Pupils Reject School Plan

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — High school pupils marched today in protest of a proposed mass transfer of teachers under a school desegregation plan before the federal courts.

A group of about 300, braving shivering weather and icy streets, gathered at the state Capitol where Gov. Lester Maddox told them their demonstration was necessary "because a police state is engulfing the United States of America."

Maddox got into a sound truck, from where he made his speech, and rode around the Capitol in front of the marchers. He returned to his office, but the demonstrators moved through downtown Atlanta to the federal building where a hearing on the school matter was scheduled later in the day.

"It is regrettable that you have to march to protect your schools, lives and property," Maddox told the youngsters. "This is an indictment of the people of my generation who failed to meet their responsibilities to you, and who have not had the guts and courage to stand up for God, America and our boys and girls."

The marchers were accompanied by a police escort as they walked slowly through the streets, which were coated with ice.

A scattering of negroes and a few adults joined them.

The pupils demonstrated last Friday and student leaders have said that if the court doesn't delay the mass transfers of the teachers beyond the deadline of Feb. 1, they will continue to demonstrate.

Considering the desegregation plan is U.S. District Court Judge Frank Hooper.

The city's 150 schools operate on a quarter system and Atlanta's school superintendent, Dr. John Letson, is requesting a postponement of the integration order until the current term ends March 4.

The student protest had been scheduled to form at the Capitol as the Georgia Legislature opened its 1970 session, and Maddox had said he would ask the lawmakers to join in the march to the federal building.

Most legislators made it to the Capitol, despite weather conditions.

Letson had said disciplinary action would be taken against

Dempsey Exit Seen Setting Off Scramble

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The announced retirement of Gov. John Dempsey from political office is expected to touch off a scramble among prominent Democrats for the gubernatorial nomination.

Everyone had been waiting for the governor to make his decision—and when he did Saturday, it caught most people by surprise.

Dempsey made it clear he was not only bowing out of the governorship, but out of public office entirely.

The former lieutenant governor had succeeded Abraham Ribicoff as governor nine years ago when Ribicoff accepted a post in President John F. Kennedy's cabinet. Dempsey went on to win election on his own in 1962 and again in 1966.

Dempsey had been urged by some Democratic leaders to consider seeking the U.S. Senate nomination, the idea being that Dempsey was one figure popular enough to neutralize Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, who is seeking the nomination again.

But although the 55-year-old Democrat said he would take part in his party's state nominating convention in June, he added he would not accept a draft to run for any elective office.

Flanked by his wife, Mary, and their four children, Dempsey said, "It is my belief that 10 years is long enough for one man to serve as the state's chief executive."

By the end of his current term, Dempsey, a former mayor of Putnam, will have served longer as Connecticut's governor than anyone since the 19th Century.

The governor's move comes when only state Senate Minority Leader Wallace Barnes of Farmington has declared for the Republican nomination for governor. All interested Democrats have been waiting for Dempsey to announce his intentions.

The governor's announcement is expected to cause frantic political action at the gubernatorial campaign level and elsewhere.

Foremost among Democrats to succeed Dempsey is U.S. Rep. Emilio Q. Daddario of Hartford, who polled the greatest plurality of seven candidates in the 1968 congressional elections. He has not announced his plans.

Also viewed as a promising possibility for the Democratic nomination is Mayor Hugh C. Curran Jr., of Bridgeport. He was returned to office in November.

Biafra Abandons Efforts To Secede from Nigeria

Biafran refugees are shown carrying children and belongings as they flee Nigerian troops in this photo, taken in 1968. Today, French officials report the end is near for Biafra as Nigerian federal forces push in on the secessionist state. (AP Photofax).

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Biafra surrendered today after fighting 30 months in an effort to enforce secession from Nigeria.

Maj. Gen. Phillip Effiong, left in charge in Biafra by Gen. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, told the nation in a broadcast: "I am convinced now the struggle must be put to an end and stop the bloodshed that is going on..."

