

Nazaroff Takes Stand In His Own Defense

By DOUG HEVINS (Herald Reporter)
The manslaughter trial of John Nazarov of Manchester continued yesterday in Hartford County Superior Court, and Nazarov took the witness stand in his own defense.

His attorneys, John Berman and Courtney Bourne, had Nazarov relate most of the details leading up to the January shooting of George Vilbrin, also of Manchester.

The defense began its case late Tuesday afternoon, after Asst. State's Atty. Joseph P. Shelley Jr. rested following the testimony of Nazarov's girlfriend, Joanne M. Breton of Rockville.

The trial began Tuesday of last week. Nazarov, 27, is charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Vilbrin, 32, during a traffic accident that followed a traffic accident at Spruce and Oak Sts. on Jan. 8.

Nazarov was originally charged with first degree murder, but the charge was lowered to second degree. On March 18, a grand jury returned to indict him on the murder count, and the manslaughter charge was filed.

Testimony Began
Nazarov's testimony yesterday was corroborated by Miss Breton's testimony Tuesday. They related about the same facts as the coroner's inquest that revealed late in February. At that time, Deputy Coroner Wil-

Ham J. Shea Jr. found that after they had spent a few hours at the home of Nazarov's friend, Mark Kneec at 48 Madison St., Nazarov and Miss Breton decided to leave the residence. Nazarov decided to look for his car, a Valiant, which had been missing for two days. Testifying that he suspected that his wife had left Nazarov and Miss Breton proceeded to the 200 Maple St. home of Mrs. Nazarov.

Here they saw the Baker car, and they followed them, ending up at Oak and Spruce Sts. There was a lot of commotion around Nazarov's car, with Mrs. Nazarov and Mrs. Baker trying to get in. When Vilbrin appeared, and tried to pull Nazarov from his car, Nazarov said he was terrified.

Nazarov, testifying Vilbrin's alleged attack, remembered the nine-shot revolver he had in his car. He said he was afraid of the man, and fired. Nazarov said Vilbrin was lunging toward him when he pulled the trigger. After the shooting, Nazarov fled the scene.

Also brought out through yesterday's questioning of Nazarov was the alleged "violent nature" of Vilbrin. Nazarov mentioned several incidents when Vilbrin had threatened his life, and said he was afraid of the man. Defense counsel suggested that Vilbrin was the aggressor.

When Shelley asked Nazarov why he shot Vilbrin, the defendant replied: "He was attacking me; to defend myself—I thought he was going to kill me. I was absolutely terrified."

Skelley's intensive cross-examination brought out the fact that Vilbrin had confronted Nazarov, Vilbrin never came closer than ten feet to Nazarov. Skelley asked if it had ever occurred to Nazarov that Vilbrin might be afraid of him. Nazarov did not know.

The defense and prosecution are constantly arguing over points of law, objecting to each other's questions. In addition, Judge Anthony Armentano had to caution Nazarov several times to refrain from volunteering information, which might prejudice the state-man, attorney-in-jury.

Miss Breton had picked up Nazarov from his job at the Quaver Mfg. Co. in Hartford. In the afternoon, and they facts as the coroner's inquest that revealed late in February. At that time, Deputy Coroner Wil-

DAC Survey To Seek Ideas For Educational Programs

Beginning Monday, residents of Manchester will be asked to participate in a town-wide drug situation survey sponsored by the Drug Advisory Center and Public Attention to Narcotic and Drug Abuse (PANDA), in an effort to set up a base line for educational activities for the following year through the Drug Abuse Prevention Center.

The survey was designed by Mark H. Swerdloff, Coordinator of the Drug Advisory Center, and Frank E. Vogel, a state rehabilitation counselor, in an effort to determine what types of programs will be most effective in combating the growing drug abuse situation in Manchester.

Groups of concerned citizens will be contacted by telephone and postal card before they are visited by the Drug Abuse Prevention Center and Public Attention to Narcotic and Drug Abuse (PANDA), in an effort to set up a base line for educational activities for the following year through the Drug Abuse Prevention Center.

All information collected in the survey will be held strictly confidential and used only for data purposes.

Dr. Stanley Fisher, director of the Rehabilitation Research and Training Program at the University of Connecticut, has donated consultant time in helping to interpret the data which is collected, and Tyrone Inc., a national computer processing service firm, located in East Hartford, has donated computer processing time to help use the data meaningfully for the Town of Manchester.

