Board to weigh CDBG position

By BRIAN M. TROTTA
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The Board of Directors is looking for a few new naysayers come out and say they represent a cross section of the community. "We want to see new people with fresh opinions."

Manchester is eligible to receive $435,000 this year under the Community Development Block Grant program. Since 1979, the directors have voted not to accept the funds to which the town is entitled.

Oella said that so far he has not heard an outpouring of feelings one way or another. In fact, he said,

Talks to resume on labor contract

By RICK SANTOS
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Almost three months after contract negotiations for one of the largest town employee unions came to a halt, the talks are scheduled to resume.

Negotiations for a new contract for public works employees are to begin Wednesday, said John Little, president of Local 991 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. The local represents about 125 workers in the park, highway,

Weicker facing tough tests in Assembly

By PETER VILES
The Associated Press

HARTFORD — Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. faces one of the toughest tests of his independent administration this week as he makes a new push for his budget and tries to win two significant floor votes in the House of Representatives.

The budget test comes Wednesday when Weicker will speak at noon to a special joint convention of the House and Senate, an audience he requested.

The floor votes expected this week will test Weicker's ability to sustain his first veto and his ability to push through a last-ditch effort to block the Indian casino in Ledyard.

The speech comes three months after Weicker proposed his budget and two weeks after he failed to get his tax reform package out of the Finance Committee.

Virtually all Republicans in the Legislature remain opposed to Weicker's proposal for a state income tax, and Democrats are deeply divided on the issue.

In an interview last week, Weicker said he will unveil a new proposal intended to give the public greater control over state spending, a strategy that could reduce some opposition to the income tax.

"I will clearly have some new material to lay before the people of this state so that they have the assurance that whatever funds are raised under this new tax structure, they aren't going to be totally under the control of government," Weicker said.

His new proposal will attempt to break down "a distrust of government that is getting in the way of passing a budget," he said.

While the budget battle probably will not be settled for several weeks, two key votes loom this week in the House. The

Decision on cuts expected tonight

By SCOTT B. BRIDE
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — The fate of school programs and teacher positions — under threats of being cut in next year's school spending plan — will be decided tonight.

The Board of Education is expected to decide where to cut $560,000 from the 1991-92 education budget when it meets tonight at 7, in the Board of Education Building at 45 North School St.

Items facing elimination include the junior high school interscholastic sports program, tuition to send students to the Hartford Center for the Performing Arts, a PROBE teacher and two paraprofessionals that works in the Elementary School Learning Center.

Other items on School Superintendent James P. Kennedy's list of recommended budget cuts are three junior high school teachers, a grade school physical education instructor and music teacher, and a social worker's assistant.

Manchester High School would also suffer under Kennedy's recommended cuts, which calls for eliminating four teachers, a security guard at the school. The Board of Education support for high school sports teams and after-school clubs would also be cut by $15,000 under Kennedy's plan.

MIDEAST GREETING — Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh welcomes U.S. Secretary of State James Baker at the Soviet embassy residence in Cairo today, where they met for their second round of talks on a variety of Middle East issues.

Baker asks Soviet help on Iraq

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

CAIRO — Secretary of State James A. Baker III today asked the Soviet Union for support in authorizing a U.N. police force to replace American and other allied troops who are protecting Kurdish refugees in northern Iraq.

But Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander A. Bessmertnykh did not say publicly whether Baker had persuaded him not to block an expected U.S.-backed resolution in the Security Council.

"A thin line separates the necessity for humanitarian support and the concern for the sovereignty of countries," Bessmertnykh told reporters. "It is a very intricate balance."

Baker took up the problem and other issues, including arms control, in a two-hour meeting here with Bessmertnykh devoted mostly to trying to arrange a Middle East peace conference.

Syria's refusal to budget on two key issues — and the likelihood Israel will resist as well — could spell failure for Baker as he tries to set up peace negotiations.

The Soviets could play a pivotal role through their ties to Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization, which remains instrumental in choosing Palestinian delegates.

Summer school blues?

Thousands of schoolchildren needing help with the basics won't get it this summer as financially pressed districts cut or eliminate summer sessions.

