Weekler

Next Tuesday the voters of this state have the responsibility of choosing a man to represent them in the United States Senate for the next six years.

It is important to realize that he — the man to be elected — will be supposed to represent Connecticut — the people of Connecticut.

It will not be his 'act, and it should not be his role, to represent some narrow segment of the population which may still believe there is a Communist under every bed.

He should be a man who has matured and advanced in the traditional American process without resorting to the bland knavery of the super patriot or to the irresponsible pablum of the populist soothsayer.

The negative choices are in the Connecticut field, easily recognized, each with a classic kind of champion. Never has the super patriot spoken with a more lulling whine of supposed martyrdom.

He became the Republican party's nominee for the United States Senate, both in convention nomination and in primary result, because, in his first term at Washington as a Congressman, he had established himself as the most impressive of a large class of freshman legislators.

Certain traits of character and conduct have helped build Lowell Weicker that reputation. He has, sometimes by following his own common sense instead of the suit of the moment, preserved his own sanity in a time of complex, tortuous public issues.

Given opportunities to play the cute, savage corners of the political game, he demonstrated, again and again, that his own instinct was to remain a civilized man.

He has preferred to work rather than to wall, to propose rather than to blame, to project rather than to criticize, to set cornerstones rather than try to tear things down; to preach resolution rather than revolution; to foster tolerance rather than hate.

This is an experienced public servant who is also wholesome. Connecticut does not have to fear that it will have cause to feel shame over the kind of reputation which associates itself with his name in Washington.

Nor does Connecticut have to fear that it will be made to appear in Washington as the state of nursery rhyme politics.

If it makes Lowell Weicker its new United States Senator this state can be proud and confident that it is sending an authentic piece of Connecticut to Washington to help the nation.

And reflect honor — honor — back on Connecticut.

Flying Apprehension Outweighs Joy

Down to Gehenna or up to the Throne. He travels fastest who travels alone.

Ridyard-Gliding, like many other people, apparently believed that when traveling speed is of the essence, speed is the major reason (there are others) why the airlines have all but passenger trains out of business.

As one who has logged many tens of thousands of miles aboard Pipers and Beechcrafts, DC-2s, 44s, 66s, 76s, 78s, 79s, Viscounts, Electras, Boeing 707s and 727s, Convairs, Caravelles, and three different kinds of Soviet iron birds, I am reaching an age — or at least an attitude — when the novelty of flight no longer is a joy.

It is not the sense of safety, in one reason. All turbulence is a routine matter for airline professionals, but it is not to me. I have come to dislike the feeling of total helplessness that sets in when rough air bounces a flying machine and causes the arrest and loss of passengers to fall about as if in space.

This apprehension about flying probably was born in 1945 when I was engaged in a round of golf at Lawrenceville School near Princeton, N. J. It was Alumni Day at Lawrenceville and one of the alumni decided to come home in his single-engine Stinson.

Fearing the slight might be traumatic for me, my father immediately drove to a small airport nearby, placed me in the front hole of a Waco biplane, and buckled the pilot to give me a "good" ride.

In the years that followed there have been many occasions when I have been unhappy about it. Any veteran air traveler has a collection of anecdotes to tell, and often they are told to pass the time on a long flight. I am not satisfied that air horror stories should be shared while one is separated from the blessed land by seven miles of insubstantial air.

But the best thing to do in such a situation is to reply in kind. I was engaged on a trip from Buenos Aires to Santiago, I found myself seated next to the passenger manager of a South American airline.

I think it was an old friend and colleague, Ray Vicker of the Wall Street Journal, who once recounted a most unusual incident that occurred in the Middle East. He was aboard a foreign-airline DC-3 in which the seats on one side had been removed to accommodate several crates of live chickens.

The most exotic air journey I can recall was a flight from London to Moscow aboard a Soviet airliner. We were half-way along on the three-hour trip when the cabin pressure fell drastically and the passengers were reduced to a grim lot of writing aerobically.

Just a year ago I was in Vancouver and a tourist official employed by the province of British Columbia urged me to fly to a little town up north to fish for salmon. Only a tight schedule caused me to pass up this immensely attractive boondoggle. The next morning's paper carried a banner headline reporting that the plane had crashed in on had crashed in a fog, killing three.

Last spring, after a flight from Washington to Los Angeles, I climbed aboard a small commuter plane that was en route to Palm Springs. The aircraft was not pressurized and, because of extreme turbulence over the San Bernardino Pass, the pilot announced he would have to climb above 10,000 feet. From my seat I could, unfortunately, see the altimeter. When it registered 11,000 feet the man next to me developed a nose bleed. So rough was the air that the plane descended in a series of circles, bouncing as I have never experienced a plane to bounce before.

