

Seale Jury Selection To Start Tomorrow

By DAN HALL
Associated Press Writer

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The process of selecting a 12-member jury to try Bobby G. Seale, the national chairman of the Black Panther party, and Ericka Huggins is scheduled to begin Tuesday.

The two Panther members are being held without bond on capital charges that grew out of the torture and slaying in May 1969 of a fellow Panther. The selection process is expected to be a slow one because of the amount of publicity about the slaying, which led to the arrest of 14 Panthers.

Seale, 34, has mentioned the case in his book "Seize the Time." He also testified about his involvement in the incident in August during the trial of Panther captain Lonnie McCluscas, the only one of the defendants to reach trial so far.

Mrs. Huggins, 22, is the widow of John Huggins of New Haven, one of two Panthers who were shot to death in California several years ago by black nationalists as a result of an apparent rift in black activities in the Berkeley, Calif., area.

Both defendants have pleaded innocent to the charges against them. Seale is charged with first-degree murder, kidnapping resulting in death, conspiracy to murder and to kidnap. Mrs. Huggins faces counts of kidnapping, aiding and abetting in murder, both conspiracy charges and binding with criminal intent.

Mrs. Huggins was arrested here with eight other suspects a day after the body of Alex Rackley, 24, of New York City was found in a shallow river about 25 miles northeast of here.

Two of the defendants have pleaded guilty to second-degree murder. Defense lawyers for McCluscas claimed that one of them, George Sams, organized a torture session to learn if Rackley had been a police informant in New York and later coerced other Panthers to confine Rackley and ultimately shoot him to death.

Seale was picked up in California in August 1969 on the strength of a statement police obtained from Sams when he was arrested in Toronto.

Sams testified in the McCluscas trial that Seale had gone to the room in Panther headquarters here where Rackley allegedly was being held, questioned him and then told other Panthers to "off the pig," an expression explained variously as meaning to kill or to get rid of the police agent or informer. His testimony is the only one to directly link Seale, and he is expected to be a primary prosecution witness against Seale.

Attorney For Seale Loves Job

By PETER COWEN
Associated Press Writer

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Three years ago as a successful trial lawyer, Charles R. Garry was earning between $100,000 and $200,000 in fees each year for his San Francisco law firm.

Today that sum has dwindled to practically nothing, yet Garry says he has never felt more fulfilled in his life.

"I love it," Garry says of his work as chief counsel for the Black Panther party. "It's been very rewarding to me as a person. It's given me a broader and a deeper understanding, a more optimistic approach to the welfare of American human beings."

Garry, 61, will be defending Bobby Seale when the Panthers' national chairman and another party member go on trial Nov. 17 in the white-columned Superior Court building here on capital charges in the slaying of Alex Rackley.

Garry's first contact with the Black Panthers came in 1967, when a friend asked him to defend Huey P. Newton, the Panthers' minister of defense, who was charged with murdering an Oakland, Calif., policeman. Newton was convicted of manslaughter—a disposition the Panthers counted a victory—but the conviction was reversed and he is presently free or bond pending a re-trial on the manslaughter charge.

"I never really understood the Black Panther until I got involved with defending Huey Newton and the Black Panthers," the gray-haired attorney said in a recent interview. "I knew Negro America, but I didn't know black America."

Garry's work on behalf of the Black Panthers has earned him a place in the government's dossier of persons considered to be engaged in "subversive activities." An investigation by the Associated Press disclosed that his name was one of 2.5 million filed in the data bank kept by the Civil Service Commission that lists all persons favorably

Probers Comb Remote Hillside To Determine Why Jet Crashed

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Federal investigators divided into 10 teams today to search a remote hillside near freezing temperatures for clues into the weekend jetliner crash which killed all 75 persons aboard, including most of the Marshall University football team.

Initial findings showed "no evidence of any particular problem" mechanically with the twin-jet DC9, and no indication of pilot error, said John D. Reed, chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board.

Reed, pledging to find a cause of the accident, joined the teams ranging from four to six men each to probe the twisted wreckage strewn over an area of about 500 yards.

Each team, headed by specialists from NTSB, also began interviewing witnesses to the Saturday night crash.

Reed said pieces of the plane also would be hauled from the crash scene to an airport hangar for investigation.

Returning the Marshall team, coaches and followers from an afternoon game with East Carolina University at Greenville, N.C., the plane cut a swath through treetops before crashing into a hillside short of the Tri-State Airport runway Saturday night.

Besides 37 Marshall football players and 8 members of the coaching staff, the dead included several prominent Huntington citizens—three physicians, a newly elected state legislator, a past president of the Marshall alumni association and the university's dean of admissions.

Eight married couples, parents of 24 children, were killed. Coaches and some married players killed in the crash left 35 more children.

