

Gulf war elicits a slew of new names for the track

By CHIP BROWN

AMARILLO, Texas — Patsy Johnson and her husband Charles were having trouble thinking up a name for their newborn filly last August.

And then one night, while watching coverage of the Persian Gulf conflict in their living room, the name hit Patsy like a Scud missile.

"Bomb Saddam," she blurted out loud.

More than eight months later, the Johnsons are among hundreds who have requested Gulf War-related names for their quarter horses or thoroughbreds.

Jim Goodhue, the registrar over the past 21 years for the Amarillo-based American Quarter Horse Association, said his office is up to its waltzers in applications for names made popular by the successful all-star war effort.

"Everything you can think of has been requested," said Goodhue. "Whenever an event of this magnitude breaks out, there is usually a flurry of names requested that coincide."

The same surge is being noticed by The Jockey Club in Lexington, Ky., which names American thoroughbreds, said Molly Hackathorn, a registration processor.

"It's been incredible," Hackathorn said. "I don't have an actual figure, but once the operation turned from Desert Shield to Desert Storm, it seemed like every fifth application was for Desert Storm, Scud Buster, Patriot Missile or Stormin' Norman."

Johnson, who trains horses with her husband in Stewart, Iowa, said Bomb Saddam was a natural.

"We had been watching so much of the news about the troops in Saudi Arabia. One night that just popped in my head," she said. "At the time, we wanted the troops to bomb Saddam, so it just clicked."

"Now we are just hoping she will break the competition on the race track. We want to see her in the winner's circle."

Unfortunately, many of the Gulf War-related names being requested have already been used.

Several applications to name a quarter horse "Stormin' Norman" after the burly but personable allied forces leader Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf were denied because the name was awarded in 1971.

Desert Storm, another moniker in high demand, was given to a quarter horse in 1947 and Fort Hood in 1965.

The same names have also been used by thoroughbreds prior to the Gulf War.

But names granted to quarter horses since allied troops were deployed to Saudi Arabia include Desert Shield, Patriot Missile, Saudi Sunset and Scud Buster.

"I was thrilled and shocked when I opened the envelope and saw that we had gotten the name Desert Storm," said horse breeder Martha Wells of Orange, Calif. "When I requested it, I thought for sure it would have been taken already. It's quite an honor. My only fear is that the little colt will not live up to the name."

End of Gulf war fails to interrupt recession

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration is counting on the end of the Persian Gulf War to translate into a quick end to the U.S. recession, but so far the reports from the domestic front have not been encouraging.

The latest bad news came Thursday when the Labor Department said new claims for unemployment benefits rose up to 519,000 in the week ending March 9. That was 45,000 above the previous week and the highest total since Jan. 8, 1983, when the country was pulling out of the steep 1981-82 recession.

Economists, who had been hoping to see the layoff picture begin to brighten, said the big jump in unemployment claims in the week following the end of the allied ground war against Iraq showed that March got off to a lull.

Samuel Kahn, chief economist for Fidelity Securities Inc. in Chicago, cautioned that weekly unemployment claims can be volatile, but he noted that averaging the number for four weeks at a time showed a steady deterioration since December, suggesting a "continuing weakening of the economy."

Glaspie grilled on 'confusing' signals to Iraq

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration failed to heed a series of signs that Iraq was turning increasingly hostile in the months before its invasion of Kuwait, a senior congressional Democrat is charging.

"I get the impression that no one in the high levels of policy making at the State Department was paying much attention to Iraq until the end of July, 1990," said Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Middle East subcommittee.

Hamilton came to that conclusion after nearly four hours of tough questioning of former U.S. Ambassador to Baghdad April Glaspie, who came to Capitol Hill Thursday for a second day of testimony.

"I get the impression that during those six or eight months prior to August 2, Iraq's policy changed, and changed in a very negative way toward the United States," Hamilton said, citing a series of hostile moves by President Saddam Hussein.

"But U.S. policy did not change," he said. "The warning bells went off, but nobody in Washington was listening."

Glaspie defended the State Department and insisted U.S. policy makers were well aware of the deteriorating state of relations with Iraq through the first half of last year.

She said: "I really reject the notion that our policy didn't change" in response to Saddam's threats against Israel, the execution of a British journalist and the attempted smuggling of nuclear weapons trigger devices.

The grilling from Hamilton's panel was in marked contrast to the gentle questioning Glaspie underwent a day earlier before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Hamilton hammered at what he contended was confused American public diplomacy, citing statements by State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler and Assistant Secretary of State John Kelly that the United States had "no special defense or security commitments to Kuwait."

And he questioned how Glaspie could be so certain Saddam realized U.S. seriousness. "That language conveys just the opposite," he said.

Hamilton recited a litany of conflicting statements from State Department and Pentagon officials beginning July 17, two weeks before Iraqi troops stormed into Kuwait. At the time, the administration was relating congressional moves to slap economic sanctions on Iraq, he observed.

"It is a record which confused me, confused this subcommittee... and it is not unreasonable to think it might have confused Saddam Hussein as well," Hamilton told the diplomat.

War opponents in military continue to want out

BOSTON (AP) — The Persian Gulf War is over, but for some in the military who wanted no part of the fighting, the battle rages on.

Many of those seeking conscientious objector status, Dr. Harlow Ballard, an Army captain stationed at Fort Devens in Ayer, still want out.

"The war ending doesn't change my feelings at all," Ballard said in a recent interview.

Conscientious objectors — "COs" in military shorthand — oppose military service or war on ethical, moral or religious grounds.

Nobody knows exactly how many people applied for CO status after Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Pentagon spokesman Maj. Doug Hart said 207 active-duty and reserve personnel applied by the end of 1990. Advocacy groups estimated there were about 1,700 to 2,500 applicants in the last eight months.

Most applicants are following through with the process. And despite the war's end, new objectors are still marching in, although in lower numbers, said Peter Jamieson, a counselor with the New York-based War Resisters League.

Hart said the government recognizes two types of COs: "those who do not believe in any war in any form, and those who won't bear arms."

The latter, he said, could remain in the military at jobs that don't involve weapons. The rest usually seek honorable discharges, a process that takes at least three months.

Until they're discharged, they must comply with military orders — including overseas deployment — or face court-martial. Hart said the government is processing those who refused.

Many COs say they made mistakes as teen-agers, counselors said.

"Most signed up at 17 or 18, right out of high school," said Melissa Emen of Hands Off, a New York-based student group. "They didn't think it out."

"If you can get married and divorced, you can join the Army and change your mind as well," she said.

