term care insurance that isn't worth much more than the paper it's written on," said Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore.

The Health Insurance Association of America maintains there are good, affordable policies available from reputable companies.

Frances Saunders, 84, of Cleveland, said she met with two insurance agents who frightened her with warnings that she could lose her life savings and "either lied about certain things or failed to inform me about important limitations."

"I felt cheated and foolish," she said. "I can only imagine how someone who actually buys one of these policies must feel when they find out later that the company won't pay."

Philip Graham, 63, of New Orleans, said even his background as an administrative law judge did not prepare him for "the fine print and loopholes contained in the long-term care policies" pitched to him.

"At least I now know some of the pitfalls in the purchase of these policies," he said. "I only regret that many seniors are purchasing long-term care insurance unaware of its many limitations."

The long-term care market has flourished in recent years as a result of growing concern about the high cost of nursing home care, which can run $24,000 a year or more.

The number of companies offering policies has risen from three dozen in the early 1980s to about 143. About 2 million policies are now in force and the number is expected to double by the year's end.

The senior citizens, who planned to testify on Capitol Hill today, were under cover as part of an investigation by two House subcommittees that also surveyed state insurance departments about problems with long-term care policies.

history. The pessimists contend that a large overhang of personal debt will hold consumer spending back while instability in the banking sector and continued weakness in commercial real estate will also depress economic activity.

An inflation index tied to the GNP and reflecting prices paid domestically rose at an annual rate of 3.7 percent in the first quarter, down significantly from a 6.3 percent jump in the fourth quarter. The big improvement reflected lower energy prices.

Many economists have been revisiting their forecasts for second quarter growth, based on recent reports showing that retail sales are up, industrial output has begun increasing after a string of declines and businesses added jobs in May for the first time in nearly a year.

The government said Tuesday that orders for "big ticket" durable goods posted the biggest gain in more than a year, a year hailed by the Bush administration as fresh evidence that the country's economic slide was ending.

Concomitantly, there has been no tax on wages. The sales tax is 8 percent.

Work continued on a "continuing resolution" that would keep government functioning for a couple of weeks or a month while the budget is in place by then.

Weicker, who favors an income tax, vetoed the bipartisan no-income-tax budget that cleared the House on Tuesday.

Balducci estimated that as many as 53 of the 88 House Democrats favor some income tax plan. Some 76 votes are needed for passage. Estimates range no higher than 10 for Republicans in the House who would vote for an income tax.

Meanwhile, the House on Tuesday approved a package of spending cuts and fee increases totaling $23 million. The proposals came from the Thomas Commission, which has been studying state government efficiency for the past 18 months.

The package, said Rep. William R. Dwyer, D-New Haven, co-chairman of the Appropriations Committee, came about as "the result of a compromise."

It includes a 3 percent income tax, a 3 percent sales tax and eliminating, or "sunsetting," the whole thing after three years. It would then be up to the 1994 General Assembly to come up with a new tax plan.

Connecticut now has no tax on wages. The sales tax is 8 percent.

Board fuzzy about television coverage

By SCOTT B. BREDE Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Dissension among members of the Board of Education is blocking the school board's meetings from appearing on cable television.

While some members say they want to get the meetings on the air as soon as possible, others fear the image the board will project via cable television.

"Some members are concerned that we won't come off very professional," said Republican board member Jan Horn.

Horn said she is in favor of televising the meetings even though the quality of the broadcasts would be inferior to those of the Board of Directors' meetings.

Board member Malcolm Barlow, a Democrat, has been pushing to get the meetings televised for the past few months.

Earlier this year, the board voted unanimously to televise its meetings, Barlow said. However, some have changed their feelings on the subject since the vote.

"Some of the board members are concerned about the quality of the program," Barlow said, adding that the board's meeting room does not provide the best lighting for such a project.

"If we can get it up to the quality that Cox Cable can accept, then we should do it immediately," he said.

But Terry Bogli, a fellow Democrat on the board, disagreed with Barlow. Bogli said that being on television might make some of the board members, including himself, self-conscious.

"It may limit what is sometimes already a limited dialogue," he said. "I agree that it will bring us closer to the public, but I'm not sure the board is ready for that type of involvement."

Bogli also said she was concerned with the costs of such a project.

Slovenia clashes grow

By TONY SMITH The Associated Press

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia — Yugoslav troops took over a border post in Slovenia today after exchanging gunfire with soldiers of the secessionist republic, Slovene radio said. No casualties were immediately reported.