None of these little incidents, however, is responsible for my own increasing dislike of flying. One must be fatalistic about mortality or else one gives to the idea of death more time and thought than it deserves. Anyway, my own knowledge that flying is statistically safer than driving a car or stepping into a bathtub.

But air travel isn't really travel in the classic sense. While airliners that zoom along far above the clouds, there is nothing to see out the window except the void. And if you've seen one void, you've seen them all.

Now have I ever been on any airplane when conversation was easy. The rush of the air outside and the roar of the engines makes ordinary talk difficult. It can be done but it is not so simple or relaxed as the airline ads suggest.

And just the idea of being belted in place in an outcasted cigar-cylinder makes one long for the greatest railroad cars of another day. In fact I recently tried an alternative means of transport — train and bus — and I plan to tell you about that unusual journey in a future column.

I am aware of two drug abuse surveys conducted informally in the High School through the medium of television.

"The number 100, as given in the Herald, is therefore quite misleading. Although I'm sure not intentionally, it gives the false impression that the drug situation is relatively small, and well under control, and with this a false sense of security.

Until each of us is willing to honestly admit that we can't have drug abuse under control, and that it isn't something which happens next door, or in another community, but rather may happen in each of our own homes, we cannot begin to talk about effectively preventing further abuse.

Swiss Reject Biafra Chief

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — The Swiss government rejected today an application for political asylum by the former leader of Biafra, Gen. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu.

Ojukwu was recently ordered to quit the Ivory Coast where he found refuge after being driven from Nigeria by Biafran forces.

He is a Biafran, a spokesman for the federal justice and police department here said.

His asylum application was turned down because Ojukwu has not officially severed his ties with Biafra, the spokesman said.

He said Ojukwu asked for asylum on an unidentified island, but later was pressed for permission to live in the Canton of Valais where he reportedly spent a year.

Mummenthaler also claimed that Ojukwu is a personal friend of the Swiss President, and that he had been invited to the Ivory Coast by President Houphouët-Boigny and has a permanent residence there.

He has no reason to believe that he is forced to leave the country, although he is not saying that the Ivory Coast would not be happy to see him leave.

Mr. Fischer, Hartford, was president of its credit union. He was a member of the Board of Trustees of the Coast Guard Auxiliary and served as the auxiliary member inspector officer.

Survivors, besides his wife and mother, include his children, Mrs. Richard Nancy Tyler of Vernon, Mrs. Gil Barker of Unionville, Mrs. Richard (Carol) Ball of Pails Church, Va.; two brothers, Ernest W. Fischer of Ellington and George W. Fischer of Bradford; and several grandchildren.

Connecticut 'Red Flag' Law Shelved

By 1969, when the state legislature—in the throes of a wholesale revision of the state constitution—decided to eliminate it along with other outdated statutes.

But the legislature's action wasn't final. The flag law, like the rest of the old criminal code, remains on the books until next spring. It gives the next legislature a chance to reconsider the provisions.

When a Viet Cong flag was waved during a visit here by President Nixon two weeks ago, and the waving prompted a celebrated march involving a majority of Connecticut's political leaders, the law was still on the books.

The two young men arrested were Edward J. Hartnett, of Hartford, and William T. O'Brien, 23, of Narragansett, R.I. When police said the demonstrators' flag had been seized and stomped on by Manchester mayor Nathan Agostinelli, the two young men were charged with violating the flag law.

At the time of the seizure, the two young men were in the company of a Viet Cong flag and a Viet Cong flag. The two young men were charged with violating the flag law.

Special School Widens Jimmy's World

Jimmy's world is changing. His legs do what he wants them to do. Growups seem to understand what he's telling them now that he can use words, but most important of all, his world includes school.

Going under the bar is easy for Jimmy, he proves to instructor Tom Bowler

What it means is that some very young children, who are obviously going to have severe learning problems get a head start on them without being labeled emotionally or mentally retarded, as having a speech problem or being perceptually handicapped.

The pre-school class is just one of many programs for youngsters with problems in the Vernon school system. These programs are the reason many people move to Vernon in the first place, although the pre-school class as well as the Talcottville School.

The pre-school class which Jimmy attends was started just a year ago as a pilot program. The other two programs are located in Stamford and Bridgeport. After an evaluation this summer by the state the Rockville program was felt to be a tremendous success, according to Anthony Magliocco, supervisor of special education for Vernon.

He stressed that the many special educators who work with the children do so in cooperation with the medical staff at Newton Children's Hospital and the Speech and Hearing Center at the University of Connecticut.

Magliocco observed that "Age three is a fantastic age for a child to explore." The center takes them as young as three years, four months, and the kindergarten screening started this year also uncovered some children who could be helped by the diagnostic center.