Hostages are unfinished business

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Arab-Israeli dispute is not the only piece of unfinished business in the Middle East. There is also the compelling case of six American and seven other Western hostages.

Rumors are flying that some or all may be released soon. There is every humanitarian reason to let them go. And now, in the postwar period, there are strong practical reasons as well.

The United States, using the allied victory over Iraq as a springboard, is making a fresh start in trying to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict. It also intends to assist the Palestinians.

All the Mideast governments that conceivably have some influence in the hostage situation have a stake in the new U.S. diplomatic effort, Iran included. All have something to gain if the hostages are released.

Put another way, none appears to have anything to gain by prolonging their detention.

Iran probably has the most influence over the outcome because of its ties to Hezbollah, the group believed to be holding most or all of the hostages in Lebanon.

During the Persian Gulf War the Bush administration opened indirect talks with Tehran through the Swiss government.

Navy planes collide

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A pair of Navy submarine-hunting planes conducting warfare training in rough weather collided in a fireball over the Pacific, and all 27 people aboard were feared dead today.

The Navy conducted an aggressive search into the night although there was little hope of survivors in the cold, choppy waters. Search teams recovered some wreckage Thursday, but no bodies were found.

"I think we have to be realistic here," said Senior Chief Petty Officer Bob Howard, a Navy public affairs officer at North Island Naval Air Station. It wasn't immediately known how long the search would last, but Howard said the Navy would make extensive attempts to retrieve remains and wreckage. If no bodies were found, however, he said the Navy "deems the sea the final resting place."

The two P-3 Orions stationed at Moffett Naval Air Station in Northern California were taking part in anti-submarine warfare exercises when they crashed Thursday morning off the Mexican coast, about 60 miles southwest of San Diego.

Officially, the crews were listed as missing. The names of those on board were not released.

Strong winds and rain hit the San Diego area overnight Wednesday. The National Weather Service said other pilots in the area reported severe turbulence in the area shortly after the crash.

About three hours after the planes collided, a funnel cloud was sighted about five miles off San Diego's Mission Beach. The Navy was uncertain what part, if any, weather played in the collision, Howard said.

The cause of the accident is still under investigation and we're not ruling out any possibility at this time," he said.

The crew of a Navy helicopter in the area and sailors from the destroyer USS Merrill reported a loud explosion and fireball about 2:30 a.m., about the same time radio contact was lost, Howard said.

The collision came as one P-3 Orion was arriving to relieve the other, which had just completed its seven-hour part of the exercise. Officials were uncertain how much contact the pilots had before the crash, said Howard.

EMOTIONAL REUNION — Kuwaiti Jaber Nasser is embraced by his mother, Malla Mohammed, left, and an unidentified woman today as he was reunited with them for the first time since being released from captivity in Iraq. He was among the first plane-load of 145 Kuwaiti prisoners of war to be released.

MIAMI (AP) — A Soviet-built fighter jet flown into Key West by a defecting Cuban pilot apparently wasn't detected until it began circling around a Navy base, U.S. air defense officials want to know why.

The pilot, Maj. Orestes Lorenzo Perez, flew a MiG-23 to the Key West Naval Air Station on Boca Chica Wednesday.

"The pilot tried to radio the tower using an international frequency, but he could not come up with it," according to a Navy source who spoke on condition of anonymity. "When the tower spotted the plane, they tried to contact him."

No U.S. planes took off to intercept and escort the Cuban jet, which is standard procedure when an unknown plane is detected, said Maj. Thomas Niemann, a spokesman for NORAD, the nation's air defense agency in Colorado.

White students sue over new scholarship rule

By LAURIE ASSE
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Minority college scholarships discriminate against those who don't qualify, say seven white students who are challenging the Bush administration's interim approval of such assistance.

The students asked a federal court Thursday to order the Education Department to bar tax-supported colleges from awarding minority scholarships.

A day earlier, new Education Secretary Lamar Alexander sought to defuse a controversy over minority scholarships by announcing that colleges may continue to offer them until a new study of the issue is completed.

The lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court, said minority scholarships violate the 1964 Civil Rights Act, which bars awarding financial aid "based solely on the race of the recipient."

Such scholarships make less money available to non-minority students, said the lawsuit, filed for the students by the conservative Washington Legal Foundation.

The Education Department sought a storm of criticism in December when it sought to bar minority scholarships at tax-supported colleges. Michael Williams, head of the department's office of civil rights, softened the policy two weeks later, allowing colleges to earmark private contributions — but not public money — for minority groups.

In revising the policy, Williams said he had been "politically naive" in trying to ban minority scholarships at public colleges.

On Thursday, Williams said a congressman's suggestion that Williams' aide had developed the controversial policy was "racist at best." Williams is black; the aide is white.

Alexander's announcement on Wednesday amounted to a full retreat. He said colleges may continue offering minority scholarships until the administration conducts a new review of the issue.

It should take about six months to develop a new policy, Alexander said, adding that in the meantime, "colleges and universities should keep doing what you're doing, and work with us" on the new guidelines.

Thursday's lawsuit essentially asked that the department be forced to return to Williams' original ruling. That order had been based partly on a May 1990 complaint filed by the Washington Legal Foundation, the group said.

"I think this administration would like this issue to go away and they're doing everything they can to make it go away," said the students' attorney, Richard A. Samp. "They see it as a potentially politically divisive issue."

Alcohol killing fewer

ATLANTA (AP) — Higher drinking ages, new educational efforts and stricter laws against underage drinking and driving has paid off in a decline of fatal alcohol-related crashes among young people, federal health researchers say.

The National Centers for Disease Control reports that 6,987 people between 15 and 24 died in alcohol-related crashes in 1989, the latest year for which detailed analysis is available. That's down from 7,273 for the age group in 1988.

The agency defines an alcohol-related accident as one in which a driver or other direct participant — like a pedestrian — has a detectable blood-alcohol content.

The percentage of alcohol-related traffic fatalities involving younger people has declined since 1982, the Atlanta-based CDC noted in its report Thursday.

Imelda will go home

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Imelda Marcos can return to the Philippines, but the flamboyant widow of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos will face charges if she does, President Corason Aquino says.

Mrs. Marcos, who applied for a passport Thursday at the Philippine consulate in New York, will return "even if they arrest her when she gets off the plane," said her lawyer, James Lim.

The government is trying to retrieve the billions it claims the Marcoses embezzled during his 20-year rule.

Mrs. Marcos' return may be the key to recovering government funds, but it could also set the stage for her to help determine Mrs. Aquino's successor.

