The World of HIRSCHFELD

"The subject which turns me on is people," says Al Hirschfeld. And his response to people has been to engage in "the adventure of translating personality into graphic symbols." That is, caricature.

He does this so well that his subjects begin to look like his drawings of them—that is what he himself considers a successful likeness.

Hirschfeld's people are certainly unmistakable, whether they are from the theater, which is Hirschfeld's favorite field, or from some other sphere in public life. Hirschfeld's drawings appear regularly in The New York Times, as well as many other magazines and periodicals. His works are also included in the permanent collections of museums across the country and around the world.

The drawings on this page are among those now collected together in "The World of Hirschfeld," published by Harry N. Abrams, Inc.

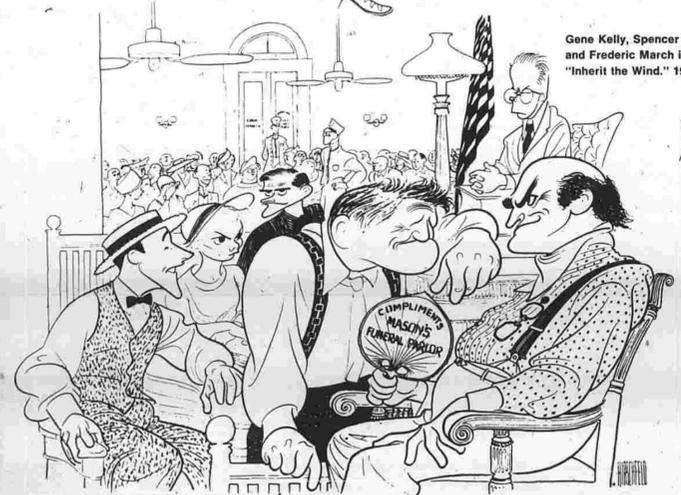

The number after his name in the headline refers to the number of times the word "Nina" may be found in the drawings reproduced here. It's the name of his daughter, and it's been a game ever since she was born in 1945 for him to hide the name in his drawings—a game his followers play with enthusiasm. Can you find all the Ninas?

Our Nursery Schools

Clash of Freedom, Authority

By MARGARET A. LISHO (Herald Reporter)

(This is the second in a series of four articles on nursery schools in Manchester. The series explores the subject of freedom and authority and how much of each should be allowed in a nursery school situation. The school described in this part was chosen because it is typical of the middle-of-the-road school, as its director describes it herself. It is neither greatly authoritarian nor free, but tries to achieve a balance between the two.)

"Let's all sit down," the nursery school teacher said to her class. "I want to talk to you about what we're going to do."

It was nine o'clock in the morning and school was just beginning. The teacher explained to the children that she wanted them to make Easter baskets that day and fill with eggs at a party later in the week.

Before they started, she showed them two things they would have at their party: A stuffed bunny and a plastic egg maker.

There were 10 children in the room, seated at the teacher's feet, and she handed them the objects to feel and describe. The children felt the bunny and said that it was "soft and fuzzy." Then they felt the egg, and said that it was "hard."

"There's another word for the egg that nobody thought of," the teacher said. "Can anybody think of it?" Since nobody could, she said, "smooth," and the children agreed with her, feeling the egg again and repeating the word "smooth."

While some children were shown how to make Easter baskets with paste and colored paper, others played without direct supervision with some very large blocks and boards. The teacher showed them how to carry the boards so they wouldn't hit each other.

"The Gymnasium Class" by Sadie Rosenblum. (UNICEF print)

The director said she likes children this age because they are affectionate, responsive and willing to "participate." She doesn't enjoy teaching them as much when they get older because, "They begin to get a little bit critical of the teacher."

Some of the children have trouble socializing in the beginning, she said. Either they're too shy to participate with others or so aggressive and independent that they disrupt the room. By the end of the first period, probably half of them, they engaged in some group activity under the teacher's direction.

"I think it's good when the children change rooms," the teacher said later, "because there are all different personalities among the teachers. Different teachers cope with different types of children better than others."

The children lined up and left for the bathroom. There were no separate bathrooms for girls and boys. Nobody ever closed the door to the stall they were in, and often a girl would be holding a door halfway closed for a boy until he was done.

Although there is "no emphasis" on polite manners, a certain type of behavior is considered acceptable and thus rewarded.

Good behavior is instilled not by punishing bad behavior but through positive reinforcement. If a child misbehaves, she explained, the teacher merely says to him not to do it again, saying, "I know you are going to remember to be good."

As to the question of sharing, it's a must, and they have to learn to "take turns," she said. "But they don't mind, because there is always something else for them to do. If they had to stand around waiting, that would be different. But there are enough other things that are fascinating."

In terms of freedom and authority, the children at this school are allowed a certain amount of personal idiosyncrasy and freedom, as long as they do not intrude on the group. They are important as individuals, but the group is important too. Each has to compromise, the teacher seemed to feel, to achieve a certain balance in the nursery school "universe."

It seemed that, at least on this particular day, there was a time during each period for the children to play alone without direct supervision. For the rest of the period, probably half of them, they engaged in some group activity under the teacher's direction.

BOY SCOUT Notes and News

Cub Pack 91

Cub Scout Pack 91 recently ended its season with a family picnic and swimming at Camp Johnson in Bolton.

Awards were presented in ceremonies during the event. Cubs who are leaving for the Boy Scouts are Eric Thomas, Troop 25; William Stephens, and Thomas Parker, Troop 12; and Joseph Sawyer, Troop 302. Cubs advancing to Webelos are Paul Smith, Dwight Ryniewicz, Walter Fleming, David Caroppo, and Stefano Carucci.

Badges and arrows were received by Harry Carr, Martin Weinbaum; Russell Sheehan and Ronald Walsh, Wolf; Jeffrey Geegan, Paul Smith, Dwight Ryniewicz and Peter Vitols, Bear; Ronald Walsh, Brad Burdett, Steven Kahn and Matthew Tobin, gold arrows; Glenn Thomas, silver arrows; and Stefano Carucci, silver arrows.

Webelos awards went to Gregg McDermott and William Talbot, outdoorman; Eric Thomas, naturalist and outdoorsman; Paul Parker, geologist, outdoorsman, outdoorsman, outdoorsman; and William Stephens, naturalist, outdoorsman, craftsman and traveler.

The children are allowed a moderate amount of freedom and they're affectionate, responsive and willing to "participate." She doesn't enjoy teaching them as much when they get older because, "They begin to get a little bit critical of the teacher."

Some of the children have trouble socializing in the beginning, she said. Either they're too shy to participate with others or so aggressive and independent that they disrupt the room. The children lined up and left for the bathroom. There were no separate bathrooms for girls and boys. Nobody ever closed the door to the stall they were in, and often a girl would be holding a door halfway closed for a boy until he was done.

Good behavior is instilled not by punishing bad behavior but through positive reinforcement. If a child misbehaves, she explained, the teacher merely says to him not to do it again, saying, "I know you are going to remember to be good."

As to the question of sharing, it's a must, and they have to learn to "take turns," she said. "But they don't mind, because there is always something else for them to do. If they had to stand around waiting, that would be different. But there are enough other things that are fascinating."

In terms of freedom and authority, the children at this school are allowed a certain amount of personal idiosyncrasy and freedom, as long as they do not intrude on the group. They are important as individuals, but the group is important too. Each has to compromise, the teacher seemed to feel, to achieve a certain balance in the nursery school "universe."

Britain's Prince and Princess 'Wow' World's Common Folk

By KENNETH L. DAVIS (Associated Press Writer)

LONDON (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles and Princess Anne, who are to be guests of the White House Thursday, are self-assured exponents of the 1970 style for royalty.

The modern style allows them to slip out of their stiff, down-time to time to reveal a down-to-earth touch.

This has wowed common folk from Sydney to Saskatchewan, just as it is likely to stir awe and fascination among Washingtonians.

On the one hand there's 21-year-old Charles Philip Arthur George Windsor, Prince of Wales, Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland.

On the other there's 21-year-old Princess Anne, Cambridge undergraduate who sits in a garbage can and fields protest for the sale of a class play.

The trend-setting Princess Anne, 19, who wears chic hats and a simple, elegant dress, is able to wear and can't, is the epitome of courtly grace.

