

'Buster' Douglas fully enjoying life outside the ring

By RUSTY MILLER
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A year ago, James "Buster" Douglas was hitting weights, running and sparring in preparation for a heavyweight title fight with Mike Tyson.

This year, Douglas is attending Lamaze classes with his wife in preparation for an impending addition to the family.

There isn't much doubt which he prefers.

"I feel like I'm the luckiest man in the world," Douglas said Monday.

Now he said he spends his days in the office of James Buster Douglas, Inc., setting up a charitable foundation in memory of his mother who died shortly before the Tyson fight.

At home, he and wife Bertha are getting ready for their first child.

And in Douglas' mind, he's laying the groundwork for clearing his name in boxing.

"I consider myself still a fighter," Douglas said. "At this point, though, I don't know what's on the horizon, but it's just a matter of when I get going to go to work and do well. Because what they say Oct. 25 wasn't the best James Douglas can offer, that's for sure."

Douglas blames his training and lack of conditioning. When he stepped on the scales, he said he was shocked when his weight was announced. He said it had a profound impact on the fight.

"I felt I was going to come in at 236, to be honest with you," said Douglas, who weighs between 250 and 260 pounds today. "I tried not to let it affect me, to go out there and go to work. But it was surprising."

After a miserable performance, he was lampooned by columnists and comedians, mocked by Tyson and Holyfield's handlers. In one week,

Douglas went from champ to chump in the public eye.

Despite being the butt of jokes, he said he didn't have problems recovering from the loss. He said he understood how folks could be so hard on him.

"I never got caught up in believing that they always loved me," he said. "I was just a fighter. I knew they were there for the moment, or however long the moment lasts. That's why I stayed away from it."

"I was intimidated in a sense because I didn't want to ever be

Scores injured in train crash

BOSTON (AP) — An Amtrak train from Washington slammed into the rear of a packed commuter train in Boston's Back Bay Station during this morning's rush hour, injuring scores of passengers, officials said.

A commuter train from Soughton, south of Boston, was hit from behind by Amtrak's Night Owl from Washington at 8:33 a.m., said Nancy Sterling Gleason, a spokeswoman for the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority.

Injured passengers were taken to four area hospitals. No deaths were immediately reported.

Soviet aid temporary

HOUSTON (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III says any U.S. aid to the Soviet Union would be temporary and tied to long-term economic reforms by the Kremlin.

Baker said Tuesday that President Bush had not decided whether to provide assistance and was waiting for a report from him today on two days of news conference indicated that any U.S. aid to the staggered Soviet economy would be limited.

Hair test poor

CHICAGO (AP) — Doctors performing a hair-ling test that can cause fatal complications should receive specialized training and certification, say researchers who found many doctors have a poor grasp of the procedure.

A written exam about the procedure was given to 496 physicians at 13 U.S. and Canadian hospitals. It found that 47 percent were unable to derive even the most basic information from the data generated by the test, researchers reported in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

MANCHESTER — Forced at knife point out of the apartment they were renting from a relative, Joseph Schlosser and his wife, Hilda, have been to Manchester nightclubs, many of them, and observed that women there behave and dress in a "looser," more promiscuous fashion than do women at the phone.

Saddam fires defense chief

By CHRISTOPHER BURNS
The Associated Press

Iraq today replaced its defense minister and ordered building owners to set up bomb shelters, barely one month before the U.N.-imposed deadline for President Saddam Hussein to pull out of Kuwait or face the possibility of war.

The announcements came near the completion of Iraq's release of Western hostages, hundreds of whom were held for up to four months at strategic sites as "human shields" against a feared attack by U.S.-led forces.

In another Arab attempt at mediation, Algerian President Chadli Bendjedid arrived in Baghdad Tuesday. Officials say he is trying to bring Saudi Arabia and Iraq together to negotiate a settlement in the Persian Gulf crisis.

An Arab diplomat in Jordan, speaking on condition of anonymity, said on Tuesday that Saudi officials had assured Baghdad they would meet with Saddam if he begins withdrawing his troops from Kuwait.

The Saudis have previously refused to talk until after a total pull-out.

In other developments today, U.S. Marines were ordered to begin withdrawing from Iraq, without more U.S. troops being sent to the Gulf.

Radio host insults Manchester women

By DIANNA M. TALBOT
Herald Features Editor

MANCHESTER — Hartford radio station announcer Joseph Schlosser — who uses the alias of "Sebastian" — has been using his morning show radio show to berate the character of Manchester, Conn., women, calling them "sluts" and other derogatory names.

This morning at about 8:30, Schlosser said that women from Manchester are "sluts," Monday speaking to a male caller on the air about a relationship the man was involved in, the caller mentioned.

"Oh," said Schlosser, "is she from Manchester?"

The issue escalated when Schlosser — who contends that he is a celebrity and therefore need not reveal his legal name — took umbrage at the Manchester Herald. In an interview with Schlosser Tuesday, the newspaper refused to refer to him in print only by his initials.

"We are concerned that someone who displays such an appalling lack of intelligence — and who berates his own city — should be allowed to express his opinions with the wit of a 13-year-old office graffiti artist — is given free rein to pollute the airwaves with this nonsense," said Herald Executive Editor Vincent M. Valvo.

This morning, Valvo argued with Schlosser over the airwaves after Schlosser again belittled the character of Manchester women, and asserted again that he should be referred to in print only by his alias.

Valvo said the disc jockey was a "coward" who makes outrageous and outrageous statements while concealing his true identity. He said Schlosser is a "liar" for misrepresenting his conversation with the Herald on Tuesday.

Schlosser, in turn, called Valvo "a lying scum."

The argument ended unresolved because Schlosser hung up on the phone.

Committee nixes term limitations

By ALEX GIRELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — A committee of the Charter Revision Commission decided Tuesday that the voters have enough control over elected town officials.

The idea of limiting terms for elected town directors every two years gives voters control over the council, but the directors should be able to serve longer terms, the committee decided Tuesday.

The committee also decided the title "Board of Directors" is confusing and should be changed to "Town Council."

The committee, one of three which is making preliminary studies of proposed charter changes, reached a consensus yesterday that election of town directors every two years gives voters control over the council, but the directors should be able to serve longer terms, the committee decided Tuesday.

The committee decided tentatively that the town attorney now has sufficient authority under the charter.

The question arose when Mayor Terry Werhosen, chairman of the Board of Directors, refused to allow attorney Dominic Squitieri to speak for Town Treasurer Roger Negro at a board meeting which a resolution of the directors was being considered.

The committee decided tentatively that the town attorney now has sufficient authority under the charter.

Ex-hostages give details of situation

By JOAN MOWER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Scores of former American hostages are giving the U.S. government valuable information about conditions inside Kuwait and Iraq over the past four months, officials say.

One former hostage says he made a diagram of the strategic site in Iraq where he was held as a "human shield."

About three-fourths of the hostages have voluntarily submitted to debriefing sessions with officials from the State Department and the military.

"Hundreds have been interviewed and hundreds more have agreed to be interviewed," Joe Ryan, a State Department spokesman, said Tuesday.

Another U.S. official said the government is interested in information on the Americans remaining in the two countries, and "anything else they might have seen while they were there and they might want to pass on."

Miles Hoffman, 33, of Roswell, Ga., said he spent eight to 10 hours earlier this month with Air Force intelligence officers who quizzed him about his captivity in Kuwait and Iraq.

Hoffman, a money manager in Kuwait, was evacuated in mid-November because he needed a bone graft on his arm, which had been hit by a bullet. He said he had been one of the "human shields" confined to two strategic sites in Iraq.

"I diagrammed the actual site," Hoffman said.

The State Department said the debriefing sessions are voluntary for the returning hostages who are private citizens. They have no obligation to submit to interviews with the government.

On the airplane home, the evacuees were handed a piece of paper asking if they would like to provide information to the U.S. government. Special teams are sent to question those who agree.

Some former hostages, however, said they had no contact with the U.S. government.

Bobby Parker, 49, of Vidler, Texas, said he was a "human shield" at a military installation about 25 miles north of Baghdad. Parker arrived in Houston on Sunday on a flight arranged by former Gov. John Connally.

Parker said the installation was teeming with soldiers, rockets, helicopters and other military equipment. "I think it was a repair facility," he said in a telephone interview.

