LONDON (AP) — Facing a possible two-year suspension that could prevent him from competing in the 1992 Olympics, Butch Reynolds, the world record-holder in the 400 meters, denied he has ever used steroids and said drug tests that turned up positive "cannot be medically supported."

Reynolds and Randy Barnes, the world record-holder in the shot put, were suspended by the International Amateur Athletic Federation for testing positive for steroids.

The IAAF, track and field's world governing body, on Monday said that both athletes have been offered a hearing by the Athletics Congress, the U.S. national governing body.

If the suspensions are upheld, Reynolds and Barnes face two-year bans. Suspensions of that duration, mandatory for a first offense under IAAF rules governing drug use, would keep them out of next year's World Championships at Tokyo as well as the 1992 Summer Olympics at Barcelona.

The IAAF said recent tests confirmed that Reynolds tested positive for nandrolone and Barnes for methyltestosterone. Both substances are steroids.

"I've been instructed not to comment," Barnes said from his parents' South Charleston, W.Va., home. "When it's time... I'll make a statement, but right now it's not time."

Reynolds, however, issued a statement claiming the positive test results were "the result of some fallacy in the drug testing system," adding, "I have never used steroids."

The statement said:

"... There is no room for steroids or drug abuse in my life... People who know Butch Reynolds know that I have always been one of the strongest proponents of random year-round drug testing."

"I have taken drug tests five times over the past 10 months. Believe me, the results... are completely inconsistent with my history and, to my knowledge, cannot be supported medically."

"I am confident that my innocence will be proved without a reason for doubt."

metabolites of the banned substance methyltestosterone, and a second analysis carried out on Sept. 25, 1990, confirmed their presence.

"The case was then investigated by the IAAF doping commission, who confirmed the positive result."

"On Oct. 24, the IAAF informed TAC of the result of the second test and requested TAC to note the suspension of the athlete in accordance with IAAF rule 59 and to offer the athlete an opportunity of a hearing in accordance with the rules and procedures of the IAAF."

"TAC confirmed that this has been done and the date of this hearing is expected to be fixed shortly."

Reynolds, the IAAF said, "was tested on Aug. 12, 1990, at the Hercules meeting in Monte Carlo... where he came third in the 400 meters."

"The Paris laboratory revealed metabolites of the banned substance nandrolone, and a second analysis carried out on Oct. 12, 1990, confirmed their presence."

"On Oct. 17, the IAAF informed TAC of the result of the second test and similar to the case of Barnes, TAC has confirmed to the IAAF that Harry Reynolds has been suspended and offered a hearing, the date of which is shortly to be confirmed."

Reynolds set the 400-meter record of 43.29 seconds in Zurich, Switzerland, two years ago and Barnes set the shot put mark of 75 feet, 10 1/4 inches last May 20 in Los Angeles.

Under drug testing rules, an athlete's urine sample is divided into 'A' and 'B' samples. If the 'A' sample is positive, the 'B' is tested with the athlete or a representative allowed to be present.

If the 'B' also is positive, the athlete is entitled to a hearing. If the 'B' is negative, the athlete is exonerated.

The IAAF statement said:

Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson recently finished a two-year suspension after testing positive for the use of steroids following his victory in the 100 meters at the 1988 Olympics at Seoul. He was stripped of his world record and gold medal.

The Bear roars as Weicker wins big

SIMSBRURY — The Bear roared Tuesday as Lowell Weicker and his Connecticut Party scored a resounding victory to become only the second independent governor in the state's history.

With 99 percent of the precincts reporting, Weicker won 40 percent of the votes cast in the election. Heicker's opponents, Republican John Rowland and Democrat Bruce Morrison garnered 38 and 21 percent of the vote respectively.

Weicker said he thinks he will not take office until January because he will begin the process of forming his inner circle of advisors next week. But those jobs would not be meted out under the old patronage system, Weicker said. The jobs would be awarded to those who are best qualified, rather than those with the most political sway.

Voters give thumbs up, down to bonds

MANCHESTER — School officials and Manchester parents got their thumbs up for the $3.9 million addition to Manchester High School by a nearly two-to-one vote.

The school referendum, which also calls for the town's school system to be reorganized to handle the growing elementary school population, passed 11,600 to 6,583.

Under the plan, sixth-graders will move from the elementary schools to the junior high schools, which will become middle schools. Also, ninth-graders will jump up into the high school.

MANCHESTER — Manchester voters have again said no to an addition to the Municipal Building, only this time they said it much louder.

