Cease-fire holds; allies wary

By MARTIN MARRIS
 The Associated Press

DHAIRAN, Saudi Arabia — Isolated clashes and the sounds of Iraqi weaponry being demolished were all that marred the Persian Gulf peace today, as allied soldiers kept a watchful eye on their vanquished foe. U.S. officials warned Iraq faced renewed fighting if it did not free allied prisoners.

In Kuwait, American soldiers hoisted the flag outside the U.S. Embassy as Ambassador Edward Grottn arrived to take up his post. When former Ambassador Nathaniel Howel left in December, he brought the flag to Washington with him. "He said at the time he left, 'We're coming back,'" Grottn said. "We are back and I bring his flag back."

On the battle front, allied military officials today reported a few cease-fire violations, including several minor exchanges of fire overnight initiated by Iraqi units presumed not to have learned of the truce.

Talks on a permanent cease-fire, the return of prisoners of war and other issues were set for Saturday, according to a senior British government source. The source said the meeting would be held at an unidentified military installation in Iraq, and the allied contingent will be led by the American commander, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf.

"We are going to get back our POWs and we're going to do it fast," President Bush declared on Thursday. Forty-five Americans are believed to be Iraqi prisoners. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said today the Iraqis must cooperate. "We have the ability to resume hostilities at a moment's notice... the lights are out in Baghdad, they'll stay out until we get satisfaction," he said.

But the Iraqis made their own demands. "All foreign forces must leave our country immediately and stop all provocations," Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz told the Iraqi News Agency, according to Baghdad radio. He said U.S. forces were acting in a manner contrary to the cease-fire, and he complained about continued hostilities.

Private schools fight Weicker's budget cuts

By SCOTT B. BREDE

MANCHESTER — Warning that tuition may rise as a result, a Manchester parochial school official Thursday criticized a proposal that would halt state funds used to provide transportation and health care services for private school children.

"It seems the tax break in education is coming on the backs of private school students," said Peg Siegmund, principal of East Catholic High School, of Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr.'s proposal to slice the state budget in the coming year.

The proposed cut would eliminate state reimbursements to public school districts that provide transportation, health and welfare services to private schools. It would also discard a state law mandating that public schools provide these services to their private counterparts.

If adopted by the General Assembly, the proposal would have "a tremendous impact" on the five private schools in Manchester, Siegmund said.

"It's unfair to single out Catholic school students," she said, noting that a majority of private schools in Connecticut are parochial.

unfair" to deny state funding to those children who choose to attend private schools, and labelled the proposal discriminatory.

Many smaller private schools may have to close if they are forced to provide housing and health-care services to their students, Siegmund said, adding that nearly 15 percent of children in the state attend private schools.

These closures would overburden public schools because the former private school students would have no other place to turn, she said.

East Catholic officials "would certainly have to look into raising tuitions" if the school is forced to cover its own transportation and nursing costs, Siegmund said.

Although she would not comment in a possible rise in tuition, Sister Louise Kelly, principal of St. James School, said the state funding cuts would definitely hurt parochial school children in town.

St. James is one of Manchester's three Catholic primary schools, which, together, educate 712 children between kindergarten and eighth-grade, Sister Kelly said.

A SOLDIER'S GRIEF — Al Kozakiewicz, 23, of Buffalo, N.Y., left, weeps after being given the dogtags of a fellow tank crewman, bodybag at right, who died Wednesday in the battle of the Euphrates Valley. Grand List increases because of revaluation

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
 Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The value of the town's Grand List in 1990 increased by more than 2.6 times the 1989 total due to revaluation, but real growth was limited to about 2.25 percent, according to figures released Thursday.

The 1989 Grand List had increased 6 percent over the Grand List for the previous year. The total Grand List for 1990 is $2,376,114,505 up from the 1989 total of $901,644,999. Most of the nearly $1.5 billion increase is due to the revaluation of real estate performed last year, said Town Assessor Michael Bekech.

The revaluation brought the assessed value of land in town up to 70 percent of its current market value. Under the old assessments, which were made in 1977, land was being taxed at only 25 percent of its current market value.

The announcement Thursday night by George McDonald, head of the unions' umbrella group, came some two hours after the collapse of negotiations between management and the striking unions.

ADMINISTERING AID — A Manchester firefighter aids Chris Worthington, who was struck by a car Thursday afternoon near the intersection of Delmont and Bond streets. Worthington received minor injuries and was taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released. Police are investigating the cause of the accident.

Troops to get heroes' welcome

MANCHESTER — Connecticut plans to welcome its soldiers home from the Persian Gulf with patriotic celebrations, home cooking and open arms. Veterans groups and families vowed the homecoming will be a far cry from the chilly reception Vietnam veterans feel they got.

"These people are going to be welcomed home with open arms. This is not going to be a Vietnam-type thing," said Dominic Romano, state adjutant of the Connecticut Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Around Manchester celebration activities are starting to get underway as the town gears up for its soldiers' return.

plans for Manchester residents stationed in the Persian Gulf area. The executive board of Manchester's American Legion will also meet next week to come up with ideas of greeting soldiers on their return, said legion commander Harold Pohl.

But, Deputy Mayor Ronald Osella said the celebration plans should be put off until the war with Iraq is definitely over.

"Until we see the end of hostilities it is premature to think of any celebrations at home," Osella said, adding that the war won't be completely over until gunfire has stopped, prisoners of war are returned and Saddam Hussein has signed a peace treaty.

Although celebrations to greet returning soldiers are necessary, Osella said it is more important to remember those soldiers who do not return from the Persian Gulf, adding

Report: Saddam seeks asylum

PARIS (AP) — Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is seeking asylum in another country, probably in Algeria, the French newspaper Le Monde reported today. Algeria is seeking assurances from the anti-Iraq coalition that Saddam will not be subject to any war crimes tribunals, Le Monde said, without giving any sources for its report. The report in the major French daily could not be independently confirmed.

Index of Leading Indicators

Indicators down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief economic forecasting gauge fell 0.4 percent in January, its sixth straight drop and the longest string of declines since 1984, the government said today. The drop in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators followed a revised 0.1 percent decrease in December — even worse than the barely perceptible 0.1 percent gain first reported last month. The department attributed the revision to a shorter average workweek than initially thought.

News purchase in the air

NEW YORK (AP) — British media mogul Robert Maxwell took a major step toward buying the strike-bound Daily News, securing management permission to begin negotiations with its nine unions, a labor leader said today. The announcement Thursday night by George McDonald, head of the unions' umbrella group, came some two hours after the collapse of negotiations between management and the striking unions.

BEIJING (AP) — Budragchayn Dashiyondon was elected Mongolia's new communist leader today, just a year after his predecessor took office during a wave of pro-democracy reform. The recurring leadership changes reflect the communist party's uncertainty in Mongolia's new, unsteady political system.

After the Gulf War: A Special Report

Bush demands quick repatriation

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush says he expects "prompt repatriation" of American prisoners of war and thousands of Kuwaiti detainees after allied commanders meet with Iraqi officials on Thursday evening and told where and when U.S. commanders would like to meet Iraqi commanders, according to a U.S. official who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

Workers report torture, deaths

By MORT ROSENBLUM
The Associated Press

KUWAIT CITY — Mergue worker Hadra Ahmad grew accustomed to the sight of death. But she never got used to the horror of the deaths suffered by Kuwaitis during seven months of Iraqi terror.

