School Board Gets Briefing On Teacher Aide Program

A video tape presentation of personnel and activities in the teacher aide program will be given at the Board of Education meeting tonight at 8 in the Bennett Junior High School Main Building.

The board cooperated this year in initiating the program at Bennett and Keeney St. School in conjunction with Manchester Community College, Jay Stager, education coordinator at Bennett and Keeney St. School; Mrs. Catharine R. Doremus, currently on leave of absence; Mrs. Mildred Tenney, second grade teacher at South School; and Mrs. Thomas C. Woodbridge, first grade teacher at Bentley School. Mrs. Chilton has taught in Manchester for 20 years, Mrs. Tenney for 10 years, and Mrs. Woodbridge for 38 years.

The board will act on four other resignations, a Sabbatical leave of absence, and three leaves of absence.

The board will act on requests for approval of two grants. One is for an additional grant of $2,000 for the period Feb. 16 to June 30, to employ three teacher aides who will be shared by first grade teachers at Lincoln, Robertson and Nathan Hale Schools. The board approved the original program on July 26, 1969.

The other request is for the establishment of a $2,100 wash-out account to provide supervisory work experience for mentally retarded students and determine how the school curriculum can be enriched to meet their vocational needs.

Under new business, the board will consider a policy dealing with drug abuse, as prepared by a committee.

Retirement resignations have been submitted by Mrs. Laurie M. Carlton, third grade teacher at Buckley School; Mrs. Catherine R. Doremus, currently on leave of absence; Mrs. Mildred Tenney, second grade teacher at South School; and Mrs. Thomas C. Woodbridge, first grade teacher at Bentley School. MFT Says School Board Not Acting in Good Faith

The Manchester Federation of Teachers (MFT) has raised its voice in the negotiations with the Board of Education and Manchester Education Association (MEA) bargaining between the board and MEA broke off following the March 3 meeting. Mediation procedures are now being instituted.

The MFT executive committee states it is "seriously investigating what it considers a deliberate pattern of procrastination and circumvention on the part of the Board of Education regarding current contract negotiations."

Beginning in 1968 and in each year since, the MFT statement says, the board's course has been one of "intentionally extending contract settlement beyond the budget deadline and into mediation and arbitration... and therefore is guilty, in a perfect of failing to negotiate in good faith with the Manchester teachers."

A spokesman for the MFT pointed out that in the past five years, the board has not presented teachers with contracts prior to the middle of June. The union also charges the board with "refusing to enter into binding negotiations with Manchester teachers, rejecting the compromise settlements of both mediators and arbitrators from the Connecticut State Department of Education, and ultimately exploiting the Manchester teachers by rigid adherence to this predetermined procedure."

If the board is not negotiating in good faith, the MFT concluded its statement by urging local teachers "to declare a state of impasse and promptly exercise the subsequent actions (mediation and arbitration) prerequisite to imposing sanctions on the town of Manchester."

Johnny's Ark

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Police men, hearing strange noises, peered in the back of a truck and saw Johnny Whittier, his wife and their pet:

Three 150-pound bears, a burro, a wallaby, an ocelot, a bobcat, three goats, two opossums, a monkey, three peacocks, 13 dogs, four cats, six pigeons, five doves, three rabbits, five guinea pigs, nine chickens, two geese, 18 quail, two desert turtles and a duck. All appeared healthy.

Whittier, 37, said he was a circus and carnival clown who uses the animals in his act.

Officers said the Whittier's had a bed and cooling equipment at one end of the trailer. The burro and the bears were in makeshift corrals at the other end, and the other animals were caged.

In six truckloads officials took the menagerie to the Orange County Animal Shelter, where the animals were housed on the trail from Dorchester, where they were arrested on warrants concerning ignored traffic tickets, then released.

"It's hard for people to understand," Whittier said. "My wife and I don't have any kids of our own, so we sort of loved our animals instead."

Associate of H. Rap Brown Killed When Car Explodes

BEL AIR, Md. (AP) — Two Negro men, one identified as an associate of militant H. Rap Brown and the other still unidentified, were killed when an explosion destroyed their car as it traveled on U.S. 1 south here.

Whether the second man was Brown, who is in trial here on arson and riot charges, had not been positively determined although a state medical examiner announced a tentative finding, based on photographs, that it was not Brown.