Mrs. Marcos said she wanted to return to the Philippines to bury her husband, who died in September 1989 in exile in Hawaii.

Chairman: Rape hits epidemic status

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reports of rape accelerated to a record last year, according to a congressional study released Thursday that the chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee said shows the crime "has reached epidemic proportions."

The chairman, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., released the results of the study compiled by the Democratic staff of the committee to urge passage of his bill that would classify rape as a hate crime.

The number of rapes reported to police exceeded 100,000 for the first time and set records in 29 states as well as nationwide, the report said.

The 6.3 percent increase last year, from an estimated 94,504 to an estimated 100,433, was the largest one-year jump in more than a decade, Biden said.

"These numbers show that rape has reached epidemic proportions in our country," the senator said in a statement.

The committee staff's conclusions contrast sharply with the Justice Department's nationwide survey of crime victims, which recently showed that the rate of rapes per 1,000 women and teenage girls remained unchanged between 1973 and 1987.

The Justice Department survey of crime victims is considered by criminologists to be a more reliable barometer of crime trends than FBI figures because the survey includes both crimes that were reported to police and those that were not reported to authorities.

The committee, however, has gathered information from critics who said the Justice Department's survey seriously under-reports the number of rapes.

Pet pig pushed out

CHICAGO (AP) — Laddie the pig seemed the perfect house pet for a condominium-dwelling couple with an allergy to cats.

The Asian potbelly pig, fast gaining popularity in the United States, doesn't smell bad, doesn't bark and was easily house-trained.

"He's the perfect urban pet, especially for a couple who both work," said Tom Siem, who owns Laddie with his wife, Mimi.

The Siem's condo association disagrees. It wants Laddie to move out.

The couple argue the pig is a house pet like a dog or cat, which

Recession

Analysts predicted the big jump in jobs claims at the beginning of March almost assured that the unemployment rate for the entire month will climb upward from the four-year high of 6.5 percent in February.

In another disappointing sign, the Chamber of Commerce said Thursday a new survey of 8,390 businesses nationwide found them decidedly more pessimistic than they were last September.

The number of businesses forecasting that they would have to fire workers in the months ahead climbed to 21.7 percent, up from 18 percent six months ago, while 33.9 percent forecast that their sales would decline, up from 28 percent in September.

"Clearly, business confidence about the future has deteriorated," said Richard Kahn, chief economist for the chamber.

Consumer and business confidence in the economy dropped sharply following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait last August, and administration officials have expressed the hope that, with the war over, both groups would start making purchasing decisions again.

Paul Geeman, senior economist at Regional Financial Associates, said a number of analysts had been lured into predicting a quick end to the recession by the big gains in the stock market since the beginning of the year, traditionally an early sign of an economic turnaround.

But he said the stock market was responding to the euphoria of the allies' Persian Gulf success and ignoring the major problems facing a number of U.S. companies.

He said banks, retail stores and airlines are still laying off thousands of workers because of the hard times.

"People have declared this recession dead too early," Geeman said. "The truth is that we are in a recession of average duration and average intensity."

In his Economic Report of the President released in February, the Bush administration insisted that the current downturn is likely to be milder and shorter than the 11-month average for the eight previous recessions since the end of World War II.

The administration so far is sticking with a forecast that the current slump will end between April and June of this year and growth will quickly rebound to healthy levels.

But Democrats on the congressional Joint Economic Committee released their own, less upbeat view of the economy on Thursday, charging that the administration had been content to make "complacency the centerpiece" of its policies.

"While we have some optimism that the economy will weather the current period of adversity, we believe that these risk factors justify increased attention by the Congress, the president and the Federal Reserve to policies that could stimulate economic recovery, should the optimistic consensus be proven wrong," the Democrats said.

Among the Democratic recommendations:

- The Federal Reserve should move to lower interest rates further to boost the construction industry and lessen some of the stress on the banking system.
- The governments of Japan and Germany should be urged to begin lowering interest rates in their countries or face the threat that their continued tight-money policies could bring on a global recession.
- Congress should supply emergency funds to cover higher administrative costs of the unemployment insurance system and should accelerate the release of funds for public works projects already contained in this year's budget.

The Republicans on the Joint Economic Committee released a minority report in which they supported the administration's view that all the signs pointed to a quick end to the recession without the need for additional government spending.

"The Democrats look at the economy and contend the glass is half-empty and getting emptier," said Ranking Republican Dick Armey of Texas. "We look at the economy and say the glass is half-full and with the right incentives it could be full again."

bulwark Shahab at Mubarak al-Kabir Hospital. "And the bronchial asthma attacks are much more intense."

"Many of my guys with allergies are having a rough time," said U.S. Army Capt. Michael Ruff, a doctor with the 1st Infantry Division. "We're also seeing more coughs and lung problems than usual."

However, U.S. officers said the Army had yet to tabulate records on the health problems.

On Monday, Shahab said, an 80-year-old man died at the hospital when doctors failed to resuscitate him from an asthma attack.

"He was old, of course, but I think the severity of the attack had something to do with the pollution," Shahab said.

At Farwaniya and Al-Sabah hospitals, the two biggest in the country, doctors reported lung problems were up more than 200 percent since Iraqi troops ignited oil wells in January.

U.S. soldiers regularly complain of shortness of breath and some don white masks while inside their camps.

Zakut and Shahab said they were worried about long-term problems.

"We will track our bronchial cases closely," Zakut said. "We are worried about lung cancer five to 10 years from now."

Committee member Rudy Kismann, Capt. Kismann, who is the town's deputy fire marshal, and Committee Chairman Jay Giles said the differences between the larger shells and the smaller shells is the height they reach and the expanse of the explosion, which often have multiple bursts.

Although the smaller shells may not be as spectacular, they are less expensive. Therefore, Kismann and Giles believe they can compensate by filling the sky with a lot of smaller bursts.

"It will look like a multiple burst, but will actually be two shells going up," Kismann said.

No more than $11,000 will be spent on the display, committee members agreed. That is the same amount spent last year, which was $2,000 more than the previous year.

The money is not generated by taxes, but comes mostly from private donations and ticket sales. Some is from concessions sales.

The concessions will include the traditional chicken barbecue, hot dogs, and ice-cream and be managed by volunteers. The event will include a concert by the Governor's Foot Guard "Pops" Concert Band and the Hydraulic Jacks, according to committee member Ralph Maccone.

