Italy Recognizes Communist China

ROME (AP) — Italy and Communist China established diplomatic relations today, marking nearly two years of secret talks between the two nations.

The communiqué was issued several hours after the Italian government extended recognition of Peking.

The two countries said in a joint communique released here and in Peking that they had decided to recognize each other and would exchange ambassadors within three months.

The document said Peking considered "Formosa an inalienable part" of its territory.

Italy "took note" of this affirmation by China and recognized Peking "as the only legal government of China."

Recount Declares Killian Victorious

By DON MEHLER Associated Press Writer HARTFORD (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Robert K. Killian, won re-election today, according to a recount of the votes by the Hartford Courant.

Initial figures had the Republican Mayor of Meriden, Donald T. Dorsey, the victor by a narrow margin in the attorney general race.

But on Thursday, with Killian reporting process, the Courant decided to get the vote tallies directly from the 169 town clerks throughout the state.

Killian was present at the recount when the newspaper's president, Edmund Downer, said he had twice by explosion.

Persons in the crowd said police found three more charges that failed to go off.

The first blast occurred shortly after noon at a bus stop, but Dorsey had also come to light.

Jobless Rate Increased In October

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate edged up last month and many factories jobs dropped, largely because of the auto workers' strike against General Motors.

The national jobless rate edged up one-tenth of one percent to 5.6 per cent of the work force, the report said.

The 5.6 per cent figure compared with the 5.5 per cent rate reported last month.

A Good Place For A Big Bass

When you are surf casting in North Wales you ignore the daytime tides. Sometimes you can catch a bass when there is rain and heavy cloud and a strong wind from the South-west, but mostly it is better to wait, resting during the day so that you are wide awake and alert when the right tide comes and your experience in the past; or was it just the tide in the past I was lucky for one week season, just a little less than a year, the formula did not work anymore.

On Sunday I drove down a winding lane from a small village on the south coast of Anglesey. At the end of the lane there was a cart track. This cart track led to a beach. It was not a true beach but a cove, all rocks and weed, with small patches of sand and shale between. In the center of the bay was an island. On the island, which was joined to the mainland by a rocky reef, stood an old red roof and only covered on the highest of spring tides was a round stone building which was the lighthouse. A roof and was circled by a low stone wall. It appeared to be a church or monastery building.

The bay itself was very shallow. It had the undisturbed sense of a secret place such as you find along the west coast of Ireland. The equinoctial gales blow and the tourists all go home.

I studied the place and said aloud: "This is a good bass place, close up to the reef, the flooding tide would be a fine place to troll a rubber eel or cast a Toby spinner. It would be a place for big bass."

Then I thought: "When did you last catch a big bass, or any bass?" And I did not dare to answer. All my conclusions about this bay could be wrong as everything else seemed to be wrong and so I did not walk out along the rocky reef and study the ground. I did not discover whether it was a church or a monastery. I walked out a little way across the low reef to the end of the rocks where the surf roared and sucked and whirled around my legs and was all white foam.

Then I walked on up to the highest cliffs and I looked down on a long stretch of sand which seemed to curl into the distance for ever and was backed by high dunes and washed by a long shallow surf with flat banks of water between the breakers. It was just like Strathclyde Strand in Kerry and all the other places which mean so much to me, which I also understand to interpret the very best of the good days past.

California, last Tuesday, reelected Ronald Reagan Governor by giving him a 504,000 vote plurality.

That some Californians, those same voters, on that same day, gave Congressman John Tunney a plurality of 598,000 votes over Senator George Murphy, Reagan's friend and companion in conservatism.

That same Californians, which had begun to win itself a reputation for national leadership in the move back to conservative fundamentalism in educational theories, turned out at the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction the same Max Rafferty who had made himself the champion of that fundamentalist approach and replaced him with one Wilson Riles, a black candidate of liberal views, under whose guidance California's education may begin to breathe again.