A committee of sixth, seventh- and eighth-grade teachers will be working over the next year to devise a curriculum for sixth-graders, now that they will be moving up to the middle schools, Bogli said. Ground breaking for the 15-classroom addition to the high school should begin somewhere in the next six to eight months if it is to meet the September 1992 deadline when ninth-graders will be admitted into the high school, said.

"When I look at the towns around us with their problems with educational funding, for us to get this vote of confidence is wonderful," Broderick said.

She said she attributed the plan's success to donations from schools' parent-teacher associations, which enabled the operation of her committee, and School Superintendent James Kennedy and other administrators who got the word out about the referendum.

Bogli praised the high school addition committee for "working its heart out."

Richards wins in Texas; Helms in North Carolina

By DAVID ESPNO
The Associated Press

Democrats wrested governorships from the GOP in Texas, Florida and four other states on Tuesday in mid-term elections that sealed a season of Republican disappointment. Democrats also moved to expand their dominion of Congress, though lost a challenge to North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms.

Upsets were hard to find, despite stings of voter discontent. House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich was in a Georgia deadlock. Democratic Sen. Bill Bradley was pressed before winning a dramatic reelection in New Jersey.

There was little good news for the GOP. The best of it was in Ohio, where George Voinovich won a Democratic governorship, and in Connecticut where Gary Franks became the first black House Republican since 1925. John Engler led Democratic Gov. James Blanchard in a Michigan surprise. Former Sen. Lowell Weicker voted the GOP, this time as an outsider. He won an independent bid for governor of Connecticut. Vermont sent Socialist Bernie Sanders to the House in place of a Republican.

Democrats easily renewed their majority in the Senate as poll closings moved westward, and were headed for the same in the House. The House was even more lopsided for the Democrats, who expected to add slightly to a 259-176 majority.

Sen. Jesse Helms led Harvey Gantt in his marquee race for reelection in North Carolina where polls were kept open late because of voting machine difficulties in a Democratic stronghold.

With 34 Senate races on the ballot, Democrats took aim at Mark Hatfield in Oregon and Rudy Boschwitz in Minnesota in hopes of padding their current 55-45 majority.

Republicans hoped to capture a seat in Hawaii where Rep. Patricia Sakai ran against Sen. Daniel Akaka, appointed after the death of Spark Matsunaga.

Republicans Bob Smith in New Hampshire and Hank Brown in Colorado held onto open Senate seats for the GOP. In the third round seat, GOP Rep. Larry Craig led Ron Twigg.

The GOP hoped for victories in statehouse races that would protect their influence in drawing boundaries for House seats that will shift to the Sun Belt in 1992.

In one closely watched race, Democrat Ann Richards defeated Clayton Williams, taking the Lone Star state away from the Republican.

John Silber led William Weld in his bid to keep the Dukakis governorship from GOP hands in Massachusetts.

Iran quake leaves about twenty dead

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A strong earthquake struck a mountainous area of southern Iran on Tuesday night, killing at least 20 people and heavily damaging at least a dozen villages, Iran's official news agency reported.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., said initial readings put the quake's magnitude at 7.0 on the Richter scale. Iran's Geophysics Center of Tehran University said it measured 6.6.

An earthquake of that magnitude is capable of widespread, heavy damage. A quake measuring 7.7 on the Richter scale struck northern Iran on June 21, killing an estimated 50,000 people.

Tuesday's quake struck at 9:47 p.m. and centered in Fars province near the city of Darab about 600 miles southeast of Tehran, the Islamic Republic News Agency said.

IRNA said at least 20 people were killed and more than 60 injured. It quoted Darab Gov. Yahya Hashemi as saying at least 12 villages were heavily damaged.

Fire rips through, destroys studio

MANCHESTER, N.J. (AP) — A fire raged through the Universal Studios lot Tuesday night, destroying movie sets used in "Dick Tracy" and other movies and damaging some attractions on the company's studio tour.

Hundreds of firefighters backed by water-dropping helicopters contained the billowing flames by 10 p.m., about three hours after the blaze broke out in the 420-acre lot 10 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles.

There were no immediate reports of injuries, and the cause of the fire was not known, said police Sgt. Richard Thomas.

Most of the damage was to wooden facades that tourists oggle on the Universal Studios tour, county fire inspector Jim Gande said.

"They're just like kindling," matchboxes ready to go up," Gande said.