The second body apparently took the force of Monday night's blast. His hands had been found, but a state medical examiner announced a tentative finding, based on photographs, that it was not Brown.

A search for the hands was being conducted at the site of the blast.

Dr. Werner U. Spitz, deputy chief medical examiner of Maryland, issued the finding he described as tentative after examining the body at the Baltimore Morgue.

He said he was basing his opinion on the ear, nose and hairline of the victim.

Brown's whereabouts remained a mystery. His attorney for the trial here, William M. Kunstler, said he did not think Brown was the second victim but added that he did not know where Brown was.

Law enforcement officers said that he was in Bel Air Monday afternoon but his movements since then could not be traced immediately.

The other man was identified as Ralph Featherstone, 31, a former Brown associate of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

State Police Col. Thomas Smith said his investigators theorized the explosive was placed in the car by two men. He did not rule out the possibility that it was placed in the car by someone else.

A guard at Brown's New York City apartment house said Brown's wife and "four or five other people" left the building about 20 a.m. today and had not returned.

South Windsor School Football Plan Stirs Budget Hearing

Despite the insistence of board members that the budgeted money for high school football constitutes a minor amount in the proposed $5.6 million school budget, a number of citizens rose at last night's special budget hearing to speak on the subject.

Opponents—pro and con—were given by a number of the no taxpayer present at the hearing. Mildly vociferous crusaders for the sport as a variety activity referred to several factors in their arguments. One resident said that football was a sport which involved extensive student participation. According to him, nearly the entire student population, in the form of players, cheerleaders, managers, referees and spectators would reap the benefits of the program.

Other considerations: One resident said that football was a crucial area in the school program. One local resident felt the activity to be "an important part of the curriculum."

The board chairman also spoke on the school system's attitude in comparison to other towns. His figures showed the system to be close to the median for 34 areas municipally. According to a state report which presents an average of 17.2 pupils per "certified personnel," South Windsor maintains a relationship of 16.9 pupils per certified personnel.

Another topic discussed at the hearing was the implementation of a drug study program in the curriculum. Assistant Superintendent William Perry stated that preliminary investigation into the feasibility of such a program had already begun.

The elementary school French courses were also studied. Several citizens disapproved of the effectiveness of the program. Perry answered by remarking that the courses had been instituted after the PTA study which indicated popular approval of the idea.

A series of budget hearings will now take place within the next two weeks. The board will examine the budget which will be presented at a public hearing on March 16. The council will meet on March 19. The council will consider the budget which will be presented at a public hearing on March 23. The council will meet on March 26.

Speaks in Hartford Suburbs Must Aid Cities, Indianapolis Mayor Says

RHAM High School, which is not involved in school mergers, Lugar explained. He said that he has no disposition to accept a merger of civil government and schools. He predicted that, if it were brought to a vote in Indianapolis, it might lose by as much as three to one.

He said that "Union" is working beautifully, and that he can see "no flaws in it."

The results we already see are astronomical business and job openings. We have the framework for a workable system and, as long as we remain imaginative, it will continue to work.

Lugar posed the question, "Do we want to live together in domestic peace, or do we want to live in continual war?" He answered his own question. "Only cooperative efforts will be our salvation."

He said, "We are in a crisis of not only necessary services, but of spirit as well. Our cities are like swiss cheese and will become more so, unless the basic services are provided."

At one time or another, everyone has to get involved in the crime, and the suffering in our cities."

"However," he added, "if we have even a creeping faith in the human race, we feel compelled to do something about where the action is in life and where the suffering is."

"If the cities want to remain at war, and if the suburbs want to prolong that war," he said, "then it will require placing every disadvantaged person in a barred wire compound, with a police force around it, and except for strikes, we could live that way for a time. But, that's not the answer."

Lugar, 47, is being eyed by national Republican leaders as a possible candidate for future national office. He is credited with pushing legislation for Union through the Indiana State Legislature, almost single-handedly.

Last night, he said that regional, cooperative efforts regarding, basically, a hard-nosed, political approach — "a gutsy, no-nonsense approach."

In Indianapolis, he said, it was accomplished by electing the Republicans to local offices and to the State Legislature. After they were elected, he said, Care Facilities Planning Community discipline was maintained for Greater Hartford.

