Carswell Showdown Tomorrow

"It may just be that close," said Dole to a statement, "but we expect a number of senators who voted against the motion to recommit will vote against Dole."

"It is now clear that it is a case of raw politics as far as most senators are concerned," Dole said. "It is no longer Charles's fitness or experience but whether or not the liberal can bring another defeat on President Nixon and more importantly—prevent President Nixon from establishing some balance on the Supreme Court."

The first southern judge Nixon nominated for the post of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S.C., was rejected 48 to 47 by the Senate last November.

At his home near Tallahassee, Carswell watched television reports of the Senate action but he declined comment pending the Wednesday confirmation vote.

But his younger son, Scott, a Florida State University student, told newspapermen that he is happy for his father. He said that his father's nomination would raise the question of whether the Senate should confirm a man who had not previously disclosed his stance against communism.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., floor manager for the nomination, has said that he has been told by a source that Carswell is not a Communist.

Sen. Edward J. Brooke, R-Mass., who sponsored the bill, also said that while there were some swiches, it looks now as though "we have a chance to get Justice Carswell confirmed."

The Senate was confirmed by a 57-44 vote on Monday, a dissenting vote as a judge on the 20th U.S. Circuit of Appeals. For 11 years before, he was the federal district judge in Tallahassee.

But opponents contend he had a mediocre record that should be adequately before the Supreme Court and, in his rulings as a judge and in his private affairs, has shown to be a far more liberal than the conservative stance they have repeatedly made that he showed hostility to civil rights lawyers and blacks, and what they call his role in seeking to prevent desegregation of a municipal golf course in Tallahassee.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here the 52-44 vote by which the Senate refused Monday to send the Supreme Court nomination of Arthur Carswell back to the Judiciary Committee.

At Ft. Bragg Green Beret Doctor Queried As Suspect in Family Deaths

(Ft. Bragg, Calif. (AP) — The Army says a doctor in the elite Green Beret is being "questioned as a suspect" in the slaying of his wife and two young daughters seven weeks ago.

The doctor, Capt. Jeffrey R. MacDonald, 36, of Potomac, Md., had said that a hippie-like band of a girl and two young girls were in the room three men had killed the other members of his family in their Army post apartment and wounded him.

Army authorities said Monday they had advised Capt. MacDonald of his right to obtain legal counsel and to remain in jail.

An Army spokesman said the doctor had been arrested last month because he was charged with the slaying of his wife and two young daughters. He was held at the Naval Air Station, a psychiatric hospital, where he is being held.

Traffic Mishap Led To Shooting of Police

(SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Police took to the surrounding streets in a five-hour police chase which left two officers and a patrolman and another man shot to death.

Recovering in a hospital from a bullet wound in the chest was a 28-year-old man identified by police as one of the two principals in the slaying. The second man was dead, an apparently self-inflicted shotgun blast in the head.

The wounded man was booked for investigation of murder under the name Russell Lowell Tubert, 28, of Winston-Salem, N.C., the man on identification papers he had on his person.

Winston-Salem police said however, that a man of the same name had been reported stolen in a burglary at his home on Tuesday.

Flags flew at half mast in the state capital of Sacramento, where the slaying took place Monday.

The police reconstruction of the events which ended with five men dead went like this:

Two officers in a Highway Patrol car received a report from a motorist that two men in a car pursued a shotgun at him after a collision on Highway 99.

Senate Labor Panel Votes To Impose Rail Settlement

Acting in an effort to avert a nationwide railroad shutdown Saturday, the Senate Labor Panel today voted unanimously to approve a contract on 45,000 railroad shopcraft workers.

The contract provides a 10 percent wage increase over five years, was requested by President Nixon last month.

While the Senate committee was initiating action to end the railroad dispute, some of the union's 25,000 members are on strike.

The eight per cent hike must be accompanied by the promise that the railroad will not use any new money to buy new cars because they say a body could make the necessary conversion.

The six per cent hike, he said, will not be satisfactory if it is to be accompanied by a 10 per cent hike in the cost of the first post wage hike.

Chicago truckers have begun selective strikes against federal highways.