While Californians were doing these things, they were also turning out at the office, in the Los Angeles area, the Superior Court judge who had authored the controversial integration order that required busing in Los Angeles public schools.

The contradictions of the California voting were echoed elsewhere. The famed Nixon "Southern Strategy" could bring down Democrat Gore in Tennessee, but could elect Thurmond's reactionary candidate for Governor in South Carolina. The "law and order" issue may have helped Republicans somewhere, but not in the places where it was most sharply employed, as in Illinois.

One asks, as one tries to scan the whole array of results Tuesday, whether the American voters knew what they were doing. And the answer has to be that, so far as any trend to the right or the left, to one party or another, to one philosophy or another, or to one issue or another, might be concerned, the voters did not arrange themselves in any pattern convenient for post-election analysis.

It was a confused and confusing campaign and has had confused and confusing results.

What did the American people say? They are glad to have it over.

They are, perhaps, a little like the stock market was on election day itself. For two weeks the market had been dawdling around, with all the experts proclaiming that it was waiting to see how the election came out. Then, on election day, before there was any indication of how the election was coming out, but when the din had finally mercifully ceased and everybody could be sure nobody was going to try to pull some last hedgehog campaign rabbit out of the hat, the market zoomed upward. It just fell so good to have the campaign itself ended.

Inside Report

The Democratic South

By Rowland Evans Jr. and Robert D. Novak

WASHINGTON — A private telephone conversation this week between Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes of Texas symbolized the sudden transformation of the Southern Democratic Party into a potentially fertile source of 1972 votes.

Furthermore, dynamic Democratic Presidential prospect, and the youthful, dynamic Barnes, re-elected with nearly a 70 percent vote, did not discuss the 1972 national ticket. What they did talk about was the need to reestablish the Democratic Party's historic alliance between North and South, whose steady disintegration was hastened by the 1968 election.

In truth, that alliance may have been reborn Tuesday. Defeating the Nixon-Agnew law-and-order campaign throughout the South, the Democrats have placed non-racist moderates in the governor's mansions in Arkansas (replacing Republican Claude Kirk), Georgia (replacing radical Lester Maddox), and South Carolina (continuing the moderate Democratic regime of Gov. Robert McNair).

In Texas, moderate Democrats turned back a powerful Republican challenge in a possibly decisive election. Already holding North Carolina, this new breed of Southern Democratic moderate now controls six of seven Dixie states — a bitter harvest reaped by President Nixon's Southern strategy.

The only Republican holdouts are Tennessee, now a bona fide Republican state, and Virginia, whose moderate, Republican party headed by Gov. Linwood Holton was humiliated when the White House refused to help it against the Senate campaign of newly independent conservative Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr.

The leaders of Deep South — Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, which George Wallace can have for the taking in 1972. Moreover, only one Southern Democratic House seat went to a Republican in the conservative district (in Virginia's conservative Shenandoah Valley — vacated by a Byrd Democrat) has been destined for the Republicans for years.

There were, of course, special

Thanks From A Candidate

To the Editor,
I want to take this opportunity to thank all of the people who contributed and worked so hard for me especially Herb Stevenson, my campaign manager. The voters all are to be congratulated on the splendid triumph. In Florida, a long-standing feud between Kirk and anti-Kirk Republicans was further inflamed when an overly cute White House backed Kirk's decision to run ex-Judge Harold Carwell against Kirk's enemy, Rep. William Cramer, in the Republican primary. Cramer walloped Carwell, but both Cramer and Kirk were damaged for the fall campaign.

Furthermore, Cramer blundered horribly when he personally held up three Federal judgeships cleared by retiring Democratic Sen. Spessard Holland, galvanizing Holland to take the stump for state Sen. Lawton Chiles against Cramer. Holland's campaign assured victory for the statewide Democratic ticket headed by Chiles and Gov-elect Reubin Askew. Beyond such peculiarities, Sen. Chiles-Askew team fairly reflects the new Southern democracy. Disturbed by bitter racial battles of the 1960s and unconnected with the party's Northern power base of big labor, Eastern intellectuals, and New York money.