In contrast to the 18-year-old Anne Elizabeth Windsor, who falls off a horse, shakes her long, silky hair and announces with more vehemence than the stiff-upper-lip set allows, "I saw bloody stars."

Britain gets more for its money this way—occasional thrill from the blood of kings and queens past, plus the chance to murmur, "Why, they're just like the rest of us."

As an unidentified American put it the day Prince Anne visited a gas production platform in the North Sea, "What a dolly!"

Not every monarchy has relished the sight of a teen-aged princess getting out of a small car in a miniskirt, or heard complain in an Australian news broadcast, "I can't bloody well see."

Not for that matter, a princess who broke a speed record in a Chieftain tank and confided, "I'd like to have one for Christmas."

When you marry in my position," he said, "you are going to marry somebody who perhaps one day will be queen. The one advantage about marrying a princess or somebody from a royal family is that they do know what happens."

However, two things stimulate wide hope in many a common bride—he didn't say he was going to marry royalty and there are only about seven eligible princesses in Europe.

Princess Anne, fourth in line for the throne, takes a somewhat more romantic view of marriage, basing it on love.

"You never know the answer until it happens," she said.

This fairly well leaves the field open to anyone who feels able to tilt with princesses and princes—and get the chance.

Bonin Islanders Unlikely To Be Leaving 'Paradise'

TOKYO (AP) — Bonin islanders descended from 17th century American seafarers today thanked President Nixon for signing a bill inviting them to migrate to the United States.

But several said only some of the young are likely to accept.

Reached by telephone from Tokyo, Yukio Nosawa, 45, a clerk at the island's administrative office, said most of the 205 islanders who trace their ancestry to Americans have never left the tropical islands 900 miles southeast of Tokyo.

"It was born here and have never been outside even though World War II," said Nosawa. "We are thankful to the President, but I'll probably die and be buried on this island."

Nosawa and others said, however, they believe some younger islanders may take advantage of the legislation, which has been a topic of discussion since 1969 when the United States returned the territory to Japan.

The United States captured the Bonins, which include two Ijimas, in World War II.

The White House said the legislation was approved because residents of the islands have a sense of historic identity with the United States and some islanders have had difficulties adjusting since the territory reverted to Japan.

Nosawa traces his ancestry to an American merchant sailor he knows only as Norman Gilley. He said he was willing to let his two sons and a daughter migrate to the United States if they wished.

In addition to the 205 islanders of American descent, there are about 500 other islanders descended from Japanese, Ryukyuan and other Asian and Western settlers and seafarers. Most earn their living by fishing. Japan annexed the islands in 1874, and most of the islanders adopted Japanese surnames, although some combined this with Western Christian names.

Another islander, Masayuki Ohira, 43, said life on the tropical island is too good to leave: "There are no traffic jams here and no air pollution problems. The tempo of life is slow and another can even have a living there whole beach to himself! If he wants to, he can go to the islands for the hectic life of a city?"

Officials of the Tokyo municipal government, who have administered the islands since their return to Japan, said the government already has spent leaders' pockets.

Kennedy: Vietnam War Is Key To Disorders on the Campuses

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission aimed at pacifying the volatile campus scene was told today it will not succeed until the Vietnam war is ended.

"It may well be," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, "that the only line in the commission's report that will have any real meaning for our colleges and universities is the line that reads: 'This was most odd.'"

The Massachusetts Democrat and Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott were among the six witnesses called at the opening hearing of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest.

The others: San Francisco State President S. J. Hayakawa, University of Michigan President Robben Fleming, National Student Association President Charles Palmer and Otto Cochrane, president of the Black American Law Student Union.

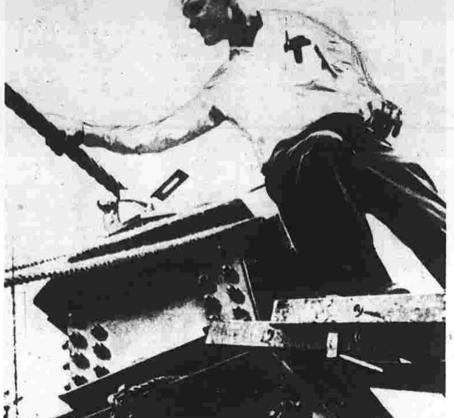

Scott declared in his opening testimony, "We must retreat from demagoguery in all its ornate formulations. It is time to show each other our humanity, our human goodness."

Student awareness does this generation credit, as does their idealism. Their anger at the same politicians' dismissal of evidence of this awareness," he said.

The commission, headed by former Republican Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, was named a month ago by President Nixon in the wake of campus uprisings which followed the U.S. move into Cambodia.

Spurred especially by the deaths of four Kent State University students and two youths at Jackson State College in Mississippi, Nixon asked the panel for full recommendations by Oct. 1.

SEOUL (AP) — Air defense forces in the North, Chung said, estimated that South Korea has about one-third the capability of the North Korean air force, of 900 North Korean planes, more than half are supersonic jets, including four squadrons of MIG-17s. The gap between the North Korean and South Korean air forces has been filled by reinforcements of U.S. aircraft since the Pueblo incident, defense chief stated.

"But because of budgetary reasons," he added, "the number of U.S. Air Force planes here has declined."

Liberal Democrat Winner In Virginia Primary Race

By JOHN F. DAFFRON Associated Press Writer RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Liberal George C. Rawlings Jr. has won a slim victory for the U.S. Senate nomination in Virginia's Democratic primary election. Voter turnout was very light. Incomplete, unofficial returns gave Rawlings a 48-vote margin over Clyde L. DuVal and the new moderate leadership of the party. Rawlings' lead was less than one percentage point.

A third candidate, Dr. Milton Colvin, a Washington and Lee University professor of political science, trailed far behind.

A runoff election is possible, but DuVal said he was not likely to seek one.

The winner will meet independent Sen. Harry F. Byrd and Republican Ray L. Garland in the November general election. Republicans and the conservative backing Byrd's independent candidacy took heart Tuesday that Tuesday's meager Democratic turnout.

Only about 130,000 of Virginia's 1.75 million qualified voters — half the expected light vote — showed at the polls to give Rawlings, a 48-year-old Fredericksburg attorney, his narrow victory.

With all but 19 of the state's 2,033 voting precincts reported, the unofficial count showed: Rawlings 58,102 or 45.6 per cent; DuVal 57,253 or 44.9 per cent; Colvin 12,187 or 9.5 per cent.

Virginia election law permits the runner-up to call for a runoff if the top vote-getter fails to win a majority.

Gotham Papers Facing Strikes

NEW YORK (AP) — The city's four major daily newspapers and New York Mailers Union No. 6 resume talks today in an effort to head off a strike threatened for 12:31 a.m. Friday at the Daily News.

The union said Tuesday that its 500 members at the News would strike because of stalled contract negotiations.

Later, The New York Times announced that it would suspend publication if the matters struck the News, because it felt the economic settlement involved contract negotiations.

So far, the union has confined its job action to holding chapel meetings during working hours, temporarily halting press runs at the Times, News, The New York Post and The Long Island Daily Press.

The union is under court order to abstain from taking new job action at all papers except the News.

Tomko-Casali

MRS. ANDREW JOHN TOMKO JR.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Ann Casali of Pittsfield, Mass., to Andrew John Tomko Jr. of Bismarck, N.D., formerly of Manchester, was solemnized Saturday morning July 4, in a double-ring ceremony at Mount Carmel Church, Pittsfield.

The bride is the daughter of Peter Casali of Pittsfield and the late Mrs. Casali. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Tomko Sr. of 29 Brenton Rd.

Mrs. A. Mazzeo and Mrs. J. Furlong, both of Pittsfield, were organist and soloist respectively. Bouquets of white flowers were on the altar.

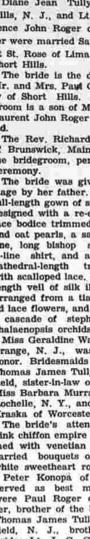

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of silk organza and re-embroidered Alcon lace accented with crystals and pearls, and designed with high ruffled necklines and high ruffled headbows. The married garden baskets of delphiniums, gladioli, carnations, and roses accented with pearls and staphenotis.