In Jimmy's case his world was greatly "mixed up" when he first entered it five and one-half years ago. He was born with an extreme non-malignant cyst in his neck and mouth area. It was removed when he was a year old and his general lack of progress was blamed on this.

When Jimmy still only uttered guttural sounds at the age of 18 months, his parents took him to Newton for tests and were told he was deaf to conversational noises. This explained a lot of things, such as why Jimmy listened to music with his head firmly pushed against the record player, his mother said.

At two years an ear operation and later a hearing aid solved the hearing problems but not a long vacation. Besides the special perceptual training, the children in the pre-school class with Jimmy learn much of what is taught in kindergarten, some routine and getting along together, how to handle blocks, crayons and paper dolls.

A physical education teacher comes twice a week and accepts to Mrs. Clare Albom, director of physical education, the coordination and skills taught.

She said Jimmy had a problem especially with "in front of" so they worked on that, and now he knows. There is what is termed "sequencing" which involves repeating patterns, usually with blocks, until they emerge as patterns to the child.

Both gross and fine motor coordination are developed. Movements involving large muscles are employed in exercises such as "angels in the snow" done on the floor without the snow but just as much fun the way they do it. Activities such as stringing beads train the small muscles.

For Jimmy in the pre-school class, she worked on a prescription prepared by the Newton Children's Hospital. He learned to walk a balance beam, a two-by-four inch rail supported a few inches off the floor. The idea was to work not only on coordination, but on focusing direction and body awareness as necessitated by those two inches of space. Now Jimmy can walk the beam steadily holding a glass of water. This is Magliocco commented that there hasn't been any stress in the past placed on the pre-schooler. He feels strongly that pre-school is here to stay for the child with learning disabilities, but he also feels it will ultimately be accepted for all pre-schoolers, possibly through day care centers, providing they aren't merely baby sitting services.

Vernon actually has some regular pre-school classes in operation as a result of the kindergarten screening which resulted in two levels of kindergarten.

Jimmy's progress continued through this summer when he attended the Speech and Hearing Center at the University of Connecticut three times a week. His pre-school teacher, Miss Kathy Lyons also tutored him the remaining two days a week.

Testing done at Newton in one way of measuring Jimmy's progress. Last November it showed a vocabulary level of two years, six months. In July he was tested again, and had progressed to a four year, nine month level. He was also catching up mentally and perceptually.

When his school day is done, Jimmy hops off the mini school bus in front of his home, a hop and a skip, and goes to his room. He has done things all day in which he has experienced a sense of success, he best of all he can find the words to tell his five brothers and sisters about it.

He laughs a lot and understands exactly what to do when he is asked to sit very still and aren't able to speak, something that is the natural thing to do these days.

It was the year France declared war on Germany and Germany began bombing Great Britain. Folks were singing "It Had To Be You" and listening to the music of Harry James... Franklin Delano Roosevelt was in his 7th year as President of the United States and the Vice President was John Nance Garner. It was the year Frank McCormick of Cincinnati and Hank Greenberg of Detroit were awarded Most Valuable Players... and the year Joe Louis knocked out Arturo Godoy (twice), Johnny Paycheck and Al McCoy, to retain his heavyweight title... It was the year Jill St. John was born and the year Tom Mix died... It was the year the Chicago Bears beat the Washington Redskins in the NFL Playoff 73-0... and the year Lou Apter started on a new venture. The year was 1940... the season was Autumn...

Today, 30 years later, on our Birthday, as we look back on our accomplishments, we stop and remember... we remember our first customers... we remember our growing pains... the expansions... our first profit. ### Andover League of Women Voters Spouses Candidate Debate

Six candidates debated the state income tax is the most serious of the 1970 campaign at a forum provided by the League of Women Voters Monday night in the elementary school. Mrs. Frances LaPine was moderator of the debate, which was attended by about 50 people. Candidates giving their views were incumbent Sen. Robert Houley, who is seeking re-election to the 25th District seat and his opponent, Republican Thomas G. Carruthers, Albany. Mrs. Miller replied "important legislation should be submitted through the proper channels." She said, "The only person who represents Andover, Bolton and Coventry is one person, and that is me." Mrs. Carruthers said, "I am not a candidate for anything, but I am a citizen and I will vote for the person who I believe is best qualified to represent us."

Houley opened the debate by stating that it was an important job and that he had done well. He said he had answered more than 8,000 individual letters and had always made himself available on a personal basis when needed. Houley noted that he had initiated positive action that resulted in the passage of 13 specific bills, none of which were at the request of any special group. He said, "I have voted with Republicans and against Republicans and I have voted with Democrats and against Democrats. I have voted with both sides over and over again. I believe it is in the best interest of the constituents to see that the legislature is not controlled by one party. I would like to see the legislature be controlled by both parties. I would like to see the legislature be controlled by both parties. I would like to see the legislature be controlled by both parties."