The other new Southern governors — Jimmie Carter in Georgia, Dale West in South Carolina, John Hammers in Arkansas — also are non-racist moderates. In store, then, is the strong prospect of vigorous party rebuilding in these states, untroubled by the bitter legacy of the '60s. In store, as well, is an alliance with Northern moderates of the Muskie stripe. The Democratic National Committee, for example, has started removing rough edges from liberal party-structure reforms for the 1972 convention. This is quiet backpedaling, intended to prevent the fratricide that prevailed in 1968.

In addition, a move is underfoot to give the Southern moderate a higher place in party councils and keep them in frequent contact with Northern party leaders. Though stepping down as governor of South Carolina, McNair will continue as a vice-chairman of the national party. His goal: regularize North-South contacts.

A formidable obstacle to this could come from the party's liberal wing, led by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and including Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and Harold Hughes of Iowa as Presidential hopefuls. In their concentration on the poor, the black, and the young, they reject a Southern alliance, the result could be more fratricide — a windfall for Mr. Nixon.

But one prospect extremely threatening to Mr. Nixon is clear: The South is getting in strong position to demand its once-traditional second spot on the ticket, and the Northern moderates — including Ed Muskie — may not be reluctant about complying.

I thoroughly enjoyed the campaign. I made many new friends

Since there is probably little real harm done, and it doubtless provides a welcome square advertising revenue to our local newspapers and printing shops, we can forget this. They do burn well. With a fine glow, as far as the television adds, they are unflinchingly nauseous, they are, for the most part, a good deal better entertainment than the general run of television fare anyway and hence a help since one tends to keep the idiot box off until after election day.

But I do ask for the use of your forum and your editorial help in one final matter.

As a voter in Manchester I was asked to register last candidates as well as 4 state and 4 local questions. This is something that requires great deliberation if one is to select well and properly.

I don't know how it is at the other places, but at the Verplanck School from the time you got out of your car to try and make your way to the door of the polling place you are assailed by voices shouting just minute instructions and shrill propaganda leaflets at you. Surely an ordinance could be passed and enforced that prohibit electronic noise on the grounds of the polling place. After all the last hurrahs are shouted it seems to me that the beleaguered voter could walk the final steps to his decision in an atmosphere of calm and dignity.

Thank you,
Gordon K. Bickford

A Thought for Today
Sponsored by the Manchester Council of Churches

Blindness
So much of life is lived in blindness. Staring straight ahead, Closing to the Searching contact Of eyes Seeing people.

Time walking A set course With protected, Selected response For those Recognized as There.

Feelings aware Of form and presence Of kindred sharings Sad loneliness But not daring To see.

Only living force Can break To reach out With human warmth And seeing eyes To those Who might be Blinded by safety From seeing Me.

Ormandy At UConn

By JOHN GRUBBER

Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra drew a capacity audience to UConn's Jorgensen Auditorium last evening. That's a lot of people, attracted by the reputation of this particular group as a world-beater.

Actually it is a very good concert, but it has manifested shortcomings that keep it from being the best. One of these is the "Ormandy Sound," which I have decreed for years. It is a slick, lush timbre that remains constant regardless of the composer, which just plain should not be the case.

Last night we got music by Bartok, Mahler, and Prokofiev. Tonally they all sounded alike, yet it is hard to conceive of Bartok's music as anything other than Mahler and Prokofiev.

I intend to continue my efforts whenever I can to help those who believe in good government. I hope to be better society. And perhaps there may be another day.

Phoenix Operations Bay State Site

HARTFORD (AP) — Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. has announced it will move its Insurance Services Department to Greenfield, Mass., 60 miles from Hartford.

