared our concern."

"Only the animal rights' goal of regulating treatment of farm animals, which are sometimes raised in confining areas, received support from the majority of those surveyed, with 60% supporting this goal.

"While a majority of those surveyed did indicate some level of respect for the motives of the animal rights activists, the vast majority clearly do not agree with what these groups are trying to accomplish or how they are going about it," DeLay added.

Tell me about it, Mikhail! Hey, do you want to compare approval ratings?!"

who oppose the course and the skiers. The council is expected to refer the controversy to the town Steering Committee and invite Bill to discuss it further in late November.

"I don't know if we can reconcile these differences," said Town Council Chairwoman Joan Lewis, adding she hopes a compromise can be found.

Lakefront resident Mary Anne Hansen said the club violated its permit, which allows use of the course on weekends from one hour after dawn to 9 a.m. Water skiers often skied until 9:30 a.m., she said.

Skiers also skied in two directions on the water when the permit allowed them only to go counterclockwise, Hansen said.

"During the trial [period], they virtually ignored the permit regulations," said Hansen. "It's too loud, too early, not safe and not controlled."

nor had to tell it to wait a week — there wasn't anything for workers to do.

The late fall also may give a new program a significant test. Manchester is part of a pilot program to collect leaves in paper bags instead of plastic bags.

Beginning in January, the town no longer will collect leaves in plastic bags because of a recently passed state recycling law. To prepare for this, the town is offering a pilot program in which residents in certain sections of town can purchase biodegradable, paper, leaf bags.

The bags cost 30 cents each, and the town will pick up as many paper bags as residents can fill. The bags will be picked up on the same day as residents' regular trash collection.

Residents other than those in the pilot program also may purchase the bags and dispose of their leaves at the town compost heap.

Advertisement for Weight Loss Surprises Researchers. WASHINGTON—A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "high-tech" food tablet would help ease world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Researchers in Europe found that an ingredient in the aptly named product Food Source One actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the development of Food Source One, a project of National Dietary Research, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the discovery has been a windfall for overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear."

In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 15 days on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One is available through physicians and pharmacies without a prescription because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients already known to be safe. Copies of the referenced study are available free from National Dietary Research, Suite 553, 1377 K St., Washington, DC 20005, however please include $2 postage & handling for each request. ©1990 Nutrition Research.

last and how severe it will be. Even those analysts who say the economy still can skirt a recession generally agree the current quarter is in a contraction. A recession generally is defined as two straight quarters of negative growth.

The GNP is the nation's total output of goods and services and its broadest measure of economic activity.

Nine of the forward-looking indicators pulled the index down in September.

They were lower stock prices, a decrease in orders for consumer goods, an increase in weekly unemployment claims, a decline in building permits, a drop in an index measuring consumer confidence, a decrease in unfilled orders, a lower money supply.

The first meeting Thursday night, the 10-member commission elected officers, adopted rules of procedure and decided to meet on the first and third Thursdays of each month, with meetings beginning at 7:30 p.m. and ending by 11 p.m. The group plans to meet at Lincoln Center.

Commission members have decided that six votes of commission members will be needed to approve any recommendation it makes to the Board of Directors. There are five Republicans and five Democrats on the commission.

Attorney Vincent Diana, a Republican, was elected chairman, while Attorney Stephen Perry, a Democrat, was elected vice chairman, and Eleanor Coleman, a Democrat, was elected secretary.

At a meeting Dec. 6, the commission will have a report from General Manager Richard Sartor on suggestions from town department heads regarding possible charter revisions.

Commission members questioned whether they could study all 16 of the proposed recommendations and others that might arise before the May 1 deadline set for them to make a report to the town Board of Directors.

Scott Clendaniel, Republican appointee, asked if it would be wise to pare the list down, saying that if the board meets twice a month until May 1, there will be only 12 meetings.

When the town directors were debating over creation of the commission, one of the partisan stumbling blocks was how wide a range of possible changes the commission would consider, with Republicans pressing for a broad charge and Democrats a more limited one.

The 16 recommendations listed in the resolution forming the commission resulted from a compromise.

Diana has suggested dividing into separate committees to study various issues as a means of distributing the load, but most commission members appeared to prefer having the entire commission review the questions.

Among the changes to be considered are: Electing the mayor directly and strengthening the role of the mayor. Electing, instead of appointing, the Planning and Zoning Commission. Eliminating the positions of elected treasurer and selectmen. Choosing an auditor through competitive proposals. Increasing the pay of town directors.

Changing the schedule for budget deliberation. Creation of an Inland Wetlands Commission separate from the Planning and Zoning Commission. Adding a provision for recall of elected officials. Defining conflict of interest more clearly.

Expanding the Park and Recreation Commission from five members to nine members. Creating a traffic authority. Reviewing the responsibilities of the Library Board.

Creating a Water and Sewer Commission separate from the Board of Directors. Reviewing the process for filling vacancies on the Board of Directors. Revising amendments listed by the Municipal Code Corp., which prints copies of the town Charter.

Charter changes under debate

MANCHESTER — The first public hearing by the town's newly formed Charter Revision Commission will be held Nov. 15, the date the commission plans to seek input on 16 charter questions it has been asked to consider.

At its first meeting Thursday night, the 10-member commission elected officers, adopted rules of procedure and decided to meet on the first and third Thursdays of each month, with meetings beginning at 7:30 p.m. and ending by 11 p.m. The group plans to meet at Lincoln Center.

Chamber backs building project

By RICK SANTOS Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — For the second time in two years, the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce has decided to support a referendum question regarding a project to renovate and expand the town hall complex.

Chamber Chairman Tony Gorman announced the endorsement Thursday at a meeting of chamber members, town staff members, the mayor, and others supporting the almost $1.1 million proposal.

"I am confident that the bond issue for the town hall project will not create additional taxes or increase the mill rate because this project will coincide with the retirement of other debts," Gorman told the crowd of about 70 that packed the rounds of the Municipal Building.

He explained that he carefully analyzed the town's current debt for bonds, which is more than $23.2 million, and the almost $4 million annual payments toward that debt. That debt service will be reduced in the coming years because of the completion of payments for bonds on several projects.

Therefore, taxes will not be increased if the town hall project — question two on Tuesday's ballot — is approved, he said.

In addition, the debt will drop off enough in coming years so implementation of the $3.9 million plan to expand Manchester High School also will not drive up taxes, Gorman noted. That proposal is question three on the ballot.

Also making brief speeches at the meeting were Town Manager Richard Sartor, project architect Charles W. Boos, and Republican Mayor Terry Werhoven.

Sartor discussed the need for the renovations and expansion and said that everyone involved had worked hard to reduce the cost by about $2.8 million from last November's proposal. It was rejected by less than 1 percent in the municipal election.

Werhoven, speaking for the Board of Directors, reminded those in attendance that the scaled-down plan had bipartisan support from the board.

"Boos, plugging the project, asked people to understand that the old building was not constructed for its current needs, and therefore space is used poorly."

Two former mayors, Democrat Stephen H. Perry and Republican Nathan G. Agostinelli, also spoke. They are co-chairmen of a bipartisan political action committee in favor of the town hall project.

When he was elected 20 years ago, the town hall was the same as it is today, Agostinelli noted.

"I can't imagine anyone that's not employed here that would tolerate that kind of work environment for themselves," he said.

"What self-respecting, 390-million-a-year business would operate out of the same corporate headquarters as it did in 1927?" Perry added. Actually, the town has expanded its physical plant since then, moving into such places as the Lincoln Center, but much of the management has remained in the Municipal Building.

The committee's recommendation will be brought to Town Manager Richard Sartor today for his approval, said Charlie Crocini, the school budget. Winning projects in the competitive program covered courses, including science, mathematics, English and social studies.

The programs are designed to teach students using innovative methods.

For example, potential engineers will get a head start on their careers through Patricia Lewis' program to create simple machines with Lego.

