

Mayors To Advise On Budget System

An unprecedented gathering of five Manchester mayors is scheduled for next Monday night. They have been invited to a meeting being sponsored by the C-DAP task force on general government. It will be at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

The five are present Mayor Nathan Agostinelli and former Mayors Harold Turkington, Sherwood Bowers, Eugene Kelly and Francis Mahoney. Kelly is chief prosecutor of Circuit Court 12. Mahoney is state representative.

Whatever the task force is considering and recommending, all stem from the same concerns. They relate to the lack of prestige and recognition over by task force chairman Roger McDermott. It is to get the reactions of the mayors to a new concept in budget making. Other problems of town government operation also may be discussed.

The new concept, still in the discussion stage, would place greater emphasis than now on spending guidelines and, consequently, on budget planning.

It might include the designation of a tentative mill rate, prior to the preparation of the budget itself. And, as a consequence, it may require the Board of Directors to establish priorities for the major areas of expenditures, and then to fit the budget to the recommended mill rate.

At a luncheon meeting at the Stock House, the general government task force, in a consensus opinion, reiterated its recommendation for the creation of a Charter Revision Commission. It will soon list its recommendations for technical changes in the 1947 charter, as requested by the Manchester Board of Directors.

The directors, at their Nov. 17 meeting, had tabled action on the appointment of a Charter Revision Commission. It will soon list its recommendations for technical changes in the 1947 charter, as requested by the Manchester Board of Directors.

The board now has nine members. The consideration might be to cutting it to seven or five, was the suggestion. The mayor now gets $700 per year, the other seven members $600, and each secretary $400 each. The consideration might be possibly.

Parking Time Extended In Four Downtown Lots

Police Chief James Reardon has announced that as a result of an agreement between him and the parking authority, the present two hour parking limit on four downtown public control lots will be liberalized.

Reardon is the authorized officer of Manchester. In the following lots, the two hour limit will be extended to four hours: The lot on Main St. south of the 8647 Green Stamp Store. The lot east of Main St., between Maple and Oak Sts.

More Details Given On Raid at POW Site

By FRED S. HOFFMAN, AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. warplanes struck North Vietnamese antiaircraft and troop positions near the Son Tay prisoner camp during the unsuccessful effort to free American war prisoners, the Pentagon disclosed today.

This was the first time the U.S. government made known there were any such air strikes close to the camp in North Vietnam during the dramatic landing by a small force of U.S. Army and Air Force men who found the camp empty of prisoners late last week.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Daniel Z. Harkin acknowledged the nearby air actions under questioning at a news briefing, portraying the strikes as part of the rescue party.

In disclosing the Son Tay raid last Monday, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird mentioned only diversionary dropping of flares by Navy planes along the North Vietnamese coast, but said nothing about any associated air-to-ground attacks.

Harkin told newsmen that "protective actions were taken" to safeguard the rescue party. He said they occurred "in the immediately adjacent area" along the North Vietnamese coast, but said nothing about any associated air-to-ground attacks.

Death Toll Now at 155

By The Associated Press, Associated Press Writer

The nation's traffic death toll for the Thanksgiving Day weekend reached 155 today.

Rain dampened highways in the Southwest, the Pacific Northwest and the Great Lakes region, and snow fell in scattered areas from the northern Rockies to the northern Great Lakes.

The count of traffic deaths began at 6 p.m. local time, Wednesday and will end at midnight Sunday.

Stabbing Attempt in Manila Fails To Daunt Pope Paul

By PATRICK O'BRIEN, Associated Press Writer

MANILA (AP) — Pope Paul VI, undaunted by a Bolivian painter's attempt to stab him, carried out his program in Manila today as if nothing had happened.

Civic authorities said a million Filipinos thronged the streets to watch the Pope drive to Manila Cathedral, where he held Mass.

Later, the Pope received foreign diplomats at the sanctuary where he is staying, and had dinner with President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

The pope said the painter, in a foot-long knife hidden under a gold crucifix when he approached the Pope.

The pontiff had just arrived in Manila. His face showed surprise as police and dignitaries subdued the painter on the red carpet spread out at the airport for the papal visit. He quickly "calmed down" and "serene," a Church official said.

Police identified the attacker as Benjamin Mendoza Amor, 35, a Bolivian painter from La Paz, Bolivia. He told them he wanted "to save humanity from the religious propaganda of the Pope" and had been planning the assassination for years.

The National Bureau of Investigation charged him with attempted murder and assault on the pope. He was held in a Manila prison.

Marcos had just greeted the Pope on this first major stop on his eight-day tour of Asia and the Pacific.

Marcos was walking beside the Pope on the red carpet when the man darted from the crowd of about 3,000 at the airport and hurried toward the pontiff.

Marcos helped to subdue the Bolivian with a kick and a burst of tear gas. The pope was unharmed.

Police officials said the painter was "calm and serene," a Church official said.

Teacher Negotiations Break Down

HARTFORD (AP) — Negotiations between striking Hartford teachers and the school board broke down after a 10-minute session Friday morning with both sides claiming the other was unwilling to change its position on contract issues.

"It's all over," said union negotiator Joseph Casella, as he emerged from the meeting. "They don't want to negotiate. They said they were here to listen to us. We said we came to listen to them and would not go through charades all week end," Casella said.

"The strike is on. We said we'd negotiate if they would but they're not negotiating," he said.

Board negotiator Neil Macy said he and other school officials went to the meeting prepared to try to find out where the union stood, "but would have to speak to school board members before making any offers."

Macy said it was the union who was making the contract demands and therefore the union should make the first move.

"They said they were there with an empty pad and wanted us to fill it up," Macy said.

After the breakdown, Casella said plans for a Sunday night vote on whether to continue the strike have been canceled. The meeting is off. The vote is off. They don't want to negotiate and we're not going to continue the public by making it seem that they are," he said.

The abbreviated meeting was the first between the two sides since the Hartford Federation of Teachers went on strike Nov. 15.

Earlier, Bertram Diamond, attorney for the union, had said that both sides agreed to conduct intensive discussions this Thanksgiving weekend with a view to resolving the outstanding issues between them.

At the same time, Diamond had announced plans for a secret ballot to be taken Sunday night to allow teachers to vote on whether to continue the walkout.

The effectiveness of the walkout has been a subject of dispute. The union has claimed up to 100 percent.

Pope Forgives Would-Be Slayer

MANILA (AP) — Pope Paul VI has forgiven the man who tried to stab him and has blessed the crucifix that was used to conceal the murder weapon, a Manila television station says.

The station said the man who whistled a foot-long knife from behind a crucifix and lunged at the pope was described as an "arduous and laborious undertaker."

He said he was doing this also on behalf of his "most eminent colleague," possibly an allusion to several octogenarian cardinals who have criticized Pope Paul for depriving them of voting rights in conclave to elect a pope.

The vicar of Rome, Angelo Cardinal Dell'Acqua, ordered a special prayer for the Pope's protection at Mass in all the churches of Rome next Sunday.

"Let us pray that the Lord forgive the man who tried to stab the pope and protect the pope, messenger of unity and faith, in his apostolic journey," the vicar said.

$5 Million Sets Record For Painting

LONDON (AP) — A portrait of Velasquez painted in 1649 just for practice was sold at auction today to a New York dealer for the all-time record price of $5.44 million.

The Wildenstein art firm in New York made the purchase after spirited bidding at Christie's that got so high the London galleries and museums, anxious to keep the masterpiece in Britain, were simply unable to match the price.

The previous highest price for any painting was $3.28 million for Rembrandt's "Aristotle Contemplating the Bust of Homer" at the Fart's-Bernet galleries of New York nine years ago.

The Spanish master's work is a painting of his malleo assistant, Juan de Pareja.

Velasquez whipped the painting out while waiting to carry out a commission for Pope Innocent X. It was somewhat of a rebuff to the pope, showing the malleo's powerful, swarthy face and bushy black hair in a half-turned profile has long intrigued the art world.

The Earl of Radnor put the painting up for sale to pay off debts while waiting to pay off death duties incurred when he inherited the title in 1965.

Velasquez was never a prolific artist, which accounts for the high price any of his work commands. His malleo had an unusual journey from the start. In 1768 Sir William Hamilton, British ambassador to Naples and husband of Adm. Horatio Nelson, bought the painting for $1.5 million.

As Year Ends Signs Not on Horizon For Economic Upturn

By BILL NEIKIRK, Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The economic experts, with whom I have been meeting quite regularly here, indicate that the last half of the year will definitely see the economy turning up."

That was President Nixon speaking at a July 20 news conference.

"Our year-end report and our congressional testimony gave the clear indication of a picking up in the rate of expansion in the second half of the year. I think that's all a good bet."

That was Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, in an April 15 interview.

Since early in the year, the Nixon administration almost daily has come out with optimistic forecasts of an economic upturn in the last part of this year — as is fashionable — "economic uptick."

The end of the year is nearly at hand, and signs of the "uptick" are not clear nor definite. In fact, some economists indicate the opposite may be true. Industrial production, one of the broadest indicators of the nation's economic pace, dropped by a stunning 2.1 per cent in October, despite the fact that the indicator had risen for 11 years. It was the third straight monthly decline in the indicator of industrial activity.

The gross national product, broadest measure of the nation's output in terms of goods and services, rose 1.4 per cent in the third quarter. It was modest growth, not as much as the administration had expected. Then, the consumer price index in October took its sharpest upward turn in six months, showing a rate of inflation in excess of 6 per cent.

Despite the string of recent bad economic news, the administration still is sticking to its forecast of a "pick-up" in the economy. Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy said in a speech in New York Monday: "After marking time during the fourth quarter of last year and the first quarter of this year, the economy has begun to turn around in the second quarter of 1970 and continued upward in the third quarter. The rate of inflation is still high, but the rate of economic growth is quite promising."

There was no question, back early in the year, that the administration saw a definite upturn in this part of 1970. President Nixon was reported to have said: "The economy is showing signs of a pick-up."

Hebron Sliding Area To Be Cleared In Forest Park

The Recreation Commission has voted to appropriate $100 to clear an area in Forest Park for sliding this winter.

The commission met last Friday afternoon at the site which is just off Elizabeth Dr. and decided it would be feasible to undertake the job immediately.

Commission chairman Robert Dixon and First Selectman Aaron Field met with Edward Fooks on Tuesday to contract with Fooks to cut the brush.

Dixon hopes that this work on the sliding area will be accomplished by the first part of next week at the latest.

Whatever funds are left from the appropriation will be spent on improving a skating pond in the area.

According to Dixon, work here involves draining the swampy area in order to cut down trees. He said the field will contract with Caron Brothers to do the work.

The commission hopes to erect signs on the area to direct townpeople to the facility once the work is completed.

Assessor Harold Madocfs has announced a change in the rate of property taxes to be in effect on the first of January.

The new rates will be on the first and third Wednesday each month from 7 to 7 p.m. at the Town Office Building.

Madocfs said he hopes the evening hours will prevent simple opportunity for residents to contact him. If it is impossible for anyone to get to the office building during the scheduled hours, he will be happy to set up a special appointment.

Swearing in Mrs. Gladys T. Miner, town clerk, says she was elected by the voters of the town of Hebron on Nov. 24.

Divers Find Sunken City ABALDI, Italy (AP) — Divers are beginning to find the missing one-third of Aamali that tourists to this cliffside town on the Sorrento peninsula never see.

The whole lower town with its citadel, arsenal, Hall of Admirals and Palace of the Doges, sank into the Mediterranean when a tempest smashed the sea walls Nov. 24, 1343.