He said he ordered a disengagement of Biafran army units and asked commanders to stop fighting. He appealed to the Nigerian leader, Maj. Gen. Yakubu Gowon, for an immediate cease-fire.

He said he would apply to federal unit commanders at Biafra's edges for conditions.

Effiong, a 45-year-old member of the Efik minority tribe in Biafra, said "Any question of a government in exile is repudiated by our people."

Nixon Bid: $10 Million To Refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon made $10 million available today to help refugees in eastern Biafra where Nigerian federal troops have occupied the rebel enclave.

The funds will be distributed through various international relief agencies, including the Red Cross, under direction of the Nigerian government.

It will go for such things as food and medical supplies.

This brings to $80 million the total the United States has made available. The President acted under authority to release government-held surplus food and through the authority of the foreign aid program.

Pope Appeals In Civil War

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI appealed to governments and to all men of good will today for speedy action to save innocent lives in Nigeria.

He offered the Holy See's cooperation.

The pontiff said the Nigerian government's assurance that it would respect human and civil rights was "a good omen" and "a happy promise."

He asked governments "to try the impossible to avoid that the Nigerian conflict—which seems to be ending—becomes a frightful tragedy and ends with a yet crueler epilogue of horror which every war carries with it."

The 72-year-old pontiff's appeal was made to diplomats accredited to the Holy See who met in an annual ceremony to wish him a happy new year. It was the second successive day in which the Pope has spoken out strongly on the Nigerian civil war, which reportedly is drawing to a close with the collapse of Biafran forces.

He told the diplomats: "You can understand with how much emotion we direct this appeal to you, Messers Ambassadors, and through you to all our governments, in the wish that the speedy concurrence of all men of good will succeeds in impeding new bloodshed and

The surrender broadcast followed the capture by Nigerian federal troops of Uli airstrip, Biafra's last link to the outside world. The strip came under massive air attacks that reduced its roadbed runway to rubble, according to reliable sources in Lagos.

Ojukwu, leader of Biafra in its 32 months of secession from federal Nigeria, fled Sunday for an unknown destination.

The informants in Lagos said that after federal ground troops captured Uli, Soviet-made Ilyushin 28 bombers flown by Egyptians rained 1,000-pound bombs on the jungle airstrip and MIGs piloted by white mercenaries strafed the strip with cannonfire.

Nevertheless, Joint Church Aid headquarters in Copenhagen, Denmark, said two of 1 planes were able to land at Uli with 20 tons of food and medicine early today—apparently, before the massive air attacks.

Military sources said casualties were heavy among Biafrans who had assembled by the thousands in the area of Uli in hopes of getting out of the enclave, whose secession stemmed from tribal conflict after Nigeria's

Biafran History Bloody

LAGOS (AP) — It has taken 30 months, 2 million lives and more than a billion dollars to bring Biafra to its knees.

Nigeria's army, up from eight thousand men at the start to well over 150,000 drove the diminishing secessionist state to the wall with a coordinated and unannounced onslaught.

Now there remains the staggering task of rehabilitating some four million members of the Ibo tribe.

Nigeria became an independent state Oct. 1, 1960, and Britain pointed to it as the model of its former colonies. Nigeria's 55.6 million people made it the most populous of the former African colonies, and Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa was considered an enlightened leader.

But beneath the surface, bitter tribal animosities spilled trouble for the new nation. Balewa was killed in a coup in January 1966, but the uprising was put down by Maj. Gen. Johnson T. U. Aguiyi-Ironsi, commander of the army and an easterner from what was to become Biafra. In June 1966, Aguiyi-Ironsi was slain in a coup led by Yaku-bu Gowon, a lieutenant colonel from Northern Nigeria. He is now Nigeria's head of state and a major general.