Hardest hit so far: Northeastern and Midwestern cities including Philadelphia, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Boston and Chicago. Summer programs seem safe so far in most Western and Southern states.

Indianapolis plans to cut almost all summer enrichment and elective classes — a decision affecting 11,000 of the district's 50,000 students.

"We're very sensitive to the fact that this is going to bring some difficulties for some parents," said Indianapolis schools spokesman Mark J. Goff. "But quite frankly we cannot afford to do it. That's the bottom line."

Cleveland is cutting its summer program in half by eliminating sessions for grades two, three, seven and 11.

"Last year we had close to 9,000 kids. This year it will be 4,000 to 5,000," said spokesman John Hairston. "We don't have the money."

News In Brief

Indians seeking sacred grounds

SOUTHURRY (AP) — American Indians who want to re-establish prayer ceremonies on sacred grounds will get a chance to plead their case to the land's current owner, Northeast Utilities.

Montface Bear, whose ancestors once had villages on the land the utility company now owns near Lake Zear, said he will meet with company officials Wednesday to discuss access to the property.

"We're going to make grounds for access," said Bear, who lives on the Golden Hill Reservation in Colchester.

Bear's ancestors were the Pootatuck, a branch of the Paugusset Indian tribe that lived along the lake when white settlers first arrived.

The area is listed as a state and federal historic site, and Bear and his people consider it sacred. But Northeast Utilities asks that people obtain permits before venturing on the grounds.

Graves marking Iroquois project

BROOKFIELD (AP) — The state archaeologist plans to survey one of the town's oldest cemeteries to make sure those buried under unmarked graves rest in peace when digging begins for a natural gas pipeline.

The closeness of the Iroquois Gas Transmission System pipeline route to the Northrup Cemetery has led the Connecticut Historical Commission to arrange for a survey of the grounds, to be conducted by State Archaeologist Nicholas Bellantoni.

Bellantoni's survey will include radar testing of the graveyard.

Iroquois has conducted its own extensive surveys and does not believe the pipeline will disturb any unmarked graves, said Iroquois spokeswoman Andrea Mindell.

Industrial report breaks loss string

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industrial production inched up 0.1 percent in April, breaking a six-month string of losses which was the longest since the 1981-82 recession, the Federal Reserve said today.

Some analysts had said in advance of the report that the nation's output in April had shown signs of stabilizing, including a slower loss of factory jobs.

Although factory payrolls declined by about 40,000, the loss was considerably less than the average 115,000 in the previous five months, according to the Labor Department.

Payrolls fell by 52,000 in March, when industrial production dropped a revised 0.6 percent, even steeper than the 0.3 percent first reported.

Police Roundup

Police arrest drug users

MANCHESTER — After breaking up a beer party in an open area near 540 Main St., police arrested three youths on drug charges Friday night. Police said they received several reports of a party going on and sent two undercover police officers to investigate. The officers found about 20 youths hanging around and drinking beer. Several were gathered around a large rock smoking what police say was marijuana. The officers then identified themselves and told the youths to stay where they were. Police said Kevin C. Hale, 19, of 52 Greene Ter., East Hartford, then attempted to drop a plastic bag containing marijuana on the ground. The bag was seized as evidence and Hale was arrested on charges of possession of marijuana and destruction of evidence.

Also arrested were Scott C. Lebrun, 18, of 40 Governor St., East Hartford, and Lee F. O'Connor, 17, of 65 Baldwin Rd. Lebrun was charged with possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. O'Connor was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia. All three youths were released on a $500 non-surety bond pending a May 15 appearance in Manchester Superior Court.

Weather

Chance of showers

Here is tonight's weather for the greater Manchester area: Increasing clouds with a 30 percent chance of showers toward morning. Low 60 to 65. Light south wind. Tuesday, partly cloudy with a 60 percent chance of showers and possibly a thunderstorm. More humid. High 80 to 85.

An old front sagging south from the St. Lawrence Valley will move through northern New England Tuesday morning and into southern New England late Tuesday. Weak low pressure should move out of the Great Lakes along this front into southern New England late Tuesday.