Mrs. A. Robert Hazleton of Pittsfield, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Michael Olemchik of sister of the bridegroom; Miss Maryann Frances and Mrs. Frederick Brauner, both of Pittsfield.

The bride attendants wore identical full-length sleeveless gowns of blue-velvet and white floral print voile designed with high ruffled necklines, and high ruffled headbows. The married garden baskets of delphiniums, gladioli, carnations, and roses accented with pearls and staphenotis.

Roger-Tully

MRS. LAWRENCE JOHN ROGER

Diane Jean Tully of Short Hills, N. J., and Lt. J.G. Lawrence John Roger of Manchester were married Saturday noon at St. Rose of Lima Church in Short Hills.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Charles Tully of Short Hills. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Laurent John Roger of 19 Clyde Rd.

The Rev. Richard C. Roger of Brunswick, Maine, uncle of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a full-length gown of silk organza, lace bodice trimmed with seed and oak pearls, a sash and necklace, long bishop sleeves, and a detachable cathedral-length train edged with scalloped lace. Her elbow-length veil of silk illusion was arranged from a tarras of pearls and scalloped lace. Her corsage was a cascade of staphenotis and phalaenopsis orchids.

Miss Geraldine Ward of South Orange, N. J., was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Thomas James Tully of Bloomfield, N. Y., and Miss Jane Kruskas of Worcester, Mass.

The bride attendants wore pink chiffon empire gowns trimmed with venetian lace, and carried bouquets of pink and white sweetest roses.

Peter Kopona of Naugatuck served as best man. Ushers were Paul Roger, attorney at law, brother of the bridegroom; Thomas James Tully of Bloomfield, N. J., a brother of the bride; Lt. J. G. Clay Roberts of Newport; David Hiney of Manchester; and J. Lawrence Preston of Rocky Hill.

Mrs. Tully wore a blue dress of chiffon and lace. The bridegroom's mother wore a yellow silk worsted jacket dress.

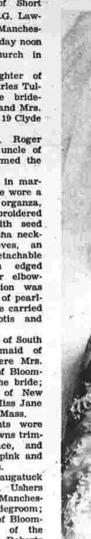

After a reception at the Chanticleer in Milburn, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Roger left for Durham, N. C. A member of pay a $4.50 bill on ground a well-done filet mignon was the highlight.

Autos Bought For Need, Not Status, Today

DETROIT (AP) — A car is no longer purchased as a status symbol by many Americans, but is bought to meet specific needs, says the head of Chrysler Corp.

"Oh, the guy with nine kids still gets the big car, but it's no longer the status symbol," Lynn Townsend, board chairman of Chrysler said Tuesday.

Townsend also said that the economic picture is brightening for Chrysler, which sold the second-largest automaker, which lost $29.4 million in the first quarter of the year.

Townsend said that due to cost-cutting and reorganizing, Chrysler would report a small profit for the second quarter.

Chrysler's decision to strengthen its small car lineup was reinforced by half year sales figures which showed the compact Plymouth Valiant line posting sales of 123,530 for a 177 per cent gain over the comparable figures of a year ago. That gain was the highest of any month in the industry this year.

The Valiant dealer, a two-door hardtop, near 100,000, and Dodge with sales of 103,252. The other car in the Valiant line is a four-door.

On the other end of the scale, Chrysler had big losses by Imperial and Dodge. Imperial sales fell 25.1 per cent, Chrysler off 30.4 per cent, Plymouth off 22.3 per cent and Dodge off 25.1 per cent.

Total industry sales of 3,914,428 during the first six months of 1970 trailed 1969 figures by 9.25 per cent.

UAW, Automakers Expect, But Hope to Avert, Strike

DETROIT (AP) — Wage contract bargaining between the United Auto Workers and major industry leaders opens today and the outcome is likely to depend on the prices of 1971 model cars.

Both union and industry sources have said the probability will be a strike, although the auto firms and the union have vowed they won't work a strike.

The UAW and General Motors Corp. start the initial negotiations at a four-man negotiating team at 10:30 a.m. Thursday and Chrysler Corp. Friday.

In a statement issued at the session convened, Earl Bramblett, GM vice president in charge of personnel, urged that "serious bargaining begin immediately."

Frequently in past negotiations little progress has been made until the old contracts were on the verge of expiration.

The current three-year contracts covering some 730,000 workers expire on Sept. 15 throughout the country except at midnight Sept. 14.

In previous years bargaining over local issues at various plants has erupted into crippling strikes, but after national agreements had been reached.

Bramblett proposed the formation of a joint industry-union committee to police the plant bargaining "to ensure that local issues are handled promptly and on a business-like basis."

The automakers have said that whatever settlement is reached will have a bearing on 1971 automobile prices.

Both sides took tough bargaining stances.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock said the companies would only be "getting warm" if they offered a 14 per cent increase in wages and fringe benefits.

Company executives, confronted with sagging 1970 sales and declining profits, indicated they had no intention of yielding anywhere near such a hike.

The current average hourly wage in the auto industry is $4.02. The Big Three companies estimate that fringe benefits, such as pensions and insurance, add $1.75 hourly per worker to their labor costs.

The UAW has approved a 15 per cent wage increase for its own staff workers over a two-year period.

"We expect to do a hell of a lot better than that for the guys in the shop," the late Walter P. Reuther told the UAW's convention in April.

A 15 per cent increase over the $3.77 the average worker costs per hour would increase the Big Three's labor bill by about $1.20 billion.

The UAW has a strike fund of $12 million, which is expected to grow to approximately $120 million by mid-September.

Union demands include "a substantial wage increase," an unlimited cost-of-living wage escalator and a $200 minimum monthly pension after 30 years service, regardless of age.

To these demands, mandated by the union's 1970 convention, Woodcock has added a call for an increase in company contributions to supplemental unemployment benefit (Sub) funds, which support, among other

Coq au Beer

The unique seasoning action of beer tenderizes meat and transforms ordinary dishes into exciting gourmet fare.

Try this continental favorite on your family:

BUDA CHICKEN PAPRIKA

2 1/2 lb. chicken pieces
1/4 cup butter
1 medium onion, chopped
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon chicken stock concentrate or 1 chicken bouillon cube

1/2 cup beer
2 tablespoons minced green pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream, heated

In a deep casserole, melt the butter and stir in the onion, cooking until golden. Add the paprika and the cup of chicken. Brown the meat on all sides. Add the chicken stock concentrate, beer, green pepper, and salt.

Cover the casserole tightly and simmer gently for about 45 minutes, until the chicken is tender.

Pour off the chicken gravy and strain it. Blend in the hot sour cream. Taste and add more paprika, if needed.

Return the gravy mixture to the casserole and blend with the chicken parts. Serve hot.

Makes 4 servings.

Open Diplomacy?
 If there had been any record of even partial success or suggested progress in any secret or behind-the-scenes discussions of possibilities for peace in the Near East, one would have reason for being frightened by the fact that proposed peace plans are now coming into the open and getting open public discussion.

But secret diplomacy has done little or nothing. The situation in the Near East has gone from bad to worse. It now appears that the belligerents there and their big outside big power supporters are going to have to try to make peace—or make the beginning of an effort to make peace—in public discussion, or not at all.

Accordingly, it is good news that the Nixon Administration has been putting forward, ever since last December, its own creditable peace plan for the Near East.

It is also good news that Russia has now come out with a peace plan which is perhaps not too far away from the American position.

It is good news that recent actions of the Israeli parliament, and now the public speech by Foreign Minister Abba Eban has seemed to offer new possibilities toward negotiation.

The next good move, if it comes, would obviously seem to have to come from President Nasser, in acceptance, of the negotiation possibility mentioned by Foreign Minister Eban, or in his own suggestion of a positive alternative.

The great merit of such public making of offers and consideration of offers and answer to offers is that one party or the other may get itself bound into some deadlock word or phrase from which it cannot extricate itself without public loss of face. What each party says or proposes, in its turn, is important not only for what the party itself means, but for what the opposing party, in its own context of thought and policy, will take it to mean, or suspect it of meaning. As has long been obvious in such public discussion, the various parties find it safer to begin with a rejection of anything the other side has seemed to offer, and to end up with possibly subtle reservations in what ever they themselves undertake to offer.