The company which built the Boat Building on Constitution Plaza, has taken an option on 20 acres of heavily wooded land in the Massachusetts town of 15,000 population. The site is the final step to his decision in south of the intersection of Route 2.

Phoenix expects to start construction in the spring of 1971 for a "state-of-the-art" 100,000 sq. ft. initial staff of 200, according to the Greenfield Recorder-Gazette.

Superior Court Child Abuse Conviction Is Appealed

An appeal to the state supreme court has been filed by Donald L. Palote who was sentenced last week on charges of abusing one of his seven children.

Palote, a Somersville father of seven, formerly of Ellington was found guilty by a jury last spring on three counts of risk of injury, two counts of cruelty to persons and one of breach of peace. He was found innocent of one count of cruelty.

Palote was accused of beating his son Donald Jr., age 10, with a strap and of throwing him down and striking with a belt after the boy and a younger brother had been removed from the home.

Sentencing was delayed so that a hearing on a motion to set aside the verdict could be taken.

U.S. To Boost Economic Aid To Cambodia

The American plan also reportedly envisages attempting to line up other countries in a "save Cambodia" consortium.

The most likely prospect is believed to be Japan. Japan reportedly is prepared to give Cambodia civilian economic aid but only on the understanding that no aid would be approved for the military effort.

As in Vietnam, the American idea is to have any aid program include as many funds as possible to prevent it being identified, either in the United States or abroad, as a solo American effort.

The idea of the proposed new aid program is still under intensive study in Washington and in Phnom Penh, diplomats said.

Prime Minister Lon Nol's government has said that in the next 18 months it will need $200 million in direct budget support.

Western experts believe that Western contributions will be more significant.

There is now a U.S. economic aid for Cambodia.

On the military side, the United States gave Cambodia $8 million in the last fiscal year and pledged $40 million dollars this fiscal year.

Tolland Board Asks Opinions On Education

Tolland residents will be given an opportunity to voice their comments about the local school system in reply to a questionnaire being sent to all homes today by the Board of Education.

The Middle School opening date has been targeted for Jan. 4, according to another announcement yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Dr. Kenneth MacIntyre.

Referring to the questionnaire, Dr. MacIntyre noted it is being mailed to "homebodies" since this is the "most economical way to communicate with every citizen."

The title of the questionnaire is "What Do the People Want From Their Schools?"

School, Town Hall Wing Items for Board Tuesday

The Manchester Board of Directors, when it meets Tuesday night at 8, in the Municipal Building Hearing Room, will be asked to authorize preliminary planning for a new junior high school and for an addition to the Municipal Building.

The Board of Education is requesting that the directors approve a town option for purchasing an 88-acre site for the Junior High School. The 88-acre tract, owned by the Welch family, is on the east side of Keeney St., just south of the Keeney St. School and north of Garden Grove Rd.

The school board is recommending also that preliminary planning be started for the junior high school—leading to a possible referendum next November on a bond issue for the land and construction cost.

The recommendation for preliminary planning for a Municipal Building addition comes from Town Manager Robert Welch.

In a memo to the directors, he states: "As you know, the town hall was built in 1925, when the town had a population of 21,018 (it now has about 48,000). We now are operating in a very crowded and inefficient manner, with several functions conducted in outside quarters which should be performed in the town hall. The authorization requested would permit us to develop some kind of preliminary plans, to make a start toward a town hall addition."

In unfinished business from its Oct. 7 meeting, the board, Tuesday night, will discuss alternate proposals for Greenwood Dr. and Overlook Dr. sanitary sewers.

The board, following a heated public hearing Oct. 2, at Highland Park School, tabled action on the proposed installation and instructed public works officials to prepare alternate proposals which might be acceptable to the property owners involved.

The alternates have not been made public. They will be presented by Town Engineer Walter Senkow.

In other business Tuesday night, the board will consider designating the Manchester State Bank a town depository and will re-appoint George A. Kanehi of Manchester as town auditor.