A volunteer Red Crescent worker at urban Mubarak Hospital, the 29-year-old woman today described the corpses she had seen since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion. Some had been shot in the mouth. Some had their throats cut. Some were apparently burned alive and then shot, she said.

"On my duty alone, I have seen more than 500 bodies," she said. "Why are they doing these things? We just cannot understand."

Sorrowfully and calmly, she recalled the bodies she had seen: teen-age girls who were raped then slain, young men who had been tortured slowly with cuts and burns before being put to death by the Iraqi occupiers.

"But now our heart is clear," she said, two days after Iraqis fled Kuwait. "They are gone."

At the hospital, one of six in Kuwait, doctors said hundreds of bodies had been brought to medical authorities. But they said thousands of other corpses were believed to have been left in the desert or tossed into the Persian Gulf.

Victims were sometimes rounded up by Iraqi seeking information about the Kuwaiti resistance. But sometimes, it seemed, they were simply tortured for the sake of it, the doctor said.

At al-Amiri Hospital, a man who would identify himself only as Dr. Hassan described an incident also known to others.

In September, only a month into the occupation, a doctor whom friends would only call Hisham was found by the Iraqis to have some simple medical equipment in his home, including an intravenous drip apparatus. The Iraqis accused him of treating wounded Kuwaiti resistors.

The same message was given to the Iraqis at the United Nations and relayed to Baghdad through the Soviet Union, the official said. "It will be very soon," Bush said in announcing the Iraqi agreement to meet.

"We are going to get together and send high-level military representatives, and we are going to get back our POWs and we are going to do it fast," he said.

Bush said Iraq had promptly accepted his demand for a meeting of military commanders to establish the permanent cease-fire. But at the Pentagon, officials said the talks may yet prove difficult.

Penetration spokesman Pete Williams was more pessimistic. "There is no plan yet for bringing forces home," he said.

Bush was heading to his Camp David, Md., retreat for the weekend after meeting with his national security advisers and greeting the German foreign minister today.

He said the issue of American POWs was a top priority for the first meeting with Iraqis, as was the question of an unknown number of Kuwaitis detained and taken hostage by Iraqis.

"We expect a prompt repatriation of the Kuwaiti detainees and others," Bush said.

With tens of thousands of Iraqi prisoners grateful to be in allied hands, U.S. officials face the issue of whether to force their return to an uncertain fate in Iraq as part of a POW swap. Bush's chief of staff, John Summu, said on CNN that he believes most will decide to go back eventually "but we certainly don't want to force them to go back right away."

He said the raids were part of a stepped-up campaign against software-copied theft, based on information provided in the Washington, D.C.-based association's hotline by disgruntled employees.

Chief Deputy U.S. Marshal Robert Christian said the Tuesday raid against the Bellevue and Sumner offices of Parametric Corp. was carried out by a marshal, a lawyer and a computer technician who plumbred the more than 140 computers with a special program.

The raid was conducted after U.S. District Judge Carolyn Dierbeck granted a writ of seizure against Parametric, which was requested by the software association on behalf of software manufacturers Microsoft, Ashton-Tate, Lotus Development and WordPerfect.

William Neukom, Microsoft vice president for law and corporate affairs, said piracy costs software developers money for research and development and shortchanges the employees at a firm that fails to provide manuals and upgraded programs.

The industry also has waged legal battles against overseas manufacturers who copy not only programs, but manuals and packaging as well.

Christian said copies of programs produced by those firms were found in Parametric's machines, and Wasch said programs by dozens of other manufacturers also turned up.

U.S. firms to benefit

By BART ZIEGLER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — American companies will get a large share of the contracts to rebuild Kuwait — which could total $10 billion — because the United States led the fight to free the oil-rich emirate from Iraq.

Among the major U.S. companies involved are Bechtel Group Inc., American Telephone & Telegraph Co., Caterpillar Inc., International Business Machines Corp., Motorola Inc. and Raytheon Co.

A host of smaller companies, such as oil-field specialists, also should benefit from what could be the largest rebuilding effort since the Marshall Plan reconstruction of Europe after World War II.

Kuwait is expected to spend the bulk of its rebuilding funds with companies from the United States and other allied nations that fought against Iraq, officials said Thursday.

One of the first chores will be extinguishing the oil-well fires. Nearly two-thirds of Kuwait's 950 oil wells are believed to have been sabotaged by the retreating Iraqis, along with oil storage and transportation facilities.

Three Houston companies, The Red Adair Co., Wild Well Control Inc. and Booz & Coats Inc., will be put to work fighting the oil fires. The companies have not disclosed the value of their contracts.

Once the fires are out, Bechtel, the nation's second-largest construction and engineering company, is expected to lead the rebuilding of Kuwait's petroleum industry.

Bechtel received a letter of intent from the state-run Kuwait Petroleum Co. calling for the company to act as the project management contractor, said Bechtel spokesman Mike Kidguchi.

Bechtel, a privately owned San Francisco company that has worked in Kuwait for 40 years, will send about 4,300 employees and subcontractors to the emirate, Kidger said.

Bechtel said it did not yet have an estimate on the value of the work. Already, the government has declared three months of martial law.

Dry California faces rationing

By ELIZABETH GROAT
The Associated Press

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. — Heavy rains — with more expected this weekend — muted roads and tied up traffic but failed to avert mandatory water rationing starting today in California's two most populous regions.

Los Angeles residents have to cut water use by 10 percent, while restrictions in Marin County north of San Francisco are so tight just taking two 5-minute showers might use up the daily limit.

"My lawn is going to die. And you can't flush every time," said Pat Winter of Mill Valley, one of hundreds who picked up a water conservation kit at the Marin Municipal Water District head-quarters this week.

The water conservation mandates go into effect despite the state's first major rainstorm this year. Los Angeles got 3 inches in two days and parts of northern California got around 1 inch.

The storms were blamed for power outages and dozens of fender-bender traffic crashes caused by slick roads.

Bechtel said it did not yet have an estimate on the value of the work. Already, the government has declared three months of martial law.

But it is clear that Americans who shed blood to rescue the country from Iraq expect some changes.

91 percent favor Bush

By ELIZABETH GROAT
The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — President Bush has the approval of 91 percent of Americans, according to a poll released today. That's more than any other president since Truman came close to Bush's approval rating in the USA Today survey, a 1945 Gallup Poll taken in June 1945, just weeks after Genoa's surrender in World War II, registered an 87 percent approval rating for Truman's performance in the White House.

The poll taken by telephone by Gordon S. Black Corp. also found 78 percent of respondents have a great deal of confidence in military leaders, compared with 25 percent for Congress and 22 percent for the news media.

Health officials are seeking ways to stem the outbreak, which doctors and news reports say is gaining strength. However, an emergency conference Thursday of health ministers from seven South American countries attracted little interest in the national press and announced few agreements.

Doctors criticized the government for giving conflicting advice on which foods to eat, saying more people could die if they ate ceviche, a popular dish of raw fish marinated with lemon juice.