Does Shooting Work? The creation of a special City Council committee to investigate the recent series of shootings by Hartford police...

It had become necessary for there to be some independent review of the shooting in each shooting, a review in which both the city's uniformed officers and its civilian population could expect to find sympathetic awareness...

In such an investigation of the four particular shooting incidents, it would not be unlikely for the probes to come up with different findings in each of the incidents...

And any such investigation will inevitably have to broaden its own recollection, so that when it judges recent incidents, it keeps in mind that there have been, in the past, similar occurrences...

All this is minimal. It should result in a dramatic report, one that the policemen themselves should be willing to take their chance on the result, and not fight it or refuse their own cooperation with it.

At the same time, there are questions raised by the situation in Hartford which seem larger than the capacity of any single committee.

One of these larger questions is this: Has there come to exist, in Hartford, a special sense of challenge between the police and one segment of the population which has now begun to generate an atmosphere of special fear in the decisions of individuals on both sides?

Does the Hartford policeman now function in continual expectation of personal resistance to his authority? Does the member of Hartford's black community now live in continual expectation that any police officer he encounters may be trigger happy? Has the relationship between the two, in the streets of Hartford, degenerated into a thing in which mutual suspicions and apprehensions make the slightest confrontation a dangerous, explosive thing?

It happens that an incident involving a minor traffic infraction has to end up with the driver in question carrying police bullets?

The second major question suggested by the situation in Hartford is a question which heads into the realm of law and order theory and philosophy but then ends up asking something very pragmatic.

The debate in the realm of theory and philosophy goes between those who believe in unrestricted power for the police, which means that the police will sometimes serve as judge and jury and executor in the streets, and those who want to limit police use of firearms to certain specific circumstances, or even eliminate it altogether.

The pragmatic question suggests itself when, in the course of this debate, representatives of the police side argue that the police must be given a free hand if they are to control crime and make the streets safe.

The question is whether their shooting works. Has their shooting made the streets of Hartford more orderly? In these now more respect for the law? Will they, in the future, encounter fewer and fewer situations in which they are called upon to draw their guns? Are they pacifying Hartford? Does purse-snatching decrease? Have dark-skinned people now learned how to act in the presence of the law?

There is obviously no instant answer to such questions. But if, in the months to come, there should seem to be favorable answers, then there could be some practical judgment that police toughness, having worked, had demonstrated its title to be labeled something more than a pathological irresponsibility.

Diplomatic Munity

What has now happened in Guatemala illustrates the ultimate horror in the game of "kidnap the diplomat" and, even while it makes the world realize how unpeppery the latest crime had become, strengthens the hand of the next terrorists who try to practice it.

No country can escape responsibility for the safety of its diplomatic agents. In this instance, Guatemala experimented with a defiance of the terrorists, and its experimentation brought the German diplomat back as a corpse. If some other diplomat is kidnapped tomorrow, Guatemala is not going to be able to experiment again. It is going to have to pay the ransom.

That, too, however, will merely help establish a situation which is improbable and intolerable. As a matter of necessity, foreign diplomats in countries where the kidnap virus has manifested itself will have to be required to live a life which keeps them practically imprisoned for their own good and safety. This, at the least, cuts in half the value of their being there, which should properly include continual interchange in communication and understanding with the people of the country.

But the real question it raises is whether any diplomatic representation at all is going to be considered worth the price it takes of human life if it will have to involve.

As we said the other day, before the first diplomat had been shot instead of returned, our world seems to grow more, not less, barbaric. And civilization, in the very age when it should be achieving its greatest forward triumphs, somehow seems incapable of defending even its oldest and most traditional sanctuaries.

On Water Torture I understand that the Chinese, who invented practically everything the Russians didn't, were the first to discover that a persistent trickle of water on a man's head could drive him into a head-thriller. Haven't you ever noticed that shouldn't be surprised if it turned out that this discovery was made by a Chinese with a hammer and nails.

There is never any logic to the enterprise. A trickle of water, suddenly during a severe downpour, or it may wait 10 days after a hard rain before showing up. Sometimes it enters a forthright manner, just to the left of my four-drawer filing cabinet, and proceeds directly to my feet.