As in tennis, which is also a public game, it is sometimes difficult to follow the course of the play from one court to the other.

This is not tennis.
 The motto over all the state departments and foreign offices involved might well read, however:
 "Survival, Anyone?"

Safety By Fad Or Science?
 One automobile manufacturer has suggested that it would be a very sensible thing if the federal government would postpone by two years the date on which it now proposes to require the installation of inflatable crash bags in every car.

The present date for making this equipment mandatory is Jan. 1, 1972.
 The Detroit manufacturer suggested making it Jan. 1, 1974.

Meanwhile, the federal Department of Transportation seems to have bought the estimate that installation of these air bags, which would inflate at the instant of any kind of crash impact, would save 20,000 lives a year in American highway accidents. The Department's use of this statistic indicates it will not grant any delay.

Conceivably, then, a little more than two years from now, every new automobile will come equipped with its in-flatable safety bag.

It may indeed prove to be the greatest saver of lives in highway history.
 Then, again, it may become discredited almost as soon as it has been made compulsory equipment.

One thing seems certain. It is that the inflatable bag has not yet begun to have the kind of floating, that should protect any arbitrary requirement that it must be installed in all automobiles. It could prove, with more testing, or with actual experience on the highways and in accidents, to be as far from what the ultimate, sensible kind of body-protection is going to be as the belt and the seat belt are in its relatively short span of actual use on the highways. We now have seat belts some people use and some people don't, and shoulder harnesses that a few people use while most people don't, even though the shoulder harness seems to be considered, by the safety experts, the superior device. Perhaps we should try to make the most required installation one that has been actually tested out to be good enough to make possible the elimination of other devices of duplicating function.

Even in safety, we seem to follow fads more than science.

The Thought And The Putt
 For the want of a two foot putt, one day, the championship was lost. By the making of a five foot putt, the next day, the championship was won. Why should the five foot putt be made, and the two foot putt be missed?

It was not a difference in greens, or in putter, or in stance, or in practice with strokes. It was not that one golfer had physical talents better than another's.
 It was not, obviously, the logical result of a difference in distances.

What happened was this: just after the stroke drawn back had committed itself into the beginning of a stroke forward some faint wisp of a thought crossed the mind of the golfer. It may have concerned the nature of the shot being made, or what would be for support later on. Naturally enough, the golfer shut it off, by sharp, deliberate mental effort, the split-second it threatened to interfere with his concentration on the stroke being made.

Nevertheless, in the mere thousandth of a second in which the thought-above Eban seemed to offer new possibilities toward negotiation.

Indeed, the Gilligan of 1970 only faintly resembles the Gilligan of 1968, whose New Politics campaign for the Senate was an artistic success but an electoral failure. A brief quotation from G. K. Chesterton was the only example at Steubenville of the intellectual exhibitionism that offends in Gilligan today.

When putting, don't think. Not sideways, at least.

Presumptuous Senator Marcus Edward L. Marcus of New Haven, the state senator who wants to become United States Senator, has announced that he is going to Vietnam to see for himself how things are going in the war.
 He says he wants to "bridge the communication gap between the government's foreign policy and the people of Connecticut."

Senator Marcus's interest in foreign policy is commendable. A man who aspires to sit in the U.S. Senate needs to know a good deal about foreign policy.
 But Senator Marcus is not in the U.S.
 Senate yet. As a matter of fact, his party has not even nominated him, and it may not do so.

Senator Marcus's proposed junket to Vietnam—at his own expense, we assume—has all the earmarks of a political gambit. He doubtless remembers how Dwight Eisenhower, when he was running for President the first time, pledged that he would go to Korea, to end the war. The pledge to go to Korea is credited by political experts with having played a determining role in Eisenhower's election.

Senator Marcus has not pledged that he will end the war if he goes to Vietnam; his intentions are much more modest. He proposes merely to see for himself what is going on there, and to report on his services as a credible information officer between the armed forces in Vietnam and the people back home.

Senator Marcus may have happened upon a smart political gambit just as Eisenhower did. But it is hard to find justification for a man who is not even nominated yet to be acting as if he were already a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.—MERIDEN

Gilligan's Old Politics

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

STREIBENVILLE, Ohio — Nothing could have been more removed from New Politics polemics than the quiet little pop talk given by Gilligan at Steubenville's Holiday Inn last week.

What happened was this: just after the stroke drawn back had committed itself into the beginning of a stroke forward some faint wisp of a thought crossed the mind of the golfer. It may have concerned the nature of the shot being made, or what would be for support later on. Naturally enough, the golfer shut it off, by sharp, deliberate mental effort, the split-second it threatened to interfere with his concentration on the stroke being made.

Nevertheless, in the mere thousandth of a second in which the thought-above Eban seemed to offer new possibilities toward negotiation.

A Thought for Today

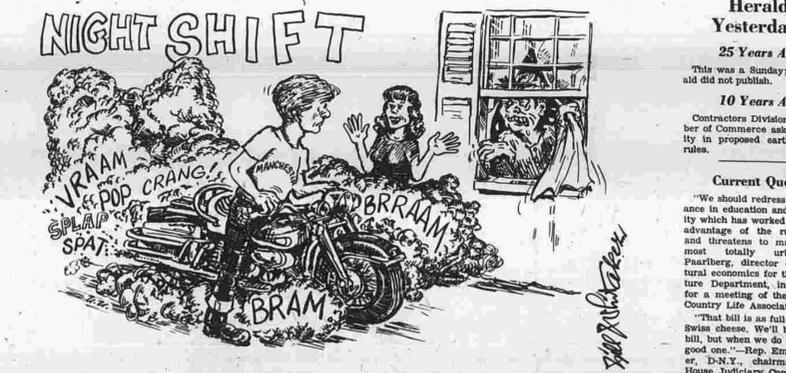

Long before someone devised the manipulative science of Hespianism, the rich young ruler, Mark 10 had learned that if you want something from someone you must begin with an image-building compliment to the person from whom you want something. The suave young man wanted to establish rapport by his solicitous sanction of Jesus' Hespianism.

"Good Master," he said, in his impudently... "You're one of my kind... I, too, have tried to be good. Now tell a fellow good man, what this eternal life is you're talking about?"

The last thing Jesus needed or wanted was a compliment; He desired the man's commitment. "Man, do you realize what you are saying? There is none good that can be done in me, for I am born in sin and my flesh is corrupt. I am God's Son and good that comes from God, that is the gift of our holy Father and our holy Mother, the Holy Spirit, who dwells in us and who gives us the power to do good things."

South St. Apartments Get Preliminary Site Approval

The Planning and Zoning Commission has given preliminary site plan approval to Development Morton Shimmelman for his proposed 500-unit apartment project in the South St.-Judd Rd. area.

The action came on a split vote with Acting Chairman Everett Frost) were in favor.

At its meeting Monday night, the PZC also received final plans from Harry England for his proposed shopping center at the corner of Rta. 44A and 31. No action was taken by the PZC on the shopping center plans, but the opportunity to thoroughly review the presentation before making a decision.

The Shimmelman proposal was the subject of a public hearing last month, at which several townspeople expressed concern over the developer's ability to come up with satisfactory sanitary disposal methods. Duffly meeting.

The PZC plan also to check with concerned town agencies, such as the Conservation Commission, because of such changes in the plan as the abandonment of piping the brook.

Coventry Citizens For Duffly will meet tomorrow night at 8 at the home of Mark Rose, Merrow Rd., to further discuss plans for the Duffly campaign for the Aug. 19 primary. Twenty volunteers are signed up to work on the campaign, and mail and phone canvasses are being planned.

WASHINGTON — Barber R. Conable, Jr., Sam M. Gibbons and F. Bradford Morse are not, as the saying goes, household names. They are among the many "faceless" men in the House of Representatives, known to their constituents, their colleagues in Congress and the Washington scene, as a few dozen Capitol Hill reporters—and to virtually no one else.

But Conable, Gibbons and Morse were the central figures at two occasions last week that were certainly the most hopeful and perhaps the most significant of the Washington scene.

Conable, an upstate New York Republican, and Gibbons, a Florida Democrat, were the main spokesmen at the press conference introducing the package of congressional reform proposals backed by a bipartisan bloc of 88 representatives.