The clash on the border with Austria was the first skirmish reported between federal soldiers and a militia in either Slovenia or Croatia since both republics declared independence on Tuesday.

Earlier today, federal army units moved to take over Slovenia's main airports and border posts in a bid to preserve the federation.

The brief report on the gunfire at Jezersko, 50 miles northeast of Ljubljana, the capital, gave no further details.

The Serbian-dominated central government said it would crush opposition. But Slovenian leaders, who met in emergency session, promised resistance, and the republic's president urged the army's soldiers to desert.

The army clearly wants to cut the republic off from the outside and demonstrate that the republic remains a part of the federation.

Securing the borders of Slovenia would be crucial because it borders Italy, Hungary and Austria.

State guard cuts not out of line

By MELISSA B. ROBINSON Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A Pentagon official has pledged that Connecticut's Army National Guard will not suffer cuts that are more severe than units in other parts of the country, federal lawmakers said Wednesday.

More than half of the Connecticut guard — which has more than 6,000 soldiers — is slated for elimination under the Bush administration's plan to reduce defense spending and overall force structure.

The House passed a bill Wednesday that would keep the guard at its current level of 6,000 soldiers.

The bill would also require the Pentagon to conduct a study of the guard's future needs.

The study would be completed by the end of the fiscal year.

MANCHESTER — Stop & Shop Supermarket Co. will be building an even bigger store in the Manchester Parkade.

The supermarket chain has bought the former Sears Roebuck and Co. building in the Manchester Parkade for $3.5 million.

And Stop & Shop intends to tear down the building and the former Brunswick Lanes bowling alley in a couple of months to construct a 67,000-square-foot structure on the site, according to a spokeswoman from Stop & Shop's corporate office in Braintree, Mass.

The spokeswoman could not give a specific time table for the project because design plans are not complete.

Stop & Shop, which now has a store located in the other half of the parkade, bought the old Sears building from Broadman Associates, which owns the rest of the Parkade property off West Middle Turnpike.

Broadman Associates, a limited partnership headed by developer Anthony Cusala, has been in the midst of foreclosure proceedings over the past couple months. According to Cusala's plans, the deal with Stop & Shop will allow the partnership to renovate the remaining stores in the Parkade.

The supermarket chain has been negotiating the purchase of the building since Sears Roebuck moved to its present location at the Pavilions at Buckland Hills. Disagreements over price for the property delayed the purchase for several months.

In March, the Planning and Zoning Commission approved an application by Broadman Associates to subdivide the Parkade into lots of 7.64 and 33.11 acres.

Muslims kill Israeli tourist

SRINAGAR, India (AP) — Six Israeli tourists seized from a boat in this northern city tried to overpower their Kashmiri Muslim kidnappers and one Israeli and two militants were killed, officials said today.

At least two of the tourists were wounded and at least one was missing after the escape attempt, the officials said.

The Israeli, among eight tourists abducted from the boat in Srinagar late Wednesday, had been told they were to be killed because they were Jewish, officials quoted one of the tourists as saying.

Two women in the group were released before the struggle.

It was the first known killing of a tourist in Jammu-Kashmir state since a revolt by Muslim separatists escalated 18 months ago.

Two Swedish engineers working on a hydroelectric project were kidnapped three months ago and are still being held by Muslim militants who have demanded the release of several jailed colleagues.

Indian officials and an Israeli consul gave conflicting versions of the Israeli's fate, but confirmed that one was killed.

An Indian official in New Delhi said three Israeli men were wounded but escaped and were later taken to an army hospital. The other two Israeli men were missing, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Girish Saxena, governor of Jammu-Kashmir state, also said one Israeli was killed and three were wounded, one of them shot in the abdomen.

Giora Behar, Israel's consul in Bombay, said only one Israeli was missing. He said the other four men escaped but two were wounded.

An Israeli woman and a Dutch woman, kidnapped from the same tourist houseboat, were allowed to go free, the officials said. Behar said the kidnapers freed the women before the men tried to escape.

The Indian official in New Delhi quoted one of the Israeli escapees as saying the eight tourists were abducted from a houseboat on Dal Lake by eight Kashmiri Muslim militants.

Libya linked to bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — French officials have gathered evidence that Col. Muammar Gadhafi's brother-in-law and other Libyan officials ordered the bombings that downed Pan Am Flight 103 and a French plane a year later, the Washington Post reports.

The newspaper quoted sources in Washington and Paris as saying attacks against American and French targets were decided on at a 1988 meeting at Libyan intelligence headquarters in Tripoli.