Today's weather drawing is by Ryan Gilna, a fourth-grader at Bolton's School in Manchester. The person in the picture is Ryan's uncle, Ray.

Main St. becomes tricky for travel

MANCHESTER — They could rename it Mass Street. For the next couple of weeks, drivers who venture on to Main Street in downtown will have to weave their way around a multi-lane of crews working on the Main Street reconstruction project. William Snow, the project coordinator said this morning that the serpentine route down Main Street will continue until the contractor, Della Construction Co. of Enfield, is able to close the west side of the street and officially open the access road. Snow said that work on the storm drainage system will cause some rerouting of traffic between Center and Pearl streets and between Park and Locust streets. Drainage work at the Forest Street parking lot will also begin this week, Snow said.

Coventry ponders vice principal post

COVENTRY — Not too long ago Coventry High School was notified by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges that it risked losing its accreditation if it failed to make changes in its administrative department. The school recently received notice that it was no longer running the risk of being put on probation, said Superintendent of Schools Michael Malinowski at a Board of Education meeting recently. Malinowski said he and the board had succeeded in convincing the NEASC that it did not need a full-time vice principal for the high school as the association had maintained. The previous vice principal, Mark Wolinman, who died earlier this year, was dividing his time between the high school and the middle school. The vice principal position remains vacant, and while the members of the Coventry Board of Education have said they recognize the importance of moving quickly to fill the position, not much headway was made during the meeting in determining the exact duties and responsibilities that would be required of the person holding the vice principal position. Malinowski said, "We don't want to get too specific, or we will be too restricted in our choice of candidates." It was agreed however that the vice principal would have the primary and shared duties of contributing to curriculum development, disciplining students, overseeing student activities, supervising staff, and attending school functions. Malinowski said the position should be filled by "someone with leadership abilities, someone experienced in the needs of youngsters

Cassano: library officials isolated

MANCHESTER — Democratic Director Stephen T. Cassano has questioned the Charter Revision Commission's decision not to recommend any change in the administrative structure of the public libraries. Cassano, who questioned the decision at Tuesday's Board of Directors meeting, said that recent appearances of library officials before the directors have shown that the library administration is too far removed from the towns. Last month, library officials asked the board to approve funding for renovations to Wilson Library, but were criticized because their estimates for the cost of the work were two years old. The board approved only part of the project and asked for revised estimates for the rest. Cassano said also that the system in which the head librarian takes direction from the Library Board of Directors is awkward because the

OPINION

Open Forum Cuts will cost

To The Editor:
Dear Members of the Board of Directors:
The following letter is a response to the directors' recent proposal for staff cuts at the high school. My purpose is to outline the impact of such cuts on school programs and the resultant impact upon property values in the town of Manchester.

One of the facts which makes Manchester High such a fine school is that each staff member is given the opportunity to develop and to create programs which are uniquely his or hers. One of the limitations is that other staff members may be unable to assume these programs should their creator be dismissed from the school. Such is the problem faced by English departments at Manchester High where its three least senior members face staff cuts, and where there are no remaining staff members to carry out the programs they have initiated.

The first program to be affected by staff reduction is the multicultural program. The multicultural program was developed by one of the teachers who is likely to be cut under the suggested budget. One of only three Black teachers in the school, she developed our multicultural program from a small club to the Human Relations Council which now heads. She has become an important liaison for staff and students, providing them with guidance in their interpersonal relations and materials for their classroom use. This year, this teacher's council directed our staff development program which educated the faculty to the needs of the many different students who will be attending our school in coming years. Should this position be eliminated, there is no other staff member with the training, background, and line of experience to conduct this program with similar competence.

During the past years, Manchester High has seen an expansion of its journalism and the production of its first student newspaper, "Inside MHS." This program has been developed by the second teacher who is likely to be a victim of budget cuts. The recognition this teacher received for his work went well beyond the town of Manchester and included publication of his writings in a media textbook. The teacher in question went on to develop a course in video technology to be collaboratively instructed between the English and graphics departments. While there may be remaining staff members with rudimentary graphic and video skills, no other journalist, there appears to be no one with the collective talents, network of contacts, and commitment to publication possessed by this staff member. It is likely that both the journalism and video production courses will cease with him.