Today and Tuesday were declared days of mourning on the Marshall campus and throughout the city. Public offices and schools were closed.

A special FBI disaster team began today the task of identifying the charred remains of the 75 victims, brought to a temporary morgue established in an airport hangar.

Twelve bodies were positively identified, including Asst. Coach Jim "Shorty" Moss, Huntington City Councilman Murrill Halsten, Huntington television sports director Ken Jones and the airline's charter coordinator, Danny M. Deese.

The FBI team said it would take several days to complete the task.

"This town is dead," was the way one nurse described the grim silence that engulfed Huntington and the university campus.

Memorial services were held throughout the weekend. At one service, about 400 students and Huntington citizens—some weeping and on their knees—sang an African hymn, "Someone's singing, Lord, kumbaya ... Someone's hurting, Lord, kumbaya ... Someone's praying, Lord, kumbaya."

About 7,000, including West Virginia Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr., attended a Sunday night memorial service in the Marshall field house.

Calling the football players "beautiful young people," Moore said, "These young people were our lives and we had looked to them for a future."

Michale Gant, president of the Marshall student body, said haltingly, "Something is missing and we feel it very deeply."

At a makeshift infirmary set up in another campus building, student friends of the crash victims were treated for shock.

One coed screamed "Alex, come back ... please, God, come back."

The crash occurred about 7:40 p.m., after the DC9 clipped the tops of trees about 75 feet tall on a ridge some 100 feet higher than the airport runway.

"The airplane was shedding parts from the first impact," Reed said. "Ten feet higher and he would have made it. That's all he needed."

He said that 90 seconds before it crashed the plane was on target for a safe landing. He added that the pilot never reported any trouble in conversation with the Tri-State control tower.

Tragedy Cuts Deep On Campus

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — "Something is missing, and we feel it so very deeply ..."

Michael Gant, Marshall University's student body president, put it that way to the 7,000 persons gathered Sunday evening in a memorial service mourning 75 victims of a fiery plane crash less than 24 hours before.

For the parents, relatives and friends of the dead, who included nearly all of the Marshall football team, the impact came swiftly.

For others in this campus community and city of 73,000 it may have been slower, but no less wrenching.

The loss has touched everyone in some manner—from the woman who rents a room to a university student to Gov. Arch A. Moore Jr., who eulogized the football team as "beautiful young people."

The shockwave of disbelief and grief was heard in the words of one long-time Marshall administrator, "Where the hell do we go from here? What else can go wrong?"

Or the coed, sitting on the steps outside the Marshall student union on a cold, windy Sunday night, who said, "Somehow, somewhere, somebody's crossed our stars."

The burden of holding the 8,600-student campus' community together weighs on Dr. Donald N. Dedmon, acting Marshall president, who barely managed

Death Toll May Hit 300,000 in Pakistan

By ARNOLD ZEITLIN
Associated Press Writer

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP)—Officials say 300,000 persons may have died in the cyclone and tidal waves in East Pakistan last Friday, making it one of history's greatest disasters.

Four islands 60 miles south of Dacca in the Ganges River delta were lashed hardest by the 150-mile-an-hour winds and 20-foot waves from the Bay of Bengal.

Officials said so many were dead or missing that rescue teams were counting survivors, not the dead. Some sources said there appeared to be almost no survivors on at least one of the islands.

The 1961 census listed 1.4 million persons on the four islands—Hatia, Ramagar, Charjubar and Bholu—but other sources estimated the population was less than half that when the storm hit. However, there had been a recent influx of workers for the rice harvest.

The official death count rose to 32,871 Monday night, but fatality estimates grew hourly from scores of reports. A former assemblyman said local officials indicated 55,000 had perished in Patuakhali district to the west of the four islands. A utility official said thousands of farmers were swept into the sea when a tidal wave roared over the 15-foot dam which had reclaimed the land on which they were living.

Over 44,000 GI's Killed In Viet War Since 1961

SAIGON (AP) — Enemy mines and booby traps pushed the total of American battlefield deaths in Vietnam past 44,000 during the weekend, while in Cambodia, North Vietnamese forces battered two Cambodian units on the northern front.

The Viet Cong's crude explosive devices took nine American lives over the weekend. Despite the absence of any pitched battles involving American forces, 44 U.S. troops were reported killed last week, the highest toll in five weeks. This raised the total number of Americans reported killed in action in Indochina to 44,003 since Jan. 1, 1961, but the total will undoubtedly be increased by casualty reports which have not yet reached the U.S. Command.

Meanwhile, U.S. troop strength in Vietnam dropped to 393,800 last week, a decrease of 4,200 during the past week and the lowest in almost four years. Another 19,800 troops are to be cut by Dec. 31, bringing the authorized total down to 344,000.