An epidemiologist at one hospital said up to half the cases he studied were linked to eating to ceviche.

Soldiers dream of home

WITH THE 101st AIRBORNE DIVISION IN IRAQ — Zeb Hill is going home. Todd Lindsey is going to medical school. David Hochins is going to have a cold beer and some pizza.

These soldiers and others among the 8,000 troops of the 101st Airborne Division began making plans for their homecoming as soon as they learned of the cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War.

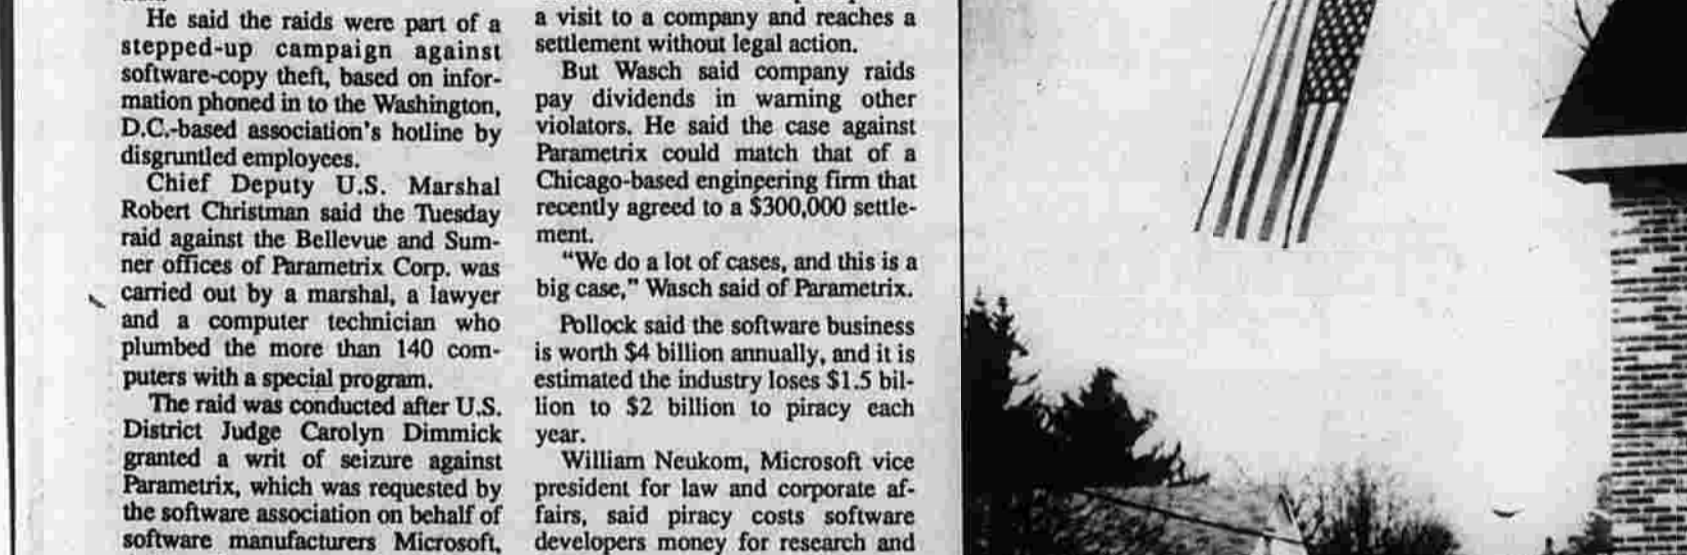

Holed up deep inside Iraqi territory along the banks of the Euphrates River, the soldiers also have had time to a lot of thinking, and some said the war has changed their values.

"This whole experience has taught me how important my family is to me," Capt. Fred Geller, 27, of Detroit, said on Thursday.

"Before the fighting began, I was kind of obsessed with my career," he said. "But now my wife and boy get the No. 1 slot. I can't wait to get home."

The Saudi ban on alcohol had been a chief source of grumbling among the soldiers throughout the war, so it's not surprising that Hochins, a 21-year-old private from New London, Mo., envisioned a "large pepperoni pizza and a pack of Budweiser."

"Of course that would include my girlfriend, good friends and good times," he said.

Soviets study their weapons

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Iraq's defeat in the Persian Gulf War is causing new concern among Soviet generals about how to respond to the advanced weaponry used by the U.S.-led military forces.

"What happened in Kuwait and Iraq necessitates a review of the attitude to army air defense and the country's entire air defense system," said Defense Minister Marshal Dmitri Yazov.

The bulk of Iraq's weapons were made by the Soviets, but Yazov said deficiencies in Soviet arms were not to blame for Baghdad's defeat.

"As concerns the quality of Soviet military technology that happened to be in the Iraqi arsenal, it was the least of the causes," the Defense Ministry newspaper Red Star today quoted Yazov as saying, without elaborating.

The war showed the Soviet air defense system "has weak spots," said Yazov, and the military will hold a conference to discuss the advanced technologies used by the U.S.-coalition in the war.

He spoke during legislative hearings Thursday and his remarks were reprinted by Red Star. He did not mention the destruction of Iraq's Soviet-made tanks or other weapons in the six-week war.

On Feb. 12, Red Star carried an article by a former Soviet military adviser to Iraq, Lt. Col. Vladimir V. Golovkov, who said the allied forces in the Gulf had extensive intelligence on Iraqi armaments.

He also said Iraq was holding some air defenses in reserve and had weaponry that was less up-to-date than U.S. warplanes.

Many of Iraq's most advanced warplanes were flown to neighboring Iran shortly after the war began, when it became clear they were no longer in the allied hands, Iran said it would impound the planes until the war ended.

Despite nearly six years of glasnost under President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, Soviet newspapers have published few details concerning military sales to Iraq and other nations.

Cholera-stricken Peru criticized

By BRYAN BRUMLEY

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The government is risking more deaths by trying to promote the sale of foods linked to a cholera epidemic that has already killed 193 people, doctors say.

Doctors of cholera patients packed the corridors of overcrowded hospitals in the northern port of Chimbote, 225 miles northwest of Lima. Chimbote registered Peru's first cases of cholera in late January. The epidemic is the first in the Western Hemisphere since the beginning of the century.

Health officials are seeking ways to stem the outbreak, which doctors and news reports say is gaining strength. However, an emergency conference Thursday of health ministers from seven South American countries attracted little interest in the national press and announced few agreements.

The highest assessment in town, at $51.9 million, is for the Devilsits at Buckland Hills mall. But because of a special agreement with the town, the mall will not be the biggest taxpayer this year.

Troops

that an extra monument in town might be appropriate even if the casualties are from Manchester.

Schools

proposals be rejected by the General Assembly, said School Superintendent James P. Kennedy said.

Both the reimbursements and the state mandate to cut the school district will save nearly $250,000, Kennedy said.

Since the state mandate to provide busing to public schools was passed in 1971, the Board of Education has provided busing for private schools in Manchester, Kennedy said.

The Board of Education administers health and welfare services to private schools in the town, but does not incur their cost, Kennedy said.