The third area to be affected by the budget cuts is the school's reading program. Three years ago, I received an offer to come from my position at Somers High School to develop a reading program in Manchester. During this time, original reading courses have been strengthened, most notably "Reading Strategies" a course in reading and study skills aimed at preparing students for the requirements of college reading. A very ambitious individualized testing program has grown; the program evaluates as many as fifty students each year, providing them and their parents with a reading profile, tailored study recommendations, and suggested course choices. A staff development program has arisen, providing workshops on reading and test construction, consultation for individual teachers and department chairs to assist them in including reading instruction in regular classes, and appearances by the reading improvement strategies to support a student's content instruction. There are also plans to develop a reading support lab for students to attend and receive reading help as subjects. As I have only been with Manchester for three years, it is likely that my position will be cut. There are no other certified Reading and Language Arts Consultant on staff at the high school.

At a time when property values are declining and homes are so difficult to sell, it seems that the current strategy to save Manchester taxpayers money might cost them in the long run. How are homeowners to compete with sellers in towns like Glastonbury when their high school lacks programs in fundamental reading, or as necessary for the future as media technology or multilateral education?

It is my contention, then, that the current call for a reduction in staff numbers has a far greater impact than a simple scale down of the staff-to-student ratio. It is my contention that the staff cuts, in actuality, are program cuts. I contend that such cuts will reduce the value of an education in Manchester and, ultimately, further reduce the property values.

The current plan is short-sighted, costly to the learner, and of no savings to the taxpayer.

Rights word spreads

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The United States is using an unusual means of spreading revolution among some of the world's dictators and semi-dictators. The substantive weapon is the Bill of Rights, which will be 200 years old on Dec. 15.

The congressional funded Commission on Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution is headed by an unlikely champion of revolution, former Chief Justice Warren Burger. The birthday celebration will be limited to the United States. Other countries will be asked to host activities and study the Bill of Rights too. Some will be more eager than others.

The Bill of Rights is the rallying cry of the Chinese students who were butchered by their Communist leaders in June 1989 in Tiananmen Square. Now, study of the document is being encouraged in a number of other authoritarian states.

In cooperation with universities and non-government enterprises, the said commission is helping to start seminars, essay contests and talks on the Bill of Rights and on human rights and civil rights in general.

Acceptance of such Bill of Rights activities by Great Britain, Costa Rica, Japan and other democracies is no threat to the huns of mass-market tourism. The level of financial security, educational attainment and other measures of prosperity among Arab's people far exceeds the regional average — but the island succumbed in the 1980s to the lure of mass-market tourism.

Lifting a long-standing moratorium on the construction of new hotels, the government invited the industry — including representatives of Hyatt, Sonesta and other major chains — to more than double the number of rooms in only two years, from 3,200 in 1988 to 7,000 in 1991.

An elaborate new highway network was constructed. A government leader insisted that "the construction of a first-class, 18-hole golf course (at a cost of $10 million) is an absolute must."

Candid mother calls for candor

DEAR ABBY: I hope that by printing this letter it will make other parents do some serious thinking about their relationships with their teens.

My neighbor's 17-year-old daughter and the daughter's 16-year-old girlfriend spent two hours talking to me about boys and sex. The 17-year-old is thinking about having sex with her boyfriend. While I certainly do not encourage it, I did talk openly about safe-sex practices and birth control. I also explained why it would be better if she waited until she is older and more mature.

What bothers me the most, is why aren't these girls talking to their own mothers? The girls are friends of my teen-aged sons — that is how they know me. Abby, it isn't my place to talk to them about these things, but since I'm the only one they trust, I won't betray them. My sons and I are very open with each other, and we discuss everything they have on their minds.

I wish more parents would listen to their kids — even if that means they may shock and dismay them. Parents shouldn't judge — they should just be there for their children.

