Panty Hose, Chores Have Him Running

By NORM GOLDSTEIN Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Mister, when's the last time you put on a pair of panty hose?

I do it every day now. You see, the good wife broke an arm last week in a not-so-good fall while ice skating.

That means that among the womanly chores she cannot do for the next four-to-six weeks, until the cast comes off, is cook (anything that doesn't come out of a can and thank goodness for electric can openers, wash her back, cut her steak—and put on panty hose).

All these tasks now fall to me, who never was quite Mr. Manhattan Dexterly.

I never realized before, thankfully, what an ordeal it is simply to be a woman.

But now, I begin my day a bit earlier, leaving time after washing and dressing myself, to help her present herself to the morning world. For a man who has difficulty finding his face to shave every 4 a.m., helping a woman get into those lights at 1:30 a.m. is indeed a problem.

In all fairness, however, I am getting the knack of it and by heating time, I may be the fastest male panty-hose-dresser on the West Side.

In addition, I have finally learned—necessity, not mothers' invention, but education as well—how to light the oven. (For that matter, where it is.) To my unending surprise, it is really quite simple. And, wonder of wonders, I can now make a cup of real coffee. Quite good, if I say so myself. (Actually, we eat out a lot now.)

Yet, I long for that great cast-off day when I can return to my lazy ways and dry Martinis.

There is, however, one advantage I may truly miss after cast-off. You see, now she can't sign checks either.

Nation's Weather
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thunderstorms dumped heavy rain into portions of the Southeast today and triggered high winds and hail in scattered areas.

Nearly 3 inches of rain soaked New Orleans during the night. Two-inch downpours ranged eastward along the Gulf Coast.

A tornado dipped into the Alabama community of Chilton, 75 miles north of Mobile, Tuesday night and caused some property damage. No injuries were reported.

Isolated twisters touched down in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi through Tuesday. Damage generally was light and there were no reports of injuries.

Hail pelted sections of Missouri as the springlike storms rolled across the lower Mississippi Valley.

Temperatures continued unseasonably mild from the Gulf northward to the lower Great Lakes. Nighttime lows in the 50s and 60s were common.

Fog again blanketed a wide area from the upper Great Lakes through the central Appalachians. Further north, freezing rain slowed highway travel in upper Michigan.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 9 below zero at Out Bank, Mont., to 72 at Key West, Fla.

Actually she doesn't crow about her accomplishments even though she's gone from keypunch operator to company president in six short years.

"I've found the opportunities are there for anyone professionally competent enough to take advantage of them," she comments.

On Exhibit at MCC's Stairwell Gallery

"A Young Girl," a W. J. Patterson etching, will be displayed in the Lull-Patterson art exhibit which will open Friday night in the Manchester Community College Stairwell Gallery. The exhibit will be on display through April 1. Miss Ruth Lull is instructor in painting and art history at Our Lady of the Elms College in Chicopee, Mass. Patterson is instructor in graphic arts at the Hartford Art School. The sum will be financed by a transfer from the Sewer Reserve Fund.

The sum is for installing house laterals in the Hillside St. area. The installations now, while the sanitary-sewer system is being installed, would avoid the need for cutting the roadway later on.

In other financial business, the board approved transfers of $13,000 to the Highway Department to cover already committed costs for rental equipment, used for ice and snow control. The sum will come from the Engineering account, $7,000; the Assessors' account, $2,500; and the Street Lighting account, $3,500.

Town Manager Robert Weiss said last night that an additional sum for ice and snow control may be requested at a future date.

The $3,100 to the Town Council account will be transferred from the Treasurer's account. It is for providing funds for the raised road last month for the town council and the assistant town council.

Director Anthony Pietroniro obtained from the vote on the $1,100 transfer, on the basis that he was not present when the vote was taken for the raises.

The board allocated $2,000 from the Capital Reserve Improvement Fund for improvements at the machine structures in the Robertson School storm-drainage system.

The sum is for constructing two hatchway-type doors over the site of a large potato, came from Alba, in Piedmont, Italy. They are for providing the routine maintenance of the storm sewer there, the scene of a flood on Feb. 2.

The board approved a $7,000 claim settlement to the estate of the late Thomas Toomey of 24 Park St. Town Councilman John Shea, who recommended the settlement, explained that Mr. Toomey suffered a serious injury to his hip, when he fell Feb. 19, 1969 on a slippery E. Center St. sidewalk. Mr. Toomey died last December.

Several Financial Issues Approved by Town Board

Three additional appropriations to current budget funds were approved by the Manchester Board of Directors last night.

The first, for $15,000, is to the Welfare Department. It will be financed by an $11,500 state grant and by a $3,500 transfer from the 1969-70 General Fund unallocated surplus.

The town pays for local welfare cases until the persons are placed on the state's welfare rolls. The state then reimburses the town in the amount of 100 per cent of the cost, for welfare cases more than 30 days on the rolls, and 75 per cent for those less than 30 days on the rolls.

The increased cost for welfare are because of inflation, higher rents, and more persons on the rolls.

The second appropriation, for $4,840, is to the Board of Education, for a one-to-one tutorial program at filling Junior High School. The sum will be financed by an equal state grant. The program is for 30 of those living in the present house to the north of the school, and who are potential dropouts.

The third appropriation, for $2,000, is to the Sewer Fund. It will be financed by a transfer from the Sewer Reserve Fund.

The sum is for installing house laterals in the Hillside St. area. The installations now, while the sanitary-sewer system is being installed, would avoid the need for cutting the roadway later on.

In Public-Private Memo Moynihan Says He Regrets Using Term 'Benign Neglect'

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House adviser Daniel P. Moynihan, angered over the leak of a private memo to the President, says he regrets using the phrase "benign neglect" to describe his plan to reduce public discussion of racial issues.

The chief White House expert on urban affairs told reporters Monday his choice of words to describe his plan was "doubtless to my regret."

Negro and civil rights leaders sharply criticized the plan after it became public over the weekend.

Moynihan, who said the memo was strictly a private communication to the President, hinted the document may have been stolen.

"I wish people didn't have to feel the only thing that was important was what they could steal, but that sometimes is what people think."

Moynihan, whose earlier writing on black family structure drew heavy criticism from many blacks, said in the memo "the time may have come when the issue of race could benefit from a period of benign neglect."

"The subject has been too much talked about. The forum has been too much taken over by hysteria, paranoia and boodlers on all sides. We may need a period in which Negro progress continues and racial rhetoric fades."

"The administration can help bring this about by paying close attention to such progress—as we are now doing—while seeking to avoid situations in which extremists of either race are given opportunities for martyrdom, heroics, histrionics or racial issues."

A spokesman for Urban League Executive William M. Young Jr. said: "Moynihan's memo is one more example of a systematic effort on both the federal and state levels to wipe out all of the gains made in the 1960s and 1969."

Rep. Louis Stokes, a Negro congressman from Ohio, said "what we are confronted with is the continued ineptness which flows from white people relying on white people to advise them on the affairs of the black people."

He said such a policy would have a "devastating" effect on race relations.

Moynihan, however, told reporters that he has detected a marked increase in harsh racial rhetoric from extremists on both the left and right.

He warned that this was the "most thing needed" when it was vital to maintain gains that Negroes have made.

"If we let it happen again," he said, "well, damn it, there's something wrong with it."

The decade of the 1960s was the period of greatest advances for Negroes in American history, he said.

Suggested Ban on Pesticide Pigeonholed in HEW Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Food and Drug Administration recommendation backing up an earlier White House directive to ban a pesticide linked to birth defects in mice and rats is pigeonholed in the office of health, education and welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch.

The FDA memorandum written late last December would precipitate cancellation of government registration of the pesticide 2,4,5-T.

Aides to the secretary contend the recommendation from FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards is based on now-outdated information and is invalid because the manufacturer's request that prompted it has been withdrawn.

White House science adviser Lee A. DuBridge Oct. 29 directed the Department of Agriculture to ban the chemical by Jan. 1 unless the FDA had in the meantime established a safe residue level on foods.