And students in Jan Luke's eighth-grade English class will learn the art of story-telling. Luke plans to use her $300 grant to teach students how to write and tell stories. She plans to bring a professional storyteller to the school to help the students develop this skill.

Kevin MacKenzie, Republican candidate for the state House of Representatives from Manchester's 12th Assembly District, charged today that his opponent, incumbent Democrat James McCavanaugh, never intended to debate him.

At a news conference today, MacKenzie said that McCavanaugh may feel uncomfortable facing people because of close ties with the Democratic administration that has wreaked havoc on working men and women.

Republicans had sought to arrange a debate for tonight, but negotiations broke down. Joseph Sweeney, issues coordinator in the McCavanaugh campaign, said in a news release that at the 11th hour, there were too many other things McCavanaugh should be doing.

This morning, MacKenzie said, "Evidently my opponent's activities this evening don't allow him to take part in such a 'frivolous' exercise."

MacKenzie also said that during the campaign, Republicans have kept an informal poll through phone calls and door-to-door visits. "In more cases than not," he said, "people are of the opinion that the time has come to remove the incumbent Democrats from office."

MacKenzie said he is confident voters will elect a Republican candidate Tuesday.

MacKenzie said that he will hold two meetings a month, one in the daytime and one in the evening, at which he will discuss issues with his constituents. He said he keeps close contact with constituents in order to serve them better.

MacKenzie said McCavanaugh's record speaks for itself. He said McCavanaugh has voted the party line on every vote and has voted against every cost-reduction amendment proposed by Republicans.

MacKenzie said his opponent has approved the highest sales tax in the nation for such projects as a $47 million platform over Route 72 in New Britain, $18 million for a tennis facility in New Haven, and $375,000 to restore a merry-go-round in Bridgeport.

MacKenzie said those votes came while the state was facing huge deficits.

MacKenzie said the Democratic administration, of which McCavanaugh was an active party-line voting member, is leaving off with a budget deficit that could top $1.5 billion.

Changes loom for schools

By SCOTT BREDE Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Besides adjusting to the influx of sixth graders and the outflow of ninth graders, students at Bennett and Juniper High Schools face additional changes if voters approve a school referendum on Tuesday, Election Day, school principals said.

For starters, the schools' names will change from "junior high" to "middle" schools, said Bennet Principal Thomas Meiner. Meiner, one of several educators who supports the school referendum.

In addition, students there no longer will think of themselves as "small high school students," but will consider themselves to be in a transitional period between primary and secondary education, he said.

This will be beneficial to the students, the principal said.

In a junior high, students are viewed and programs are provided as if the student was a high school student, just younger," the principal said. "This does not meet the need of those students."

"A middle school philosophy recognizes that our students are in a transition from elementary school on their way to high school," he continued.

"Despite being called a 'junior high,' Bennet has been on the path to becoming a middle school for at least the past 11 years, or ever since Meiner became principal there, he said.

"Since kids are not finished products, we can't grade them on a sink-or-swim basis as if they were adults," Meiner said, adding that middle schools practice nurturing methods, such as joining students and teachers under a team system, which generally are not practiced in a high school setting.

"You just don't allow kids not to turn in their homework and give them a zero, you contact parents and work with counselors in order to change that child's behavior," he said.

At Bennet, Meiner said, both 7th and 8th graders have been part of an academic team since before his arrival to the school. Under this team system, a group of students are taught by the same four or five teachers in their core academic classes, he said.

"In a junior high, there is no common time for teachers to meet with other teachers to plan activities or talk with parents" because they all have different schedules, Meiner said.

Under the team system, teachers have block schedules and reserve their later periods to meet with their team's other teachers to plan events or discuss a child's performance, he said.

Richard Lindgren, the principal at Illing, said his school has been transforming into a middle school for the past few years as well.

"Right now, there are two very separate programs at Illing," Lindgren said. The 7th and 8th graders have teams, while 9th graders have more of a high school program, he said.

The referendum on Tuesday calls for moving ninth graders into the Manchester High School and moving sixth graders into the junior high. It also calls for an addition to be built to the high school.

MacKenzie said he is confident voters will elect a Republican candidate Tuesday.

MacKenzie said that he will hold two meetings a month, one in the daytime and one in the evening, at which he will discuss issues with his constituents. He said he keeps close contact with constituents in order to serve them better.

MacKenzie said McCavanaugh's record speaks for itself. He said McCavanaugh has voted the party line on every vote and has voted against every cost-reduction amendment proposed by Republicans.

MacKenzie said his opponent has approved the highest sales tax in the nation for such projects as a $47 million platform over Route 72 in New Britain, $18 million for a tennis facility in New Haven, and $375,000 to restore a merry-go-round in Bridgeport.

MacKenzie said those votes came while the state was facing huge deficits.

MacKenzie said the Democratic administration, of which McCavanaugh was an active party-line voting member, is leaving off with a budget deficit that could top $1.5 billion.

Quiet hours plan debated

By JACQUELINE BENNETT Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — A public hearing on extending "quiet hours" drew a mixed response from about 50 people who attended Thursday night.

The proposal from the Town Council is to extend "quiet hours" when boaters are restricted to 6 p.m. p.m. Currently "quiet hours" are from May to October on Sundays from 10 p.m. to 5 p.m. and on the 4th of July from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

When he was elected 20 years ago, the town hall was the same as it is today, Agostinelli noted.

"I can't imagine anyone that's not employed here that would tolerate that kind of work environment for themselves," he said.

"What self-respecting, 390-million-a-year business would operate out of the same corporate headquarters as it did in 1927?" Perry added. Actually, the town has expanded its physical plant since then, moving into such places as the Lincoln Center, but much of the management has remained in the Municipal Building.

The committee's recommendation will be brought to Town Manager Richard Sartor today for his approval, said Charlie Crocini, the school budget. Winning projects in the competitive program covered courses, including science, mathematics, English and social studies.

The programs are designed to teach students using innovative methods.

For example, potential engineers will get a head start on their careers through Patricia Lewis' program to create simple machines with Lego.

And students in Jan Luke's eighth-grade English class will learn the art of story-telling. Luke plans to use her $300 grant to teach students how to write and tell stories. She plans to bring a professional storyteller to the school to help the students develop this skill.

Also, Pamela Browning will use

in attendance that the scaled-down plan had bipartisan support from the board.

"Boos, plugging the project, asked people to understand that the old building was not constructed for its current needs, and therefore space is used poorly."

Two former mayors, Democrat Stephen H. Perry and Republican Nathan G. Agostinelli, also spoke. They are co-chairmen of a bipartisan political action committee in favor of the town hall project.

Firehouse builder chosen

By SCOTT BREDE Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The Building Committee Thursday night chose Naek Construction Co. of Vernon to build a $494,000 firehouse for the north side of town.

The committee's recommendation will be brought to Town Manager Richard Sartor today for his approval, said Charlie Crocini, the school budget. Winning projects in the competitive program covered courses, including science, mathematics, English and social studies.

Grants for learning awarded

By BRIAN M. TROTTA Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Thirteen elementary and high school teachers will share in a grant program to help implement special programs in their classrooms.

The Mini-Grants for Teachers program gives grants, ranging from $100 to $400, to teachers for programs that enhance the basic curriculum.

The program is administered by the Professional Development Committee, whose members review teacher proposals and make awards. This year, 10 grants totaling $2,500 were awarded. Funding for the program was included in this year's outside speakers to help students understand different topics in her science class.

Other grant winners include: Susan Murray for "Beware the Ides"; Trudy Mitchell for "Book Publishing in the Classroom"; Linda Brown for "Love a Lake"; Maureen Robenblymer for "Smile"; Wendy Pagan; Noreen Holsington; Ronnie Longo and Amy DeCarolis for "Fostering Awareness of Current Social

Weicker leading, Rowland gaining

By JUDD EVERHART
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Independent gubernatorial candidate Lowell P. Weicker Jr. still has the lead in public opinion polls, but a large bloc of voters remains undecided in the final days of the three-way contest.