Officials of the celebration say they need volunteers to help with the concessions, as well as collecting tickets, picking up trash, and someone is needed to coordinate the volunteers. All volunteers receive a T-shirt commemorating the celebration.

Regarding a problem concerning tax volunteers, Kismann joked, "Just tell them you don't get the shirt unless you've worked for 4 hours and 15 minutes, and you don't get the decal unless you've worked for 6 hours."

campaign for political independence.

The rise of "revisionism" has been reflected in a changed public attitude.

Professor Joseph Lee of University College, Cork, said at a seminar in Dublin last month that some as yet unexplained Irish people had inherited about the revolt had been challenged by the "obscure" IRA.

"In 1916, the majority of the Irish people did not regard a rising as illegitimate," Lee said. "They regarded it as misadventure."

Balghigh said his group argues that "the aims and aspirations of 1916 stand in contrast to the rather shallow and narrow-minded views of some of the people in power in Ireland today."

Canada

for purposes of a negligence prosecution.

The case was a victory for Mary Sullivan and Gloria Lemay, the midwives accused of mishandling the home birth.

"Sullivan and Lemay cannot be convicted of criminal negligence causing death to another person," Lamert concluded.

Thursday's judgment, however, is confined to criminal law and does not end the wider legal controversy over abortion, said Helena Orton of the Women's Legal Education and Action Fund, a feminist lobby group.

"The court hasn't decided the status of the fetus for purposes of the Constitution," she said in an interview. "But it gives us some good indications about how the court would approach the issue."

Owen Landolt, vice president of Real Women of Canada, a conservative group that opposes abortion, said it was absurd to suggest a fetus in the process of birth is not a human being.

"To say that baby was not a person in law defies reality, logic and common sense," said Landolt.

There has been no national abortion law since the Supreme Court struck down the previous law in 1988 as a violation of women's rights. A replacement law narrowly passed in the House of Commons last year, but the Senate killed it in January.

MHS addition costs remain on approved mark

By SCOTT B. BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Costs for the Manchester High School addition and renovation project are right on schedule with the $3.9 million figure approved by town residents in the November referendum.

According to schematic design plans released Thursday night, the total project — which includes the addition of a 21,630-square-foot, single-story wing on the south side of the high school — will cost $3,997,100. But, since the state does not help out with renovation costs, only $3.48 million of that figure is eligible for state reimbursement, said Charles Crocini, the chairman of the Building Committee which is overseeing the project.

Currently, Manchester is under a 58.3 percent reimbursement rate with the state Department of Education for school building projects. So, according to the figures, the state will pick up roughly $2.05 million of the bill, leaving the town responsible for the remaining $1.43 million.

Crocini added that some items listed in the project's current budget, such as the $60,000 amount to handle legal fees, will remain mostly intact. Since the Building Committee will turn to Town Attorney Maureen Chmielecki's office to handle most legal aspects of the project, most of that figure will not be used, he said.

Crocini called the schematic plans a "living document" in that aspects of the plans can change if deemed necessary by the architectural firm, Stecker LaBau Arnell MaManus Architects Inc., of Glastonbury, hired to draw up the plans, or the Building Committee.

Besides the 14-classroom wing, the project includes a 16,450-square-foot addition to the school's library and administrative office. The existing library and administrative spaces will be rearranged and renovated as well.

Preble loses bid for voters table

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The Independence Day Celebration Committee will not allow Republican Reginald K. Preble to set up voter-registration tables at this year's Fourth of July festival on the campus of Manchester Community College.

Committee Chairman Jay Giles said, "It's a celebration of our independence, and it shouldn't be political." He added that the intent of the organizers is for the event to be a family gathering.

The committee had established a rule prohibiting any political solicitations several years ago, Giles said.

Last week, Preble told fellow Republicans at a meeting of the Republican Town Committee that he wants to set up voter-registration tables at the celebrations for upcoming holidays in honor of the nation.

He also wants to distribute leaflets that inform people about the Republican party and what it is like to be a Republican.

Preble believes this year's celebrations, such as those for Independence Day and Memorial Day, will have greater attendance than most years because of the fervor surrounding the victory in the war.

Preble's suggestion to attempt to register voters was received well by party members.

Newly elected GOP Town Chairman Kevin W. MacKenzie named him as chairman of a committee to coordinate setting up the voter registration sessions.

Preble said he believes Republican candidates for office are at a disadvantage in Manchester because of the predominance of registered Democrats.

As of Dec. 15, there were 12,087 Democrats, 8,199 Republicans, and 8,624 unaffiliated voters.

Bunny to aid playscape

By DAVID LAMMEY
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — The Easter Bunny is coming to town, and now is the time to have your photo taken with the oversized hare before he renegotiates his contract and his prices go out of reach.

At Herrick Park Building on Hebron Road, the Bunny will pose with adults and children alike from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Saturday. Cost is $2 for adults and $3 for children, with all proceeds to benefit the Bolton Playscape Fund.

Noreen Carpenter, who is organizing the photo session with the playscape committee, invites everyone to stop in for coffee, juice, and donut holes and of course to have your picture taken with the Bunny.

By catching the Bunny just before his old contract expired, the playscape committee engineered a real coup, experts say, because the Bunny's salary will surely be out of reach following negotiations.

"Look, Peter, the getting is getting 600 G's a year," the Bunny says. "I only want what I think is fair."

"Does he have to handle delicate eggs like me?" the Bunny says.

"Does he have to find new hidden places every year? That's what I want to know. Tell me I don't deserve as much as that mug gets."

There is little doubt the bunny will sway artists his way. His popularity is soaring now that Easter is a little over a week away, and he knows it.

But for a mere fraction of his potential worth, Bolonites, young and old, will be permitted to interact with the Bunny himself and have their picture taken.

Street sweeping program to begin

The Town of Manchester Highway Division will begin the Annual Spring Street Sweeping Program Monday. The program is expected to continue for 14 weeks.

Residents of Manchester are requested to help with the Sweeping Program in the following manner:

1. Limit parking on your street until it has been swept.
2. Sweep and rake the sand on your sidewalk and lawns into the gutter before the sweepers enter the area.
3. Keep gutters free of leaves, branches, rocks and other debris that may cause damage to the sweepers.
4. The Highway Division will issue a press release approximately one week before entering each area.

The Sweeping Program will begin in the Glenwood Area and proceed throughout the Town.

Beginning Monday, through approximately April 5, the following streets will be swept:

Pelletier gives accounting for commission formation

By DAVID LAMMEY
Manchester Herald

BOLTON — The quickest criticism that can be aimed at a political party's platform is the phrase: "It does not break any new ground."