Morse, a Republican from Lowell, Mass., chaired the Capitol Hill luncheon for United Nations Secretary General U Thant, sponsored by the 88-member bipartisan group called Members of Congress for Peace Through Law (MCPL).

Press conferences and celebrity luncheons are, of course, a dime a dozen in Capitol Hill. And a cynic could easily argue that neither the Congressional group nor MCPL, has much in the way of concrete accomplishments so far.

The Conable-Gibbons reform group is brand new and its first test will come when it tries to strengthen the Congressional reorganization bill on the floor of the House this week. While the odds of success are present, there is no guarantee that the stand-patters will not succeed again, as they have in the past, in defeating or delaying the reform effort.

As for Morse's MCPL, it has been functioning so quietly for its almost four years of existence that even close observers of Congress were unaware of its last week, when it drew attention by playing host to U Thant.

State's Spending Seven Times That of 1950

MANCHESTER EVENING HERALD, MANCHESTER, CONN., WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1970

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Connecticut Public Expenditure Review Commission is spending seven times as much this year for current operations as it did 20 years ago.

The figures, according to the privately-financed study organization, are:

- $144 million in 1950.
- $1,000,000,000 in 1970.

The figures don't include the combination of over-spending and bonded borrowing which could top the $100 million mark this year.

In other key growth areas, the CPERC reported that the number of state employees has soared from 17,466 in 1950 to 69,000 this year.

In this fiscal period which ends July 1, 1971, educational spending is devouring up to one-third of the state's budget, 20 times as great as it was in 1950.

Twenty years ago the state was paying $5 million a year in principal and interest on its debt. This year it is paying $184 million a year, the CPERC reported.

Meanwhile, Tuesday, State Comptroller Louis J. Glendon reported the state is remaining on a course which will lead to the highest deficit in its history.

He now projects a deficit of $189,431,182 by July 1, 1971. This is $28,528 larger than the deficit projection he announced about a month ago.

Penn Central Woes Provide Food for Years of Thought

MANCHESTER EVENING HERALD, MANCHESTER, CONN., WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1970

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opinion now circulating that the stock market and the economy have shaken off the shock of the Penn Central Transportation bankruptcy reorganization appear to be superficial and incredibly premature.

The first shock perhaps; but in the bowels of the economy there are secondary waves that haven't surfaced, and government and business financial specialists are keenly aware of rumblings.

Effects will turn up for years. In American white-hot stock markets and European financial centers, on campuses dependent upon dividend checks in banks which made loans, on other railroads which need rolling stock but may find it almost impossible to finance such purchases.

What will foreign investors now think of the Penn Central American corporations? Will they lose faith in other companies as well?

Money from abroad has become a significant factor in American markets, the total rising to $172 billion in 1970 from $113 billion five years earlier. Such funds are a prop under some stocks. Will they be withdrawn?

And for students of corporate management? Does the Penn Central's troubles mean that the role of the director should be re-examined? Some Penn Central directors claim they were as poorly informed as the public about finances. Whose fault is that? Whose responsibility?

Can any smart investor henceforth be impressed by the "big name" board, knowing that its members might be performing a function little more than ceremonial while actually sitting in ignorance?

What may be said for the institutions that put millions upon millions of their customers' money into this railroad's stock without knowing the business of the investment?

Can they simply plead ignorance while at the same time retaining their dignity as professional managers? Or was there a violation of fiduciary trust?

New Device Chosen

WASHINGTON—A design for a new Appalachian Trail insignia carrying the designation National Science Trail has been selected by the Appalachian Trail Advisory Council.

The new triangular device is planned as a standard marker for the trail and will be supplemented by the diamond-shaped markers already familiar to hikers from Maine to Georgia.

All About Iran: Shah Leads Way into 20th Century

By ROY ESSOVAN
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Things are looking up in this land of the ancient Persians. A change is afoot. The Shah is leading the way into the 20th century.

The ordinary Persian has had to scrape for a living since time began, however, and he isn't convinced the good life is here to stay. It started, after all, barely six years ago.

"It's all too new," says a well-educated, middle-aged Iranian, "but one thing I know. Ten years ago I had no hope. I thought only of escaping to the United States, Europe, anywhere. Today nothing would make me leave. My life is here."

Westerners point to a new feeling of hope and pride in Iran. It is most evident in this sprawling capital with its new office buildings, supermarkets, freeways and gleaming, modern factories.

Much of it is due to the White Revolution, a sweeping reform program aimed at turning a primitive, peasant society into an industrialized 20th century power. The revolution was launched in 1953, in the teeth of violent opposition, by Iran's energetic, Western-oriented Shah, Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Financed by booming oil revenues—$1.2 billion last year—the reforms brought internal stability and independence to a country that had long been ruled by the big powers, rocked by riots and dissension.

The gross national product has risen 10.5 per cent a year the last five years. Per capita income is $200, more than double that of eight years ago. The number of cars has doubled in five years. Television is reaching out and farmers gather around remote village televisions every evening to watch Peyton Place or Bonanza, dubbed in impeccable Persian.

Progress has brought headaches. People in this traffic-choked capital complain about the government's financial forcing them to pay. They cite telephone cuts as much as $200 on the black market, and cite the highway rate of traffic accidents. The traffic is so bad that the government budgets $200,000 income every year from traffic fines.

In the sun-baked mid-western villages where two-thirds of Iran's 28 million people live, the problems and complaints are fiercer.

"We have had no rain, our well has run dry and we have not grown anything for two years," said Elnolo Shidrach, a 22-year-old farmer in the mud-baked village of Fakimabad, south of Tehran.

He sat on a small rug in a white-washed room furnished only with a battered chest, a kerosene lamp, a cracked mirror and the ever-present portrait of the ruler. A few dishes were stacked in a grain lay in a corner. Swarms of flies billowed around the room.

Land reform came to Fakimabad five years ago. Each farmer was given 15 acres of land formerly owned by a landlord who owned several villages.

Four years ago Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, Shidrach's father-in-law, told an Associated Press correspondent: "We are our own boss now and the first thing we will do is get a machine to dig a well and buy a pump so we can have water. That will change everything."

Shidrach says the villagers are collecting money for the well but the village council is disorganized and the equipment is expensive. Farshan has moved away and now works for an oil company, and Shidrach bicycles 12 miles a day to work and back.

"I rent 20 hectares (about 50 acres) of land and I grow beans, radishes, 12 different kinds of vegetables," said Ali Hassanpur, a man in his mid-30s wearing a neatly pressed sports shirt and slacks. "My main problem is labor. I employ 20 laborers and I pay them a good wage. I don't get the extra money and finish them before the next semester," a teacher said.

The national literacy rate is barely 30 per cent. But that's double what it was 10 years ago. Civil liberties, racial strife, problems are things most Iranians read about only in the foreign news section.

There is a drug problem among the older generation. Unpleasant, a new law anyone found carrying more than a few ounces of heroin or four pounds of opium is subject to execution, and 34 convicted offenders have been shot in the last few months.

"We stopped communism in its tracks by shooting 30 people and we'll stop drug addiction the same way," a government official said.

The shah puts it somewhat differently. "Signaling the execution orders for drug offenders is the most difficult thing I have to do," he said recently. "But I'm glad when it's something involving the security of the state. When it concerns me personally, as in the case of attempts on my life, I have always pardoned the culprit."

The number of drug addicts was estimated at a million in 1968. It's down to about 500,000 today.

Pollution is a growing problem in industrialized areas such as Tehran but it also works in reverse.

Pollution from Soviet factories on the northern shore of the Caspian Sea is driving caviar-bearing sturgeon south to the Persian shores.

The problem of women's rights is being solved, after a fashion. Persian women dropped the veil in 1958 and won the right to vote—and divorce—in 1963. But even enlightened males feel the divorce laws will have to be tightened if the Iranian home is to be preserved. A woman in Teheran had even suggested birth control but now they come in and ask for the pill themselves.

On Tehran's streets, boys with long hair, tight pants and lace shirts thread their way between dignified old gentlemen in turbans and flowing robes. Miniskirts and midskirts mingle with the all-enveloping abayas many women here still wear.