Houley replied that 100 percent state financed education was unrealistic in view of the state deficit. In reference to labor endorsement of Carruthers, the incumbent said, "I have not sought the endorsement of any special group; that is the right of the people and therefore felt no commitment to special groups." Carruthers reminded Houley that he had called for a 13 town governmental council and said, "This could serve as an organized pressure group, but I say he's talking out of both sides of his face." Houley has called for establishment of a Toland County Governmental Council, composed of heads of government in each of the 13 towns, saying, "Regardless of political affiliations, we can work together to solve problems common to us all."

Two years ago, the 25th Senatorial Advisory Council was formed and according to the senator, it proved worthwhile. Like the Advisory Council, the proposed governmental council would have no legal basis, but would be a forum for formulation and no governmental powers, said Houley, but "Such a council can be very worthwhile in bringing together, in a positive way, elected officials that have a common desire to serve their constituents through effective leadership." Mrs. Miller discussed that and sent a copy to the state commission, claiming his civil 10 percent amendment rights were violated and asking that come to the decision that the retire him.

He said a study of about 1,000 questionnaires returned by prospective jurors for the 1970-71 court year revealed that "people under 40 were underrepresented in each town and the county (of New Haven) as a whole."

He also said that persons between 40 and 64 were overrepresented. He said that some type of state income tax reduction would support it. On 1-84, there was overall agreement on need for a state income tax. Houley and Carruthers agreed on approval of a bill to change the state income tax in Connecticut.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — An anonymous telephone caller told police Tuesday they could find a large amount of guns and explosives at a motel. Police found on the bed in a motel room on 55th Street, 20 sticks of heavy demolition dynamite, three machine guns, 16 incendiary fragmentation bombs, four gas grenades and two anti-personnel fragmentation grenades. They said the dynamite was enough to blow up three city blocks. They also found 10 bags of drugs, believed to be methadone, cocaine and heroin worth $5,000. They were looking for two other private and minorities. The changes were discussed earlier this month at the General Con-

Herding Politics

A group of 13 Manchester day urged voters to elect three Republicans to the State House of Representatives. He praised 18th District incumbent State Rep. Dobkin criticized the Democratic incumbents in Districts 19 and 20 as "somewhat silent."

CUD Regulations Adopted by PZC

"The Planning and Zoning Commission has unanimously adopted its proposal creating a Comprehensive Urban Development (CUD) within the town's zoning regulations. The commission's action was taken Monday night at its monthly technical session. The changes were made, not under CUD, group dwellings will be permitted in somewhat higher density ratios than under regular zoning regulations, which were recently stiffened to permit the dwellings to occupy a maximum of 20 per cent of given site. The commission is allowing a ratio of 33 per cent in CUD Zones, which means approximately 12 living units per acre will be permitted, rather than the 9 units permitted in conventional zoning. This higher density is in line with comments made at the public hearing and also with the PZC's previously stated intent not to be "unduly restrictive" on densities so as to discourage construction of moderate or low-cost apartment housing. Part of the intent of CUD is to require a mixture of housing types and prices; the commission has stated. A second change in the regulations adopted Monday requires that 100 acres will be the minimum area that will be considered for an initial CUD zoning plan, not 50 acres as originally proposed. This change, made also as the result of public comments, is to forestall the danger that a zoning might come as with an initial 50-acre plan, then never get around to finishing the other 50 acres. The commission feels 100 acres is the necessary minimum to make the CUD concept work. Linnit Doubled. A third change made before adoption of the rules provides that up to 30 per cent of the total multifamily housing allowed in the zone may be constructed before beginning the commercial section. ### Herding Politics

A group of 13 Manchester day urged voters to elect three Republicans to the State House of Representatives. He praised 18th District incumbent State Rep. Donald Genovesi, a Republican, as an "active and interested representative, who has researched and introduced good public office bills throughout his whole term." Dobkin criticized the Democratic incumbents in Districts 19 and 20 as "somewhat silent."