No evacuation was ordered at the nearby Universal Hilton, where the California Republican party had its election night headquarters. gubernatorial candidate Pete Wilson planned an appearance during the evening and reportedly was watching the flames from his hotel room.

About 200 Universal employees were evacuated, Thomas said.

Among the outdoor sets destroyed were New York Street, used to film Manhattan street scenes; Brownstone Street and Courthouse Square, where Michael J. Fox rode his skateboard in "Back to the Future Part II." The "Dick Tracy" set also was gutted, Gande said.

The blaze damaged part of the Kim Kong attraction, a huge mechanical gorilla that appears to shake ramlays of tourists. Officials weren't immediately able to describe the damage. It also charred ing $2.5 million in damage.

The studio features a seven-hour tour attraction, which includes a narrated film ride that takes viewers through film sets and a simulated earthquake.

"The tour will be affected, but we have no information on how at this time," Bullard said.

Universal Studios was founded by Carl Laemmle in 1912. It did not gain recognition until the 1920s, when it produced several now-classic silent films, including "The Phantom of the Opera" and "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Drug czar to quit

WASHINGTON — William J. Bennett, who crafted the strategy for the Bush administration's war on drugs, will resign within a week, an administration source said Tuesday night.

Bennett, 47, feels he has completed the task of designing a strategy for the drug war and that it is working, said the source.

This source said personal reasons, including safety concerns for himself and his family, also played a part in his decision to resign as director of the Office of National Drug Control Strategy.

The Washington Post reported on the resignation in Wednesday's edition.

The White House has scheduled a ceremony to announce the resignation, and that "could possibly be before Friday," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Elections

Manchester and in the other four towns of the 4th Senatorial District. Democratic U.S. Representative Barbara Kennedy, who was re-elected in the 1st Congressional District, took Manchester by a wide margin.

The only Republican to win a contested race in Manchester was State Rep. Paul Munns, who was victorious in the 9th Assembly District. His Manchester vote was 1,389 to 651 for his Democratic opponent, Henry Genga.

McCavanagh, elected to his fifth term from the 12th Assembly District, got 5,156 votes to 2,342 for Kevin MacKenzie, his Republican opponent, and 213 for Peter McNamara, the Libertarian candidate.

Thompson got 4,377 votes to 2,844 for his Republican opponent Reginald Preble in the 13th Assembly District. Kennedy's Manchester vote was 13,212. Her Republican opponent, James Garvey got 5,883.

Manchester voters favored the Democratic candidates for state administrative offices. The vote on the Municipal Building addition was 11,774 against to 6,438 in favor. The vote on the high school addition was almost exactly the reverse, 11,606 in favor to 6,583 opposed.

Manchester's vote for Weicker was 10,474. John Rowland, the Republican candidate got 5,845 votes and Bruce Morrison, the Democrat, got 4,146.

J. Peter Fuscias, the Republican who ran unopposed for reelection as state representative from the 55th Assembly District, got 1,001 votes in the 3rd Voting District in Manchester, the only part of town in his assembly district.

The 1981 Manchester High School graduate and Democrat beat out Republican rival Robert Jahn in the race for the 32nd Assembly District seat.

Manchester native James O'Rourke III won his first seat in the state's General Assembly, representing the towns of Cromwell, Portland and part of Middletown, on Tuesday's election.

"I feel great," said a sleepy O'Rourke early today from his home in Cromwell.

The 1981 Manchester High School graduate and Democrat beat out Republican rival Robert Jahn in the race for the 32nd Assembly District seat.

Jahn had held the seat from 1985-86. The seat became open this year when Democrat Vincent Mazotta decided not to run for re-election.

O'Rourke said he believes his campaign, which stressed his commitment to solving the state budget deficit and protecting the environment, was successful because of hard work.

"I think the people wanted new leadership," added the newly-elected state legislator, who works as an administrator for the state's Public Safety Commission.

O'Rourke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. O'Rourke Jr. of Shelton Brook Lane, expressed pleasure about their son's achievement.

"We are very excited," said Mrs. O'Rourke. "We think he worked very hard and got his message across to the people."

She said she and her husband had helped out during their son's campaign by making telephone calls and by going door to door for support.

Democrat HQ upbeat as incumbents sweep

By ALEX GIRELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Democrats milled around their big headquarters quietly Tuesday night while they awaited election results, most of them resigned to the idea that their gubernatorial candidate was not about to win.

But the mood changed swiftly at about 8:40 p.m. when the first results began coming in and they showed Democratic incumbents leading in the local races.