Two polls released Thursday show Weicker maintaining his lead, with Republican John G. Rowland closing in and Democrat Bruce A. Morrison still trailing.

A WVIT-TV poll by the Gallup organization showed Weicker with the support of 37 percent of 600 registered voters polled, to Rowland's 31 percent and Morrison's 17 percent. The remaining 15 percent were undecided.

Among the 366 of the 600 who said they were likely voters, Weicker had the support of 40 percent, to Rowland's 34 percent and Morrison's 14 percent.

The poll was conducted Monday through Wednesday of this week and has a margin of error of 4 percent.

A poll released by Connecticut Public Television and Connecticut Magazine, done by Mount Vernon Associates, found Weicker with the support of 29 percent of the 400 people queried, Rowland with 25 percent and Morrison with 14 percent.

Some 29 percent were undecided. The remaining 3 percent refused to answer the question.

When the undecided were pressed for a choice, Weicker got the support of 26 percent of them, compared with 22 percent for Rowland and 8 percent for Morrison. The other 44 percent said they were still undecided.

Morrison said his own polling was similar to the Mount Vernon poll, showing 30 percent undecided. The new poll was taken Oct. 30 among registered voters who said they were likely to vote. It has a margin of error of 5 percent.

Jack Goldberg, Rowland's campaign press secretary, said the polls show the race is a "statistical dead heat," since Rowland could be even with Weicker given the margin of error.

He said he was not surprised by the large number of undecided voters because in a three-way race "voters have taken a longer time to get to know the candidates. They're still learning about them now."

Weicker said from the beginning that it would come down to the final week of the campaign.

Peter W. Gold, Weicker's co-chairman, said he was not convinced the number of undecided voters was as high as the polls show and said "we're excited" by Weicker's "sizeable lead."

Morrison, who held a news conference at the Capitol Thursday, dismissed the latest results and said his own polling shows the race at 26 percent for Weicker, 24 percent for Rowland and 20 percent for him.

His polling also shows the undecided bloc at about 30 percent.

"People are still waiting to hear what they want to hear," said Morrison.

Morrison reacted angrily to reports that Weicker supporters are calling registered Democrats and telling them that a vote for Morrison was like a vote for Rowland because it would detract from Weicker.

"Shame on them," Morrison said. "If this were such a runaway, why would they bother? Why would they be calling up Democrats and telling them not to vote for me if I're already dead?"

Gold said the calls were not being made with the sanction of the Weicker campaign, although he agreed that "a vote for Bruce is a vote for Rowland."

Lobbyist Kowalski fined $50,000

By JUDD EVERHART
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — The state Ethics Commission has levied its largest fine ever against a lobbyist — $50,000 — following a lengthy investigation into allegations of violations of the state's code of ethics for lobbyists.

The fine was levied Thursday against veteran Capitol lobbyist Linda A. Kowalski, who denied all charges of wrongdoing but agreed to pay the fine "to avoid the expense and emotional burden of a hearing." She also agreed to allow the commission to review her lobbying records for the next three years.

In addition to allegations of impropriety in dining and a lobbyist and staffer, Kowalski was also accused of making numerous political contributions for which she was illegally reimbursed by her client lobbyists. She flatly denied those charges.

The commission found that Kowalski had provided more than $1,000 in alcohol and other gifts to a public official in 1987, 1988, 1989 and 1990, as well as airfare and lodging worth more than $750 to a legislative staff member. They are the largest illegal gifts by an individual lobbyist ever alleged in commission history.

The commission refused to identify the public official or staffer, but sources familiar with the investigation said the official was state Sen. George L. Gunther, R-Stratford.

MANCHESTER CANNOT AFFORD $11.1 Million Town Hall Addition

Last year the people voted down the Town Hall Proposal. This year the building size is even bigger.

The costs have not been cut down. Less is being done. Lincoln Center is being ignored.

The New Proposal has less parking places and 3 level garage that can prove to be a dangerous area.

It is only 57% efficient, with 1000 feet of hall space and a flat roof that New Englanders don't use because of so many problems.

Revaluation will cost every homeowner $400-$600 more taxes. $9 million tax giveaway to Buckland Mall starts next year.

Today In History

Today is Friday, Nov. 2, the 306th day of 1990. There are 59 days left in the year.

Today's birthdays:
Actor Burt Lancaster is 77. Actor Ray Walston is 76. Political commentator Patrick J. Buchanan is 52. Actress Stefanie Powers is 48. Author Shere Hite is 48. Actress Alfre Woodard is 37.

Today's highlight in history:
On Nov. 2, 1917, British Foreign Secretary Arthur Balfour expressed support for a "national home" for the Jews of Palestine in a statement that came to be known as "The Balfour Declaration."

On this date:
In 1783, Gen. George Washington issued his "Farewell Address to the Army" near Princeton, N.J.

In 1795, the 11th president of the United States, James Knox Polk, was born in Mecklenburg County, N.C.

In 1865, the 29th president of the United States, Warren G. Harding, was born near Corsica, Ohio.

In 1889, North Dakota and South Dakota became the 39th and 40th states admitted to the union.

In 1920, radio station KDKA in Pittsburgh broadcast returns from the Harding-Cox presidential election. (Harding won with just over 60 percent of the popular vote.)

In 1930, Haile Selassie was crowned emperor of Ethiopia.

In 1936, the British Broadcasting Corporation inaugurated public "high-definition" television service with a broadcast from Alexandra Palace in north London.

In 1947, Howard Hughes piloted his huge wooden flying boat, known as the Spruce Goose, on its only flight, which lasted about a minute over Long Beach Harbor in California.

In 1948, President Truman surprised the experts by being re-elected in a narrow upset over the Republican challenger, Thomas E. Dewey.

In 1959, game show contestant Charles Van Doren admitted to a House subcommittee that he had been given questions and answers in advance when he appeared on the NBC-TV show "21."

In 1963, South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem was assassinated in a military coup.

In 1976, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter became the first presidential candidate from Deep South since the Civil War to be elected as he defeated incumbent Gerald R. Ford.

In 1979, black militant Joanne Chesimard escaped from New Jersey prison, where she had been serving a life sentence for the 1973 slaying of a New Jersey state trooper. (Chesimard remains at liberty.)

Public Meetings

The following meetings are scheduled for today:

COVENTRY
Registrar's, Town Office Building, 5 to 9 p.m.

Thoughts

Bell of freedom
"Proclaim liberty throughout all the land unto all the inhabitants thereof."

This is the inscription on the Liberty Bell, a sterling words Leviticus, chapter 25, verse 10. Those verse words weren't enough in 1776. They aren't enough now. Freedom isn't cheap.

Freedom means defending the principles we believe in. Freedom demands expending time, effort and money into electing the best-qualified candidates.

Freedom means putting the needs of the country above business, union or political party.

Liberty is worth only what people are willing to pay for it. The price can get pretty high, as many of our Founding Fathers learned.

How about us? What value do we put on freedom? J.P. Chamberland

Local water-skier lifts weights to stay in shape

PUMPING IRON — Manchester resident Meredith Meduski, 16, lifts weights to get the strength she needs in water-skiing competitions. Here, she uses a weight-lifting set in the basement of her parents' home.

By DIANNA M. TALBOT
 Herald Features Editor

MANCHESTER — Since the water-skiing season ended in September, Meredith Meduski has been focusing on weight training, her sights already set on next year's season.

Throughout the cold weather, the Manchester High School junior will build and tone important muscles in her arms, legs and back for the sport she already excels in.

Over the summer, the 16-year-old placed first in her age group in the national water-ski jumping regionals held in Sparta, Va. And she placed second in both the slalom racing and tricks divisions.

Meduski's goal for next season — her last in the 13-to-17 age group — is to break the regional water-skiing jumping record of 100 feet. Her own record is 96 feet. With the right training, Meduski said she feels she can break the regional record.