The combined death toll from the two aircraft explosions reached 441 individuals.

According to the Post report in today's edition, two terrorists who took part in the September 1989 attack on a French UTA airliner have provided authorities with confessions.

Investigators believe the motive for the attack on Flight 103 was revenge for the 1986 bombing of the Libyan capital of Tripoli by U.S. warplanes in which dozens of

President died natural death

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The writer whose theory prompted authorities to exhume President Zachary Taylor's remains said he is glad to know the truth about his death — even if tests showed he wasn't poisoned as the suspected.

Clara Rising had theorized Taylor was poisoned with arsenic in 1850 for opposing the spread of slavery into the Southwest.

Kentucky Medical Examiner Dr. George Nichols, disclosing the results of high-tech tests done on hair, bone scrapings and fingernails from Taylor's crypt, announced Wednesday that the 12th president died of natural causes.

"It's not borderline. He was not poisoned," Nichols said.

"We have the truth and that's what we were after," Rising said. "I have very strange feelings about it. I think I would have been sad if arsenic had been found because then we would know his life had been ended by his enemies."

Taylor's crypt was opened June 17 after Rising — arguing that Taylor's symptoms resembled those of arsenic poisoning — presented her theory to Nichols, Jefferson County Coroner Richard Greathouse and Taylor descendants.

Samples were analyzed for arsenic at the University of Louisville, a state laboratory and the nation's largest research reactor, in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

Nichols said traces of arsenic — a naturally occurring element — were found, but levels for poisoning "would have been at least 200 if not maybe thousands of times higher."

"I just presented it. I didn't really convince anybody," Rising said. "I thought it was consistent enough with arsenic poisoning" to do the tests.

Sixteen months into his term, Taylor fell ill after attending the July 4, 1850 dedication of the Washington Monument and died a few days later. Gastroenteritis, inflammation of the stomach and intestines, was listed as the cause of death.

Fireworks warning issued

By NICOLE LOZIER
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — With the Fourth of July around the corner, Deputy Fire Marshal Rudy Kissmann is reminding residents that fireworks, including hand-held sparklers, are illegal in Connecticut. Persons using or selling fireworks can be prosecuted.

Almost 10,000 fireworks-related injuries are reported annually, according to statistics from safety officials. Just last week, a young Hartford girl lost three fingers when a lit "cherry bomb" firecracker exploded in her hand.

Despite this incident, Kissmann said he does not consider use of fireworks a problem in Manchester, and added that related incidents have been relatively low in past years.

The typical fireworks injury victim is a 13- to 15-year-old male who sustains severe eye damage usually from a bottle rocket, according to a profile supplied by the American Academy of Ophthalmology. Most injuries occur between June 29 and July 5 at the victim's home. And

Golfers have a swinging time

By NICOLE LOZIER
Manchester Herald

MANCHESTER — Wednesday afternoon was a hot, but high-spirited day, at the fifth annual Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce Ambassador Club Golf Tournament at the Manchester Country Club.

More than 115 players drove, chipped and putted around the course, carrying soda and fruit to keep cool under the hot sun. Players paid $100 each to play the country club's 18-hole course. The money benefits the chamber.

The team with the lowest score not including handicaps was Lon Annulli and Marty Shea with a final tally of 76.

The team with the lowest score including handicaps team was W. Zaccaro (81-16-65), Wally Irish (79-12-67), Don Genova (81-12-60) and Roger Somerville (93-24-69).

Callaway division winners were D. Kirk and J. Sommers, both scoring 69.

"It's a lot of fun and it benefits the chamber," said Don Genova, a fifth-year player in the tournament. The chamber did not yet have a figure for the amount of money raised in the tournament, nor could Chamber President Stacey Murdoch provide an estimate. With the 115 or more competitors at $100 each, the tournament should have grossed at least $11,500.

None of the golfers were lucky enough to make a hole-in-one at the 18th hole. If someone had done so, he or she would have been the proud owner of a 1991 Honda Civic CRX. The car was provided by Manchester Honda.

However, door prizes given to participants included a television with a built-in VCR and a pair of American Airline tickets to anywhere in Florida.

'Dying Young' dead on arrival

By LINDA M. TROMBLEY
Manchester Herald

"Dying Young," sets out to be one of the greatest, tear-jerking, love stories of all time, but all it succeeds in jerking is the money from your wallet.

It is the story of Victor Goddes (Campbell Scott), a 28-year-old man who has been fighting leukemia since the age of 18. He is determined to get an attractive girl to help him during his course of chemotherapy.