CUD Regulations Adopted by PZC

"The Planning and Zoning Commission has unanimously adopted its proposal creating a Comprehensive Urban Development (CUD) within the town's zoning regulations. The commission's action was taken Monday night at its monthly technical session. The changes were made, not under CUD, group dwellings will be permitted in somewhat higher density ratios than under regular zoning regulations, which were recently stiffened to permit the dwellings to occupy a maximum of 20 per cent of given site. The commission is allowing a ratio of 33 per cent in CUD Zones, which means approximately 12 living units per acre will be permitted, rather than the 9 units permitted in conventional zoning. This higher density is in line with comments made at the public hearing and also with the PZC's previously stated intent not to be "unduly restrictive" on densities so as to discourage construction of moderate or low-cost apartment housing. Part of the intent of CUD is to require a mixture of housing types and prices; the commission has stated. A second change in the regulations adopted Monday requires that 100 acres will be the minimum area that will be considered for an initial CUD zoning plan, not 50 acres as originally proposed. This change, made also as the result of public comments, is to forestall the danger that a zoning might come as with an initial 50-acre plan, then never get around to finishing the other 50 acres. The commission feels 100 acres is the necessary minimum to make the CUD concept work. Linnit Doubled. "I gained fresh air comfort all year from electric to gas."

When I switched from electric to gas...

"Saving money on my annual heating bill is great, now that I've switched from electric to gas," says Charles D. Bizilj of Bloomfield, "but that's only part of the story. We are also very pleased with the fresh air comfort of our new gas system. With electric heat, I had to practically seal the house up tight. But with gas heat, the house can breathe... keeps things fresh and healthy." Mr. Bizilj adds, "and with gas, zoned heating is no problem at all... only 3 thermostats now... when I used to have 13 with electric heat. All those bulky air conditioners can be removed from the windows, too." Mr. Bizilj points out, "We're going all the way." Mr. Bizilj explains, "... installing central gas air conditioning. I'm an engineer, so I know a lot about heating and cooling systems. And believe me, gas is the best of all in my book. Top performance, low cost and fresh air living all year long. I'm really a lucky now." Change to fresh air living with natural gas. Call your gas heating contractor or CNG in Hartford (525-0111) or in New Britain (249-9157). Join the Luckies and save.

Manchester Area Police Arrest New Yorkers

Two Albertson, N.Y., men were held at the Vernon police station overnight after being charged with theft of a public property. A second charge of willful destruction to private property was lodged against one of the men.

Gary Kennedy, 19, and Roger Holdas, 22, were both charged on theft of public property in connection with the alleged theft of a rotary sign at Dobson Rd. The charge of willful destruction was issued to Haldas. It involved alleged damage to plumbing in the cell at the police station, where both were held in lieu of $200 bonds.

Both men were scheduled to be presented in East Hartford Court, today.

Other Vernon police action: Richard Defemia, 34, of Red Rd., Toland, was charged with failure to grant right of way after being involved in an accident at Rt. 39 and Reservoir Rd., yesterday.

Police said Defemia was traveling west on Rt. 39 and in making a left turn went into the path of a motorcycle. The cyclist, William Fox, 24 of Stafford Springs was treated at Rockville General Hospital for a face laceration.

Defemia is scheduled to appear in Rockville Circuit Court 12, Nov. 17.

"A Sincere Desire"
To the Editor,
As a concerned taxpayer and resident of the North End, I would like to add my small efforts in endorsing Donald S. Geroson for Governor as our State Representative for the 18th Assembly District. Mr. Geroson has consistently displayed a sincere desire and deep personal concern for the many daily problems affecting the citizens of our District. A foe of the citizen and integrity of his caliber and integrity should be given the wholehearted support of all citizens in this District.

"Vote For Almighty God"
To the Editor,
For once during my long life, I feel the true human, reliable politician, with sufficient integrity for whom I am delighted to give my approval and vote more than once because all my votes would have to be repeatedly used in his favor.

I feel that a vote for Mr. Duffey is a vote for Almighty God, for he is in my opinion, the only politician in this race, who resembles the Lord, when He visited us 2,000 years ago.

Mr. Duffey is an individual with a great sense of responsibility; his altruistic motivations in this race is his desire to help his country and his fellowmen. He is a poor man, who has no ulterior motives in this contest. He will use his job, as Senator, to the advantage of all his countrymen, not to replenish his coffers as it is usually the purpose of corrupt politicians, who promise us the sun and after they secure the job, give us only an insane moon.

UConn Art Professor Will Judge Festival

Roger L. Crossgrove, professor of art and head of the art department at the University of Connecticut, will be one of the judges this weekend for the annual Fine Arts Festival at Manchester High School.

The festival, sponsored by the Manchester Fine Arts Association and the Lions Club, will be held on Friday from 8 to 9 p.m., Saturday from 1 to 10 p.m., and Sunday from 1 to 10 p.m.

Crossgrove, a native of New Britain, was professor and associate chairman of the department of graphic arts at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn, N.Y., before joining the UConn faculty in 1968. His work has been shown at the Brooklyn Museum, the Whitney Museum of American Art, Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Riverside Museum, and the National Academy of Design.