During the winter, the McDivitt Drive resident says she plans to decide where to attend college after graduating. Most likely, she will go to a school in Florida, where the weather is warmer and she can ski year-round. While at college, Meduski plans a major in business and minor in water skiing, but she is not sure what yet. She said her favorite subject in high school is math.

Manchester, Meduski plans to continue practicing athletic training, nutrition and self-confidence techniques she learned at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo., last year. She was one of 20 water-skiers across the nation who were chosen to participate in a five-day educational seminar last fall.

"It helped me a lot," she said. "It has helped make me feel a lot stronger."

Water-skiing has benefited the athlete in other ways, she said.

"It's given me a lot of confidence and the desire to do my best in everything I can. I just want to go for it," Meduski said.

In the meantime, Meduski is re-adjusting to school life at Manchester High School after a one-year hiatus at Safford Academy. She said she decided to attend school there because of its extended winter and spring vacations during which she could attend school in warmer parts of the country, such as California and Florida.

But at the end of last year's school year, Meduski decided to return to school in Manchester because she was missing the school year at Safford Academy. She said she did not give her enough time for family and friends in Manchester.

On getting what one wants

One of the hardest things for human beings to do in relationships is to pinpoint what one wants and how to go about getting it.

Many times when someone is asked what he or she wants, the response hinges on someone else doing something to please that person.

For example, a wife was asked what she wanted out of her marriage. Her response was that she wanted her husband to communicate more. She spoke about what she felt her husband "should" do to make her happy. Yet the essence of the question she was asked was, "What does she want for herself?" not what could someone else do for her?

For this wife and anyone else to receive what they want, they must take the initiative and correct a problematic situation themselves, without waiting or demanding that someone else live on their terms.

Often, it is easier for a person to talk about what someone else should do to make that person's life better. Unless that person is willing to take responsibility for making his own life better, he is fighting a losing battle. Any spouse who is suffering in a marriage, or anyone suffering in a relationship, wastes a lot of effort.

The Franklin stamp

By RUSS MACKENDRICK

The stamp on this envelope is United States Scott number one. It has full margins and is tied to the cover by a red bar cancellation. The massive was despatched from New York City to Philadelphia on May 17 of whatever year.

The probable retail value of the cover is about $400, plus $50 for the "paid" postmark. (It would be worth an extra $350 if the stamp said "steamboat.")

In 1851, this stamp and the companion Washington 10-center were demonetized because of the Post Office gave the contract to another printing outfit with a name that also ran trippingly on the tongue. But the firm of RWI&L refused to give up the necessary hardware.

The handbook, in 105 pages, treats all seven classic imperforates and could be boring, but Rose keeps it alive with good illustrations and indexing. It is a must for any deep-dyed U.S. collector who does not wish to take out a second mortgage to acquire the volumes by Ashbrook, Chase, Hill, Brookman, Neinken and Perry.

In 1847, the banknote printers, Rowden, Wright, Hatch and Edson of New York City, delivered 4.4 million copies of the stamp to the Post Office Department. Some 3.7 million were actually sold.

The handbook estimates that 50,000 to 100,000 copies still exist off cover and 10,000 more are attached to various pieces, but only 10 percent would have full margins like this one.

In the book, it is learned that in 1851, this stamp and the companion Washington 10-center were demonetized because of the Post Office gave the contract to another printing outfit with a name that also ran trippingly on the tongue. But the firm of RWI&L refused to give up the necessary hardware.

Running tips

Crimes against joggers, such as rape, are rare but not rare enough.

That's why the Road Runners Club of America is working hard to prevent such realities from catching up with runners, according to Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

To obtain a free copy of the above running safety tips, send a SASE (business size) to RRCA, 629 S. Washington St., Alexandria, VA 22314.

Here are several tips for running safety, prepared by the RRCA.

- Carry identification or write name, phone number and blood type on the inside sole of a running shoe. Include medical information.
- Don't wear jewelry.
- Carry change for phoning. Call police immediately if something happens or if danger is suspected.
- Run with a partner.
- Leave word of running routes with family and friends.
- Run in familiar areas, and alter the route regularly. In unfamiliar areas contact running stores or police for safety tips. Check where phones are located and which stores are open at the time you are running.
- Stay alert to dangerous situations. Avoid unpopulated areas, deserted streets, overgrown trails, poorly lit areas, parked cars and bushes.
- Don't wear headphones.

Making Connections

At first, the woman became angry. She could have stayed stuck in a fruitless battle of "if you loved me, you would do what I want," but that would have been destructive to the relationship.

Instead, she realized that her husband was not saying, "I don't love you," but that if she really wanted the TV fixed, she could do it for herself. Since it was heavy to lift, she got one of her sons to help her load it into the car and she took it to a repair shop.

Granted, sometimes when people refuse to do what you ask them to do, the message they are sending is "what you want does not matter to me." If a request for help is answered continually with a "no," it is wise for the person in that relationship to discover what the message means and to act accordingly.

Fortunately for the woman who had the TV, her husband usually offers to help her.

It is important in relationships for people to find out what they want and act on that, using their own abilities. That is the healthy way. It is also attractive to others. Although a woman I know wanted to get her television set fixed, so she asked her husband to take it to the repair shop. But he said he was too busy that week.

Officers installed, new members sought

MANCHESTER — The daughters of Isabella, St. Margaret's Circle, held its 66th installation of officers on Oct. 14 at St. Bridget Church in Manchester, with over 100 people attending.

State regent Rita Holbrook installed the following officers: Barbara Walliet, regent; Frances Gagnon, vice regent; Annamay Potocki, financial secretary; Agnes Bucicino, recording secretary; Lena Simmons, treasurer; Marie S. Hinde, scribe; and Catherine Tuskay, chancellor.

Also, Mary Lucas, Jacqueline Emnis and Deborah Salowski as trustees; Marie Keenan, custodian; Marie Enrico, monitor; Lucille Simon, banner bearer; Barbara Reale and Isabelle Smith, guides; and Beatrice Maher, outer guard; Yvonne Lemire, inner guard; and Ida Conner as organist.

The Daughters of Isabella was formed in New Haven in 1897 as an auxiliary to the Knights of Columbus. The Catholic organization raises scholarship money for students to attend Catholic schools.

Hindle, a spokeswoman for the local chapter, said the 100-member group is looking for new members in the Greater Manchester area.

"We need new members to give us new ideas," she said.

Benefits of belonging to the organization include friendship and personal satisfaction from parking in charitable efforts, Hindle said.

Any women interested in becoming a member should call Barbara Walliet at 649-1567.

Keeping your pet healthy

By ALLAN A. LEVENTHAL, DVM
 Bolton Veterinary Hospital

A growing population today is interested in a healthy lifestyle and longevity. People are reducing fats, especially saturated ones, and salt from their diets, adding exercise to their schedules and trying to stop some of their harmful habits. The same should hold true for pets.

In human medicine as well as veterinary medicine, we can't avoid every illness, but we can reduce the risk or severity of many health problems. Modern veterinary medicine provides the same opportunity for a health lifestyle for our pets.

Pets should not be exposed to health risks such as contagious diseases. Have them immunized against such infections. A major health risk also is incorrect diet, excesses of certain nutrients such as salt that is harmful to heart and kidney patients, magnesium that predisposes to bladder stone formation. These can be as harmful as deficiencies of mineral or vitamins. Failure to provide good veterinary care is another serious pitfall.

Dr. Elizabeth Podgkins, a veterinary nutritionist, provides us with one example where nutrition plays an important part. Too much protein can stress kidneys and most diets unfortunately provide more protein than is necessary. Older pets, especially those with kidneys that are compromised by age and/or disease need to have controlled quantity and quality of protein. This is often a shock to the pet that is total carnivores when they must change their diet in order to survive.

The proper level of taurine, an amino acid, can reduce the probability of heart disease in some cats. Most foods contain healthy levels of taurine which wasn't the case until quite recently.