Enter Hillary O'Neill (Julia Roberts), a beautiful, 23-year-old girl who is in dire need of a job. She gets her job, he gets his attractive girl, and, of course, they fall in love.

Scott and Roberts are the only assets this movie has. Roberts, as usual, is a delight. She manages to hold the attention of the audience just by being on screen. And Scott does yeoman work conveying the pain and desperation that Victor has been feeling for the 10 years.

But screen-writer Richard Friedenberg and director Joel Schumacher have created a sappy, saccharine mess that the greatest actors in the world couldn't overcome.

Some of the opening scenes start out right, with some very brutal shots of Victor after a chemotherapy session. But from there, Friedenberg and Schumacher give the audience nothing but lovingly lit sets and drifty lines. They have unfortunately focused on the false sweetness of a Hollywood romance instead of the very real pain of loving someone who may soon die.

Anderson is the real thing

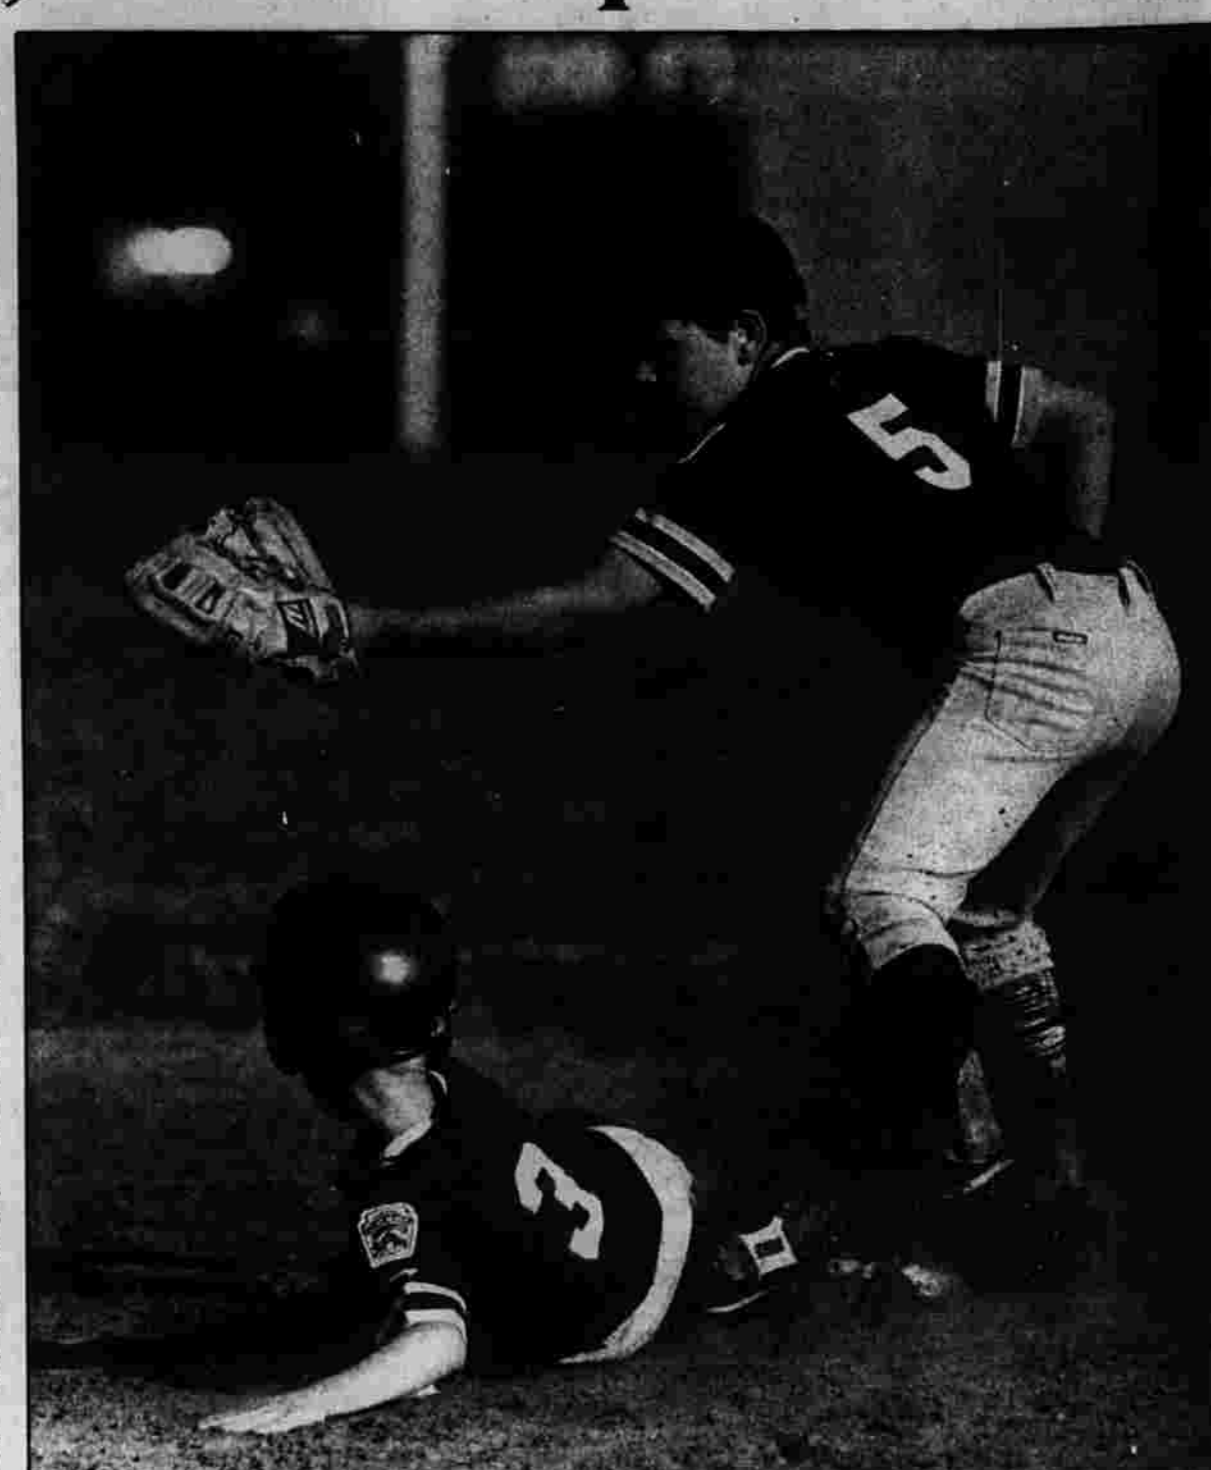

In the time leading up to Wednesday night's NBA Draft at Madison Square Garden in New York City, hometown of Kenny Anderson — doubts had been cast by the supposed 'experts' in reference to Anderson's potential as an NBA player.

Uninformed and out-of-touch critics cited Anderson's slight six-foot, 168-pound frame not being able to hold up over the arduous, 82-game NBA grind, along with his age (20) and mental toughness having left Georgia Tech after his sophomore year.

Sanderson, Howe stop Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Right-hander Scott Sanderson, 34, credits one year with the Oakland Athletics and pitching coach Dave Duncan for his success with the New York Yankees.