Divers from the Sorrento Center of Undersea Studies have found a part of the seawall and the arch of a bridge believed once to have spanned a river that flowed through the now sunken lower town.

Search is continuing for ruins of the fortress and palaces. The old Aamali was one of the four great Italian maritime republics, vying with Venice, Genoa and Pisa. With Amalfitan ships plying the Mediterranean, the 70,000 people grew wealthy.

Today Aamali does not even have a harbor. Its few fishing vessels are beached on the gravel of the coast. There is almost no waterfront and houses climb in clustered disarray up the slopes. The population of 6,500 is more than each summer vacationist.

Meet... Rham District 15 Will Attend Drug Program At Long Lane

Rham High School will be included in a group process orientation program in drug education which has been previously limited to the large urban schools.

Fifteen students and teachers from Rham have been invited to participate in a two-day drug education session at Long Lane School.

This program is sponsored by the state of Connecticut's Department of Children and Youth Services and is directed by Harry Culp and Mrs. Edith Jaquary.

Following the session at Long Lane, 20 new students and teachers will be invited to participate in a six week program to be held at Rham.

When the Rham session is completed, the school will initiate its own group process orientation program, the purpose of which is to afford the opportunity for students to meet in small groups to discuss any problems which are confronting them.

The Rham staff will conduct an in-service workshop program on drugs next Wednesday. This will be a single session day for students with dismissal at 12:15 p.m. and there will be no school lunch provided that day.

The program will feature two speakers who are nationally known in the drug education field. Dr. Karl A. Niefarth, associate director of the University of Connecticut's School of Pharmacy will discuss the physiological effects of the drugs of abuse.

Also speaking will be Henry B. Dumas, chief of group work of the Drug Dependence Institute of Yale University. He will discuss the teaching role in helping the student understand himself.

The Evaluation Committee, David Mordavsky, coordinator of the industrial arts department has been awarded custody of two minor children with support payments of $25 per week and $15 per year alimony.

Developing Trails

BELLEVEUE, J.L. (AP) — The Belleville Junior Women's Club is in a campaign to convert nearby railroad right of ways into hiking and recreation trails.

Mrs. Terrell R. McLennan, the club's chairman, is leading the effort. She is making a survey of trails in existence and those that could be developed.

"There are miles and miles of unused tracks in the Belleville area which could be converted to trails or parks as part of a community improvement," she said.

To support her argument, she cites other trails that were developed.

Birthday Party ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — When Bella Vista Baptist Church recently observed its 10th anniversary, women of the church combined the event with a celebration of the pastor's birthday.

The Rev. Robert Leo Pogo founded the church. The church women baked a cake that was 6 feet by 5 feet wide on the bottom layer and 4 feet by 4 feet wide on top. It is maintained and paid all most, with the four layers each a different flavor.

The 40-pound cake contained 250 cups of flour, 170 cups of sugar, 78 cups of shortening, nearly 10 gallons of milk and 430 eggs.

GERBER CONVENTION REACHES GRAND SLAM BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The national tournament now in progress in Houston reminds me of a bidding convention invented by Houston's most famous expert, John Gerber. The Gerber Convention is used to find out how many aces partner has (like the Blackwood Convention), but starts with a jump to four clubs instead of a four trump. Many experts use the Gerber Convention chiefly when the previous bid was one or two trump.

Both sides vulnerable. Opening lead—Jack of Diamonds. South's jump to four clubs asked North how many aces he had. The response of four diamonds showed no aces or all four aces. South knew that the opponents could not have the 16 points for all four aces since North had at least 22 points for his opening bid of 2 NT. South had 8 points, which meant that the opponents could have only 10 (at most) of the 40 points in the deck.

South's decision to jump to 4 NT was ambitious, but not unreasonably. See if you can predict how South managed to discard his losing club.

Daily Question Partner opens with 3-NT (25 to 24 points) and the next player passes. You hold: Spades, Q-K-8-3; Hearts, 7-4-1; Diamonds, K-8-4-1; Clubs, 10-8. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three clubs, the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards if he can. If partner bids three spades, you plan to raise to four spades; if he bids anything else, you plan to bid 4 NT.

South Windsor More Opposition Voiced On Apartment Proposals

The South Windsor Planning and Zoning Commission must now decide whether to permit rezoning in the Pleasant Valley area to make way for apartments.

"Two of the applications filed over from the Nov. 17 hearing, those of Savin Brothers Inc. and Carlo Prestilio, were heard Wednesday night at a meeting attended by 100 or more residents."

The continuance was deemed necessary because of lengthy testimony at the previous meeting from attorneys on behalf of Rocco Alexander, who seeks to build 300 apartment units on 23 acres of land on Pleasant Valley Rd. and Andre Charbonneau, who seeks to put up another 180 units on 16.7 acres on the same road.

Commission Chairman Joseph C. Carino allowed all residents to speak at a meeting before the whole commission, but opposed the whole concept of apartment development.

Atty. Edmund Lassman represented both the Prestilio and Savin Bros. applications. Savin Bros. is presently developing an industrial-commercial complex off Rte. 1 and would like to build 180 units on Ellington Rd. on former Bury property.

Carlo Prestilio, a resident of South Windsor who like to develop approximately 16 acre parcels at the intersection of Pleasant Valley Rd. to build condominiums.

Lassman, in behalf of Savin Bros. Inc., said the property is a great for multiple family dwellings and called upon Atty. Harry Odum, a real estate appraiser to testify on the use of the land and its effects on neighboring properties.

Odum said his opinion would be that the most reasonable and beneficial use of the land would be for multiple-unit dwellings conforming to zoning regulations. Odum said he had examined the property and said it would be a good place to build a 100 acre, fronting 1,670 feet on the south side of Ellington Rd. east of Foster Rd.

Odum's report met with criticism when he said that the average daily traffic on Ellington Rd. is 7,300 vehicles and the road has adequate travel room with wide shoulders.

Joseph King of 85 Orway Dr. said that there were many residents at all on Ellington Rd. and that just recently a little girl was injured by a car on Ellington Rd. "is no autobahn."

Odum said the acreage lends itself to controlled apartment use with ample room for recreation as apartments are equipped to provide recreation to the user.

In stressing school enrollment in South Windsor, Odum maintained that the town loses money in taxes on the average single family dwelling but loses nothing and gains more money on apartment units.

The commission was also faced with questions regarding student overcrowding at schools. Mrs. David N. Chapman of 1007 Pleasant Valley Rd. felt, since all proposed apartment dwellings were in the Pleasant Valley area, the Pleasant Valley School would be burdened by a saturation of children from apartment families. She questioned the wisdom of placing all apartments in one district.

Another resident stated that as of this week, the Board of Education in South Windsor, seeking additional school facilities, is contemplating the purchasing of the Renaissance Polytechnical Institute building for portable classrooms for the student overflow problem and wondered how the education system could afford to care for these apartment family children immediately and properly.

Other residents were concerned with apartments being maintained and kept in good shape while more added to the town. They expected to pay sewer assessments where the apartments would be built.

The commission felt that with all the money being spent on these apartments, no developer would let them become rundown and that they would pay their fair share for the sewer installation and maintenance.

One resident voiced his opinion against any type of apartments in South Windsor and

Roanoke Police Arrest 17 After Racial Shooting

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Police surrounded an apartment and arrested 17 young Negroes Thursday night after two policemen were wounded while answering a report of a murder.

Officers said the apartment was headquarters for a loose-knit group of black power advocates. Police used tear gas to flush out the youths after, Police Chief M. David Hooper said, shots were fired at officers from the apartment. He said police did not return the fire.

The patrolmen, W. E. Richardson and G. W. Substant, were fired at the door. Neither was seriously injured.

number of weapons, mostly .45 caliber shotguns, and a large cache of ammunition, an investigator said. Police leaders adorned the walls.

Hooper said the two wounded patrolmen, responding to a telephoned report of a murder, knocked at the door of the apartment and identified themselves, but were met by shotgun blasts.

"It could very well be that the meeting we are having tonight, may well be a matter for history in two or three years," he continued. "Maybe these meetings won't even be necessary and maybe we won't even have a decision to determine whether apartments are going to be built in South Windsor for the very simple reason, some one will decide it for you."

Mail Early The national Christmas "mail early" theme this year is "Try to Remember" and South Windsor Postmaster Jewel Burnham is urging residents to do so.

"The theme idea is to have customers remember the recommendation that we make to ensure fast and efficient delivery of parcels and cards to prevent the disappointments for friends and family members," he said.

Comment Session

The Board of Directors, on Tuesday, will conduct another of its twice-monthly comment sessions. It will be from 9 to 11 a.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

The public hearings are held on the first Tuesday and third Thursday of each month. They are for town residents who wish to file suggestions or complaints on any subject in the board's jurisdiction.

Vernon Two Seniors Win Honors Two Rockville High School seniors have been named to receive awards which will be presented at graduation exercises in June.

Mrs. Barbara Ann Marquis, 16, and Mrs. Marc Marquis, 17, of Rockville, presented the Good Citizenship Award to the Daughters of the American Revolution, the character and leadership.

Richard A. Bunce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bunce, 17, of Montauk Dr., has been named to receive the Busch and Lomb Honorary Science Award. The award is presented at graduation to the senior student with the most outstanding record in the study of science.

The winner is selected early so he or she may be able to qualify for a Busch and Lomb Science scholarship award to the University of Rochester.

Mrs. Marquis received another honor, last Saturday when she was awarded the Queen of 1970-71. Her court is made up of: Jane Thompson, Ann Schumann, Carolyn Walton and Jeanette Evangelista. The group was voted by the entire student body as the most outstanding senior girls.

Bias Volumes ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Textbook publishers and the designers of educational materials are purging their books of racial slurs and bias, the National Council of Teachers of America says.

The report, compiled by a task force on racism and bias which has been surveying educational materials for a year, says students of English, civics and the language arts are confronted with racism in a variety of forms.

Commentaries in English anthologies, said the report, may "teach or imply" ignorance by omission of the names of minority groups or "depict in subtle ways the influence of non-white minority persons in literature, cultural and historical development in America."

The report was approved by the conference Thursday at its annual convention.

Bells Toll Most Often In England

Associated Press Writer By KENNETH L. DAVIS LONDON (AP) — In a 400-year-old foundry in a 300-year-old building in east London five huge bells ring out, tuning up for a concert which may last 200 years.

They are the latest of 89,000 bells in Britain, the bell-ringing nation on earth. There, the metal monsters still toll deaths, hail triumphs, summon the faithful to prayer, sound the times and even call for house fires to be put out at the ancient 8 p.m. curfew hour.

The five newest bells being tuned at Whitechapel Bell Foundry are part of a ring of 11. They are being cast for Sheffield Cathedral from the metal of old, worn units dating back to 1790. It's natural that Whitechapel should get the Sheffield business, since the foundry, which opened for business in 1870, cast the originals.

The bell-casting business began in English monasteries in 400 A.D. When Whitechapel began the first Elizabeth was queen of England and no cathedral or church wanted to be without bells.

But modern churches can't find the room or the desire for bell towers. However, Whitechapel still keeps busy, mostly repairing bells they cast a couple of hundred years earlier.

Over the 36 centuries they have been ringing bells, the British dreamed up a host of reasons for making what Thomas Hood called "music's laughter." Bells were the clocks of antiquity and the broadcasters of the days before electronics.