Obesity in pets as in people can aggravate diabetes, heart disease, digestive problems, kidney function and leg and back problems. By controlling the fat and calorie level in

Running tips

Pets suffer many of the same types of cancers as people do. Recent evidence that excessive fat, nitrates, preservatives, and chemicals such as Alar in the food chain, may be responsible for the increased incidence of tumors in humans holds true for pets. Spaying and neutering dogs and cats eliminates growths of the reproductive system.

Periodontal disease, a common problem in certain breeds of dogs, many cats and older pets in general, may be avoided by at least twice a week brushing or swabbing with dental preparations available from your veterinarian.

The number one killer of roaming pets is the automobile. Obedience training, a secure fenced-in yard, or keeping your cat indoors avoids this carnage.

Proper health check-ups, immunizations and nutritional advice is available at your vet for a sound health program that will add many healthy years to your pet's life.

Equal opportunities

By James Jacob

Today's ideal highlights the missed opportunities for both declarer and defender. West led the king of spades against four hearts. When East encountered the seven, West attacked with the ace and another spade. Declarer ruffed. Ify wondering whether he might make an overtrick, South played to dummy's club ace and led the jack of hearts. When South played now from his hand, West led from the trick. So declarer led a second heart from dummy. When East showed out, declarer put in the queen. West won the king and played his singleton diamond to dummy's ace. Declarer played a heart back to his ace. When declarer tried to get back to dummy with a second diamond to draw the last trump, West ruffed. Declarer has a simple guarantee that will succeed against everything but a 5-0 trump split. After ruffing the third spade he should lay down the queen of hearts. If that wins, he should continue with a low heart from his hand. As you can see, West can win the second heart, but he cannot lead a diamond and a club simultaneously. Whatever happens, declarer cannot be prevented from playing the heart ace and returning to dummy with either a club or a diamond to draw the last trump.

And defender West's missed opportunity? At trick two, if he assumes from the encouraging seven-spot that East holds the spade queen, he can shift to his lone diamond. When he gets into with the king of hearts, he can underlead the ace to East and get a diamond ruff to set the hand.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's possible you will be much more successful today in your dealings in the material realm than you were in the past. Consider investments. Trade on your strengths.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might have a very nice present about you to day that will enable you to effectively persuade and guide others rather than command them. Use your skills to everyone's advantage.

AGNIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An opportunity that may at first glance appear to be of a limited nature might come your way today through the auspices of a considerable friend. It could be bigger than you think.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today you might feel a need to confide in someone. If this is the case, select a trusted friend who never revealed what you've told in the past.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In commercial involvements today be fair, but also be practical. If you feel you're entitled to certain terms, concessions or perks, specify your entitlements in detail.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A critical situation will be dispatched with relative ease today, because you will trade on knowledge you've gained from previous experience. Repetition of old mistakes isn't likely.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a possibility today you might be offered participation in something adventurous that has been initiated by another. This could be a good deal, so check it out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might have to make a hard decision today that affects two friends as well as yourself. Things should work out well, because you'll do what's right rather than what's easy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It looks like you may finally start receiving some of the rewards due you from past efforts you've expended. There may not be a rush to fulfill these overights, but they'll be acknowledged.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're involved in any type of team effort today, either for work or pleasure, try to mirror the attitude of your co-participants. Don't treat lightly what you take seriously.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A meaningful endeavor you're anxious to finalize can be completed to your satisfaction today, if you have the will and determination to do so. This is a winner.

Manchester girls win battle of unbeaten

IN FRONT — Manchester High's Missy Jolly (5) and Sharon Fish (6) are in front of the Hartford Public net in last Friday's game. Fish was in the right place twice Thursday as the Indians beat Simsbury, 3-2, in a battle of unbeaten.

SIMSBURY — Usually, most sporting events surrounded by voluminous amounts of hype fail to live up to expectations.

This was certainly not the case regarding the Manchester High-Simsbury girls' soccer match Thursday afternoon, featuring a pair of unbeaten squads.

And, to add further spice, the two were tied for the top spot in the latest state poll.

As a traditional battle of titans would have it, Manchester and Simsbury traded punch for punch with the Indians leading the knockout blow with 14:10 left in regulation.

Off a corner kick by Kathy Cumberbatch and ensuing scramble in front of the net, Indian forward Sharon Fish headed in the second of her two goals as Manchester came away with a 3-2 victory.

The Indians wound up the regular season with a perfect 16-0 record and are the probable No. 1 seed in the Class I Tournament. Simsbury, who Manchester may see again, is 14-1.

It was the first time Manchester has ever beaten Simsbury.

"Four years I've been on this team and every year Simsbury has been the thing that holds us back," Cumberbatch, whose two corner kicks set up the Indians' final two goals, said, "This year I said, 'No, we're going to go ahead and move on and finally beat them.'"

Simsbury held an advantage in the shot department 13-7, including 8-3 in the first half, to severely put Indian goalie Missy Daversa to the Daversa responded with a sparkling performance.

"Missy came of age," Manchester coach Joe Erardi said. "People say 'How's Missy as a keeper.' I think she answered a lot of questions today."

Manchester broke on top with 17:06 left in the first half. Katie Smith served a 35-yard free kick into the box. Simsbury goalie Liz Schaper charged the ball and she punched it overhead toward the goal. The ball bounced off the left post and into the goal.

Late in the half, Daversa made a diving save off a 25-yard attempt by Simsbury All-American forward Lisa Keselmann.

"Marty (Simsbury coach Lisevick) and I are good friends and we thought it might be a showcase for soccer and I think it lived up to its billing," Erardi said. "We're real pleased. We did it up and down the lineup."

Simsbury wasted no time tying the match once the second half began.

At 3:25, Keselmann pushed a pass to Amy Rohrer and the latter left-footed an 8-yard off the crossbar into the right corner of the net. Less than a minute later, Daversa kicked saved a point-blank shot by Kerry Wagner.

From a thought process on our end of it, if Simsbury had scored first it could have been a long afternoon for us," Erardi said. "But, we were fortunate enough to either be ahead or tied the whole match. The initial 12-15 minutes of the second half, they just came at us."

Jon Brindisi, Tracey Hart and Smith were immense defensively for the Indians while Fish was the offensive key.

With 18:05 left off a Cumberbatch corner, Shelley Dieterle's shot bounced away from the goal. Fish, a sophomore, retrieved the loose ball and fired a left-footed 10-yards into the left corner of the net for a 2-1 lead.

Just 50 seconds later off a Keselmann corner, Wagner pushed home a loose ball and the match was tied again.

After Fish's second goal gave Manchester its 3-2 edge, the Indians were on the defensive, effectively keeping Simsbury from any more dangerous chances.

"She (Fish) was the key for us today," Erardi said. "What we weren't able to do last year was when we received the ball up front we didn't have anyone with enough firepower to hold the ball and let our composure come forward. And she's doing that as a 10th grader. The future's only bright for her."

Erardi holds the utmost respect for Simsbury, which held an overall territorial advantage.

"Take nothing away from Simsbury," he said. "They possessed the ball 65-70 percent of the time. We're a blue-collar team. We don't have the Lisa Keselmanns. We have to work that much harder. That's what we did today."

Lifting the psychological barrier of beating Simsbury off its back, Manchester can now concentrate on the state tournament.

"Our kids go into the tournament with confidence," Erardi said. "We took our money off our back. Maybe we can go a little farther in the tournament this year."

Simsbury: M. Fish 2, Smith, S. Rohrer, Wagner. Manchester: M. Jolly 1, Smith, S. Fisher, Wagner. Manchester game at 1:30 p.m.

MHS, EC looking for wins

By JIM TIERNY
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Coming off a 27-0 loss to powerful Rockville, the task of the Manchester High basketball team (2-3 in the CCC East, 3-4 overall) and Coach Mike Masse will be to put that record behind them and concentrate on present matters, which is a CCC East game at Enfield Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

"That's been the biggest thing," Masse said, referring to gearing up the Indians for Enfield. "It would have been better to upset them (Rockville). But, I don't want to lose momentum from Windham (who Manchester beat the previous week)."

