

South Vietnamese Suffer Big Setback

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — More than 200 North Vietnamese commandos blasted their way into a South Vietnamese military district headquarters and a ranger camp south of Da Nang today and rampaged through the two installations, killing at least 34 government soldiers and wounding 42.

Sources in Da Nang said the government casualty toll was still incomplete and might rise later.

Twenty-six North Vietnamese soldiers were reported killed in the three-hour battle.

It was the worst setback for government forces in a single action since last June, when 46 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 84 wounded by North Vietnamese who overran a government artillery base north-east of the A Shau valley.

Striking a few hours before dawn under the cover of darkness and a heavy mortar barrage that pinned government defenders down, the North Vietnamese simultaneously attacked the Tra Bong district headquarters and a ranger defense camp 3 1/2 miles away.

GI Strength In Thailand Will Be Cut

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — U.S. military strength in Thailand will be reduced by 9,800 men within a year, a joint Thai-U.S. announcement said today.

The announcement said the cutbacks, which will bring total U.S. troop withdrawals in Thailand to 15,800 men since September 1969, were the result of talks held between the U.S. mission and the Thai Foreign Ministry.

The rate of withdrawal would be "consistent with operational requirements related to the Vietnam conflict and the security of this area," the announcement said.

The withdrawals, termed "redeployment" in the announcement, would begin "in the near future," and end July 1 next year.

When the cutbacks are completed, U.S. military strength in Thailand will be about 32,000, down from a peak of 48,000.

"The two governments will continue to evaluate the level of U.S. armed forces in the light of their assessment of the progress of Vietnamization and the security of this area," the announcement said.

PANMUNJOM (AP) — North Korea rejected a South Korean plan for reunification today and demanded total withdrawal of U.S. forces as a condition for peace on the Asian peninsula.

Maj. Gen. Han Yong-ok, senior North Korean delegate, also told the 305th meeting of the Korean Military Armistice Commission that a U.S. troop reduction plan was "nothing but lip service and a cunning trick."

The rejection of South Korean President Chung Hee Park's reunification plan came in a prepared political statement. Han offered no counterproposals.

Park said last Aug. 15 he would not oppose North Korea's

Connecticut Accidents Claim Ten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ten persons died in Labor Day weekend accidents in Connecticut—five on the highway, three in drowning incidents and two in separate fires.

In addition, a Connecticut resident died in a one-car accident during the long weekend occurred late Monday night in Prospect, where two persons died and two others were injured in a head-on collision.

The worst highway accident during the long weekend occurred late Monday night in Prospect, where two persons died and two others were injured in a head-on collision.

North Vietnamese sappers broke into both the district headquarters and the camp and ran through them, hurling dynamite bombs and firing Chinese Communist-made AK47 assault rifles and rocket-propelled grenades.

The attack, one of the worst setbacks for government forces this year, came at a time when the U.S. Command had just announced new moves to disengage American forces from the Vietnam war, including the redeployment to the United States later this week of the 3rd American Air Wing.

A spokesman for the South Vietnamese command termed the government casualties moderate, but said they were the worst sustained in "many months."

Field reports, however, said 34 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 42 wounded, and that the North Vietnamese lost 28 troops killed.

Reports from Cambodia said government troops had seized the initiative for the first time in the Cambodian war, starting their biggest operation to date to relieve Communist pressure on their nation's heartland.

The offensive comes at a time when North Vietnamese and Viet Cong activity in Cambodia is comparatively light. Military sources said the government had caught the enemy troops

Release of 180 Passengers To Be Sought by Red Cross

Four Western governments delegated the International Red Cross today to negotiate with the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine for the release of the 180 passengers still help captive from two of four planes involved in Sunday's hijacking plots.

Reporting the agreement, British officials said Israel opted not to join the United States, Switzerland, West Germany and Britain in working through the Red Cross. Citizens from all five nations were reported aboard the two planes in Jordan.

NEW YORK (AP)—Here is a partial passenger list of Swissair's Flight No. 1, Zurich to New York, which was diverted to Jordan Sunday. The remainder of the passengers from the United States are from New York State or New Jersey.

The list was released by the airline.

Joseph, Lillane, Mrs., West Hartford, Conn.
Joseph, Eric, West Hartford, Conn.
Joseph, Phillip, West Hartford, Conn.

Porter, D. Dr., Los Angeles, Calif.

As the move was disclosed in London, Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the British foreign secretary, summoned envoys of six Arab countries for discussions on the hijacking crisis.

The four-nation move was prompted by an ultimatum from the PFLP, an Arab guerrilla organization, that a woman hijacker, Miss Lella Khaled, being held in London and six other commandos imprisoned in Switzerland and West Germany be released by 11 p.m. EDT Wednesday.

Otherwise, the ultimatum said, the Swissair DC8 and the Trans World Airlines Boeing 707 being held at a small Jordanian

Guerrillas Agree On Cease-Fire

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordan and the Palestinian guerrillas agreed today on an "immediate and final" cease-fire and evacuation of all armed forces from the capital, Amman radio reported.