DuBridge acted in response to a government-contracted study that linked feeding of the chemical to birth defects in laboratory rats and mice.

Other reports blame heavy use of 2,4,5-T as a defoliant in South Vietnam for an epidemic of human miscarriages and birth defects.

DuBridge's order has not been carried out, the Agriculture Department says, because the FDA and HEW have failed to forward any recommendation on safe residue levels for 2,4,5-T in foods.

For their part, aides to Finch say no recommendation is possible until further laboratory investigations are completed. They complain DuBridge overstepped his authority and knowledge in setting the Jan. 2 deadline.

The additional investigations were prompted, according to an FDA fact sheet, by the finding of significant amounts of an impurity called dioxin in the 2,4,5-T that caused birth defects in the laboratory animals. The impurity must be ruled out as the cause of the birth defects.

But some restrictive FDA officials argue Finch should act against the defoliant on the basis of present doubt alone.

"It's the same old game of inaction until proven guilty," said one official. "The manufacturer should have to prove the stuff safe to continue selling it, not the government prove it guilty in order to withdraw it."

Further, Finch is under heavy pressure from the manufacturers of the chemical to establish a safe food level, department

Washington State: Strong Steps Taken To Curb Pollution

BY STEPHEN KENT
Associated Press Writer

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — The environmental laws that close a loophole in an otherwise lax nation's industrial waste strict antipollution act. The trial centers are creeping up on states will not have to prove they have the Evergreen State of Washington. The state legislature in order to assess the law, and the state legislature carrier or owner of oil for clean has taken strong preventive action.

The act came as plans are under special session which ended late to bring oil from Alaska's North last month, environmentalists Slope fields to Washington for argued time was running out for refining. The breaking up of one of these giant vessels could command miles of forest.

To the east, snow-clad 14,410-foot Mt. Rainier stood above a haze of smog. To the south, workers were building a power plant which will burn 10,000 tons of coal per day. To the west, investigators studied oil slicks on Puget Sound.

Previously, several agencies had no official basis for action. The council includes directors of the state's major agencies. When he cleared his desk last week, he had drafted a bill to be passed by the legislature.

Under the previous law, it had to be proven a specific discharge was responsible for pollution before it could be regulated. This had been one of the main blocks in the 10-year permit program for the Puget Sound area. The state legislature also acted to hasten enforcement of pollution control laws. It required superior courts to hear cases within 90 days.

The legislature centralized environmental control by the State Supreme Court. Ecology and a council to approve proposed locations of industries. Inflation, Remedies Cripple Housing Industry Seriously

BY JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Attended by social consequences that could sour the spirit of the country for years to come. The United States steadily falls behind its goal of 2.6 million housing units a year.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 set the stage for inflation and the battle against inflation are shorting it. Money is being drained from the housing market to mortgage investments elsewhere.

In January, the annual rate of housing starts dropped to 1,118,000 units. More ominous, the insurance rate of building permits nosedived, indicating that the number of starts will drop even lower in coming months.

The nature of housing is changing also. Much of the present construction is more expensive. Individual house construction is becoming less common. And hundreds of thousands are turning to mobile homes.

