Nixon Calls Surprise Press Confab

But the President added that, while there cannot be instant integration, segregation must be ended because that is the law of the land.

Thurmond reacting to Nixon's remarks, said later: "I am pleased that the President has reversed the Justice Department on its plans to sue the South."

The give-and-take on Southern school problems followed the switch earlier to the Midwest, a reporter asked for clarification of Nixon's approach to problems of the area and Soviet movement there.

Nixon recalled having said in his July 1 television address that the U.S. interest in peace and recognition of the sovereignty and independence of every state in the area.

He said the power balance has not been upset by the movement of Soviet weapons and men to the Midwest to man the weapons in this country.

"That is why we are putting such emphasis on our peace initiative. That is why we have not announced any sale of planes or military to Israel at this time because we want to give that peace initiative every chance to succeed."

Then Nixon brought up a point he said was brought up in Washington—the use of the word "expelled" in a White House background discussion concerning Soviet influence in the Midwest.

"The use of the word 'expelled' was not the idea of using armed forces for that purpose," Nixon said, "but to negotiate any peace initiative—removal of these forces which if they remain there we believe might increase the chance of a confrontation."

He grinned and added: "I suppose this needs to be clarified again."

But the questioning got into desegregation instead of clarity. Nixon said he wouldn't and shouldn't speculate on how high unemployment might rise or how strong he thinks economic recovery might be this year.

He said at this point the nation is at a watershed of economic policy—the reason for his rather strong statement to Congress last week on its record of appropriation and spending money.

"When the American people learn that the big spenders in Congress are primarily responsible for higher taxes, and eventually even higher taxes, I think that the American people will turn the big spenders politically."

Figures and statistics point to a cooling of inflation, Nixon said, and "The economic experts, with whom I have been meeting quite regularly here, indicate that the last half of the year will definitely see the economy turning up."

"There have been some indications both in the indicators and also among the economist analysts that the downturn has bottomed out and the last half of the year will see an increase in productivity and an upturn in the economy."

Moon's Night and Day

The moon has a night and day, it rotates on its axis in 29.53 earth days and this is the length of its day, so it has both night and day. It is not as if it were in a state of perpetual day or night. It has a day and a night, and it is not as if it were in a state of perpetual day or night.

South Windsor Anti-Loiter Ordinance Approved by Council

The Town Council unanimously approved an anti-loitering ordinance last night following a hearing that revealed youthful discontent and council reluctance about the law.

One youth argued that the ordinance as written, made it a crime to purchase an item from the local snack shop and remain in his car to consume it.

The ordinance says loitering will be prohibited on school grounds or in school buildings if it interferes with operations and on private property. A violator will be fined not more than 30 days or both.

The council approved the ordinance on July 17. The new ordinance will be in effect by the end of the month.

The ordinance defines loitering as "standing around, moved by the French colonial style, idly, stammering, delaying, lingering or lagging behind."

Both Councilman Peter Nicholson and Mayor Howard Pitts expressed indignation at the ordinance but felt the growth of the town and its people necessitated their support.

The new cells, said Information Ministry spokesman Nguyen Ngoc Huyen, "will not be the same as the tiger cages. They will be better ones."

The tiger cages were first used by the French colonial government in the mid-19th century, and the Saigon government said they had been abandoned.

The two congressmen and others in their party said the prisoners in the cages were denied adequate food, water and medicine and were subjected to physical abuse and other mistreatment.

Their disclosures set off an international outcry, in the Western world as well as from Communist nations. All condemned the South Vietnamese government for its treatment of the prisoners and the United States was criticized because it furnishes financial aid and American advisers to the South Vietnamese.

In reply to the criticism, a spokesman for the Saigon government said those confined in the cages were Communist infiltrators who had not responded properly to the prison re-education process.

Swiss Girls at Home in Brink's Mill Setting

By JUNE LANTON (Herald Reporter) There were two boys and three girls in a group of eight Swiss girls formally welcomed to Hebron over the weekend.

A total of 10 arrived Wednesday for a three-week visit with Hebron area families under the Experiment in International Living Program.

It was a delight to listen to the very soft musical tones of the girls' voices as they spoke their native Swiss-German dialect, but they would quickly switch to English as soon as they detected an outsider among the group, reminding themselves, "Oh, it's not polite."