It is expected that meaningful data which can be used to gear educational programs will be available in a short while.

Volunteers who are willing to help administer the survey are urged to contact Mark H. Swerdloff at the Drug Advisory Center as soon as possible, so that they may be trained in surveying methods.

Israel Accepts Peace Plan

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israel accepted today the United States peace proposal for the Middle East and agreed to a three-month cease-fire with the Egyptians.

A government announcement from rightist elements who had threatened to quit Prime Minister Golda Meir's coalition government if it accepted the American proposal.

In Washington, officials expressed hope that the cease-fire might be put into effect without delay. But they said they had no way of knowing if it would continue beyond the expiration of the 90-day Middle East envoy Gunnar Jarring of Sweden.

Egypt and Jordan have already accepted the plan, but Palestinian guerrilla organizations have split on the proposal with the principal commando outfit vowing to continue the fight.

The Israeli Cabinet reached agreement at its fourth meeting on the U.S. proposal, which encountered strong opposition from rightist elements who had threatened to quit Prime Minister Golda Meir's coalition government if it accepted the American proposal.

Coventry Road Head List Year's Projects

Road Foreman John Hardy has listed the road projects scheduled for the current fiscal year, with the long-awaited completion of Brigham Tavern Rd. one of the principal items on the schedule.

The road will be redone (some of the work is now in progress), from Morrow Rd. to the end of the East View Acres subdivision line, leaving a short stretch of dirt road between that point and the other end of the road, which connects with Rt. 44A.

Work on the road will include drainage, grading and filling. Other drainage projects listed by Hardy include covering a culvert on Silver St., replacing a plugged concrete pipe in Twin Hills and completion of a project on Bunker Hill Rd.

The cleaning and grading program will be flexible, with dirt roads graded as needed, waterways opened and roads scheduled for filling to be cleaned and edged. The new sewer will be used to clear streets of accumulated sand, and for cleaning beds.

Maniculous work to be done includes moving cemeteries, checking complaints, installing and replacing signs and patching roads.

Hardy also expected that work might begin in the fall on Monument Hill, a curved and dangerous curve at that point. All work scheduled, Hardy pointed out, is of a nature to be completed this fall.

Maniculous work to be done includes moving cemeteries, checking complaints, installing and replacing signs and patching roads.

Hubert Dirksen, with his mellifluous tones and his well rounded paragraphs. But Hubert has, we think, thought of somebody who might fill the vacant spot.

He also has a voice which is indistinguishable from long distances. He, too, enjoys sheer language as if it were an intoxicant. He, too, would rather talk well on any side of a subject than be on the same side of every issue all his life.

The greatest handicap he faces is that he has not yet learned a lesson Dirksen finally managed to teach himself. Dirksen finally learned that there are always, in every thought, in every speech, a place to stop.

It is not yet on the record that Hubert has ever yet stopped talking, voluntarily.

In fact, a recent poll of the very electorate he hopes will elect him to the Senate revealed that 90 per cent of the people in Minnesota think Hubert talks too much.

If this is a kind of warning to him, in his present campaigning, it is a warning rather difficult for him to heed, at least while he is engaged in the tricky business of trying to persuade the good Minnesota of the present moment that he is really just as safe a character, ideologically, as his successor in federal office. He is that indeed, as safe as Spinoza, that is, as safe as all who really know him can attest, but there are all kinds of things that busy tongues of his has put on the record in the past, and must try to talk it way around now.

The campaign may not last long enough for that.

The Nub Of The Issue

The best way to understand the problem President Nixon has created in the Middle East is to begin with the military facts.

But first, a view of the verdict of acquittal, nor the likely instance of the other view that such an acquittal should amount to continued future license for the police to use their guns in dealing with the military's underlings can be, to our mind, an accurate interpretation of the event.

The fact that the trial was held established the principle that officers of the law are to be held answerable for their conduct and their use of their weapons.

The fact that there was an acquittal said that, in this case, before this jury, the evidence which would hold this policeman at fault had not proved convincing. But this outcome contained no guarantee that the circumstances of the next incident before the next jury might not be different.