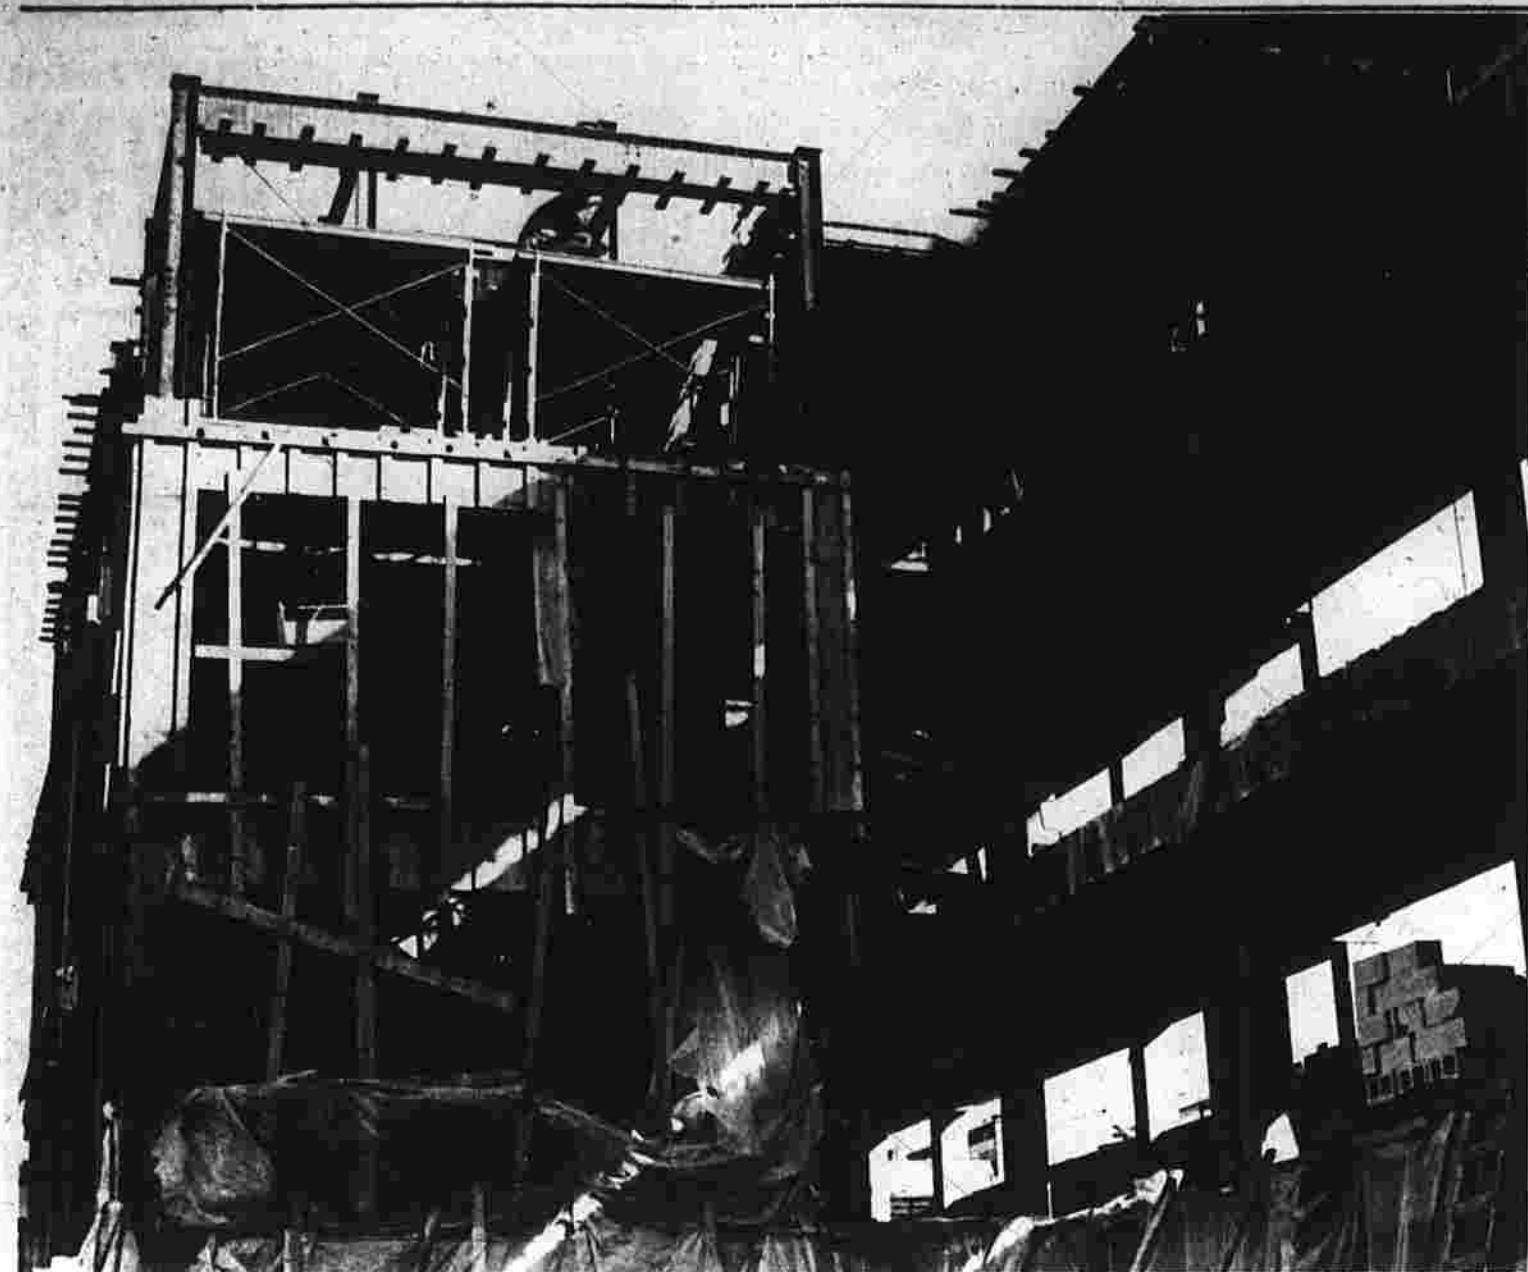

No matter what is done now to change the rapidly eroding housing industry, it never again will be the same. In order to maintain its skills, any industry must offer work to its members. Jobs are plentiful in most private housing industry. It is a failure of national policy and of the financial machinery of the industry, therefore, that may leave for good. And the same may be said for many other industries.

As a consequence, the housing of the future is increasingly going to be made at the expense of large companies that can take advantage of automation, and which can offer steady employment to workers.

Although it is not official economic policy to damage the housing industry as it exists, it is an almost inevitable consequence of such policy. Government officials from the present down concede this. Why, then, do they permit it? A lot of people are asking that question every day, including the 21,000 members of the National Association of Home Builders.

