at the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe. Under the treaty, more than 100,000 pieces of military hardware would be scrapped, prompting some to call the pact the formal end of the Cold War. "No battle in the history of mankind... destroyed such an immense number of tanks, armored combat vehicles, artillery and combat aircraft," Soviet negotiator Oleg A. Grinevsky told reporters in Vienna. U.S. negotiator James Woolsey said the accord "makes it a matter of many months instead of a few hours in which any country could think of a surprise attack."

remaining Western hostages between Christmas and March 25 "unless something would take place that marks the atmosphere of peace." Saddam has been releasing Western hostages on a piecemeal basis — another 136 arrived in London from Baghdad early today — and the Bush administration called the new Iraqi announcement a bid to buy time. Secretary of State James A. Baker III called it "just further cynical manipulation of innocent people's lives." Earlier this month, Saddam invited relatives of hostages to visit them over the holidays. Analysts have said a military strike against Iraqi forces is most likely in the winter because of lower temperatures and regular spells of calm weather. Sandstorms usually occur in April. In the Persian Gulf, U.S. Marines today planned a second attempt to storm a Saudi beach in an amphibious landing exercise. The seaborne assault was scrubbed Sunday because of high winds and rough seas. Baker has met in the past week with foreign ministers of the 15 nations sitting on the U.N. Security Council, seeking their support for the resolution endorsing a military option if a U.N.-ordered embargo on trade with Iraq fails. Some diplomats say the proposal could be made before the end of the month, when the United States turns over the council chairmanship to Yemen. But prominent allies in the anti-Iraq coalition are expressing concern that Bush is rushing toward war with the deployment of an additional 200,000 troops to the Persian Gulf region.

Bonding the deficit, as the practice is known, hasn't been done since 1975, when Democrat Ella T. Grasso was governor. That year, about $74 million was borrowed, according to Anthony V. Milano, who served as Grasso's budget chief and remained in the post during the past decade under Gov. William A. O'Neill. State Treasurer Francisco L. Borges, a Democrat re-elected last week, said he is flatly opposed to the idea of bonding the deficit. "It is never wise to borrow in order to pay off a deficit," Borges said. "It is not an option I would recommend."

He said he might "look a little more favorably" on the idea of short-term notes for paying off part of the deficit. While bonds are generally paid off over 20 years, short-term notes could be paid off in two years or less. "It may be that that is a much more prudent way to approach it," Borges said in an interview at week's end. "I don't think you can bond more than a few hundred million of it legitimately," said Rep. Irving J. Stolberg, D-New Haven. "If there is an illegitimate effort made at bonding, I will oppose that vigorously because that will just increase debt service and exacerbate the problem."

Stolberg said 1991 may be the year his longtime dream is fulfilled: an overhaul of the state tax system with the imposition of a state personal income tax. "I think this year is probably a window of greatest challenge and probably greatest opportunity to totally reform the total budget and the total tax system," Stolberg said. "And I hope that is recognized by all because there are not $2 billion in handouts out there."

Solberg claimed that the inefficiency of the current tax system costs the state as much as $500 million a year in lost revenues. House Speaker Richard J. Balducci, D-Newington, said he's not necessarily in favor of an income tax, but said that "everything has to be on the table."

Robert F. Frankel, D-Stratford, said that "at this juncture in time, it would be unwise to exclude any option." But he quickly added that tax reform with an income tax "as a first option (would be) unwise and inappropriate."

Milano, like his boss, retiring Gov. William A. O'Neill, doesn't see how tax increases can be avoided, despite the campaign rhetoric. He put it this way: "I would think that taxes probably will have to be some portion of the mix." Weicker said he will address the deficit problem methodically, noting that he won't take office until Jan. 9. "We're giving thought to it," he said, adding that he is putting together a group of economic advisors to help him grapple with the problem. "We'll be concentrating on the fiscal problems in the state of Connecticut, as much as we would were we in office... so we can hit the ground running on that issue," the governor-elect said. "I think it's clear to anybody that sacrifice is going to be required in some form," Weicker said. "We'll be very measured in our response and will be right on target when we do make a response."

Sen. Judith G. Freedman of Westport, ranking Senate Republican on the General Assembly's budget-writing Appropriations Committee, said she "would like to think" Weicker can avoid tax increases, but said she hasn't studied the tentative 1991-92 budget enough to know for sure. Rep. Glenn M. Arthur of Ledyard, the ranking House Republican on that panel, said Weicker should avoid any new program commitments, telling reporters after the tentative budget of $8.64 billion was released. "Every new program that's not on the street, don't do it," he said. Weicker is required to submit a balanced budget to the General Assembly the first week in February.

PZC hearing on golfing school

By SCOTT BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Golf will be the subject of one of the eight public hearings being entertained by the Planning and Zoning Commission tonight.

PZC members will listen to both sides of a request to amend zoning regulations which would allow the Connecticut Golf Academy, on Hillstown Road, to keep its doors open.

In July, an order to close the golfing school, which is owned by O'Marra's, was issued by the Planning and Zoning Commission. The school was brought to

Thanksgiving fete

MANCHESTER — The 8th annual Community Thanksgiving Dinner, sponsored by the Manchester Area Conference of Churches will be held by South United Methodist Church, corner of Main Street and Hartford Road.