But Parker, who worked for Kuwait Drilling Co., said no one has approached him to tell his story. He received a call Sunday from Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, who helped arrange for Parker's son, Eric, 25, to return home for a temporary leave from his assignment in Saudi Arabia with the Army.

Dawn Barner of Palm Desert, Calif., said U.S. officials were keen to talk to her about the "attitude of the Iraqis" and other Americans when she left the country in September.

But she said her husband, Mark, hasn't talked with anyone since he returned Sunday.

About 510 Americans citizens, most of them children with dual citizenship, have opted to remain in Kuwait and Iraq, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said Tuesday.

Boucher said eight Americans boarded a U.S. chartered aircraft Tuesday in Iraq, leaving just three people who want to be evacuated.

Another U.S. flight is scheduled Thursday. Five American diplomats are working at the embassy in Kuwait and all will be brought home soon, but it has not been decided whether they will be aboard that flight.

Mission tempers racist remarks

By ELAINE KURTENBACH

TOKYO — Two Japanese legislators flew to the United States today to meet with American black leaders and seek to cool tempers inflamed by insulting remarks the justice minister made about blacks.

Yoshiro Mori and Motoji Kondo, senior legislators representing the governing Liberal Democratic Party, were to visit Washington, New York and Los Angeles.

"We're going at Prime Minister (Foshiki) Kaifu's request, but also because I feel personally worried that we haven't really dealt with the problem yet," Mori said in an interview.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Taiso Watanabe said his ministry "highly recommended" the legislators' mission to the United States.

"It should not be a one-shot effort," Watanabe said, but the first of several such bridge-building efforts.

Fiery pileup on foggy road leaves 15 dead

By DAN GEORGE
The Associated Press

CALHOUN, Tenn. — Survivors of a roughly 75-car pileup that left at least 15 people dead said the road vanished behind a shroud of fog, then heard nothing but "bangs and booms" as one vehicle after another collided.

At least 50 people were injured in Tuesday's chain-reaction crash, Tennessee's worst traffic accident in at least 20 years. At least six tractor-trailers burst into flames and the fire raced across more than two miles of Interstate 75, reducing dozens of vehicles to burned-out shells.

Authorities pulled bodies from the wreckage for hours Tuesday and planned to resume looking for victims today. They said it was likely many more would be found in the twisted, charred hulks of metal.

"It's just so much destruction in one place, all up and down the highway," said firefighter Brent Runyon. "It's just three miles of hell."

Survivors said the crashes began when motorists hit a stretch of highway strewn in fog.

"All of a sudden, everybody started stopping right in front of us," said Ralph Fisher of Cleveland, Tenn., who managed to get to the side of the highway as vehicles all around him collided and burst into flames. "After that I started hearing bangs and booms from everywhere."

The stretch of highway 40 miles from Chattanooga has long been notorious for dangerous fog and had several chain-reaction crashes over the years. Runyon recalled that several people were killed in a similar pileup there in 1979.

The section is lined with flashing yellow warning lights. Authorities said the crashes began on the southbound side of the highway. The wrecks then spread to the northbound lanes.

Most of the cars and trucks did not burn, but many were crushed beyond recognition. Others were strewn along the shoulder and center divider at bizarre angles, some of them wrapped around each other like layers of an onion.

Many people leaped from their cars after stopping and scrambled to safety in the median. At least one person was struck by a car as he stood outside his vehicle.

"There was a lot of confusion," said Clyde Wilder, a truck driver from Knoxville. "There was people scattered around. They didn't know what was going on."

"When we got here, it was so foggy you couldn't see your hand in front of your face," said Hal Munck, director of the Bradley County Office of Emergency Preparedness.

"It was terrible. People were just walking around. They didn't know what happened. They couldn't see."

INTERSTATE DISASTER — Wreckage lines the road at a chain-reaction traffic accident of more than 75 vehicles on Interstate 75 near Calhoun, Tenn. Fog is blamed for the pileup, which involved at least 75 vehicles and left at least 15 dead and 50 injured.

Drug industry raising prices

By DEBORAH MESCE
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The prescription drug industry is disputing accusations that it is driving up drug prices by squandering millions of dollars on lavish gifts and trips for doctors.

Drug companies' representatives are a crucial link to physicians, the head of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers' Association said in testimony prepared for today's hearing by the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

"To develop the knowledge necessary, medical practitioners must have prompt, reliable and detailed information regarding products and the diseases they treat," Gerald Mosinghoff said.

"The entity in the best position to provide in-depth information is the company that develops the new drug," he said.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the committee chairman, said his staff had determined that the pharmaceutical industry spends more than $5 billion a year on promoting drug products in the United States.

But witnesses who testified before the panel Tuesday cited examples after example of drug companies offering everything from frequent-flyer miles to outright cash to physicians in exchange for prescribing a company's product.

"Drug companies have institutionalized deception," said David C. Jones, a former public relations official for Ciba-Geigy Corp. and Abbott Laboratories.

"The price of prescription drugs is determined by what the market will bear," he said. "Pain, suffering and desperation will support a high price."

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., the committee chairman, said his staff had determined that the pharmaceutical industry spends more than $5 billion a year on promoting drug products in the United States.

Ruling restrains infiltration of religious services

By WILLIAM F. RAWSON
The Associated Press

PHOENIX — The government violated the First Amendment rights of church groups when it infiltrated and secretly tape-recorded religious gatherings, a federal judge ruled.

The government "does not have unfettered discretion to conduct investigations and law enforcement activities," U.S. District Judge Roger Strand ruled.

Four Arizona churches and two national denominations sued the federal government in 1986 over use of paid informers by the Immigration and Naturalization Service to secretly tape-record services in 1984.

The infiltration came during an investigation of the sanctuary movement, which provided shelter and transportation for illegal aliens fleeing alleged persecution in Central America.

The investigation resulted in the conviction of eight people in May 1986 on conspiracy and alien-smuggling charges. Attorneys for the churches said none of the evidence came from the tape-recorded services.

The lawsuit, which sought nominal damages against individual INS agents in the case, had been dismissed in district court on grounds the churches lacked standing to bring the First Amendment claim.

The trial court, also ruled the churches were barred from recovering monetary damages against individual INS officers or the Department of Justice.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco reinstated the lawsuit and sent it back to district court.

The churches then decided against seeking monetary damages, but pressed for a declaratory ruling to "settle the relationship between the churches and the government" and "give church members relief from the insecurity and uncertainty which has resulted from this controversy."

Strand granted the churches' motion for the declaration, but rejected their request that the government be forced to obtain warrants before infiltrating church services.

Reputed mobster boss Gotti arrested by FBI

By VERENA DOBNIK
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Reputed Mafia boss John Gotti was behind bars today, reportedly accused of ordering the slaying of Paul Castellano, who was shot to death outside a New York restaurant in 1985.

Authorities say the hit let Gotti — a barrel-chested man with a penchant for expensive double-breasted suits — take charge of the Gambino family.

Gotti's lawyer, Bruce Cutler, did not immediately return a phone call seeking comment. But he has said before that Gotti was not connected to the slaying.

The Times said the indictment accuses Gotti of violating the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations law by running a criminal enterprise — the Gambino family — since 1986.

The arrest capped a five-year FBI investigation into Castellano's killing.

PHOENIX — The government violated the First Amendment rights of church groups when it infiltrated and secretly tape-recorded religious gatherings, a federal judge ruled.

The government "does not have unfettered discretion to conduct investigations and law enforcement activities," U.S. District Judge Roger Strand ruled.

OPINION

Saddam: killer, dictator, PR man

By SUSAN SCHAUER
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Iraqi President Saddam Hussein probably could have a good future in public relations. It's with a political "spin master's" sense of timing that he decided last week to free the thousands of American and foreign "human shields" he's held captive since his Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

No public relations firm in the world could have given Saddam better advice than to begin releasing the hostages so they could be home in time for Christmas, especially if he wants to turn the tide on President Bush and steer public opinion in his favor.

The first wave of hostages — more than 150 Americans — arrived back on U.S. soil Monday. While some looked gaunt and weary after the long ordeal and flight back to freedom, being home, especially in time for the holidays, is the greatest gift they could ever have hoped for.

Good feelings about the hostage release shouldn't cloud our judgment, though.