Thousands of Ibos were slain in the North during tribal rioting in September 1966, and survivors fled to their tribal territory in Eastern Nigeria. Lt. Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, governor of the territory, resisted Gowon's attempts to exert authority over the eastern region and on May 30, 1967, declared the independent nation of Biafra, with 30,000 square miles and 14 million people. He said his people could "no longer be protected in their lives and property by any government outside the eastern region."

When the civil war started July 6, 1967, Nigerian leaders talked of "a swift, surgical operation" that would take "only days."

They captured the first main town, Nsukka, two days later. But then Biafra took the offensive, using infiltrators in Mufli to invade the adjacent Midwest State. At one point, just months into the war, they were only 150 miles from Lagos.

From there it was a steady shrinking process. Federal units moved quickly through the outer reaches of Biafra, peopled by minority tribes not always anxious to join the Ibos in what they regarded as a tribal war.

Biafra's first capital, Enugu, fell in October 1967 and the Southeastern State capital of Calabar two weeks later.

In May 1968 the Biafrans lost Port Harcourt, their last real airfield. Encircled and hard pressed, the Biafrans made airstrips out of roads, camouflaging them by day and lighting them with makeshift flares at night. They distilled gasoline in their backyards, built tanks out of tractors and found substitutes for scores of vital items.

Finally food shortages caught up with them. The weakest children and then the stronger ones succumbed to slow starvation. Many who survived developed kwashiorkor, a protein deficiency causing mental retardation.

Foreign relief workers and Red Cross societies rushed to help. There seemed plenty of time as the federal army advanced slowly, bogged down by tortuous supply lines, low morale and other problems.

Command Details Viet Withdrawal

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today the major units among the 50,000 American troops being withdrawn from Vietnam by April 15. They include the 1st Infantry Division, the 26th Marine Regiment and the 3rd Brigade of the 4th Infantry Division for Christmas.

Also pulling out will be three squadrons of the Air Force's 12th Tactical Fighter Wing, Navy service support units and "a number of smaller combat support and service support units of all services," the command said.

These smaller units will include several artillery battalions and a civil affairs company, it was learned. A 10 per cent cut is also being ordered in many headquarters staffs.

Headquarters said the first units will begin moving out early next month. The 1st Infantry Division was the first Army division sent to Vietnam, 4½ years ago.

The latest withdrawal, the third ordered by President Nixon, will reduce the authorized U.S. troop ceiling in Vietnam to 434,000. It will bring the total number of American troops withdrawn since last July to 110,000.

The U.S. Command announced today the 50,000 men being withdrawn in the next three months will include 29,500 Army, 12,900 Marines, 5,600 Air Force and 2,000 Navy men.

A weekly summary also issued today by the U.S. Command showed that American troop strength in Vietnam dropped 6,900 last week, to 467,500, the lowest since November 1967.

This is 16,500 men below the present authorized ceiling, but U.S. spokesmen said troop strength around the Christmas season always falls considerably below the authorized maximum because rotation transfers to the States are expedited to get the men home for Christmas, while replacements are often delayed so the men can be home for the holidays.

Little fighting was reported today.

Official sources disclosed that American forces three weeks ago uncovered a major North Vietnamese communications center that intercepted at least 1,400 U.S. operational messages which presumably enabled enemy troops to escape U.S. ambushes, bombing and artillery strikes.

The sources said there was no evidence that the interceptions resulted in any American deaths. Nor were the North Vietnamese able to break any official codes, the sources reported. But they said many U.S. troops use unauthorized or "home-made" codes which the North Vietnamese easily deciphered.

"People are lazy and will not follow established procedures," one source said. "This problem exists all the time. We are putting more emphasis on correcting it."

The listening post was located in a bunker complex in the Boi Loi woods about 35 miles north-west of Saigon. The sources said 12 North Vietnamese who were fluent in English were captured and another was killed.

Fresh Spring of Hope Rises For Our Polluted Old Planet

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — At last, something is being done about our polluted planet.