Teacher Aids Training Explained to School Board

Jay Stager, coordinator of the Teacher Aids Project (TAP) at Manchester Community College, a cooperative venture between the college and the Manchester school system, opened last night's Board of Education meeting with a 15-minute video presentation on aspects of the program in two schools during the first semester.

The presentation included interviews with aides, teachers with whom they worked, and an administrator; and shots of aides working in classrooms and preparing instructional materials.

TAP is funded this year by $2,700 grant from the State Department of Education under the Educational Professions Development Act. During the first semester, six MCC students enrolled in education courses completed 12 weeks of field work training.

Mrs. Helene Day, Mrs. Marjorie Chambers, and Mrs. Marjorie Leonard were in attendance. They are all first grade teachers at Lincoln School, which was the site of the first semester.

The board voted to request the Board of Directors to establish a $2,100 without account under Public Law 90-78 to provide a supervised work experience program for mentees and service the staff.

Approval was given to a return statement from Allan Chesterton, all funds for Manchester, to ask the directors to add a state grant of $3,625 to an existing low account for Project 77-2.

The grant will pay for three teacher aides to be shared by first grade teachers at Lincoln, and two at Nathan Hale School. For the year, approval, Chesterton said, carries with it a state promise to underwrite the cost of the aides throughout the next school year. He added that applicants have been outstanding, and teachers with whom the aides will work were involved in interviews.

The board adopted a statement of policy and procedures governing staff members where drug abuse is suspected or known within the school system since the first study system.

Academy Series Has 5 Vacancies

Registrations will be accepted tonight for "Genesis for the 20th Century," one of two courses in the spring semester of the Academy of Faith and Life. There are openings for five additional students in the class which meets Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 through April 3 at Hilling Junior High School.

Tax Returns To Soar

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department predicts that about 10 million more tax returns will be filed in 1970 than in 1969 and 40 million more — some 124 million, in all — in 1974 than in 1970.

Doctors at the U.S. Public Health Service's Communicable Disease Center have said the upsurge results from lowering of the nation's routine vaccination guard after the starting, but in complete ignorance of the disease's immunization programs.

But the disease detectives have had news about the epidemic outbreak: Progress is being made in a new war against German measles, a potential terror for pregnant women.

In contrast to the non-specific federal financial support of common measles vaccines, less than $2 million in federal funds was earmarked for German measles vaccination programs in fiscal 1970. The administration has proposed an additional $16 million for fiscal 1971.

Three officials of the CDC — Dr. James O. Mason, deputy director; Dr. F. Robert Freckleton, director of immunization programs; and Dr. Alfonso H. Gullin, director of state and community services — told of the latest developments in interviews here.

The yield the upsurge of common measles is a matter of concern because the disease can be a killer and crippler, with high economic costs to the nation. One of every 1,100 reported cases ends fatally. Another one in every 400 to 1,000 may show brain infection. And in one of every 15 cases, there are immediate, often serious complications of other types.

During the first 12 weeks of the 1969-70 measles "season" — beginning in mid-October of last year — there were 4,811 reported cases, a 72 per cent increase from the similar period a year earlier.

"The increased incidence," CDC doctors reported, "appeared to be a nationwide phenomenon and was not restricted to any one geographic area."

"The District of Columbia and 27 states showed increases over the comparable period (last year). Much, but not all, of the increase was due to outbreaks in poverty areas of large cities. Major outbreaks occurred in Bergen County, N.J.; Cleveland, Ohio; Chicago; several counties in eastern Nebraska; District of Columbia; Houston, Tex.; Phoenix, Ariz.; and Los Angeles."

Since last June, drawing on an emergency federal stockpile, CDC has rushed 120,000 doses of vaccine to some 60 communities — most of it in the last few months.

In the District of Columbia alone, more than 300 measles cases have been reported since Oct. 1. In contrast, there had not been a single case of measles reported in the capital in a 17-month period ending last August.

The upsurge in the capital became so serious — reaching 50 new cases a week during the week of Jan. 27 — that health officials held an emergency city-wide vaccination program, promoted by circulation of flyers with this ominous red-letter headline: "Regular Measles is able only last July... this is a Back... This Could Happen to your Child! Death... Brain Damage... Blindness... Deafness..."