Though it seems to favor the area near the filing cabinet as an entryway, the trickle is not at all consistent. In fact, this is the most baffling element of all — the way it pops in from any point of the compass. Sometimes it pictures it emerging — over by the gas meter, say — with little cries of "Surprise! Surprise!"

I've tried every way I can think of to deal with the trickle, stop of calling in an expert who, I'm afraid, would not take me, or it seriously — but always with the feeling that my efforts are doomed in the face of such a powerful foe. For example, I've tried to plot a pattern that would enable me to meet the next invasion head on. This took several months of patient data compilation, but at last there came a storm that I was ready for. I thought.

With mop in one hand and graphs in the other, I maintained a keen vigil until 11 p.m. when I learned that for some time a rivulet had been proceeding from a dark corner of the fruit cellar, where one had been seen only once or twice before. It seemed to be laughing, like one of those brooklets poets write about.

Evidently the previous owner of our house had his own experiences with water in the basement, because in the laundry room there is an eight-foot trough chiseled into the concrete, apparently by someone in a distraught frame of mind, since it takes quite an erratic path to the storm drain. It will give you some idea of what I'm up against when I say that this trickle is not a trick, but a foe.

It is a foe that I have never seen in any of the places in the basement that remain dry under all circumstances, even when I am mopping the laundry room. My foe has never been seen in any of the places in the basement that remain dry under all circumstances, even when I am mopping the laundry room.

I could go on, but I think I hear water running downstairs. — CHARLES A. PETERSON IN THE NATIONAL OBSERVER.

As the political year which is bound to move over everything but any other, this is also to be the historic year of the poll.

The polling of the year seems to be dividing itself into three phases. First, and now drawing to a close, having filled his primary objective, there has been the poll which showed that the candidate in question ran better against the other party's candidate than anybody else could possibly do.

The purpose of this initial poll was to give the candidate himself both the courage and the mandate to try himself in the race. It is in addition, this initial poll created a bandwagon atmosphere for him in his own party, so much the better.

Having entered the race because the polls showed that he had the best chance of beating the probable opposition nominee, the candidate next became obligated to begin taking those polls which forecast the outcome of his own race, not against the opposition nominee, but in his own party convention this June.

This secondary phase of the polling has now begun, and first returns are, in the tradition of such polling, tremendously encouraging to those who are making the polls.

Each of the candidates, usually speaking through some third party for purposes of modesty, announces the result of his poll as soon as it shows him decisively leading in the head count of delegates to his party's conventions.

Enough polls have already been announced to make us political observers look to our arithmetic, to see just how many delegates there are actually going to be in June.

It is already becoming obvious, for instance, that the 900 delegates the Democrats are expected to receive will not begin to be enough to cover the hard and fast predictions already made in the list of delegates which will be enlarged, or a large number of them will be counted twice, or three, or even four times over.

This particular phase of the polling will continue open until the conventions actually meet, so we hesitate, beyond acknowledging that to date they show Candidates Marcus, Dodd and Duffey all far ahead of each other in their triumphant marches toward a majority in the Democratic State Convention.

At some moment in June, the delegates will poll themselves, on an official convention roll call, and the way will be clear for the beginning of the final polling phase of the year — that in which the outcome of the election itself is given in advance.

20 Students Face Charges For Seizure

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Twenty Springfield College students, men and women, were arrested Tuesday Court arrangements followed a three-hour seizure of the administration building that was ended by helmeted police.

Eighteen demonstrators who were removed from the building Monday and taken away in patrol wagons were charged with seizure. Two others arrested outside the building were charged with disturbing the peace.

Bail for the latter two was set at $200 each, and for the others, the fine first set was $250. Some 1,200 students who attended an emergency meeting called by the students Monday night voted approximately 2:1 to post bail for the demonstrators from available council funds.

Wilbert Locklin, the college's president, was booked at the police station for the seizure. He is being held in jail, but his attorney has not yet been named.

Although no injuries were reported to authorities, some students said they saw policemen using clubs and what they called strong-arm tactics in removing the demonstrators.