Louis Pusani of Bloomfield, teacher, lecturer, painter and art restorer, will also judge the art festival entries. He has exhibited widely and won numerous prizes for his paintings. A number of the Connecticut Academy of Fine Arts for 35 years, he retired as its president last year after serving for six years.

Prizes to be awarded to entries at the festival include the $100 for the best of show; First Hartford Realty Award of $50 for a watercolor or pastel; The Manchester Herald Award of $50 for an oil painting; Davidson and Leventhal Award of $25 to a member of the Manchester Fine Arts Association, in any media, sponsored by the art association. Also, Willie's Steak House awards from the Grumbacher Artists' Material Co., Robert Simmons Inc., and the Sherwin-Williams Co.

Entries are still being accepted for the festival and may be brought to the high school cafeteria on Thursday from 6 to 9 p.m.

51st District Duffey Aide Criticizes GOP Leader

Richard Breslow, chairman of the Bolton Citizens for Duffey, today criticized the town Republican chairman, Robert Breslow, for his wholehearted support of all citizens in this District.

Ahern is running against GOP incumbent Dorothy Miller for the post of 51st district state representative.

"To try and discredit Ahern for supporting Joe Duffey, the duly nominated choice of the Democratic voters of this state, is simply 'indiscreet,'" Breslow said. "If Mr. Dixon had been at a recent event held in Al Ahern's honor, he might have seen to his chagrin that the Bolton Democrats came out in full force to support their candidate."

He accused Dixon of "campaign rhetoric and smear tactics" to try to "demoralize the best issues" in Dixon's attack on Duffey, saying that "this type of name-calling is an insult to the electorate."

Breslow said, "The old 'divide and conquer' theory is not going to work this time around. We all have too much unfinished business to do before we hand this country's legacy over to our children and our grandchildren."

Hartt, Paranov Both Marking Their Birthdays

Story By John Gruber Photos By Sylvia Ojara

More than 50 years ago Julius Hartt lived in this building on Sigourney St. (Above) Here the Hartt College of music was started under the name of Julius Hartt, Moshe Paranov, and Associates. A year later it had prospered enough to have quarters of its own around the corner. After 50 years it occupies the complex of buildings on the U. of H. campus known as the Alfred C. Fuller Music Center. (Right) comprising Millard Auditorium, Paranov Hall, and O'Connell Hall.

Hartt students come from far and near. Here Moshe Paranov (75 today) confers with Paula Paris from Cambridge, Mass., and Juan Rios from Venezuela. Dr. Paranov, one of Hartt's original founders, is still active daily at the college.

Hartt College of Music is celebrating the 50th anniversary of its founding this year with a number of gala events, the first of which was a concert featuring Grant Jobansen and his wife Zara Nelson, pianist and cellist, respectively, that was heard by a capacity audience Oct. 18.

Eventually he took Moshe Paranov in to live with him in his home at 184 Sigourney St. Moshe promptly fell in love with Hartt's daughter, Pauline, who is Mrs. Paranov today, and has been associated with the school since its outset.

Renato Bonacini instructs a group of Hartt string students on the stage of Millard Auditorium. The school has an excellent symphony orchestra which gives free concerts, open to the public.

Jan Wunsch practices on the $50,000 Fuller organ, a recent addition at Hartt. Chandelier above her was made in opera department rooming for a production of "Mefistofele."

Abraham Mishkind explains the niceties of chamber music to a string quartet of Hartt students working in the lobby of Millard Auditorium. (Right)

THE BOMBARDIER, by Dennis Bloodworth. Farrar, Straus & Giroux, $4.95. Corright's novel operates on several levels. Partly it is an action story of World War II, but it extends beyond—

MAN AND THE RIVER: THE MISSISSIPPI, by Hedding Carter, Rand McNally, $14.95. Pictorial and impressionistic, this volume tells about the beauties of the Mississippi River and the part it has played, and is playing, in the life of America's midcontinent.

TOTAL LOSS FARM, by Raymond Mungo, Dutton, $5.95. In this odd book there are some glimpses of life among the long halls its oblique revelations may be illuminating to grown-ups and other squares.

It appears that Mungo had been a militant, working in Washington for the Liberation News Service, but had become disillusioned with city life and wanted to get into nature. It also appears from a note in the back of the book, that the author has "very little emotional stability" and no longer is an adolescent, having been born in 1946.

Corright's novel is an adventure story on the surface, but he is delivering a message about the turbulence of war and the turbulence of today's society. His story is always graphic, and sometimes a bit lurid, but it really moves. He is a writer with a vigorous imagination and a forceful style.

The Choice Bank opens a new set of doors in North Manchester

Come celebrate with us. Come make it official. On Monday, October 26th, at 9 A.M., Hartford National sent its temporary trailer bank away, and opened the doors at its permanent location—in Manchester's new North End Shopping Center, at 220 North Main Street.