They rang for the arrival of the London mail coach, for the village squire's birthday, for fairs, births, marriages, deaths, invasion, the Angelus, the beginning and the end of harvest, and, of course, the hours.

Thomas Nash of Bath willed Westminster Abbey bell ringers 50 pounds to toll a dirge on his wedding anniversary date and "merry martial peals" on his death to signal "my happy release from domestic tyranny and wretchedness."

Richard "Beau" Nash had a dandy thing going in the 18th century. He paid Abbey bell-ringers to work whenever a wealthy man entered London, after which Nash presented the visitor with a bill.

Bells even got personalities, like Big Ben, which became so famous people now even include the clock tower of the House of Commons under the name.

Famous bells were given names—"Great Paul" of St. Paul's Cathedral, largest ringing bell at 16 1/2 tons, or "Great Tom" at Christchurch, Oxford, which still bongs 101 times each evening in memory of the original 101 scholars of that ancient school.

Whitechapel is trying to keep the bells ringing. The Sheffield monsters have the company of smaller cousins—six-inch replicas of the famed U.S. Liberty Bell. Two thousand four hundred of them are due to be cast by 1976 when the United States celebrates its 200th year of independence from Britain.

To date, Whitechapel which cast the original Liberty Bell, has turned out 400.

And, don't think Whitechapel short-changed the states with a bad cast because the Liberty Bell cracked. Bell metal is two-thirds copper and one-third tin and so fragile human hands can break up to an inch thickness or so of the tenebrous combination.

But, fragile or not, if a bell can quiver when it's rung, it'll last a century or two or three. Odds were, exuberant patriots pounded the Liberty Bell when it couldn't vibrate.

Tidy Street Crews SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — City street and park employees with "long hair, dirty clothing or dirty body" will be fired unless they present a neater appearance by Monday, Sitewards Commissioner George B. Catmull has decreed.

Catmull said Tuesday the order was issued after city workers complained about the untidy appearance of several of their working companions.

"When these men came to work with us, they were clean and their hair wasn't long," Catmull said. "But since they began working, they have just let their appearance go."

When fitted sheets wear in the middle, patch them from parts of other worn sheets. Put sheet on mattress, baste patch in place. Remove from bed and stitch.

Comeback Staged By Oriental Rugs

By VIVIAN BROWN AP Newsfeature Writer

Anything goes with anything now applies to floor coverings. The soft floor picture includes shags, Orientals, fun rugs and stylized traditional designs.

The transformation has gone from go-with-anything, no-pattern gray, beige and other dark solid colors to the brightest and wildest designs.

Time honored patterns of stained glass, Oriental, plaid and life are used in modern decorating. Contemporary use is inspired by changes in color or slight variations of pattern in the timeless motif, and sometimes through technological breakthroughs that permit textural effects that can change the look of a pattern.

The comeback of Oriental rugs is one example. You couldn't give them away in the thirties when the modernists spawned wall-to-wall carpet instead of the dark, multi-color tones of the oriental. The oriental rug has made a smashing return, but there weren't enough ones to go around.

Now, some companies are reproducing the old patterns, and some are reproducing the old patterns, and some are reproducing the old patterns, and some are reproducing the old patterns.

Such rugs with their classic geometry and contemporary colors have become a unifying force for decorators in the eclectic theme, where a combination of furniture periods and ideas may be used.

Another trend may be the many patterned room. One might find a flamesitch paper on the wall using a checker-board pattern area rug on the floor. One such room setting showing the rug in the new fiber didn't look overwhelmed by all the design.

Designer Raymond Wing Jean varies lasting sizes of a basket-weave design that is in different levels to provide a handsome contemporary effect.

Wools are being updated so that an extra krimp in the fiber may change the characteristics of a carpet design.

A new area rug by Karastan looks quite modern even though the inspiration for it came from a decorative wall tile motif found in the home of El Greco. Flamesitch has been around a long time, but a new geometrical treatment gives carpet a new look.

Shags are available in a great range of colors and printed, and these are made to fit into any area of the house. Printed carpets are making great headway, particularly in kitchens, bathrooms, family rooms, and bedrooms.

In the fun-rug picture, one new giant fuzzy foot 22 by 42 inches of polyester and modacrylic, machine washable and dryable, should certainly charm little people. It is available in black, white and 8 colors.

Concerts Come To Factories OSACO, Brazil (AP) — Surrounded by pipes, valves, switches and conveyor belts, the maestro, wearing a red sports shirt, raised his baton. Hundreds of husky electrical workers in grimy overalls stared curiously, especially at the bass player who was standing on the platform of a mammoth lathe.

In the middle of the huge factory, a string orchestra softly began playing Vivaldi's "Four Seasons."

This was part of a campaign in Sao Paulo, Brazil, to demystify classical music. Julio Medaglia, director of the 14-member Sao Paulo String Orchestra, and Fernando Pacheco Jordao, a producer for Sao Paulo's state-run educational television station, decided recently to start the program to bring good music directly to the people.

A few weeks ago they organized a concert in a classroom of university architecture students. Then they played in the BrownBovert heavy electrical equipment factory in the industrial suburb of Osasco. They plan future performances in a circus, a slum and a jail.

"Classical music must stop being this business of fancy theaters and expensive evening clothes," Jordao said. In the current series of out-of-the-way concerts, Medaglia and the orchestra play for free. The television station videotapes the performances for later broadcast.

The Osasco workers applauded enthusiastically during the factory concert. Their faces lit up even more when Medaglia told them that Jose Dias Carraqueira, the orchestra's flautist, had been a railroad mechanic for 31 years.

Teacher Union Breaking Itself?

For the first time in the history of strikes by teachers came, in Hartford the other day, the suggestion that the striking teachers be let go and their places filled by new hires.

This suggestion, from Mayor Uccello, may have been something that has occurred to some minds long before this. But now, in Hartford, in November of 1970, it suddenly had a stronger and wider appeal.

There seem to be several reasons for this.

First, the Hartford strike was launched by a minority of the city's teaching staff, with even the militant Federation itself almost evenly divided on the issue.

Second, the standard of feeling and ethics in the union leadership had displayed in calling and conducting the strike and in dealing with the process of negotiation and arbitration had become callous and repulsive.

But the third reason may be the most important of all. It is that recent reports have indicated that the nationwide period of teacher shortages is over and that, therefore, the truly big weapon the more militant teacher unions possessed when they opened their present phase of unlimited demands has now been taken out of their hands.

There could be a fourth reason coming into existence. It is becoming more and more difficult to believe that teachers who will openly violate and defy the law, who will even welcome school children who leave their classes in order to go to play the picket line game with them, are let us say, ideally fitted for the task of helping bring up the next generation.

As in East St. Louis, where the longest strike in history has just been concluded by a union surrender, so the union leadership in Hartford claims that city authorities are trying to "break" the Federation union.

It may be that the time has come when the Federation, by its own tactics of helping "break" itself, its passage from the educational scene would be no loss; we doubt there has ever been any sound gain the Federation has ever made anywhere which could not have been arrived at by less violent means and more reasonable professional leadership in about the same time with much less public cost and brutalization of the education of the children. The need, we believe, is not for more teachers to disown such leadership, and the possibility that this is now a trend has been the one bright development in the midst of needless test of strength in Hartford.

The Prisoner Issue
 One can imagine that President Nixon, authorizing that daring helicopter land- ing inside a North Vietnam prison camp in the hope of giving a dramatic liberation to some American prisoners, could calculate that the sentimental odds would be in his favor even if the attempt turned out to be a failure.

Perhaps, he even expected, with some relief, that what his own Vice President might term "knee-jerk liberals" and doves would weaken their own position by giving their usual negative reaction to any tactic which did not amount to retreat in Southeast Asia. What if the exploit did amount to a momentary invasion of territory hitherto reserved exclusively for American shells and bullets but handed to American personnel? What if it did, in a way, amount to an extension of the war? Could those Senate doves be so heartlessly un-American as to criticize and resent an effort to rescue American prisoners from the rough savagery of the North Vietnamese?

The speculative answer would have had to be that the doves could protest such an action for such a purpose only at the cost of imperiling their own standing with the American public.

President Johnson, it may be remembered, used to try to know what the American public into loyalty to the war in Vietnam by proclaiming that he must protect the lives of the young Americans he had sent there.

The idea that we have an obligation to the men who became prisoners after we sent them to Vietnam should be even more persuasive. The North Vietnamese handling of the prisoner issue is full of barbaric fault, and the prisoners themselves have been used as diplomatic blackmail, and it is easy to summon up public sympathy for these prisoners, in their plight in North Vietnam, and for their families, back in this country.

In spite of all this, the administration's use of the prisoner issue is not entirely candid and not entirely privileged. Considering some of the conduct which has taken place on our side of the war, in our disposal of prisoners or people who might have become prisoners, we have to be thankful for at least one thing, which is that the North Vietnamese do take prisoners and do house and feed them. It is stretching points to pretend that the North Vietnamese have committed some kind of criminal act by taking, from among those who are attacking their territory, such prisoners as they can take. We might not find ourselves very comfortable if we were called upon to defend, before international investigation, the way we and our allies have sustained the Geneva Convention in Vietnam.

The most direct and unhypocritical way to try to aid Americans being held prisoner in North Vietnam is not by daring exploits which put the danger of widening the war and producing war-widening reprisals, or which expose the prisoners themselves to sudden danger greater than that they now experience, but by trying to get on with the making of peace. Whether the eventual success of negotiations, or the eventual arrival of some non-negotiated de facto cease fire will be speeded or hindered by President Nixon or whether Mr. Nixon's name shall appear here on both the Republican and Conservative tickets in 1972 should not obscure their essential agreement on a new formula for Republican victory in New York.

What intrigues the President's top political advisers about Rockefeller's fourth-term victory is his new constituency. Moving considerably to the right, Rockefeller appealed for the first time to conservative Irish and Italian Democrats while losing Jewish and Negro votes. That is precisely the combination which Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, Mr. Nixon's campaign manager, counts on to carry New York in 1972.

This new Republican constituency has been hoodwinked each other so often the past decade, Nixon and Rockefeller, have finally converged on a common strategy. Mitchell wants to reproduce in 1972 a formula of Rockefeller's 1970 majority.

The major difference between Albany and Washington is that the future role of the Conservative party. Nixon strategists are anxious to run Republican Presidential electors in 1972 on the Conservative line, presuming that the President could thereby win over conservative Democrats who could not bring themselves to vote the Republican line. However, Rockefeller refused in 1968 to grant permission for Republican voters to run on the Conservative line and privately indicates he would not change his mind for 1972.

The war, though much diminished from earlier efforts, still continued last spring. Republican State Chairman Charles T. Langan, who takes his orders from Rockefeller, was then pressuring county chairmen not to back Conservative James Buckley for the Senate against much-dissatisfied liberal Republican Sen. Charles Goodell.

Such pressure stopped abruptly in early summer when Rockefeller, over the pragmatic, concluded that Goodell was a sure loser. With Mr. Nixon's agents in New York serving as mediators, the secret and mutually beneficial alliance between Rockefeller and Buckley was forged.

Thus, Rockefeller had come full circle since the election of 1966, when the Conservatives first displayed real strength. After that election, Rockefeller secretly appointed three Republicans—Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson; John Wells, veteran GOP campaign manager; Richard Aurelio, now deputy mayor of New York City—to recommend a policy toward the Conservatives. Only Wilson recommended collaboration, and Rockefeller continued his opposition.