And it was upbeat from that time on as more figures came in showing Democratic victories.

"It seems like a long time since 1989," Democratic Town Chairman Theodore Cummings told the crowd, in reference to the Democratic loss in the local election last year. Cummings was commenting on the victories of state representatives John Thompson and James McCavanagh.

Thompson, who won re-election in the 13th Assembly District, said his race against Republican Reginald Preble was a difficult one because he did not know Preble well. He said Preble ran a clever

Little left to rejoice by Republican crowd

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — When the initial vote tallies from Tuesday's election were posted at Republican campaign headquarters, the modest crowd of about 50 grew quiet.

And that quietude turned to a stone silence as more and more numbers rolled in, revealing widespread and severe losses for GOP candidates.

The mood was so poor that Republican party leaders resigned themselves to rejoicing in the incredibly poor support received locally by the Democratic gubernatorial candidate Bruce Morrison.

The U.S. representative barely mustered 20 percent of the votes.

Other than the rout of Morrison, Republicans could celebrate only the victory of incumbent state Rep. Paul Munns.

And Munns, of the 9th district, represents only a small portion of Manchester. He defeated East Hartford's treasurer, Democrat Henry Genga.

In four other local races, Republicans won by landslides, with victories scored by incumbent state representatives John W. Thompson and James R. McCavanagh, U.S. Rep. Barbara B. Kennedy, and state Sen. Michael P. Meotti.

And to make the local losses more disappointing for GOP members, town voters also overwhelmingly supported Democrats for state offices other than governor, which was won easily by independent

Herbst wins over Bunnell with 65 percent of vote

By JACQUELINE BENNETT
Manchester Herald

It was another landslide victory for Vermont Democrat Marie Herbst, who was elected to a third term as 35th District State Senator with approximately 65 percent of the vote in Tuesday's election, over her Republican challenger Dean Bunnell of Eastford.

Unofficial results from the Democratic headquarters in Vernon showed Herbst won in a vote of 19,816 to 10,426.

"The thing people found out about me is I'm a phone call away. I have made government work for the people," Herbst said of her victory.

Results trickled in slowly from the 14 towns in the district. Herbst took every town except Bunnell's hometown of Eastford.

Early Coventry returns of 2,419 to 1,160 drew a gleeful response from Herbst. "Yes, that's one of my key towns," she said.

In Vernon, Herbst drew more votes than any other candidate up for election and even got a write-in for Governor.

"I've teasingly said we need a woman to clean up the statehouse, but right now I'm the state Senator," Herbst said when asked if she might consider running for Governor in the near future.

Despite her increasing popularity, Herbst said she did not take Bunnell for granted. "I always run as if I have the strongest opponent against me," she said.

In addition, Herbst said, people voted her because of her record of support for education and bringing money back to the district.

In a phone interview from Eastford, Bunnell blamed his defeat on the presence of Lowell Weicker, the former U.S. Republican Senator who was elected Governor as an independent.

Bunnell said Weicker drew a high turnout of unaffiliated voters who voted for Weicker, then moved to the top line and voted for Democrats.

He also said President George Bush's reneging on his "no new tax" promise hurt Republicans in state elections.

But Bunnell said he'll be back. "I spoke with Marie and told her 'I'll see you in a couple of years,'" he said. "His immediate plans, he said, are to devote his energy to his position as selectman in Eastford."

Despite Bunnell's confidence in his political future, Vermont GOP Chairman Tony Muro, who came to congratulate Democrats, said Bunnell was not a strong candidate.

Muro said Bunnell lacked name recognition and never got his campaign organized. "He didn't get all his faculties together," Muro said.

There was little surprise among other party over the victory of Weicker over Democrat Bruce Morrison and Republican John Rowland.

Herbst said she will make getting the budget deficit under control a priority, emphasizing that she opposes a state income tax and favors spending control.

Herbst said she does not anticipate a problem in working with Weicker.

71 percent cast votes at the polls

By SCOTT BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — In response to the troubled economy, town residents swarmed to the polls Tuesday, creating lines up to 45 minutes long and delaying final voting tallies.

At the 10th District polls at Manchester High School, voting machines stayed open almost half an hour after they were supposed to close to accommodate voters who showed up to the polls at the last minute.

At 8 p.m., the time voting is supposed to shut down, nearly 60 people still stood in line to cast their ballots, said Nancy Pilver, who was tallying the district's votes for the Republican Headquarters.