Ideally, health officials want to vaccinate between 60 and 60 million children between the ages of one and 12.

More than 7,000 Washington children were vaccinated, and Dr. Michael W. Rosen, a federal doctor in charge of the campaign, later told a reporter: "We believe it's enough to stop any further... measles outbreaks."

CDC doctors say the upsurge of common measles across the country results from factors like these: — Incomplete vaccination of

They Flew Without Fear For 'Therapy'

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — "I'll sit next to anyone else," the nervous gentleman wearing a carnation, told the stewardesses, "but a bass fiddle — that's going too far."

The man, one of 30 carnation-bearing members of the "Fly Without Fear" club, would probably have liked a sympathetic hand to hold or a shoulder to cry on if his newly conquered fear of planes got the best of him on his return trip from Puerto Rico to New York.

The 20 New Yorkers had graduated from the club's first airplane flight and 20 others who had been frightened by earlier flights returned to air travel after preparing with a series of seminars, lectures and group therapy.

"We drew strength from each other," members of the club said. "The fear that was holding us back was Puerto Rican excitement was his first flight in six years. 'Just together with us, we can do a great deal. If we see someone who is tight we try to calm them down.'"

"Six years ago," he said, "I had a rough flight from Acapulco to New York. My wife and I made a New Year's resolution to never fly again."

"The trip answered newspaper ads to join Fly Without Fear because, Nathan Cott, head of the group, said, 'I felt their fear of air travel was interfering with their business and personal lives.'"

The members, ranging in age from 25 to 60, returned to New York last week after a 747 jet.

Last week was the first time since Kate and I had flown since the first airplane since we flew from New York to Boston two years ago. It was a beautiful flight."

Mrs. Kates said, "But I panicked. I was looking forward to the return flight for 247, because it looks like a theater and not an airplane. I feel nervous about it."

Mrs. Kates refused a tranquilizer which was offered but she said she was a "strong person" and "boasted herself." "I think most of us have had several drinks and a tranquilizer or two."

Heddy Rado Boklan cried last week at the take-off of her first flight in 20 years. Her husband, her seat belt for the return trip. Mrs. Boklan said, "I feel superior good."

Doctors' Rx: Replacement For Medicare

BAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Medical Association's council proposed today a voluntary universal health benefits program—replacing Medicare for the nation's health insurance program.

The council's proposal called for a national health insurance program with the U.S. Civil Service Commission's Bureau of Health Insurance as the federal agency to administer the program.

The proposal will come before the Senate's Health Insurance Committee for debate on Wednesday.

Dr. Albert G. Miller, CMAA president, supports the 26-member council's proposal. He contends that organized medicine must assume the initiative in developing universal health benefit programs.

Miller said the price tags for a new national health insurance program would be $11 billion to $40 billion.

He said organized medicine must assume the initiative in developing universal health benefit programs.

Free choice of approved coverage program including private insurance and employer-supported insurance.

The degree of financial assistance to be based on need.

Full use of existing voluntary health mechanisms.

Residents Polled — Primavera polled the audience on the subject of the voting, 14 believed the football program should be cut from the budget while 36 believed it should remain.

Primavera surveyed the group on other topics also in keeping with his statement that the hearing would be used by the board to re-evaluate its decision.

To his question on budget expenditures, 28 voted the budget total as reasonable, 13 believed it too high, six too low, and nine abstained.

On a budget cut through the elimination of band uniforms, estimated at roughly $5,000, 28 voted for the cut while two voted against it. The board's subsidization of school lunches through a $15,000 program was overwhelmingly rejected by a vote of 33 to 1. The board had previously approved the allocation after hearing arguments that school lunches provides many children with their only "decent" meal of the day and that a raise in lunch prices by five cents would cut participation in the program significantly.

Two other questions asked by Primavera elicited a fairly balanced response from the audience. Twenty-four individuals voted for partial elimination of new staff positions while 21 supported the board's findings. On an item titled "other costs," which includes school supplies, books and repairs, 28 voted for an allocation cut while 24 voted against.

Primavera summarized the budget, as reviewed, to the audience. Despite the increase of roughly $51,000 over last year's total allocation, the school's operating cost for the next school year will approach the state's average of $67 as opposed to the last computed state average of $64.