Most of us want this to be a sane law and order country and community, in which there is respect for the law not merely because it creates a badge and uniform and gun on behalf of us all, but because, in its exercise of its own duties and powers, it shows itself to be responsible, expert, and mature.

There has been too much defiance of the law lately, almost as if some sections of the population felt they had some special license to be cop-busters. But this situation has not been helped by any occasional tendency on the part of police to become excessively trigger-nervous or trigger-happy.

The fact that this trial was held reaffirmed the fact that society itself, our establishment order, if you will, is determined to enforce the law. It is the capacity not to shoot which distinguishes a good officer of the law even more than his capacity to shoot. The more the criminal world realizes it is dealing with self-control on the part of representatives of the law, the less berserk its own conduct is likely to be.

However we may occasionally wish things to be, the inescapable truth is that violence and violence breed indiscriminately together to produce violence.

When such a situation threatens a community, it is a good thing to have the highest echelon of law and order step in, take jurisdiction, and make it plain that it is still to be reckoned with, because case is a situation which intends to be a rule of law, not of men.

Busy Voice

Reports from the hinterlands of Minnesota tell of a full summer exuberance in the campaigning of one Hubert Horatio Humphrey, who is running to be in the United States Senate again.

There seems, in fact, some special buoyancy in his campaign style, some particular hope in his quest.

And we think we know whence it comes.

We think Hubert recognizes that his voice has a chance of becoming the next most celebrated sound of the United States Senate.

So far, the Nixon peace offensive seems to be making remarkable progress. JOSEPH C. HANCOCK IN THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR

Inside Report African Cloak And Dagger

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — This story goes back to those innocent days when Strom Thurmond was still a Democrat and civil rights bills could be talked to death by a Senate filibuster.

Thurmond had been holding forth at great length on the inequities of whatever was the latest federal infringement on the natural right to discriminate concocted by the infernal liberals. After several hours of this, Thurmond and his kind who held the Southern delegations in line for Mr. Nixon at Miami Beach. And it was they who helped contain George Wallace's threat in the election.

With Wallace back in the saddle in Alabama and as strong as ever in the latest polls, a defection by Thurmond and Co. could knock the props from under Mr. Nixon's strategy for reelection.

Or could it? Is the threat of a Thurmond walkout from the Democrats proved to be in 1948?

An analysis of the Republican "Southern Strategy" published Wednesday by the Ripon Society, the Cambridge-based liberal think tank, makes an interesting point: There has been no "Solid South" in any presidential election since 1944.

Instead, there have been two separate Souths, propelled by differing forces and moving in opposite directions.

There is the "Deep South" for which Thurmond speaks — a band of states from South Carolina west to Louisiana and Arkansas, last week, in their personal college strength, high in their percentage of Negroes and their sensitivity to race issues.

These states, as the Ripon study notes, have a history of being on the losing side in presidential elections. Except for their support of the Kennedy-Johnson ticket in 1960, their backing has been the kiss of death. They supported Thurmond in 1948, Stevenson in 1952 and 1956, Goldwater in 1964 and Wallace in 1968 — losers all.

The other South, termed the "Peripheral South" in the Ripon report, is quite another matter. Comprised of the border states, it has a history of being on the winning side in presidential elections. Except for their support of the Kennedy-Johnson ticket in 1960, their backing has been the kiss of death. They supported Thurmond in 1948, Stevenson in 1952 and 1956, Goldwater in 1964 and Wallace in 1968 — losers all.

Following the luncheon, Donahue toured Manchester shopping areas and then attended a reception in his honor. From 7 to 9 p.m., he was in Manchester Donahue headquarters on Main St., greeting well-wishers. His wife and several of his 12 children joined him at the campaigning in late afternoon.

"I can tell you parenthetically," he told the luncheon guests, "that when I started, I never had any idea whether I'd get the nomination or not. The treatment I received in Manchester spurred me on to work for those minimum 200 delegate votes needed to qualify for a primary."

Donahue said that, after his visit to Manchester, "it was the first indication to people on the outside that I had a chance."

Recognition Factor

Since then, he said, "thanks to TV, radio and newspaper advertising, the recognition factor has caught up. That's the name of the game — recognition."

"And now, less than three weeks before the primary, it's kind of cute that my opponents in the race long before me, want to cut down on spending," he remarked. "I owe it to all the Democratic voters to identify myself — to tell them what I stand for."