—SOMEBODY ELSE'S MOM
DEAR MOM: The neighbors' kids are talking to you because they are not comfortable talking to their own moms (or dads). How lucky for them that you are there for them. Unfortunately, not all parents are comfortable talking to their teens about safe-sex practices and birth control. Some may even resent the fact that their children are getting information from a neighbor (you) that they, their own parents, would be reluctant to give them.

I say, if kids ask — they are old enough to know. What our children don't know can hurt them.

Luxury sinks Caribbean

ORANIESTAD, Aruba — The concrete-and-steel hulks of three unfinished luxury hotels along spectacularly beautiful Palm Beach here stand as mute symbols of a Caribbean economy trapped in a love-hate relationship with tourism from the United States.

Almost all of the approximately 30 hotels in the region are heavily dependent upon that vacation level as a source of jobs and dollars — but the arrangement has produced burdens as well as benefits for struggling countries throughout the Caribbean.

The estimated 10 million overnight visitors to those islands annually and the almost 6 million cruise ship passengers who tour the Caribbean every year generate far more revenue than any other business in a region bereft of most natural resources.

Indeed, limited agricultural exports constitute the only other economic activity of note. "The most successful industry we have apart from tourism is bananas," says one of officials in the Windward Islands on the eastern edge of the Caribbean.

Almost three decades ago (in 1962) the colonial powers that long governed the region's countries began granting them independence. Today, most of the islands are wholly or partially autonomous, but that newfound freedom hardly has been a bonanza.

The unemployment and illiteracy rates of numerous countries range from 25 to 40 percent, their infrastructure and social services continue to deteriorate, the region pays almost $1 billion annually to import food and beverages, and countless efforts to stimulate economic development have failed.

Overzealous real estate developers — seemingly the only successful entrepreneurs in many chronically poor nations — have added about 10,000 hotel, condominium, guest house and other visitor rooms annually across the region in recent years.

Although that already has produced an unmanageable glut of accommodations in some countries, enthusiastic promoters plan to further saturate the islands with hotels.

One consortium, for example, has plans to transform the tiny island of Cabagua — an obscure venue that the Venezuelan coast whose current population consists of 28 fishermen and their families — into a $5 billion resort with 14,000 hotel rooms, more than the combined total of the Barbados and Puerto Rico.

Uncontrolled development was commercially (if not aesthetically) successful in the booming 1980s, but the financial extravagance, excessive health spas, gaming casinos, shopping centers and international airports.

Such facilities almost certainly will destroy the special character of the islands that initially appealed to visitors seeking unspoiled natural settings for their vacations.

The ubiquitous Japanese materialized with a $7 million loan from a consortium of five financial institutions to underwrite more than 70 percent of a Hyatt Regency's $52 million worth of construction costs. But the government also has participated in the financing of that and other luxury hotels.

Vietnam Memorial flawed

WASHINGTON — Every year, at about this time, Willard Craig gets angry to come to this city to visit the Vietnam Veterans Memorial. He is a West Virginia resident who was a combat GI during the conflict, and he says he would like to spend Memorial Day looking at the names of the war dead carved into the black granite wall.

We've never actually makes the trip. He says something always comes up there is this or that or the other thing, and, well, maybe it's just as well. Craig would see many names of old comrades on the wall, but he would also see his own: Willard C. Craig, killed in November of 1966, panel No. 12E, line No. 87.

His name is inscribed on the memorial in error, of course. The National Park Service says it is one of the most bizarre of various mistakes made when the wall was created in 1982. Craig says he learned of it in 1985, from a relative who took a snapshot, and no wonder he never gets around to a visit of his own.

Man's name in error

Department of Defense blames human oversight. Pentagon authorities point out that the name on the wall was taken from a newspaper clipping. The error was corrected after the wall was dedicated.

Willard Craig is a good case in point. The name of his service record was taken from a newspaper clipping. The error was corrected after the wall was dedicated.

My unit was stationed at Long Bien, and we moved around. I was in a pair of bullets in the right leg. One of them severed an artery, the other affected a nerve.

ASK DICK KLEINER

DICK KLEINER

Q. Many years ago I read "Brave New World" by Aldous Huxley. Then, some 15 or 20 years ago, I saw that it was to be made into a movie. Did they ever make it? — F.N.B., Miami, Okla.