That has been said about every announced platform in town, from the Common Sense Coalition's all-out attack on taxes to the Democrats' hike-point, economy-boosting, senior-citizens-helping plan.

And since breaking new ground is so important, the recently established Economic Development Commission has become a bone of contention. It seems that everyone is claiming responsibility for its creation.

Rick Pelletier, who is currently a selectman and Democratic candidate for first selectman, says he would like to set the record straight.

The Democratic Town Committee formed an Economic Development Commission at its Feb. 15 meeting, according to Pelletier, who was then named chairman of the commission.

"If, as [Republican First Selectman] Robert Morra stated, the Board of Selectmen has been working on this issue for the last month, it is work that has commenced as a result of a Democratic initiative," Pelletier says.

Pelletier also defends other portions of the Democrats' platform, such as the proposed grant officer position.

"I agree with Bob Morra, that Helen Kemp, executive assistant to the Board of Selectmen, has done an exemplary job... obtaining grant money. However, the board has increased her responsibilities to the point where she does not have the time (necessary)," Pelletier says. "The position of grant officer is a very important one and will require escalating time and attention in the future."

Pelletier also says that once the capital reserve fund is used for exclusively capital expenses, "crisis financing will become a thing of the past."

"The Democratic platform is far from an expansion of Republican ideas," Pelletier says.

Givebacks discussed

By SCOTT B. BREDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Union officials representing school custodial, cafeteria and maintenance workers are meeting Monday night for what Assistant Superintendent Wilson E. Deakin Jr. termed "a good exploratory meeting."

During the meeting, the two sides discussed the possibility of union members giving back part of their annual dues, and paying part of their health benefit costs, Deakin said. The school board also helped answer some questions the union representatives had on educational spending, he said.

Although no agreement on contract renegotiations was reached, Deakin said both sides have come to an understanding that further meetings are necessary.

In February, the school board sent letters to Little, the Manchester Education Association and the Manchester Federation of Paraprofessionals asking the groups to consider reopening contracts in light of the cuts that they were forced to make from the 1991-92 school budget.

Kelly, Kallie await love

By Barbara Richmond
Manchester Herald

KELLY

Kelly, a female fox terrier cross, is this week's featured pet at the Manchester dog pound.

Kelly is about 8 months old and was found roaming on Highland Street on March 16. She's very sweet, but has a little stubborn streak in her. She's black and white.

There were two other new dogs at the pound, as of Tuesday. One is a German shepherd female. She's about 1 year old and was found on Spencer Street on March 17. She's black and tan.

The other is a female shepherd cross, about 2 years old. He also is black and tan and was found on Bidwell Street on March 19.

Monet, last week's featured pet and the cocker spaniel mentioned in last week's column, were both adopted by Manchester families.

The German shepherd cross, also mentioned in last week's column, was adopted by a Bolton family.

Dudley, featured a few weeks ago, is in danger of having to be euthanized if not adopted soon. Dog Warden Thomas Pascantelli has said that Dudley is one of the nicest dogs he's had at the pound. He's an all-black setter cross. He's friendly, quiet and obedient and in need of a loving home. He is a volunteer group that takes in abandoned or lost cats.

Aid to Helpless Animals is also a volunteer group that takes in abandoned or lost cats.

The dog pound is located off Olcott Street near the landfill. The dog wardens are at the pound weekdays from noon to 1 p.m. Someone is also at the pound from 6 to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The phone number at the pound is 643-6642. If there is no answer, call the police department at 646-4555. There is a $5 fee to adopt a dog and the new owner must have the dog licensed. Before being licensed, it has to have its rabies shot.

This week's featured feline is Kallie, a very pretty calico female. Kallie also loves attention and would make a wonderful pet for a young woman taken loving family. Kallie is in the care of Protectors of Animals Inc., a volunteer group that takes in abandoned or lost cats.

Both groups have the cats and kittens spayed or neutered and given their shots, before putting them up for adoption, unless they're too young when taken

The number to call for Protectors of Animals is 633-8515 and the numbers to call for Aid to Helpless Animals are 232-8317 or 242-2156. All of these numbers are toll-free from the Manchester area.

Both groups have the cats and kittens spayed or neutered and given their shots, before putting them up for adoption, unless they're too young when taken

Thoughts

During this season of Lent Christians are concerned with sin. It is not a very popular topic and therefore it is one which many people avoid. And yet it is a part of reality which none of us can deny. We recognize our own sin, those things which we do that are wrong, which we regret or would like to rid our lives of. We also recognize the existence of what has been called "social sin," sin which occurs when individual sinful people cooperate with other sinful people creating social attitudes, events and an atmosphere which do violence to people's lives. The event of war, the violent nature of our world and nation, the surge of drugs and the effects which they have on people especially the young, the presence of dishonesty in people's relationships and business practices offer sufficient proof that sin exists in our world.

But the other part of our Lenten reflection is the forgiveness of God. I have grown more and more grateful over the years that we have someone to go with in our guilt and sin. It does not have to overpower, depress or destroy us. In Lent we recall with particular intensity not only that our sin can be forgiven, but that forgiveness can effect the sin we find in our world. The story of the Prodigal Son, Jesus' description of the experience of God's forgiveness, makes one truly very clear: I am not half as good as I thought I was, but I am loved more than I could ever imagine!

Astrograph

Your Birthday

March 23, 1991

Your ingenuity and resourcefulness will come into play whenever you're confronted by serious challenges in the year ahead. Your methods and tactics may amaze others, as well as yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In an important situation where the end is in sight, don't make sudden, impulsive changes; it could destroy everything you've attempted. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astrograph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 11429, Cleveland, OH 44101-3429.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Steer clear of a debate with a friend over a volatile issue today; you might treat this event more emotionally than logically and jeopardize the relationship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A rule which you feel strongly about might need a bit more work at the drawing board before you try to impose it upon others. Save your push until your preparation is perfect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An affair some form of loss from a misplaced trust. If you are watchful now the result can be minimized.

CANCER (June 21-July 23) You may feel comfortable about making snap decisions today, but this does not automatically assure the worth of your judgments. Hasty assessments can be erroneous.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Time you delegated to yourself may be usurped by some unexpected problems. They will be thrust upon you by someone who cannot be able to handle such matters without assistance.

VRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) There is a possibility that someone you recently met, and with whom you've become involved, might suddenly make a quick exit from your life. Actually, you two have little in common.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you are going to be successful in your endeavors today, you cannot do things in fits and starts. You must define your objectives and proceed methodically.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A rule which you feel strongly about might need a bit more work at the drawing board before you try to impose it upon others. Save your push until your preparation is perfect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An affair some form of loss from a misplaced trust. If you are watchful now the result can be minimized.