Appeals Board Puts Conditions On Variances

One application for a variance was tabled by the Zoning Board of Water St. District, three were granted with conditions, and six others passed routinely. There was no opposition to any of the requests.

The board tabled the application of Walter St. District, 173 Deming St., who sought a variance to maintain an existing nonconforming side yard in a Residence A zone.

He told the ZBA he wants to build a family room over an existing open garage.

Before acting, the board decided to check the legal status of the manufacturing garage to learn whether a variance to maintain an existing nonconforming side yard in a Residence A zone.

Fire Ruins Baseball Plant

A fire, marked by two large explosions which apparently were a fireball up an elevator shaft, caused extensive damage yesterday afternoon to the Tober Baseball Manufacturing plant on Brooklyn St.

The exact amount of damage is also not known. Building inspector Francis McNulty said today that the fire damage was mostly confined to the rear of the building to control but there was extensive water damage in other areas.

The fire department was overcome by the extreme heat and smoke. Fire Chief Donald Magdo said he and Vernon Chief William Johnson were at the nearby Administration Building signing final acceptance papers for the town's new fire-fighting equipment.

Camp Trailer Sales Site Approved in New ZBA Vote

After a fourth hearing before the Zoning Board of Appeals, the Yankee Aluminum Corp. has been granted permission to display and sell camp trailers at 25 Oakland St.

Along with its vote, the board stipulated that several conditions must be met by the applicant, Sidney Schwartz, at the outdoor display site, which is located at Oakland St. and Apple Pl.

The stipulations were to satisfy concerns by some members of the board over the possibility of hazardous traffic conditions they felt might be generated by the business at the intersection.

The board also approved another camp trailer sales application, that of James P. Schwartz, at 25 Oakland St. The restrictions on Schwartz limit him to a maximum of four display trailers on the outdoor parking lot, and require him to provide directional signs at the entrance and exit to the parking lot.

There was also some discussion about requiring the applicant to amble the display and parking area, but this was later turned down.

Panther Tortured, Witness Testifies

Associated Press writer. NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—A key prosecution witness testified today that Lonnie McLucas, on trial in connection with the slaying of fellow Black Panther Alex Rackley, helped torture Rackley at Panther headquarters three days before Rackley's body was found.

The witness, Warren Kimbro, 25, who allegedly killed Rackley in an apartment in which Rackley was held and tortured, said he and Rackley were taken to the Panther headquarters at 25 Main St. in New Haven on May 21, 1969 and each punched him five or six times. Police say Rackley was killed and Lonnie McLucas was the one who carried the body to the New York City Panther organization.

Kimbro repeated testimony given by previous state witnesses that McLucas ordered McLucas to get a bucket of water from the kitchen and pour it over the victim's head. McLucas said "Steve and Janet" as informers they would kill him. McLucas said that after that, Kimbro said, "I'll take you to the court house to make up your mind in New York" to keep from being tortured.

Kimbro testified that a tape recording was made of the interrogation at Sams' orders. He testified that he and McLucas were taken to a room where they were to be interviewed. He said that McLucas was very nervous and that he was afraid of him. He said that McLucas was very nervous and that he was afraid of him.

Cong Ambush Cambodians

SRE KHLONG, Cambodia (AP)—Enemy troops ambushed South Vietnamese troops in a supply convoy and apparently killed, wounded or captured a large number of survivors today.

The survivors straggled out of the jungle along a road leading to the Kiri Rom plateau, scene of recent fighting 50 miles west of Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital. It appeared to be the worst ambush of the four-month-old war in Cambodia.

The survivors, many without shoes or headgear, said a four-truck convoy was stopped by a blowup bridge about 10 miles southwest of the capital. The highway garrison at Sre Khlong is made up of several hundred troops supported by mortar and light artillery. It was attacked shortly after 10 a.m. and a military spokesman said fighting was continuing.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops also made a heavy assault on one of Cambodia's largest training centers, Cambodian Air Force Base at Kampong Speu, 60 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. As the fighting continued there, Cambodian air force planes bombed and strafed the attacking troops and mortar positions that fired 200 shells into the camp.

The survivors said they had to fight and the others began firing at the enemy. The enemy then began attacking mortar shells into the camp. The survivors said they had to fight and the others began firing at the enemy.