A. The only movie from that marvelous novel was a disappointing TV film made in '60, with Keri Dunlop, Bud Cort and Kristoffer Tabori.

Q. I would like to know about a movie that was advertised to come out in the spring of '90 called "Captain America." Was it ever finished and released, and who starred in it? — N.H., Grand Rapids, Mich.

A. As far as I know, there have been two films by that name — a '79 release, with Rob Brown and Heather Menzies, and a sequel the next year, "Captain America II," with Brown and Connie Sellecca. Nothing since then.

Q. I saw a movie about 15 years ago with Elliott Gould and Woody Allen. They were glib pigs for the Army, and I think it was called "WHY? I can't find anyone who remembers it. Was I dreaming? — N.P., North Little Rock, Ark.

A. Not totally, "Whiffs" came out in '75 with Gould, Eddie Albert and Jennifer O'Neill. No Woody Allen, however.

About 3,000 motorcyclists, including rocker Billy Idol, loudly descended on City Hall in Los Angeles to protest a state bill that would require them to wear helmets.

Many bikers at Sunday's rally complained that helmets impair their hearing and vision. Idol, whose hair includes "White Wedding" and "Rebel Yell," said the issue is freedom of choice.

The National Head Injury Foundation estimates more than 1 million Americans each year suffer head injuries. Of those, about 100,000 die and 90,000 suffer permanent brain damage.

Motor vehicle accidents account for more than half of all head injuries, the foundation said. In 1989, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services said the medical and legal costs of related economic losses for head injury victims approach $25 billion a year.

BO KNOWS FRUSTRATION — Bo Jackson says he can't bear to read the sports section now that he's been sidelined from baseball and football by a hip injury. "I go out every Sunday morning, get the paper, sit in my yard and read the comics," Jackson, 28, told People magazine in its May 20 issue.

Unable to play ball, forced to hobble about on crutches, Jackson says he feels "like a caged animal." He practices archery in the back yard, straightening out his fishing tackle box and pursuing his rehabilitation program, which includes lifting weights and running in a swimming pool.

Jackson was released March 18 by baseball's Kansas City Royals because of hip trouble that began with an injury he received playing football for the Los Angeles Raiders.

He signed last month with the Chicago White Sox, and like I'm going on to greater pastures, Jackson said. "All I need to do is get myself back to the playing field."

Niacin linked to liver trouble

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband underwent repair of an abdominal aortic aneurysm. He lost most of the circulation in his right femoral artery because of blockage after surgery and was treated with Trental. Last month he developed pancreatitis, and his doctor discontinued the Trental as well as Niacin for cholesterol control. Could either of these medications have given him pancreatitis?

DEAR READER: High doses of niacin, particularly the timed-release brands, can lead to liver inflammation and, I suppose, by extension, to pancreas inflammation (pancreatitis). However, this would be unusual in patients taking niacin, a vitamin commonly used to lower blood cholesterol and improve circulation.

Trental (penoxifylline) is usually prescribed to patients with peripheral vascular disease (diminished arterial circulation). It improves blood flow by reducing blood viscosity. In my experience, the drug is not especially effective. This is important because the potential side effects can be quite serious: nausea, vomiting, indigestion, bloating, formation of gallstones and loss of appetite, to mention a few. Like niacin, Trental can affect the liver but has not been reported to cause pancreatitis.

In my opinion, your husband should discuss this issue with his doctor and investigate alternative therapies. For example, a low-fat diet, regular exercise, cessation of smoking and an aspirin tablet a day might do as much to help your husband as the supposed effects of niacin and Trental.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 44-year-old female with spina bifida occulta near the base of my spine. What is the risk of me seeing a chiropractor for this condition? I've been taking pain pills for 24 years and am now on disability. I have no other health problems.

Usually, people with this mild form of the condition have chronic back pain because the spinal abnormality leads to muscle spasms. Physical therapy, special back exercises and hot compresses often help symptoms; pain medicine may be necessary. Because the pain of spina bifida occulta is muscular in origin, chiropractic manipulation may help in controlling it.