Dinner will include turkey and dressing, ham, tomato bisque rice soup, mashed potatoes, peas and carrots, assorted casseroles, cranberry sauce, assorted homemade pies and desserts. The food and money for the feast has been provided by parishioners of South Church. The dinner is free to anyone in the community who would be eating alone this Thanksgiving or are short of funds. The guests will include elderly who have families who care about them but who live out of state, low income families as well as homeless from Samaritan Shelter since Shepherd's Place Soup Kitchen is not open on holidays. Free tickets are available at the MACC Department of Human

BOLTON — All those empty cans, bottles and old newspapers that residents have been putting out for recycling will be going to a new destination soon.

The town recently joined the Mid-Northeast Regional Recycling Operating Committee. The group consists of eight area towns working together to keep the costs of their recycling programs down. The committee includes Chaplin, Eastford, Union, Willington, Windham, Coventry, Mansfield and Tolland. Town officials say they joined the group because it provided the most flexibility for the town. Housing plan considered

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — The Board of Selectmen is expected to vote on a plan to join a state housing partnership plan when it meets tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Town Hall. At the selectmen's last meeting, Donald Henry, chairman of the Bolton Housing Authority, outlined the plan for the board. He said that the state is encouraging housing partnerships so towns can plan for their future.

Complex finance hearing tonight

By ALEX GIPELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — A public hearing will be held tonight by the Housing Authority of Manchester on a plan to refinance the conversion of the Ribbon Mill in the Cheney Historic District to apartments.

The hearing is set for 7 p.m. at the offices of the authority, 24 Bluefield Drive.

The plan will also be discussed at a meeting of the Board of Directors Tuesday night in the hearing room of Lincoln Center. It begins at 7:30. The housing authority has agreed tentatively to be the issuing agent for $4.5 million in new tax-exempt bonds for the mill. The bonds cannot be issued without the approval also of the Board of Directors as the legislative body of the town.

The developer is Sovereign Group, a limited partnership controlled by Parker Street Corp., a subsidiary of First Hartford Realty, Neil Ellis, owner of the Journal Inquirer, is president of First Hartford. Sovereign approached the housing authority early this month after finding that the Connecticut Housing Authority, which issues the original bonds, cannot issue new bonds because it is being merged into the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority and the city has no program for issuing such bonds. Representatives of the developer have stressed that neither the authority nor the town will assume any financial responsibility for the bonds, but a few critics have called the plan a bail out.

The Sovereign spokesman, primarily attorney Stephen Penny, have said the likely alternative to refinancing will be foreclosure on the property by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development and sale of the mill to a private owner with no requirement that 21 of the 104 apartments in the mill be reserved for low and moderate income tenants.

Tenants are sought

By Manchester Herald Staff

MANCHESTER — An affordable housing cooperative is looking for potential tenants for a new 16-unit complex. The Common Thread Co-op, which is being developed by Co-op Initiatives of Hartford, will consist of two- and three-bedroom units and will be situated at the corner of Park Street and St. James Street. Four of the units, including three of the three-bedroom and one of the two-bedroom units, will be wheelchair accessible. In cooperative housing, a group of families assumes joint ownership and management of a complex. Each family will be required to make an initial investment of $500 and contribute 200 hours of sweat equity. About 80 of those hours are spent in a class learning how to manage the building and how to work together as a cooperative. The remaining time is spent helping with construction of the complex. The sweat equity is valued at $1,000, making the total investment $1,500. Monthly charges to support the mortgage will range from $100 to $200 and will not exceed more than 30 percent of the household income. Members of the co-op will be chosen by a committee which will evaluate applications for membership and then conduct interviews with the candidates. Those people selected to live in the co-op will be able to stay for as long as they wish, but when they want to leave the co-op, they must sell their interest in the co-op back to the group at a price limited to the value of their initial investment ($1,500) plus a fixed annual percentage increase. Those interested in the co-op can attend an informational meeting Wednesday, Nov. 28, or Thursday, Dec. 6, at St. James Church, 806 Main St. Both meetings will begin at 7 p.m.

New-wave veterinarian brings peace of mind

By JANET L. CAPPIELLO The Associated Press

NORWALK — Judy Johnson didn't know how she was going to get her three feline-in-cats to the veterinarian. Seven months pregnant, she couldn't pack up the cats and her two children to make the trip. So she opened the Yellow Pages and found Dr. Nikki Berman-Levy, a veterinarian who makes house calls. "Can you imagine that? Someone still does this," marvelled Wayne Johnson, Mrs. Johnson's husband, as Berman-Levy knelt on their living room floor to examine the cats. Veterinarians who treat farm animals obviously have to make their rounds on the road. But Berman-Levy said her office is one of her own rare but growing breed of veterinarians in Connecticut and elsewhere who make house calls for dogs, cats, hamsters, gerbils, guinea pigs and other household pets. "When I worked for other people, so many people would say to me, 'My animal gets so frightened when she comes to the vet. Can you come to the house?'" Berman-Levy said. "Many, many things can be taken care of in the house, and it's much less traumatic to the animal," she said. Berman-Levy wears a blue lab coat, floor-length denim skirt and white sneakers as she makes her rounds across Fairfield County. A kerchief keeps her long black hair away from possible entanglement with little paws. She opened her practice five years ago in New York City, and brought it to Connecticut in 1987. Her rusted brown Toyota is her office, packed with maps, medicines, syringes, booklets and a car seat for one of her two sons. Her black medical bag carries her most essential supplies. She keeps up with appointments on the road by calling her telephone-answering machine. Because she doesn't have to pay for rent or employees' salaries, Berman-Levy said her overhead costs are low. She charges between $25 and $30 for a house visit, then extra for shots and supplies. If someone can't afford to pay her fee all at once, she works out a payment plan. "Visiting animals also helps the vet diagnose health problems that may be a product of their environment." "The most important thing when any animal has an ailment is the history," she said. "When you see the house, you can often find the clue that you're looking for."