Bridge

Is he void?
 By James Jacoby

When you appear to be in a hopeless contract, don't give up. If you run a long suit, an opponent might not keep the right cards.

Today's hand is another from the Cap Gemini Panda World Top Tournament. Two pairs reached the apparently hopeless seven-trick contract. In the auction given, five clubs showed either all four aces or three aces and the heart king.

Against the mercurial Brazilian Gabriel Chagas, West led a low club. Chagas won with dummy's king, played a club back to his ace, ruffed his club loser in the dummy and ran his seven trump tricks.

Before South cashed his last heart, West was holding king doubleton in both spades and diamonds. Dummy had the A-Q of diamonds and Q-10 of spades. What should West discard when the final trump is led?

We can see that he must throw a diamond, but what if declarer has the A-J of spades and a diamond remaining? Then West must release a spade to give South a guess.

East should have helped his partner by signaling his length in spades and diamonds, but West was not certain of the position and threw the spade eight. The diamond queen was discarded from dummy, the spade ace showed the king, and dummy took the last two tricks for plus 210.

Krzysztof Martens from Poland was also in seven hearts. But he faced the diabolical lead of the spade eight from Canadian Eric Kokish. Not unnaturally Martens finessed dummy's nine, and East's jack drew the ace. Now it was easy for Kokish to keep his spade king in the endgame. If declarer had a diamond, he would be forced to finesse.

James Jacoby books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" series with his sister, the late Oswald Jacoby are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Farrar Books.

Lady Huskies game away from the Final Four

Section 4, Page 17
 Friday, March 22, 1991

WHO HAS IT? — UConn's Wendy Davis, left, and N.C. State's Sharon Manning in their NCAA East Regional semifinal Thursday night at The Palestra in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Some considered them the underdog, but the University of Connecticut didn't let the critics phase them as they pulled out a win for a shot at the NCAA Eastern title.

The Big East Conference champion Huskies will meet Clemson for the Eastern title Saturday at noon with the game televised nationally by ESPN. Clemson (22-10) defeated 22 points as Connecticut defeated North Carolina State 82-71 in an NCAA Eastern Regional semifinal Thursday night.

The winner advances to the NCAA Women's Tournament Final Four on March 30-31 in New Orleans.

Clemson knocked UConn out of last year's tournament 61-59 in a first-round game at Gampel Pavilion.

"I think people felt we didn't stand much of a chance in this game, and after I saw N.C. State shoot, I wasn't too sure either," said Connecticut coach Geno Auriumma.

"We kept our composure and showed a lot of poise, and we did a lot of good things tonight."

Connecticut (28-4) led 34-30 at the half, but the Wolfpack (27-6) went on a 13-2 run at the start of the second half to take a 43-36 lead on a jumper by Danyel Parker with 15:46 to play.

The Huskies responded with a 16-2 spur to take a 52-45 advantage on a 3-point play by Oly Grossman at 11:00.

"We got some good shots, but we weren't getting many offensive rebounds, so we wanted to make sure we tried to stop their fast break," Auriumma said.

"I can't say one about N.C. State. They are one of the classiest teams in the country, and they have one of the classiest coaches."

North Carolina State closed to 62-57 on a jumper by Andrea Stinson with 3:18 to go, but Lishness made four straight free-throws and Bascom added two more to secure the Huskies' win.

"(Bascom and Lishness) do what seniors and captains are supposed to do. In the biggest game of the year they played their best game," Auriumma said.

"We weren't really concentrating on their big players. We were more concerned about their guards, (Andrea) Stinson and (Danyel) Parker. We knew they were a good team in every position, but we just played as hard as we could," Lishness said.

The Wolfpack came in averaging 91.7 points a game and had a distinct size advantage with a pair of 6-foot-3 performers in their lineup.

But Connecticut cut them down to size, dictating the tempo and never allowing N.C. State to get the game flowing to its liking. The 71 points was its third-lowest output this season.

North Carolina coach Kay Yow said her team was simply outplayed.

"A very disappointing loss for us, as you might expect. The University of Connecticut played a great game," she said. "They executed extremely well at both ends of the court. They just outplayed us, and there's not much more we can say."

Grossman added 17 points and junior guard Wendy Davis 14 points and eight assists for Connecticut, which shot 51.7 percent overall and hit 9 of 16 three-pointers. Stinson had 20 points and Rhonda Mapp 15 for North Carolina State.

Time for UConn to rebuke Duke

Once upon a time, the feindish Blue Devils of Duke University did not make the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament.

What, seemingly, had become a more formality each and every March was rudely interrupted in 1991.

By an angry and tremendously motivated avenger named the University of Connecticut.

In the East Regional final the year before, Duke painfully eliminated UConn in overtime, 79-78, on a buzzer-beating, off-balance 16-footer by 6-11 center Christian Laettner.

For Husky fans, that irritating and debilitating memory may run silent, but will forever run as deep as the ocean floor.

The commencement to the 1990-91 season saw UConn decked out in brand new uniforms, hauntingly similar to those of Duke, almost a reverential tribute and/or a constant reminder of the Blue Devils' program, one which the Huskies were trying to emulate.

During a campaign in which the Huskies lost six straight conference games, they surprisingly advanced to the NCAA tourney's "Sweet 16" by posting convincing wins over LSU and Xavier of Ohio. It was then, in the semifinals of the Midwest Regional at the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., they met Duke for the second consecutive year.

The Blue Devils were the No. 2 seed, the Huskies No. 11. The cast of characters had been altered. Alaa Abdelnaby, Phil Henderson and Robert Brickey were gone from Duke while Tate George and Nadav Henefeld were the last Huskies.

Still, the intensity and anticipation remained the same.

Only more so for the Huskies, despite details of exciting revenge. UConn fans didn't think a rematch with Duke would occur in 1991. Now, the Huskies possessed a prime opportunity for retribution: that nagging nightmare which abruptly ended their 31-6 "Dream Season" of 1989-91.

On paper, Duke had more talent in Laettner, point guard Bobby Hurley, deadly shooting guard Billy McCaffrey, the "Twin Hills" in Grant and Thomas, another splendid player in Hubert Davis and an inspired senior bench performer in Greg Koubeck.

But UConn was playing defense as well as the previous year. The Huskies didn't employ that suffocating, fullcourt press as in 1990, but switched to an in-your-face halfcourt defense.