In Brief . . .

Stacy takes Crestar Classic
CHESAPEAKE, Va. (AP) — Hollis Stacy bridled the 14th, 15th and 16th holes for a one-stroke victory in the LPGA Crestar-Farm Fresh Classic on Sunday. Stacy's 3-under-par 69 and 6-under 282 total were good enough to overtake Thammie Green (73), Elaine Crosby (74) and Patty Sheehan (69), who tied for second after faltering over the last six holes on the 6,412-yard Greenbrier Country Club course.

It was Stacy's 18th victory of her LPGA career, but her first since winning the Classic of Deer Creek in 1985.

Bettenhausen has fastest lap
INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — It may have been a day late, but there was nothing short about Gary Bettenhausen's qualification effort Sunday for the Indianapolis 500. The veteran of 18 Indy races put up a speed faster than qualifying run at 224.668 mph in a Buick V-6-powered Lola to pace 10 qualifiers on the second of four days of time trials for the May 26 race. Bettenhausen easily eclipsed Saturday's front row performers by Meas (224.113), and the duo of A.J. Foyt (222.443) and Mario Andretti (221.818). It marks the 17th time overall and the first time since 1981 that the fastest qualifier has failed to win the pole.

Also qualifying Sunday were defending Indy champion Arnie吕endyk of the Netherlands at 223.881, 1989 winner Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil at 223.064 and Kevin Cogan. Bettenhausen's teammate, at 222.844 — the third-, fourth- and fifth-fastest qualifying efforts of the weekend.

Senna cruises to GP victory
MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Ayrton Senna of Brazil cruised to a record fourth consecutive Formula One victory in the Monaco Grand Prix on Sunday. Senna's previous triumphs were in Brazil, Phoenix and San Marino. Juan Fangio of Argentina started the 1954 season with three victories in a row. It was the 30th career Grand Prix victory for Senna. Only Alain Prost, with 44, has more victories. Senna made it look easy in his McLaren-Honda as he scored his third consecutive wire-to-wire victory and fourth overall at Monaco. He led by more than 40 seconds before easing up for an 18-second margin.

Nigel Mansell of Britain finished second and Jean Alesi of France was third.

Sabatini takes Italian Open
ROME (AP) — Gabriella Sabatini defeated Monica Seles 5-3, 6-2 for her third consecutive tournament victory and fifth of the year in the rain-interrupted final of the Italian Open on Sunday. Sabatini, ranked third in the world, is 35-2 this year and 2-3 overall against the top-ranked Seles.

Novacek is German open champ
HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — Karel Novacek of Czechoslovakia defeated Magnus Gustafsson of Sweden 6-3, 6-3, 5-7, 6-6, 6-1 in the final of the German Open on Sunday.

Clay court title to Yzaga
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Seventh-seeded Jaime Yzaga defeated Jimmy Arias 6-3, 7-5 in the final of the U.S. Men's Clay Court Championships on Sunday.

Kukoc signs with Italian club
ROME (AP) — Toni Kukoc passed up an offer from the Chicago Bulls and signed with Brescia of the Italian League. The Italian club announced the signing Saturday, but did not disclose terms. Published reports in Italy said the 22-year-old Yugoslavian signed a five-year deal worth $16.6 million. The Bulls offer was worth a reported $2.6 million a year over six years.

Blazers' small win opens a big lead

For seven minutes in the fourth quarter, Portland and Utah were separated by the smallest of margins.

By the time it was over, the Trail Blazers' lead in the Western Conference semifinal series was a substantial 3-1. Portland pulled ahead 56-39 in the first half and still led 62-68 going into the fourth quarter before the Jazz started the final period with a 17-2 run for an 85-84 lead with 6:54 left.

That was the first of 18 lead changes in the final minute, and neither team led by more than a point in a seven-minute span from the 7:21 mark until Terry Porter's two free throws with 13 seconds to go completed the scoring in the Trail Blazers' 104-101 victory.

"It's a tremendous win for us on the road. It puts us in good shape in the series," Trail Blazers coach Rick Adelman said. "But it's a long way from over."