He said he will step up his efforts, to identify himself as the party-endorsed candidate, and that he will continue to use all the media, with more concentration on the newspapers.

He said he will place extra emphasis in Fairfield County, the home grounds of Cong. Lowell Weicker, expected to win the Republican nomination.

Saying that he is confident he will win in the Aug. 19 primary, and again in the Nov. 3 election, he called on all Democratic workers to get out the vote.

Organization involvement is a great factor," he said, "because all candidates for office need encouragement. Political organizations are to be praised — not condemned. Our election system wouldn't work without them. Don't ever let anyone convince you they're anything to be ashamed of."

Feels Confident

Donahue predicted that the Democrats will carry the November election. "I can't see it being otherwise."

U.S. Moving Fast On Mideast Peace

Peace Plan

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — With hope that an Arab-Israeli peace settlement may at last be possible, the United States moved to start diplomatic talks at once with Egypt, Jordan and Israel on arrangements for a cease-fire in the Middle East war.

Authorities here would not predict when a cease-fire might go into effect but some believe it may be only a matter of days.

Meanwhile, following up Israel's acceptance of a U.S. peace plan Friday, Washington officials expect that United Nations mediator Gunnar Jarring will begin consultations in New York promptly on the time, place and other details for opening actual negotiations on a Middle East settlement.

Jarring, Swedish ambassador to Moscow who is operating as mediator under U.N. auspices, is due in New York from Sweden late Sunday.

The Israeli government, torn by a cabinet dispute over the risks of agreeing to a cease-fire and the problems of negotiation, was the last of the three governments which received the U.S. proposal to decide on acceptance.

Egypt was first, followed by Jordan.

Notification of the Israeli acceptance was sent immediately to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and President Nixon Friday. A formal statement from the Israeli government is being prepared and U.S. officials expect it to reach the State Department and the Sun Clements White House within a couple of days.

Once that statement is in hand, officials said, detailed exchanges through U.S. diplomatic channels will be started between Jordan and Egypt on one hand and Israel on the other regarding the time and conditions for halting the shooting.

"We do not underestimate the difficulties which still lie ahead...," Nixon said, "but the cease-fire and the negotiations that now appear within reach are at least some hope—some hope that a peaceful settlement can be arrived at."

What has happened so far, Nixon declared, is only a first step.

"It will require moderation, (See Page Six)

Guns Punctuate Belfast Rioting

Pay Curb Bill Voted By House

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The British army used every available kind of riot weapon in Belfast today as it fought off a riotous mob of about 200 men, many of them Catholic street gang members, who were attacking a Protestant church.

Marksmen opened fire on gas-bombers and soldiers, and the rioters retreated behind barricades of automobiles and other vehicles.

The disturbances began before midnight and raged past dawn. There were at least two deaths and no reported injuries.

The area was reported quiet by 8 a.m.

The violence apparently was a reaction to the shooting death Friday of Daniel O'Hagan, 18, an alleged Irish Republican Army (IRA) volunteer, who was shot by British soldiers in the city.

Rioters used rocks, bottles, paving stones, flaming gasoline bombs—and even steel-tipped arrows from long bows and slings.

The outwitted Irish Republican Army fighters retreated to a nearby area where they killed one British soldier for each Irishman killed.

Bombing and explosions from burning vehicles and a warehouse gave a blood-red backdrop to the street battles.

The fighting began when two men were ambushed in the New Lodge Road area.

Reinforcements were summoned, and the rioters retreated behind barricades of automobiles and other vehicles.

Police used tear gas, and rioters were repelled by rocks and bottles.

Fuel tanks exploded. Riot gas and water cannons had little effect on the mob, and firemen called to fight the warehouse blaze were repelled by rocks and bottles.

The crowd was chased up side streets after army bulldozers smashed the New Lodge Road barricades.

Battles between the rioters and soldiers developed through the predominantly Catholic district. There were unconfirmed reports of gunfire from snipers.

The show of steel-tipped arrows from the darkness appeared to disconcert the rioters momentarily, but their use caused concern for army officials.

"It's a lethal weapon," an official said. (See Page Six)

Fatal Subway Fire

NEW YORK (AP) — One person died and more than 50 persons suffered from smoke inhalation in a subway fire today.

The fire was in a tunnel of the Lexington Avenue subway line, between Bowling Green at the tip of Manhattan and Brooklyn, across the East River.