Now, four years later, Rockefeller has embraced Wilson's recommendation. He has little choice. The 78-member Republican majority in the state Assembly consists of 48 members with Conservative party endorsements. Indeed, Conservative party approval—either outright or, as in Rockefeller's case this year, tacit—may be essential for future Republican nomination.

This new Republican-conservative strategy depends in great part on Democratic cooperation. Locally, middle-road Democrats still get Irish and Italian votes—for example, Rep. John Murphy in his conservative Staten Island-Brooklyn Congressional district. On the national level, a moderate ticket headed by Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine could confound Mr. Nixon's strategy.

It is on the state level, where the state Democratic primary is dominated by New York City's leftist reformers, that the new Republican-Conservative strategy is effective. The discipline is suddenly instilled in New York Democrats, Rockefeller's new right-centered constituency may insure continued statewide Republican triumphs.

Rockefeller-Nixon Strategy

By DAVID S. BRODER The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Preoccupied as he is in these days with the problems of budget-making and re-shuffling personnel in his administration, it seems unlikely that President Nixon has given much thought to the views of the delegation of top-level Republicans from his own state of California who visited the capital recently.

But their report on present conditions and future prospects is being given the most serious consideration by the President in the White House for a private Sunday worship service.

Now, four years later, Rockefeller has embraced Wilson's recommendation. He has little choice. The 78-member Republican majority in the state Assembly consists of 48 members with Conservative party endorsements. Indeed, Conservative party approval—either outright or, as in Rockefeller's case this year, tacit—may be essential for future Republican nomination.

Riads And Attitudes
 Perhaps no single event in recent years has so clearly shown the change in American attitudes and outlook than the reaction in many circles to the prisoner rescue attempt. Successful, or not, such an attempt would, only a few short years ago, have been greeted with virtually universal pride and acclaim by every public official and every citizen. And every individual would have felt that he stood a bit taller because of it. We are sure that large numbers of individuals—particularly among the so-called "silent majority" and the so-called "hard hats"—feel exactly this. Furthermore, we deem it likely that many who criticized the raid, such as Senators J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, Ed Bradley of Massachusetts, and Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, might have been more cautious in criticism had the attempt succeeded.

Yet the fact remains that, for almost certainly the first time in American history, it was criticism of such a degree rather than praise for it, which was featured in much of news media coverage. In pointing this out, we are not expressing approval for this undoubtedly highly courageous act of daring-do. Yesterday we questioned these columns whether the air raid on North Vietnam was a wise step, whether it would heat up a war which has been quiet, and whether it would put further stumbling blocks in the path of the hardy moving peace talks in Paris. We would obviously ask these same questions about the prisoner rescue attempt. Furthermore, one must ask—and fervently hope that the answer will be nay—whether the Communists will vindictive. The already brutal conditions under which the American captives are held to be living.

But, however grave the answers to these questions may be, they will pass with time. More interesting and more significant is to probe the degree to which the widespread reaction to the prisoner rescue raid indicates a fundamental and lasting change in Americans' attitudes towards their country's traditional points of pride.

Many such traditional attitudes have been under increasing attack. This is inevitable and often right, if a nation is to progress in conscience and in outlook. Yet even among some of those who see much which needs changing there are voices which warn against too great and too swift a turn against attitudes which have been a historic source of national strength. The challenge is to find a right balance between the traditional and a patriotic copout—CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

Poet's Corner

New England How I Love Thee
 There is always beauty in our New England,
 Though when summer is winging its flight,
 The covers New England in a blanket of glory,
 A blanket of colors so lustrous and bright.
 No artist how great, or can possibly create
 The true picture of our New England fall,
 For God our creator, hath done it all to well,
 There can be no comparison at all.
 No book or poem has ever been written
 And I doubt if there ever will be,
 To express the real beauty of our New England
 O'er land, to the shores of the deep blue sea.
 So when my days have ceased to be,
 Beneath thy beloved soil I wish to rest,
 May God shield thee, dear old New England,
 Of all the States, I love thee best.

Castoff Dolls
Head for Korea
 HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — Sometimes Santa's helpers are far from merry as they collect cast-off dolls like Mrs. Elizabeth Fairbanks, whose childhood love of dolls has proved to the benefit of Korean orphans.

For years she haunted the thrift shops in search of old, abandoned dolls.

She would haul the bedraggled, punctured, and soiled specimens home for repair, washing, shampoo and seawanning. That was Mrs. Fairbanks' hobby.

Now she and a friend, Mrs. Fred Bates, do the haunting together in a roomy office at 4 a.m. in their own homes to work on the dolls. No hobby, this time.

Last year, some 100 dolls went to the Holt Orphanage in Korea, a cozy place Mrs. Fairbanks discovered through an adoption program.

"If I heard even the boys wanted the dolls," said Mrs. Fairbanks. "So I started collecting boys too, and fixing them up."

This year's crop of dolls number 40, and is awaiting holiday shipment to Korea.

The cyclone and tidal wave that hit coastal and island areas of East Pakistan last Friday have taken the lives of still uncouned thousands of men, women and children, in addition thousands of survivors, homeless and destitute, cling to what is left of life.

The dimensions of this disaster are as yet incalculable, but it is certain that massive relief efforts must immediately be forthcoming. CARE's staff in East Pakistan, which in a very short time would be a country without survivors, are already at work, and their efforts are being backed by the mobilization of CARE by

Stockholders Come from All Walks of Life

One need only have attended one of the receptions for the Manchester State Bank stockholders to realize the wide background that they all come from. A bank is built and administered by the efforts of its executives and its board of directors. But the real life blood of the bank is the many stockholders and depositors large and small, blue and white collar, labor and business who together formed the bank and will use its services. This is realized when one sees them all gathered together. The receptions at the Manchester State Bank this week brought together well over 600 people. Some were stockholders; other potential customers . . . all were Manchester area people interested in the services the new bank offered. To some the conversation was about business and finances and interest rates; others were interested in the gifts the bank was giving out when it opened. Many fully appreciated the beauty of the new bank building and furniture; others were very quiet and reserved. The most evident characteristic was pride. Pride in the fact that in some small way they had contributed to the establishment of a financial institution that would serve Manchester for generations to come.

Drive for Black Electors Pays Off in Georgia Vote

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The paid off with the election of 23,000 new black voters during the past two years in the South in the 11 Southern states. Thirty-five incumbents were re-elected, he said. "The substantial voter registration increase that has taken place over the last five years is now returning dividends," he said. "The election of black people, especially on the local level, has strengthened the political power of a people who were long denied the right to partici-

ate in the democratic process." "While many segregationists still insist on antiblack policies to win votes, it is becoming increasingly evident that the position of keeping blacks down and out of the political process cannot endure." "We are witnessing, particularly with the 1970 elections, the power of the ballot." Three were elected in South Carolina, two in Alabama. "In Lowndes County, which was the scene of bitter civil rights struggles during the early sixties, there was not a single black citizen registered to vote as late as the summer of 1965," said Lewis. Lowndes County is in central Alabama between Selma and Montgomery. In 1830 there were about two million slaves in the U.S.

An Important Announcement From Discount Furniture Warehouse

THE FURNITURE REVOLUTION IS HERE!

WHAT IS OUR NEW CONCEPT?

It is an entirely new concept, designed to bring to the homemakers of this area America's best-known brands of FURNITURE and BEDDING at prices so low that up until now they would have been considered impossible. It is neither a factory nor a retail store. Rather it fits right between the two.

It differs from a factory in that it sells directly to the ultimate customer, offering him the convenience of a magnificent showroom displaying furniture from many famous factories, and saving him the expense of going through a dealer or decorator.

It differs from a retail store in that the customer buys his furniture exactly the same as if he bought it directly from the factory—in the original sealed factory cartons. He can pick it up from the warehouse dock, and set it up himself—the same as dealers and decorators do... at prices that closely approach wholesale. Or he can elect to have Discount Furniture Warehouse deliver it and set it up in his home... and his savings will still be tremendous. Come See Us!

Coventry PTO Slates Book Fair Next Week

The Coventry Grammar School Parent-Teacher Organization will host a book fair at the school Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Books will be on display in the Auditorium from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. all three days.

In addition, there will be an evening session on Dec. 2 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. During the general meeting, Mrs. Sibbe Boothby, CGS reading specialist, will address the gathering on the topic "Choosing a Good Book for Your Child."

During the three day book fair, students will be given the opportunity to browse and purchase books. The fair committee invites all students, parents and visitors to attend the event. The book fair will encourage student interest in reading and in building a home library, and also contribute to a worthwhile project. All profits will be used for the school and the students.

The CGS-PTO is sponsoring this event through its program, and ways and means committee. Carolyn Moore is serving as general chairman, and the program committee also includes Joyce Taylor and Mary Beth Gorke.

The ways and means committee is headed by Doris Hanford and Pauline Lazarri, assisted by Sandra Avery, Maureen Chaffield, Martha Frantz, Maureen Bradley and Jackie Fyelman.

The book fair display will include new books from many publishers in all popular price ranges and areas of reading interest including classics, fiction, biography, adventure, science, nature, crafts, mystery and reference books.

The PTO is working with Educational Reading Services, a professional book fair company, to furnish an individual selection of books for the event.

The Planning and Zoning Commission will hold a special meeting Monday night at 7:30 in the Town Hall to discuss overall planning concepts with Manchester's town planner, Eric Potter.

The special session is in conjunction with the PZCA's updating of the Coventry town plan. In asking Potter to attend the meeting, PZCA members noted that Manchester has taken action concerning a Central Business District and a Comprehensive Urban Development Zone, and members are interested in more details on this, as well as general planning philosophies that Potter might be able to offer.

The public is invited to attend. Booster's Tribute
The Coventry High School Booster Club is sponsoring a tribute to the musical members of the high school on Dec. 18 at the school.

A covered-dish potluck dinner will be served from 6 to 7 p.m. in the cafeteria, followed by talks by Carl Salinas and Mrs. Dixon, who will speak on "Our Children and Music." This program will be followed by a legal opinion of the state statute concerning elections and as to its applicability to using the schools when they are in session.

Underground Waterway Bottle Collectors' Haven

have sealed in both ends of one section. But it is one of these caves that draws the bottle collectors. Although it no longer can be located from above ground, past residents of this city apparently filled up a large area with debris as they dug into the earth. They threw the tires of early cars, broken dishes, old pots and literally hundreds of bottles, some of them dating back into the last century.

Bottle-collecting in this area is an avid hobby and news of the first finds in the tunnel displayed in a Lockport book store has brought bottle seekers in droves.

The original tunnel was about a mile long. It is about 20 feet across and about 20 feet high, with the lower half filled with water from more than a century of seepage.

The tunnel was discovered again recently by cave explorers seeking an entrance into the Lockport Cave, a large natural cavern underneath the city. Entrances have been buried over the years.

A cave-in created both an opening in the wall of the old waterway and an island of debris, from which canoes and rubber rafts are launched to explore the dark, dank tunnel. Only about a half-mile of the tunnel is navigable, as slides

But for a few, the trip down into the tunnel is an adventure in itself. The air within the tunnel is warm, about 60 degrees; the water about 40 degrees. Cold air seeping in mingles with the warm air inside, whirling about the entrance like the steam above a witch's cauldron. The mist travels down the tunnel, reflecting the ghostly white glare of flashlights and miners' lamps.

Only the drip of water and the splash of paddles breaks the silence and the trip takes on an aspect of unreality.

Most of the collectors are discouraged by the difficulties as well as the hazards they face with the lower half filled with water from more than a century of seepage.

