Bolton Finance Unit Will Select New Head

The Board of Finance will hold a special meeting tonight to select a new chairman. Paul Brown resigned last week for personal reasons and suggested William Riley to succeed him.

Riley, current vice-chairman, has been on the board since 1963 when he replaced Richard Bolton.

"What has happened to the board is that it has not participated in many of the major decisions in the past few years," Riley said.

"I would like to see the board become more active in the future," Riley said.

South Windsor GOP Picks Town Panel on Thursday

All local Republicans are invited to meet this Thursday in the Council Chambers of the Town Hall to elect a town chairperson for the 1970-72 biennium.

Present vice-chairman, Robert H. Gordon, said that the group, which will begin its term on April 20, has been increased from 45 to 60 members to allow more new and active party members to participate in current affairs.

You Should Know Dr. Donald J. Hennigan

Some 200 years ago, the "most stup of Pevsichman," Alexander Pope of the often barbed phrase, gave this advice in one of his more benevolent moments: "Be not the first by whom the new error, / Nor by whom the new truth, / First into the world is sent."

Listen to Superintendent of Schools Donald J. Hennigan long enough, travel with him through the figurative avenues of education, and you come away with the feeling that just about every one of his thoughts and actions is motivated by this concept.

Without minimizing the immediate and long-range impact of the school system, Hennigan maintains the role of the superintendent is that of a catalyst rather than a manager. He is the one who must see that the school system is functioning as a whole, and that it is meeting the needs of the community it serves.

Dr. Hennigan has been in the position of superintendent of schools in Connecticut, Colorado, and New York; principal in Colorado, and district principal in Connecticut. He has been superintendent of schools in Elmira, N. Y., for 10 years, and is currently superintendent of schools in Manchester, N.H.

Stolen Vial Of Moon Dust Found Intact

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A stolen vial of moon dust found intact in a mailbox by police officers off by an anonymous telephone caller. Dr. George Wetherill of the University of California at Los Angeles, to whom the sample was assigned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Monday the vial had not been tampered with.

Police gave the dust to a NASA representative Monday afternoon. The vial, containing 2.3 grams of dust—about half the weight of a nickel—was found Saturday in a mailbox with a chip of moon rock at a charity picnic in a department store.

Without minimizing the immediate and long-range impact of the school system, Hennigan maintains the role of the superintendent is that of a catalyst rather than a manager. He is the one who must see that the school system is functioning as a whole, and that it is meeting the needs of the community it serves.

Dr. Hennigan has been in the position of superintendent of schools in Connecticut, Colorado, and New York; principal in Colorado, and district principal in Connecticut. He has been superintendent of schools in Elmira, N. Y., for 10 years, and is currently superintendent of schools in Manchester, N.H.

Nixon Taps IBM Official As Ambassador to France

WASHINGTON — Arthur K. Watson, chairman of International Business Machines (IBM) International Development, is President Nixon's choice to succeed R. Bagnart Shriver as U.S. ambassador to France. The 61-year-old businessman, whose entire career has been in global marketing, heads IBM's International Development, a division of the company that is a skilled linguist. He has been decorated by nine countries, including France, which awarded him the Legion of Honor.

Watson has been mentioned as a possible ambassador to France since he was named to the position of IBM's international development director in 1964. He has been decorated by nine countries, including France, which awarded him the Legion of Honor.

Remedial Reading Teacher Approved by School Board

Many local youths are entering high school with severe deficiencies in reading skills and basic mathematics, Board of Education member Robert Eversole said Monday. He urged the school board to accept the proposal for a remedial reading program, which would provide instruction in reading and mathematics for students who are behind in school.

Eversole also suggested the appointment of a mathematics consultant and a teacher of musical instruction. The high school will acquire five additional instructors to aid in its activities. They will include a reading teacher, an English teacher, a mathematics teacher, a science instructor, and a social studies teacher.