The fact is, Iraq is still holding Kuwaiti hostages, and Saddam has shown no signs of withdrawing his troops. In fact, he has reinforced his troops in the region.

U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf are expected to reach 400,000 soldiers in the next few weeks. The second-largest force, 144,500 troops, is from the area most directly threatened by Iraq's occupation of Kuwait — the Gulf Cooperation Council nations of Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Oman, United Arab Emirates, Qatar and the emirate of Kuwait.

Egypt has pledged 20,000 soldiers, along with tanks and heavy artillery. Syria, which borders Iraq to the west, has 6,500 soldiers in Saudi Arabia and a 15,000-member armored division is to be added.

Americans, including most members of Congress, have supported President Bush's efforts in the Gulf. Whether that support will continue once all of the hostages have been freed remains to be seen.

Will Americans continue to support Bush, even if it means a continued drain on the now-shaky economy? Will the picture of a ruthless Saddam Hussein be softened some by his decision to let the hostages go in time for Christmas? Will we allow ourselves to swallow Saddam's carefully orchestrated public relations move?

We hope not.

Saddam's release of the hostages cannot erase the brutality of what he and his troops have done to Kuwait. They overran a tiny, peaceful nation out of nothing more than greed. They murdered, brutally beat and tortured Kuwaitis who tried to protect what was rightfully theirs. And now, despite the release of the hostages, there's still a threat against thousands of other Americans stationed across the Gulf region — our troops.

We cannot allow ourselves to be so taken in by the joy of seeing our hostages come home, that we begin to temper our support for what President Bush has initiated. Saddam Hussein remains as much a threat today as ever. His tone goodwilled gesture to release the hostages cannot erase or temper the sins of his past.

Settling the record straight

I'm writing in regards to a December 1 front page article in the Manchester Herald regarding the "fact" that the GOP asserted that the History Department Civics Class was improper and may be due to impeachment. There was never any question of the class being cut or curtailed, this was grossly exaggerated.

Here are the facts the way they were; not the way they were presented.

During the last budget referendum, when the budget was finally accepted, we heard that a town employee had students distribute flyers to pass the budget, and the students received credit for their involvement. At the very next Board of Education meeting, we asked if this was proper procedure. This was a very innocent question that only required enlightenment.

At the BOE's meeting (November 29, 1990), the History department teachers came and explained the procedures and defended their actions, stating that the students also do community service, towards the 10-hour requirement for the senior class. All four teachers in the department defended their programs and stated that they would not be cut. They did a terrific presentation and the explanations were to everyone's satisfaction. I'm sure, the Board of Education as well as to the public (who also had questions on the practice), now know how things are done, and are all satisfied.

As I stated before, there was never any talk of discontinuing the civics class practices. When this information was obtained make the Republicans question who was behind this and why?

We do not need any rubble-rouser to incite a terrific group of teachers at our high school.

Did China ship arms to Saudis?

By JACK ANDERSON
and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The People's Republic of China may have shipped nuclear warheads to Saudi Arabia since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2, according to highly sensitive intelligence reports going to President Bush.

The warheads would be placed on CSS-2 intermediate-range ballistic missiles that the Saudis bought from China, equipped with conventional warheads, in 1985. When the United States found out about that missile sale three years later, both China and Saudi Arabia promised that the missiles would never be fitted with nuclear warheads.

But U.S. intelligence officials now fear that promise may have been broken. Intelligence reports note that the evidence is not conclusive, but it was serious enough to be included in the President's Daily Briefing. Only several dozen top administration officials see that document, which is used to brief the president on the most urgent intelligence matters. The material in the briefing is classified higher than "Top Secret."

One source told us he saw the information about the nuclear warheads in the Nov. 23 briefing.

The reports on the alleged transfer say that highly reliable sources used by the Central Intelligence Agency replicate the Saudi ambassador to the United States in the deal. The sources say that Prince Bandar bin Sultan asked the Chinese on Aug. 3, the day after the invasion, to give Saudi Arabia chemical and nuclear warheads for the CSS-2 missiles.

U.S. electronic intelligence has detected that the CSS-2s have been in a state of high readiness since Aug. 3.

Prince Bandar negotiated the original purchase of the CSS-2s on a trip to Beijing in 1985. The Saudis were so cagey that U.S. intelligence did not find out about the sale until January 1988. Saudi King Fahd then wrote to President Reagan saying there were no nuclear warheads on the CSS-2s and that Saudi Arabia was not looking for any.

The recent top-secret reports on the CSS-2s, relying heavily on information developed by the Defense Intelligence Agency, say there has been an influx of Chinese nuclear missile technicians into Saudi Arabia since early August. To mask the buildup, the Chinese reportedly take secret flights to Pakistan and then to Saudi Arabia.

The U.S. intelligence reports maintain that if there are nuclear warheads in Saudi Arabia, the Chinese have insisted on controlling them. One top-secret DIA report says there may be as many as 1,000 Chinese military advisers in Saudi Arabia — more than 100 of them recent arrivals.

The same DIA report says there are about 50 CSS-2s at fixed and mobile sites in Saudi Arabia. The Saudis originally made a dozen or more of the missiles mobile so they could be hidden from U.S. and Israeli intelligence.

The CSS-2 has a maximum range of 1,678 miles. It is not considered highly accurate and would normally be used against large targets such as cities instead of hardened military targets where the strike would have to be precise.

The Chinese built the CSS-2 for use against the Soviet Union, other Asian countries and U.S. bases in the western Pacific Ocean. But they aren't above selling it, too. China is a major supplier of arms to the Third World, and the Saudis are good customers. In the last eight years, Saudi Arabia has been the largest Third-World arms buyer, followed by Iraq.

More cuts ahead
Congressional economists plan to serve the incoming Congress with bad news. The only way to stop an economic catastrophe is to cut federal spending, and that means cutting entitlement programs that have always been sacrosanct. The economists will suggest a "means test" to restrict payments to only those who really need them.

Mini-editorial
U.S. military strategists are happy to say that one of Saddam Hussein's weaknesses is that he surrounds himself with people who tell him what he wants to hear. Saddam isn't the only one who doesn't want to be confused by the facts. The recent Senate Armed Services Committee hearings on the Persian Gulf crisis produced a parade of former secretaries of Defense and State who warned that President Bush should go slowly and let sanctions work against Iraq. But when it came time for the current inner circle to speak, they sang a different tune, the tune Bush wants to hear.

Report card on the Gulf

Here are some grades on some of the players in the Persian Gulf crisis. Also, predictions:
The Democrats (as a group) have fallen from an early B+ to a C. Once again, they are seen as the pussycat party. The demise of the Soviet Union was supposed to save them. It was said that Democrats would no longer have to worry about being soft on defense. But: There they go again. Ted Kennedy won't even say use force if sanctions don't work.

(Exempted: Sen. Charles Robb and Reps. Les Aspin and Steven Solarz — who have been tough, and right.)
The press corps (as a group) has fallen from a B to a C+. They mindlessly puffed a story about how the American people turned against the use of force, and turned against the president's policies. Prof. Everett C. Ladd, director of the Roper Center, says "that never happened, not even close, not a glimmer..."

(On the topic of Israel: One Arab nation rapes another Arab nation — and Israelis suffer for it in the U.N. If Iraq wants to harm Israel further, they should invade Yemen next.)
The we-need-a-draft argument of columnist Mark Shields gets a C-. If we didn't need a draft when confronting a nuclear-stopped, expansionist superpower, we don't need one now. Nor is our military a bunch of poor minority kids. Our pilots, who will likely bear the brunt of any fighting, are highly educated professionals.

The Bush Administration has gone from an A+ to a still-solid B+.
Why are they saying that the American use of force means ground war? Such combat could involve substantial casualties. If Saddam does not yield, heavy air strikes are the strategy of choice, certainly now with the hostages out of harm's way. Let's find out if air strikes work.

Normally, the military should make the tactical judgments. But this goes to the heart of American geopolitical credibility. Now and later, if America is able to make a major military statement with relatively few casualties, and if potential adversaries know and fear that, then we are more likely to prevail, without using force. That is the game's name.

Farefare please. Highest marks go to the American public: a solid A. First it was said they had no patience. Then it was said they had so much patience that they favored sand-soaked sanctions forever. They are doing just fine.