In Florida, Lake Apopka is to be drained of its polluted water. Then, hopefully, the muck-filled lake bed will be sun baked back to health, and the lake refilled with fresh water.

On New Year's Day, President Nixon vowed a "now or never" effort to overcome pollution of water, air and land, in signing a bill creating a three-member Council on Environmental Quality to help guide national policy.

In Erie County, N.Y., a single patrol car prowls on watch for autos emitting excessive exhaust fumes, and drivers can be given summonses under a new law.

On Washington orders, the persistent pesticide DDT, blamed for harming bird and animal life and perhaps human health—is being phased out of all but special use.

On Wall Street, analysts predict companies engaged in or entering the field of air and water pollution control will be new stars in corporate growth and stock market appeal.

On college campuses, youths are taking up a new supercause—protecting man's environment—and are demanding action now.

More young lawyers are specializing in cases involving conservation of natural resources and suits to halt pollutions.

There are proposals to set up schools of human environment at universities to train professional workers, and proposals to teach school kids early about dangers to the nation's environment.

So—as the 1970's begin—some signs that the country might veer off from a suicidal course of destroying a livable environment by abuse of land, water and air, and through an avalanche of trash and garbage.

The planet earth is being recognized for what it really is—one huge spacecraft. It has one total environment, and only one, to support more than three billion passengers.

Neil Armstrong stepped out of the carefully protected environment of his spacecraft to become the first man to walk on the moon. That was last July—just a month after the Cuyahoga River in his native Ohio caught fire from oil pollution.

Perhaps there is one generation of time left to reverse the present course in disrupting nature's chemical balances, says Dr. Barry Commoner, Washington University biologist.

The counterattack against pollution so far has been mainly words. There's been little movement to produce the many billions of tax dollars that will be needed to control pollution, let alone repair damage already done.

But some positive steps are being taken, and here is a sampling:

WATER

Congress appropriated $500 million for next year under the Clean Water Restoration Act, $386 million more than the Administration requested. But it may not all be spent in this tight budget year.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel cited the city of Toledo, four steel companies and a mining company for pollution of interstate waters in Oklahoma, Kansas, Ohio and Lake Erie in the first use of the enforcement provision of the 1965 Water Pollution Control Act. This opened the way to corrective measure if they were in violation.

In New Rochelle, N.Y., an experimental sewage treatment process converts waste to fresh water. Whether it would work in a large-scale operation is not yet known.

Mississippi silverside fish introduced into a California lake are credited with clearing out 80 to 90 per cent of algae that had been befouling it.

Looking ahead, Hickel estimated at least $15 billion will be needed over the next 10 years to clean up the nation's polluted lakes and streams.

AIR

In 20 of the largest, most polluted urban areas, Air Quality Control Regions have been established, limiting the amount of pollutants industries and other

100 Whales Kill Selves In Florida

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP) — More than 100 pilot whales that committed shore-going suicide dotted a 30-mile strip of Florida's eastern beaches today and authorities looked for ways to bury 150,000 pounds of the dead mammals.

"They seemed determined to do away with themselves," said St. Lucie County Administrator Weldon Lewis. "As of now, we have no real idea where they will be buried."

Conservation and Coast Guard workers battled Sunday to change the whales' idea of going ashore where they could not exist for long. Four craft including a Coast Guard cutter continually towed the whales out to sea.

"Their leader must have been hurt or ill," said Jerry Rogers of the Palm Beach office of the Department of Natural Resources. "We even tried running them in circles in the ocean, trying to make them lose direction. They just kept pulling back toward shore. It was hopeless."

The black-mined whales ranged from 6 to 15 feet in length and weighed an average of 1,500 pounds.

"It became a disposal operation rather than a rescue," said Lt. Ron Purdom, a conservation officer.

Purdom said whales have beached before, but in much smaller numbers. He said it was unusual for them to be off the

Perot Offers $100 Million For POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — H. Ross Perot, the Texas billionaire who failed in getting two plane loads of supplies to American prisoners held by North Vietnam, has come up with another unusual plan—$100 million offer to buy the captives' freedom.