The U.S. Command announced the cutback of 1,535 more troops with the withdrawal from combat of the 3rd Squadron, 4th Cavalry, 25th Infantry Division, and the 704th Maintenance Battalion of the 4th Infantry Division. Both the 25th and 4th Divisions are being moved out of Vietnam by Christmas.

North Vietnamese forces in Cambodia attacked two sweepstakes and booby traps pushed the total of American battlefield deaths in Vietnam past 44,000 during the weekend, while in Cambodia, North Vietnamese forces battered two Cambodian units on the northern front.

It was the first serious ground fighting in the area north of Skoun since the 29,000-man government task force recaptured Taing Kauk two months ago and dug in.

Cambodian troops continued to hold a handful of key strong points along the northern front but made no major effort to re-establish government control along the 32-mile stretch of Highway 7 between Kompung Cham, 47 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, and Skoun.

Bullets Claim Lives of Five In Midwest

SUNBURG, Minn. (AP) — Authorities were holding a man for questioning today in the weekend shotgun slayings of a farm couple and their three children.

Ronald Schneider, Kandiyohi County attorney, said a grand jury would be called shortly to bring charges against the man. Sheriff Harvey M. Spaulding earlier had described the killings as "a complete mystery," saying, "We can't even establish a motive at this time."

The body of James Fremberg, 40, was found in the barn about 10 a.m. Sunday by Delbert Peterson of Sunburg, who had stopped at the farm to pick up milk for a creamery.

The milking machine was running, indicating Fremberg had begun his morning chores when he was shot at close range. About 150 yards away, in the dining room of the two-story farmhouse, authorities found the body of Fremberg's wife, Gloria, 29.

A close-range shotgun blast had decapitated her. A quart of milk and cereal bowls were on the table for a meal the family never ate. Toys were strewn about the downstairs rooms.

In one of two upstairs bedrooms, authorities found the pajama-clad bodies of the three children. David, 7, and Douglas, 4, were in one bed and their sister Patricia, 8, in another.

There were no signs of a struggle and authorities had no clues, the sheriff said. No murder weapon was found and the slayer or slayers had taken away the expended shell casing, apparently from a 12-gauge shotgun.

"I've known this boy for 30 years, I suppose," said Spaulding. "A real good kid. No problems—no family problems."

Because of the distance between house and barn, shots could have been fired in one building without being heard in the other, Spaulding said.

The family had lived for about nine years on the central Minnesota farm, about 125 miles northwest of Minneapolis. The nearest town, Sunburg, is a community of 160 persons five miles away.

The tree-surrounded farmhouse, its aqua paint peeling and weathered in many places, is typical of this gently rolling, occasionally wooded rural region.

Calley Jury Seen Picked By Day's End

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — A military judge said today he intends to obtain a jury to try Lt. William L. Calley Jr., charged in the alleged My Lai massacre, by the end of the day.

So far, only four officers have been found acceptable by defense attorneys and the prosecution. Military law calls for a minimum of five members of the general court-martial board.

The 27-year-old Calley, from Miami, Fla., is charged with premeditated murder in the death of 102 unarmed Vietnamese civilians.

The military judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, said during a recess that he intends to have a jury by the end of the day.

Calley's trial was to have begun today, but was delayed because the court-martial board has not been picked.

Kennedy called a rare court session Saturday in an effort to complete the board.

Fourteen officers have been disqualified during nearly three days of questioning on the part of defense and prosecution attorneys.

The four jurors thus far selected are:

- Col. Lamar A. Welch, 56, of West Palm Beach, Fla., a combat veteran of World War II and a military adviser in Vietnam.
- Col. Clifford H. Ford, 53, of Knoxville, Tenn., World War II and Korean veteran.
- Lt. Col. Robert A. Duvall, 38, a native of Lockwood, Mo., a Vietnam veteran.
- Capt. Ronald J. Salem of Sioux Falls, S.D., a Vietnam combat veteran and adviser.

If convicted, Calley, 27, could face death by hanging or life imprisonment if the jury so decrees.

Listed as possible witnesses are 79 persons.

The Army prosecutor, Capt. Aubrey M. Daniel III, has said the trial may last a month.

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP) — Defense testimony was to begin today in the court-martial of S. Sgt. David Mitchell, first American soldier to be tried in the My Lai incident.

Proceedings have been in recess since Oct. 22 because of the illness of Mitchell's attorney, Osmie Brown.

Prosecution testimony ended Oct. 20 with none of the three

Giant, Grisly Sea Creature Washes Ashore; Draws Crowd of 10,000 Spectators to Beach

SCITUATE, Mass. (AP) — The remains of a giant sea creature which washed ashore near here and for a time defied classification were identified tentatively today by an oceanographic expert as those of a basking shark.