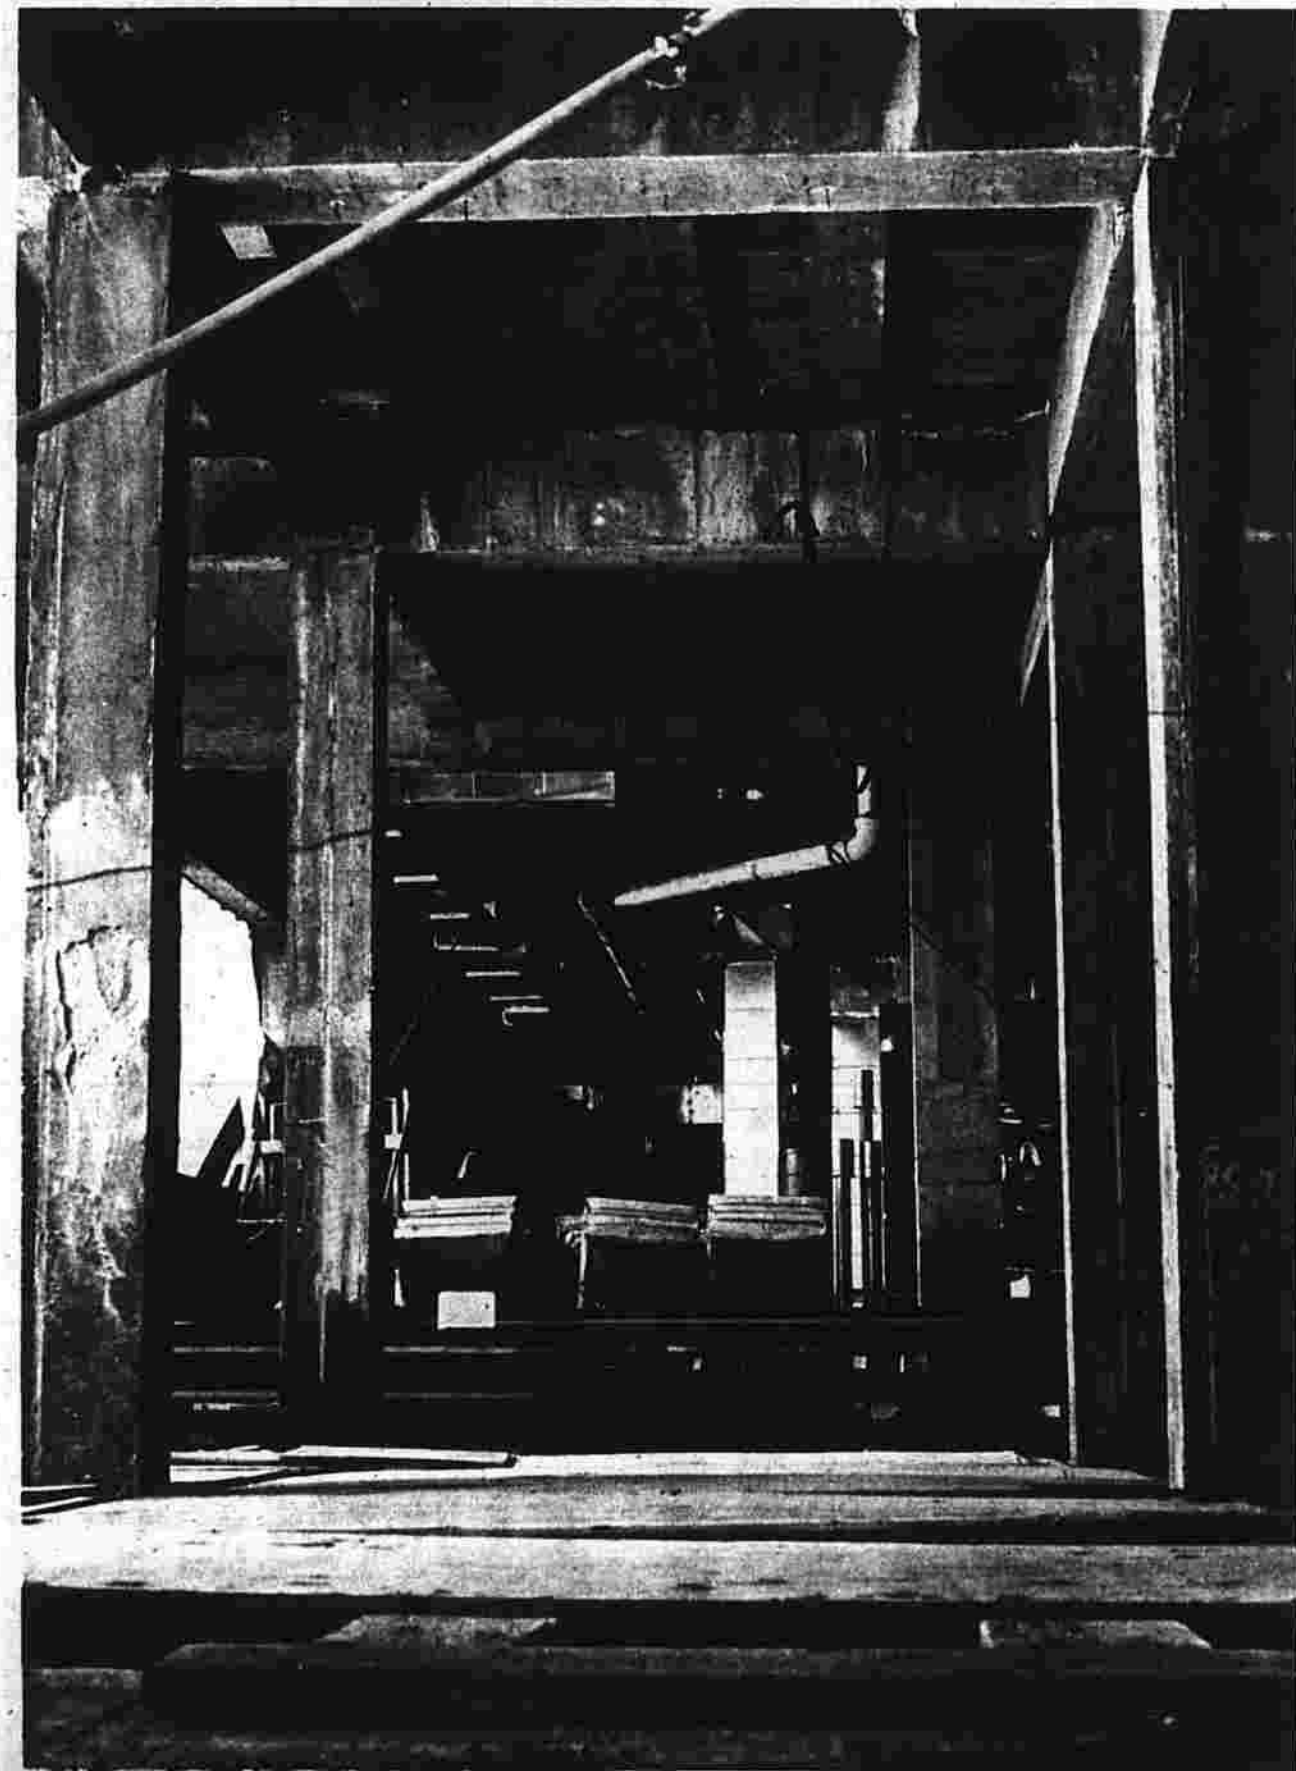

Testifying before a congressional committee last month, NAHB president Louis R. Barbo stated: "It is almost beyond belief that we can allow an industry that has proven to be a great national resource to be crippled so seriously."

The conventional explanation is that the economy must be fed and has a wingspan of brought back into balance 150 feet.

At the left are the elevator shafts; to the right the three-tier passageway to the old building.

A Hospital Is Costly

Story by Terry D'Italia

Manchester Memorial Hospital's new wing is costing an average of $56 to $60 a square foot to build, according to Jack E. Hunter, chairman of the hospital building committee and president of Jack E. Hunter Inc.

Recently, Hunter took the time to go over the photographs on these pages to try to explain why a hospital costs so much to build. "Half the cost is in heating, plumbing, and air conditioning. The whole building is going to be air-conditioned, you know," he said.

He pointed out special concrete-enclosed steel beams, steel instead of wood wall studding, vast intertwining networks of pipes and ducts, and many other items that make a hospital so expensive.

In contrast to the $60 per square foot cost of a hospital, a comfortable home can be built for $25 a square foot, and a recently completed school in the area was built for $33 a square foot.

There are many reasons why a hospital costs almost twice as much as a school. Vast mazes of pipes to carry oxygen, suction gas and other things needed in hospitals, as well as water, air conditioning, and fresh air ducts, have to be sandwiched between floors. The space these pipes and ducts take up is lost.

Another reason hospitals cost more is more expensive construction techniques are required to meet the tougher fire standards in hospitals.