Tax Assistance

Two representatives of the Hartford office of the Internal Revenue Service will be in Manchester tomorrow to offer assistance in the preparation of income tax returns.

They will be in the Municipal Building Hearing Room from 11:30 to 4:30 p.m. They will be in Manchester each Wednesday during the same office hours ending with April 8.

Those who appear for tax will be asked to bring with them all papers and records which apply to the returns.

At the problems of academic components, and the work provided its moments of in-group cohesiveness. If little beyond that, Trombley graduated from Manchester High School in 1963 and from the University of Connecticut in 1968.

MIRV Deployment Delay Advocated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke has urged Tuesday MIRV deployment start in June with the Minuteman III land-based missiles.

The continued momentum toward deployment of this potentially destabilizing technology is highly disturbing, Brooke said in a statement.

Brooke's appeal came after Secretary of the Air Force Robert C. Seamans Jr. disclosed Tuesday a number of delays and setbacks will start fielding the Minuteman III in June.

Seamans said, adding that based on tests to date we have high confidence in this system.

The Minuteman III, a replacement for the single warhead Minuteman II, will carry three of the MIRV warheads.

Seamans said that the program is behind schedule but will be completed by the end of the year.

Second Blast Jars Brown Trial Scene

CAMBRIDGE, Md. (AP)—A powerful blast, attributed by authorities to a time bomb placed in the ladies room, ripped a huge hole in the Dorchester Courthouse today. Officials sought to determine whether there was any connection with the pending trial of H. Rap Brown, charged with inciting a riot in Cambridge, 1967, or with a car explosion Monday in which two Negroes were killed.

One of the men killed was a friend and close associate of Brown. William M. Kuntler, attorney for Brown, said he thought the bombing was related to his client's trial, and a state official said he believed it connected to the car explosion.

Preparations for the trial had started Monday 10 miles across Chesapeake Bay in Bel Air. The charges of arson, inciting others to commit arson and to riot arose from a speech and subsequent burning of a Negro section in Cambridge in 1967.

These two towns now, said Kuntler, the attorney for Brown, said he thought the bombing was related to his client's trial, and a state official said he believed it connected to the car explosion.

Idealism Turned into Bitterness As Dreams Became Frustrated

Like a lot of kids who were economic exploitation or political effort at producing income, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was not about to give up change; and they run the gamut.

Washington—Ralph Featherstone, who died Monday night in the explosion of an automobile near the Bel Air Courthouse where he held his trial, was being tried, was a figure well known in the civil rights movement.

Featherstone was in the front lines during the major civil rights struggle in the South. He was a member of the SCLC, and he was a member of the SCLC.

Village Blast Triggered By Bunglers

NEW YORK (AP)—A bungling effort at producing income with a gross output of $100,000 took two lives in a $20,000 Greenwich Village brownstone, a luxurious setting for a strange apartment house.

The cause of the blast came to light Tuesday when a large amount of dynamite was discovered in the wreckage of the 18th century townhouse owned by a wealthy advertising executive.

In the building at the time of last Friday's explosion were two known members of the Weathermen, a militant faction of Students for a Democratic Society.

One of the militants was Theodore Gold, 23, whose body was recovered from the debris shortly after the blast. He was a leader in an SDS splinter group at Columbia University in 1968.

Another victim was an unidentified woman, whose headless body was one of the debris. She was identified as a member of the Weathermen.

How They Cope with 'Outside' Nuns Leaving Convents In Increasing Numbers

John Lewis, former chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, said in Atlanta that he understood Featherstone was accompanied by William Payne.

He said Payne had worked for SNCC in Alabama and Mississippi as a program director at the time of the explosion.

Attendance Climbs Sharply At Integrated Lamar School

LAMAR, S.C. (AP)—Attendance climbed sharply at Lamar's integrated school today, while 35 white adults marched peacefully near a police line to protest against the reopening of the city's school complex Tuesday.

There was none of the violence that marked imposition of the court-ordered integration March 3.

School officials said 21 pupils reported for classes today, compared with 70 Tuesday. About 1,000 are assigned to the complex, which includes the elementary school.

School Sup. Cliff Stover said he expects attendance to climb steadily as parents become convinced that their children will not be in any danger.