Manchester was fully reimbursed from the state to provide these services. But, this year, the town only gets reimbursed for 70 percent of those costs, he said.

Nearly $250,000 has been budgeted to provide those services to private schools in the coming year.

Currently, the Board of Education provides a nurse full time and a social worker three days a week for East Catholic, Stigmund said.

St. Bridget School shares one nurse with St. James, while Assumption School also has a nurse come in part time, Sister Kelly said.

Kennedy said that many of the nurses employed by the Board of Education who are working at these private schools are long-time employees, so if these services to private schools were stopped, they would bump out younger employees filling positions in the public schools.

Board of Education member Terry Bogli said that if the reimbursements and the state mandates were cut, the board would be embroiled in a debate over to continue servicing these private schools, adding a policy-making decision would have to be made.

"We can't afford to continue these services without a subsidy of some sort," Bogli said, but added an agreement between the school board and private school officials could be made with some sort of payment plan in mind.

But, she said she did not know what shape that payment plan might take.

Bogli said the matter might also open up a debate over the separation of church and state.

"I think we're going to find ourselves more and more in these types of decisions as the governor tries to balance the budget," she said.

Stigmund said she hoped the state legislators would see the problems these cuts would make and vote down the proposal.

"I'm hopeful members of the legislature will see the justice issue in this," she said.

The allies were turning their attention to identifying Iraqis whose units were suspected of involvement in atrocities in Kuwait. But a senior U.S. military official in Riyadh said today that the Iraqi command in Kuwait City fled before the arrival of U.S. and allied forces and could escape prosecution.

"The Iraqi security forces saw the handwriting on the wall early and they got out ... before the Marines were even within striking distance of getting in there," the official said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

At allied checkpoints, Iraqi soldiers straggling north toward the southeastern Iraqi city of Basra were screened. The checkpoints were functioning hours after President Bush declared the cease-fire that took effect at 8 a.m. Thursday.

The haste reflected allied anger over reports Iraqi soldiers murdered, raped and mutilated citizens before abandoning the Kuwaiti capital.

In Kuwait, gruesome stories emerged about the terror of the seven-month Iraqi occupation. Hospital staff members — including morgue workers and doctors — described atrocities they had witnessed.

Hadra Ahmad, a 29-year-old volunteer Red Crescent worker at Mubarak Hospital in Kuwait City, said today that she saw the bodies of soldiers who had been shot in the mouth, burned or mutilated.

"Why are they doing these things? We just cannot understand," she said. "But now our heart is clear. They are gone."

In Baghdad, Saddam Hussein had not been seen since midday Wednesday. Official media continued today to portray the rout of Iraqi forces as a victory. "By God's will and the might of our leader Saddam Hussein we followed the aggressive plot," said the headline in one government newspaper.

That stood in sharp contrast to U.S. military officials' descriptions of the plight of the Iraqi army. They said today that surviving troops, in small disorganized units, were retreating north across a broad front toward the Euphrates River, whose bridges have been wrecked.

In the desert of southern Iraq, littered with the hulls of "killed" Iraqi tanks, the U.S. VII Corps was still on guard.

"It's just a very dangerous time right now. The uncertainty," said Sgt. Maj. Robert E. Wilson of El Paso, Texas, the corps' ranking non-commissioned officer. "In Vietnam they just used the cease-fire to reappily."

In northern Kuwait, 31st Armored Division commanders said some Republican Guard units they encountered had not seen their top officers in 20 days.

The division's troops were being destroyed abandoned Iraqi tanks and fortifications. Bunker after bunker, tank after tank went up in balls of flame.

At the United Nations, diplomats said the United States has drafted a resolution offering a settlement to the war and insisting an arms embargo against Iraq remain in place as long as Saddam stays in power.

The resolution was expected to be presented to the Security Council today. "Until we're satisfied they are willing to abide by international norms of behavior, live peacefully with their neighbors, I don't see any reason why we should be in a hurry to lift the sanctions that are already on them," Cheney said.

Kuwait's ambassador to the United Nations, Mohammed Abulhasan, said Thursday that Iraq had failed to cooperate in disclosing the condition or whereabouts of abducted Kuwaiti civilians and prisoners of war.

In Kuwait City, Habib al-Gharab, a technical adviser to Kuwait's criminal investigation department, said 5,000 people had disappeared since Feb. 21, when Saddam's forces began leaving Kuwait. He said many were killed to prevent them from testifying to torture they suffered.

Kuwait, whose people once enjoyed a life of luxury, is now struggling to meet the basic needs of its population. Emergency teams will spend the first three months providing services such as food and water, said Saud Nasir al-Sabah, Kuwait's ambassador to the United States.

Like the Kuwaitis, many Iraqis are surrounded by devastation. In Baghdad, black banners of mourning flutter from homes, honoring those who died in the conflict.

At the United Nations, diplomats said the United States has drafted a resolution offering a settlement to the war and insisting an arms embargo against Iraq remain in place as long as Saddam stays in power.

Directors: Child care not town's job

By RICK SANTOS Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Local government should help pay the cost of child care, according to members of the Manchester Community Service Council, but their recommendation met stiff opposition at a luncheon sponsored by the group Thursday.

"I don't think the town, as a town government, has much of a role in providing day care," said Geoffrey Nash, a Republican member of the town's Board of Directors.

Nash and several other board members were briefed by council members on the four social service issues that the council is advocating the expansion of services during tight financial times, then the fulfillment of their request is unlikely.

Another council member, Elaine Kahner, coordinator of the Parent Education Center at Manchester Memorial Hospital, fired back at Nash.

Ed Board OKs $10.5m budget

By JACQUELINE BENNETT Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — In a vote split along party lines, the Board of Education adopted a $10,506,389 budget and reinstated the foreign language program at the middle school Thursday night.

The $10.5 million budget is down $60,000 from Superintendent of Schools Michael Malinowski's initial proposal and is an 8.5 percent increase over this year's $9,678,120 budget.

The budget now goes to the Town Council for approval, before being presented to voters as part of the town budget at the annual Town Meeting in May or an adjourned referendum.

"I don't have a problem with sending an 8.5 percent increase to the Town Council. We've got a real bare bones budget; we're aware of bad economic times," said board member Paul Manzone during the meeting at Coventry High School.

Manzone continued, "Last year at this point we sent a 14 percent increase to the council. I certainly don't feel guilty about 8.5. They may send it back in our face, but let's give them the chance to make that decision."

Manzone also pointed out that voters approved a budget for this year of a 9 percent increase. "That's a half percent more than what we're starting with this year," he said.

The four Democrats voted for the budget. Republicans Constance Lathrop and Pamela Sewell voted against it, saying the budget is too high for voters to accept. Republican Wendy McMahon was absent.

Sewell said although she doesn't doubt that all things requested in the budget are needed, she questions if all are critical needs.

"If we cut it we're not going to hurt a whole lot of people," Sewell said, adding that current poor economic times must be considered.

Meredith Mickel, a student at Capt. Nathan Hale School and daughter of former Board of Education Chairman Lawrence Mickel, presented the board with a petition signed by 181 Nathan Hale School students asking that the foreign language program be reinstated there.