Left-hander Steve Howe, 33, who has overcome substance abuse, suspensions and elbow surgery, says "humility is the first step that helped me" in his comeback with the Yankees after a three-year absence from the big leagues.

Clayton Kershaw (left) and Jesse Ojeda (right) are forced out at second base by American Legion's Jason Cogan during action from the Town Little League Tournament Tuesday at Leber Field. Boland can win the town title tonight with a win over Vitners at Leber at 5:30 p.m.

"I can't remember the last time we were able to do anything with Sanderson, and then Howe came in and shut us down after we got a little threat going," Boston manager Joe Morgan said. "We're going to have to do something about our defense. It's just not producing."

Rededication draws 325

Regrets came from Gov. Lowell Weicker and former Gov. William O'Neill, Jackson said.

Our Home Equity Line of Credit is more about saving than spending.

Save on monthly loan payments. With a CBT Home Equity Line of Credit, you can pay off current auto loan, department store and credit card balances now, and save.

Save on major expenses. The low interest and tax savings that make our Home Equity Line of Credit a cost-effective way to pay off your debts also make it a smart way to borrow for such expenses as college tuition and home improvement.

Save on closing costs. At other banks, you'd probably pay closing costs on a new Home Equity Line of Credit. At CBT, we'll save you at least $200 by waiving those costs.

Save on taxes. Federal tax laws have completely eliminated deductions on credit card, auto loan and other unsecured loan interest. The Home Equity Line of Credit, however, is the exception to the rule—with interest still 100% deductible in most cases.