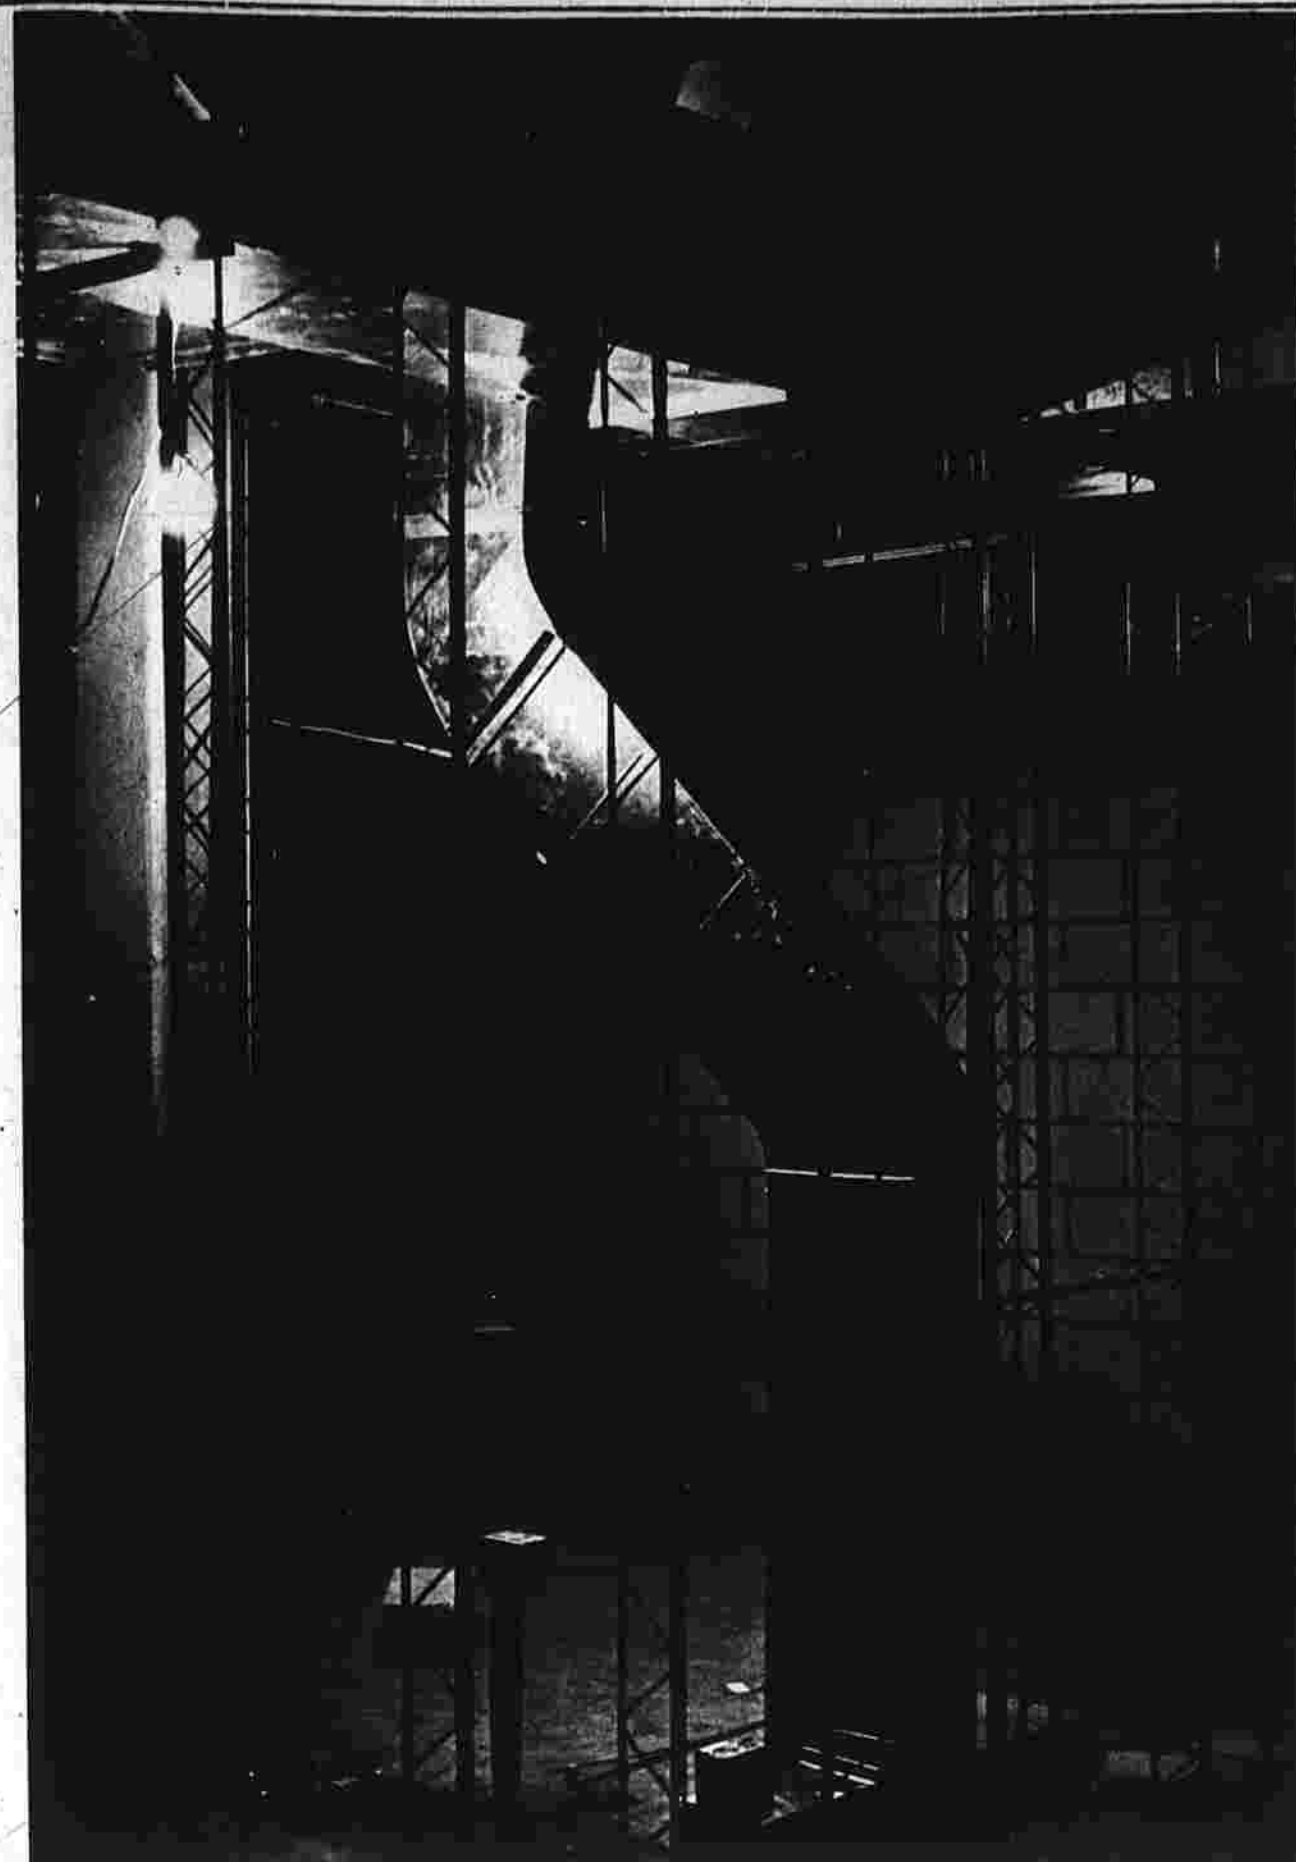

"Everything has to be fire proof or fire resistant," Hunter said. "We have to use steel wall studding instead of wood, and we have to box in with concrete all the steel beams and columns to meet the two-hour fire rating required."

The sloping passageway to the present north wing. One of the steel columns is still to be boxed in concrete.

A fresh air duct angles upward behind steel wall studding. Wood studding is not used in hospitals.

Other items that add to the cost are valves costing $300 each, emergency generators, fresh air systems, and more.

Plans for the new wing were publicly announced July 9, 1968. The front-page headline in The Herald read: "Hospital To Build $4 Million Wing," but soon after, much to their dismay, the members of the board of trustees learned that the wing was going to cost $5.15 million. The increase was attributed to the rapidly rising construction and equipment costs. "The project was on the drawing boards for more than a year during which costs rose faster than expected," one hospital official said.

The primary purpose of the new wing is not to increase the number of beds; there will be only 34 more beds. New facilities including seven operating rooms, a completely new radiology department, new emergency room facilities, and a new central sterile supply area will be added.

The bed increase will include three new intensive care units including one five-bed coronary care unit plus 22 intermediate care beds in 11 rooms.

The contract was signed with the prime contractor, Standard Builders, Inc. of Hartford, on Nov. 26, 1968. Hunter said that construction is about 62 per cent complete. He estimated that the building would be finished in January 1971. Originally the board of trustees had hoped to open the new wing nearer to the hospital's anniversary in November, but because of some setbacks, including the iron and steelworker's strike last summer, that date doesn't seem to be possible to meet.