Chris Smith, the Huskies' premier player who struggled with inconsistent shooting during the regular season, was on fire in the two NCAA games. He was averaging 22.5 points on a combined 17-for-30 shooting from the floor.

Smith, who so often had to carry the Huskies on his back during the regular season, was receiving help from all points.

Scott Burrell set a Midwest Regional record with seven steals against Xavier. John Gwynn was a lethal scorer off the bench. Lyman DePrien was giving solid

Duke well aware of UConn's Chris Smith

PONTIAC, Mich. — Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski gave Chris Smith the ultimate compliment last summer, picking the Connecticut guard to start over his own Bobby Hurley at the Goodwill Games and World Championships.

Nine months later, Krzyzewski still can't stop complimenting Smith.

"I like Chris a lot. He did a great job for me," Krzyzewski said. "He's tough. There's no excuses. You can say whatever you want to him and he's going to react in a very positive way. He's a man. He's really good. I love Chris."

The kid is a premier player," said Lou Carnesecca, whose St. John's team has already played Connecticut twice this year and wouldn't mind another meeting in Sunday's regional final. "He's one of the better guards — not only in the Big East but in the country."

Smith has been eased into the point guard spot by coach Jim Calhoun, making up for the absence of Tate George.

"He played with Tate George, who was a first-round draft choice. And then last summer he played with the 1990 East Regional final, Smith will have played a major role."

"I respect Chris' game," Hurley said. "He can really shoot well, has a very smooth handle, is quick. It's going to be a tough matchup for us. I think that'll be a big key to the game, to see how we defend Chris."

Others haven't done a very good job lately.

Since Connecticut broke a six-game losing streak on Feb. 2, Smith has averaged 19.7 points in leading the Huskies to an 8-3 record. He scored 25 points in an NCAA first-round upset of LSU and followed with 20 points in an easy second-round victory over Xavier.

P.J., Pirates earn a shot at the Rebels

By JIM COUR
 The Associated Press

SEATTLE — P.J. Carlesimo, who works his best magic in the big games, gets another chance to make UNLV and coach Jerry Tarkanian disappear.

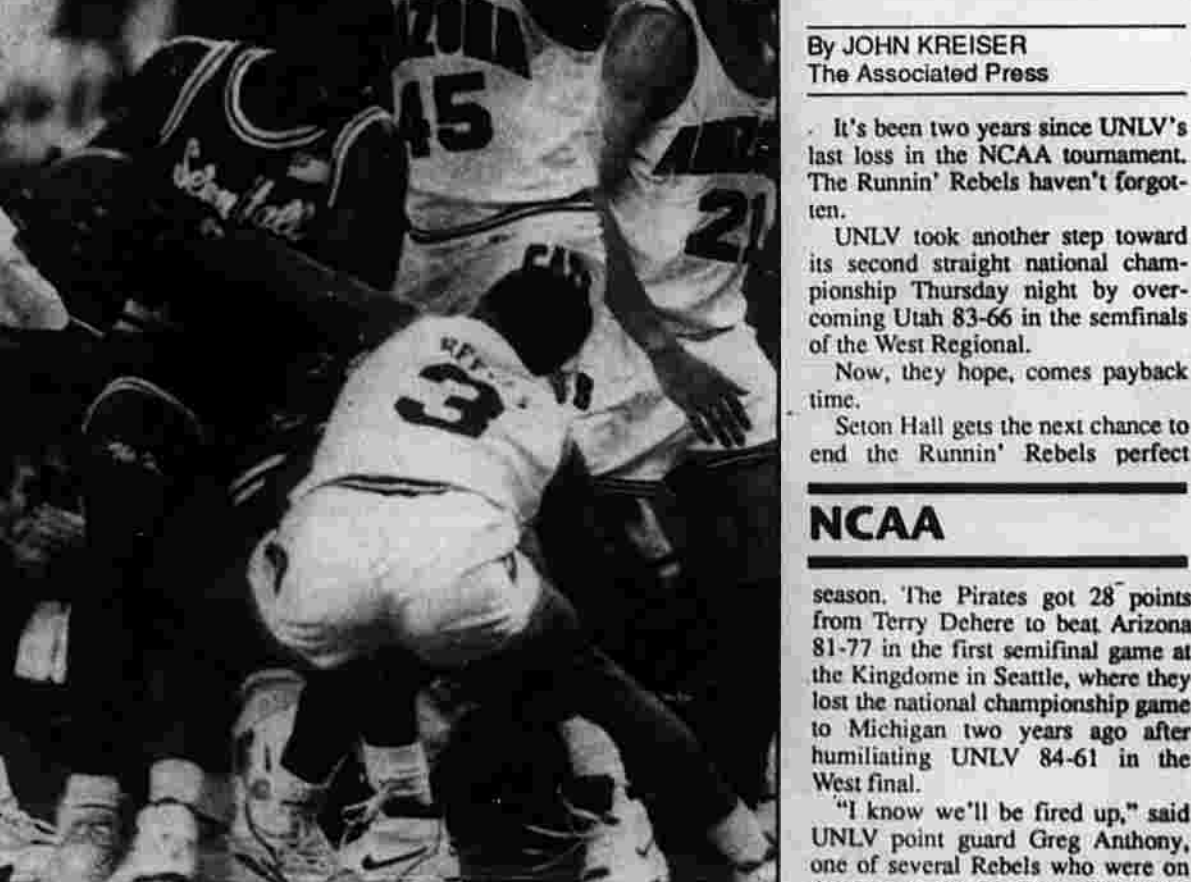

UNLV starts Stacey Augmon, Anderson Hunt, Greg Anthony and George Ackles were with the Rebels two years ago. Larry Johnson of UNLV was in junior college, however.

"If anything, it's a negative," Carlesimo said of his team's 23-point victory over Tarkanian's club two years ago. "I'm sure Stacey and Anderson and Greg remember that game."

"They were much younger and all our older guys are gone. Now we're younger."

UNLV has a 44-game winning streak and Seton Hall has won seven in a row, but the Pirates from the Big East may be the team to beat the powerhouse from the West. They're red hot.

East girls in new league

MIDDLETOWN — Members of the Greater New Haven Athletic Conference (DNIA) and the All Connecticut Conference (ACC) have reached an agreement to form the Connecticut Girls' Basketball League, it was announced Thursday.

League play will start with the 1991-92 season. The league will join the four teams from the District League (Gillhouse, Wilbur Cross, West Haven and Hamden) and the four remaining ACC clubs (St. Joseph-Trimball, Sacred Heart Academy-Hamden, Mercy-Middletown and East Catholic).