Thousands of spectators lined rocky Mann Hill beach Sunday after the creature rolled to the shore on a high tide and touched off reports that the remains of a sea serpent had been found.

Andrew Konnerth, a research associate at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, said after an inspection today that the creature was a basking shark, largest of the Atlantic sharks.

A spokesman for the institute said the basking shark feeds on small plankton and small fish and has not been known to attack man unless endangered. They attain a length of 40 feet.

The creature which washed ashore was 28 feet long, although observers said its tail appeared to have been cut off and have been as much as 40 feet.

One of the first experts to examine the carcass was Donald M. DeHart, executive director of the New England Aquarium at Boston. He said he did not

Bolton Couple Express Concern On Elementary School Drive

Two concerned Bolton residents appeared before the school board Thursday to express their dismay over the hazardous conditions at Notch Rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Masolinis, who live directly across the street from the driveway leading out of the elementary school complex, stated that allowing these conditions to continue is endangering hundreds of children who ride the school buses daily. They will repeat their statements tonight before a meeting of the Public Building Commission.

Mrs. Masolinis stated that the driveway is not wide enough to allow the buses to negotiate the turn onto Notch Rd. As a result, drivers are forced to illegally cross to the opposite side of the road, often going onto her property.

Frequently, she continued, drivers are forced to back up illegally to make the turn on Halloween night, a car leaving the school damaged her mailbox attempting to make the turn out of the driveway.

The Masolinis stressed that it was not the violation of this property that bothered them, but the potential danger to the children.

Mrs. Masolinis stated that she had witnessed a "near collision" in which a large truck narrowly missed hitting a bus full of children at the driveway intersection.

Earlier, some corrective work widening the mouth of the driveway was performed under the direction of the architect. The need for this was discovered when, on a trial run, the bus drivers could not negotiate the curve.

The Masolinis said they had been in contact with many authorities in town, including the P.B.C. in an attempt to have the situation remedied.

Members of the board, expressing understanding of the concerns and frustration of the Masolinis, said that they have long been aware of the problem.

However, according to the Chairman William Grunsko, until the school is officially accepted for the town by the P.B.C. the school has no authority to undertake any corrective action on it.

The board did, however, resolve to write to the P.B.C., the local state trooper, and the selectmen advising them of the situation and recommending immediate corrective action.

Members of the Math Curriculum Committee appeared before the board to present proposed revisions in the current math program. Spokesman for the group was John Petrus.

Their major recommendation was for a textbook change, adopting one basic series to be used for grades K-12. At present, several different texts are being used.

The projected cost for the new materials is $200.

It was pointed out that some students are using a 1963 edition of a math book, while others are using a revised edition. Board policy requires that textbooks be updated every five years.

The committee's report also stressed the need for workshops and in-service programs to acquaint staff members with the content and materials in their program.

A proposal providing released time for teachers during the school day to enable them to attend workshops and conferences was also contained in the report. It was also felt that teachers should have an opportunity to visit and compare programs at other area schools.

On the matter of supplemental instructional materials, Petrus pointed out that some teachers have purchased such in their own money, tricity with a phenomenal 15-24 percent hours per person annually. This compares with only 6.52 in the United States. Reference to last year's budget, 6,200 in Sweden and 3,745 in Switzerland.

Greenwich Firm Gets 'Patricia'

GREENWICH (AP) — "Patricia," lately of the Nixon family, has found a new home in a dock in Greenwich harbor.

"Patricia" is the ex-presidential yacht purchased by Indian Harbor Properties recently. She's due to arrive here Dec. 1 when she'll go into berth near the Showboat Motor Inn, an Indian Hills enterprise, a company spokesman said Sunday.

The 92-foot luxury craft was ordered sold by Mr. Nixon on a "controlled basis." The vessel was built in 1961 and is owned by the Montgomery Ward Board Chairman Sewell Avery who gave her to the Coast Guard at the beginning of World War II.

She was renamed Leone in 1945 when she became President Truman's yacht.

She was, rechristened three more times — as "Barbara Ann" under Eisenhower, "Honeyfilla" under Kennedy and Johnson, and "Patricia" under Nixon.

Griffin said the yacht will be re-outfitted before arriving here. He said he expects the craft will cruise Long Island Sound in the summer months as a money-making venture for charitable groups. Indian Hills, he said, will not charge for such use of the craft.

There were no offers for "Patricia" and sister ship "Julia" the first time they went on the auction block, largely because of restrictions placed on post-war use. Griffin said these restrictions were lifted before Indian Hills bought "Patricia."

Nixon Administration Surprises

As in many other things, so in hemispheric relations the Nixon Administration is to be found departing from the pattern of action which once might have been predicted for it.

It is maintaining diplomatically correct attitudes toward the new "Marxist" regime in Chile, even though it may deplore its arrival.