"People are upset" about the current economy, Pilver said. "And they want to do something about it."

Similar delays occurred at other voter stations around town, said Herb Stevenson, the town's Democratic Registrar of Voters.

Stevenson said during the afternoon some voting lines were up to 45 minutes long. The lengthy waits reflected the larger number of residents who frequented the polls over those in the 1986 gubernatorial election, he said.

According to Stevenson, 20,549, or 71 percent, of the town's 28,777 registered voters crammed the voting booths Tuesday — a near five percent rise over 1986 figures.

"The economy has alerted people to what Representatives are doing with their money, and I think [the trend] is going to continue," he said.

Hebron favored Weicker, Meotti

By CAROL CLEVENGER
Manchester Herald

HEBRON — Hebron voters favored independent gubernatorial candidate Lowell Weicker with a vote of 1,594. The GOP's John Rowland, the next strongest candidate, received 854 votes. Hebron voters chose to retain First District U.S. Rep. Barbara B. Kennedy and State Comptroller, beat Joel Schiavone in Hebron in a 1,488-1,036 vote.

The constitutional amendment question passed in Hebron with a total of 764 votes in favor, 687 votes against.

CRESTFALLEN — Manchester Mayor Terry Werkhoven and Republican Town Committee Chairman John Garside are disappointed as election returns are reported into GOP head-quarters. The Republican party won only one local race Tuesday.

Andover followed state voting trend

By CAROL CLEVENGER
Manchester Herald

ANDOVER — Town residents, in a heavy voter turnout, gave strong support to independent gubernatorial candidate — and eventual statewide winner — Lowell Weicker, and voted to retain U.S. Rep. Sam Ojendensen and State Sen. Marie Herbst.

Weicker received 583 votes out of a total of 1,123 Andover votes cast for governor. Herbst received 676 votes to challenger Dean Bunnell's 339. The race between Secretary of State candidates Julia Taihjian (the incumbent) and Pauline Kezer was closer, with a 58-vote difference in Taihjian's favor. Kezer eventually won the race statewide.

Moderator Ken Lester read the results to a quiet crowd of 50 residents and election workers who gathered at Andover Elementary

Weicker

Supporters and campaign workers grew more festive with each announcement of a Weicker victory. The room exploded around 9:30 p.m. as word filtered through the crowd that Bruce Morrison was conceding. It was another hour before Rowland admitted defeat, which brought the cheers of the crowd to a crescendo.

However it would be nearly two hours before the crowd got what they wanted. Weicker had spent the evening at his home in Greenwich, watching the returns, before he boarded a bus that took him to his headquarters in Simsbury.

Weicker becomes only the second independent governor in the state's history. He was preceded by Alexander H. Holley who won the office in 1857.

The key to the Weicker win was some big wins in some rather unusual places. In East Hampton, home to outgoing Democratic Gov. William O'Neill, Weicker dominated his competitors, winning by nearly 2-1 over Rowland and 3-1 over Morrison.

Weicker also scored a significant victory in traditionally Democratic Hartford where he outpaced Morrison by more than 2,100 votes, which bested Rowland by almost 8,200 votes. The announcement led to yet another lead cheer from the Weicker supporters.

But Weicker did lose in his own home town of Greenwich. There he garnered only 9,083 votes to Rowland's 9,549 and Morrison's 1,856.

School

proposals included reopening Bentley School, creating modular classrooms and brick and mortar additions to three elementary schools, she said.

The referendum to build an $11.1 million addition to Town Hall failed 11,774 to 6,438 — almost the same rate the school referendum passed.

Broedick said the Town Hall plan was not as vital as the school referendum because town officials already have office space, but there would have been no place for school children to go with the upcoming crunch in classroom space.

"Maybe they can put town hall records in kindergarten classrooms," she joked.

Now-Gov. Weicker is an array of contrasts

By JUDD EVERHART
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Former Republican U.S. Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. will tell you that he ran for governor on his newly created Connecticut Party ticket for the kids, to put Connecticut first, party politics second.

His critics said he was running for himself, his huge ego and, after a stunning defeat two years ago, to be able to go out a winner.

But whatever they say, they can't deny that Weicker was, and always had been since the day he got into the governor's race, the clear front-runner.

For months, he had more support in the polls than his two opponents — months go by.

Weicker talks frequently about his integrity, calling that quality "the hallmark of Lowell Weicker." His critics, like state GOP Chairman Richard Foley, scoff at the claim. Foley bluntly calls Weicker a phony.