Predictions: At the end of the day, the American alliance will prevail, probably peacefully, possibly violently. Saddam will leave Kuwait.
The tough political test will likely come after that: What will be done about Iraq's weapons of mass destruction? The Bush-and-Baker boys say they will deal with it. I believe it. Power talks. By sanctions and/or force, we and our allies have the power to dictate a solution.

When the sand settles, America — more so than ever — will be the most important nation on earth. That is also a much-desired part of the engine.
With a solid superpower in place, a New World Order will emerge, with a reasonable chance to yield real peace. Give peace a chance.

Chinese woman said to win surgery battle

By DENISE LAVOIE
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Juliet Cheng, a Chinese mother who fought for the right to treat her daughter's rheumatoid arthritis with traditional Chinese remedies, said she knew all along that surgery was not the solution.

Now two out of three court-approved doctors have agreed, recommending against surgery for 7-year-old Shirley Cheng.

According to Juliet Cheng's lawyer, George Athanson, the findings invalidate an earlier court order authorizing surgery for Shirley, who has been in state custody since July.

"I know what's best for my daughter," said Cheng. "It's God's way," she said at a news conference Tuesday where Athanson released the doctors' findings. "I am so happy. I believe that justice has been done."

But Tom Hartley, a spokesman for Newington Children's Hospital, where Shirley is receiving treatment, said the child's condition has deteriorated in the past two months — a trial period in which Cheng was allowed to have a doctor of her choice treat Shirley.

"Her range of motion is decreased," Hartley said. "The state Department of Children and Youth Services took temporary custody of Shirley in July after her mother refused to allow doctors at Newington Children's Hospital to operate."

The agreement called for three doctors approved by the court to examine the girl after the two months was up last week.

Cheng, who lives in New Britain, couldn't find a traditional Chinese practitioner who was also a licensed medical doctor. So she chose Dr. William Shevin, who practices acupuncture, herbs and other Chinese remedies.

Cheng, who emigrated to the United States a decade ago, said she probably will not take her daughter back to China for treatment with acupuncture, herbs and other Chinese remedies.

Hartley named UConn head

By ANDREW FRASER
The Associated Press

STORRS — University of Connecticut trustees got tired of people using the university president's job as a stepping stone, so they turned to somebody who is already a Husky at home.

In a near unanimous vote, the Board of Trustees Monday night elected Harry J. Hartley, currently interim president, as the university's 12th president in 1989.

Hartley has been at the university since 1972, first as an education professor, then as dean of the university's School of Education. He was vice president for finance and administration when he was named interim president last summer.

The son of two educators, Hartley is also a former president of the university's faculty union. He is a favorite of university employees and merchants near the campus, who supported his candidacy for the job by placing signs in store windows.

"The Board of Trustees believes very strongly that Dr. Hartley offers UConn what it needs most in these difficult times: a deep love for the institution, budgeting expertise, a knowledge of our state and its government, and a long-term commitment to the university," Board Chairman Andrew J. Canzoneri said in a statement.

In a news conference Tuesday, Hartley indicated that he had no aspirations to abandon his new job soon and said he plans to make UConn a prominent national research institution.

"In the past six months I've basically been a manager on an interim basis," he said. "What my role changes to now is more of an educational leader for the next 10 years. And my vision is we will be a nationally recognized research institution with a strong undergraduate teaching component as well."

Asked if he was the whole team outside, he said jokingly "I've never seen these people before."

On a more serious note, Hartley said he planned no immediate changes.

legislative approval. Shevardnadze did not rule out the possibility that the executive branch may one day have to act without parliament's consent.

—OPEC's president cautioned that current high levels of crude production could leave the world "awash in oil" and markets in turmoil once the Gulf crisis ends. Sadok Bousena made the statement in opening a conference of the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Vienna.

Baghdad Radio said Saddam replaced Gen. Abdul-Jaber Khalil Shamsah, 70, as defense minister. The new defense minister is Maj. Gen. Saadi Toma Abbas, who is in his 50s, the inspector-general of the armed forces and a former deputy chief of staff, the radio said.

The radio, quoting a decree from Saddam, said Shamsah was retiring because of his age. But military analysts questioned the timing.

"(Saddam) would appear to be holding on to the reins of power. This would tend to underline that there is opposition to his strategy of holding onto Kuwait," said Paul Rogers, a defense analyst at England's Bradford University and an expert of Middle East military affairs.

The firing came one month after Saddam sacked the armed forces chief of staff.

Iraq's ruling Baath party newspaper, Al-Thawra, said civil defense authorities have instructed all owners of buildings with two or more floors to convert their basements into shelters. It ordered the owners to post signs informing people where to take cover.

Under Iraqi law, landlords can be fined or imprisoned for failing to build the shelters and prepare them to receive people in time of war.

The United Nations has authorized the use of force to liberate Kuwait, unless Iraq withdraws by Jan. 15. By that date, the U.S.-led multinational force assembled in the region is to include more than 500,000 troops — about the same size as the Iraqi force in and around Kuwait.

In Frankfurt, U.S. Consulate spokesman Craig Springer said seven Americans were on the U.S.-chartered Iraqi Airways Boeing 707 that landed there late Tuesday from Baghdad. He said the former hostages would fly to their final destinations today on regular commercial flights.

Tuesday's British charter to London carried about 310 people, nearly all of them Britons but including seven Americans.

Saddam on Thursday ordered the release of all remaining Westerners, citing positive diplomatic developments and his country's readiness to defend itself.

State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said in Washington on Tuesday that more than 500 Americans, most of them children, remain in Kuwait and Iraq — some because of roots there. In other cases, he said, they remain because the non-American head of household could not get Iraq permission to leave.

He added that he believes that Connecticut women who live east of the Connecticut river, in general, are less conservative than women who live west of the river.

"Manchester may bring out this [stereotype] more often than other [east of the river] towns," Schlosser said. "It is not exclusive to Manchester."

Bolton confronts deficit of $50,000 to $100,000

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Tight budgets and unexpected expenses have the town facing a budget deficit that could run as high as $50,000 to $100,000 unless some action is taken.

According to a Dec. 6 memo from Helen Kemp, executive assistant to the Board of Selectmen, written to the Board of Finance, the main culprit is the budget for garbage removal.

Kemp said that at the rate the collections are going, the town will spend $50,000 to $70,000 more than it had budgeted in tipping fees and $3,000 more on recycling.

"The problem is we're producing more garbage than I originally thought and we're recycling much less," Kemp said.

Based on data from the past four years, Kemp estimated that waste would increase by 4 percent, and based on state figures, she estimated that recycling would remove 25 percent of the garbage. However, based on data from the first four months of the year, waste has increased by 5 percent and recycling has only affected tonnage by 14 percent.

The unemployment budget is also nearly dry. Rita Demko, secretary of the Board of Finance, said there is about $900 left in the $9,000 budget. Unemployment costs have been running about $2,800 a month this year and Dimock says there may be another one or two people added to the rolls.

Dimock said that the monthly bills have to be paid within a certain time frame or the town is charged interest.

Other areas that are causing problems for the town include heating and diesel fuel. Kemp said that the cost of a gallon of heating fuel last year averaged about $0.61 per gallon, while it is running about $0.97 per gallon now. Diesel fuel has also increased by almost 50 percent from $0.70 per gallon to $1.03 per gallon.

Funds for engineering services have been exhausted in the first five months of the year. Kemp said some money from the land use manager's salary account has been used to pay some of the engineering costs incurred before the new town engineer was hired.

Kemp said she has told the town boards that they may use outside engineering services on projects that they have been working on, but once the projects are complete, they must use the town's engineer.

The problems with the town's welfare budget have been well documented, and have already cost the town an extra $4,800 and director Felix Cannon said earlier this week that she has just added a new client.

Further, Connecticut Light and Power also plans to raise its rates for electricity next year. Rates will go up 4.8 percent in February and are expected to go up another 7 percent in July. Kemp said she has not estimated how much the increase will cost the town yet.

Kemp said the looming deficit is the result of a difficulty in changing the way local boards and commissions request funds for projects.

"I think what has happened is that some boards and commissions have depended on the surplus as a safety net," she said.

Selectman Doug Cheney says he sees only one way out of the situation for the town.

"I think we're going to have to borrow some money," Cheney said. "We can't go through an entire year without some emergency funds."