Laughing jurors needed to make special request

By TRACY FIELDS The Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Jurors in the 2 Live Crew obscenity case, who sat stone-faced during the trial but were seen doubled over in laughter in the hall, finally were told they could laugh in court, too. The ruling from Judge June Johnson came after jurors confided that their efforts to keep from laughing during some testimony had left their stomachs aching. The jurist spent most of one day in court straining to hear a barely intelligible recording of a 2 Live Crew concert and listening to a play-by-play description of the show by a red-faced sheriff's deputy. "The jurors have an unusual request," the judge told attorneys for both sides. "They want to know if they can laugh. Some of them are having some physical pain." Attorneys for both sides offered no objection. 2 Live Crew leader Luther Campbell said it was a healthy sign for him and his co-defendants who were later found not guilty. Prosecutors acknowledged that introducing the murky tape was a gamble after the judge refused to let jurors have a transcript of it while it played. Instead, they listened to snatches of the tape, many shorter than five seconds, followed by sheriff's Detective Eugene McCloud's descriptions of the actions of band members and the crowd. He detailed how young women danced suggestively with band members. One woman gyrated on her knees with her face an inch from Campbell's crotch, he said, while another's breast escaped her blouse as she danced closely with Ross. The detective appeared to be uncomfortable describing the show. "The way they were dancing, it was ... I'm embarrassed," he said at one point. "Eugene, we're all grown-up adults here," Assistant State Attorney Leslie Robson prompted. During a break late in the day, Johnson's bailiff Mary Palacios found the six jurors doubled over in laughter as they waited to return to the courtroom. "They were cracking up," Palacios said. "One of them was laughing so hard he could barely breathe. I said, 'What's the joke?' They said they didn't know if they could laugh or sneeze or what during all that." Another prosecutor, Pedro Dijols, said he wasn't concerned by the outbursts. "Laughter can mean many things," he said. "People laugh when they're nervous. I laugh when I'm about to convict."

News of The Weird

CHUCK SHEPHERD

CHUCK SHEPHERD out of a jury room in a courthouse in San Antonio, Texas. The Yellow Ribbon Coalition, an Oregon timber industry organization, complained to the U.S. Forest Service in August that an environmental group's scheduled retreat in the Cascade Mountains should be canceled because it posed a "fire hazard" and because the group's annual owl-hooting contest would "constitute harassment of area wildlife." Anna Vincenza, 26, charged with helping her boyfriend murder her husband last November in Detroit with a car bomb, demanded that the funeral home that handled her husband's body give her custody of the ashes. Boxer Jerry Quarry's latest comeback attempt ended in June when he was denied a license to fight in Wisconsin because of fear for his safety. His handlers then said Quarry couldn't have fought anyway because he had banged his eye on a kitchen cabinet, but in fact he had been beaten up in Walworth County, Wis., by one of his own handlers, John Ellis, a former boxer of little note. Johnnie Lee Jones, 27, in prison since 1985 — when he stole a truck in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. (even though he'd never learned to drive), and smashed it into several cars, killing a young mother — is on the verge of a large financial settlement from Broward County Prison, which wants to save the expense of a lawsuit. In his getaway from the collisions, Jones ran in front of a car and had one leg chopped off; he later filed a lawsuit charging that the prison had caused him "pain and suffering" because of its lack of facilities to help his recuperation. The prison offered evidence that Jones had uprooted on a fellow prisoner and beat another with his artificial leg. A New Jersey judge rejected Manuel Antonio Mauricio's defense to murder with a sawed-off rifle in September. Mauricio had claimed a "machismo" defense — that his Dominican Republic upbringing had made him easily offended by insults to his manhood. In June, U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond requested a $25 refund from Lexington, S.C., for a water deposit he paid in 1938. (He was eligible for the refund because he had recently sold the property.) Asked the mayor, "How in the hell can anyone save a receipt for 52 years?"