Taxis clog the streets but they're so full that teachers and civil servants make a tidy side income moonlighting as cab drivers in unlicensed private cars.

On summer weekends the 150-mile stretch of highway leading north is bumper-clogged with cars making the eight-hour round trip to escape 100-degree heat for the cool and greenery of the Caspian.

"Prosperity" Jamshid Pirouz, a department head in a government office, said rhetorically. "The last time I called a plumber he came in his own car. My maid owns two houses. We used to cook on charcoal. Now we use gas. And I have an air-conditioner at home."

There is little unemployment but underemployment in an endemic as corruption in Iran. Thousands of grown men spend their lives opening the doors of government offices or pouring oil. And it still takes many pieces of paper, and many greased palms, to obtain the simplest permit, or license.

But 10 years ago you had to be a member of Iran's elite to hold any job of importance. Today many of the top jobs in the government are held by bright young Western-educated technicians who get up early and work late into the night.

Khodabadi Farmanfarmaian, governor of the Central Bank and generally regarded as a financial wizard, is 41, a graduate of Stanford, and married to an American. Ardeshir Zahedi the Four Strads Go 'Home'

NEW YORK (AP)—On April 7, four Stradivarius instruments which belonged to Paganini returned to the place of their birth, Cremona, when the Iowa String Quartet performed using them.

The quartet, in residence at the State University of Iowa, Iowa City, is on its sixth tour of Europe.

The four Strads used by the Iowa String Quartet are loaned by the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. The quartet is allowed to keep them, as long as it remains together.

Despite the problems of a continuing guerrilla war, Israel is taking time out for the peaceful sports event of yachting—especially the world yachting championships for Class 420 yachts to be held this summer off the Tel Aviv shoreline.

To honor the coming water sport competition, the first official one of its kind to be held in that country, Israel has issued three new stamps. According to the Israel Philatelic Agency in America, the three values show the 420 Class yachts in competition, the sea to the air, Israel has also issued a new stamp in tribute to its Azeva aircraft, the first completely Israeli-designed and developed plane. Known as the advanced Cargo Avion, the STOL (Short Take-Off and Landing) the twin-turboprop is capable of using rough, unimproved landing strips.

The "Stamps & Posts of Scandinavia" exhibit, the first of the Smithsonian Institution's Hall of Philately in Washington, D.C., will continue until Aug. 2. The interesting and unusual display of the philatelic material by the five countries—Sweden, Finland, Denmark, Norway and Iceland—proved so popular that the exhibition was extended from its original closing date of June 21. Some of the displays include a Scandinavian joint showing of the Nordic omnibus issue, postal stationery, first flight covers, representations of the postal issues of Greenland, a rare collection of Icelandic issues, a complete set of the University of Norway No. 1, never shown previously, Swedish 19th century stamps, and a collection of postage due markings and box cancellations (also never before publicly shown). A selection of Zeppelin-flown mail plus other non-philatelic but related material.

Introducing the lowest-lead, highest-octane gasoline for the money. Anywhere.

New Big Plus.

We've taken lead out, kept the octane high. And we've priced it below premium.

To help clean the air.

Cleaning the air is the biggest thing we wanted to accomplish. So we took lead out of Big Plus. Actually, there wasn't that much lead to begin with. One-and-a-half cc's of tetraethyl lead, less than an eyedropper-full in a gallon. Now we've removed one cc of that. To make Big Plus 99.98% lead-free on a volume basis.

Then we doubled the amount of engine-cleaning detergent, to reduce exhaust emissions even more.

It all adds up to this: Big Plus will cut automotive air pollution from your car significantly. Right now.

9 out of 10 drivers can use Big Plus without worrying about engine knock.

Big Plus is high in octane.

It has what engineers call a 'research octane' rating of 96. Octane, of course, is not the only guide to choosing a gasoline. But it's important.

Big Plus will work perfectly in cars that don't have real high-compression engines. Cars that do should use our premium gasoline, Esso Extra.

There are 83,000,000 cars on the road today. What we've done is to make Big Plus an anti-pollution gasoline that 9 out of 10 drivers of today's cars can use without worrying about engine knock. And it'll be good for the 1971 cars, too.

Why we didn't take out all the lead.

We could have, of course. But engine testing shows that some lead is needed to prevent possible valve damage.

So we left the minimum amount in. And still made a cleaner gasoline. Try it soon. And help your car run clean.

There may be other questions about gasoline you'd like answered.

So we've prepared a comprehensive brochure. You can get it free at Esso stations. Or write Humble's Consumer Affairs office, Box 2180, Houston, Texas 77001.

Yankee Aluminum Request Before ZBA Again Monday

An application by the Yankee Aluminum Door Corp. for permission to display and sell camp trailers at 35 Oakland St. will again be on a crowded agenda of the Zoning Board of Appeals when it meets Monday at 7 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Also slated to be heard are requests for a change in a car wash operation, enlargement of a gasoline service station, and approval of a new car dealer's license plus 10 applications for zoning variances.

Monday will mark the fourth time the Yankee Aluminum application has been before the ZBA. The unusual decision by the board to consider the case again stems from its decision last month that it had treated the applicant unfairly. The applicant, John J. Shields, 65 Battista Sidney Schwartz of West Hartford, the owner of Yankee Aluminum.

Schwartz first appeared before the ZBA last February but was denied permission to sell camp trailers outside his place of business at the Oakland St.-Apel Pl. intersection on the grounds that it might pose a traffic hazard.

Schwartz later went before the board two more times, the latest being in May when members voted 3-1 to grant his application.

During that vote, chairman Charles Pirie abstained, citing a personality conflict between himself and the applicant.

Because four affirmative votes are needed to pass the application, according to board rules, the effect of the action was to deny it.

Thereafter, a controversy arose among members over their handling of the application.

Academy Elects South Windsor Artist

Mrs. Edward Gutt of South Windsor has been elected to the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts. The academy has for years been the only state organization of professional artists founded to advance American art.

Her work has been shown in juried competitions of the Sisterhood of Beth El Temple in West Hartford, the Springfield Art League Shows, the Connecticut Society of Women Painters, and the Pleasant Valley Art Festival.

She does not produce many paintings but a scheduled exhibit gives her the incentive to "have to be exciting."

Although she is not opposed to realism in painting, she believes that "it is the innovators that do stand out and not the copiers."

Mrs. Gutt has exhibited in the 27th annual exhibition of the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts. Her work has been shown in juried competitions of the Sisterhood of Beth El Temple in West Hartford, the Springfield Art League Shows, the Connecticut Society of Women Painters, and the Pleasant Valley Art Festival.

Kiwans Speaker Questions Motivations of Censorship

Motion pictures should not be censored by the government or anyone else outside of the film industry, said a spokesman at a Kiwanis Club luncheon yesterday, and many of the people who do press for film censorship are spurred by unhealthy motivations.

The speaker was Atty. Hermon Levy of New Haven, general counsel and executive secretary of the National Association of Theater Owners (NATO) of Connecticut. His speech before Kiwanis was entitled, "The Censorship of Motion Pictures."

Quoting from a psychologist, Atty. Levy said that some of the people who push hardest for the censorship of sex in films can't cope with their own sexuality and feel guilty about sexual feelings. Their own true feelings may not jibe with the attitude of Victorian restraint.

Others who push for film censorship, Atty. Levy said, may do so for personal or political gain, to gain a sense of personal power over others, or because they feel "society would be improved if everyone shared their values."

But the new freedom is good, Atty. Levy said, because films formerly confined in a scope by Victorian restraints "are slowly being replaced by a more honest, compassionate and knowledgeable approach to human relationships, world affairs, religion . . . and the full spectrum of human behavior."

In the future, excessively pornographic films "may cease to be produced," he projected, "when older generations are no longer titillated by such opportunities for voyeurism and vicarious thrills."

Atty. Levy admitted that part of his purpose in speaking is to help Kiwanis Club members yesterday was to improve the theater owners are not just bad guys, he said, but to make money regardless of the nature or effect of their films.

Instead, Atty. Levy maintained the theater owner is a "nice guy" who has not done what Hollywood producers and who has to show people what they want to see in order to make a living.

Theater owners throughout when he became disillusioned with the Castro regime.