The board cut it last year under the budget plan, hoping to reinstate it with improvements. Parents had complained that students could not receive credit at Coventry High School for the language courses at Nathan Hale School. Also there was difficulty finding one teacher with dual certification in French and Spanish.

Nathan Hale School Principal Edward Mahoney suggested the program be changed to an exploratory one, where students have an opportunity to be exposed to foreign languages. Such a program, Mahoney said, would require a teacher certified in one language only, but allowed to teach both. All students would be eligible to participate in the program, rather than just those with a certain grade average.

Member Kathleen Ryan said she feels it's important for town children to learn a foreign language at an early age to remain competitive with youngsters in other districts that have such programs.

Cuts were made in equipment and contracted services. During discussion Malinowski attempted to defend his program, gift of maps and globes for G.H. Robertson School from its Parent Teachers Organization at Wednesday's board meeting.

"As the law says, it is our responsibility to provide adequate financial resources to provide education, adequate instructional materials," Malinowski said, placing his hand on a volume of Connecticut Education Laws. It is "A message of frustration," Malinowski said for teachers to go to PTO to get those materials.

"The message I got was the PTO are dedicated parents, taxpayers that wanted to something to help and she (the PTO co-president) was just awful," said Lathrop, referring to Wednesday's meeting.

and alcohol abusers, and primary health care. An offshoot of the affordable housing concern is the issue of homelessness.

And an offshoot of the day care issue is the recommendation to establish family resource centers, which are schools used for multiple services for families outside of traditional educational programs during school hours.

As well as opposing the suggestion that the town assist in providing day care, Nash questioned the establishment of the resource centers, which he said would be costly.

The resource centers, a plan devised by a professor at Yale University, are used as referral centers for families that need direction to acquire other services.

However, Nash argued that the town already provides referral assistance through some of its programs.

Besides day care, the issues are the availability of affordable housing, treatment programs for drug neighborhoods," he said. But members of the council, including Nancy Carr, executive director of the Manchester Area Conference of Churches, argued for government-funded day care.

"Tell me what distinguishes day care to make it ineligibile for local tax dollars," said Carr, comparing the service to programs for the elderly and recreation programs for children.

Naab responded that if the group is interested in changing priorities regarding town spending, then that should be explored — as it is during every budget adoption process. However, if the council is advocating the expansion of services during tight financial times, then the fulfillment of their request is unlikely.

Another council member, Elaine Kahner, coordinator of the Parent Education Center at Manchester Memorial Hospital, fired back at Nash.

Naab was supported by fellow Republican Director Ronald Osella.

"Don't look to large, central government to fund everything," Osella said. "The well is empty at the state level, so we're going to have to look elsewhere, such as private industry and banks."

Council member Philip Susag responded to Osella's comments by noting an overall theme cast by the Agency for Tomorrow citizens' group, for which Susag had served as chairman.

"Our concern was there should be a partnership between government and the community," he said. "It doesn't mean that the government has to pay for everything."

Regarding the council's concerns about affordable housing and homelessness, Mayor Terry Wetherston said such concerns are being addressed through the directors and the Planning and Zoning Commission.

The politicians were informed also about the lack of substance about abuse prevention programs for adults.

Town Health Director Ronald Krantz said the schools have decent prevention programs, but adults have none.

In another health issue, Joanne R. Cannon, the community health nurse for the Health Department, briefly discussed the problems for some to receive adequate primary health care.

Murdock was selected from a pool of 150 applicants, which was narrowed down to six finalists from as far away as Rhode Island, Danbury and Old Saybrook.

Murdock, 25, who has worked for the chamber as downtown coordinator since 1988, said she will not make any quick, drastic changes to the organization.

"I'd like to meet with the board and get their consensus on where we're going," Murdock said. "I also want to contact the members to see where their interests lie."

Murdock is a graduate of the chamber already has in place, including the school-business partnership, the downtown revitalization program and the business expansion and retention program.

Murdock is a graduate of Cornell University with a degree in communications. She has worked for WISH-TV as a promotions assistant and graduated from Jordan Marsh's Executive Training Program.

Murdock named Chamber head

By BRIAN M. TROTTER Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce has named Acting President Stacy Pines Murdock as its new president.

Murdock has been the acting president since December, when Anne Fitts left the chamber presidency after 12 years to take a similar position in Schenectady, N.Y. Her appointment is effective immediately.

Murdock was selected from a pool of 150 applicants, which was narrowed down to six finalists from as far away as Rhode Island, Danbury and Old Saybrook.

MHS students compete

By AMY MARIE SMITH Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — A team of eight Manchester High School students will go to the University of New Hampshire on Monday to compete in a statewide 240-question examination covering biology, chemistry, computer science, English, mathematics, and physics.

The eight are David Hoagland, Brian Schwartz, Paul Spiegel, Jason DeJoannis, Kathryn Lindstrom, Meredith Meyers, Peter Wisniewski, and David Phillips. The team is coached by Stanley Eby.

Sponsored by United Technologies Corporation, the IETS-TEAMS (Junior Engineering Technical Society—Tests for Engineering Aptitude, Mathematics, and Science) competition is an academic event that challenges high school students to show their academic knowledge and demonstrate their problem-solving and team-interaction skills.

Instead of placing emphasis on the student's individual performance, which is already done by the SAT as well as other tests, the focus is on teamwork and team solutions to different problems.

Students in grades 9-12 are eligible to participate. The competition will be split into seven divisions, based on type of school (open or selective admissions), as well as the senior class status.

The test will start at 9 a.m., followed by lunch, an engineering lecture, and laboratory demonstrations in the UNH School of Engineering. The day will close with an awards ceremony, during which the top placing teams will be announced.

The all-around high scoring team will receive scholarships to the U.S. Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala., compliments of UTC. The top three scoring teams from each division will be given computer software purchasing grants for their schools, team trophies, and individual trophies for each team member.

A special trophy will be given to the first-place team from each division, with the school name engraved.

The commission had also been urged to consider amending the charter to preclude the Town Council from setting an increased mill rate for the annual budget without an approved budget as the current Democratic majority did in July 1990. Commission members decided they do not have the authority to make the change.

Former Republican councilman Philip Bouchard said that if the council can do that, in essence at that point the council becomes a representative government with the power of the budget taken from voters.

Instead Bouchard proposed that the council be allowed to set a temporary mill rate to keep the town running.

Under state law, if a town is without an approved budget by the start of the fiscal year, July 1, the previous year's mill rate can be set by the council, and a 90-day budget adopted and 30-day subsequent budgets can be adopted until an annual budget is approved.

However this past summer the council acted under a state statute it said allows local government to set an increased mill rate when residents fail to levy taxes sufficient to support the needs of the town. The town, however, can't spend more than the voters approve. Thus, extra taxes go into a surplus fund account.

The Republican Town Committee sued the town over the council's action, but the suit was dropped on a technical ground.

A similar suit involving Old Saybrook was decided by the Connecticut Supreme Court this month in favor of the right of government officials to set such a tax rate.

At the meeting Wednesday, Walsh responded to Bouchard, saying the court decision preempts any proposal the commission could make to change the law.

Thus, extra taxes go into a surplus fund account. The Republican Town Committee sued the town over the council's action, but the suit was dropped on a technical ground.