Weicker often glosses over details when talking about his plans for state government. He put together a plan for eliminating the budget deficit when it passed $200 million and said he'd have another when it got to $400 million. It's almost there now.

His original plan relied on traditional approaches to the budget: cutting consultants and travel fees and stemming growth in personnel costs through attrition. And he wants to try to stimulate the state's economy by cutting some business taxes, an approach many Democrats and some economists say doesn't work.

His person is one of intriguing contrasts.

That he has a big ego is not open to question.

Still buoyed by the national reputation he won during the Senate

Watergate hearings, Weicker decided he was going to run for president in 1980. He was forced out within two months after getting no serious support.

For another, he told an interviewer earlier this year that he most hoped to be remembered as the senator who saved the U.S. Constitution during his 18 years in the Senate.

And for still another, he unabashedly claims that he is "the best" at "the business of government."

He is fond of saying, "You promise me no new problems and I'll promise you no new taxes."

Often described as a maverick in Washington, he's fought many a lonely battle on behalf of the children, the handicapped, AIDS victims, the politically and otherwise suppressed. He was arrested outside the South African embassy in Washington during an anti-apartheid protest.

For those battles he has won well-deserved praise.

But there come other revelations. The Greenwich millionaire, whose grandfather helped found the Squibb pharmaceutical corporation, derided the Senate for refusing to adopt his proposals for full financial disclosure, then this year refused to release his own tax returns.

He kept $11,000 in campaign contributions from his 1988 campaign — legal, but ridiculed as petty by his own tax returns.

He rants about South Africa but still owns stocks in companies doing business in the white-ruled nation. The distinction he makes is that those companies have endorsed the equal-opportunity guidelines known as the Sullivan Principles.

State law, however, prohibits the state from owning any stocks in any companies doing business with South Africa, the Sullivan Principles notwithstanding. Now elected governor, he will likely give serious thought to divesting his portfolio of all those stocks.

When he lost his U.S. Senate seat in 1988, he said he was walking off the field for good. "No comebacks," he proclaimed.

He then went to work for a foundation promoting medical research, where he spent the next year.

During the winter of 1989-90, political reporters heard increasingly frequent rumbles about a potential 1990 Weicker bid for governor, despite his "No comebacks" statement.

Speculation reached a fever pitch in late winter and, on March 2, Weicker announced he would run for governor as an independent.

He had concluded he could not win the GOP nomination for governor and was creating his own party. He chose a Connecticut Party as its name. The "A" was put in the name to make sure he was listed third on the ballot, because, after the Democrats and Republicans, candidates' parties are listed alphabetically and there was already a "Concerned Citizens" party on the ballot.

But he was always at odds with the GOP since so at the national level that in Connecticut, though he had his problems in his home state, too.

He faced a serious intraparty challenge for his Senate nomination in 1982 from Prescott S. Bush Jr., imposing man. The national reputation he once enjoyed, as well as his dominance in Connecticut, earned Republican politics for years, enhanced that image.

brother of then-Vice President George Bush. Weicker won the nomination, but Bush had enough support to qualify for a primary. Bush, however, dropped plans for a primary in the interest of party unity and Weicker was narrowly re-elected that year.

Six years later, Weicker fell victim to a stunning upset at the hands of then-Attorney General Joseph I. Lieberman, a Democrat, who won by 10,000 votes — a margin of less than 1 percent margin — after a bitter, often negative, campaign.

Prior to his Senate service, he spent one two-year term in the U.S. House, a term as Greenwich first selectman and two terms in the state House of Representatives.

When he announced his candidacy for governor in March, he said he was not running for reelection. He talks about getting taken down a peg or two.

campaign to keep control of the General Assembly.

Republicans, meanwhile, hoped that voter frustration over the state's sagging economy and the record tax increases of 1989 would help them win control of at least one chamber of the Legislature in Tuesday's election.

Twenty House incumbents did not seek re-election, including 12 Democrats and eight Republicans. Six senators did not seek re-election, four Republicans and two Democrats.

Democrats, facing voter anger over 1989 tax increases that totalled $900 million, mounted an aggressive, coordinated campaign. In campaign literature that surprised Republicans, Democrats portrayed themselves as fiscal conservatives who have fought to cut waste in government while delivering on promised state aid to cities and towns.

Republican leaders acknowledged that several other factors worked against their efforts to win control of the Assembly.