The announcement came after five hours of sporadic shooting in and near Amman. The International Hotel where passengers released from hijacked Swiss and American airliners were staying was hit with mortars during the night, but no one was hurt. Guests took shelter in the basement.

According to the broadcast the agreement had seven points. In addition to the cease-fire and evacuation, it called for a ban on military demonstrations in the capital, no intervention by a third party with either guerrillas or the army, cessation of infringement on security of civilians, an end to propaganda

Flight Called 'A Nightmare'

By JESSE W. LEWIS JR.

The Washington Post
CAIRO—"It was like a very bad nightmare," said Valerie Priddy, who still appeared shaken from the nearly 12-hour, three-continent forced flight of Pan American's jumbo jet.

"I had my mind on my husband the whole time," Mrs. Priddy said. "I was worried because I did not know what was going on up front."

Mrs. Priddy's husband, John

(Jack) Priddy, was the captain of Pan American's ill-fated flight 93 that took off from Amsterdam Saturday afternoon and ended as charred rubble at the end of a runway at Cairo's International Airport. The plane was blown up after it had landed and the passengers disembarked.

Captain Priddy, 49, of North Port, N.Y., described the beginning of the hijacked flight that went from Europe to Asia and finally to Africa this way: "We had just leveled off at 28,000 feet and were about over London when the cockpit door burst open.

"This fellow had his arms around one of our stewardesses, a revolver in one hand and a hand grenade in the other. Right behind him was another guy with a hand grenade in his hand. The pins had been pulled in both.

"This was making me kind of nervous," he said. Priddy said the hijackers told him to return to Amsterdam, then changed their minds and said to fly to Beirut. "The guys were fairly friendly once we got an understanding: 'Just let us operate the airplane and we'll take you where you want to go.'"

Priddy said that there were no charts for Beirut or Cairo airports aboard the jumbo jet, but that he had landed at Beirut

Cardinal Cushing Resigns

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has accepted the resignation "for reasons of age and health" of Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, the Vatican announced today.

The Most Rev. Humberto S. Medeiros, 54, bishop of Brownsville, Tex., since April 1966, was appointed to replace Cardinal Cushing as the Boston archbishop.

Reached at his home in Boston, Cushing said "of course I knew" when asked if he was aware his resignation had been accepted.

Two years ago Cushing said he wanted to retire when he reached 75. He celebrated his 75th birthday on Aug. 25.

He had said many times that when he retired he wanted to go to South America and work as a missionary.

"Oh, I can't go now," he said this morning. "I'm too sick."

The cardinal has had several bouts with illness for several years. His last illness was in March when he was hospitalized for several days. The nature of the illness was described as a "resistant infection."

He has suffered from asthma, bronchial ailments, and emphysema.

His interest in missionary work began while he was studying in a seminary to become a priest. He served for many years in the Boston diocesan office of the Propagation of the Faith, which handles missionary funds and affairs of the church.

Cardinal Cushing issued a statement following the Vatican announcement in which he said, "I have completed almost 26 years as archbishop of Boston and I think it appropriate now to yield that office to other hands.

"The uncertain health with which I have lived for years makes it impossible for me to carry on with the energy and efficiency required for the leader-

Controversial Figure New Boston Archbishop Fights for Social Reform

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Most Rev. Humberto S. Medeiros, who was appointed today to replace retiring Richard Cardinal Cushing as the Boston archbishop, has strongly supported social action programs for the poor.

Bishop Medeiros, 54, was appointed to the Brownsville post in April 1968 and wasted no time in casting himself into a volatile farm workers' strike in 1968 when he endorsed a minimum wage for workers in the Texas Rio Grande Valley.

The bishop's programs for the poor produced storms of criticism but he persisted, even to the point of confronting big produce growers in a bitter Starr County labor union fight.

"For his labor, a man has a right to a fair wage, to be determined by his needs and the conditions of the country and area where he lives," he said.

The bishop said he was acutely aware that the "small farmer lives in fear of the market and unions. Many farmers approve of the principle of unions but are afraid of the unionized farm worker because of the unreliability of crops and market prices. The farmer needs to organize just as much as the worker."

The area served by Bishop Medeiros is heavily Roman Catholic and overwhelmingly Mexican-American. The bishop has openly identified with militant factions.

"If Christ lived today, do you think He would cut Himself off from the MAYOs—Mexican American Youth Organization—or the Black Panthers? He might not approve of everything they were doing but he wouldn't isolate Himself from them," he said.

At one time, the controversial bishop said "I'm not going to stop these contacts—even if I am called a Communist. Besides, if they were so bad, well, all the more reason for me to be with them. That is exactly where I should be. But, of course, they are not the things they've been called."

Upon assuming his role in Brownsville, Bishop Medeiros immediately ended religious segregation in his area and removed some of the more visible forms of resentment.

"When I came here, Anglos went to one church in a town and Mexican-Americans to another. I could not have that on my conscience," he said.

All ethnic and racial groups soon began attending the same churches.

Bishop Medeiros said his beginning in the Rio Grande Valley was painfully slow, a situation which unsettled him.

"It does not show, perhaps. But inside, I want to run very fast. I'm an impatient man," he said.

A native of the Azores, he once served as chancellor at Fall River, Mass. He was ordained in 1946.