Group nixes sexist comments

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — For Harvard University students, an annual showing of the movie "Love Story" has meant never having to say you're sorry for using sexist language — until now. The Crimson Key Society plans to offer a toned-down version of its customary commentary on the movie, which in the past has included shouts of "bitch" whenever the doomed Radcliffe student played by actress Ali McGraw appeared on screen. "It was a pretty unanimous decision that the commentary on 'Love Story' was not keeping abreast of changing issues," Catherine Bekoyou, president of the Crimson Key group, told The Harvard Crimson. "We don't want freshmen coming to Harvard expecting diversity and encountering a lot of prejudice." The film, traditionally shown during orientation week, stars Ryan O'Neal and McGraw as star-crossed Harvard lovers in the 1970s and is based on the best-selling novel by Erich Segal. The controversy over the film began last year when two students complained in a letter to the Crimson that the comments "displayed an extraordinary phallic basis" and portrayed women as "instruments of male sexuality." The students specifically objected to the comment "typical Harvard woman in bed" screamed while the dying heroine lies inert in the hospital. The Crimson Key helps introduce freshmen to Harvard's political and social activities. All Crimson Key members attended a practice showing of the film to outline the caucals which remain acceptable and those which are now banned, Bekoyou said. Some students said they thought concern over the satirical comments was overblown. "I thought it was the funniest thing during freshman week," said Adam Freed, a member of the class of 1991. "The movie is such crap anyway. I think everybody takes it pretty tongue-in-cheek."

Safety play eliminates guess

By James Jacoby

Look what happened here. West doubled, but East had all the trumps. Should that have been a surprise to South? Probably not. Experienced players know that a defender will sometimes double when he knows his partner must hold a trump stack.

South was guilty of lazy bridge. He played dummy's club 10 at trick one, winning the trick. Declarer could now guarantee his contract by leading the heart nine from dummy. If East played low, so should South. The only card that South could now lose his doubled contract would be if East got on lead with unusual trump length and came through the king of diamonds. Declarer played a heart back to his ace, expecting the doubler to hold a trump trick. When West drew hearts, South was dead in the water. He played a club to dummy's king and led the heart nine. East covered, won the heart trick and played a diamond. Declarer went up with the king. West won the ace and tried to cash the Q. Declarer ruffed the third diamond and now had no choice except to ruff a good club, draw East's trumps and then play the spade finesse. No dice. Down one.

West's defense was brilliant and warned declarer. Notice that letting the heart nine ride at trick two cannot pick up the suit. Declarer can then play the Q of clubs, and give up a diamond and a spade to make the doubled contract. Declarer played a heart back to his ace, expecting the doubler to hold a trump trick.

Yale pair satisfied by their final act

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Kevin Callahan and Chris Gaughan finished their collegiate football careers at Yale satisfied. "I can't think of a better way for things to end," Gaughan, the Elis' captain, said Saturday after Yale beat Harvard 34-19 in the 107th meeting of the Ivy League's traditional rivalry.

"It doesn't get any better than this," said Callahan, who scored two touchdowns.

Both Gaughan and Callahan said before the game that last year's 37-20 loss to Harvard had tarnished their Ivy League title. Saturday's victory gave the Elis (6-4, 2-2) their first outright Big Three title in six years and added luster to this season's third-place finish.

"Losing the outright league title last year was still bothering me, but I looked at my championship ring after the game and it's a lot shinier," Callahan said.

Darin Kehler threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Jim Ouwela and Callahan scored on a 1-yard run as the Elis took a 20-0 first-quarter lead.

Ed Reeds kicked field goals of 38 and 42 yards in the second quarter for a 20-0 halftime lead. The Elis, who held a 58-41 lead in the series, added two touch-

Several have shot at national title

By The Associated Press

Miami vs. Texas for the national championship? That wasn't even a consideration. This week, it's a distinct possibility following a dramatic Saturday of college football that saw, among other things, Notre Dame toppled from the No. 1 ranking for the second time this season.

Notre Dame's 24-21 upset by No. 18 Penn State not only knocked the Fighting Irish out of an inside shot at the national championship, it also cost the Orange Bowl a chance to host the clear-cut national championship game.

That was supposed to be No. 1 Notre Dame against No. 2 Colorado on New Year's Night in a rematch of last season's Orange Bowl game.

The Buffaloes did their part Saturday with a 64-3 whipping of Kansas State to finish their season at 10-1-1.

Meanwhile, No. 3 Miami beat Boston College 42-12 to move into national championship contention despite two losses. The Hurricanes (7-2) are bound for the Cotton Bowl, where they'll play the Southwest Conference champion — most likely Texas (8-1).

"Making the selections for bowls as early as they make the selections is ridiculous," Erickson said. "I just don't think it's fair. What happens is somebody ends up with egg on their face."

Erickson opposes a playoff system to decide the national champion. But because bowl pairings were decided so early this season, the likelihood of playoffs has increased, he said.

Miami has regular-season games left against Syracuse and San Diego

State, Texas still has to play Baylor and Texas A&M.

The Hurricanes, who are trying to become the first team to finish first or second five consecutive seasons, were ranked ninth just four weeks ago.

"Ever since the Notre Dame game, I thought we had a chance to come back and win it all," Hurricanes receiver Lamar Thomas said, remembering a 29-20 loss to the Buffaloes.

No doubt many other bowl commitments are disappointed with their premature selections. That would include the Sugar Bowl, which is stuck with an 8-2 Virginia team whose star quarterback, Shawn Moore, just underwent surgery for a dislocated thumb and may not be able to play in the bowl.

The eighth-ranked Cavaliers, who were No. 1 before losing to Georgia Tech on Nov. 3, probably will fall out of the Top 10 following Saturday's 35-30 loss to Maryland.

"Sure, we're disappointed," said Mickey Holmes, executive director of the Sugar Bowl. "I'm sure if you asked the Virginia players how they felt, they'd tell you they were disappointed."