East Catholic (0-3 in the ACC, 1-6 overall) will host unbeaten St. Joseph of Trumbull (4-0, 7-0), the top-ranked team in the state, Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Mount Nebo's Carlin Memorial Field.

East is coming off a disappointing 10-0 loss to Northwest Catholic while St. Joe's edged Hamden, 3-0.

Enfield has lost four straight and is coming off a 19-6 loss to Windham. Running back/wide receiver Steve Martocchio is Enfield's main offensive threat.

"That (their record) belies their talent level," Masse said of Enfield. "They're a ball control offense and they have some people who can hurt you. They have a good-sized line and can be explosive."

Masse cited the defensive performance of Dennis Davis and John Golas during the second half against Rockville.

A winning season is still within the Indians' grasp and a quick start against Enfield would quickly wash away any lingering thoughts of Rockville.

"I think it's important for us as a team to come out strong in the first quarter," Masse said. "Traditionally, if we get off to a good start, we've done well. I know that (a winning season) is what the seniors are pressing on the ball, move it, run and shoot a little bit. It's a backcourt where we have versatility."

If the fastbreak breaks down, the Celtics can get the ball to Bird, who will be 34 next month, Parish, at 37 the NBA's oldest player, and McHale, who turns 33 next month.

Bird thinks they can run despite their age.

"We haven't had anybody pushing (the ball) up before," he said.

COLLISION — Boston's Reggie Lewis (35) collides with the Jazz Andy Toolson in their exhibition game Monday night. The Celtics open the NBA season tonight at Boston Garden against the Cleveland Cavaliers.

New look Celtics are ready for tonight's NBA opener

BOSTON (AP) — A new coach. A new point guard. A new, more aggressive offense and defense.

But will all that add up to a new result for the Boston Celtics after a first-round playoff loss last season to the New York Knicks and the firing of coach Jimmy Rodgers?

Some clues should come tonight when the Celtics open their NBA season at home against the Cleveland Cavaliers, one of the two teams to be met during the exhibition season.

"We have an awful lot of growing to do as a team and as individuals," Bird said. "We have to get better defensively because we're not there yet. We definitely have made strides. We're quicker and faster, but we have to improve in a lot of areas."

The veteran starting frontcourt of Larry Bird, Kevin McHale and Robert Parish remains the same.

But the Celtics have four new players — guards Brian Shaw and Dee Brown, center Stojko Vrankovic and forward Dave Pison. On Thursday, they got down to the 12-man roster limit by putting guards John Bagley and Charles Smith on the injured list and waiving free agent guard Sasha Dordevic.

Bagley was sidelined the entire preseason schedule with tendinitis in his right knee. The Celtics said Smith, who played in exhibition games, sustained a partial dislocation of his left shoulder in workouts and has a strained rotator cuff in his right shoulder.

Ford is concerned with stopping the Cavaliers, who beat the Celtics 121-115 in an exhibition game last Saturday night.

"We're not getting the effort into 'dividually' on defense," he said. "Until each one of these guys makes a commitment to play defense, we're going to have breakdowns."

In training camp, he emphasized tight defense and running on offense. Things worked well enough during the preseason when the Celtics had a 6-2 record. But two wins were against Denver, which plays little defense.

Unlike his predecessor, Ford apparently has the players who can make an up-tempo attack and pressing defense work.

Shaw, Boston's first-round draft choice in 1988, spent last season with 11 Messaggero in Rome, but signed with Boston to return for this season. He changed his mind and wanted to spend another season in Italy, but the Celtics won a court case against him and he is now their starting point guard.

On Friday night, he'll play against forward Danny Ferry, who joined the Cavaliers after also playing with 11 Messaggero last year.

"I've always talked about what it was going to be like when we played each other," Shaw said. "But the first game? That is very ironic."

First-round draft pick Brown, the fastest player on the Celtics, is expected to back up Shaw as point guard. At times they were on the court together in the preseason.

"We've got guys who can do more things in the backcourt now," McHale said. "They can put more pressure on the ball, move it, run and shoot a little bit. It's a backcourt where we have versatility."

If the fastbreak breaks down, the Celtics can get the ball to Bird, who will be 34 next month, Parish, at 37 the NBA's oldest player, and McHale, who turns 33 next month.

Bird thinks they can run despite their age.

"We haven't had anybody pushing (the ball) up before," he said.

NFL is planning a major coverup

By LORI BONA-HUNT

BARABOO, Wis. — What's this, a coverup in the National Football League?

You bet.

The NFL has ordered 2,100 rosters and wrap-arounds from a Wisconsin manufacturer aiming to ensure female reporters, twice barred from doing their job in locker rooms this season, won't run into any more interference.

"In my opinion, the NFL wanted to remedy the situation and avoid banning reporters from the locker room," said Greg McArthur, executive vice president for McArthur Towels, which received the order.

McArthur said his 100-year-old family-owned company has been "hectic" the last few weeks while working to fulfill the contract with NFL Properties for $40,000 worth of terry-cloth robes and wrap-arounds. The latter is a towel that can be secured around the waist with Velcro closures.

The order is one of many the company handles for the NFL, but it has created some special problems — mainly the one-size-fits-all wraps

Division III ball is just different

By TRUDDY TYNAN

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass. — A portion of the nation's longest winning streak will be on the line Saturday when Williams faces Wesleyan for the championship of the nation's smallest football conference.

The Ephrus of Williams College have their last 19 games and share the nation's longest winning streak with defending Division III champion Dayton. Wesleyan University is also undefeated this season with six straight victories.

But don't look for prospects or network television.

"This is what college football ought to be about," said Williams coach Dick Farley, who is not at all abashed that Williams has turned out more government officials and business leaders — William Bennett and George Steinbrenner both played for Williams — than pro football players. Baseball commissioner Fay Vincent, who captained his freshman football team, appeared headed for gridiron stardom until he fell from a dorm window in a student prank.

"I've seen the various levels of football and there's nothing worth with the big time," said Farley, a former San Diego Charger who admits finding the low-key attitude toward football here something of a surprise when he first came from the NFL.

Division III ball is just different

"We're just different," he said. "No one comes here for the postseason play, because we can't, or the fans or the size of the stadium. The only frustrating thing is a lot of blue-collar kids don't know about this kind of football."