Thoughts

"God, the great big stick in the mud" or so some think. One of the greatest opportunities for mankind is to truly seek pleasure. To (in a sense) be a hedonist. Hedonism is the teaching that pleasure is the principle good. Now that doesn't sound like normal religious talk, does it?

The Westminster confession states that the chief end of man is to glorify God. When we intent on living in a way that brings glory (honor) to God, the natural outcome will be that we would experience intense pleasure. Maybe we are not to be hedonists in the impure sense of the word, but when our real pursuit in life is God's honor, a by-product is our pleasure.

Police Roundup

Harassment charge lodged

A Marlborough teen-ager was charged with harassing a female schoolmate while they drove in separate cars in Manchester.

Julian Harper, 16, a student at East Catholic High School, was ordered to pay an $88 fine for creating a public disturbance which upset the 17-year-old East Hartford girl.

Police say Harper was a passenger in a car with three other males when it stopped at a traffic light at the intersection of Buckland Road and Tolland Turnpike. The victim also was stopped at the light.

According to the victim, the males began to jeer at and verbally harass her, police said. At one point, Harper exited the car he was in and went to the victim's car, placing his hand on her shoulder. He then got back into the car he was in.

Harper denied that he touched the victim during the incident, police said.

The victim also charged that when the light changed, the two cars began moving, but the car that she was in was quickly cut in front of the car the victim was in, causing her to brake sharply in order to avoid a collision.

Democrats retain control of General Assembly

By PETER VILES
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — The Democratic Party, which lost the governor's office Tuesday after holding it for 16 years, held on to much of its political power by keeping control of both chambers of the General Assembly.

"If you look at the political landscape in Connecticut tonight, there's Lowell Weicker representing the Democratic Party," said state Democratic Chairman John F. Dronsey Jr. referring to Weicker's third-party victory in the gubernatorial race.

Dronsey said Democratic leaders are "looking forward to working with Weicker on the state's problems."

Early, unofficial returns showed the Democrats holding their advantage in the House of Representatives. It looked like they might lose as many as three seats in the Senate, but will apparently control that chamber as well.

All 187 seats in the General Assembly — 151 in the House, 36 in the Senate — were up for grabs Tuesday. Going into the election, the Democrats controlled the House 88-63 and the Senate 23-13.

Official results showed Democrats winning or leading in 89 House races, 61 for the GOP, and leading or winning in 20 Senate races, 16 for the GOP.

The General Assembly elections were considered crucial because the next legislative session, working with the governor's office, will rewrite the boundaries of every legislative and congressional district in the state.

That process, known as redistricting, tends to be politically charged and often works to the benefit of the party that controls the Assembly.

"This is going extraordinarily well. We may even pick up a couple of seats in the House," said state Rep. Jonathan Pelto, the Democratic Party's political director.

Pelto said only a handful of the 131 House incumbents who sought re-election in the House appeared headed for defeat, an indication that anti-incumbent sentiment was not widespread in Connecticut.

"By voting for Weicker, the electorate released whatever anti-incumbent sentiment that existed," Pelto said. "Incumbents in Connecticut are winning and winning big."

In the Senate, two of the 30 incumbents who sought re-election were in danger of losing. They were Democrat John Atkin of Norwalk and Democrat Thomas Sullivan of Guilford.

The only state lawmaker who ran on Weicker's ticket — state Sen. Emile Benvenuto, R-Stamford — appeared headed for defeat. With 20 of 24 precincts reporting, he trailed Republican William Nickerson of Greenwich, 42 percent to 32 percent, or 9,105 votes to 6,994 votes.

The Democratic Party had mounted an aggressive campaign to keep control of the General Assembly.

Republicans, meanwhile, hoped that voter frustration over the state's sagging economy and the record tax increases of 1989 would help them win control of at least one chamber of the Legislature in Tuesday's election.

Democrats, facing voter anger over 1989 tax increases that totalled $900 million, mounted an aggressive, coordinated campaign. In campaign literature that surprised Republicans, Democrats portrayed themselves as fiscal conservatives who have fought to cut waste in government while delivering on promised state aid to cities and towns.

Republican leaders acknowledged that several other factors worked against their efforts to win control of the Assembly.

Moffett's political comeback is crushed by Franks

By JOHN DIAMOND
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Gary Franks blocked the political comeback of Democrat Toby Moffett Tuesday to become the first black Republican to win a U.S. House seat since the 1930s.

Liberal Democrat Rosa DeLauro claimed victory in the 2nd District, the state's other open seat.