Many, after working on a slippery, glass filled pile of debris, with frequent falls of earth and debris from above—and 10 feet of cold water behind them—give up after a short stint, on the grounds that their finds aren't worth the effort.

The pile has been stirred, turned over and panned through and the fresh falls from above seem to be of much more recent vintage than the earlier tunnel is navigable, as slides

But for a few, the trip down into the tunnel is an adventure in itself. The air within the tunnel is warm, about 60 degrees; the water about 40 degrees. Cold air seeping in mingles with the warm air inside, whirling about the entrance like the steam above a witch's cauldron. Two London Agencies Help Hippies Find Jobs

LONDON (AP) — You're "Almost anybody can get young and you're black. Maybe some kind of a job in London," you smoke pot and you wear your hair out to here. How do you get a job in a square, white, middle-aged world?

In London, you can sign up with two new employment agencies which aim at overcoming job prejudice.

One agency is called International Personnel and the other is International Personnel and the other is International Personnel. Both have walk-up offices in immigrant sections south of the Thames River. The latter means on the wrong side of the tracks. The similarity ends there.

International Personnel is headed by the Martin Luther King Foundation and run by Brian Jones, 25, a white former community-relations worker who says turning the tide against discrimination is his main reason for being there.

The other agency is run by Simon Doms, a bearded Nigerian immigrant who wears one-way sunglasses indoors and calls callers, "Man, I'm a cool cat who finds jobs for wogs, franks and anybody else on that scene. The white liberal trip is not our thing."

"What is a derogatory term for newbies in Britain, where Indiana, Pakistan and West Indians make up about 2 per cent of the 60 million-plus population. The tales of major unemployment among coloreds are just not true," says a spokesman for the Department of Employment.

"There were 10,681 immigrants out of work last month, or 1.7 per cent of the total adult unemployment."

But Jones cites reports of 22 per cent unemployment among young West Indians in North London. The Independent Relations Institute says nearly half the West Indians and more than a third of the Asians left job prejudice—and that 90 per cent of their claims are justified.

No one has figures on another kind of discrimination that admittedly persists—the aversion an employer may feel for an applicant who is black, who turns up in purple do-rags, wears, with hair touching shoulders, or a drugs arrest on his record.

Doms, 27, left a supervisory job with a big London employment bureau this year because he said, "The setup wouldn't take blacks or franks." He claims to have found office and warehouse jobs for 90 persons in six weeks, operating out of a scruffy fourth-floor room with the help of a list of 60 sympathetic employers.

"Some firms are cool but others say, 'Yes, we can't have pot and we can't have long hair. We deal with the public, you know,'" Doms said. "Drug addicts want to live. Why shouldn't people give them a chance?"

"You see 18-year-old kids, kicked out of the house for some reason, and they need bread and a pad. You plug them in and do what you can. Some of these cats come in here so freaked out I have to give them a 45-minute talk before they go out again."

"I fixed up a couple of Ghanaian chicks the other day and got a 25-year-old Oxford honors graduate a job packing boxes," Doms said. "It was just tired of the conventional trip."

"You work 13 hours a day and you take 5 or 10 mid (12-2) naps. Communist China's new ambassador to the Soviet Union, has presented his credentials to President Nikolai V. Podgorny, completing the restoration of top-level diplomatic relations between Moscow and Peking."

Vasily Tolstikov, the Soviet Union's new ambassador to Red China, took over his post Oct. 9. The two countries withdrew their envoys during the Chinese cultural revolution in 1966.

Nixon Backs the Economy; Public Isn't Buying It

By JOHN CUNIFFE

NEW YORK (AP) — Official optimism about the economy, especially that it is responding to anti-inflation efforts, now has more power to inspire Americans than the single note of a tin whistle.

True, the administration can marshal some colorful data to support its claims, but the preponderance of pocketbook evidence reaching the public is very dismal. Prices are rising, buying power falling. And jobs are being lost.

In business, in labor unions, in the great research foundations, in campuses, in kitchens and in the very federal offices from which come those calm assurances that trends are favorable, the same questions are asked: Where do we go from here? Why is it that price increases not only persist but show signs of getting worse? What new weapons can be brought into battle? How drastically must administration policy be changed?

Throughout its 23 months in office, the administration has made a series of bold moves, patting its faith in fiscal and monetary policies as the two levers that worked the economic machine. It has been willing during this time to take much criticism, because such measures work slowly and cannot always be defended in a sort of textbook attitude toward the problems, patting its faith in fiscal and monetary policies as the two levers that worked the economic machine.

Bikinis Banned In South Africa

WITBANK, South Africa (AP) — A swimming pool superintendent at Wighton Cameron has been given an agonizing job. He is to ban bikinis from the pool.

The municipal council has been fighting the bikini ban in Witbank, South Africa, 125 miles northeast of Johannesburg, since 1967. It was then that the council decreed "one-piece costumes only" for Witbank's fountain community.

Witbank girls are not as conservative as one might think for a country town. They used to wear a chain or a fancy piece of string to join the upper and lower halves and so convert bikinis into one-piece swimsuits.

Next season the council struck back: Costumes must be one piece as sold in shops. At this stage, however, shops were selling revealing one-piece costumes that showed more than a bikini.

The Southern Hemisphere swimming season, which opened September 1, the council decided to compromise. Now two-piece suits may be worn, providing they are "decent" and do not reveal.

And this is where Wighton, 22, comes in. He must decide whether a girl is decent or indecently attired for the pool. He is philosophical about the issue. "I am a young chap and not too fussy. I don't mind what people are wearing."

He has been lucky so far. He has only had to turn away a handful of girls since the pool opened. But summer's only beginning and it gets mighty hot in Witbank.

Right Risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite what a Federal Administration official says is a "widespread notion that women are by nature less capable than men," a study of accident records shows just the opposite.

The study was made of National Transportation Safety Board records for 1968 and was published in the FAA's monthly magazine, FAA Aviation News. The article said chances of being involved in an aerial accident are three times worse with a man at the controls.

In Connecticut Nonviolent Action Group Marking 10th Anniversary

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer
VOLLINTOWN, Conn. (AP)—An ordinary gray farmhouse behind an unobtrusive stone wall, the New England Committee for Nonviolent Action, is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year—long after other, more clamorous groups on the left have faded away under pressure of change in what they call the "movement."

The farm that serves as headquarters sits off a little-traveled road outside this sleepy rural town. Like the group itself, if you didn't know it was there it would be easy to pass by.

And that, some of its members say, is a major problem. The group has lasted 10 years, but has it been passed by? Where does a group whose central principle is nonviolence fit in today's "movement"?

The group has never been large. The committee has 40 to 50 official members, a constantly changing staff of about 15 young people willing to live a communal life on the farm, and mailing lists for about 1,000 more.

But its leaders are among those who launched the current peace movement with the ban-the-bomb demonstrations a dozen years ago. And its farmhouse still plays host to far-flung groups on the left with a wide range of activities.

Its members see it principally as a coordinating group, spreading a message of nonviolence to those other groups.

Dave Brown, a young staff member, voices sympathy and kinship, but tactical disagreements with Black Panthers and Weathermen, and is working to aid the Panthers on trial 50 miles away in New Haven.

But, Brown says, his central aim is still nonviolence—for now to lower the level of tension between the Panthers and whites, and ultimately to reduce the level of violence in society through the radical movement.

Things have changed in the peace movement in 10 years, says Robert Swann, a greeting architect and writer who, with his wife Margorie, has been the group's chief mentor.

In 1960, he says, "if you were for peace you were a communist, almost. Today that's not true... Even Nixon—he's going to, even if it's expanding the war, sound like a peace move."

Swann says his group is willing to collect radical steps—refusing to serve in the armed forces, refusing to pay taxes, even gradually changing its entire focus to economic issues, which Swann says are behind the problems of war and armaments.

Swann says much of his own effort now goes into writing about "alternate institutions"—some other form of economic system than capitalism or state socialism.

But as it has "expanded remarkably" the peace movement too has changed, Swann says. "Today the question is: Are you taking radical enough action? Do you take nonviolent action or violent action?"

"We find ourselves less radical and more conservative," he says. "We're constantly coming down on the nonviolent side of those issues."

The CNVA's members, says Swann, still hold to their creed of a Gandhian brand of nonviolence—"not passivism" but "an aggressive, active method of resisting tyranny or evil by refusing to cooperate with it."

"We still think we're radical in the sense that we're getting to the roots of things... That's the meaning of the word."

The group hasn't always been asked to prove its radicalism; in the late 1960s and early 1960s, the CNVA led many of the early demonstrations against nuclear bomb testing and Polaris submarine construction.

Swann himself was one of those arrested in attempts to

Women of Greece May Join Police

ATHENS (AP)—Greek women may now enlist in the national gendarmery following a successful three-year trial of a women's police corps in Athens.

A decree published today says applicants must be between 18 and 23, not less than 5 feet 5, secondary school graduates and single. Widows or divorcees are eligible if they have no children.

There are about 45 women already in the women's police corps set up in the Athens Police Department nearly three years ago. It was the first such unit in the nation's history.

A rigorous six-month training course at the police and gendarmery academy includes training in judo, karate, investigation and penal law.

Shoplifters Close New Haven Pharmacy

NEW HAVEN (AP)—A drug store that was once one of the largest in the state—the Liggett Drug Store at Broadway and York streets here—has been forced out of business by shoplifting, increased taxes, insurance rates and overall costs.

Bruce R. Dardick, the owner of the store, called shoplifting "a major factor" in his decision to close the store, although he couldn't estimate the loss in dollars.

Dardick said most of the store's customers were Yale students and other persons connected with the university.

At its peak, the store employed 38 persons, Dardick said, but the payroll was down to 10 workers in the South Park Mall. Horse Offender Bloomington, Ill. (AP)

A horse that broke loose from its tether and dashed at a fence was listed on police records as an offender.

The horse, owned by Roy Donaidson, was tied behind a service station when it made its break.

Louis Bolefont told police the horse broke down a portion of a fence on the South Park Mall, aged a child's swing set.

Brothers Three Face Courts In Separate Counts

DANBURY (AP)—Three Danbury brothers were arrested and jailed on unrelated charges following a 12-hour period on Thanksgiving Day and early Friday.

George Council, 24, was being held under $5,000 bond here on a charge of aggravated assault following an incident in which a man was stabbed with a razor.

Sonny Council, 22, was being held under $500 bond in Danbury on a charge of breach of the peace in connection with what police called a riotous squabble.

John Council, 20, was being held in the Putnam County, N.Y. jail Friday for extradition to Connecticut. He was arrested early Friday morning by New York state police on a fugitive warrant issued in connection with the theft of a car from Waterbury.

Meriden Melee Ends in Arrest Of 28 Youths

MERIDEN (AP)—Twenty-eight teenagers were arrested Wednesday night on charges of disorderly conduct and breach of peace after groups of students from two local high schools roamed the streets throwing eggs and stones and shouting obscenities, police said.

The disorders broke out simultaneously following rallies at Platt and Midway schools, which played each other Thursday in an annual Thanksgiving Day football contest.

Police answering complaints from motorists who said they were pelted with eggs reported they found hooligan groups of between 200 and 300 youths running through the streets near the high schools, which are three miles apart.

The youths who were arrested included seven minors. Twenty-four persons were charged with breach of peace and four with disorderly conduct.

Bonds for the youngsters were set at $200 each, but Mayor Donald T. Dorsey rescinded the bonds for those who could not pay, saying he did not want any of them to spend the night in jail.