And, although one of the things it deplores about the new regime in Chile is that President Allende has opened his administration by resuming full diplomatic ties with Castro Cuba, the Nixon Administration has been pursuing an especially friendly relationship, with visits back and forth between heads of state, with Mexico, the one Latin American "good neighbor" which never did follow our lead, and that of the rest of the hemisphere, by breaking off ties with Castro Cuba.

Such an instance, along with many others, illustrates a theory some of the wiser analysts saw as important from the very beginning of the Nixon Administration - namely that it, from its position and reputation as conservative, almost completely anti-Communist, would actually enjoy more freedom of diplomatic movement and adjustment in the world than any more liberal administration suspect of being leftist in trend and sympathy.

The truth probably is that the Nixon Administration has disappointed its own strongest original supporters more grievously than any administration on record.

Who would have thought it would be a Nixon Administration which inaugurated a policy of unilateral military withdrawal from Vietnam?

Who would have expected the Nixon Administration to begin making overtures toward welcoming Communist China into world society?

Who would ever have dreamed that the Nixon Administration would be the one to first propose to Congress a welfare reform program which would expunge the theory of a minimum guaranteed income for every American family?

Who, in the defense industry, ever had the faintest suspicion that a Nixon Administration would be the one to cut military spending so severely and so realistically that widespread unemployment would follow?

As for the ultra-conservative right wing Republicans who once thought Richard M. Nixon their own particular darling, they have had rather slim triumphs and gratifications from what has actually transpired with Mr. Nixon in office.

They have been given a losing chance at two memberships on the Supreme Court.

They have had the oratory of Vice President Spiro Agnew, and an occasional moment of temper, sometimes unguarded, sometimes, perhaps, politically designed, from the President himself.

They have had a few choice pickings of power, and a chance to wield their own influence in some governmental propaganda and regulatory fields.

And they have other indications - as in White House invitations, and special briefings - that they are the ones the President really loves best.

But when it comes to running the country well, then it becomes necessary to do some things that are not particularly pleasant, to adopt policies that are responsible rather than emotionally ideological, and to hold toward a middle ground safely bulwarked against either the Communist Party or the John Birch Society.

In fact the latter will soon have to begin labeling Richard Nixon, like Dwight Eisenhower before him, as suspect.

And Now, The Lazy Bee

No sooner did we discharge our editorial responsibilities and discuss and repel the charge of a University of California entomologist that the classic fabricant is really a lazy fellow than we found ourselves confronted with another despicable superposition upon another of nature's most dependable workmen. This time it is the reputation of the bee which is being maligned.

Now the bee is, as every school boy knows, the "busy" bee, just as the ant is the industrious ant.

But no reputation is safe in this cynical, gossipy modern world of ours, and so now we have the "lazy" bee, or at least certain bees in certain situations, are lazy bees.

The truth is that the bees are not lazy at all, merely choosy. The actual indictment is that, when bees are established in the neighborhood of cranberry bogs in order to attend to the function of pollinating the blossoms so berries will set, they sometimes neglect to fly straight into the bogs and do their chore. Instead, they linger along the dikes around the bogs, because they find, on these dikes, flowers whose nectar tastes better and is more easily sipped than the nectar in the cranberry blossoms.

To the cranberry growers, and to the governmental agricultural scientists who sympathize with their problems, the fact that the bees have such discriminating taste buds has a result which is the same as if they were lazy. They don't put in as many hours in the bogs as the growers would like.

The agricultural scientists have devised a ploy which will punish the bees by treating them as captive labor. They take the bees, and put them, along with a piece of foundation honeycomb and some sugar, in one of those lightweight foam ice buckets, and then they drop the buckets from planes way out in the middle of the bogs, so that the bees will have to pollinate cranberries or starve.

If we were a bee, under such a situation, we might, for the first time in all of our lives, experience an instinct toward a slowdown which might look like laziness. If there is ever really such a thing as a lazy bee, it will develop not from the nature of the bee itself, but from his eventual resentment at being bogged down at the commercial will of heartless man.