Cheney said he doesn't regret that the Board of Finance last year spent over $200,000 from the town's surplus fund, leaving it with only $30,000 to start this fiscal year. The finance board spent $85,000 to pay off the town's rescue vehicle and $120,000 to lower the mill rate from 20.9 mills to 20.4 mills.

"I'm sure they did what they thought was best," he said. "We don't have a working crystal ball here."

The town is also falling short on the revenue side. In the 1990-91 budget, the town expected $20,000 in income from building permits, but has only received $3,000 so far this year.

Charter

to control when town departments can hire outside legal counsel, but they did not make a decision on whether some of the town's assistant town attorneys should be full-time, as suggested by Town Attorney Maurice Cmielicki.

Other tentative decisions made by the committee include:

- Raising from $1,000 to $2,000 the limit at which the town attorney and the manager can approve settlements in suits against the town, without approval by the directors, but leaving that limit in the charter.

- Leaving authority for traffic control to the Police Department and not creating a separate department or commission for it.

No decision was reached by the committee on whether the Library Board should be made an advisory group and the library operation integrated with the town administration. And there was no decision on

Director struck with criticism

By ALEX GIPELLI
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Democratic Town Director Stephen Cassano faced heavy criticism Monday night from Thomas E. Landers, a Democrat, and the husband of Republican Town Director Ellen Burns Landers.

Speaking at the close of the meeting of the directors, Landers charged that Cassano feels that if he can intimidate, one member of the five-member Republican majority on the board and force that member to abstain from voting, it will reduce the majority power.

"That's the type of arrogance that cost the Democrats the election last year," Landers said.

Cassano had asked the Ethics

Attorney objects to project flyer

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — The town attorney says that a pamphlet on the proposed school building project that has been prepared by the town clerk contains some wording that could be seen as favoring the project.

Town Attorney Richard Barger last week told Helen Kemp, executive assistant to the Board of Selectmen, that the pamphlet that will be sent to all households and will all absentee ballots "raises some questions" about its neutrality.

State law requires that any brochure describing a proposal that is printed and distributed using municipal funds not advocate either the approval or disapproval of the proposal in question.

The $107.5 million project includes an addition and renovations to the elementary school, closing the Center School and adding a new cafeteria, music room and additional space for the Industrial Technology area.

The pamphlet which details the project, created by Town Clerk Catherine Leiner, is a smaller, less detailed version of one proposed by the Board of Education, Kemp said. The pamphlet uses material copied directly from the larger brochure.

Barger said that several passages in the flyer appeared to draw conclusions about the project that should not be made. For example, in several instances, the flyer says that the project "will" help the school system to meet its educational goals. "Will" infers that the proposal has in fact passed," he said.

Barger said this should be reworded to say that the project "would" help the school system meet its goals if the project is approved by the voters at the Jan. 28 referendum.

Barger was also supposed to review a 12-page brochure that has been written by the Board of Education, but has not done so. Barger said that because all information about the project is supposed to come from the town clerk, the Board of Education could not distribute its brochure as planned.

The board plans to distribute its brochure to the entire town, however Barger's opinion appears to discourage those plans. Barger quotes from a state law which appears to say that the board could only issue its brochure as a press release and then only give it out to members of the public who request it.

But School Superintendent Richard Packman said that while Barger's opinion may follow the letter of the law, it does not follow precedents set elsewhere in the state.

"There are other communities that have done similar brochures for the community," he said.

Packman said he is having the Board of Education's attorney review both the law and the brochure to see if he thinks a general mailing could legally be done.

Kemp said that the only way a mass mailing of the Board of Education's brochure could be carried out is if an advocacy group reprinted the brochure and mailed it using its own funds.

Game for students

Councilman wins point, stays on GOP committee

By JACQUELINE BENNETT
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — GOP Councilman Stephen Clarke took on his own town committee and seemingly won the battle at a recent meeting with the Republican Town Committee.

"I'm not a politician, I'm just a guy trying to do what's right for the town. If my thinking disagrees with you, I'm still going to be my own self," Clarke told 14 Republican Town Committee members gathered at the Town Office Building.

"It might have been an error in having me run, thinking I would vote the party line," Clarke added.

Philip Bouchard, vice chairman of the committee, called for Clarke's resignation from the committee last month over his public support of the town budget. In particular, Bouchard cited Clarke's signing of a filer put out by the Democratic Town Committee.

"Never in the history of the Republican Town Committee has a member signed a Democratic Town Committee filer. If you differ with the [GOP] town committee, do so privately, don't go public with it — it was a slap in the face," Bouchard said.

But Clarke said he did not know at the time he even was a member of the GOP Town Committee. However, Clarke made it clear that the membership question was irrelevant to his position on the budget.

After the budget was defeated in three referendums, Clarke went to the committee and asked that it back off on its opposition to the budget, as well as withdraw a lawsuit filed against the town because the Democratic majority council set an increased mill rate without an approved budget.

When the committee refused and the budget was defeated a fourth time, Clarke took a public stand against his own town committee in the budget battle saying, "Enough is enough." Subsequently, the budget passed in a fifth referendum four months into the current fiscal year.

"I came to the committee and said 'Let's compromise, and get snowed-out.' That turned me off," Clarke said.

"I am willing to remain [on the committee]. If you prefer I resign, I will. But if I remain, I will take my tract — it may not agree with you," said Clarke.

GOP Chairwoman Blanche Strater seemed to back off any call for Clarke's resignation, almost overlooking the whole matter and asking him for future reports on council business.

Bouchard took the responsibility for asking for Clarke to resign. "When you're elected at a caucus you have a commitment to work for the committee," Bouchard said.

When all was said and done, in an uncharacteristically quiet manner, members appeared to accept Clarke's position and agreed that he will remain on the committee.

Asked if he felt he had won, Clarke replied, "In a way yes. As I spoke, I saw some heads nodding that we need not be so dogmatic," Clarke said.

Bouchard came over and shook Clarke's hand. "You made your point and I made mine," Bouchard said.

Contract session planned

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — Members of the Board of Education will meet Thursday for a special strategy session for the teacher contract negotiations.

The hour-long meeting, which will be held in executive session, will begin at 7 p.m., delaying the start of the regular board meeting to 8 p.m. The board is also scheduled to hold another strategy session following the meeting.

The special session follows an all-night negotiating session this weekend involving the board, leaders of the Bolton Education Association and a state mediator. The 14-hour marathon began at 6 p.m. Friday and continued through 8 a.m. on Saturday with mediator Larry Foy moving between the two negotiating teams which were settled in different rooms in the High School.

Superintendent Richard Packman says the two sides are close to an agreement, but the talks are still open. Packman said the board will discuss the results of this weekend's session, but he said he doubts there will be any action taken.

"We are still in mediation," Packman said. "There is not a tentative settlement."

Negotiators for both sides have been meeting since September, but when a settlement could not be reached by the Nov. 25 deadline set by the state, they had to file for mediation.

Bolton leases kennels

By JACQUELINE BENNETT
Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The Town Council has authorized Town Manager John Ellesser to enter into a three-year contract with the town of Bolton to provide regional canine services.

Under the plan, Ellesser will lease Camelot Kennels, 384 Swamp Road, from its owner, Richard Syke, at an annual cost of $15,000, which includes electricity, water, telephone service and grounds maintenance.

The plan would begin operating on a six-month trial basis.

Bolton officials are interested in the town taking over its own dog patrol service, and will pay $18,000 per year for the service.

Other reasons for the move are because the town's current dog pound is too small and in poor condition and drinking water at the site is contaminated. The town spends about $3,000 annually on the pound.

A new facility, not including the potential cost of land acquisition, would cost about $70,000, Ellesser estimates.

"It's really a choice: borrow money to build a new dog pound now or take advantage of this [offer]," Ellesser told the council during a meeting at the Town Office Building.

Candy

"Chocolate has long been an American favorite and we are happy that we can supply the soldiers in Saudi Arabia with a familiar taste from home," said Richard A. Zimmerman, Hershey's chairman and chief executive officer.

Ms. Glass said Hershey has cooperated with the Army since 1957 in providing specially made chocolate bars. In June 1957, Hershey sent 90,000 candy bars to military personnel.

"There have been heat-resistant bars in the past, but one of the specifications given out by the Army is that it tastes good, like commercially available chocolate," she said.