Dec. 7 was set for the youngsters to appear in Circuit Court. The minors are to appear that day in Juvenile Court.

Only one injury was reported—a policeman who was struck in the face with an egg. He was treated and released at a local hospital.

Ads Censored Bridgewater (AP)—

Officials at the University of Bridgeport have asked editors of the Scriber, the student newspaper, not to publish advertisements for abortion referrals in future editions.

The dean of students, Alfred R. Wolff, said Wednesday he made the request to the executive committee of the student newspaper after one of the university's lawyers said such advertisements were illegal in Connecticut.

Panther Arrests In New Orleans May Stir Courts

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The arrests of Black militants and their friends face a challenge in federal court Friday as the police charged on a promise not to file charges of criminal trespassing.

Attorneys for the New Orleans Legal Assistance Corp., said Judge Frederick J. R. Hoobe of U.S. District Court would hear its renewed attempt to prevent the city from enforcing a disputed section of the state's criminal trespass law.

Focus of the legal dispute is the arrest Wednesday of 28 persons and the occupation of an apartment in a public housing project by the National Committee to Combat Fascism, an arm of the Black Panthers.

Police arrested 28 persons—black militants and sympathizers—traveling on a interstate highway in four cars said to have been rented by actress Jane Fonda. Police said the group had been seen leaving the barricaded apartment. All were charged with criminal trespassing.

The NCCF commanded the empty apartment as its headquarters last month and kept it barricaded until police broke in early Thanksgiving morning.

In a sudden move, Black policemen in disguise shot their way into the apartment, arresting six Panthers on charges varying from attempted murder to criminal trespassing. A woman in the apartment was wounded.

The Housing Authority of New Orleans originally had asked police to remove the NCCF members from the apartment under a section of the law which makes it illegal for a person to remain on a premises after being ordered to leave.

The constitutionality of that section of the criminal trespass law is being challenged separately.

Man Charged After Tussle With Officer

Robert M. Smith, 28, of 17 Columbus St., was arrested Wednesday night and charged with various criminal and motor vehicle violations following an accident on the Turnpike.

According to police, Officer Dennis Roggi was investigating an accident on the Turnpike when Smith's car struck the parked car of Harry J. Ponchak who was driving northbound.

Smith was charged with speeding and failure to drive in a lane.

As Officer Roggi questioned Ponchak about the accident, Smith tried to get Ponchak to get out of the car.

Smith was charged with interfering with an officer, and breach of peace.

Smith will appear in Circuit Court Dec. 14.

Area Youths To Attend 4-H Congress

Connecticut will send 29 of its 4-H project participants, including four from this area, to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago from Sunday through Thursday, Dec. 3.

The area members who won trips and the field of their projects include Susan Nelson, of 24 Sunset St., consumer education; Nancy Ryebbling, of Hebron, horticulture; Frank Niederwieser, of 290 Niederwieser Rd., South Windsor, conservation; and Charlene Taylor of Pleasant Valley Dr., Vernon, citizenship.

Some 1,600 young people from the 50 states, Puerto Rico, Washington, D.C. and Canada will participate in the congress.

They were selected on the basis of their achievements in the 4-H projects, leadership activities, citizenship work in their communities and a personal interview by a state committee.

All have completed at least three years of 4-H club work and are between the ages of 14 and 19.

The Connecticut delegation will leave for Chicago tomorrow at 11 a.m. from Bradley International Airport and will return on Friday, Dec. 4, at 3 p.m.

The congress theme, "We Care" will offer the teen delegates opportunities to focus their attention on the concerns of youth, society and the environment. Educational programs will involve the youths in an interchange of knowledge, feelings and attitudes with leaders of education, government and business.

Throughout their visit to Chicago, the 4-H Congress delegates will tour points of interest in the city including the Museum of Science and Industry, Field Museum of Natural History and the Art Institute. They will also attend a pop concert, Central Church and the National 4-H Dress Review.

On hand to provide recognition banners, inspiration and entertainment at the congress are the representatives of 60

Heralding Politics

Possible radical changes in the way the Manchester Democrats choose their town committee members will be studied soon by a rule committee.

The meeting will be Dec. 9 at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

At present, members of the Democratic and Republican town committees are chosen by the members themselves.

The rules committee will be named by the Democrats with the study proposals for direct elections by public caucuses in the seven voting districts.

Proposals will be studied also for a certain number of committee members from each district. Proposals will be studied also for decreasing the number of the town committee — now 70.

At the Dec. 9 meeting, the Democrats will elect three committee members, to fill current vacancies. Two of the three will be from Voting District 1, which has only six committee members at present.

Committee rules specify that eight is the minimum number for any district.

Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings said today that the Democrats will ask the Republicans to cooperate in a joint effort — for adding two more voting districts in Manchester.

"We know the proposal would increase the cost of elections," Cummings said, "but we think it's worth it. Two more districts would make voting easier. By providing three voting districts for each assembly district, the waiting and the grumbling so prevalent at the Nov. 3 election could be eliminated."

Cummings said that the Democrats have always been for nine voting districts. "We committed and agreed on seven last time," he said.

The 13-town, First Congressional District Republican Women's Association is holding its Second Annual Holy Bowl and Victory Party on Sunday, Dec. 6. It will be from 6 to 9 p.m. at the South Windsor Community Hall.

Reservations and information may be obtained in Manchester, or by writing John Fischer at 70 Woodworking, pewter, graphic arts, enameling and jewelry, may be obtained from her or at flower arrangements, and sewing. Invitations to attend ing.

COMPLAINTS
Sometime Tuesday night, entry was made to the Hartford Rd. Enterprises building, and a cigarette machine was lifted. Entrance was made by breaking a window on the south side of the building. Stolen were about 100 packs of cigarettes and a small amount of money. A check writing machine and adding machine were found outside the building later.

An usher at the United Artists Theater in the Parkade, reported he saw a youth take something from the trunk of a car parked outside the building, Wednesday night.

Wednesday night, someone entered the enclosed porch of the house at 203 Oakland St. by opening a window on the east side of the house. No entry to the house was apparent and nothing seemed to be missing.

Sometime yesterday, a house at 29 Henry St. was broken into and ransacked. The victim believed he left the door unlocked, although there were pry marks on it. Nothing but 25 lead pennies is missing.

An employe at the First National Store on Center St. reported that two young men fled the store, Wednesday, with a large sack of unpaid for groceries. He said he chased them to Center St. where they got into an old model Rambler and drove away.

Wednesday afternoon, a car parked at the Grand Union in the Parkade, was broken into, and the stereo tape player and four tapes were stolen.

A mini bike was reported stolen from the house at 146 Lenox St. Monday or Tuesday.

Two women reported receiving obscene phone calls, Wednesday morning. Police have entered reports and are investigating.

Wednesday evening someone threw eggs at the house at 113 Love Lane.

A girl reported that she was accosted by a boy Wednesday evening while she was walking near N. Elm St. and Green Rd. The complainant pulled away, ran into a nearby house and called the police. A boy named the assailant.

Police received a report of an unknown man sleeping in a car parked at Main and Pearl Sts., Sunday yesterday morning. The owner of the vehicle chose not to press charges.

The resident of 60 Ridgewood Rd., told police that his battery was exchanged for an old defective one. He said he had no idea when this might have happened.

A man working at a house on Sage Dr. reported a saw was stolen from his truck which was parked Tuesday.

The house at 66 Foley St. was pelted by eggs Wednesday night.

Police received a report Wednesday of stolen lawn furniture at 66 Starwisher St. The resident there claims a hardwood table and six matching chairs were taken sometime during the last month.

The Manchester dog pound was entered Wednesday night, and someone removed a dog. The culprit climbed the fence and then broke a lock on one of the dog pens. The dog later turned up at its owner's house.

Someone drove a car over the curb on the north side lawn at the Kenney St. school, tearing the turf.

Distaff Printers
NEW YORK (AP) — Employment of women in the printing and publishing industry increased 39 percent to 346,000 in 1969 from 250,000 in 1960, A. B. Dick Company of Chicago reports. Women also have increased as a percentage of total industry employment, from 28 percent in 1969 to 32 percent in 1969. Last year 1.1 million persons were employed in the industry.

Proposed 40-Story Building Spurs Debate in California

By DOUG WILLES
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Some civic leaders want to stop construction of a $200 million waterfront office building because it would spoil the look of the Bay Bridge.

Impossible? Not in San Francisco, which has lived a decade with highway traffic on city streets because an elevated freeway spoiled the view of the embankment.

The latest waterfront controversy is about a plan to allow U.S. Steel Corp. to build a 40-story, 600-foot-tall office building. The project also would include a 300-foot tall, 1,000-room hotel, berths for three cruise liners, a passenger terminal and a 2,000-car parking garage covered by a nine-acre public plaza.

The project would be built over the bay replacing seven unusable piers.

U.S. Steel says it was invited to prepare the plan by the Port Commission, a city agency that sets criteria, and "is not presuming to tell the people of San Francisco what kind of development they should want for their waterfront."

Now Dianne Feinstein, chairman of the Board of Supervisors, the city's governing board, is leading the fight to stop the plan. Dozens of civic and ecological groups have joined the fight, and a protest march drew 2,000 and a protest march drew 2,000 participants.

The supervisors, who will make the final decision on all plan later this month, have a negative report from a hearing committee that heard scores of critics in a marathon hearing last month. They also are considering an ordinance to put an 8-foot height limit on all waterfront development.

Opponents don't say the building will block their view. The complaint is the structure, the third tallest in the city if built, will spoil the view.

"That building at 350 feet would ruin the aesthetics of the waterfront," said Supervisor Roger Boas, "because it is 80 feet that building would dwarf the Ferry Building and the Bay Bridge."

Tallest tower on the Bay Bridge is 310 feet high.

"We don't want our waterfront to be defaced and destroyed just because it is supposed to be of economic benefit," Boas said.

"I have another view toward development," Mrs. Feinstein said. "I don't think that it has solved problems. There is no information that it pays its way. The frustration of urban life alone increases with every major building," she said.

Peter Godrys of Northford lost 43 pounds the European Health Spa way.

He says:
"For years I felt tired all the time, ready to sleep whenever I laid down... even when I was driving. I was exhausted when I should have been busy and having fun. My wife worried about my heart. My doctor urged me to exercise and go on a diet. Handicapped by 47 pounds of useless fat, I thought I was too busy and too tired to take time for exercise."
"Of course, I had tried all kinds of diets and exercise at home. None of them worked."
"When I joined the Health Spa, I weighed 247. Friendly staff members helped me with an exercise program that was fun and a diet I could live with."
"It's easy to drop in at the Spa for quick workouts. It puts me in touch with lots of nice guys working toward goals like mine."
"Now I feel great. I'm sure I've added years to my life. From 247 pounds to 204 pounds! From a 40 1/2 to a 40 inch waist! I'm a new man in many ways!"

As Others See Us

LONDON (AP) — American comic strips, poverty and corruption in West Virginia, armed self-defense, and U.S. trade and defense policies were some of the subjects discussed in foreign editorials last week.

"A great change is taking place in American comics," wrote Japan's biggest newspaper, Asahi. "Heroes of American children such as Superman, Ironman, and Batman, who have been champions of white men in the past, have changed their attitude by supporting Negroes and American Indians in comics."

"A new hero, 'Submarine,' for anti-pollution, has appeared in comics and his activities have become very popular among children. The current social problems in the American society are reflected in children's comics. Waves of problems such as race, pollution and student disturbances have advanced into the children's world."