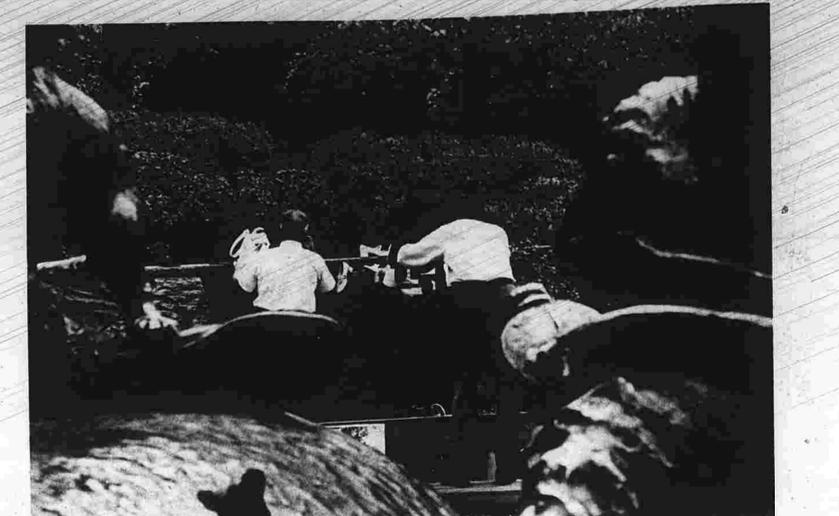

Gambling in Connecticut

With Governor-elect Thomas Meskill committed to honor-raising legislation, the General Assembly will face this recurring theme again this year, with the state's chief executive actively backing it. No doubt the main argument will revolve around whether gambling brings in increased crime, or keeps it out. I can do both.

But the most reliable way to rid this state of organized crime is to try to dry up the sources of its revenues. The Costa Nostra feeds on the little bets that are made by those who like to bet. When the police become too heavy, or an individual wagers too large, the bet is then laid off up the line and it is at this point that organized crime gets a crack at the profits. These instances, multiplied across the state, are the sources of funds, and in the aggregate, mount up.

Actually, there are two reasons why the legislation of gambling, can cut crime. The first relates to the share that crime bosses get, but the second has to do with slowing the police. The best source of money for the police is the state's income tax. Those crimes which are injurious to the general population. Even with wire-tapping making a gambling arrest is no cinch. The records can be too easily destroyed, and gamblers can even adjust to "knock" legislation. Hundreds of man hours of police time go into a large scale raid, and the penalties handed out are generally just fines. The latter books are a bookie hardly at all.

If it stands to reason that increasing the number of policemen helps cut crime rates, it also stands to reason that reducing the number of crimes to be investigated, makes more effective use of the police. By having the state share in gambling proceeds, the income of the state is increased at no particular cost to either the general citizen or those who care to gamble. The state's cut goes to it, and not organized crime. The best solution then, is to have the Connecticut emulate the example of New York state and set up gambling parlors where the police for more productive duties, and dry up the source of organized crime's revenue. Muskie's Ex-Speechwriter

WASHINGTON - The spectacularly successful election eve appeal over nationwide television by Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine was the first speech ever written for him by his ex-speechwriter, Richard Goodwin - and almost surely the last. While politicians and press were applauding Muskie's triumph, his advisers were exchanging harsh words with Goodwin. They complained that Goodwin - ex-speechwriter for the Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, and Eugene McCarthy - was audaciously promoting himself by claiming credit for the speech. Goodwin responded by lashing out at Muskie's men with the characteristic vitriol that made him the State Department's "enfant terrible" in the early Kennedy administration. The episode transcends mere personalities. Goodwin remains a figure of importance in the Democratic party's Kennedy-McCarthy wing, particularly among the young. He now may well participate in anti-Muskie activity centered in that wing. That scarcely seemed probable last May 16 when Muskie and Goodwin (now living in Maine) chatted amiably at the Maine state Democratic convention. Goodwin routinely offered help if the need arose. Muskie asked for that help on the hectic weekend of Oct. 31-Nov. 1 when the Senator was suddenly tapped to answer President Nixon on national television. Goodwin's role as ex-speechwriter is still available, he called in Goodwin for a rush job. Goodwin worked from a speech outline prepared by Donald Nicoll, Muskie's long-time aide, Jack Sando, his speechwriter, and Muskie himself. Goodwin's draft was later somewhat revised. In referring to Republican campaign charges, the pungent line - "that is a lie and the American people know it is a lie" - was penciled in by Muskie. Some Goodwin new-fiftieth prose, a phrase that the people cannot depend on any leaders, was edited out by Averell Harriman, unofficial chairman of the entire operation. But the speech, a good one, was basically Dick Goodwin's. It was not so naive as to believe that you come in fighting the whole system." - Warren Mitchell, first black congressman elected in Maryland. "It is necessary to use import quotas to keep dairying as a dynamic industry in this country." - Statement by Patrick B. Healy, secretary of the National Milk Producers Federation. "Helping young people to learn is my main task, and I spend inordinate amounts of time on bus strikes, labor disputes and the search for security guards." - Dr. Harvey B. Scribner, chancellor of New York City schools. (See Page Seven)

Hebron Junk Car Campaign Planned

First Selectman Aaron Reid announced Friday that there will be a drive by the town to get rid of non-registered motor vehicles and parts of junk cars that have accumulated on various properties.