Perot said Sunday he had made the offer, similar to the tractor deal made with Cuba for release of the Bay of Pigs prisoners, in a cable last week to North Vietnamese Prime Minister Pham Van Dong.

Until release of the prisoners is worked out, Perot further offered to supply everything needed to run the prisoner of war camps. And to sweeten the pot, he offered similar nonmilitary goods for needy North Vietnamese civilians.

He told his offer on "Issues and Answers," an ABC television interview program. Later Perot said he wished

Laird Concerned Over Cut In Cash for Vietnamization

By BOB HORTON AP Military Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird is described by aides as concerned that a congressional limit on spending for the Vietnamization program could slow U.S. troop withdrawals from the war.

The money restriction, placed on the amount of military aid to South Vietnam, could not exceed $2.5 billion in one year.

That came close to crippling the current rate of spending for Vietnamization, $2.2 billion annually.

According to aides, Laird fears sentiment against big U.S. commitments overseas could lead to a similar restriction on military aid in the fiscal 1971 budget soon to go to Congress.

Laird has been explaining to congressional leaders that Asian allies may need larger amounts of military aid as the Nixon administration seeks to make them more self-reliant, aides said.

Laird argues it would not be fair to force Asian allies out of Vietnam without adequately preparing the South Vietnamese to fill the gap.

Among others, Laird has been in contact with Sen. John Sherman Cooper, author of last year's limiting amendment, about the situation.

Laird's concern over the $2.5 billion limitation also was reflected in congressional testimony last November.

The administration cannot accomplish its aid plan if the limitation is imposed, Laird said.

From our standpoint, not only is it important from the viewpoint of reducing the American commitment in personnel, but also, even taking into account the cost of the equipment and training, it is much cheaper for us in dollars to move in this direction.

Whatever the future, it would be in addition to the more than $20 billion budgeted for the overall war effort.

GIs Learn Stopping Sappers 'Is Tough'

By DAVID ROSENZWEIG Associated Press Writer DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — In the two World War sapper units were often a commando who slipped behind enemy lines and blew up bridges, buildings and railroads.

Vietnam has added new meaning to the word sapper attacks, as carried out by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, are aimed at inflicting dramatic human losses behind the barbed-wire defenses of the base camps, outposts and field defensive positions.

Many American commanders with field experience say these attacks by highly trained soldiers are the most difficult to defend against. Sometimes it is nearly impossible to do so.

Sapper attacks have been a basic strategy of many enemy units for 18 months. In place of the traditional sapper teams that occurred previously, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have used sappers to infiltrate and sabotage American battalions of regular troops.

At the same time, the Viet Cong has been using sappers to infiltrate and sabotage American battalions of regular troops.

Whatever the future, it would be in addition to the more than $20 billion budgeted for the overall war effort.

Laird said Sunday an announcement would be made in Saigon within two days identifying units to be pulled out of Vietnam under Presidential authority.

San Diego State's football team led the nation in total offense during 1969 with 41 touchdowns and a 531.1 yard average per game.

There was fierce, close-order combat, sometimes hand to hand, before the sappers were killed or driven back through the wire. At least 10 bodies were found inside or on the wire, and 18 others outside LZ Ross after the fighting ended.

But by the standards of the North Vietnamese, who have lost more than 200 men in single attacks of similar nature—the 13 Americans killed and 43 wounded during the battle—were considered a victory. This was the most Americans killed in a single assault in almost two months.

On 'Dress Rehearsal' Flight Jumbo Jet Sets Record In Mass Transportation

LONDON (AP) — Pan American Airways' Boeing 747 Jumbo jet airliner touched down safely at Heathrow Airport today, launching a new era in the mass moving of the world's restless millions.