Court Sentences Glenn Argiros In Escape Case

A Vernon man has been sentenced to a 7-1/2 year prison term on a charge of escape from custody.

Glenn Argiros, 20, of Dobson Rd., was sentenced by Middlesex County Superior Court Judge Aaron Palmer yesterday in connection with a March 20 escape from the Connecticut Valley State Hospital in March.

Argiros, and William K. Hamilton, 20, of 138 W. Center St., escaped from the Middletown mental hospital after allegedly stabbing an attendant Hamilton had been transferred to the hospital from the State Reformatory at Cheshire. Argiros had been held previously at the Toland Correctional Center.

The two were apprehended at gunpoint by Manchester police hours after escaping. They were nabbed at a motel room in Poland Tpk. At that time, they were charged with possession of narcotics. The drug charge against Argiros was nolle prosequi by the State's Attorney.

May 18, but Hamilton was bound over to Hartford County Superior Court on that charge.

No date in Middlesex court has been set for Hamilton on the escape charge.

Brothers Held In Vandalism

Manchester detectives have placed charges against two brothers in connection with vandalism in town.

Steven Waldo, 16, and Thomas Waldo, 17, both of 19 Bva. Dr., were arrested yesterday on a Circuit Court 12 warrant. Another 15-year-old boy, name withheld because of his age, was referred to juvenile authorities.

Steven Waldo was charged with injury to public property in connection with vandalism at the Parkside Leases March 27, and larceny under 2500. The larceny charge is the result of the alleged theft of a windshield from a parked car owned by Charles Kallher of 312 E. Middle Tpk.

BUGGS BUNNY
A PIPE BUSTED IN YER BASEMENT AN IT'S FULL OF WATER.
I GUESS HE DROPPED OVER IT. I'LL COME BACK AN' I'LL CHEER HIM UP MORE TOMORROW!

ALLEY OOP
SEX IS DOING ALL RIGHT, BUT HER SUPPER'S OUT OF LAPS.
IF HE CAN FINISH IN THE TOP THREE, WE CAN GET IN BUSINESS.

DAVY JONES
WHAT HAT STARTED YOU THINKING, BOBBY.
TRY AGAIN, STONEY.
HEV YOU TWO QUIT BUGGING THE BOY?

WAYOUT
YOUR HIGH PROTEIN DIET DID WORK!
YOU DID LOSE 20 POUNDS!
UNFORTUNATELY IT ALL CAME OFF YOUR HEAD!

BUZZ SAWYER
WHAT CHURCH GOES TO GET SO EXCITED OVER SOMEBODY PLANTING A "BOMB" AND THEN PLUM DISAPPEARS.
OH, NA, NA! DID YOU SEE CRANKLEY AND HIS MEN RUNNING TO ALL THE WINDOWS, LOOKING FOR A BOMB THREW?

MICKEY FINN
WHY UNCLE HOPPY... HE'S QUITE A BIT OLDER THAN MEAN, BUT HE'S YOUNG HEARD AND I LOVE HIM!
BOSH! HEY, CAL! I THINK WE'VE FOUND A FORTUNE! BUT I THINK WE'VE FOUND A WORSE FORTUNE!
HE'S A SHERIFF... THE ONLY SHERIFF WHO EVER GOT RICH... JOHN WAYNE!

MR. ABERNATHY
WHAT DO YOU HAVE IN THE BUCKET, BILLY JOE?
THE BIGGEST CATFISH I'VE EVER SAW!
CAN I KEEP HIM?
SURE, BUT WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO WITH HIM?

PRISCILLA'S POP
BEAUTIFUL!
TRULY EXQUISITE!
HURRY OVER, PRISCILLA, AND I'LL COOK YOU UP SOMETHING TO EAT.
GUESS WHAT? HIS GOTTA BOY-FRIEND!

LANCELOT
THAT LOOKS LIKE FUN, CAN I TRY LIFTING WEIGHTS, TOO?
SURE, LORI, BUT THEY'RE HEAVY!
BEFORE YOU LIFT THESE BIG ONES, YOU'VE GOT TO BUILD UP YOUR STRENGTH.
WHY I'VE EVER LET HIM COME INTO THESE THINGS, I'LL NEVER KNOW.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with MAJOR HOOPLE
DID YOU EVER HAVE COFFEE IN THE MORNING?
CERTAINLY! WHOSE COFFEE?
NOT THAT I'D CARE, BUT I'D LOVE TO TRY YOURS.
UGH!

OUT OUR WAY with J. B. WILLIAMS
WHICH ONE OF THOSE CLOWNS DID THIS MARY-YOU HUSBAND ON YOUR SON OR ARE THEY BOTH IN ON IT?
WELL, I'M SURE THAT YOU'VE GOT THAT WAY FORK THAT WAY FORK AND THEN MOVE-ON!

CARNIVAL with DICK TURNER
I'M GOING OUT TO FACE THE KING KID.
TRY AND ARGUE ME OUT OF IT!
SHERIFF RINGO IS FAST... HE'S ALREADY SHOT OVER FIFTY MEN!

STEVE CANYON
ADAM, I THINK YOU SHOULD SEE THE CITY AND LET THEM SEE YOU.
HERE! NOT THESE!
HOLD IT, BIDY! THIS IS THIRD AND MAIN.
NOT THE BEACH!
MY FRIEND IS A NAVY FROGMAN ON LIBERTY!

WINTHROP
I THINK WE OUGHT TO TAKE ALL OUR SOLDIERS OUT OF INDOCHINA...
AND BRING THEM ALL BACK TO THE UNITED STATES...
AND GET THEM TO WORK STOPPING ON GERMS.

CAPTAIN EASY
22 LINDEN DRIVE... OKAY, I'VE GOT IT!
ONE THING MORE, BARRY... WATCH OUT FOR A MAN WITH A RIFLE AND ONLY THREE FRIENDS ON HIS RIGHT SHOULDER!
EVERY WORD OF THE CONVERSATION IS BEING PICKED UP AND RECORDED.
HE'S BAD... MEDICINE AND EXPLOSIVES... I'VE GOT TO GET HIM OFF THIS ISLAND.
YOU'D BETTER... I'VE GOT TO GET HIM OFF THIS ISLAND.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING DEPT. HOURS 8 A.M. to 4:30 P.M.
COPY CLOSING TIME FOR CLASSIFIED ADVT. 1:30 P.M. DAY BEFORE PUBLICATION
PLEASE READ YOUR AD
Classified or "Want Ads" are taken over the phone as a convenience. The advertiser should read his ad the FIRST DAY IT APPEARS and REPORT ERRORS in time for the next insertion.

HERALD BOX LETTERS
THE HERALD will not disclose the identity of any advertiser using box letters. Readers answering the blind box letters who desire to protect their identity can follow this procedure:
Enclose your reply to the box in an envelope addressed to the Classified Manager, c/o The Herald, 100 Main St., Manchester, N.H. 03101. With a memo listing the companies you do NOT want to see your letter. Your letter will be destroyed if the advertiser is one you've mentioned, not if it will be handled in the normal manner.

"Good health and physical fitness are the logical and necessary starting points for excellence in all things."

We didn't say that. The President's Council on Physical Fitness did. But we couldn't agree more!

For twenty years it has been the mission of the European Health Spas to help men and women discover for themselves that vibrant good health adds a plus to every — yes, every — activity and aspect of life.

Our three-quarter-million-dollar facility now under construction in Manchester is designed "from the ground up" to provide the latest and best in scientifically-developed conditioning equipment.

Ex-Official Linked To Oil Deal

By BERNARD D. ROSSITER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Just before he became treasury secretary in 1957 and a central figure in policy-making to protect oil prices, Robert E. Anderson completed a deal with some oil men designed to pay him nearly $1 million.

Anderson didn't have to look far for a drifter. He found Sid W. Richardson and was rewarded with a share in the oil rights of the Texas oil company.

Bridgeport Jailbreaker Captured

By DAN HALL Associated Press Writer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The prosecutor continued to question a young woman witness Thursday after she was the first to connect Black Panther Party member Louis Lomax with a Panther member who was shot to death last year.

McLucas is on trial on a charge of kidnaping resulting in death. Testimony moved into the third day today as State's Atty. General Markle and Miss Loyola Luckes went through the events of May 20, 1969, at the Panther Party headquarters in New Haven.