Bouchard said he has already contacted 8th Assembly District representative Robert Bogue (R-Columbia) about change in the state law.

The commission's proposals now go to the Town Council. If the council approves of them, they go to a referendum.

Compromise evident in Coventry meeting

By JACQUELINE BENNETT Manchester Herald

COVENTRY — The Charter Revision Commission seems to have set a new tone of political compromise and proposed changes to the Town Charter palatable to both political parties at a public hearing Wednesday.

"There's a lot of political compromise here," said commission member David Rappe.

The Republican councilman Philip Bouchard said that if the council can do that, in essence at that point the council becomes a representative government with the power of the budget taken from voters.

Instead Bouchard proposed that the council be allowed to set a temporary mill rate to keep the town running.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Better to leave error alone

DEAR ABBY: Many years ago, you printed a very comical column about an editor who tried to correct a typographical error, and every time he tried to correct it, he compounded the error and ended up in far worse trouble than he started with. I was a classified ad to sell a sewing machine. I have lost the clipping. Will you please try to find it and run it again?

BETTIE EVANS IN GEORGIA
DEAR BETTIE: I found it. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: My mother recently passed away after a brief illness. In the obituary published in our local newspaper, her age was given as 89.

Abby, my mother was only 80, so it was apparently a typographical error. Now this may not seem very important to some people, but Mother was a very vain and prideful woman who would never tell her age.

Because of this typographical error in her obituary, everyone who thought she was nine years older than she actually was. Should we ask the newspaper editor to publish a correction? I say we should. The rest of the family says to skip it.

DEAR OUTVOTED: Sometimes it's better to leave bad enough alone. In support of my advice, I offer the following from the California Newspaper Association. It is an example of a typographical error in the classified section of a small-town newspaper, and the subsequent disastrous attempts to correct it.

(Monday) "FOR SALE — R.D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale. Phone 948-0707 after 7 p.m. and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him cheap."

(Tuesday) "NOTICE — We regret having erred in R.D. Jones' ad yesterday. It should have read: One sewing machine for sale. Cheap. Phone 948-0707 and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him after 7 p.m."

(Wednesday) "NOTICE — R.D. Jones has informed us that he has received several annoying telephone calls because of the error we made in his classified ad yesterday. His ad stands correct as follows: FOR SALE — R.D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale. Cheap. Phone 948-0707 p.m. and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him."

(Thursday) "NOTICE — I, R.D. Jones, have NO sewing machine for sale. I SMASHED IT. Don't call 948-0707, as the telephone has been disconnected. I have NOT been carrying on with Mrs. Kelly. UNTIL yesterday she was my housekeeper, but she quit."

Q. Around 1940, there was a movie starring Lucille Ball, June Allyson and Gloria DeHaven, among others, based on a Broadway musical. It had the song, "Buckle Down, Winsorck!" in it. What was the name of that movie, and is it available on cassette? — W.R., Erie, Pa.

A. That was "Best Foot Forward," a gem of a musical. It was released in 1943. And, yes, it is on videocassette.

Q. I recently saw the movie "Jane Eyre" with Jon Pertwee and Oona O'Neill. I was certain that the part of Helen was played by Elizabeth Taylor, but her name was not on the credits. If that wasn't Elizabeth, who was it? — H.B., Amarillo, Texas.

A. Her name was on the credits I have — yes, that was Elizabeth Taylor, in all her pre-teens glory.

Q. What kind of dog is Dreyfus, the dog on "Empty Nest"? — Y.T., Mesa, Ariz.

A. Dreyfus is played by an actor who is a full-time canine. His name is Bear. On his father's side, he has German shepherd and golden retriever blood; his mother was a St. Bernard (who was in the movie, "Steel Magnolias.")

Q. My father and I have been arguing over a matter of height. I say Lee Horsey on "Paradise" is 6 feet tall, but my father thinks he's only 5 foot 10 or 5 foot 11. Which one is it right? — J.E., Smiths Grove, Ky.

A. You both underestimate Horsey's altitude. He is 6 feet 3 inches tall.

PEOPLE

Med Gibson's fans may think of him as a... of action, but the actor says he feels right at home playing men cursed with the inability to make up their minds.

Gibson stars as Hamlet, the thinker who wasn't sure whether "to be or not to be," in the latest adaptation of Shakespeare's classic tragedy. "You're never really supremely happy, except in short spurts in your life," Gibson told Parade magazine in its March 3 weekend editions.

"I certainly have times when I feel like checking the towel in, pulling up roots and going to some island somewhere — but then you realize that you must never abandon hope," he said.

Gibson, 35, had played Shakespeare on stage before becoming a film star. Also appearing in the film are Glenn Close as Gertrude and Helena Bonham Carter as Ophelia.

When Alfred Hitchcock's "Psycho" came out in 1960, posters for the film warned that "No one will be admitted after the picture has started." The man who wrote the book on which the classic thriller was based would have been happy not to show up at all.

"I don't feel comfortable attending such films," Robert Bloch said in a recent interview in an interview with the book from his home in Los Angeles. "I'm quite acquainted about them."

Bloch will be present this weekend as a special guest at the World Horror Convention in Nashville. But don't expect him to see any of the films. He said he's reluctant to check out the latest hair-raiser, "Silence of the Lambs."

"I'd have to nerve myself up to go," he said. "The director wanted to check out the latest hair-raiser, 'Silence of the Lambs.'"

Richard Roberts, vice president of Oral Roberts University, said doctors determined the two-hour surgery Thursday was completely successful.

In fact, the surgeon said while he was opening one artery, he checked the arteries around it and found they were all clear.

Roberts said his mother, his wife and he were in the Hillcrest Medical Center recovery room when his 73-year-old father awoke.

"My dad looked around and said, 'I'm hungry and I'm thirsty,'" he said.

The elective surgery opened some of Roberts' carotid arteries, which carry blood to the head.

Actor Bruce Davison, nominated for an Academy Award for "Longtime Companion," has had more than his share of challenging roles.

He co-starred with hundreds of rats in "Willard," played a child molester in the prison film "Short Eyes" and relived the 60's student riots in "The Strawberry Statement."

Ulcer not always linked to stress

DEAR DR. GOTT: My father complains of pain in his stomach, which he thinks might be an ulcer. Since he leads a stress-free life and we have always been told ulcers are related to stress, we question this diagnosis. Can an ulcer be treated by our family doctor, or should he see a specialist?

DEAR READER: Although the classic teaching has been that stress causes ulcers, this dogma is not necessarily true. Stressed people often have cast-iron stomachs, and unstressed patients frequently develop peptic ulcers. The precise cause of ulcers is unknown.

Some experts believe that an intestinal bacterial infection leads to the condition; other authorities emphasize alternative causes for ulcers. For example, aspirin and similar drugs, such as medicine used for arthritis, often produce ulcers. This is a recognized, common complication of these medications. Excess use of alcohol can also lead to ulcers.

If your father has recurring, burning abdominal pain that is relieved by eating or taking antacids, he should be checked for peptic ulcers. An upper GI series (special X-rays of the stomach and first part of the small intestine) will likely show an ulcer if one is present. In addition, ulcers can readily be seen during upper endoscopy, when a specialist examines the stomach with a fiberoptic device.