The Financial Times of London wrote: "Even though the problem of West Virginia's social and economic development was brought to national attention 10 years ago, state and federal government agencies have only begun to address themselves to the solution."

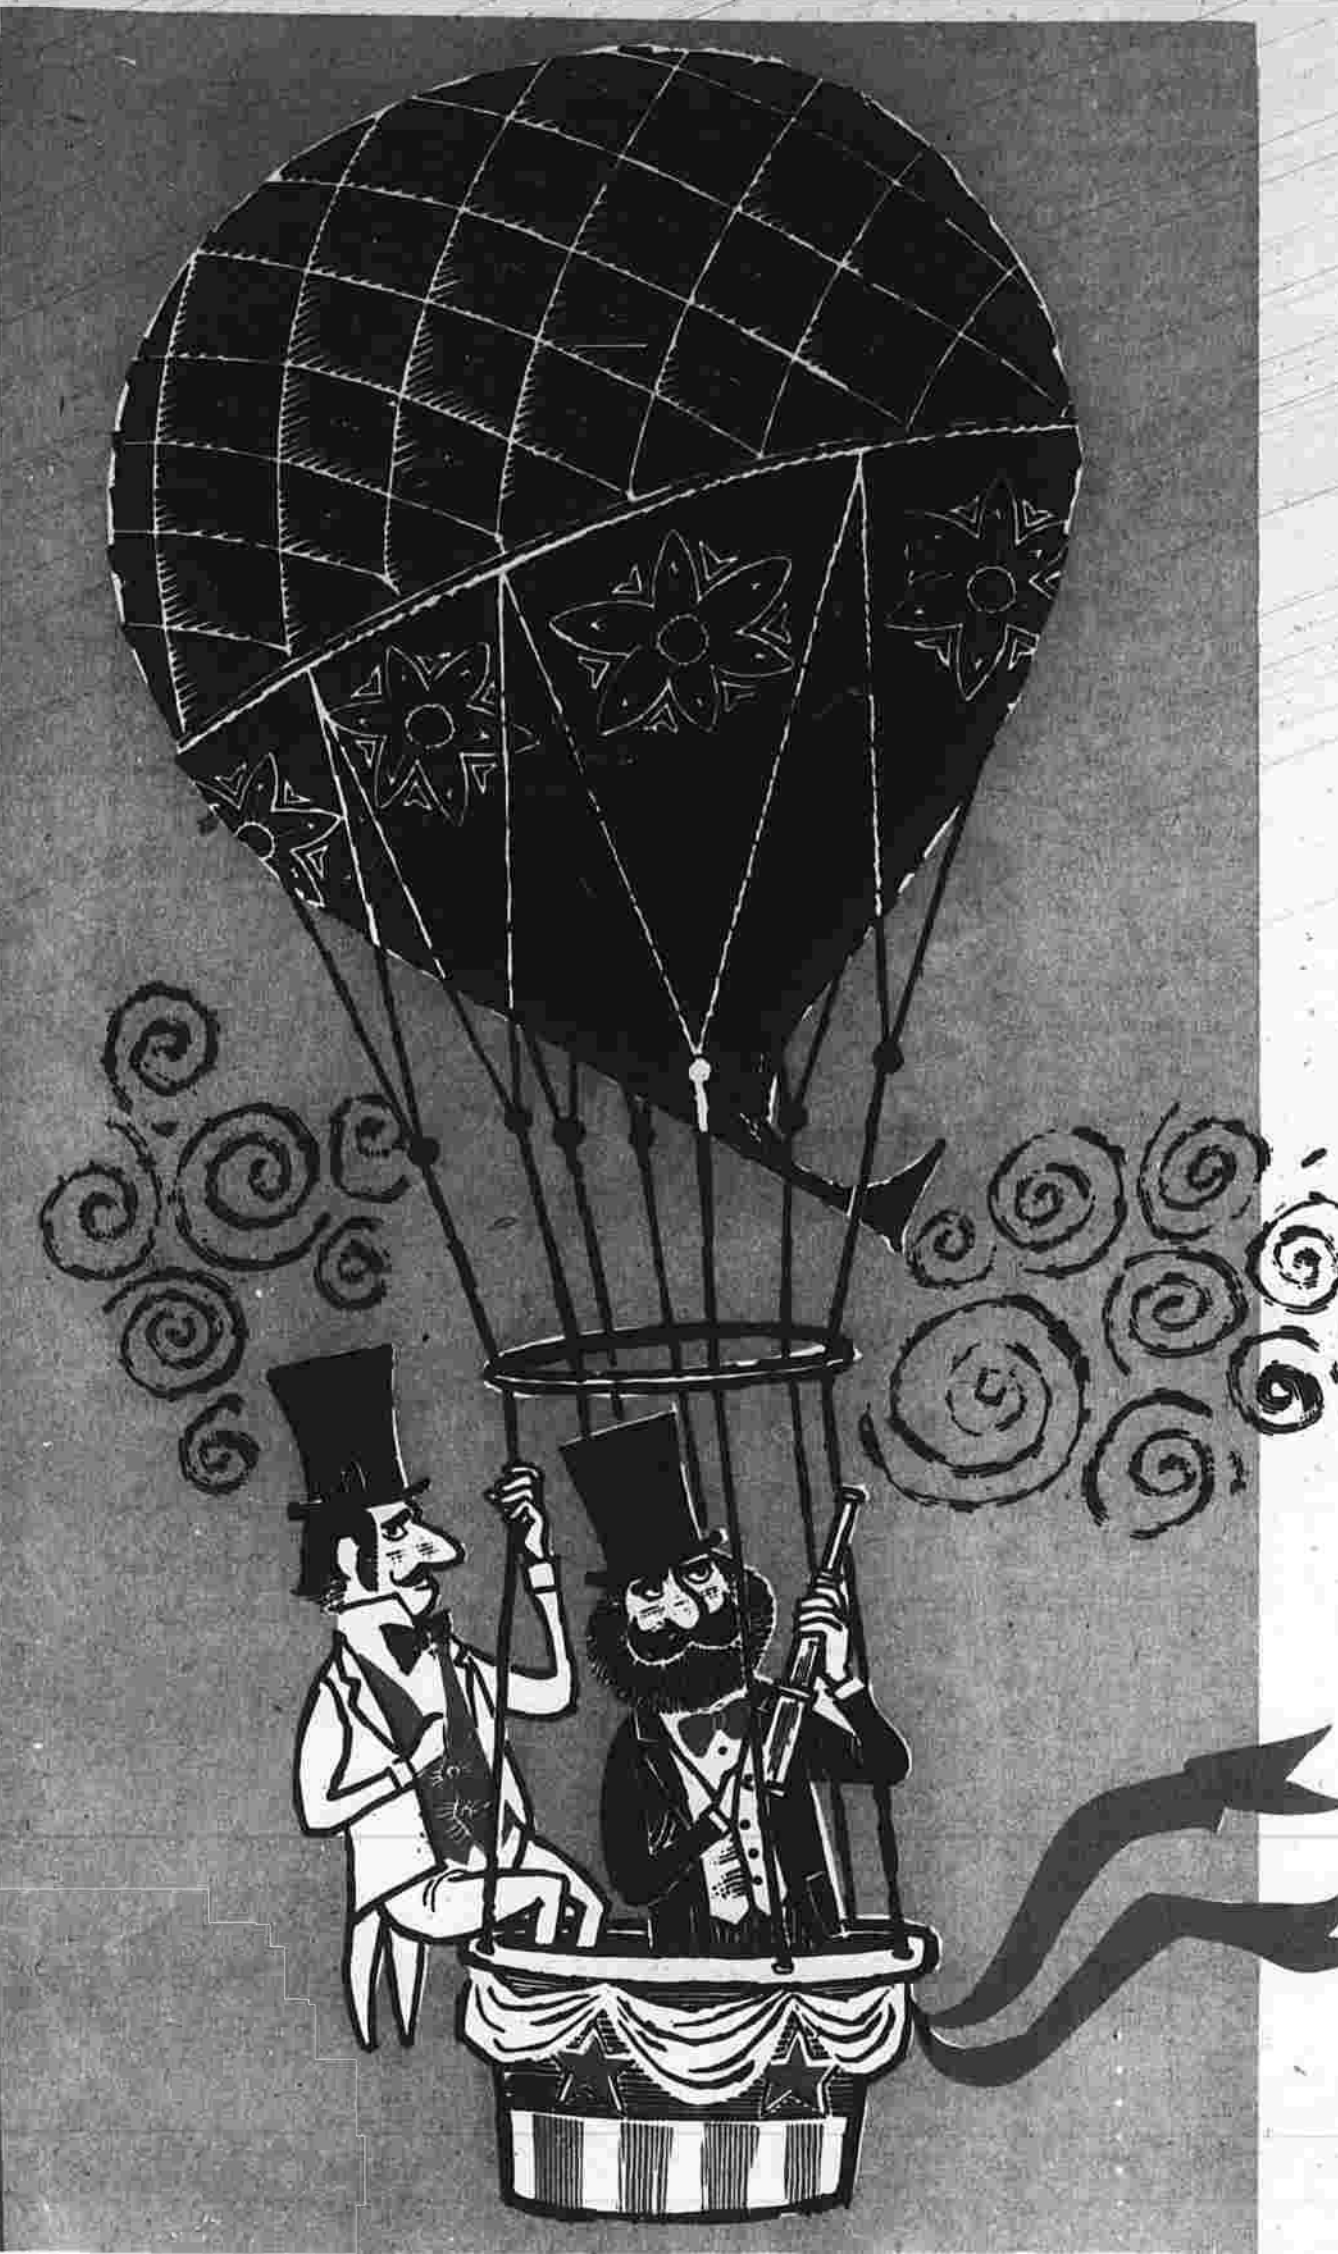

"Much of the delay in meeting the problems of poverty in the state has been caused by partisan politics and abuses of government authority. Local authorities estimate that government corruption cost West Virginia over $100 million between 1960 and 1968."

"More than that, corruption costs the state precious time in meeting the needs of its people, and has retarded the economic growth which would help lift West Virginia out of its depressed economic condition. Even today scandals are never far below the surface of state politics."

Rome's Giornale d'Italia said that almost half of U.S. population has firearms at home and that "most Americans have turned their homes into a fort."