The sixth, by a group of whites, was in violation of a pending black students who were scheduled to return to campus Monday for disciplinary proceedings. The blacks were suspended for occupying a dormitory earlier this year.

Blacks number 40 out of a total of 2,000 enrolled at Springfield.

When the whites moved into the administration building, administrators warned them that if they refused, police would be called.

The whites made no effort to resist when police entered the building, but a crowd of about 100 black and white students and other demonstrators gathered outside, shouting "I am withdrawing from the school!"

A short time later a second group, numbering about 200 students, staged a second sit-in at the administration building. They left peacefully after talking with Dean Joseph Santoro about the police action.

This second group, sympathetic to those arrested, slipped into the building through side doors while campus police blocked the front doors. When they opened the front doors, they found the campus already filled with admitted others. Eventually about 200 were inside.

Whites said there was some pushing and shoving at this point and one campus officer was pushed to the ground. No injuries were reported.

U.S. Air Force fighter-bombers made scores of raids around the camp during the day. The fighting and U.S. B2's rained 800 tons of bombs on enemy targets five miles to the north.

South Vietnamese headquarters said air and artillery strikes killed 200 enemy soldiers. U.S. forward air controllers said they counted 100 enemy bodies.

The Saigon government's headquarters for the Central Highlands said at least 75 North Vietnamese have been killed since the enemy laid siege to the camp last Wednesday. Sources said government losses so far are 40 killed and 130 wounded. One American Green Beret has been killed and six wounded in ground fighting.

South Vietnamese headquarters said more than 200 U.S. American "advisers" are now operating in an area 20 miles long and 10 miles wide. The forces are now in late Monday.

The size of the North Vietnamese force is not known. But sources said it includes a troop of 28th Regiment, which took part in stages of the Ben Hel, Bu Phung and Bu Chanh operations in the highlands last year.

Hausman Raps Delay of Grants For Schools HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — State Republican Chairman Howard E. Hausman asked the governor today to investigate why the state is so slow in clearing state grants to towns for school construction.

If Gov. John Dempsey does not do something, Hausman said, he hopes to introduce a bill to force the state management committee to take action.

It is estimated that in five months since the program for the current fiscal biennium went into effect last July 1.

"Here it is nine months later and 76 towns have not seen a dime of the grants which the state promised to cover one-half the cost of the school buildings," said Hausman.

"Town after town has complained its application and site plan waiting for the state administration to come up with the money," he said.

Property tax payers in the towns have enough trouble without having to endure higher local taxes because of the delay.

Hausman urged the delay "inexcusable and unconscionable" and said, "There seems to be a lack of interest in the state to comply with a legislative mandate."

Egypt Tries to Rehabilitate Its Juvenile Delinquents

By LIHETTE BALOUIN Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Officials in charge of juvenile welfare in Egypt are waging a constant battle to retrieve hundreds of boys and girls cast adrift since the nation's mushrooming urban society.

Gradual industrialization has brought a burgeoning city life alien to the traditional Arabic family structure. Cairo is growing swiftly and now counts almost five million people. There are thousands evacuated from towns in what now is a war zone along the Suez Canal.

The girls prepare their food and make their clothing. They also turn out drawings, leather bags, cheap shoes, needlework, Oriental engravings on copper ware; as elsewhere, the clash of the old and the new leads to less parental control and more money for the girls' upkeep.

"Juvenile delinquency in Egypt is relatively mild compared with the sometimes delinquent nature of delinquents in the United States and Europe," said Dr. Paily of Bab el Nasser, an expert on a state commission. "Nevertheless, it is a serious problem because of industrialization, poverty and the urbanization of Egyptian life."

Nation's Weather Fair and pleasant spring weather favored almost the entire week last week with about 10 inches of rain, including heavy showers and the doctors never to go out to "that" world again.

The money was supposed to go to the gang chief, but I changed my mind. He was making me his slave," the boy related.

"This is just what we are needing," said the home administrator. "Once the child here he feels protected. Outside, he is lost and homesick."

Hartford's Black Police Support Shooting Probe

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Officers have engaged strong controversy within the community.