However, if the Buffaloes lost on New Year's Night, as they did last year, the Fighting Irish, then Miami could conceivably become national champion with a victory in the Cotton Bowl. That's assuming, of course, that they win their final two regular-season games.

In other Top 10 games Saturday, it was No. 4 Georgia Tech 42, Wake Forest 7; No. 5 Brigham Young 45, Utah 22; No. 6 Florida 47, Kentucky 15; No. 7 Texas 38, Texas Christian 10; No. 9 Florida State 35, Memphis State 3; and No. 10 Washington 55, Washington State 10.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 12 Houston 84, Eastern Washington 21; No. 13 Iowa 38, Purdue 9; No. 14 Tennessee 22, No. 15 Mississippi 13; No. 16 Michigan 35, Minnesota 18; No. 17 Clemson 24, South Carolina 15; No. 19 Southern Cal 45, UCLA 42; No. 21 Ohio State 35, Wisconsin 10; No. 22 Illinois 24, Indiana 10; No. 23 Michigan State 29, Northwestern 22; and No. 24 Auburn 33, Georgia 10.

Nebraska, No. 20 Louisville and No. 25 Southern Miss did not play.

The Fighting Irish had a chance to come out with a tie after Penn State came back to make it 21-21, but coach Lou Holtz decided not to be conservative.

Maybe someday, Manchester will enjoy shared title

WOLCOTT — There will come a day when members of the 1990 Manchester High girls' soccer team will be able to sit back and feel good about being state co-champions with Wilton High.

But for a good deal of the Indians, and for at least 20 minutes afterward, they felt something just short of despair following Saturday's 2-2 tie that gave them co-championship honors in the large school division.

"That's OK, that's OK, good game," Manchester head coach Joe Erandi said as he started onto the field to congratulate his team.

"All right Indians, we won, we won," bubbly Indian senior tri-captain Kathy Cumberbatch repeated several times, trying to somehow transfer her joy.

Manchester, however, could not be convinced. The bench-looker, that which you associate with losing, couldn't be hidden. And the Indians, who felt they had the edge, wouldn't hide their feelings.

"We're all kind of disappointed because we felt we had the edge, but just couldn't put them away," Indian senior tri-captain Shelly Dieterle explained. "But how can we hold our heads down, we're co-champs."

Wilton's second goal is the one that gnaws at the Indians.

"On the second goal that Wilton scored, one of their players was holding one of our defenders away from the ball. She even admitted it so it makes us kind of upset," Dieterle said. "It shouldn't have counted. We feel we should have won it ourselves. I guess that's being selfish."

It's known as being a good competitor. It's something girls were not when they first became involved in athletics years ago. You could never tell the winners from the losers back then. Almost everyone wore a smile, win or lose.

But the Manchester girls feel an outright title was stolen from them.

"It would have been one thing, but their second goal was really... I can't get over it," said Indian stopperback batch, a four-year starter, there was no escape from the feelings of ambivalence with the outcome.

"I feel that we outplayed them," she said. "I wanted it really bad today. I've always remembered that Wilton beat us (1987 quarterfinal) when I was a freshman. The best revenge was to put the ball in the back of the net. It's just we were very unlucky we couldn't get another goal."

Manchester, which ousted Wilton 9-2, during the first 40 minutes, took control from the outset and nearly scored with barely four minutes gone.

Off a Cumberbatch corner kick, the Indians' first of the match, junior Jessica Marquez one-timed a five-yarder which Warrior fullback Carey Joshi back-saved on the goal line.

By design, Wilton's All-American Ashley Paine was more of a defender in the first half.

"That's the way we played," Wilton coach Whitey Budreckas said. "We put (Ashley) Cimmi and Paine as midfielders to try and close up the middle and force them outside. It worked the first half."

Kristen Hull, who scored Wilton's first goal, had a part of a dangerous scoring opportunity in a game.

Giants harbor feelings from Super Bowl season

ON THE RUN — New York's Otis Anderson (24) rushes for nine yards in the third quarter of Sunday's game before the Lions' William White (35) moves in to make the stop at Giants Stadium. The Giants blanked the Lions, 20-0.

By TOM CANAVAN

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The wind was blowing out of north and the wind chill factor made it feel like 18 degrees to the masses wearing stocking caps, winter jackets and gloves. "I'm not looking at an undefeated season," Giants linebacker Pepper Johnson said. "That's just a dream and if it happens it will be great. What I think we're trying to do is make progress every week, get stronger and improve our weaknesses." There was a feeling of winter in the air at Giants Stadium Sunday. And one other thing. It was beginning to feel like 1985 all over again.

The New York Giants offense was running the ball and controlling the clock. Phil Simms was hitting the big plays. The defense was dominating and was loading blanks into the Detroit Lions run and shoot offense. The bottom line for the game was Giants 20, Lions 0. The bottom line 10 games into the season is that the Giants are undefeated and, more and more people are saying this might be another Super Bowl season for New York. "I don't expect us to go undefeated, but maybe I'm the only one," Giants coach Bill Parcells said.

