Senior 'Olympics' attract thousands

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Older Americans' newfound passion for fitness will be on display next week when a record 5,200 athletes age 55 and over gather in Syracuse for the 1991 U.S. National Senior Sports Classic.

growth in competitive sports is just the next stage. In 1987, the senior games drew qualifiers from 43 states and local games sponsored by the U.S. National Senior Sports Organization. This year more than 250,000 athletes in 48 states competed in 79 sanctioned qualifying events.

the 90-plus, she said. The oldest qualifier at age 99 is John Fleck, a swimmer from Harrisburg, Pa. Consequently, the games have added a new category of 85 and older. In the first two national games, the highest level was for 80 and older. The sport with the largest number of qualifiers is swimming, followed by track and field, bowling, cycling, golf and race walking. Team sports have grown in numbers even faster than individual sports with 170 team eligible to compete in Syracuse as compared to half that number two years ago.

The 1991 games also offer an expanded schedule of 18 sports, which will be contested at sites throughout Syracuse and Onondaga County. One event added this year was three-on-three basketball. Among the competitors will be Jack McCloskey, the general manager of the NBA's Detroit Pistons, and three Louisiana women who were teammates on a high school state championship team.

In addition to being an athletic competition, the Senior Sports Classic also is a social event for the competitors, said Smith.

Banks

when the Senate Banking Committee released a statement by chief banking watchdog Robert L. Clarke, the comptroller of the currency. Responding to proposals made in a March 8 meeting in Hartford between local business leaders and Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, Clarke said he had reservations about providing open bank assistance in New England. "We need to recognize that open bank assistance is not a panacea," Clarke said in his response. A government infusion of capital assets cannot alleviate the "credit crunch" that has gripped New England for the past 18 months, Clarke said. And open bank assistance runs the risk of increasing the government's already substantial losses incurred propping up weak banks that ultimately fail. "To avoid losses, the FDIC must be able to pick 'winners,'" Clarke said. While he acknowledged that open bank assistance has worked in some cases, "we must be careful in expanding its use to avoid rewarding past imprudence, creating inequities, or increasing the ultimate cost of resulting bank failures." The government would be hard-pressed to show why some banks got assistance and others didn't, Clarke said. A bank is short of lending capital, Clarke said, because it has lost money on past loans and because the private sector views the bank as a poor risk. "We should move carefully when we are asking the government to substitute its judgment for that of the market," Clarke said. Dodd supports a form of open bank assistance that would help Connecticut banks without unduly risking the government's money. Banks on the brink of failure would not qualify for government aid. The government would have the right to place in place, Shareholder equity would be reduced. And, in some cases, the government could keep the bank's assets and liabilities to solidate several weak banks into one. "All I'm saying is take a proposal and see if there are banks that meet the criteria," Dodd said. "Every day we lose is another day when you could be moving to keep open a bank that's open, operating and solvent."

The letter from Clarke and the developments in New Hampshire mark a disappointing shift for Connecticut from the March 8 meeting in which Brady called open bank assistance "an eminently good idea." The apparent reluctance to pump government capital into existing banks comes just weeks after the Connecticut state legislature passed a law creating a Connecticut Bank Funding Corp. designed to raise between $10 million and $40 million in private money and combine it with an equal amount of FDIC aid. The money would go into state-chartered banks to help ease the credit crunch and keep the institutions afloat through the recession. Last Sunday, her cousin was visiting with her two children. "It stopped raining, and we were all about to go out there again when we heard the bang," Tracy said. Wood said that he and Highway and Sanitation Administration Lee F. O'Connor Jr. visited the site Thursday to survey the area. The pair will look into the costs and the necessity of a guard rail and come up with a proposal in a few weeks, Wood said. Despite Wood's comments, Tracy said she remained skeptical. Her landlord has told her that he has been after the town for years to put up a guard rail in front of the home. Party one of a group to believe they have become black sheep in recent years because the party leadership's philosophical base has shifted to the right. Some party officials said Handley's chances were diminished when voters failed to support her in the 1989 election. The will of the voters was undoubtedly interpreted as signaling a movement against liberal Democrats, especially in light of the outcome of state and national elections. Besides her lack of party support, Handley said family commitments will most likely keep her out of this year's campaign. On the other hand, nothing seems to be holding back Director Thomas M. Ryan, who in February was appointed to fill the vacancy Handley and several others sought. Ryan, somewhat of a political newcomer, said he enjoys the work and sees many challenges ahead. The other Democratic directors are to blame for inhibiting what he called a "strong and qualified" staff. The other director to say he will seek the party nomination is minority leader Stephen T. Casano. Although Casano said there is a remote possibility he would not run, he said "I can't imagine myself not running." The elder statesman of the board, Casano has served for seven consecutive terms. "I enjoy it just as