"Another specification is that it is made with real milk chocolate," Ms. Glass said.

Ms. Glass would not answer any other questions on the bar's contents or how it is made.

The troops haven't sent word yet on the Desert Bar, but an Army spokesman said the chocolate candy is good.

"It's quite a tasty bar. A familiar chocolate candy bar and it's in a familiar form," said Harvey Keene, spokesman for U.S. Army Natick Research, Development and Engineering Center in Natick, Mass.

The development of candy for military use isn't unprecedented. M&M's, a product of Mars Inc., first were made for military personnel during World War II. What made M&M's so useful to the military is as simple to explain as the product slogan: "Melts in your mouth, not in your hands."

Great Tasting Gifts FROM THE KITCHEN

If the holiday season seems like a wild shopping spree, then it's time to reconsider your gift-giving strategy. Today's savvy givers remember their friends with homemade treats and baked goods during the holidays. It's easy, gratifying and fun—and certainly more memorable than a store-bought present.

Though many people say they haven't time to make food gifts from scratch, it's really a matter of selecting the right recipes. Look for recipes that require a minimum investment of time, but yield a maximum amount of flavor.

Maraschino cherries, California raisins and California almonds are perfect ingredients for just such time-saving recipes. Easy to use and readily available, each contributes vibrant flavor, pleasing texture and appealing color. They're also satisfying when eaten on their own. Combined in one of the following recipes, they're unbeatable.

Merry Cherry Coffee Bread is an example. Simply combine frozen bread dough, maraschino cherries, and toasted, slivered almonds and form into a ring. Let rise, then bake for a fragrant loaf of bread.

Try baking Ginger-Raisin Bars as a fast and easy gift for office associates or favored neighbors. Simple to make with convenient California raisins, each bar is a study in chewy texture and savory ginger flavor. These moist cookies, loaded with both sweet natural and tangy golden raisins, are certain to become holiday favorites.

Hungarian Almonds are a natural present to take to the host of your next holiday party. This recipe can be prepared in less than 30 minutes. Simply roast whole California almonds with paprika, garlic salt and cayenne pepper. The toasty rich flavor of almonds with their spicy-hot coating complements cocktails.

Maraschino Chocolate Thumbprint Cookies combine two holiday favorites: cherries and chocolate. Unsweetened cocoa provides a dense chocolate flavor to the chewy cookie base, while a whole maraschino cherry lends a dash of color and fruity flavor. But watch out: kids may prefer to steal the cherries off the top.

Holiday Tea Bread and Almond Jubilee Sauce are two more recipes perfect for holiday gifts. Both showcase the delectable combination of maraschino cherries, California raisins and California almonds. Create a festive occasion—simply give a loaf of tea bread and a jar of Jubilee Sauce to a friend and then stay over to savor the holiday spirit.

MERRY CHERRY COFFEE BREAD

2 loaves (1-pound each) frozen bread dough, thawed as package directs
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1 cup drained maraschino cherries, halved
1 cup raisins
1 cup blanched slivered almonds, toasted
1 cup powdered sugar
1 to 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice (approximate)

Additional cherries, raisins and toasted slivered almonds, for garnish

On floured surface press bread dough loaves together, end to end. Pull and roll out to a rectangle about 24 inches long and 9 inches wide. Sprinkle evenly with brown sugar, cherries, raisins and almonds, leaving 1 inch along top edge uncovered. Starting at the long bottom edge, gently roll up as for a jelly roll. Pinch to seal edge completely. Gently lift and fit into greased, 10-inch tube pan. Pinch ends together to seal completely. Cover and let rise in warm place until almost doubled, 45 minutes to 1 hour. Bake in middle of 350-degree oven 50 minutes to 1 hour until browned and hollow sounding when tapped. Turn out on pan and cool completely on rack, top side up.

In small bowl mix powdered sugar with enough lemon juice to make a glaze of thin spreading consistency; spread on top of cake, allowing glaze to drip down sides. Decorate with cherries, raisins and almonds. Slice to serve.

Makes 14 to 16 servings

GINGER-RAISIN BARS

1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
3/4 cup packed brown sugar
1 egg
1/2 cup light molasses
1 1/2 cups flour
1 teaspoon each ground ginger and allspice
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup each natural and golden raisins
1/2 cup chopped candied ginger
1 1/2 cups powdered sugar
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons milk (approximate)
Colored sprinkles

In mixer bowl cream butter and brown sugar until fluffy. Beat in egg and molasses to blend thoroughly. In another bowl mix flour, spices, baking soda and salt; mix into creamed mixture. Add raisins and candied ginger; mix to blend thoroughly. Spread in greased 9 x 13 x 2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350-degree oven 25 to 30 minutes until springy to the touch. Place on wire rack to cool completely. In bowl whisk powdered sugar with juice and enough milk to make a smooth icing of firm spreading consistency. Spread icing evenly over surface of bars. Immediately decorate with sprinkles. After icing is set, cut with sharp knife into 1 1/2-inch squares. Store in layers between sheets of wax paper in airtight containers.

Makes 6 dozen

MARASCHINO CHOCOLATE THUMBPRINT COOKIES

48 maraschino cherries, about 2 jars (10 1/2-ounces each)
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
1/2 teaspoon each salt, baking powder and baking soda
1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
1/4 cup milk

Drain cherries, reserving 2 teaspoons syrup. In bowl combine flour, cocoa, salt, baking powder and soda; mix well. In mixer bowl cream butter and sugar until fluffy. Add egg and vanilla; mix well. Add dry ingredients; mix well. Heat chocolate and milk in small saucepan over low heat until chocolate melts. Stir in reserved 2 teaspoons cherry syrup. Mix until smooth. Shape dough into 48, 1-inch balls. Place on ungreased baking sheets. Push in centers with thumb; spoon about 1 teaspoon chocolate mixture into each thumbprint. Top each with cherry. Bake in 350-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until cookies are firm. Remove to racks to cool completely.

Makes 4 dozen

HOLIDAY TEA BREAD

1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
3 eggs
2 1/2 cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
1 cup drained maraschino cherries, halved
1 cup raisins
1 cup chopped natural almonds, toasted

In mixer bowl cream butter, sugar and peel until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Reserve 1/2 cup of the flour. In another bowl mix remaining flour, baking powder and salt to blend thoroughly. Mix dry ingredients into egg mixture alternately with milk. Toss cherries, raisins and almonds with reserved 1/2 cup flour to coat. Gently stir fruit-nut mixture into batter. Spoon batter into greased and floured 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350-degree oven about 1 1/2 hours until pick inserted into center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out onto rack to cool completely. Wrap in aluminum foil or plastic wrap.

Makes 1 loaf

HUNGARIAN ALMONDS

1 egg white
1 tablespoon paprika
2 teaspoons garlic salt
1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 cups whole natural almonds

In large bowl beat egg white until frothy. Mix in paprika, garlic salt and cayenne pepper to blend thoroughly. Add almonds; toss to coat evenly. Spread in single layer on lightly oiled baking sheet. Bake in 300-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes, stirring occasionally, until lightly toasted. Loosen from pan and cool. Store in airtight container.

Makes 2 cups

ALMOND JUBILEE SAUCE

1 cup raisins
1/2 cup dark rum
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup water
1/4 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup whipping cream
1/2 cup blanched slivered almonds, toasted
1/2 cup maraschino cherries
1 tablespoon grated orange peel

In small bowl steep raisins in rum until plump, about 1/2 hour. In large saucepan mix together sugar, water and corn syrup; stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Increase heat; cook without stirring until mixture is golden brown, being careful not to burn. Remove from heat. In another saucepan heat raisins and rum with cream and almonds. Slowly stir heated cream mixture into caramelized sugar, being careful as mixture may spatter. Remove from heat. Mix thoroughly. Stir in cherries and orange peel. Cool and pour into sterilized jars. Store in refrigerator.

Makes 3 to 3 1/2 cups

To Toast Almonds: Spread almonds in single layer on baking sheet. Bake in 350-degree oven 9 to 11 minutes, stirring occasionally, until golden brown. Cool.

In Brief . . .

MHS girls to be honored

MANCHESTER — The Manchester High girls' soccer team will be holding its state championship banquet on Sunday, Jan. 6, 1991, at 6 p.m. at Botone's Restaurant and the public is invited to attend. Tickets are $19 each.