There's no question the Giants have been the Giants' defense. It was there that the red-hot Eagles were silent in Philadelphia next week and then came everybody's mini Super Bowl on Dec. 3 against the two-time defending champion and also undefeated San Francisco 49ers. But going undefeated is not the ultimate goal. The Super Bowl is, and New York is just a win away from clinching a playoff berth and two wins away from capturing its second straight NFC East title. touchdown pass with 13:14 remaining. Colts 17, Jets 14: Jeff George made the kind of impact expected from the top overall draft choice. He rallied Indianapolis (4-6) with a season-high 249 yards passing and two second-half touchdowns before a 38-yard field goal by Dean Bionacci won it. George had lots of help as the Jets failed to score a touchdown despite 425 yards net offense and four drives to tie the Indianapolis 21. Eagles 24, Falcons 23: Randall Cunningham and Roger Ruzek led

Philadelphia's comeback to its fourth straight win. Cunningham had three TD passes and Ruzek's winning 40-yard field goal with 1:45 remaining lifted the Eagles to 6-4. Earlier, Cunningham rallied the Eagles from a 16-7 deficit with a pair of touchdown passes in 58 seconds. Bears 16, Broncos 13, OT: Kevin Butler missed a 41-yard field goal as regulation ended with the ball struck upright. "The first one missed by inches," said coach Mike Ditka, who was rather demure on the sideline when it happened. "He's entitled." Butler said it is "a terrible feeling to miss a kick like that, but fortunately it hasn't happened much to me in my career. It felt like I hit it good, but it just started to look at the end. Actually, the one in overtime was better."

During the two 10-minute sudden death overtime sessions, Manchester smothered Wilton with seven shots compared to none for the Warriors. "I think our kids felt that Wilton was hanging on in overtime," Erardi said. "And maybe they were." A Fish 12-yorder during the first overtime just missed the left post. In the second overtime, Hornbostel skinned an Indiana 10-yarder off the top of the cross bar. "Our only objective in overtime was to come forward and win the game," Erardi said. "Mary Moriarty and Jessica Marquez were outstanding today." "Butredckas was happy with the tie." "Both teams deserve it," he said. "We (Manchester) are a very nice team. Excellent team."

Whalers top Caps HARTFORD (AP) — Playing in the shadow of Mike Liut was hard. Peter Sidorkiewicz said playing against him was more enjoyable. "When Mike was here, he was the dominant goalie for so many years. You were fighting for the same job as him and almost looking up to him. It was a tough situation," Sidorkiewicz said after the Whalers beat Washington and Liut 4-2 on Saturday. Sidorkiewicz, who blocked 26 shots, said he was aware he was playing against Liut, who was the Whalers' top goalie until he was traded in March. "Any time you play against somebody you played with, you don't want to have an awful game," he said. "I just wanted to go out there and play well. He was well liked here and I knew he was going to get a big cheer."

Someday "I just feel our kids felt Wilton was hanging on in overtime. And maybe they were. Wilton coaches were overheard toward the end of overtime telling their girls to just hang on, a few more minutes and they'll be co-champs." "I think they (Manchester) were feeling a lot of mixed emotions," Erardi said. "We had a lot of kids out there had played a long time and they felt relieve it was over and disappointed they didn't go ahead because they had opportunities." MHS girls host alumni game

MANCHESTER — The Manchester High girls' team will hold its 10-year alumni game on Saturday, Nov. 24, at Memorial Field at 2 p.m. All former players wishing to play should arrive at the field no later than 1:30 p.m. Those planning on playing should contact Coach Joe Erdari at 647-3351 or at home at 649-2328.

Jackson gets new contract

STORRS (AP) — Connecticut football coach Tom Jackson has signed a three-year contract that runs through the 1993 season. Athletic Director Lew Perkins announced. The $74,000-a-year contract, which was signed several weeks ago, is retroactive to Jan. 1 and runs through Dec. 31, 1993, Perkins said Saturday.

North Carolina routs UConn

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina won its fifth straight NCAA women's soccer championship on Sunday with a 6-0 victory over Connecticut. It was the eighth time in the nine years the tournament has been held that the Tar Heels won the title. Connecticut had snapped the Tar Heels' NCAA-record 103-game consecutive match unbeaten streak earlier this season.

Seles wins Slims crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Second-seeded Monica Seles captured third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini 6-4, 5-7, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 in the final of the Virginia Slims Championships on Sunday at Madison Square Garden. It was the young legs of Seles, at 16 nearly four years younger than Sabatini, that finally were the difference in the first women's match to go five sets since Bonnie Moore beat Myrtle McAteer 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2 in the U.S. National Championships in Philadelphia in 1901.

Couples-Floyd take golf title

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Fred Couples and Ray Floyd shot a 11-under-par 61 for a 34-under 182 total and a five-shot victory in the Ronald McDonald Children's Charities Invitational on Sunday. The final round was played under a scramble format. Each player hit a tee shot, the best was selected and two shots were played from that position. The best second shot was selected and two shots played from that position, and so on.

Trevino wins Senior Cup

MIYAMOMAMACHI, Japan (AP) — Lee Trevino shot a 1-under-par 71 for a four-shot victory over J.C. Snead and Orville Moody in the Ben Hogan Senior Cup on Sunday. Trevino finished with a 7-under 209 total on the 6,738-yard, par-72 Edinboro Golf Club course.

Earnhardt takes Winston Cup

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt wrapped up his fourth Winston Cup championship with a third-place finish Sunday as Morgan Shepherd drove to victory in the season-ending Atlanta Journal 500, his first win since March 1986. The 38-year-old Earnhardt, who stayed near the front and led several times Sunday, joins seven-time NASCAR stock car champion Richard Petty as the only drivers who have won more than four titles.