The elementary school level four-and-a-half positions were approved. One teacher will function as a speech and hearing instructor. Another teacher will be assigned to the educable retarded. The middle school staff will be increased by six new positions. A physical education teacher will serve on a full-time basis where now three part-time teachers from various parts of the system are being used.

The board also approved the appointment of a female guidance counselor. The board will also approve the appointment of a woman in whom the board has confidence. The board will also approve the appointment of a woman in whom the board has confidence.

Bedroom Community Hurting Industrial Hopes

"People in general think of Bolton as a bedroom community," said Richard Higgins of the Housing Development Commission. He said that the growth of the bedroom community is hurting industrial hopes in the area, as many people are leaving the area in search of better housing and job opportunities.

Extending Principle Down, Not Up

The Supreme Court the other day, with its new Chief Justice Warren Burger joining Justices John Harlan and Potter Stewart in the dissent they used to maintain during the Warren court's rulings on the same subject, decided that the one-man-one-vote principle must be extended down to any level where people are being elected to serve any governmental functions—even, in the particular case at hand, election to the board of trustees for a junior college out in Kansas City.

The language of the decision went as follows: "We think the decision of the state to elect officials by popular vote is a strong enough indication that the choice is an important one... We therefore hold today that as a general rule, whenever a state or local government decides to select persons by popular election to perform governmental function, the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment requires that each qualified voter must be given an equal opportunity to participate in that election and that members of an elected body are chosen from separate districts, the districts be equally apportioned."

By this ruling, the bothersome business of trying to keep all kinds of election districts equal in voting strength has now been carried down to the lowest possible and least important level.

If the principle involved is right and sacred as a matter of fact, the Supreme Court has been believing for nearly 10 years now, there should not be any limitation to the area in which it is to be enforced, and there can, on that basis, be no quarrel with the Court's decision to extend it down to the very littlest election imaginable.

What should be pointed out, however, is that if the principle of one-man-one-vote as today's right deserves to be extended down to every littlest election, then it should also be extended upward.

Quite obviously, if principle is the thing, the one-man-one-vote principle should be extended upward, first, to the United States Senate, which is still allowed to get itself elected by a system now denied to any state or local official.

There has never, anywhere in the nation, been any example of violation of the one-man-one-vote principle any more glaring than that of the disproportion between two votes in the Senate for the state of Nevada, with a population of 285,000, and two votes for the state of New York, with a population of 16,762,000.

This nation's next glaring violation of the one-man-one-vote principle survives in our system for the most important election of all, that of the President. Every tabulation of electoral votes contains some instance of rape of the one-man-one-vote principle.

Our Supreme Court, for all its sealousness for its principle, and for all its willingness to extend the operation of the principle all the way down the political scale, has never, anywhere in the nation, even for a moment, the question of whether the same principle should not be applied to the election of the United States Senate and the President.

We happen to think the one-man-one-vote principle should not be applied at all to the election of the United States Senate and we wouldn't care to have it applied too strictly and too directly to the election of the President either. In fact, we find ourselves agreeing with Prof. Alexander Bickel of Yale Law School, who holds that some kind of "malapportionment" is what functions best for a democracy which has to maintain a variety and diversity of practices and institutions if it is to protect its minorities from too complete a rule by the majority.

In our opinion, Connecticut had better be balanced, more responsible, and more progressive government when it still retained, for its House of Representatives, the system of election Connecticut bequeathed to the United States Senate. In our opinion, pure principle, like some pure metals, doesn't always test out to be as tough and durable and serviceable as an alloy. The founding fathers of Connecticut had sense enough to start out with an alloy, which in turn became the mixture which made possible the federal union of the United States. We somehow doubt that the pursuit of pure principle down to the election of trustees for a junior college is going to produce a better educational institution for Kansas City.

Rockefeller's New Club

Over in New York State, Governor Rockefeller has just promised to send handsome blue "Saved By The Bell" bumper insignia to "drivers and passengers in motor vehicles who volunteer their accounts of how safety belts enabled them to avoid serious injuries."