When contacted Friday, Pinto, of Ellington, said that his suit against the company has been resolved. But Pinto said he could not elaborate on the settlement because of a new lawsuit filed against the makers of the wall boards. The manufacturer, Plum Creek Timber Co. of Washington, failed to place warning labels on the boards, Pinto said. The wall boards, which were installed two months before Pinto suffered his asthma attack, are suspected of releasing formaldehyde into the air. The boards were installed in August of 1986 when the store was being remodeled, Pinto said. Two months later, he had trouble breathing and was rushed to the hospital. Pinto, 44, said that until the 1986 flare-up he had not suffered an asthma attack for about 24 years.

SPORTS Welch shows why Red Sox coveted him

By DAVE O'HARA The Associated Press

BOSTON — Last winter the Boston Red Sox coveted Bob Welch, Oakland's Cy Young Award winner, in the free-agent market. But not for long. However, Welch re-signed with the Athletics, and the Red Sox settled for signing Danny Darwin and Matt Young as free agents. Now Welch is 7-4, with two victories over Boston in June. Darwin is 3-4 and Young (3-3) is disabled indefinitely with a rotator cuff problem.

With Boston seeking a four-game sweep of the defending AL champion Oakland for the first time since 1980, Welch got the call Sunday. He responded with seven shutout innings and the A's edged Boston 4-2, ending a 3-7 trip which cost them a five-game swing in the AL West standings.

Welch, who shut out Boston in Oakland on June 8, appeared en route to his 28th career shutout. However, Tony Pena led off the eighth with a home run to right and one out later Ellis Burks hit his eighth homer. The A's then turned to bullpen ace Dennis Eckersley, who checked Boston the rest of the way for his 20th save, including 12 in a row. "I didn't like this game as any different from others," said struggling. We won one game in every city and that's not enough." The A's whacked Darwin for eight hits, including solo homers by Terry Steinbach, Lance Blankenship and Dave Henderson in 7-1-3 innings while the Red Sox were unable to do much against Welch. "We needed a big game from Bobby and he gave it to us," said Steinbach who also had an RBI single. "We've counted upon him a great deal, like we did today," Eckersley said. "Now I think we're counting on him a lot more."

"He was on top of his game. He had great control. When someone is throwing the breaking ball on the corners, they're tough to hit. "We ran up against a good pitcher," said five-time batting champion Wade Boggs. "In a game like this, you give credit where credit is due."

Oakland manager Tony La Russa was happy with a victory before the A's headed home, but he was unhappy with the trip which sent the team from two games ahead to three games behind Minnesota in the AL West race. "We had very good starting pitching, good relieving and timely hitting — everything just went right," La Russa said. "When you get a win like this on the last day, it's like putting your finger in a dike. We'll take it."

The Red Sox had Roger Clemens, Mike Gardiner and Tom Bolton down to start in a three-game series with the Yankees at Fenway Park.

In Brief...

Boland's Legion win — MANCHESTER — Town Little League Tournament action continued Saturday with Boland Brothers topping Army and Navy, 5-1, and American Legion beating Vintner's, 11-3, in winner's bracket action. Action resumes tonight with Army and Navy vs. Casper's at Waddell and Vintner's vs. Firefighters at Lester Field in loser's bracket action. Hulbert wins Busch golf

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Mike Hulbert parred the first playoff hole, the 427-yard 16th, to defeat Kenny Knox in the Anheuser-Busch Classic on Sunday. Both players bogeyed the 18th hole on the 6776-yard Kingsmill Golf Club course for rounds of 3-under-par 68 and 18-under 266 totals, which tied the tournament record set by Larry Wadkins last year. Fuzzy Zoeller (55) and Ian Baker-Finch (69) tied for third at 17-under-267.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Beth Daniel shot a 3-under-par 68 for a four-stroke victory in the LPGA's McDonald's Championship on Sunday. Daniel, who finished with an 11-under 273 total, earned $172,500 to pass Betsy King and Nancy Lopez and move into second place behind Pat Bradley on the LPGA's career money list. Bradley has earned $3,707,690, while Danielle is at $3,245,930. Bradley (71) and Sally Little (74) tied for second at 277.