The Jumbo carried 361 non-paying passengers and 19 crewmen, the largest number of persons ever to cross the Atlantic in one flight, as a dress rehearsal for the first regularly scheduled commercial flight between New York and London Jan. 21.

The touch down was late because of a three-hour delay in New York due to the traffic jam at Kennedy International Airport and "heavy paperwork," said Tom Flannigan, Pan American vice president for operations who replaced Sunday, but Flannigan said this did not detract from the flight.

"It was marvelous, the smoothest flight we have had," said Mr. and Mrs. W. Wojcikowski of Totowa, N.J., the first passengers through Customs.

Tony Bennett Becomes Father Of Infant Girl

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Tony Bennett and a girl friend, former actress Sandy Grant, have become the parents of a six-month girl, Miss Grant said today.

Miss Grant, who is pregnant with the baby, Joanna, last Friday afternoon, said she couldn't tell about details like divorce because she just conceived on being a "typical mother."

She said she is "very sentimental," she said from her room at Beth Israel Hospital. "The baby is doing well and she's gorgeous."

Miss Grant, previously married and divorced, has no other children. Bennett, whose wife Patricia was suing him for divorce in New Jersey, has two teen-aged sons and was quoted as saying that he had always wanted a girl.

Dawson Aged Five Years, Straining Week for Hero

ON THE BOARD — Jan Stenerud Boots 46-Yard Field Goal in First Period for Chiefs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — He aged five years this week. You looked into his face and you knew it wasn't the same Len Dawson.

Those words tell better than any the strain that the Kansas City quarterback lived with last week before he went out Sunday in front of a sellout crowd of 80,000 and some 20 million television viewers and led the Chiefs to a stunning 24-7 Super Bowl victory over the heavily favored Minnesota Vikings.

For those words are the words of Johnny Robinson, Dawson's longtime friend and roommate who watched his buddy turn into a colt during the week after reports linked his name with the nationwide gambling probe.

"Whenever I looked at him it wasn't the relaxed, easy-going Len Dawson I saw," said Robinson. "He was tense, he wanted to be in solitude. It was a tremendous pressure week for him. It was bothering him."

Dawson thought both about the stories he saw in the newspapers every day following his admission that he had a "casual acquaintance" with a Detroit restaurateur arrested in connection with the gambling probe and he thought about his wife and two children.

"Lenny was more concerned about his wife and kids back in Kansas City than he was about Jacky Lee, the Chiefs' reserve quarterback. They were having to put up with Coach Hank Stram, something the two never do the night before a game. But that Dawson was having trouble remaining calm."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With the exception of New Orleans, the American Basketball Association's Western Division could meet in a telephone booth and still have a room for the Buccaneers.

The Los Angeles Stars' 103-98 victory Sunday night, their second straight following a six-game losing streak which dropped them into the division cellar, suggested that the team was within two games of each other.

It was Sunday night's only ABA game.

In the only NBA game played Sunday, Phoenix turned back Cincinnati 125-118.

Dramatic Chapter in Football History

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The telephone rang twice in the Kansas City Chiefs' locker room. The White House called, said the operator—and the result was a dramatic chapter in professional football history. It was like something out of fiction.

The principal character was Len Dawson, the Chiefs' veteran quarterback, half-tick, limping and a gimpy knee, tortured by news all week that he might be called in a nation-wide sports scandal probe.

"I just prayed to the Good Lord that I'd have the strength and courage to play a good game," Dawson said after leading the American Football League champions to an impressive 27 victory over the heavily favored Minnesota Vikings. "I appreciate it, Mr. President. But it wasn't me, sir, it was the whole team that did it."

The telephone calls were significant. Rumors have been flying about the head of the 24-year-old former Purdue football star questioned by pro football authorities in 1968 when three Kansas City gamblers were taken down off the betting board for some mysterious reason and who was listed only this week as one who might be questioned in the current gambling probe.

The President now virtually has given him a clean bill. "It may be assumed that the President has some close ties with the Justice Department, which provided his greatest thrill in the investigation."