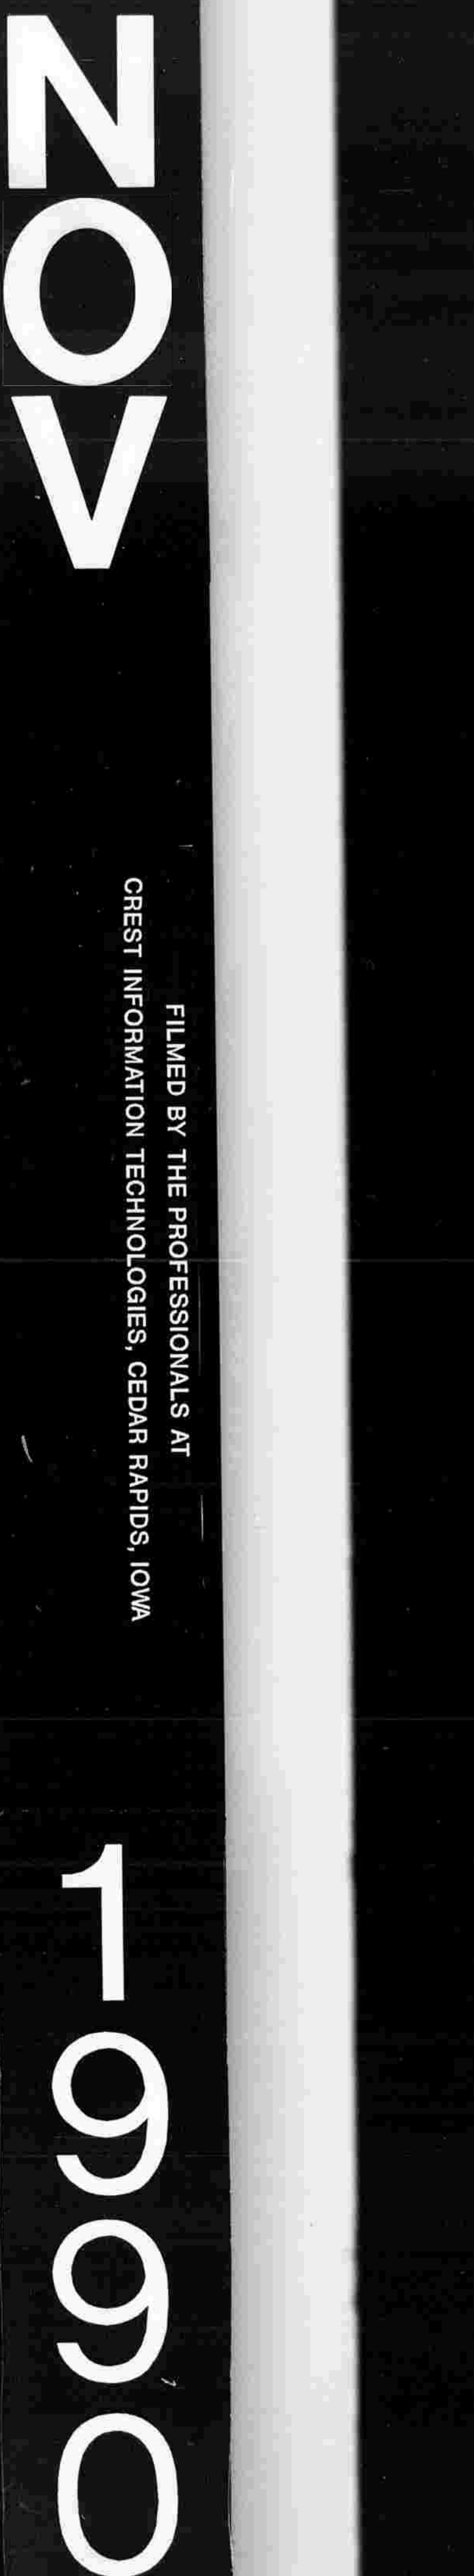

For this is Division III with no athletic scholarships, no television revenue and tough academics. The 1985 Wesleyan students is 1,330 and for Wesleyan students it is 1,300. Farley and Wesleyan coach Kevin Spencer aren't even recruit offers.

Farley's collection of future doctors, lawyers and stockbrokers hold the edge in the Wesleyan series 55-35-5.

"This is our championship game and we're very excited," said Spencer, who like Farley is in his fourth year as head coach.

It's also a contest of contrasting styles. Wesleyan, led by sophomore quarterback Dave D'Onofrio, who is averaging 226 yards passing, relies on a run-and-shoot game.

Swim lesson sign-ups set

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Rec Department will hold registration for the second season of swim lessons at the East Side Rec starting Nov. 5 through Nov. 9 from 6 to 9:30 p.m.

The lessons will start Nov. 12 and run through Dec. 18. Children must be at least 52 inches tall to participate. Lessons are $4 per session and a valid rec membership card ($4) is required.

Registration for swim classes for children under 52 inches tall will also be held at this time. Those lessons will be held at the Koffl pool at Manchester High.

Lessons at the East Side Rec are:

- Beginner C: Monday and Wednesday 6:30-7 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday from 6:30-7 p.m.;
- Beginner A: Monday and Wednesday 7-7:30 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday 7-7:30 p.m.;
- Intermediate: Monday and Wednesday 7:30-8 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday 7:30-8 p.m.;
- Adult Beginner: Tuesday and Thursday 8-8:30 p.m.;
- Lessons at the IOH pool are Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Hulme fires a hole-in-one

RUMFORD, R.I. — Carl "Suede" Hulme, 75, formerly of Manchester, scored the first hole-in-one of his golfing career recently at the Wannamoisett Country Club.

Hulme, who played football at Manchester High and Wesleyan, used the 135-yard hole using an 8-iron. He was in a foursome with Bill Pheasant and Rocky Alexander of Manchester, and Sherwood Goslee.

Hulme owns the Watson Insurance Agency in Providence.

UConn in exhibition tonight

STORRS — The University of Connecticut men's basketball team will get a pay an outside opponent tonight at 8 p.m. at the Huskies take on Marlinton (Pa.) at the Harry A. Gampel Pavilion.

Former UConn player Earl Kelliey will be on the Marlinton bench.

The Huskies play another exhibition game Nov. 13 at the Hartford Civic Center against the Soviet national team before opening the regular season Nov. 24 against the College of Charleston.

STORRS (AP) — Connecticut coach Tom Jackson said although his Huskies are out of the Yankee Conference title picture, he doesn't have to come up with any inspirational speeches to motivate them.

"I'd like to say I had something chic or avant-garde to say to them, but they're too smart for that. They know what they need to do. The approach we've taken since the get-go is to try to get better, and we've done that the last few weeks."

The primary goal of the Huskies (4-4, Jackson said, with a winning record), their final three games on the road, including Saturday's game at Delaware (4-1, 3-3).

The Huskies have beaten the Blue Hens three straight years by a total of six points, an annoying fact to Delaware coach Tubby Raymond. But Raymond said the three straight losses don't give him any special incentive against the Huskies.

"I get incentive every day because I'm terrified of losing," said Raymond, who is in his 25th year of coaching at Delaware.

The Blue Hens have lost three of their past four games, including a 17-10 loss to Maine last week despite piling up 415 yards total offense.

Delaware has been particularly ineffective in the second half this season. They haven't scored in the second half in their past three games and have been outscored 109-25 in the second half this season.

Raymond said he's worried about the Blue Hens defense against Connecticut

Only Edberg, Becker remain in Paris tennis

By NATASHA CARLETON
The Associated Press

PARIS — One day after the Fantastic Four became the Terrible Three, it was narrowed to the Top Two.

Top-seeded Stefan Edberg and No. 2 Boris Becker continued their winning ways Thursday, but No. 3 Ivan Lendl joined John McEnroe on the sidelines, losing to Stefan Edberg and No. 2 Boris Becker in a 5-set match Monday 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 in a third-round match Thursday.

Also gone is U.S. Open champion Pete Sampras, who was upset by qualifier Guillaume Raoux of France 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

Edberg beat Aron Krickstein 6-1, 6-2 and Becker ousted Jim Courier 6-1, 7-5 to move into the quarter-finals.

Svensson, ranked 16th in the world, had beaten Lendl in the 1988 French Open to end his two-year reign as champion.

"Like the last time I played him at Roland Garros, I just tried to do the best," Svensson said. "I think I played very good and smart but I don't think he likes my game."

In other upsets, qualifier Michael Stich of Germany eliminated eighth-seeded Brad Gilbert 6-4, 6-4 and Switzerland's Jakob Hlasek, who ousted McEnroe on Wednesday night, downed ninth-seeded Goran Ivanisovic of Yugoslavia 6-3, 6-4.

Two Spanish players also advanced to the quarter-finals. Sergi Bruguera beat Marc Rosset of Switzerland 4-6, 6-1, 6-3 in a battle of 19-year-olds and sixth-seeded Emilio Sanchez beat Guy Forget of France 7-5, 6-3.

Raoux, who had to survive three rounds of a preliminary tournament to make the main draw, came out of the shadows in the third set to beat the 19-year-old McEnroe.

"This is a real downer," Sampras said. "He was going broke on every shot. He was playing in front of his fans and he had nothing to lose."

Raoux, 20, served nine aces but also had eight double-faults.

"He was going for it on every serve. Sometimes he double-faulted by 20 feet," Sampras said.

"Today I found my serve again," Raoux said. "I also improved my backhand, my forehand and volley."