Those who tell such experiences and receive such bumper insignia will be accorded membership in a "Saved By The Bell" club sponsored by the State Motor Vehicle Department.

We know better than to ask whether Governor Rockefeller will also supply any free bumper insignia to any driver or passenger who wants to claim that he has been injured or killed because of his or her use of a seat belt.

Indeed, we suppose that if anybody were to originate an "Injured By The Bell" club and distribute bumper insignia for it, Governor Rockefeller would soon have his Legislature passing a law forbidding such sabotage of official state safety policy.

Nevertheless, we suggest that, in these days when all kinds of remedies and laws are being passed and anti-seat belt measures and pills are proving to have had bonemerger effects in them somewhere, it may still be a little early to close the book on the seat belt and consider that we have reached a final determination that it is the perfect safety device.

Who Needs Them? The Association of American Railroads is worried about its popularity. Why should it be? It is a former advertiser to act as its spokesman in advertisements.

The railroad industry has reason to worry. While the nation's freight trains are indispensable carriers of the nation's goods, the industry has become ever further removed from the public consciousness. The reason is simple. By discouraging people from riding, the industry has made itself a powerful ally in the anti-railroad movement.

It is a kind of antipathy that has carried over from the rail and step-truck era to the modern motor bus and car. The probable outcome on the afternoon of Friday, Feb. 20, when O'Brien met for two hours with the U.S. House of Representatives in the downtown Washington office.

O'Brien returned to Humphrey what he had said before. He intended to maintain his lifelong prohibition against accepting a political salary. Instead, O'Brien planned to put his newly formed public relations firm in the hands of subsidiaries.

On the contrary, taxes at every level have made railroading a hard business. Beyond that, the industry has been organized labor so meekly over the years.

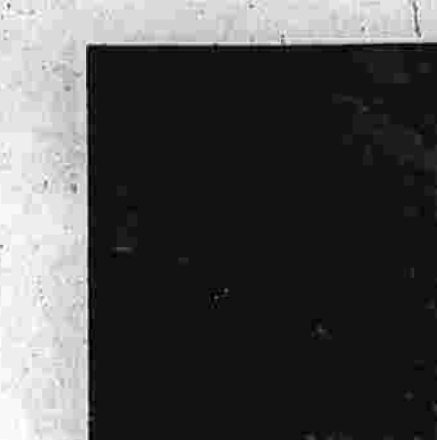

The one big break the train people received occurred when the nation was younger. In the 19th Century, the railroads were given, free and with practically no strings, vast tracts of land on which to build their roadsides. Tycoons O'Brien never had any of that.

But railroading in this country has in modern times appeared to be an industry with relatively little imagination. Aside from a few innovations, such as piggy-backing, in hauling freight, the rail companies have been content to milk their valuable routes and almost completely surround their passenger business as a hopeless economic nuisance.

Who they seemed to be saying, wants to bother with people, when, it is so much easier to stuff slatted cars with hogs?

The industry, nevertheless, owes something of a price to the public. It owes the public the opportunity to ride clean, comfortable, fast trains along scenic routes. Those scenic routes, after all, were donated to the rail companies free of charge by a public that expected to benefit from them in a personal way.

Now it appears that the best train left in America, the California Zephyr, is being gradually dismantled. Perhaps not for long will travelers be able to enjoy that admirable scenery through the Colorado Rockies and the California river canyons from behind a large window on a speeding train.

Inside Report

By Rowland Evans Jr. Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON—Contrary to hints from Humphrey last night, the shocking decision by Lawrence P. O'Brien not to become Democratic National Chairman had nothing to do with his finances and everything to do with disarray inside the party.

At the heart of the O'Brien story is petty animosity from many quarters and the ineptitude of Robert H. Humphrey as titular Democratic leader. All through the breadth of support for O'Brien to succeed Sen. Fred Harris as National Chairman was remarkable for a party so divided, the national committee members, governors, and members of Congress before asking O'Brien to serve. When Humphrey belatedly got around to this the weekend of Feb. 21-22, some responses were surprisingly cool—for example, Gov. Robert E. McNair of South Carolina. "I talk to McNair and he was less than enthusiastic, let me tell you," Humphrey informed.