In the other four Connecticut House seats, incumbents won easy victories. Democratic Reps. Barbara Kennelly in the 1st District and Sam Gejdenson in the 2nd District easily won re-election. Republican Reps. Christopher Slays in the 4th District and Nancy Johnson in the 6th also won by wide margins.

With 93 percent of precincts reporting, Franks led Moffett 52 percent to 47 percent with a third-party candidate garnering 1 percent. But Franks hardly ran on a civil rights platform. During Bush's visit to Waterbury, Franks praised Bush for vetoing the civil rights reform bill. And two locally prominent blacks in Waterbury endorsed Moffett.

"The Franks victory ensured that the GOP would retain control of the seat vacated by Republican gubernatorial candidate John Rowland."

Moffett attributed his defeat to the Republican pull of gubernatorial candidate John Rowland and to the disarray of the Democratic Party in Connecticut. Though Rowland lost, he was highly popular in the 5th District, a seat he vied to run for governor.

"Let's understand that he has made history and we congratulate him on that," Moffett told supporters at a hotel just blocks from Franks' victory party.

DeLauro, a former aide to Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., claimed victory with Dodd at her headquarters.

WILDE, Erin Melissa, daughter of Timothy J. and Mary Jane Rea Wilde of 108 N. Elm St., was born Oct. 4 at Manchester Memorial Hospital. Her maternal grandparents are Muriel and Thomas Rea, 40 Duane St. Her paternal grandparents are Louise and Harold Wilde, Vernon. She has two brothers, Billy, 6 and Todd, 4.

A HISTORY LESSON IN SNACKING

SNACKING... Webster defines it as "A light meal; food eaten between meals." Harmless enough, but many people associate snacking with "junk food" that ruins the diet and expands the waistline.

Winter Fruit Bowls Can Be Colorful and Inviting

Fill a bowl with an assortment of fresh and dried fruit, and place it on the kitchen or dining room table for after-school or late-night snacks.

DRIED APRICOTS

These healthy, cold weather snacks are good sources of fiber and potassium; contain no cholesterol, and are low in sodium and fat.

PEARS

Washington apples come in a variety of flavors. The classic beauty, Red Delicious is sweet, mild and juicy.

DRIED FIGS

California figs are available in Calimyrna (amber-colored) and Black Mission varieties. A chewy exterior and soft inside gives figs an interesting texture that complements a winter fruit bowl.

PRUNES

Combine chopped pitted prunes, other dried fruit, high-fiber cereal and nuts for a great take-along snack.

APPLES

Core a Golden Delicious apple, sprinkle it with cinnamon, microwave it (covered) four minutes, spoon on frozen yogurt for a hot and cool, totally delicious snack or dessert.

KIWIFRUIT

Bite right in - skin and all for a daringly delicious snack.

Five-A-Day Made Easy

Bowl picture a big mystery

By The Associated Press

A victory Saturday by top-ranked Notre Dame could simplify the bowl picture if the Irish agree to an Orange Bowl rematch with No. 4 Colorado.

Whether they will — should they beat ninth-ranked Tennessee — is open to considerable speculation. "I don't think they want to play Colorado again," an Orange Bowl source said Tuesday. "Colorado is an experienced team, they'll be coming in with a nine-game winning streak and they'll have the revenge factor on their side."

But a Cotton Bowl insider thinks the Irish will accept an Orange Bowl bid if they beat Tennessee. "If they're No. 1, they can go anywhere they want to. And I think they want to go to the Orange Bowl," he said.

If the Irish beat the Volunteers, they will probably play Colorado no matter what happens in their final two games against Penn State and Southern Cal. But if Notre Dame loses, it will set off a mad scramble for top teams among the Orange, Sugar, Cotton, Fiesta and Citrus bowls.

If the nation is waiting on Notre Dame, it may wait longer than anticipated. "I don't think there's any way this will be settled by Sunday," athletic director Dick Ross said. "We haven't even sat down to discuss it yet."

Such discussions could be for the footballers, Rosenblatt said. "Every time you look up, there's another big surprise," he said. "How do you explain Tennessee-Florida or Florida-Alabama?"

"We're ranked No. 1 and we're an underdog against Tennessee, so you figure it out. Each week you make bowl predictions and each week you're wrong," he said.

Ellington High advanced with a 5-0 shutout win over RHAM High. Bolton, the No. 10 seed, bows out at 9-5-2.

"It was our best game of the year," Bolton coach Mike Landolfi said. "I'm disappointed not winning, but not in the girls and the way they played."