Some people argue that the city council is out of the hands of the police, while others feel present guidelines being to be revised.

Their statement is in conflict with a police union resolution to oppose the committee and resist its subpoena power. The results of the probe were passed unanimously by about 10 policemen at a meeting in Hartford Monday.

Alfred Cicero, president of the black policemen's organization, said his group would "cooperate fully" with the committee. All members have agreed to testify if they are asked to appear throughout the state Monday to present all of the details of the probe to the city council on guidelines for the use of guns by police.

The city council voted Saturday to establish a permanent committee with subpoena power to investigate the shootings and review present guidelines on the use of guns by policemen.

Attorneys for the police union are seeking a permanent injunction against the committee grounds that the committee violates the police union's contract with the city.

The union is also seeking a temporary restraining order to prevent the shooting probe while the case is being heard.

Four New Faces in Yank Lineup For Opener Against Boston RSox

NEW YORK (AP) — A trade with the Chicago White Sox, Game time was 3 p.m., EST, and the forecast was for chilly weather with temperatures in the high 40s. A crowd of about 15,000 was expected. The Yankees, who finished fifth in the AL's 1969 East Division race, came north from an impressive spring exhibition showing with 11 players who were not on the roster for last year's opener. Four of the 11—catcher Thurman Munson, first baseman John Elia, third baseman Danny Cater and right fielder Curt Burnley—were in to-day's starting line-up. Munson, who yielded just one earned run in 23 exhibition innings and is expected to bolster a pitching staff which includes Jim Lonborg, Ray Culp, Bobby Seay and 1969 rookie, Ed Ricketts. Burnley, who finished third in the East last year, was the opening with the addition of White Sox, Munson and Elia, and trade acquisitions Carter, Burnley and Seay. "I'm not predicting a pennant," said Munson, who is the best team we've had here in my time. "I believe I'll still get five more years in this league." Believing, he looked as agile as a started game Monday night, scoring 20 points to tie New York's 1971-14 victory over Baltimore that gave the Yankees their Eastern Division semifinal series four games to three. The victory, before a Madison Square Garden, after the Knicks' Eastern Division semifinal series four games to three. Stanley Cup Now Sought By Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Black Hawks bid today to the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League by winning the Prince of Wales trophy. Now they would like nothing better than to take the Stanley Cup when they become members of the Western Division by winning the expansion program of the 1970-71 season. "We're not going over there second rate," said general manager Jimmy Dore following the Hawks' 10-2 victory over the St. Louis Blues last night. "We're going to win the Stanley Cup."

Old Man Barnett Standout As Knicks Batter Burets

NEW YORK (AP) — Dick Barnett, the wondrous Old Man of the New York Knicks, was skirting friendly verbal pokes about his age and stamina. "It's performance that counts, not my age," said the National Basketball Association veteran who's on the verge of 34. "I believe I've still got five more years in this league." Barnett, who led the Knicks to the Eastern Division semifinals last year, was the star of the night, scoring 20 points to tie New York's 1971-14 victory over Baltimore that gave the Yankees their Eastern Division semifinal series four games to three. Saturated Baseball Fields Postpone Scholastic Games

By DEAN YOST
Old man weather continues to play its nasty old tricks on the New England states. Last night snow and rain was predicted, but the results were just wet grounds to go with the saturated baseball fields. Yesterday morning East Catholic and Rockville High both postponed their first games due to the present outdoor conditions. The playing grounds at East are in bad shape. Mounds of dirt still cover the infield and crews are working on leveling the grounds and getting it ready for the April 16 home game. The team has been practicing outside for a total of seven days although practice started back on March 2 in the gym. There was a turnout of nearly 30 boys with the team being trimmed to 18 varsity players and 20 JV's. Pitching is the strong point of the team. Coach Mike Jelfries heads the mound staff, senior Tom Jenkins, junior Jim Connor and sophomore Russ Bloussard will all be seeing time.

He will be responsible for coaching the Colts' offensive line and will also be in charge of the team's conditioning program. McCafferty was a member of the Colts' Super Bowl-winning team in 1958 and was named to the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1980.