Whalers happy with No. 1 pick Poulin

By TOM COYNE The Associated Press HARTFORD (AP) — The Hartford Whalers picked left wing Patrick Poulin, defenseman Martin Hamrick and forward defenseman Todd Hall with their first three draft picks. "We added some speed, size and toughness to our club, which essentially is what we need," general manager Ed Johnston said Saturday from the draft in Buffalo. Hartford took Poulin with their first pick, No. 9 overall, after Minnesota took the player the Whalers wanted, defenseman Richard Marchinko, with the No. 8 pick overall. "If the defenseman from Saskatchewan was there we would have been pleased," Johnston said. "But we're not disappointed. We got what we were looking for." "On the left side we don't have much speed and size, and Poulin not only has speed and size but he has good hands," Johnston said. The Whalers tried to strike a deal to take Boston University defenseman Scott Lachance of Bristol after the expansion San Jose Sharks picked Pat Fallon, but Johnston couldn't move up. "We tried extremely hard," he said. "It didn't work out. If we had any chance of taking Lachance... we would have moved. But the people ahead of us didn't want to move their pick." New Jersey also passed on Lachance, taking offensive-minded defenseman Scott Niedermayer in-

Kamieniecki comes through as Yankees beat the Twins

NEW YORK (AP) — Right-hander Scott Kamieniecki thought it was a tough game to lose, but in the sense that most ballplayers do. "With 11 runs, it's kind of tough to lose a game," said Kamieniecki (2-0), who won his second straight major league decision Sunday behind the New York Yankees' biggest scoring outburst of the season in a 11-2 drubbing of the Minnesota Twins. Roberto Kelly collected five hits, including a two-run homer that capped a six-run second inning as the Yankees dealt the Twins their third loss in their last 25 games. "Nothing went right for us today," said Twins manager Tom Kelly of the second inning when his Twins contributed a hit batsmen and an error to the Yankees' six-run outburst. Kelly also had praise for 27-year-old Kamieniecki saying, "He had a good curve and he moved his fastball."

Roberto Kelly not only had his first career five-hit game, but drove in three runs, scored twice and stole three bases. Allan Anderson (4-5) allowed three singles with one out in the second inning, including a RBI hit by Geron that gave the Yankees a 1-0 lead.

Anderson then hit Pat Kelly with a pitch to load the bases and another run scored on Steve Sax's infield out. But the biggest play of the inning was first baseman Randy Bush's failure to field Don Mattingly's ground ball. Geron and Pat Kelly scored on the error and Roberto Kelly followed with eighth homer, a line drive into the left-field stands.

Geron and Hensley Meulens each drove in two runs as the Yankees rapped three Twins pitchers for 16 hits. Bush was the only Twins hitter Kamieniecki had serious problems with as he hit his first two home runs of the season, solo shots in the third and eighth innings.

Bush didn't think his homers made up for the costly error. "I thought it was a big play, and I didn't make the play," said Bush of his error. In addition to his RBIs, catcher Geron was given credit by Kamieniecki for his sixth performance over the first 72-3 innings. "Bob Geron told me exactly what we were going to do, and I just tried my best to do it," said Kamieniecki, who walked one and struck out three before being relieved by Steve Howe in the eighth.

The kids are coming of age. The last couple of nights have been real positive," Yankees manager Stump Merrill said. Minnesota beat the Yankees 4-3 on Saturday night, but another Yankees rookie pitcher, Wade Taylor of Minnesota to five hits over the first 7-1-3 innings. Kamieniecki followed Taylor as the second Yankees rookie pitcher this season to start his career by winning his first two decisions.

However, no Yankees rookie pitcher has won his first three decisions since Mel Stottlemyre in 1964. Blue Jays 3, Indians 1: When baseball's biggest trade in years was made last winter, it was announced as a deal involving four all-stars — Fred McGriff and Tony Fernandez from Toronto to San Diego for Roberto Alomar and Joe Carter. There was only one thing wrong, Carter, despite averaging 29 home runs and 109 RBIs for five seasons, had never been an all-star. That, though, is likely to change next month when Carter's team, the Toronto Blue Jays, plays the Twins at the SkyDome, who will enter the game in the seventh.