Choice of entree is prime rib, chicken or a vegetarian platter. Those wishing to attend should make checks payable to Manchester Girls Soccer and forward them to Joe Erardi, Manchester High School, 134 E. Middle Tpk.

Swim lesson sign-ups set

MANCHESTER — The Manchester Rec Department will hold registration for the third session of swim lessons at the East Side Rec. Monday through Friday from Dec. 17-21 from 6 to 9:30 p.m.

Lessons start Jan. 7, 1991 and run through Feb. 7. Children must be at least 52 inches tall in order to participate. Lessons are $4 per session and a valid Rec membership card ($4) is required.

The classes will be held at the IOH pool at Manchester High. For further information, call Carl Silver at the Rec Department at 647-3084.

Didio second team All-America

STORRS — University of Connecticut junior split end Mark Didio has been named a second team Division I-AA All-America pick by The Sports Network. The Sports Network is an independent wire service that also has a weekly Division I-AA poll during the season.

Didio led the Huskies and Yankee Conference this past season with 78 receptions for 1,153 yards and 10 TDs, all three marks for school single-season records.

Hartford tops Dartmouth

WEST HARTFORD (AP) — Vinnie Baker scored 23 points and grabbed 18 rebounds and Ron Moyer had 18 points as Hartford beat Dartmouth 74-56 Tuesday night.

Hartford (3-4) outrebounded Dartmouth 56-28, the most rebounds ever for the Hawks against a Division I team.

Dartmouth (1-2) took a 4-2 lead, but never led again. Hartford led by as much as 15 in the first half and held a 40-30 halftime advantage.

Matt Curtis added 13 points for the Hawks. James Blackwell led Dartmouth with 20 points, while Brendon O'Sullivan had 14 points.

Fairfield nipped in overtime

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Jarrod Davis scored 32 points as Gonzaga came from behind to defeat Fairfield 92-88 in overtime.

Gonzaga (4-3) took the lead for good 92-90 on a Davis free throw in overtime Tuesday night. A subsequent Davis jumper put the Bulldogs ahead 98-85. Martin Dietl sank a free throw after Todd Holland fouled out to make it 99-95.

With two seconds remaining, Mike Rodgers hit a three-pointer for Fairfield (4-3) for the final score of the game.

Leading Fairfield was Kevin George with 24.

Carpenter career in jeopardy

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins say forward Bob Carpenter is lost for the rest of the National Hockey League season following lengthy surgery to repair his left knee and the cartilage behind it.

The team reported it's unclear whether Carpenter will ever be able to play hockey again because of the damage. Carpenter was injured as he slammed into the boards during a game Saturday at Montreal.

A team of three surgeons joined in four hours of delicate surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital. The Bruins said they do not know if it will heal well enough for the knee to take the stresses of competitive hockey.

Carpenter, 27, is the center forward in all 80 games last season. He had played in each of the 29 contests this season, with eight goals and eight assists.

NFL honors Smith, Taylor

NEW YORK (AP) — Defensive end Bruce Smith of the Buffalo Bills won his second consecutive AFC defensive player of the week award after recording nine tackles and four sacks in the Bills' playoff-clinching 31-7 victory over Indianapolis.

In the NFC, defensive honors went to the Arizona Cardinals' Lawrence Taylor, who had nine tackles and 2 1/2 sacks in a 23-15 victory over Minnesota. Quarterback Dan Marino of Miami, who passed for 365 yards and two touchdowns in a 23-0 overtime victory over Philadelphia, was named AFC offensive player of the week. Detroit running back Barry Sanders was named NFC offensive player of the week after rushing for 176 yards and two touchdowns in a 38-31 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders.

Parcells to return to work

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants coach Bill Parcells is expected to return to work today after a kidney stone was pulverized into smaller pieces, a team spokesman said.

Parcells was treated as an outpatient at the New Jersey Kidney Stone Treatment Center in New Brunswick with lithotripsy, a procedure that uses ultrasound waves to break the stone into small pieces.

Parcells was admitted to Morristown Memorial Hospital on Saturday night after the kidney stone began causing intense pain.

Tyson enters legal ring

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Mike Tyson has climbed into the legal ring with Evander Holyfield because the new heavyweight champion doesn't want to fight Tyson right now.

Tyson and the World Boxing Council are seeking to strip Holyfield of the WBC title before his April 19 fight against George Foreman.

The World Boxing Association and the International Boxing Federation first ordered Holyfield to make his initial title defense against Tyson, then backed down and sanctioned the Holyfield-Foreman fight, scheduled for Atlantic City, N.J.

Tyson filed papers Monday in U.S. District Court to intervene in Holyfield's lawsuit against the WBC. If Holyfield is stripped of the WBC title, Tyson — the top-ranked contender — would claim it with a victory in his next WBC-sanctioned bout.

Boston College tops Friars

BOSTON (AP) — Free throws by Gerrod Abram and David Hinton in the final minute of play gave Boston College an 80-78 victory over unbeaten Providence College Tuesday.

The free throws, with 40 and 16 seconds remaining, offset a late rash by Providence's Eric Murdock, who scored a career-high 34 points including seven straight free throws in the final 77 seconds.

Ties seem to suit the Jets just fine

By KEN RAPPOPORT
The Associated Press

The Winnipeg Jets remodeled their uniforms this season. Maybe they should have included a tie.

That's just what they've done in the last four games, and five of their last seven, including a 3-3 deadlock with the St. Louis Blues Tuesday night. The Jets have seven ties overall, tying Buffalo for most in the NHL.

"They are beat losses," Jets coach Bob Murdoch said. "We're trying not to focus on the outcome, we're focusing on the way we play. The wins will soon start coming if we continue to play the way we have."

However, it has been seven games since the Jets have seen a victory. They are 0-2-5 in that stretch.

Phil Sykes, who scored two goals for the Jets on Tuesday night, had an optimistic view of the winless situation.

"We're undefeated in our last four games. We'd like to squeeze a victory out of this road trip, but still this has to be satisfying."

In other NHL games, it was Chicago 4, Pittsburgh 1; Detroit 8, Buffalo 3; the New York Islanders 3, New Jersey 2; Washington 4, Philadelphia 1; Calgary 5, Minnesota 4, and the New York Rangers 6, Los Angeles 4.

Sykes' second goal of the night in the third period brought the Jets from behind.

Sykes, a defensive specialist who has six goals, scored with a high shot from the slot at 3:30 of the third period after the puck bounced off the skate of teammate Brent Ashton. The goal came only 1:33 after Bob Bassen scored on a deflection of a shot from the point by John Featherstone to put the Blues ahead.

Blackhawks 4, Penguins 1: Troy Murray, Steve Larmer and Mike McNeill scored just over four minutes apart in the third period to lead Chicago over Pittsburgh.

Chicago has the NHL's best record at 11-5-1, including a 9-2-1 streak. The Penguins are 1-6-1 in their last eight home games and have scored five goals in their last four games.

Red Wings 8, Sabres 3: Steve Yzerman and John Chabot scored twice and rookie Keith Primeau netted his first NHL goal during a five-goal second period that carried Detroit over Buffalo.

Goaltender Glen Hanlon backstopped the offensive outburst with a 28-save performance as the Red Wings broke a four-game winless streak and handed the Sabres their third straight defeat.

Yzerman added three assists for his second five-point game of the season and moved into fourth place on Detroit's all-time scoring list with 733 points behind Gordie Howe (1,809), Alex Delvecchio (1,281) and Norm Ullman (758).

Islanders 3, Devils 2: Ray Ferraro's second goal of the game with 42 seconds remaining in regulation time gave New York a 3-2 victory over New Jersey, snapping the Islanders' seven-game winless streak.

Ferraro took a pass from Bill Berg in the Devils' zone, used Tom Fitzgerald as a pick to avoid a defenceman and swept into the slot, where he deked Chris Terrier to the ice and shoveled a forehand shot into the vacated net.

Capitals 4, Flyers 1: Dino Ciccarelli scored a goal and assisted on another as Washington defeated Philadelphia.

Washington improved its record to 8-4-0 in the last 12 games and is now 5-0-1 in its last six against the Flyers. The slumping Flyers are 1-4 in their last five games and have not won in Washington since Dec. 1 of last year.