In your father's case, I would be more influenced by the location and nature of his pain than by his stress-free lifestyle. A family doctor can diagnose and treat peptic ulcers. Specialists are not necessary unless endoscopy is required or the abdominal pain remains undiminished after testing.

I should add that many medical conditions mimic peptic ulcers. These include angina and heart attack, gallstones, acute inflammation of the pancreas and aortic aneurysm (when blood leaks from a stretched artery in the abdomen).

Your father should start with his family doctor and accept a referral to a specialist as needed. Because your father may require expensive testing and treatment, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Insuring Your Good Health." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Sizzling Hawks burn the Blazers

By JOHN KREISER
The Associated Press

The Portland Trail Blazers may be the NBA's best team, but they were no match for the Atlanta Hawks, the league's hottest home team.

The Hawks led 80-72 late in the third period Thursday night, but John Battle led a 22-5 burst that led Atlanta to a 117-109 victory, the Hawks' 21st in a row at the Omni.

"We wanted to win real bad and someone had to do something for us to win," said Battle, who had 18 of his 26 points in the final period. "We just smothered the victory and we charged at the end."

Battle had nine points and Duane Ferrell added seven as the Hawks turned the 80-72 deficit into a 94-85 lead. Battle capped the surge when he barely beat the shot clock with a 3-pointer from the right corner with 54.9 to go.

"What a great effort," Atlanta coach Bob Weiss said. "We've just been playing great every night at home. Our bench was fantastic."

Dominique Wilkins added 25 points for Atlanta and Glenn Rivers had 21.

In other NBA games, it was New York 100, San Antonio 93; New Jersey 98, Milwaukee 93; Miami 100, Detroit 98; the Los Angeles Lakers 121, Denver 108; and the Los Angeles Clippers 83, Houston 80.

The Hawks, now 24-4 at home, got a big lift from their bench. Atlanta's reserves outscored their Portland counterparts 43-25.

The Trail Blazers got 20 points each from Terry Porter, Kevin Duckworth and Clyde Drexler, who was ejected with two consecutive technical fouls with 2:38 remaining. Drexler was tossed for complaining when he thought he was fouled and nothing was called.

"We've got to stand up for what you believe in," Drexler said. "I did get pretty upset, but I shouldn't have lost my cool. But sometimes you just stand up for what you believe in."

"I don't blame him at all," Portland coach Rick Adelman said. "You've got to stand up for what you believe in."

Trenary looks for fresh start

By BARRY WILNER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The most difficult year of Jill Trenary's career so far has brought a coaching change.

The three-time U.S. figure skating champion and reigning world champion, has switched from Carlo Fassi, teacher of Olympic champions, to Carol Heiss-Jenkins, the 1960 Olympic gold medalist.

"Maybe being around different skaters, a different environment and a different coach can contribute to a new motivation," Heiss-Jenkins said. "There won't be any major changes. We will just be honing what she does best, being feminine and graceful."

Fassi, who trained Peggy Fleming, Dorothy Hamill, John Curry and Robin Cousins, to Olympic crowns, moved to Milan, Italy last fall. Trenary went there for some training, but the new rink the Fassis were promoting had not been completed and the small, older rink they worked at did not suit Trenary.

"A fresh new start might be good," Trenary said. "It's unfortunate, but you are dealt what you have and you have to deal with it."

As recently as two weeks ago, at the national championships that Trenary missed with an ankle injury, she said she still considered Fassi and his wife Christina to be her coaches. But now Trenary will move from Colorado Springs, Colo., to Cleveland to work with Heiss-Jenkins.

She had been training with Kathy Casey, who took over for the Fassis in Colorado Springs, since last fall.

Her relationship with Casey never worked out — Casey has several other highly regarded skaters on her stable and her time for Trenary was more limited than Fassi's.

"It's absolutely nothing personal," Trenary said. "Kathy and I got along well."

Casey said to do what is necessary to get going for 1992. "I have no problems with Jill going elsewhere."

Fassi said Trenary would be more comfortable in Milan now that the new rink is ready.

"If she would have come now, things would have been better than before," he said. "Our situation over here is more established now."

Because of the ankle injury, Trenary also will miss defending her crown in the world championships at Munich, Germany later this month. Since she is out of training, she decided to settle the coaching problems.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The NCAA has assured UNLV it will not suspend any of its basketball players this season for alleged violations involving incidental hotel bills during recruiting visits, according to the university's legal counsel.

Bradley Boeke said he has been told that the top-ranked Runnin' Rebels will be allowed to finish out this season without fear of any suspensions.

NBA Roundup

Three-point play wrapped up the Nets' second straight victory and fourth in the last five games.

Heat 100, Pistons 98: Sherman Douglas scored 27 points, including the tie-breaking basket with 1:13 left as Miami handed visiting Detroit its fourth consecutive loss.

Douglas' driving 8-footer snapped a 96-96 tie and he followed with a steal that led to Grant Long's follow shot.

Winnie Johnson got the last two of his season-high 32 points by hitting a pair of free throws with 29 seconds left. But after a 24-point violation, the Heat bottled up Johnson and Joe Dumars (30 points), forcing Gerald Henderson (no points) to miss on an 18-footer at the buzzer.

Lakers 121, Nuggets 108: Magic Johnson had 18 points and 14 assists as the Lakers wrapped up a six-game road trip by beating Denver 121-108.

Nets 98, Bucks 93: Drazen Petrovic scored 10 of his 22 points in the final four minutes and Derrick Coleman added 21 points and 11 rebounds to lift New Jersey over visiting Milwaukee.

Petrovic hit a 3-pointer with 3:59 to play to snap an 82-82 tie. He added two free throws and Mookie Blaylock followed with a steal and layup to make it 89-82.

After Dale Ellis hit a 3-pointer with 2:28 remaining, Petrovic's layup was fouled and nothing was called.

"We've got to stand up for what you believe in," Drexler said. "I did get pretty upset, but I shouldn't have lost my cool. But sometimes you just stand up for what you believe in."

"I don't blame him at all," Portland coach Rick Adelman said. "You've got to stand up for what you believe in."

Battle had nine points and Duane Ferrell added seven as the Hawks turned the 80-72 deficit into a 94-85 lead. Battle capped the surge when he barely beat the shot clock with a 3-pointer from the right corner with 54.9 to go.

"What a great effort," Atlanta coach Bob Weiss said. "We've just been playing great every night at home. Our bench was fantastic."

Dominique Wilkins added 25 points for Atlanta and Glenn Rivers had 21.

Reugh may return for playoffs
HARTFORD (AP) — Hartford Whalers rookie goalie Daryl Reugh may be able to return for the playoffs if this severe hamstring injury heals quickly, the team physician said.

Reugh suffered a substantial tear in his semi-tendon muscle on Tuesday in Winnipeg while making a kick save of a Dave Melvin shot. Dr. John Pulkerson said Thursday.

X-rays revealed there was no break in the pelvis bone and surgery is not needed, Pulkerson said. Pulkerson said the muscle should respond to therapy and Reugh might be able to play again in April during the playoffs.