Reid said Spencer's junk yard on Rt. 66, west of Hebron center, will receive any vehicle that can be brought in. If a car cannot be driven to the junk yard, persons may call the Town Office Building to make arrangements for towing. The minimum charge for towing will be $5.

State law requires a license for storage of two or more unregistered motor vehicles which are no longer intended or in condition for legal use on the public highways. Also, used parts of motor vehicles which constitute bulk equal to two or more motor vehicles, require a license.

Resident State Trooper John Soderberg and the local constables will be looking for vehicles and reminding people to get rid of them. At a later date, warnings will be issued to violators.

Reid also announced that the selectmen have agreed to pay the balance of $1,000 due Frank Rich, contractor for the new Company 3 firehouse on Rt. 66. Payment had been withheld pending repair work on the annex driveway which caused several inches last winter in front of the firehouse.

After a meeting last week with Rich, Monaco Paving Company, Fire Chief Donald Griffin, Building Inspector Richard Keeffe and Second Selectman Robert Dixon, the decision was reached to pay the balance of the contract upon completion of repair work on the driveway. Repairs are expected to be done this week.

Mormon Elders Visit Homes

Elder Joel Harmon and Elder Scott Fletcher of Salt Lake City, Utah, ministers of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons), are visiting the homes in the local area to acquaint people with a "family home evening" program based on the importance of daily family gathering. The Mormons believe that the home is the first and most effective place for children to learn the lessons of life, the purpose and meaning of life. With this in mind, the church has organized a program to strengthen family ties and to guide its members in building better homes.

Elders Fletcher and Harmon may be contacted at 281 Center St. for further information. The session was closed to newsmen.

Caucella said the HPT represents about 1,100 of the system's teachers. About 200 others belong to the Hartford Education Association with the rest unaffiliated, he said.

Caucella predicted "a successful strike" but declined to speculate how long it would endure. He said he expected many teacher aides and some MHA members to honor the picket line, he said.

"I don't think any good American ever crosses a picket line," he said.

At issue are wages and other teacher benefits. The teachers are underpaid to the extent of asking pay hikes averaging around 10 percent. Current teacher salaries range from $7,500 to more than $13,000 annually.

Caucella blamed the board for the strike action, saying it has made no offer since talks broke down about 10 days ago and because "they won't work on weekends."

The board statement said the bargaining round with the union led to a "good faith" negotiation and arbitration.

The original strike vote by union teachers was to have been taken two weeks ago, but they agreed to work a short time without a contract in hope, their leaders said, of obtaining a settlement of the dispute.

Teachers have struck the Hartford schools once before, in 1968 when a contract dispute precipitated a two-day walkout.

Reed speculated that the pilot, descending through cloud cover estimated at 300 feet, might not have seen the ridge, which was not marked by warning lights.

He said it was three seconds from the time when the plane clipped the treeline and it plowed into the hillside, careened and exploded into flames.

Reed said those three seconds were marked by nothing but beeping sounds on the plane's cockpit voice recorder, recovered intact Sunday along with instrumental panels and a flight recorder.

Witnesses said about 15 bodies were scattered outside the wreckage, but most were inside, buried in piles of burning metal. The bodies inside were recovered Sunday when NTSB and National Guard teams removed the wreckage with bulldozers.

Strike Halves School Day In Hartford

Caucella, however, downplayed the importance of the relatively narrow strike approved after the vote was announced to give "unanimous support" to the strike.

He said that motion was "overwhelming"—but not unanimous—support from the 700-plus union teachers at the meeting. The session was closed to newsmen.

Agostinelli Autographs First-Day Covers

Manchester Mayor and State Comptroller - elect Nathan Agostinelli signs one of 15 First Day Covers issued on Oct. 12 by the day of President Nixon's visit to Hartford. Agostinelli received a personal citation from President Nixon on the slip of a Viet Cong flag from the hands of a demonstrator during the President's visit.

The meeting was sponsored by the Manchester Philatelic Society and was held at the Junior High School auditorium.

The autographed covers were sold for $7 each. The money was donated to the Manchester Memorial Hospital Building Fund.

Another highlight of the meet- ing was provided by Edward Bushnell, former president of the Manchester Philatelic Society, who showed slides of last month's Philatophy held in England.

South Windsor Water Company Granted 18 Per Cent Rate Increase

The Connecticut Water Company, which services some areas of South Windsor, has been granted an 18 per cent increase in rates by the Public Utilities Commission.

The increase will amount to $60,000, but this is $12,000 less than the company had requested.

The commission stated in its finding that the company's present rate of return was not adequate, as based on its present rates. It would earn only 5.1 per cent whereas the rate granted would produce a 7.2 per cent rate of return.

William Neal MacKenzie, president of the company which serves 16 other towns, said the Commission disallowed some $20,000 of construction work that was in progress as of Dec. 31, 1969, partially all of which is completed and is now in service to the public.