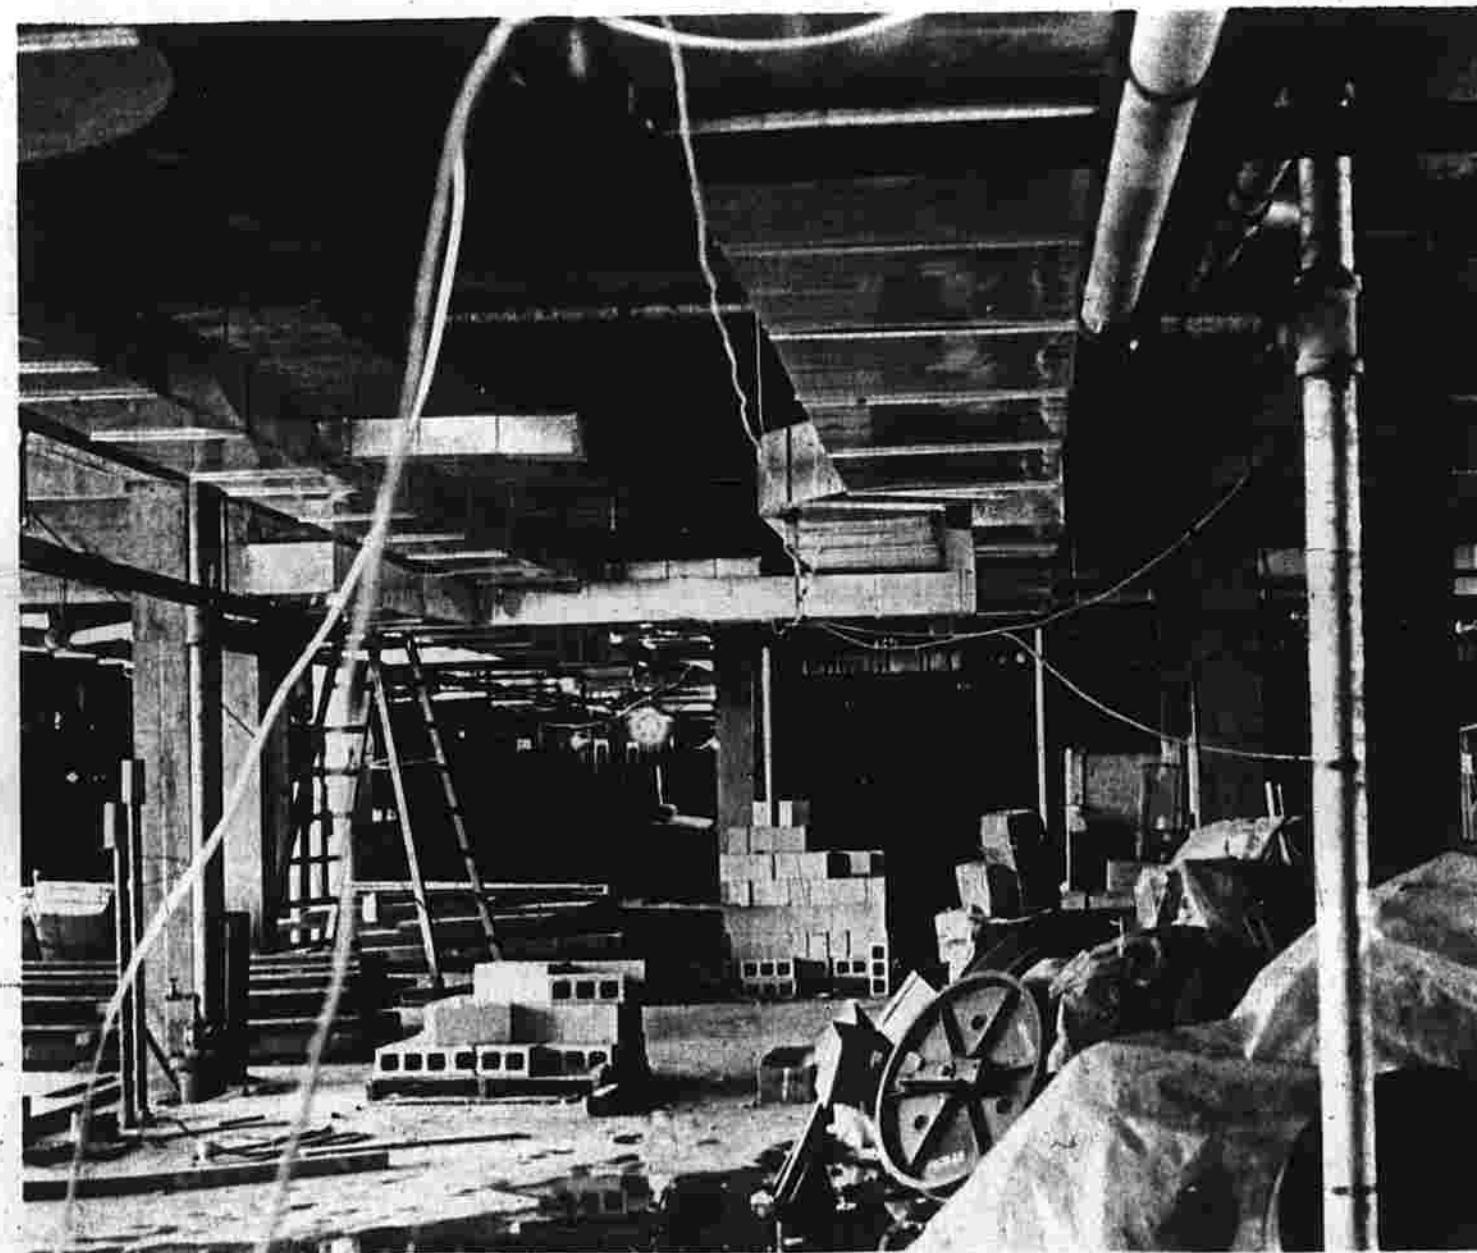

The architects for the wing are Frid, Ferguson, Mahaffey and Perry of Hartford.

A basement corridor in the wing shows the many pipes and ducts that the ceiling will conceal.

A plumber's nightmare? Maybe. Each valve costs about $300. The air conditioner will be here.

← Cement blocks wait to be formed into walls on the first floor. The ceiling is hung below the pipes and ducts.

O'Brien Demanded Mandate To Resume Chairmanship

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Law, the Democratic Party's premier professional of the Democratic party, is headed for a return to the party's leadership as a full-time chairman, not a part-time one, as he has fashioned during more than 30 years in politics.

His credentials as a political leader made him the virtually indispensable man to a party in desperate need of management — and money.

But without a party mandate, he was not available. And he clearly saw none in Hubert H. Humphrey's original invitation to resume the chairmanship he left nearly 14 months ago.

Not until a cross-section of party leaders voted unanimously to ask him back did O'Brien reverse his earlier refusal and agree to return to the job.

The Democratic National Committee expected O'Brien to agree to a mandate to resume the chairmanship of the party, but he was not willing to accept that role. He said he would accept a mandate to lead the party, but not to resume the chairmanship.

O'Brien, 62, was named chairman of the party in 1956. He served as chairman until 1968, when he was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives. He returned to the party in 1969.

Quinnipiac Student Strike Continues; Talks Resume

HAMDEN, Conn. (AP) — Mark Farber, president of the striking students at Quinnipiac college resumed talks today with trustees, teachers and administrators as a boycott of classes entered its second day.

On Tuesday night, between 200 and 300 of the students began a "sleep-in" at a college administration building after a meeting of the four groups broke up for the night.

When the meeting recessed, college officials said agreement had been reached on two points, and students claimed agreement on more. Just how close the boycott to settlement was not clear, however.

The group had occupied the combination library and administration building earlier Tuesday, and at times there were 500 or 600 students in it. A college official described them as noisy but non-violent, and police said they hadn't been hurt.

The occupation and a mass meeting signaled the start of a boycott of classes, and at least 15 teachers signed a statement supporting the students. Several teachers wrote "no classes" on their blackboards, giving tangible support to the boycott.

The principal issue in the boycott, according to a spokesman on the campus, is what they say is a plan to raise tuition by between $10 and $20.

The students say tuition was raised once already in the last year.

The leaders of the boycott presented a list of 10 points to the trustees, giving voice also to a broader range of student demands.

When the meeting recessed at 11 p.m., a spokesman for college president John Herder announced that the board of trustees had agreed in principle to student proposals that five dollars be taken off the tuition. The order will be filled at all times and the faculty members be seated on the board of the corporation's Board of Directors.

Scientists Recommend Quarantine Continued For Apollo 13

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because Apollo 13 will land on a different area of the moon next month, its three-man crew will have to endure 21-day quarantine like the men of Apollo 11 and 12.

The risk of back contamination is very low indeed, but the extent of hazard is potentially so great that many people are not willing to accept that small risk," said Dr. Alan Brown, a member of the American Academy of Sciences to assess the need for quarantine on Apollo 13.

The panel's report, which is being reviewed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, says that the quarantine recommendation should be continued.

British Build Skyscraper To House Royal Horses

By DAVID LANCASTER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The queen's horses didn't fit in the elevator, so they couldn't get to the officers' mess for after-dinner champagne.

That's only one problem in the building of London's latest skyscraper, the Royal Barracks for the queen's horses.

The building is a 10-story structure that will house the queen's horses and their attendants.

Trio Robs Trio In Australia's Largest Haul

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — All morning the three men in the Mayne-Nickless armored car made their rounds of banks in Sydney's western suburbs, collecting and delivering cash.

By lunchtime today they had $200,000 inside the car when they pulled into the parking lot behind the Commonwealth Bank's Gifford branch.

The trio—Cecil Burke, Jack Moon and Keith Scott—were inside the locked car. When the sandwiches were gone, one of them opened the door to get rid of the paper and leftovers. A masked man grabbed him and pushed him back into the van, and three men climbed in and closed the door behind them.

Pottinger Succeeds Panetta As HEW's Civil Rights Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has named a new chief of the Health, Education and Welfare Department's civil rights division.

Stanley Pottinger, a department lawyer in San Francisco, will succeed Leon E. Panetta, who was fired last week as HEW's civil rights chief.

Panetta said his dismissal resulted from the hard line he had taken on enforcing civil rights, particularly in school desegregation.

South Windsor Tax Hike of 3.86 Mills Seen Needed for School

A tax hike necessary for the proposed $2.8 million school would be at most 3.86 mills, Charles Lyons, a member of the local Public Building Commission, has said.

He translated this figure into a monthly cost of roughly $2 for a resident with property assessed at $15,000.

The mill increase forecast for the 1970-71 fiscal year, is significantly less than the 8.4 mills estimated would be needed if last year's state law for municipal aid were still in effect.

The last Assembly renovated the statute, easing financial burdens on municipalities, according to his figures, construction costs were rising steadily, having doubled since 1960 from $16 to $32 per square foot.

Under the old law, a state grant to the town would be subsidized nearly 90 per cent of construction and related costs. This amount would equal in value to the town's own contribution over a 20-year period, according to the sale of bonds by the town to pay for the school.

Under the old statute, the town is not eligible to receive a grant unless it has a millage rate of 10 or more.

Madden also said he believed Lyons' calculations. He said that a state grant of $2.8 million could not be allocated to the school because of current town commitments.

The last Assembly maintained the formula for school grants to towns. But a new statute introduced which allows municipalities to borrow from the state an amount equal to the amount in 20 years would be paid in 20 to 30 years at four per cent of the remaining balance.