Bishop Medeiros worked as a sweeper in a textile mill while learning English after arriving

Hi-Jacking Becomes War

Until the Arab commando operators got into the hi-jacking of passenger planes had been primarily a violent method by which one or two individuals obtained for themselves free air passage to some destination of their own choice.

The hi-jackers, once they had achieved their own destination, had no further use for the plane or its passengers.

In such circumstances, it seemed that the only safe way to deal with a hi-jacking incident was to let it follow its course, and part of the course was the granting of welcome or asylum to the hi-jackers once they had reached the air field of their choice.

As long as things were like this, too much resentment of the fact that Castro Cuba held its airports and its asylum open to the hi-jackers.

The Arab commandos have extended the hi-jacking operation into something far worse, far more intolerable.

They hijack not to get themselves some place, but to take vengeance, or to gain themselves hostages.

Passengers, to them, are not people they use merely as shields while they do their hi-jacking, but captives to be used in the lawless violence which the Palestinian extremists have dedicated themselves.

Their plane strifes are not individualistic pranks, but acts of war, and those acts of war are attacks upon the safety, freedom, and lives of innocent and neutral parties.

One thing that such circumstances immediately suggest is that for the Arab governments whose territory is being used in such exploits merely to engage in verbal denunciation and disapproval is not enough.

We worry, too, about the use to which television has been put by President Nixon. Because he is the President, Mr. Nixon can have all the prime air time he desires to broadcast his own confidence or deciding to make a speech. But he is not only the President, he is the leader of the present American political parties, and it would be simple-minded to believe he forgets that secondary role as he is on the air.

Mr. Nixon's heavy use of TV understandability has the Democratic leadership a little frantic. The networks refuse to give the opposition party equal time to rebuke the President in the manner it wishes.

Contrary to the Nixon administration's plan, for example, there is no chance of Israeli withdrawal from the heights of Sharm El-Sheikh which control the Strait of Tiran.

Under the United Nations guarantee, the Israelis were forced to withdraw from the heights of Sharm El-Sheikh after the first Israeli invasion in 1966.

more unemployment is not to ignore the fact that the Republicans, for their part, have been trying to give the old Polyanna twist to all the statistics the computers print forth.

What this means is that it is going to be a little difficult, for the next seven weeks to rescue the economy from being booted and passed back and forth as if it were a political football.

The only safe set of rules is not to make, but to trust, when the Republicans say everything is on the way, not to sink into panic when the Democrats drum out their dire economic dire, and wait for the morning of Nov. 4 when, whatever happens, the state of the economy will once again have a chance to speak for itself.

What it had seemed to be saying, just before it could feel itself being commandeered by the politicians, was that it was beginning to feel considerably better.

The Fifth Estate

Few people realized during the tenuous, Howdy-Doody era of television that this new diversion would change the character of American political life.

Television would not, as it turned out, be just radio-with-pictures. It would be an immense and often decisive force in the shaping of public opinion. It would enjoy a power that a democratic people fit into the nation's political machinery.

This has not yet been done. Television, in fact, has been a monkey wrench in the system's working parts, and we are a long way from getting it out.

There are three major networks in the United States, all with headquarters in New York City. In the early evening, these networks broadcast news reports that together reach more than 40,000,000 people.

The impact of such news reports is undeniable. They can do as much as the thrust of popular opinion. They do this through the films they decide to show of Indochina, campus dissenters, and other subjects of high controversy.

They do this through the matter and manner of the printed copy. And the opportunities for subtle shadings of the news are greater by far in a medium that employs not only sound but light and shadow to do its job.

The talents of the men who make the most effective news reports are formidable. The question is not one of human competence nor of integrity. A matter of style. If it is to be tolerated, the errors and frailties that are common to humans. And there is a powerful competitive factor among the networks that keep them on their toes.

Unfortunately, there is not enough of a competitive factor. Three major news reports a night are not adequate to serve a nation of more than 200,000,000. Would Americans be satisfied with three printed pages? There is something basically wrong with the distribution of rights to the airways. Vice President Agnew was on the right track, but he erred when he attacked the people who work in the industry instead of criticizing the industry's peculiar structure.

If the structure instead of national networks, with each serving fewer cities, Mr. Agnew would not have to worry so much whether this news program or that seemed biased to the right or left. And regional news would be free to join together to transmit non-news programs.

One who appreciates the economic problems that would spring initially from de-centralization of news broadcasting, but who worry somewhat more about the effect of the present concentration of television power on the political system.

We worry, too, about the use to which television has been put by President Nixon. Because he is the President, Mr. Nixon can have all the prime air time he desires to broadcast his own confidence or deciding to make a speech. By A.H.O. We notice, with sentimental approval, that Governor John Dempsey is on an official mission to the land of his birth.

Beyond the warm feeling that one always gets when one contemplates the spectacle and the experience of a son of Ireland returning to the soil, we find ourselves engaging in certain pleasant speculations.

These speculations begin with two uncompleted pieces of business from the past.

First, there was that gubernatorial press conference, one Saturday afternoon last winter, in which John Dempsey announced that he would not be running for political office again.