Contract talks break off

NEW YORK (AP) — Contract talks between the major and minor leagues turned bitter Sunday as both sides said they were prepared to sever their 37-year-old relationship. The minor leagues accused the majors of trying to pass an "irrationally high cost" and the majors said the minor leagues' final proposal for a new agreement was an "ill-conceived attempt to hold up major league baseball." The chief negotiator for the major leagues said the commissioner's office would begin discussions to start new minor leagues and clubs outside the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, the current minor league governing body.

No high points for Clippers, Sonics

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Clippers were a little embarrassed after scoring only 78 points, but you should have seen the other team.

Believe it or not, that low point total was good enough to win an NBA game Sunday night as the Clippers beat the Seattle SuperSonics 78-65 in a contest that set club records for fewest points by the Sonics and fewest allowed by the Clippers.

"We were both cold," said Clippers forward Ken Norman, who led everyone with 22 points despite a 7-for-25 shooting performance. "Both teams played pretty good defense, but you obviously expect a much more high-scoring game with two fast-paced teams. We did play well. And neither did we."

The Clippers shot only 39.7 percent from the field. The Sonics were even worse — hitting only 27 of 84 shots and just 11 of 21 from the foul line.

"I wish I were still in the warmup, because I hit more shots in the warmup than I did in the game," said Seattle forward Xavier McDaniel, who went 3-for-14 and scored 7 points.

No two NBA teams have combined for a smaller point total since the first season of the 24-second shot clock, 1954-55. That season, there were three games that ended Sunday night's game and two of the teams involved are defunct.

"We won, that's the bottom line," Clippers center Benoit Benjamin said after his 16-point, 12-rebound effort.

Jazz 103, Timberwolves 94: Karl Malone scored 24 points to help Utah end a four-game losing streak. John Stockton added 22 points for Utah and Thurl Bailey scored 18, while Tyrone Corbin and Tony Campbell led Minnesota with 24 points each.

The expansion Timberwolves have not defeated Utah in six tries, including five games last season. "We're used to winning more often than that," Stockton said of Utah's 3-5 start. "It was a long drought and we needed the win. Our concentration was much better."

Trail Blazers 125, Bulls 112: Clyde Drexler hit the 30-point mark for the fourth consecutive game as Portland remained the NBA's only unbeaten team.

The 9-0 start ties a club record set in 1979, when the Blazers finished the season with a losing record. The Blazers shot better than 60 percent from the field for the fourth straight game.

Drexler had 30 points, nine assists and seven rebounds in his head-to-head matchup with Michael Jordan. Jordan scored 29 points to go with seven assists and five rebounds.

Lakers 115, Warriors 93: Sam Perkins scored 22 points and James Worthy 21 as the Lakers beat Golden State with the help of poor first-half shooting by the Warriors.

The Warriors entered the game as the NBA's third-highest scoring team with an average of 124.6, but managed only 44 in the first half, making just 17 of 44 field-goal attempts, a percentage of 38.

The loss broke the Warriors' five-game winning streak and their first point total 10 points less than their previous season low in nine games.

MHS girls host alumni game

MANCHESTER — The Manchester High girls' team will hold its 10-year alumni game on Saturday, Nov. 24, at Memorial Field at 2 p.m. All former players wishing to play should arrive at the field no later than 1:30 p.m. Those planning on playing should contact Coach Joe Erdari at 647-3351 or at home at 649-2328.

Jackson gets new contract

STORRS (AP) — Connecticut football coach Tom Jackson has signed a three-year contract that runs through the 1993 season. Athletic Director Lew Perkins announced. The $74,000-a-year contract, which was signed several weeks ago, is retroactive to Jan. 1 and runs through Dec. 31, 1993, Perkins said Saturday.

North Carolina routs UConn

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina won its fifth straight NCAA women's soccer championship on Sunday with a 6-0 victory over Connecticut. It was the eighth time in the nine years the tournament has been held that the Tar Heels won the title. Connecticut had snapped the Tar Heels' NCAA-record 103-game consecutive match unbeaten streak earlier this season.

Seles wins Slims crown

NEW YORK (AP) — Second-seeded Monica Seles captured third-seeded Gabriela Sabatini 6-4, 5-7, 3-6, 6-4, 6-2 in the final of the Virginia Slims Championships on Sunday at Madison Square Garden. It was the young legs of Seles, at 16 nearly four years younger than Sabatini, that finally were the difference in the first women's match to go five sets since Bonnie Moore beat Myrtle McAteer 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2 in the U.S. National Championships in Philadelphia in 1901.

Couples-Floyd take golf title

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Fred Couples and Ray Floyd shot a 11-under-par 61 for a 34-under 182 total and a five-shot victory in the Ronald McDonald Children's Charities Invitational on Sunday. The final round was played under a scramble format. Each player hit a tee shot, the best was selected and two shots were played from that position. The best second shot was selected and two shots played from that position, and so on.

Trevino wins Senior Cup

MIYAMOMAMACHI, Japan (AP) — Lee Trevino shot a 1-under-par 71 for a four-shot victory over J.C. Snead and Orville Moody in the Ben Hogan Senior Cup on Sunday. Trevino finished with a 7-under 209 total on the 6,738-yard, par-72 Edinboro Golf Club course.