According to MacKenzie, the cutback made by the PUC was somewhat disappointing because the company felt it needed the additional revenue to help meet sizable increases in labor, operating expenses and higher interest rates.

He pointed out that all but the most necessary expenditures have been curtailed and the construction budget has been sharply reduced. Nevertheless, MacKenzie said that the company still has found it necessary to invest more than $600,000 in new utility plant improvements since the first of the year and another million dollars is needed in 1971 for additional supply and distribution facilities if the company is to properly serve its franchise area.

The tragedy cut deeply into lives, operating expenses and higher interest rates.

Most painful of all is the task of the parents and wives who must attempt to identify the charred remains of those who perished in the crash.

Pictures Bring Back a Lot of Memories

The pictures provoked lots of laughter Saturday night at the reunion of the Salvation Army Golden Rule Troop of Girl Scouts. The troop, now disbanded, was formed 42 years ago, and the reunion attracted many former members and leaders. Two of them were territorial organizers of the Girl Scouts. On the left, they are Col. Lulu Sehl and Brig. Emily Eastwood. In center is Brig. Luella Larder, a former troop leader who was master of ceremonies Saturday. Reunion committee members are Mrs. Bessie Johnston Cole, pointing, and Mrs. Miriam Troth Ferris, both of Manchester. About 60 attended the reunion.

Tolland Fourth Grade Classes Visit Old Bowering Homestead

Those attending the meeting, to be held at 8 in the East Hartford Town Hall council chambers, will hear details of a re-education program also via recycling and waste paper collection facility proposal for the region presently under consideration for federal funding.

Tolland as a member of the home is now conducted through the cooperation of the Tolland Historical Society, but in line with the restoration of the house, which was built in 1720 and is furnished in colonial style.

It is loaded with a sense of the history and helps the students learn to visualize what life was like in the early days of American history in the town in which they live.

When the restoration of the old Tolland Jail is completed, it will be added to the tour.

South Windsor Appointments, Real Estate Top Town Council Agenda

Four appointments to fill unexpired terms are on the agenda of the Town Council tonight along with the discussion and consideration for the sale of the Sudd Memorial Library property and the Old Town Hall site. For a number of months positions have remained open on the Park and Recreation Commission, the Development and Industrial Commission, Zoning Board of Appeals and for a town constable. A possible use for the old Town Hall site has been suggested by a member of the Historical Society and if converting it into a small public park can be worked out, disposal of this item will help the council in its real estate problems. The Sudd Library as well as the Town Hall site have been offered for sale, but bids received were considered too low. The council will also decide whether to authorize the town manager to enter into a three-year labor contract with the Department of Public Works. Public Works employees are members of the Local 1808 of Council No. 4 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

South Windsor Tenderfoot Scouts were Peter Bessot, Tom Caruso, Scott Giddens, John Karlin, Bruce LaRiviere, Peter LaViviere, Tim Martin, David McGoogale, Steve Wood and Bill Young.

Awards were presented by Scoutmaster Joseph Russo Jr. and Richard Horfield, chairman of the troop committee. Awards scheduled to receive were Matthew Gantik, swimming and rowing; Michael Gantik, lifesaving and rowing; and Wayne Ceterati, a bronze palm for his Eagle Badge. Pack 228 Cub Scouts and Webelos from Pack 226 will sell candy in the South Windsor area for the next two weeks. Profits from the sale will be used to finance the Pack's trips for the coming year. Manchester Evening Herald, South Windsor correspondent, Barbara Varrick, tel. 644-8274.

Six Killed Over Weekend, Two Die in I-91 Crash

Six persons were killed in traffic accidents on Connecticut highways over the weekend and a seventh person was killed in a fall at his home in Danbury Saturday night. The drivers of two cars were killed early Monday morning when their vehicles collided head-on on Interstate 91 about a quarter of a mile east of the Route 2 exit. The dead were identified as David T. Jennings, 23, of Pine Brook, N.J., and Arthur Wright, 46, of New London. Two passengers in Jennings' car were injured, one critically. Wright was alone in his car. State police said Wright was driving west in the eastbound lane shortly before 1:30 a.m. when the crash occurred. Both cars were demolished. Gretchen E. Osborne, 23, of New Haven was killed Sunday when her car crossed of Route 47 about a half mile south of the Washington town line in Woodbury. Robert Desmarais Jr., 18, of Thompson was killed Sunday when his car ran off Buckley Hill Road in Thompson and crashed into a stone wall and a tree. Richard Corso, 17, of East Hartford was killed in an accident early Sunday morning near the Service Road exit on Interstate 91 in Hartford. M. Hantly, rebuild gas station at 333 Main St., 325,000.