Yanks name Mattingly captain
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Don Mattingly was picked Thursday to be the 10th captain in the history of the New York Yankees.

"It's one of the biggest thrills I've had and one of the best honors I've had in baseball," Mattingly said after manager Stump Merrill announced his decision at a team meeting before a workout at Fort Lauderdale Stadium.

"I'm sure if we put it to a vote I would have come out the same guy I appointed," Merrill said.

Previous Yankees captains were Hal Chase, Roger Peckinpaugh, Babe Ruth, Everett Scott, Lou Gehrig, Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles, Willie Randolph and Joe Mauer.

Reugh's three goals gave him 22 for the season. "I never expected this back in August," he said. "I didn't think I'd be the top scorer in the playoffs. Now they're showing a lot of confidence in me by putting me out on the power play. You never expect that when you get called up."

Reugh was acquired by Boston last August from the Minnesota North Stars, who gave up him after three seasons on the Kalamazoo farm team in the International Hockey League.

Called up to the Bruins on Oct. 27 after playing eight games in Maine, Dodge is now moving into contention for a roster spot in the NHL.

Mark O'Meara, Dan Fisman, Tom Purtzer, Billy Ray Brown, Billy Glason, Wayne Levi and club pro Greg Cennill were a stroke behind the leaders.

With greens softened by a series of showers, scoring was unusually low on the Blue Monster course at Doral. More than half the 144-man field broke par.

Sullivan jailing is sought
PATTERSON, N.J. (AP) — Lawyers for heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield and George Foreman obtained a show cause order that asks a New Jersey judge to jail World Boxing Council president Jose Sulaiman.

The order directs Sulaiman to appear next Thursday before New Jersey Superior Court Judge Anne C. Saunders and defend allegations that he violated a temporary restraining order issued Nov. 27 against the WBC.

The WBC wants to strip Holyfield of his title and award it to the winner of the March 18 fight between Mike Tyson and Razzor Ruddick.

Saunders ordered that the central matters of the case be decided by an arbitrator and issued the order to prevent any action from being taken until the arbitrator's decision.

Lawyers for Holyfield and Foreman allege that the WBC violated that order Monday when it issued a press release saying it would declare the Tyson-Ruddick winner champion if it wins the arbitration.

Wingate won't face charges
ELICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — A prosecutor has decided against trying former San Antonio Spurs guard David Wingate for rape and the team said it will decide about a week whether to re-sign him.

Howard County State's Attorney William R. Hynes made his decision after the complainant said she no longer wanted to press charges. Wingate's agent, William L. Strickland, said he would contact the Spurs on Sunday when the team plays the Bulls in Washington.

Matt Sperian, a spokesman for the Spurs, said they would probably decide within a week whether to renege contract negotiations with Wingate.

Earlier this month, prosecutors in Bexar County, Texas, dropped other rape charges against Wingate, accused of sexually assaulting a 22-year-old woman there last June.

Morell sets indoor record
SEVILLE, Spain (AP) — Algerian Noureddine Morell celebrated his 21st birthday by setting a 1,500-meter indoor record with a clocking of 3 minutes, 34.16 seconds.

Morell broke the record of 3:34.20 set exactly one year ago on the same track by Briton Peter Elliott. The Algerian student at Southern Cal. was followed by Spaniard Permin Cacho at 3:35.26.

Officials first said Morell had run the race in a world record-shattering 3:33.14. But they corrected the time after ruling one of the race clocks had been stopped too soon.

Hager enters innocent plea
BOSTON (AP) — Former middleweight boxing champion Marvelous Marvin Hager has pleaded innocent to a charge of assault and battery on a former girlfriend.

Hager is alleged to have hit Lisa Pilagionis, 34, of Revere with his fist at a Boston hotel last Sept. 11.

A criminal complaint filed by police said the woman's jaw was broken.

Boston Municipal Court Judge Peter Donovan set bail at $500 Thursday and continued the case until April 22.

Ms. Pilagionis also has filed a civil suit against Hager. Hager, formerly of Brockton, listed his address as Milan, Italy. His lawyer said Hager made two movies in Italy.

Bruins get needed win at right time

By JOHN KREISER
The Associated Press

BOSTON (AP) — Boston goalie Andy Moog's 12th career shutout was an any-ones. As far as he's concerned, it couldn't have come at a better time.

"The best approach we could take to this game tonight is to forget about any other game we played recently," Moog said after Boston's 5-0 win over the hapless New York Islanders Thursday night. Rookie Ken Hodges had a hat trick for the second time in eight games.

The Bruins were stymied by recent tough losses to Chicago and St. Louis, but whipping the Islanders was just what Moog felt the Bruins needed to get back on track.

"They didn't give me anything too tough to handle," said Moog. "We were expected to win tonight. We are far ahead of them in the point race. This was one we should have put them away. We really took the play to them."

"We never played well, basically," he said. "That's what it comes down to. I hope every one of us is upset about it. If not, then we're taking the easy way out."

Moog, making his first start in the Boston net since a Jan. 31 knee injury, had 19 saves in chalking up his third shutout of the season.

"I've been ready to play for two weeks," he said. "Reggie (Lemelin) was playing well at the time. I can live with that. I feel 100 percent and ready to play whenever (coach Mike Milbury) wants me to."

Hodge's three goals gave him 22 for the season. "I never expected this back in August," he said. "I didn't think I'd be the top scorer in the playoffs. Now they're showing a lot of confidence in me by putting me out on the power play. You never expect that when you get called up."

UConn baseball picked fourth
STORRS — The University of Connecticut baseball team has been picked fourth in the 1991 Big East Conference coaches' preseason poll.

Runnin' Rebels to finish year
LAS VEGAS (AP) — The NCAA has assured UNLV it will not suspend any of its basketball players this season for alleged violations involving incidental hotel bills during recruiting visits, according to the university's legal counsel.

Bradley Boeke said he has been told that the top-ranked Runnin' Rebels will be allowed to finish out this season without fear of any suspensions.

Boeke said the NCAA is expected to rule today on whether the hotel charges, which total $129 for four players, were violations. But he said even if they were found to be violations, the players would still be eligible for the remaining games.

Boeke said reports that the players, including All-American Larry Johnson and starting center George Ackles, might be suspended for a game because of incidental hotel bills incurred during recruiting visits were the result of a misunderstanding between the university and the NCAA.

"UNLV regrets that there apparently has been some miscommunication and misunderstanding regarding this issue," Boeke said in a prepared statement. "I do not believe there has been any deliberate effort by the NCAA to harass UNLV or undermine its drive to a second consecutive national championship."

NCAA officials did not return a phone call seeking comment on the charges.

The charges stem from bills incurred by four players when they were recruiting visits to UNLV. In addition to Johnson and Ackles, reserves Ervin Gray and Bobby Joyce allegedly left unpaid hotel bills during recruiting visits.

Young gets his chance with Bosox

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Left-hander Matt Young is 27 games under 500 in his major league career, but his name is in the record books with Walter Johnson, Don Drysdale, Bob Gibson and 17 other pitchers.

And Young unknowingly may have clinched a job with the Boston Red Sox last Sept. 9 when he struck out four batters in the 3-