She reiterated today her testimony of Wednesday that she saw the man who she said was the slaying victim—Alex Rackley of New York City—and two other men who have pleaded guilty to murder in the Rackley case.

Arrested about 30 minutes after the midday robbery was Thomas Viola, 33, of the Town River.

Police said Viola also was wanted in Connecticut in connection with the same murder charges.

Police said Viola was arrested when his car went off the road with a state trooper in pursuit. Reed and the third man jumped out of the automobile and escaped.

Police said two of the three men entered the month County National Bank on Route 9 armed with pistols and emptied the bank's cash boxes and vault while a third man waited in a car with a machine gun.

Police said either James or Kimbro returned carrying a rifle, but she was unsure which one.

On Wednesday she testified that the three men had with them a rifle and a .45-caliber pistol when they left the building with Rackley.

Police have charged that Rackley was tortured by the Panthers in the basement of the headquarters, then driven to rural Middletown where he was shot, first by Kimbro and then by McLucas.

Both Kimbro and Kimbs have pleaded guilty to second degree murder and face mandatory life imprisonment.

The Panthers say George Burns was a government agent who killed Rackley, and that McLucas and the seven other defendants in the case, including National Chairman Bobby G. Seal, are being prosecuted in an effort to destroy the party.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel has passed a bill giving Alaska natives 10 million acres of land and $1 billion—the biggest land claims payment in history.

The bill, facing an uncertain fate in the House, calls for the payment to be distributed among descendants of the wandering hunters and fishermen who originally settled the harsh land.

The Senate adopted the measure 76 to 6 Wednesday after inserting an amendment to provide for competitive bidding for the mineral rights on all federal lands in Alaska.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, former governor of the state, said, "For Alaskans and for millions of Americans throughout the 50 states who have been frustrated over the years in trying to do something about the oil and coal rights in the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. Its subsidiary, Harnett, held the rights to the oil and coal in America's first citizens, this party's New Haven, Conn., unit."

Such a change would represent a major departure from the concept used in the Nuremberg trial that every soldier is responsible for his own war crimes.

Hebert noted that the 12 soldiers charged as a result of the My Lai incident in South Vietnam had been fighting in a known Viet Cong stronghold for weeks of seeing companions maimed and killed.

"This man in combat and who knows what he is thinking," Hebert said.

Witness Ties McLucas To Slain Panther

Terror Bombings Quadruple in NYC

WASHINGTON (AP)—New York City's top policeman said today the wave of bombings in his city has grown to the extent that his force can no longer guarantee the safety of persons visiting police precincts or headquarters.

Commissioner Howard T. Leary told the Senate investigating subcommittee that terror bombings have increased by nearly four times in the past five years over the previous similar period.

And, he said, a big increase in detonations of high explosive bombs and incendiary devices has come in the past 18 months including the bomb that wrecked part of New York's police headquarters.

And Hart T. Mankin, counsel for the government's General Services Administration, testified before the subcommittee that federal buildings have jumped 70 per cent in the year they were built since the previous year, but bomb threats went up by 750 per cent, and that damage to GSA property soared 750 per cent, from $10,445 in fiscal 1969 to $78,219 in fiscal 1970.

Leary, flanked by his chief of detectives, in a hearing room guarded by Capitol police, presided over a presentation of prototype bombs, bomb diagrams, photos of bomb damage and charts showing a sharp upward swing in bombings.

The situation has deteriorated so badly, he said, that when citizens visit police headquarters or their local precinct house "we can't guarantee their safety."

Since January 1969, he said, there have been 668 bombings in New York City.

"The explosion of firecrackers and noise making devices has become symbolic of this nation's struggle for freedom," he said.

But Eugene T. Rossides, assistant secretary of the Treasury Department, told a Senate subcommittee Wednesday he regarded a printed account of the tactic as an unfair distortion.

"It won't call it a cheap shot but it was practically that," Rossides told the Senate subcommittee which is studying a recent rash of bombings across the nation.

He said the technique was used in only a few isolated incidents by some regional agents of the Internal Revenue Service unit concerned with controls on guns and munitions.

These agents were perhaps overzealous in their duties, Rossides said, declaring that general browsing through library files to check public reading habits is not now and never has been illegal.

But Rossides said that because official prohibition of the practice, agents involved say they fear opening a legal door to government repression of all political and social dissent, not just that which veers toward violence.

His trial, he said, was held in the Municipal Court building in Shanghai, in a very large room, before "half a dozen" judges.

"I did not know a single word of the language," he said.

He said the Communists also alleged that a Chinese who was arrested in the Korean War visited his Catholic Center in Shanghai and told him about weapons used in the war.

Police said two of the three men entered the month County National Bank on Route 9 armed with pistols and emptied the bank's cash boxes and vault while a third man waited in a car with a machine gun.

Police said either James or Kimbro returned carrying a rifle, but she was unsure which one.

On Wednesday she testified that the three men had with them a rifle and a .45-caliber pistol when they left the building with Rackley.

Police have charged that Rackley was tortured by the Panthers in the basement of the headquarters, then driven to rural Middletown where he was shot, first by Kimbro and then by McLucas.

Both Kimbro and Kimbs have pleaded guilty to second degree murder and face mandatory life imprisonment.

The Panthers say George Burns was a government agent who killed Rackley, and that McLucas and the seven other defendants in the case, including National Chairman Bobby G. Seal, are being prosecuted in an effort to destroy the party.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel has passed a bill giving Alaska natives 10 million acres of land and $1 billion—the biggest land claims payment in history.

The bill, facing an uncertain fate in the House, calls for the payment to be distributed among descendants of the wandering hunters and fishermen who originally settled the harsh land.

The Senate adopted the measure 76 to 6 Wednesday after inserting an amendment to provide for competitive bidding for the mineral rights on all federal lands in Alaska.

Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel, former governor of the state, said, "For Alaskans and for millions of Americans throughout the 50 states who have been frustrated over the years in trying to do something about the oil and coal rights in the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. Its subsidiary, Harnett, held the rights to the oil and coal in America's first citizens, this party's New Haven, Conn., unit."

Such a change would represent a major departure from the concept used in the Nuremberg trial that every soldier is responsible for his own war crimes.

Hebert noted that the 12 soldiers charged as a result of the My Lai incident in South Vietnam had been fighting in a known Viet Cong stronghold for weeks of seeing companions maimed and killed.

"This man in combat and who knows what he is thinking," Hebert said.

Bishop Calls Captors 'Humane'

HONG KONG (AP) — Roman Catholic Bishop James E. Walsh today said his treatment during 12 years imprisonment in Red China was "always humane."

Speaking from a wheelchair, Bishop Walsh said he will rest a few more weeks in the hospital, then return to his homeland.

His home is in Cumberland, Md., and he said he also hopes to go to Rome to visit Pope Paul VI when he can travel.

The bishop said he was arrested in Shanghai in 1958 for allegedly possessing "state secrets" and "information about a submarine built in Shanghai and about Chinese weapons used in the Korean War."

"The evidence they produced," he continued, "was that a friend of mine in the shipping business in Shanghai had told me a submarine was built in Shanghai and that was a state secret. My listening to the lips of my friend constituted me as a spy."

He said the Communists also alleged that a Chinese who was arrested in the Korean War visited his Catholic Center in Shanghai and told him about weapons used in the war.

"I did not know a single word of the language," he said.

No Discipline Planned For IRS Agents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department's enforcement chief says discipline is planned for agents who sought to compel librarians in several cities to give them unlimited access to files to identify readers of prototype bombs, bomb diagrams, photos of bomb damage and charts showing a sharp upward swing in bombings.

The result of dramatic investigations and noise making devices has become symbolic of this nation's struggle for freedom," he said.

But Eugene T. Rossides, assistant secretary of the Treasury Department, told a Senate subcommittee Wednesday he regarded a printed account of the tactic as an unfair distortion.

"It won't call it a cheap shot but it was practically that," Rossides told the Senate subcommittee which is studying a recent rash of bombings across the nation.

He said the technique was used in only a few isolated incidents by some regional agents of the Internal Revenue Service unit concerned with controls on guns and munitions.