Ceremonies Due As Bank Opens At Month's End

Those opening accounts will receive their choice of a travel clock, handbag with umbrella, radio or candle holders.

Persons starting Christmas Club accounts will receive as a premium a set of frankincense and myrrh oil lamps in a Christmas book binding.

Panel Talks On Learning Disabilities

Last night, a panel discussed education for children with learning disabilities, at an observance of World Community Day by the Manchester Church Women United at St. Bridget School cafeteria.

Mrs. Glen Law was moderator. Panel members were Dr. Robert Breer, pediatrician; Mrs. William VonDuck, speech and hearing clinician for Manchester schools; Mrs. Winthrop Ford, reading consultant for Manchester schools; and Mrs. Darden Hallett, an interested parent. Miss Iga Paups sang several selections.

The panel defined learning disability as not physically handicapped nor mentally retarded, but rather a malfunction of part of the brain which leaves a discrepancy between the child's ability and function.

During the discussion it was also brought out that a child can be helped to help himself, and that adequate physical checks can help recognize problems at an early age.

It was also noted that the Manchester school system has many tests which help find children with disabilities, including tests for hearing, speech, reading problems, and expressive relationships; also, that though Manchester has the availability of diagnosing these problems, there is only one class to help these children in the entire school system.

After the program, refreshments were served by women of St. Bridget Church. There also was a display of layettes made by the women of Center Congregational Church for use in refugee camps.

Others were Mrs. Thomas Parker of St. Bartholomew's Church and Mrs. Bernhard Anderson of the Unitarian Universalist Society.

Witnesses said they had seen one Arab beaten up by Israeli soldiers, but police said this could not be confirmed.

Terrorists last struck an Israeli city in October 1969, when 2 Israelis were killed and 18 wounded in an explosion in the port city of Haifa.

The same central bus station was hit by terrorists Sept. 4, 1968. One person was killed and 21 wounded in that attack.

The owner of a photography store said "I heard a blast and ran outside and saw four persons lying on the ground. Immediately a taxi came up and took them away to a hospital. There was a lot of blood."

The entire area was cordoned off as police began a minute search for suspects and more explosives.

Another witness said there was a lot of confusion but the people behaved very well.

In the 1968 blast, several Arabs were manhandled by Jews and later there were riotous scenes in the Arab quarter of Haifa.

Smog Controls
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — New industrial smog control standards ordered by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District are aimed at cutting in half the amount of smoke from industries when they become fully effective within a year.

The new standards should result in a reduction of smoke in the atmosphere by 20 tons per year," O. J. Callaghan, the district's chief administrative officer, said Thursday.

Assault charges were filed against Spizzano, 17, James Bannister, 18, and Robert Barrows, 18, all of New Britain, police said.

Police said they arrested the youths, all of them except one from New Britain, after being called Wednesday to investigate a disturbance shortly before 9 p.m. on Jude Lane.

Police have declined to release much information about the disturbance except that two men were shot with a .22-caliber pistol and that several knives were drawn during the incident but were not used.

Ralph Harbut, 21, who lives near the scene of the disturbance, was charged with assault in and around the bus station with intent to kill and hold, and later there were riotous scenes in the Arab quarter of Haifa.

Top U.S. Envoys Snub Soviet Parade

MOSCOW (AP) — Top-ranking U.S. envoys in Moscow boycotted a massive military parade today in honor of the 23rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution in czarist Russia.

High U.S. officials in Washington and American diplomats in Moscow were snubbed by Soviet officials.

Standing atop Lenin's tomb and flanked by Communist party officials, Khrushchev and other leaders, Gromyko noted that the Soviet people "greeted with esteem" the results of the recent visit to Moscow by French President Georges Pompidou.

In the Soviet Embassy in East Berlin, a "de-escalation" protest was held by military administration in West Berlin.

Police said leaflets found in the park called for "resistance against selling out Germany."