Inside our bright new home, you'll find a choice of over 150 banking services. (No wonder, we're called the Choice Bank.) You'll also find—during our first five days—a choice of gifts, when you open any saving or checking account of $50 or more. (Fire extinguishers, electric hostess trays, kitchen knives, electric lamps.) And free refreshments and other gifts, just for stopping in to say hello.

All of us at the new North Manchester Branch of Hartford National Bank look forward to meeting you.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Radar Vs. Motorist

Citizen Haines, given a ticket for speeding, determined to fight his case in court. At the hearing, officers relied on radar evidence to prove the charge against him. According to radar, Haines had indeed been travelling well over the speed limit.

But the police overlooked one thing. They failed to produce evidence that their radar equipment was in good working order on the day Haines was arrested. Result: he won an acquittal.

This case illustrates how the law, while accepting the benefits of technical progress, is also concerned with fair play for the individual. Almost everywhere, in traffic cases, courts will insist on evidence that the radar equipment was working properly when it was put to use.

Today it is standard practice for such equipment to be checked regularly. Usually this is done by tuning forks or by clocked road tests. Even so, some motorists, still not convinced, have challenged the entire principle of radar, calling it too experimental to be trusted in the courtroom.

In an earlier day, the law too was skeptical about radar as a scientific principle. But now that skepticism has largely disappeared. As one judge put it: "X-rays, electrocardiograms, time by watches, identity by fingerprinting, and ballistic evidence are freely accepted in our courts for their general reliability, without the necessity of expert testimony as to the scientific principles underlying them. The use of radar for speed detection may now be said to fall in this category."

In one case an arrested motorist, flagged down by radar, tried a different tack. He claimed he was the victim of an illegal "speed trap." But the evidence showed: 1) that the vehicle containing the radar equipment was plainly marked as a police car; and 2) that the officers manning it were dressed in their regular uniforms.

Under no case may a "trap" in this situation, the court ordered the motorist to pay his fine. The judge felt that the officers could not claim merely because the police had found a new and better way to catch him.

Duels Legal In Uruguay

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—A senator, injured in a sword duel with a Cabinet minister, plans to "defend his honor" again with his sword as soon as he recovers. Duels with swords or pistols are legal in Uruguay.

Sen. Manuel Flores Mora, revived the custom last week in anger over a newspaper editorial labeling him a "traitor" and a "political adventurer."

With only a referee and doctor present, Flores Mora fought a two-minute duel against Julio Saugueti, who is minister of industry and commerce and also managing editor of the newspaper Accion.

Both combatants are members of President Jorge Pacheco Areco's Colorado party. Both subscribe to the president's economic stabilization policy, designed to control inflation, promote exports, and attract investment.

Flores Mora had charged that Saugueti and friends were pressuring the president to devalue the peso, which, in passing through a dangerous period, Congress this month rejected a presidential veto and passed bills which will increase the budget deficit fourfold. The Cabinet offered to resign and the president charged that the deficit could sink his stabilization program.

Flores Mora wanted devaluation to benefit "financial interests." This prompted an editorial by Saugueti attacking Flores Mora. A second editorial, repeating the charge, was credited to Jorge Batlle Ibanez, publisher of Accion and a leader of the Colorado party.

Sen. Flores Mora and publisher Batlle Ibanez are in duels as soon as the senators wound hells. A tribunal of honor—composed of the two men's second—has ruled there are grounds for a duel.

Stamps In the News

United States 25¢ Anniversary. The 25th anniversary of the United Nations will be hailed with a 6-cent commemorative to be issued Nov. 30 in New York City.

The design features a large "U" in red and an "N" in blue. Across the top of the stamp, in black sans serif capitals, is "United States Postage, 6 Cents." At the bottom in black is "United Nations 25th Anniversary." The design is the design of two others—The Machine Bridge stamp of 1968 and the Wheels of Freedom stamp of 1960.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, New York, N.Y. 10009. Personal checks will not be accepted.

The outside envelope should be endorsed "First Day Covers United Nations Stamp." Cover requests must be postmarked no later than Nov. 20.

Recently we reported about the 1970 Global Album Supplement for 3000 albums being available at your local dealer. It includes more than 9,000 stamps issued from mid-1969 to mid-1970.

Now we learn that previous supplements can also be had at stores throughout the country. The 1962 through 1967 at $2.50 per year, 1968 through 1969 at $2.50 per year, 1970 at $4.50, 1969 at $4.50 and 1968 at $5. The 1970 is also priced at $5.