Against Svensson, Lendl's game started wavering when a blitzer on his serving hand began to bother him.

"I never felt comfortable out there, even when I was leading," Lendl said. "But I should have won. Jonas must have sensed it and taken advantage of it."

Two Spanish players also advanced to the quarter-finals. Sergi Bruguera beat Marc Rosset of Switzerland 4-6, 6-1, 6-3 in a battle of 19-year-olds and sixth-seeded Emilio Sanchez beat Guy Forget of France 7-5, 6-3.

Raoux, who had to survive three rounds of a preliminary tournament to make the main draw, came out of the shadows in the third set to beat the 19-year-old McEnroe.

Lendl saved three set points in the following game, but he went to another set point when he netted a backhand and approach shot. Svensson won the set to serve, and Svensson broke in the following set.

"I like to play him because I know what to expect," Svensson said. "And I can control the game. But obviously I have to play very well. And he must not play double-faults."

The Paris Open is the last regular tournament of the ATP Tour where most of the top players will participate. They next will battle in the ATP Tour World Championships Nov. 12-18 in Frankfurt, Germany.

Free agent list a record

NEW YORK (AP) — Free agents aren't only getting record salaries, they're filling in record numbers.

Four more filed Thursday, raising the total to 93, three more than the record set last year. Ken Griffey Sr. filed, as did outfielder Brian Downing and pitcher Greg Minion of California and catcher Terry Kennedy of San Francisco.

Four players still are eligible to file by Sunday's deadline: Oakland pitcher Scott Sanderson, Los Angeles outfielder-infielder Mickey Hatcher, San Diego third baseman Mike Pagliaro and San Francisco pitcher Mark Thurmond.

"It's the biggest concern. He fields the offense very well," he said.

"We're getting closer. We lost a lot of people to injuries this season, and this is a young football team. But everyone is back and we're playing well. I'm glad these kids are finally experiencing some success."

Kickoff is 1 p.m. Saturday at Delaware Stadium in Newark, Del.

Brown leads Japan Classic

HANNO, Japan (AP) — Nancy Brown shot a 6-under-par 66 to take a two-stroke lead after the first round of the $550,000 LPGA Mazda Japan Classic, the final tournament of the LPGA season.

Brown started with a three-foot chip for birdie on the first hole on the 6376-yard, par-72 Musashigoko Golf Course, outside Tokyo. She bridled the seventh hole with a 20-foot putt and later bridled the 11th hole with a 28-foot putt.

Yuki Ferguson bridled the final hole and shared second place with Caroline Keggi and Rosie Jones at 68.

European team beats U.S.

INAGI, Japan (AP) — Europe's Roman Rafferty and European team beat American opponents in a six-man team match at the United States 8-4 in the first round of the $1.15 million Four Tours World Championship of Golf.

Rafferty beat Mark Calcavecchia 7-13, Feherly Simpson 6-7 and Mark James beat Wayne Levi when Levi retired with a bad back after nine holes.

Fred Couples beat Nick Faldo 65-69 and Jodie Mudd defeated Bernhard Langer 69-70 for the only American victories.

Niekro to pilot Richmond

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Niekro, who posted 268 of his 318 career victories in an Atlanta Braves uniform and last season served as their bullpen coach, was named manager of the team's Richmond farm club in the International League.

Offerdahl, Cross are honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Miami defensive stars John Offerdahl and Jeff Cross were named AFC defensive players of the month for October and Pittsburgh quarterback Bobby Brister was named the offensive player. NFC winners were San Francisco linebacker Charles Haley and Atlanta wide receiver Andre Kirk.

Garrison, Martina triumph

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Third-seeded Zina Garrison defeated Mary Lou Daniels 6-3, 7-5 to advance to the quarterfinals of the Virginia Sluis of California.

Top-seeded Martina Navratilova defeated Radka Zrubavkova 6-2, 6-0 in a quarterfinal match.

Bo on the run back in KC

By The Associated Press

Bo Jackson runs during a game.

It's that strange time of the year for Bo Jackson — he's back in Kansas City to hit holes in 1990.

Jackson, a star for the Royals in the summer, will lead the Los Angeles Raiders into Arrowhead Stadium this Sunday to face the Chiefs.

Many of the same fans who were cheering for Jackson last month will be booing him this weekend. The game will be the first sellout of the year in Kansas City, but whether any of Jackson's baseball buddies will be in the stands isn't certain because they haven't yet called him for tickets.

"Surprisingly, none," Jackson said, adding, "I've got to call Jim Eisenreich."

Jackson played his first game for the Raiders two weeks ago and gained 53 yards on 12 carries and scored two touchdowns in a 24-9 victory at Seattle. The Raiders (6-1) and Chiefs (4-3) each got a bye last week.

Coach Art Shell said Marcus Allen will begin the game at tailback instead of Jackson.

"We're not changing our starting lineup," Shell said.

The game marks only the third time in four weeks that two NFL teams with above-500 records have played each other. If the Raiders win, they will have a three-game lead in the AFC West in their bid to make the playoffs for the first time since 1985.

Only three other teams in the AFC have winning records. Buffalo (6-1) is at Cleveland, Miami (6-1) is home against Phoenix and Cincinnati (4-3) entertains New Orleans.

The Bengals, after going 2-3 on a road trip that took them to Seattle, Los Angeles, Houston, Cleveland and Atlanta, play six of their last eight games at Riverfront Stadium.

"It's good to be home," running back James Brooks said. "It's over with. The fans are behind you instead of booing you. That hasn't happened for a while. You play harder at home."

The NFC has even fewer winning teams than the AFC. San Francisco and New York each are 7-0, Chicago is 6-1 and Washington is 0-0.

The 49ers, who will play host to the Giants on Monday night, Dec. 3, are at Green Bay this Sunday. Chicago is at Tampa Bay and Washington is at Detroit, while the Giants play at Indianapolis on Monday night.

In other games this weekend, Atlanta is at Pittsburgh, Dallas is at the New York Jets, New England is at Philadelphia, Houston is at the Los Angeles Rams, San Diego is at Seattle and Denver is at Minnesota.

The Bills-Browns game will be a rematch of last January's division playoff, won by Cleveland 34-30. The Bills drove to the Browns' 11 with 16 seconds left, but Ronnie Harmon dropped a pass in the end zone and Jim Kelly's next pass was intercepted by Clay Matthews.

Bolton ends year with a win

BOLTON — A good second half propelled Bolton High past Cheney Tech, 1-0 Thursday afternoon in the regular season finale for both boys' soccer squads.

Bolton did connect on one, at the 16:40 mark. A Chris Blais shot deflected off a Tech defender and Dave Mortimer was on the spot to push home his fourth goal of the year.

Matt Marcotte had 14 saves in the game for Cheney. "He had a real fine much, much better. We had most of our scoring opportunities in the second half and we had a good number of them. We just didn't finish."

Jury keeps damage award at $100

NEW YORK (AP) — The woman who convinced a jury that Mike Tyson grabbed her buttocks and groped her breasts in a disco doesn't mind that she won only $100 in damages.

"It was the principle," Sandra Miller said after the jury declined to award any punitive damages Thursday. "He knows he did it. I know he did it. The jury proved that he did it."

A day earlier, the five-woman, one-man panel had ordered the former heavyweight champion to pay $100 in compensatory damages for the incident. Miller had sought an additional $2.5 million in punitive damages in her civil case.

The jury determined that Tyson grabbed Miller after she refused his advances at Bentley's Disco in Manhattan on Dec. 10, 1988.

Tyson testified during the four-day trial in Manhattan's federal court that he never touched Miller. "I'm just happy they saw it as the truth," Tyson said Thursday.

Sponsors, including boxing promoter Don King, swarmed around Tyson in the courtroom, congratulating him on the decision. He jokingly pulled a $100 bill from his pocket and placed it briefly on his forehead.

The jurors left the courthouse without talking to reporters.