Officials from both conferences felt the formation of the new league would help to alleviate scheduling problems. The league will play in a single division and will provide each member school with 14 league games. The league championship will be determined in a playoff tournament to be held at the conclusion of the regular season. The top four teams from the regular season will qualify for the postseason tournament.

Bridgeport quintet triumphs

BRIDGEPORT, Mass. (AP) — Lambert Shell scored 22 points and grabbed 13 rebounds to lead Bridgeport over Philadelphia Textile 69-62 in the quarterfinals of the NCAA Division II tournament.

After Thursday's victory, Bridgeport (25-7) today will play Bakersfield State (25-7), which beat Southwest Baptist 55-52.

Bridgeport, the only unranked team in the quarterfinals, held the Rams scoreless for five minutes midway through the first half during a 14-point run ignited by Shell's six-foot jumper. The Purple Knights led 34-29 at halftime.

Tyson-Ruddock in rematch?

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Mike Tyson and Donovan "Razor" Ruddock may be getting the rematch both say they want.

A spokesman for the Mirage Hotel said Thursday that a rematch between the top two heavyweight contenders may be before a planned fight pitting Tyson against Renaldo Snipes.

"We're looking into the possibility of a rematch this summer," spokesman Alan Feldman said. "It's fair to say the public wants to see these two guys again."

Feldman said promoter Don King and Ruddock's promoter, Murad Muhammad, are negotiating the details of a second fight, and said an announcement could come next week.

Five share USA&G golf lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tom Watson, Billy Mayfair, Phil Blackmar, Dillard Pruitt and Sam Randsoph shot 5-under-par 67s to share the first-round lead in the USA&G Classic, with 51-year-old Jack Nicklaus continuing his strong play of late with a 68.

Nicklaus, who finished fifth last week at Doral, was the leader of a pack one stroke back that also included Kenny Knox, Ronnie Black, Bob Lotz, Barry Jackel and Karl Kimball.

Gerring tops Register tournament

PHOENIX (AP) — Cathy Gerring overcame the rain, wind and cold to shoot a 3-under-par 70 for a two-stroke lead after the opening round of the LPGA's Standard Register tournament.

Betsy King, who won this event in 1985, and Caroline Keppi of Middlebury, Conn., were the only other competitors to break par on the 6,514-yard, par-73 Moon Valley Country Club course, each carding a 72.

Ok-Hee Ku, the winner here in 1988, matched par and was joined at 73 by Donna White, Meg Mallon, Lenore Rittenhouse, Cindy Figg-Curtis, Jody Anschutz and Nancy Harvey.

NCAA tournament ratings improve

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS television reported ratings of 8.3 for last week's broadcasts of the NCAA tournament, an increase of 2 percent over last year's numbers.

Spokeswoman Susan Kerr said the daytime averages of 4.5 for last Thursday and 4.3 for last Friday were on target with projections and three times as high as what ESPN earned last year.

Graf stunned by Sabatini

KY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — Gabriela Sabatini made a stunning comeback after a 0-6 first set to defeat arch-rival Steffi Graf 6-2, 7-6 (8-6), 6-1 in the International Players Championship.

In the final, Sabatini will face top-ranked Monica Seles, who overpowered Mary Joe Fernandez 6-1, 6-3.

In men's play, No. 1 Stefan Edberg, and unseeded David Wheaton won to advance to the semifinals.

Edberg overcame four set points in the second set as he beat Emilio Sanchez 6-2, 7-6 (8-6). The Swede's opponent Friday will be Wheaton, who served 10 aces as he rallied to beat Cristiano Carati 6-7 (9), 6-2, 6-0.

Lamar mystery ladies' quintet

By The Associated Press

Just who is Lamar? That's an answer Virginia has to find out quickly if the Cavaliers plan to return to Final Four.

The mystery team of the women's NCAA tournament claimed another prominent victim Thursday night when the Lady Cardinals defeated No. 9 Arkansas 91-75 in a Midwest semifinal contest.

The Razorbacks (28-4), Southwest Conference champions, were the surprise of last year's tournament when they advanced to the West final, but Lamar (29-3) has been even more impressive in becoming the lowest seed to reach the round of eight.

Coach Al Barber's team, seeded 10th, got six 3-pointers and 23 points from Brenda Hatchett to lead the way. Lamar began the playoffs with an upset of No. 16 Texas, the seventh seed, on the Longhorn's floor in the first round.

In the second round, No. 8 LSU, the SEC tournament champions, were eliminated by Lamar.

Virginia (29-2), meanwhile, was led by Heather Burge's 19 points as the No. 2-ranked Cavaliers put on a strong second half run to beat the No. 25 Oklahoma State Cowgirls 76-61 in the other semifinal game of the Midwest regional, both at Austin, Texas.

In the West Regional at Las Vegas, defending NCAA champion Stanford (25-5) defeated Washington, 73-47, and Georgia (23-3) advanced with an 87-77 victory over Long Beach State.

In the Midwest Regional at Knoxville, Tenn., Tennessee (27-5) defeated Western Kentucky, 68-61, and Auburn (26-6) advanced with a 58-45 victory over Vanderbilt.

Just who is Lamar? That's an answer Virginia has to find out quickly if the Cavaliers plan to return to Final Four.

The mystery team of the women's NCAA tournament claimed another prominent victim Thursday night when the Lady Cardinals defeated No. 9 Arkansas 91-75 in a Midwest semifinal contest.

The Razorbacks (28-4), Southwest Conference champions, were the surprise of last year's tournament when they advanced to the West final, but Lamar (29-3) has been even more impressive in becoming the lowest seed to reach the round of eight.

Coach Al Barber's team, seeded 10th, got six 3-pointers and 23 points from Brenda Hatchett to lead the way. Lamar began the playoffs with an upset of No. 16 Texas, the seventh seed, on the Longhorn's floor in the first round.

In the second round, No. 8 LSU, the SEC tournament champions, were eliminated by Lamar.

Virginia (29-2), meanwhile, was led by Heather Burge's 19 points as the No. 2-ranked Cavaliers put on a strong second half run to beat the No. 25 Oklahoma State Cowgirls 76-61 in the other semifinal game of the Midwest regional, both at Austin, Texas.

In the West Regional at Las Vegas, defending NCAA champion Stanford (25-5) defeated Washington, 73-47, and Georgia (23-3) advanced with an 87-77 victory over Long Beach State.