The injured passengers in a subway train, were taken to Brookman-Downtown Hospital.

The dead person was a woman, an unidentified individual, near was the origin of the fire determined.

Between 75 and 100 persons were on the train when it became enveloped in smoke from a fire somewhere in the tunnel shortly before 7 a.m.

Police said the 10-car train, heading toward Brooklyn, was on the Bowling Green station at levels not less than those prevailing May 25, 1970—the day the bill was made public.

The authority would expire next Feb. 28, and Republicans charged that cutoff date tipped off Democratic strategy to criticize Nixon for not using the authority.

Rep. Benjamin B. Blackburn, R-Ga., called the proposal "the biggest political charade... I have seen in my political life."

Another Republican, Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, called it "the most blatant partisanship and political gamesmanship. You are trying to get some arrogant youngsters, but it's been wonderful. Absolutely no trouble," said an owner of a market one mile from the site.

The festival's promoters failed in their attempt to hold the concert in New York City's Yankee Stadium. The plan was dismissed as "unpractical" by the Yankees.

Some youths did begin filling out of the site Friday, and a state police officer said he thought more were leaving than arriving. But he added there behind schedule—tickets were

Flaming Crash Of Five Trucks Kills Two Men

FAIRFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Normal traffic was restored today to a five-mile stretch of the Connecticut Turnpike where a flaming collision involving a gasoline tanker took two lives Friday night.

Three more persons were injured.

A sliding car triggered the spectacular smashup of five trucks, starting in the eastbound lanes and carrying over into the opposite lanes, state police said.

As a result of the sliding car, which was not lost, two trucks collided. That set off an explosion of gasoline and sent one of the trucks across the median into another tractor-trailer.

The driver of the third vehicle, George Robert, 30, of

Man Killed As Rioting Continues

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Despite a dusk to dawn curfew on the predominantly black and Puerto Rican North End of this capital city, racial disorders broke out for the fourth consecutive night Friday.

One man, Efrain Gonzalez, 28, of Hartford was shot and killed, but police said they did not know the circumstances surrounding his death. One other person was treated at St. Francis Hospital for a gunshot wound and released.

Police were fired on at least a dozen times by snipers, according to Police Chief Thomas J. Vaughan. The city police were augmented Friday by about two dozen state troopers, who stayed on the periphery of the North End.

The curfew, announced by Mayor Jim Ivers and City Manager Elisha Freedman, included an order for youngsters under the age of 18 to be off all the city's streets by 9 p.m.

A citywide ban on the sale of weapons and ammunition and troops launched one of the broadest and most powerful offensives of the Cambodian war.

The offensive was aimed at crushing Communist strongholds remaining in the northern part of the country and expanding Communist control north and northwest of Phnom Penh.

Heavy attacks were reported under way at several key points in an arc stretching from 30 miles northwest of Phnom Penh to 80 miles east of the capital. The heaviest blow fell on the provincial capital of Kompong Thom, 80 miles north of Phnom Penh, where South Vietnamese and Communist troops clashed.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops attacked a key route in a sector of Skoun in Kompong Cham Province, 40 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

Kompong Cham City, capital of the province and a military regional headquarters, was harassed during the night.

A Cambodian spokesman said 2,000 to 3,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were in the area, apparently preparing for renewed attempts to take Kompong Cham, the key Mekong river city and government defensive anchor in the northeast.

Track officials and witnesses said the car, driven by Gary J. Williams, 36, of Hartford, lurched into its quietest day in more than 20 feet from the rear of the half-mile circuit. Cornhusk was pulled from the car unconscious. But hospital sources said he was not seriously injured.

James Reitano, 56, and Timothy Trumble, 56, of Rockledge, owner of the Rolling Wheel Speedway in that community near West Hartford, said the 10th row.

"The car reached the top of the pit and for a second it looked like it might go over us," McNabb said. "Then it dropped about two miles a day. It was hazy as the past several days South Vietnam has about

WILLIAMSON, N.Y. (AP) — A stock car sped out of control at Spencer Speedway late Friday night, hurtled into the top of a crowd of grandstand and killed four persons and injured 15, several seriously.

Three persons lost their lives at the track near this community, but hospital sources said the fourth died early today in a hospital at nearby Bolton.