William Riley Appointed Finance Board Chairman

At a special meeting last night the Board of Finance appointed William Riley as chairman of the Finance Board. Riley replaces Paul Brown who resigned for personal reasons last week.

Riley was the current vice-chairman. The board also appointed John Connelly, School Rd. to fill the vacancy left by Brown.

Both are Democrats.

In other business William Grunke, chairman of the Board of Education, said the education budget would be about a week late due to teaching or salary negotiations. The education budget is expected about March 20.

The board set a total budget for the current year for John Willauer. Willauer is the town assessor and building inspector.

John Midus, 35, of Norwalk, has been sentenced to 18 months in prison, by appealing his sentence. Bruno will be sentenced in U.S. District Court after a preliminary report is filed with the court.

Queen To Officiate At Airport Opening

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II will open Sydney's new international airport terminal May 3 at the end of her visit to Australia and New Zealand.

The terminal is costing $50 million, and Sen. Robert Cotton, minister for civil aviation, says there are few better in the world. It is at Kingsford Smith Airport, opposite the present terminal which grew bit by bit until it could not grow any more.

The new terminal has a floor area of 402,565 square feet, including a 1,400-foot concourse. There is parking for 2,000 cars.

American Airlines will soon become the 11th international line to use the facility.

Garside Accepts C-DAP Post Despite His Reservations

Former Town Director John Garside, who said in early 1969, "I am unequivocally opposed to C-DAP (Community Development Action Plan)," yesterday accepted appointment to the C-DAP Agency.

Garside, whose appointment by Town Manager Robert Weiss was confirmed last night by the Manchester Board of Directors, fills the vacancy created by the resignation of William Thornton. Both are Republicans.

The directors, last night, appointed Mrs. A. Hyatt Balluffe to the CAC, to succeed Richard Cobb, who had resigned. He tabled the appointment of a CAC replacement for Mrs. Phyllis Jackson, who too had resigned.

Richard Borden, director of administration, explained to the board that the current practice results in an estimated loss of $5,000 in taxes on the installment with the prime 1969-70 alumni fund campaign.

Borden also cited rising clerical costs, time consumption of re-billing and costs of reporting delinquent taxes to the Motor Vehicle Department which are reasons for enforcing the rule.

The suggestion to enforce the rule was made by Mrs. Sylvia

U.S. Fears New Satellite Control

ANAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — America's upcoming earth resources satellites will create adverse international reaction unless steps are taken now to head it off, a State Department official said today.

A major problem, he said, could be fear by other nations that the delicate sensors and cameras on the satellites will gather important data that their natural resources—data that they might not want disclosed.

Robert F. Packard, the State Department's director of space, atmospheric and marine sciences, said in a paper prepared for an Earth Resources conference in Washington, D.C., that he would like to see the satellites used for the program openly and invite maximum foreign participation.

The space agency plans to launch the first of a series of earth resources satellites in March 1972. They will survey the globe for mineral and oil deposits, air and water quality, urban growth, arable land, good fishing areas, forest fires and disease crops.

Packard said President Nixon has pledged the program will be dedicated to producing information not only for the United States, but for the world community.

"It is none too early to be thinking carefully about the international arrangements by which we will put this new capability to work," Packard said.

He said nations should band together to do with the world's resources and environment.

Unless cooperation is agreed upon in advance, Packard said, "There will surely be some adverse feeling abroad that reports from the satellites are being space intrudes upon national privacy and proprietary interests."

Women Demand Abortion Right In Legislature

BOSTON (AP) — There was shouting and a chanting demonstration, a guerrilla theater skit, heckling of speakers, bickering with legislators—and some effort at calm testimony.

It was a hearing Tuesday of the Legislative Committee on Social Welfare on a group of bills to repeal or ease Massachusetts laws against abortions.

Most of the disorder in the State House auditorium came from a core of about 200 women who said they were from the militant "Bread and Roses" group.

They had sat for nearly four hours as testimony plodded through a series of bills on abortion, and when their bills came up it did not take them long to begin their planned demonstration.

"Sisters," shouted one, as a group of women took over the speaker's stand. They demanded repeal of all abortion laws.

"Women must have control over their own bodies," yelled another. "In the name of the women who died, these laws must be changed."

The skit involved a "Dr. Pocke" who dressed as a purporting abortionist, and another girl who said, "It was the Massachusetts Legislature that raped me!"

The committee chairman, Sen. Beryl W. Cohen, D-Brookline, had recessed the hearing briefly, and members watched as the women paraded around the floor chanting "Women must have control over their own bodies," "doctors profit, women suffer" and "Join us, it's your fight, too."

Laos Needs U.S.: Phouma

ing a proposal—later adopted to bar American ground combat troops from being sent to either Laos or Thailand.

That was before the new wave of concern over U.S. involvement in Laos—concern triggered by a North Vietnamese offensive, reports of stepped up U.S. bombing there, and a clash between the administration and Fulbright's committee on relations with Laos.

Revealing the claim about the importance of Laos, Fulbright told the Senate that "it suggests an ominous and dangerous future for the United States if Laos is not brought back to remote country."

"If Vietnam was important enough to justify the commitment of half a million American troops," Fulbright went on, "it is in this view how serious could justifiably be committed to Laos, which is one of the few places worse than Vietnam to fight a war?"

He said the United States "may soon have to decide whether to go all the way in Laos—to make it another Vietnam, or to get out of it."

Fulbright's statement came after Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird categorically denied there has been a U.S. build-up in Laos in either civilian or military men.

Laird told newsmen at the same time that U.S. policy toward military support of the Laotian government is under continuing review. "Whether there will be a change of policy, I would not make any prediction," he said.

Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, the Senate's senior Republican and high ranking member of Fulbright's committee, said he doesn't share the fear of many senators that Laos will become another Vietnam.

It is such a thing happened, he said, "it would create such an upheaval in this country" that any good resulting from a firm stand would be quickly undermined.

Aiken said the shift in North Vietnamese attention to Laos is a sign of a gain sign because a little discouraged in the point of view of this country's purpose."

McGovern said, however, that "in spite of the painful lessons of Vietnam, we are going down the same road and another are doing it in secret." He said U.S. bombing strikes in Laos "are causing the deaths of thousands of the Laotians at their hearstives."

The committee chairman, Sen. Beryl W. Cohen, D-Brookline, had recessed the hearing briefly, and members watched as the women paraded around the floor chanting "Women must have control over their own bodies," "doctors profit, women suffer" and "Join us, it's your fight, too."

The committee chairman, Sen. Beryl W. Cohen, D-Brookline, had recessed the hearing briefly, and members watched as the women paraded around the floor chanting "Women must have control over their own bodies," "doctors profit, women suffer" and "Join us, it's your fight, too."

Women Demand Abortion Right In Legislature

BOSTON (AP) — There was shouting and a chanting demonstration, a guerrilla theater skit, heckling of speakers, bickering with legislators—and some effort at calm testimony.

It was a hearing Tuesday of the Legislative Committee on Social Welfare on a group of bills to repeal or ease Massachusetts laws against abortions.

Most of the disorder in the State House auditorium came from a core of about 200 women who said they were from the militant "Bread and Roses" group.

They had sat for nearly four hours as testimony plodded through a series of bills on abortion, and when their bills came up it did not take them long to begin their planned demonstration.

"Sisters," shouted one, as a group of women took over the speaker's stand. They demanded repeal of all abortion laws.

"Women must have control over their own bodies," yelled another. "In the name of the women who died, these laws must be changed."

The skit involved a "Dr. Pocke" who dressed as a purporting abortionist, and another girl who said, "It was the Massachusetts Legislature that raped me!"

Orient Express Travels Through Aura of Mystery

engers stayed on the train until they reached the steamer at Constantinople.

That route took 78 hours. Both were used until 1919. It now takes 56 hours 50 minutes, today if you want to enjoy the Oriental pilgrimages on the Orient Express and at the same time get the latest news and to change trains and stations at Vienna, Bratislava, which is now the end of the line.