As he understood, a heavy bandage was noticed binding Dawson's left knee because of an injury which forced him to miss six games during the season. His slender, 180-pound frame had bruises from head to foot.

"The world looks up to pro football players for courage," the President told Dawson. "We try to exemplify what is good in professional football. I was a brilliant performer, kept out of the locker room noise. I appreciate it, Mr. President. But it wasn't me, sir, it was the whole team that did it."

Vikings' Alan Page Got Caught Cheating Perfectly Executed TD Play

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Alan Page got caught cheating and the Minnesota Vikings got caught on the pro football field. It was a perfectly executed play, 5 1/2 minutes before intermission.

Mike Garrett squatted five yards up the middle to receive the pass, giving the Chiefs control of the game. Kansas City delivered a knockout blow to the end of the third quarter when Otis Taylor pulled in a short pass to penetrate inside their 40-yard line and rumbled 46 yards to score the last touchdown in the Chiefs' 27-7 victory over the Vikings for pro football's richest plum.

The biggest play was a touchdown run of Garrett, Minnesota Coach Bud Grant said. "When they ran the play, they ran it 100 percent of the time. They haven't passed from that yet, so we shouldn't have been surprised. Yet we were."

Chiefs Were No Joke Kapp's Wife Learned

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mrs. Joe Kapp, wife of the Minnesota Vikings quarterback, jokingly bought and sold the National Football League's Kansas City Chiefs on Bourbon Street the night before the 1970 Super Bowl.

Mrs. Kapp didn't realize the Chiefs wouldn't be a joke in Sunday's game.

And the Chiefs took a 23-7 victory in a fashion which had given the Kansas City Chiefs a 10-0 record in the NFL.

The Chiefs' defense held the Vikings to a 10-0 record in the NFL.

East Grapplers Square Record

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — East Catholic grapplers nipped Glastonbury 28-27, with a vigorous comeback Friday before the Springfield crowd. After the 197-pond match, East trailed, 28-27, including touchdowns by the North and South stars, battled to a 37-37 tie.

Bradshaw, named the most valuable player in the game, completed 17 of 31 yards for 287 yards, including touchdowns to the North and South stars, battled to a 37-37 tie.

Elaborate Halftime Show Short of Artistic Success

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The elaborate, expensively arranged halftime show in the Super Bowl Sunday proved something other than an artistic success.

The show, which featured a parade of floats, a band, and a variety of acts, was criticized for being too long and too elaborate.

Hoopsters Near Midseason Mark, Bobcats, East, Rams, MCC on Top

By DEAN YOST — Approaching the halfway point of the 1969-70 school year, basketball season only three teams remain above the 500 mark. This week East Catholic, the Eagles, and Coach Stan Ogroski, won eight in a row before Northwest Catholic ended their streak last Friday. East was forced to play without the services of injured Captain Tim Kearns.

Rockville, with a 6-6 mark, has dropped its last three games. At one time during the season, the Bobcats were 10-0. They have now won five consecutive wins.

Manchester Community College went over the 500 mark with a win over Hartford Tech last Thursday. MCC has been victorious in its last two outings.

On the losing end of the half-year point is Manchester High with a 0-4 record. The Knights are also 0-4 in CCLL play. Cheney Tech, like Manchester, High, also has a 0-4 record.

LA Open Crown To Billy Casper Standout On Track

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Now, I can go to work on second million," said Billy Casper, "I've worked for two years, I've got it all on the second million."

The placid, rock-steady veteran who went into him—a mild decline last year, has just defeated a disappointed 27-year-old in a sudden-death playoff for the $200,000 first prize in the $1 million Open golf tournament.

UConn Winner, Hrubala Stars

Hartford, Conn. (AP) — The University of Connecticut won the 1970 NCAA basketball championship, defeating UCLA 85-76 in the final game.

UConn's victory was a surprise, as they were considered underdogs.