Honolulu will be the site of the 8th annual convention of The American Philatelic Society, the world's largest and America's oldest stamp collectors organization. The four-day convention coupled with the HAPEX exhibition will be held Nov. 8-11 with the Hawaiian Philatelic Society as the host chapter.

Here's our "Stamp Story of the Week." The Fiji Islands are steeped in historic lore. Some of the great discoverers and explorers who either landed on or were sighted around the coasts of the Fiji are depicted on a new set of four stamps.

The 2 cents shows a bust of Abel Tasman of The Netherlands with his ship "Endeavor." In 1774 Cook landed on one of the islands and left gifts for the natives who had fled from the shore.

The 8 cents features a bust of Captain William Bligh with the long boats in which he sailed through the Fiji to Timor in the Dutch East Indies. In April 1789 the crew of Bligh's H.M.S. Bounty mutinied near Tonga.

The 20 cents bears a bust of a Fijian explorer and an early type of native oceangoing canoe in which the first discoverers were known to have traveled. Very little is known about these explorers except they moved from island to island in the South Pacific long before the Europeans ventured to this vast area.

Bomb Scares Shut Schools In Guilford

GUILFORD (AP)—A rash of bomb threats—so far, no bombs—has brought about the closing of school Thursday in Guilford.

The school board made the decision Wednesday night, acting on a recommendation from the police chief. Police began 24-hour surveillance of all the schools.

The bomb threats began Monday and Tuesday, forcing early closing of the high school both days. On Wednesday, the local school superintendent found another bomb threat contained in a note on his desk, and officials were wondering how it got there.

The bomb threats did not affect the schools. The school board decided to keep the schools closed Thursday, as a precaution.

The board meeting was held in one of the school buildings.

HARTFORD (AP)—About 1,000 people were evacuated Wednesday afternoon from the 15-story Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. office building here after a bomb threat was telephoned to a switchboard operator.

The building remained closed all day, although no bomb was found. Police detectives brand the incident a "hoax" after searching the building.

Weekly Toll Of GIs Slain Remains Low

SARASOTA (AP)—The allied command today reported 43 Americans killed in action last week, scattered fighting in Cambodia with 44 enemy troops killed in one clash and sharp curtailment in American air attacks on Vietnam.

Another 279 Americans were wounded last week. The total of 43 dead was three more than the week before, but the fourth consecutive week that U.S. battlefield deaths were below 50, the first time this had occurred since September-October 1965.

Another 38 American servicemen died last week from accidents or illness, the U.S. Command said, raising total American casualties in the war since Jan. 1, 1961 to 41,894. Killed in action, 8,730; dead from accidents or illness, and 91,024 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 215 of its troops killed in action last week and 60 wounded, and the U.S. Command said allied forces killed 1,464 North Vietnamese in the week.

The South Vietnamese tolls were Saigon's lowest since mid-September; the enemy toll was 227 more than claimed the week before.

The U.S. Command said American forces experienced only light combat activity during the past 24 hours, with field reports indicating no Americans killed in action.

American air activity dropped to one of its lowest levels of the week because of tropical storm Louise's 65-mile-an-hour winds.

Only 21 fighter-bomber strikes were flown from 8 a.m. Wednesday to 8 a.m. today. Planes were moved from two coastal bases but the storm forced them out today, and normal operations were expected Friday.

The storm had no effect on other military activities.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Food and Drug Administration today announced the first recall of a product contaminated with poliovirus spores.

The recalled pills are a "possible, moderate health hazard."

The pills were fashioned from the livers of seals killed on the Pribilof Islands southeast of Alaska in 1964.

Randal freeze-dried the livers for storage and used them over the past six years to make 1,200,000 pills, the FDA said.

"Real liver attracted my attention because it came from an animal most free of contaminants," said Downing B. Randall, president of the company. "You can just figure from this that there isn't any place in the whole earth that isn't contaminated."

Dr. George Y. Harry, director of the government's marine mammal Biology Laboratory in Seattle, said it is still not known how the seals became contaminated.

The seals, he said, migrate up and down the Pacific coast and possibly could have picked up mercury from industrial discharges.

The seal contamination was the first finding of significant quantities of mercury in fish and mammals, said Harry, "and it was startling."

"Abnormal amounts of mercury have been found in walrus, fish and game birds in at least

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP)—CIVILIZATION is closing in, even in the high mountain meadows and rushing streams, and the animals are fading away.

WASHINGTON (AP)—State universities and colleges offer the best dollar bargain for the college-bound student but even that charge was not as dramatic this year as in the past, the two associations said, but past five years. And it is going to continue to rise.

There were regional differences in costs. In the Southeast, the median cost for a resident student in 1969-70 was $2,000, compared with $1,376 this year for tuition, board and room. For a non-resident student it was $2,000.