Clyde Drexler, who had 15 points, 11 rebounds and 10 assists and is averaging a triple-double in the series, gave Portland the lead for good at 102-101 on a 20-footer with 36 seconds left.

"We put ourselves in a position to win... and we were able to get the job done in the end," Drexler said.

"We let them run, but to the basket, do whatever they wanted to do," Utah coach Jerry Sloan said. "They got an open court on us."

In other NBA playoff games Sunday, the Chicago Bulls took a 3-1 lead with a 101-85 victory over Philadelphia and the Los Angeles Lakers beat Golden State 123-107 for a 3-1 advantage in that best-of-7 series.

Detroit, trailing Boston 2-1, plays host to the Celtics in tonight's only game. The other three series resume Tuesday night with Game 5 in Chicago, Portland and Inglewood, Calif.

Mets finally get job done against Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The New York Mets kept trying until they got it right against the San Francisco Giants in a four-hour finale of a three-game series.

After leaving the bases loaded, the Mets scored in the eighth and ninth innings Sunday, the Mets scored on 11th-inning singles by Dave Magadan and rookie Chris Donnels for a 4-2 victory.

The Mets, who began a three-game series at San Diego tonight, stranded a total of 16 runners, but nobody was complaining after they broke a tie with the two-out hit off left-hander Dave Righetti (2-1).

"It's been a frustrating time for me, so it was nice to come through," said Magadan, whose one hit in five at-bats raised his average to .230. "I was in a fog today. Maybe the hit will get me going."

"You tell yourself it's early, but then it becomes too late," Magadan said. "You can't fall into that trap. To be a good hitter, you can't have negative feelings, and that's what I was having."

So are the Giants, who have dropped 10 of their last 12 games and languish in last place with a 10-20 record entering a three-game series with the Philadelphia Phillies beginning tonight at Camden Yards.

"We're snake-bit — We can't seem to catch a break," manager Roger Craig said after the Giants fell to 1-3 in extra-inning games. "It's not like we're getting blown out. With a couple of exceptions, we've been in every game."

Left-hander John Franco (1-1) retired all six batters he faced for the victory.

Fracco has yielded only one earned run in 12 innings this season and has not given up an earned run in his last seven games over 8 2-3 innings.

Braves 6, Pirates 1: The first-place Atlanta Braves would rather be the team doing the chasing.

Even as early as May 12, the Braves find themselves in the unfamiliar territory of first place in the National League West following Sunday's 6-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates at Three Rivers Stadium. The Braves lead Cincinnati and Los Angeles by one game.

"We want to compete," Atlanta manager Bobby Cox said. "We now have a chance of winning every game we're in... Pitching and defense keep you in games, and our pitching and defense are improved."

Ron Glatt and Dave Justice hit two-run homers and Steve Avery pitched six strong innings against Pittsburgh.

"Sure, we'd like to be in some sort of race, but we're not going to beat our chests," Cox said.

Reds 5, Cubs 3: Mariano Duncan's two-run triple off Greg Maddux (4-2) snapped an eight-inning tie to lift Cincinnati over Chicago at Wrigley Field.

Jack Armstrong (3-1) gave up seven hits and three runs in seven innings for the victory. Rob Dibble finished for his eighth win, striking out three.

Padres 6, Braves 5: Tim Lincecum had four hits and drove in three runs as visiting Montreal rallied for four runs in seven innings for the victory. Rob Dibble finished for his eighth win, striking out three.

Expos 6, Padres 5: Tim Lincecum had four hits and drove in three runs as visiting Montreal rallied for four runs in seven innings for the victory. Rob Dibble finished for his eighth win, striking out three.

Phillies 7, Dodgers 3: Jose DeJesus won for the first time this season despite walking eight batters in five innings as Philadelphia used a five-run first inning to beat Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium.

DeJesus (1-2) struck out five and combined with three relievers on a four-hitter. He also contributed a run-scoring infield hit in the first inning.

Cardinals 7, Astros 3: Ozzie Smith's two-run single highlighted St. Louis' five-run eighth inning as the Cardinals defeated the Astros.