Augmenting this problem was Humphrey's inexplicable failure to touch base with national committee members, governors, and members of Congress before asking O'Brien to serve. When Humphrey belatedly got around to this the weekend of Feb. 21-22, some responses were surprisingly cool—for example, Gov. Robert E. McNair of South Carolina. "I talk to McNair and he was less than enthusiastic, let me tell you," Humphrey informed.

Moreover, the O'Brien fiasco still makes sense. Humphrey's prestige and open wounds. Worse still, the oppressive national party debt looms more massive than ever. That scarcely seemed to matter to O'Brien, but quite understandable in the hands of a subordinate.

A Thought for Today

Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Nobody wants to be locked up, but nobody wants to be locked out, either. I guess, in order to have people around when I want them, I have to be around when they want me. I have to be tied down, and tethered, in order to be tied up and secure. As Jesus put it: "Whoever will lose his life for my sake and the Gospel's, the same shall save it."

What that means is that, although this is supposed to be the best year for the country since the primary in Connecticut, each primary is going to be limited to only two candidates, because there is no way to see to it that more than four come out of a convention. This is a limitation on the number of potential candidates in a primary. It is really going to hurt our idea of what ought to be the perfect primary for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate.

This primary, to be fair to the individuals eligible, fair to the party, and fair to the state, ought to have room for five candidates. These candidates should be, to list them in alphabetical order: Tom Dodd, the battle-worn incumbent; Ed Donahue, the refreshing outside challenger; Joe Duffey, the reformer.

Legislators Rap Penn Central On Hearing Rebuff

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three congressmen said Monday that the Penn Central Railroad indicates it "has no interest in providing modern standard of rail passenger service."

The interview took place in a tiny upstairs-backstage corner of the dressing room and the contention essential to the presentation order of dramatic effect. There were rows of perfect trousers caught up on their hangers, the poised empty wig, makeup, prop slipping from the things which spell involvement in the U.S. Congress.

They added that "by refusing to participate in the process by which these policies and programs are developed, Penn Central does a serious injustice to the public it serves."

"Continued refusal to participate in the mass transit hearings can only be interpreted as further proof that Penn Central really has no interest in providing a modern standard of rail passenger service."

From Night to Night She said that audience duty is not so much from city to city.

Connecticut Yankee

By A.H.O.

Connecticut's new shaped itself up to the point where certain mathematical calculations are beginning to disturb us.

What worries us, may damn us, is the limited number of 20 per cent seats which can exist inside the fixed number of delegates to a political convention, be it a state convention or a congressional district convention.

Speaking in terms of pure mathematical theory, one could find 20 per cent five times in any whole number of delegates. But speaking in terms of the actual voting of human delegates in a convention, it would create a practical impossibility to make such a perfect division of delegates to a convention that would create a practical impossibility to make such a perfect division of delegates to a convention.

What that means is that, although this is supposed to be the best year for the country since the primary in Connecticut, each primary is going to be limited to only two candidates, because there is no way to see to it that more than four come out of a convention. Cub Scout Pack Issues Awards During Banquet

A record number of awards was presented to local scouts at a Blue and Gold Banquet of South Windsor Cub Scout Pack 184, held recently.

Wolf badges were presented to Scott Kelly, Gary Rose and Michael Finnegan. Best Scouts were awarded to Paul Collis, Bobby Colangelo, Alan Adams, Kenneth See, Bill Clifford, Bruce Henning, Thomas Rossley and James Waddock. Paul Blenzer, David Schroeder, Matthew Dale, and Bill Clifford received gold arrows while Scott Owan and David Gohbers were awarded silver arrows.