The Kings, meanwhile, are 0-3-4 in their last seven games and have not won since Nov. 24 at Montreal.

Gorman looks to add talent

By DAVE O'HARA
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Boston manager Joe Morgan thinks that the Red Sox have the talent to be a pennant contender in 1991.

However, Morgan, who has led the Red Sox to two AL East titles in three years, is looking for more as general manager Les Gorman pursues free agents.

"We can contend with what we have right now, but whether we could win it is another story," Morgan said Tuesday. "I just don't know."

Morgan was pleased as Gorman told of pursuing such high-priced talent as slugger Jack Clark and 27-game winner Bob Welch.

"We need a big slugger and Jack Clark certainly would fill the bill, probably as the DH," Morgan said. "But there are a lot of other good players out there who could help us, guys like Welch, Bobby Darwin, Tom Brunansky and Vance Law."

Morgan spiked persistent rumors that the Red Sox might trade center fielder Ellis Burks, long coveted by the New York Mets, or left-fielder Mike Greenwell to the Montreal Expos for speedster Tim Lincecum.

Burks isn't going anywhere, though, Morgan said. "And, as much as I'd like to add some speed, I wouldn't trade Greenwell for Raines."

Gorman talked of his all-out hunt in the costly free agent market even as he predicted financial disaster for some major league clubs if salaries keep skyrocketing.

"The amount of money being paid (to free agents) is staggering," Gorman said after a Hot Stove luncheon at Fenway Park.

"It blows your mind," Gorman said. "If it continues, some clubs are going to go broke. There's no question in my mind."

"(The San Francisco) Giants just gave $33 million to three players, and they're also going to have to pay $12 million in collusion (money)."

"I don't know how clubs can keep doing it, if they keep it up, some clubs are going to go bankrupt."

Television cameras have shown him on the sidelines almost like a man out on a stroll. Players say he has calmed down — until Monday.

"I don't know how clubs can keep doing it, if they keep it up, some clubs are going to go bankrupt."

"I think I've done fairly well against the Orioles," Evans said. "I've always liked hitting here. The background is fair for the hitter and pitcher."

Evans had envisioned himself finishing his career in Boston, but the Red Sox simply bid him farewell after a sub-par year in which he struggled with a bad back. He made no effort to mask his disappointment over being released by the team that paid his checks for the better part of 16 seasons.

"It was very much a surprise what the Red Sox did after I had stayed there that long," he said. "I just felt I could have a choice to say when I wanted to go, but it wasn't the case. It hurt."

"Do I want to kill the Red Sox? I want to beat them. It would be great to help bring (the Orioles) a world championship. That's enough for me. They're just another ballclub that's in our way."

The Red Sox questioned Evans' ability to play the outfield, but he insisted that he can still play a decent rightfielder. He and Frank Robinson batted around the field of 40 to 50 games, which Evans said would be fine with him.

"I definitely want to do more than just be a DH. It's hard to get the feel for the game just being a designated hitter," Evans said.

New Malone on the block 'Jazz'es up Utah

By BILL BARNARD
The Associated Press

The trade that brought Jeff Malone to the Utah Jazz is starting to make a notable difference.

Jeff Malone scored 43 points and Karl Malone 35 Tuesday night as the Jazz won their fifth straight game and for the 10th time in 11 outings, 135-117 over the Golden State Warriors.

"They had everything going tonight," the Warriors' Tim Hardaway said. "Inside with Karl and outside with Jeff."

During the five-game winning streak, Karl Malone is averaging 30 points, Jeff Malone 26.2 and John Stockton 18.4 points and 18.8 assists. Stockton added 15 points and 21 assists against the Warriors, coming on the heels of a 23-assist effort in a victory Saturday night over the Los Angeles Clippers.

"My compliments to the franchise for getting Jeff Malone," Golden State coach Don Nelson said. "He works in beautifully with the other pieces. They really are a nice unit. They go together with a nice bench and they're well coached."

Before buying a diamond, stop in and we will take the time to show you the difference between a diamond costing $2000 and one $4000 - and are of the SAME SIZE and SHAPE.

REPAIRS

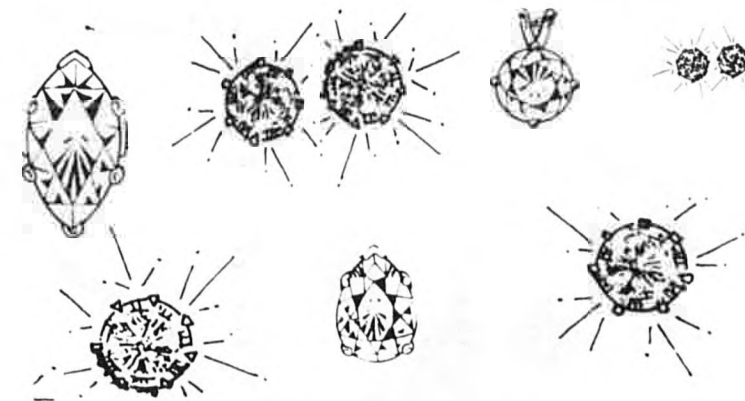

Custom work and repairs done on premises. One day service on some repairs. There is still time to make that one of a kind piece of jewelry to make his or her Holiday extra special.

A Year to Remember

HUMMEL

For decades, no year has been complete without the release of delightful M.I. Hummel annual editions. Whether you choose an annual to commemorate a special event or just for the sheer joy of ownership, 1991 will be no exception. This year, two longstanding series near their conclusions.

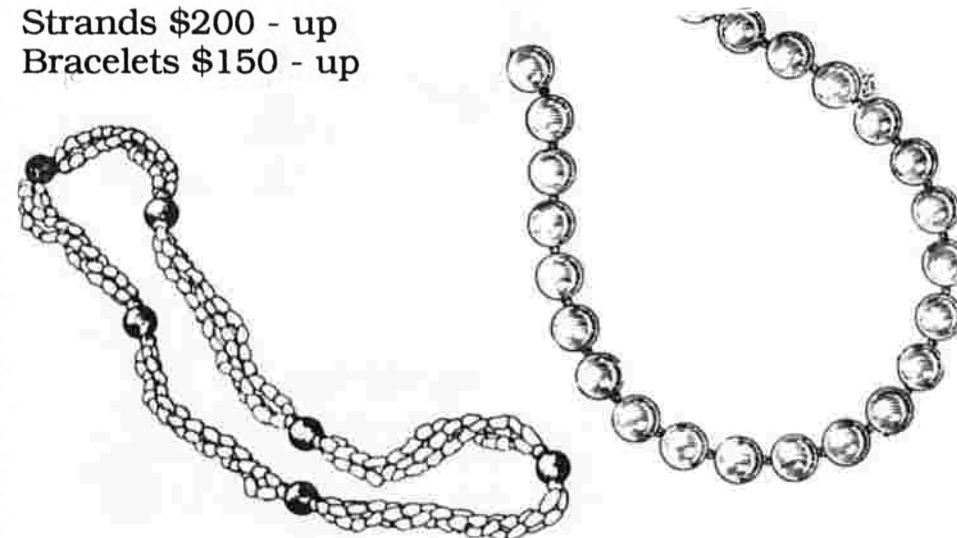

The 1991 Annual Bell is the next-to-last in a 15 year series, and the Annual Plate is 21st in a series which will reach its climax in 1995. Like the plate and bell, the Chicken-Liken! mini-plate will be produced only through 1991. Its companion figurine will join the family of M.I. Hummel figurines. Like all the ongoing, open-edition figurines, it will bear a First Edition backstamp in this, its first year of production.

PEARLS

Pearl strands and bracelets strung in any size and length.

Strands $200 - up
Bracelets $150 - up

LAST YEAR'S GIFT... SALAD POFTER STATUS..... STILL IN BOX

If your tired of giving 40 T-Shirts and asinine gadgetry, perhaps this year you should give something that goes on the wall and stays out of the closet. A picture framed at MARVIN'S!

Grab an old keirelam, family photo, a favorite poster or choose a print from our copious files. We'll frame it professionally at do-it-yourself prices and if you're here by SATURDAY the 15th you'll have it by the holiday.

But hurry! Time is running out. And there's a stack of Salad Pofters just waiting.