British soldiers at a stomach wound, which probably was not mortal. "It is a pretty fair shot from across the way to the memorial," one said.

The season's first snow covered the memorial and its adjacent park during the night. As a West Berlin customs official said, his station reported that the Russian strike force was hurried to leave.

As the time for the annual anniversary parade drew near, the report said the actual total area awarded with police, far jobless Americans remained roughly the same at 4.5 million.

Bullets Hit Red Soldier In Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — A Russian soldier guarding a Soviet monument in West Berlin was wounded early today by shots fired at him and a comrade.

The incident occurred a few hours before Red units were to parade before the memorial in honor of the 33rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Police said leaflets found in the park called for "resistance against selling out Germany."

Last Rites Celebrated For Cushing

BOSTON (AP) — "Most merciful Father, we commend our brother Richard into your hands. We are filled with the sure hope that he will rise again with the last day with all those who have died in Christ."

With this final prayer, the late Richard Cardinal Cushing, 83, was buried in the Roman Catholic cathedral in Boston.

One month ago to the day, Oct. 7, on the same altar, Cardinal Cushing stepped down as spiritual leader of the archdiocese.

Boston's three commercial television stations arranged a standstill near the Sears Canal live telecast of the cathedral ceremony, including the eulogy by John Cardinal Wright, prefect of the Sacred Congregation of the Clergy at the Vatican.

Cardinal Wright was an auxiliary bishop in Boston before becoming bishop of Worcester and later of Pittsburgh.

Nearly a dozen cardinals came to Boston for the final rites in the high vaulted cathedral located in a slum section of the city.

Among them were William Cardinal Conway, primate of Ireland, Maurice Cardinal Royce of Quebec and James Cardinal LeMay of St. Louis and Philadelphia.

The principal celebrant of the funeral was the late Archbishop Luigi Riboldi, the Vatican's apostolic delegate to the United States.

Unemployment Spurs New Political Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fighting charges over unemployment continued today after the government's post-election report said that the nation's jobless rate edged up to 8.6 per cent of the work force in October.

Democratic House Speaker Carl Albert said the unemployment situation over the past few months has become a "national disaster."

John W. McCormack, who had predicted a rise to 8 per cent, said his station reported that the official report did not include some 600,000 "discouraged" unemployed.

The White House denied the report was deliberately held up until after the elections.

Republican National Chairman Rogers C.B. Morton charged that Democrats, in pre-election forecasts, had predicted a rise to 8.6 per cent.

It blamed the General Motors strike for the rise in the jobless rate and for a drop of 610,000 in the unemployment rate.

It also said total employment rose 660,000, including farm workers and the self-employed, but that the key payroll employment figure was down nearly 500,000 to 70.6 million.

Dorsey Gets Recount Bid

HARTFORD (AP) — Officials prepared to take another look at all of Connecticut's 2,000 voting machines, as Republican Donald T. Dorsey, mayor of Meriden, won the right to an automatic recount in his bid to wrest the office of attorney general from the incumbent Democrat, Robert K. Killian.

Killian was awarded a 1,601-vote margin in the election. Dorsey, who had a 1,399-vote margin, filed a request for a recount.

The official figures came from the secretary of the state's office Friday, compiled from individual town totals. They gave Killian victory with 620,000 votes to Dorsey's 238,079.

Killian said Friday night that he looked to him like overvoting was probably responsible for the confusion over the outcome.

"I don't feel anybody can be blamed," he said. "When you're talking about a possible one-fifth of one per cent based on about 11 million votes... I think the range between 1,300 and 3,200 isn't a great deal."

The recount of the state's voting machines was ordered because GOP state chairman Howard E. Hausman had already filed a request for a recount.

There will be some tough rounds along the way. Tax revision, congressional redistricting, and the appointment of the General Assembly (which has been postponed) are all on the agenda.

There could be a stand-off that goes on for months, not to the benefit of either side.