Bernie Ritel, Kenneth See, Mark Zolnia, and Bill Clifford were presented with membership of the local Webelos unit. Webelos activity awards were also presented. Among the winners were Tim Martin, geologist; Scott Wamsel, sportsman; and crafting award to Gough, athlete; Matthew Gough, engineer and craftsman; Brian Dutton, artist; Steven Wood, outdoorsman and naturalist; Steven Waddock, outdoorsman, aquanaut, artist, and showman; John Rosaley, showman; Jerry Ferguson, outdoorsman; and Matthew Dale, outdoorsman, athlete, and Michael Lattiverie, outdoorsman and naturalist.

Commendation awards were given to Jay Walt, Gary Rose, Thomas Rosaley, Roger Durand and Matthew Gough. Best Webelos Scout award was given to David Schroeder, Bernie Ritel, David Gohbers and Steven Wood.

Boy Scout Richard Hordfield of South Windsor presented the award for the best Webelos Scout award to David Schroeder, Bernie Ritel, David Gohbers and Steven Wood.

One-year service stars were received by Matthew Dale, Frank Kirk, Billy Young, John Kirkpatrick and John Rose. Two-year service stars went to Mrs. Ann Collins and Mrs. Maureen Martin. Eddie Zak was awarded his three-year service star.

Billy Collins received his Den Chief award for his help in Webelos activities. Chairman of the Highland District, Bernard Shaw, spoke at the gathering. Assistant District Commissioner Fred Schmitt, also speaking, stressed the importance of scouting in character building.

Each a primary, with these five entrants would be our idea of how to give the Democratic party members of Connecticut a free and open choice of their next nominee for the Senate.

Yet only four of these can possibly get into the running. It and it might take considerable conscious juggling of the delegates to the Democratic State Convention to see that one of four of them came out with at least 20 per cent of the convention vote.

Our own fanciful solution would be to persuade one to withdraw from the race on condition that the other four agree that, after one of the remaining four has received 20 per cent of the convention vote, the remaining 76 per cent be split equally among the remaining three.

But somehow we think we would have difficulty trying to sell any such bargain to the prospective five.

The fewer the merrier, in their book.

Legislators Rap Penn Central On Hearing Rebuff

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three congressmen said Monday that the Penn Central Railroad indicates it "has no interest in providing modern standard of rail passenger service."

The interview took place in a tiny upstairs-backstage corner of the dressing room and the contention essential to the presentation order of dramatic effect. There were rows of perfect trousers caught up on their hangers, the poised empty wig, makeup, prop slipping from the things which spell involvement in the U.S. Congress.

They added that "by refusing to participate in the process by which these policies and programs are developed, Penn Central does a serious injustice to the public it serves."

"Continued refusal to participate in the mass transit hearings can only be interpreted as further proof that Penn Central really has no interest in providing a modern standard of rail passenger service."

From Night to Night She said that audience duty is not so much from city to city.

To Katherine Houghton, Audience Is Special

By JUNE LINTON (Herald Reporter)

The subject, one felt, could have taken off in any direction and would have been fun and exciting for Katherine Houghton and her audience.

Nantucket Is Ringside Seat For Viewing Total Eclipse

By exploded and fully developed black and white photograph of $10 telescope into the back yard.

The observatory says do not look at the sun with the naked eye or with any of the following: telescope, sunglasses, binoculars, viewfinders on camera which occurs only once in the lifetime of most people—a total eclipse of the sun.

Most of New England will see a partial eclipse—ranging from 8.5 per cent totality in Provincetown, Mass., to 90 per cent in Montpelier, Vt.—but only Nantucket and a practically inaccessible strip of sand off Chatham called Monomoy Point will see totality.

An eclipse occurs when the moon comes between the earth and the sun, blocking vision of the sun.

Anyone directly in the path of the sun and moon sees a total eclipse. The maximum point of the eclipse will be at Nantucket, the path of totality will extend from the Pacific area northeastward through Mexico and the Carolinas and on to Nantucket.