Earnhardt takes Winston Cup

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt wrapped up his fourth Winston Cup championship with a third-place finish Sunday as Morgan Shepherd drove to victory in the season-ending Atlanta Journal 500, his first win since March 1986. The 38-year-old Earnhardt, who stayed near the front and led several times Sunday, joins seven-time NASCAR stock car champion Richard Petty as the only drivers who have won more than four titles.

Contract talks break off

NEW YORK (AP) — Contract talks between the major and minor leagues turned bitter Sunday as both sides said they were prepared to sever their 37-year-old relationship. The minor leagues accused the majors of trying to pass an "irrationally high cost" and the majors said the minor leagues' final proposal for a new agreement was an "ill-conceived attempt to hold up major league baseball." The chief negotiator for the major leagues said the commissioner's office would begin discussions to start new minor leagues and clubs outside the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, the current minor league governing body.

No high points for Clippers, Sonics

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Clippers were a little embarrassed after scoring only 78 points, but you should have seen the other team.

Believe it or not, that low point total was good enough to win an NBA game Sunday night as the Clippers beat the Seattle SuperSonics 78-65 in a contest that set club records for fewest points by the Sonics and fewest allowed by the Clippers.

"We were both cold," said Clippers forward Ken Norman, who led everyone with 22 points despite a 7-for-25 shooting performance. "Both teams played pretty good defense, but you obviously expect a much more high-scoring game with two fast-paced teams. We did play well. And neither did we."

The Clippers shot only 39.7 percent from the field. The Sonics were even worse — hitting only 27 of 84 shots and just 11 of 21 from the foul line.

"I wish I were still in the warmup, because I hit more shots in the warmup than I did in the game," said Seattle forward Xavier McDaniel, who went 3-for-14 and scored 7 points.

No two NBA teams have combined for a smaller point total since the first season of the 24-second shot clock, 1954-55. That season, there were three games that ended Sunday night's game and two of the teams involved are defunct.

Oilers have new objective

By KEN RAPPOPORT
The Associated Press

After winning five Stanley Cups in the last seven years, the Edmonton Oilers have more modest goals these days. "Right now, it's just trying to catch the Winnipeg Jets for fourth place in the NHL's Smythe Division. They continued on that mission with a 3-1 decision over the New York Islanders Sunday night for their third straight victory.

"We're slowly creeping up on Winnipeg and that's our objective right now," coach John Mackay said after the defending Stanley Cup champions remained last in the Smythe Division, four points behind the Jets following a 4-3 win by Winnipeg over St. Louis. But their current winning streak looks pretty big in the wake of a club-record nine-game losing streak that, at one point, dropped them to the bottom of the overall league standings.

Peter Klimka and Craig Simpson scored first-period goals to key the victory for the resurgent Oilers. Recently acquired Max Mendenhall blasted in a rebound off the end board early in the third period to make it 3-0 before Rich Pilon scored his first NHL goal and Ed Bill Rasmussen's shutout bid.

Devis 4, Flyers 1: Troy Crowder and Kirk Muller scored first-period goals and New Jersey held Philadelphia to just 15 shots to beat the Flyers for the second time in two days.

The Devils, who beat the Flyers 3-2 Saturday, were whipped Philadelphia in five of their last seven games. With Sunday night's victory, they moved into a second-place tie with the Flyers in the Patrick Division.

The Flyers, who have a 2-7-1 record against Patrick Division teams this year, managed only two shots in the third period.

The Flyers' number of shots tied their record low at the Spectrum. Coach Paul Holmgren partially blamed the poor showing on the team's schedule, which had the Flyers playing five games in the past eight days.

Jets 4, Blues 3: Ed Olczyk's power-play goal with 3:35 remaining capped a three-goal comeback that led Winnipeg over St. Louis.

Olczyk deflected Phil Housley's shot from the point past Curtis Joseph, completing a comeback from a 3-1 deficit that had the 12,834 fans at the Winnipeg Arena sending the home team back to bed.

The victory snapped Winnipeg's three-game losing streak and ended St. Louis' six-game winning streak. League-leading goal scorer Brett Hull had his 20th and 21st for the Blues.

Agassi ATP victory may be turning point

By NESA STARCEVIC
The Associated Press

"That's something I'll carry with me to my grave," he said. "But it's unbelievable to accomplish this at this age. It's very special." "There is no question that this is the high point of my career. Stefan has been playing the best tennis all year and the pressure wasn't on me," Agassi said.

He collected $600,000 for the victory and took home $950,000 for the entire tournament from the $2 million purse.

After winning the second-set tiebreaker, Agassi dominated the match and broke the Swede three times in the last set to win the encounter in 3 hours and 15 minutes.

"Winning the tiebreaker was crucial," said Agassi, who used superb passing and excellent service returns to upset Edberg.

Agassi also had 12 aces, while Edberg had 10. But the Swede also had eight double-faults to Agassi's one.

It was Agassi's first win over Edberg on carpet, but the Swede still leads the series 3-2, including a three-set win over Agassi in the round-robin portion of this tournament.

Agassi finished the year with a career best 8-4 record against top 10 players this year.