The train leaves the Gare de l'Est at 22. If you have a night rest you can have a highly restful and excellent dinner before you have the train. The restaurant, which should be in the Guinness Book of Records as the most expensive restaurant in the world. While you are eating it, which takes hours, you can have your suit cleaned at the station in 30 minutes — if you have three done, one is free.

The next day a German dining-car that seems to run on velvet is attached to the train, although the Wagon-lits conductor is Austrian. In Vienna you have the eight hours to buy food and drink for the next two days, before catching the Balkan express from the Subalpine at 22.20. The wagon-lits are grumpy on this train; they are made of wood and appear to be tin and painted a sickly shade of blue.

The only nice thing about the Balkan Express was the conductor, an archetypal Wagon-lits man with a permanent six o'clock shadow and the contemplative air of a valet de chambre who has someone with uncertain tastes for a master, which Wagon-lits conductors often have.

He told me hair-raising stories about the route before the war, addressing me in English but calling me monster, which is real Agatha Christie. How in 1920 the train was snatched up by seven days in the Turkish highlands surrounded by wolves and how they burned the furnishings of the Wagon-lits to keep warm, and about the prostitutes you could telegraph down the line for and throw off the train in another country when you had had enough of them, just as long-distance lorry drivers do now.

Zagreb the following morning secret police will impound your film if you take pictures of them.

Keep an unexpended one to incident, train away.

Boy Burned to Death Playing With Matches

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Police say 12-year-old Alex Grady met his death in Keney Park while playing with matches and lighter fluid with two other boys.

Alex's half-burned body was found in the southeast corner of the park Sunday evening.

The two boys suspected of having a hand in the death were referred to juvenile authorities. Their names were withheld because of their ages.

The boys were playfully squirting each other with lighter fluid Saturday and one of them threw a flaming matchbook at Alex, setting his trousers afire, police said. The other two boys, frightened by the incident, ran away.

Book Review

THE "MARRIAGE OF A YOUNG STOCKBROKER." By Charles Webb, Lipscomb, 225 pp. $2.95.

In his own special area, he not only writes, he makes history. Here is the second novel that Webb has written since his popular "The Graduate" and "The Graduate's" subject is a very narrow aspect of marriage—the union of two neurotic characters who nag and needle each other endlessly. (Incidentally, but perhaps indicatively, the word "stockbroker" is misleading; the man is only an apprentice.) There is William the husband, who has had a few rough spots in his sexual life; and there is Lisa, the wife, whose childish temper tantrums are reflected in her temperament.

While they are on vacation, they spar and fuss until Lisa decides to run off to her sister Nan. This Nan is a booby battle-axe who tempests her faceless husband Chester (and that is a good name for him). The plot's only action is that William finally succeeds in getting Lisa away from Nan, for whatever future horrors may be imagined.

The main trouble with the characters is that they are utterly humorless. The main trouble with the dialogue is that it is equally without a sense of humor proportion, but it goes on endlessly, full of trivia and nitpicking.

Maybe for amateur psychologists and amateur marriage counselors this is what they call relevant material. But as a novel? Granted that it is possible to write a genuine novel about creepy people. But not this time. For at least one reader, and perhaps others interested in a story, this is a dreary, boring piece about some non-characters who very well could do with a clout across the chops. If Webb intended it that way, he has scored.

THIS PERFECT DAY. By Ira Levin. Random, $2.95.

Levin, whose most recent novel, "Rosemary's Baby," was a taut tale of modern day witchcraft, has a greatly different offering this time.

This book offers an Orwellian view of the future, in which the hero rebels against Big Brother. The time is the latter half of the second century following the unification of the nations, which seems to have taken place around 2000 A.D.

People are told not only what occupations they may follow; they are told whether they may marry or have children. Regularly they receive biochemical treatments which contain ingredients smothering any aggressiveness or initiative, and dulling joy and perception; also sexual depressants and tranquilizers. The whole civilization is regulated by a huge complex called UniComp.

The hero is LI REXM6419, who is different from most in owning a nickname—"Chip"—and who from childhood has had some qualms about the perfection of the system. He gets in with a handful of underground dissidents, and eventually this incident ends badly. But it leads to a bigger adventure by Chip. He discovers that in remote areas of the world there are colonies of tribes that never gave in to the master plan. Finally Chip leads a small band determined to destroy UniComp, and that effort ends with a double twist of the knife.

Levin has invented a highly complex, detailed image of a computer-run society in which man seems to have been mastered by the machine (except for the last few pages of the book). On the level of adventure the novel is imaginatively contrived, but perhaps too long.

Of course there is the aspect of social comment. On that level the central message is to emphasize the great difference between "freedom from..." and "freedom to do..."

Stamps In the News

St. Lucia

By SYD KRONISH AP Newsfeatures

A tropical island fast becoming one of the Caribbean's top tourist attractions, St. Lucia has issued a new definitive series of stamps illustrating many of the facets of the island. There are 14 stamps in the set, reports the Crown Agents Stamp Bureau. The 1-cent shows the House of Assembly, seat of government in St. Lucia. The 2-cent depicts the Roman Catholic Cathedral, chief place of worship on the island. The 4-cent illustrates the Boulevard Casernes, one of the main thoroughfares. The 5-cent, reveals Castries Harbour. The 6-cent features Sulphur Springs. The 10-cent shows Vigie Airport, the island's airfield and once the site of the first French settlement. The 12-cent illustrates Reduit Beach, 15-cent Piton Island, 25-cent "The Pitons" (two triangular peaks which have been landmarks to sailors for centuries), 35-cent Marigot Bay, 50-cent Diamond Waterfall. The 11 displays the St. Lucia flag in use since the assumption of associated statehood in 1967. The 25-cent bears the coat of arms. The 55 features a portrait of Queen Elizabeth II taken from a painting by M. A. C. Davidson-Houston, son of a former administrator of the island.

Postmaster General Winton M. Blount announced that there were $145,000 first day covers of the Moon Landing stamp canceled. This figure nearly tripled the previous high sale mark for covers. Blount noted that collectors, and non-collectors, from more than 100 countries had flooded the Washington, D.C. post office with requests which came in at the rate of 60,000 to 80,000 per day. Complaints became a deluge to the Post Office Department because of the delay in issuance. It took five months to complete the task.

To hail the 25th anniversary of Warsaw's liberation from the Nazi occupation, Poland has issued a new stamp, according to the Polish Post Office. The stamp depicts the Nike, a monument known as the symbol of the victorious capital of Poland which has been completely rebuilt since the destruction a quarter of a century ago. Also issued by Poland was a new stamp commemorating the centenary of the Printers' Trade Union. The union started in 1870 as a result of printers' strike in Lwow.

Switzerland has issued five new stamps so far this year. The stamps feature the following: 7th anniversary of the Swiss Telegraph Agency, Swiss Firemen Association, Pro Tempora Organization's 60th anniversary, 25th anniversary of the U.E., Opening of the new U.F.U. Building.

Topical stamp collectors—those who specialize in stamps of a specific theme or subject—will be delighted at one of the exhibits at "Stamp Expo '70" to be held at Anaheim, Calif., March 29-31. E. Bick, Executive Director of the International Society of Stamp Collectors, reports that there will be a display of art on stamps featuring the works of Rembrandt, Goya, Picasso, Van Gogh and other famous artists. Nearby will be a collection of religious stamps and one devoted to sports on stamps.

The Mystery At 10 Downing St.

LONDON (AP) — While workmen were redecorating No. 10 Downing Street, the official residence of Prime Minister Harold Wilson, they discovered a number of wax cylinders, the type used in early dictating machines. Believing the cylinders might contain historically valuable words of a prominent government figure, a hasty call went to the Dictaphone Corp. office for a dictating machine to unravel the mystery. After some effort, the company managed to locate a 1900 vintage machine. An executive of the office was dispatched to the prime minister's residence with the machine only to find that the mystery would remain a mystery. Some office secretary of the day had neatly erased all of the cylinders.