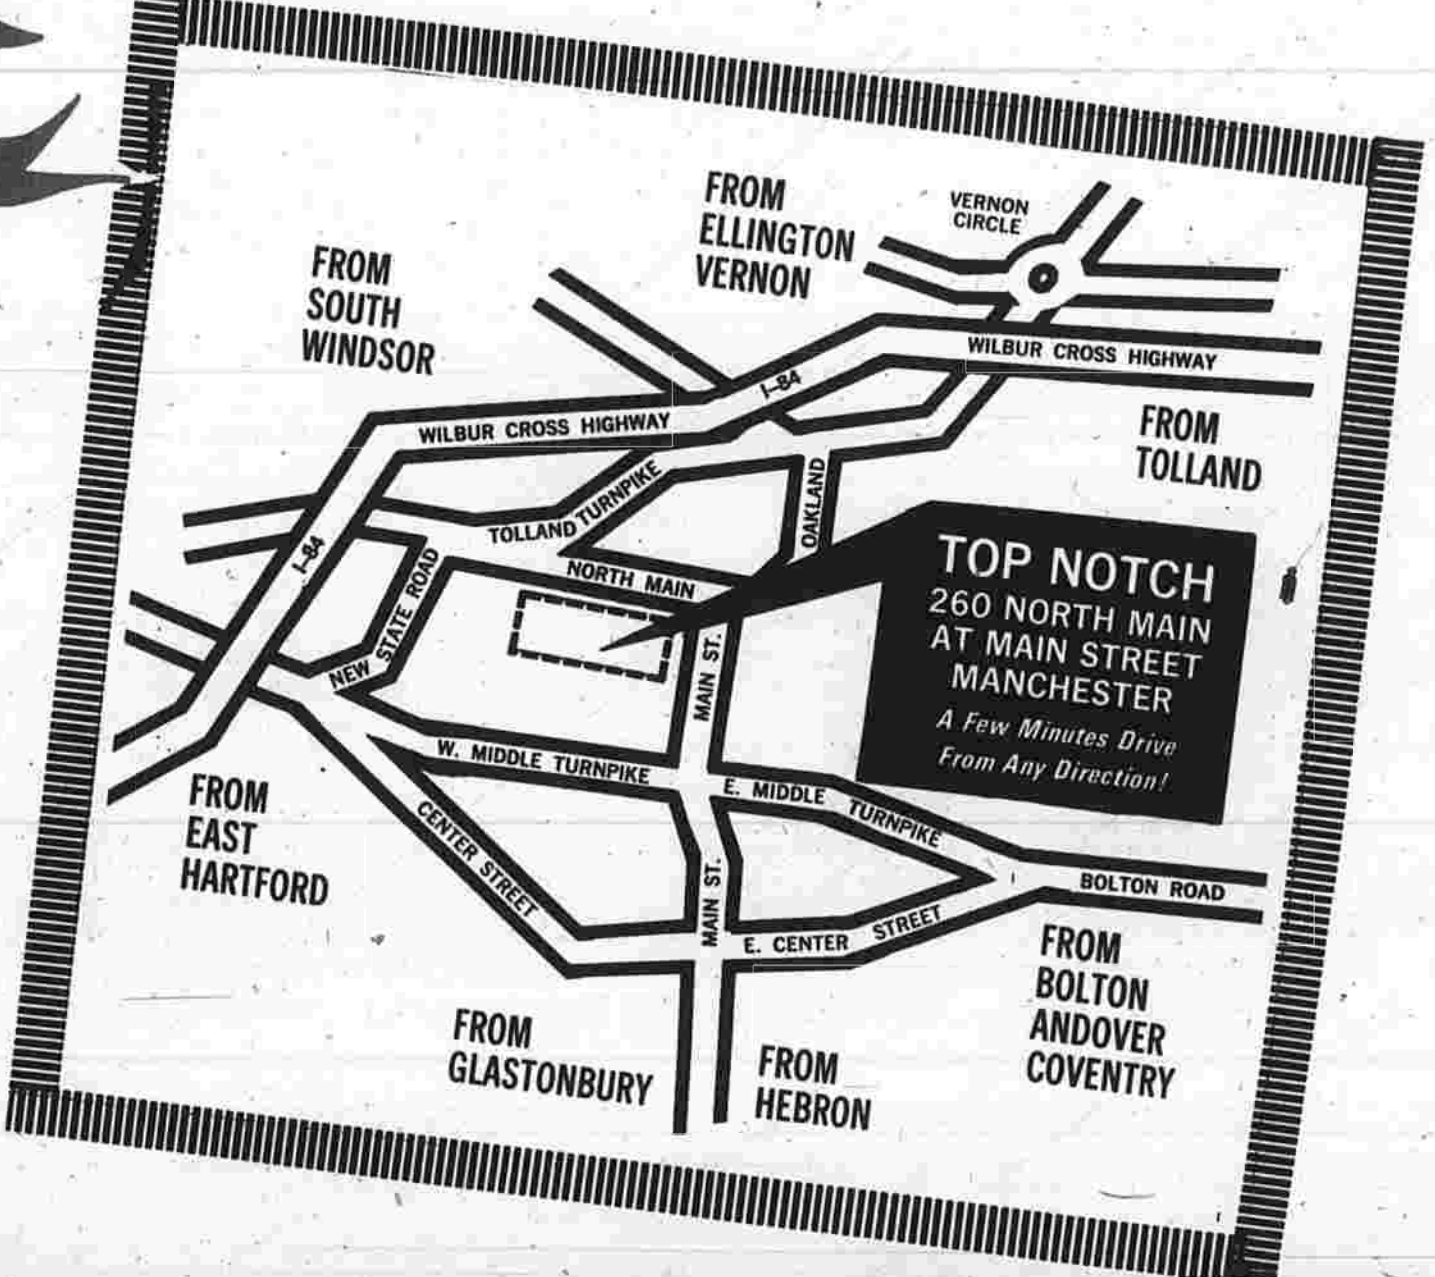

"In the United States there are some 8,000 factories making antiburglary and personal defense devices. There were only 1,000 five years ago. The increase is a sign of a growing fear of finding one's home emptied by thieves or of being assaulted in the middle of the street."

The paper said that "business

State's Liberals Waiting for 1972

HARTFORD (AP) — With and have unambiguously around Joseph Duffey defeated in his bid for the U.S. Senate, what do the liberals within the Democratic party do next?

"I think we can work with them," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, they start looking for the presidential election in 1972, say state Rep. Robert Barrows of West Hartford, head of the Caucus of Connecticut Democrats (CCD).

"The CCD, which had its beginnings in the presidential campaign of Eugene McCarthy and Barrows Tuesday, because everybody was so busy.

"But we still got a good nucleus of people — a larger group of people than before," said Barrows, who was defeated in his bid for reelection to the General Assembly.

Barrows conceded that Duffey's defeat, the CCD lost a focal point that had aroused a lot of enthusiasm. But there are other focal points in the future — and the biggest one is the presidential campaign, he said.

Among the possible candidates who have attracted members of the liberal community are Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, George McGovern of South Dakota, Harold Hughes of Iowa, Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts and Fred Harris of Oklahoma, said Barrows.

Closer to home, the liberals will also take an active part in the special Democratic state convention that is scheduled to Stoberg — was elected to the caucus next April to consider party reforms, he said.

"There will be agitation," said Barrows, "for broader representation, broader participation, more democratic procedures. I'd like to see — I think we will see — an attitude that is more dogged and more determined toward party reform."

The CCD liberals have been too much involved in "confrontation" with the party regulars.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — When the 18 women in his office showed up for work in pants suits Tuesday as a gag, John Stewart pulled a switch on them.

Stewart, director of accounting for the Board of Education, wore a mackintosh instead of trousers.

"And I think I stole the show," he said.

"It's rather switch than fight," he added, "and another New Haven woman who was plotting Norfolk, Va. They lived in Hartford for 15 years before coming to Manchester 14 months ago. Mr. Caswell

Figures Reverse

ST. LOUIS — In the late 1960s Americans were using about 24 pounds of soap per person and three pounds of synthetic detergents. By the late 1960s the total went up to 32 pounds per person, but the figures had reversed to six pounds of soap and 24 of detergent.

How should I store eggs?

Store in their own specially designed carton on refrigerator shelf or place in specially covered refrigerator door shelf with large ends up. Never wash eggs before refrigeration. Each shell has a natural, protective film which helps keep them fresh.

Is there an easy way to test for fresh eggs?

Yes. Simply place egg in deep cold water. If it sinks to the bottom, those eggs you bought today were a good buy!

What is the best method for separating an egg?

For best results, choose a very cold egg. Tap egg sharply at the center on the edge of a bowl. Lift off top half of shell, letting some of egg white drip into bowl. Rock yolk gently from one half of shell to the other until all egg white has dripped into bowl.

How many egg whites equal 1/2 cup?

You will need 4 to 6 eggs, depending on egg's size. If recipe calls for 1/2 cup of egg whites, then 6 or 7 eggs should be enough. Generally 1 large Grade A egg yields 1 1/2 lbs. of egg white and 1 lbs. of egg yolk.

How do you use up those leftover egg whites and yolks?

Use egg whites for frostings, meringues, divinity fudge, any white cake, including angel cake. Use yolks to enrich and thicken cream sauces, for Hollandaise or mayonnaise, in custards, cakes, batters for deep-fried foods.

School In Hawaii Tranquil

By HEVELLY FETTERSON Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — The one school on Hawaii's "forbidden" island of Nihoa is a tranquil place, but the state superintendent of education says children there are way ahead.

"We're trying to develop more understanding of the American culture as it is now," she says. "Nihoa is of the old Hawaiian culture, which, of course, is lovely in itself."

Doctor Warns Against Arguments on the Pill

LONDON (AP) — Women on the pill shouldn't row with their husbands or get hot up during arguments, a scientist warned today.

If they do, they're running the risk of a heart attack.

But if they can't stop themselves, they should try smoking a cigarette.

Women who take contraceptive pills and worry about day-to-day affairs are more likely to have a thrombosis than their pill-less sisters, said Dr. Kitty Little of the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority.

Dr. Little has been testing rabbits which, she said, react in the same way as human beings to the effects of some drugs.

Her conclusions, published in the author's newspaper, Atom News, found that too much cortisol, a substance occurring naturally in the body, acted with the contraceptive pill to form blood clots.

Recently, Dr. Little disclosed there has been a growing volume of evidence that the amount of cortisol in the blood rises when people are under stress.

"Types of stress include apprehension, anger, living under nervous stress and meeting deadlines as well as severe illness or injury," she said.

Illnesses caused by strain and stress—headaches, depression, irritability, migraine and chronic bronchitis as well as heart trouble—have become more frequent in recent years.

So the best way to reduce risk is to stop cooking inside, stay calm about getting meals on time and keep the peace with hubby.

Otherwise the ladies can lower the cortisol in their blood by carefully in the body, acting with the contraceptive pill to form blood clots.

Can you pass this eggs-amination?

Is the color of an egg's shell important? Not whether it has a white or beige shell, the yolk and the egg white will make the same excellent flavored fried, poached or boiled egg.

When have egg yolks been beaten enough? When they have been whipped with a fork, wire whisk or rotary beater to a thick and foamy, luscious color.

How should I store eggs? Store in their own specially designed carton on refrigerator shelf or place in specially covered refrigerator door shelf with large ends up. Never wash eggs before refrigeration. Each shell has a natural, protective film which helps keep them fresh.

Is there an easy way to test for fresh eggs? Yes. Simply place egg in deep cold water. If it sinks to the bottom, those eggs you bought today were a good buy!

What is the best method for separating an egg? For best results, choose a very cold egg. Tap egg sharply at the center on the edge of a bowl. Lift off top half of shell, letting some of egg white drip into bowl. Rock yolk gently from one half of shell to the other until all egg white has dripped into bowl.

How many egg whites equal 1/2 cup? You will need 4 to 6 eggs, depending on egg's size. If recipe calls for 1/2 cup of egg whites, then 6 or 7 eggs should be enough. Generally 1 large Grade A egg yields 1 1/2 lbs. of egg white and 1 lbs. of egg yolk.

How do you use up those leftover egg whites and yolks? Use egg whites for frostings, meringues, divinity fudge, any white cake, including angel cake. Use yolks to enrich and thicken cream sauces, for Hollandaise or mayonnaise, in custards, cakes, batters for deep-fried foods.

Six Girls Stir Hearts After Crash

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — A man credited with helping save the lives of six young girls in a fiery auto accident says contributions are coming from as far as Germany for a fund he created to help pay the victims' mounting medical bills.

Robert Ellis, 88, who went into a flaming camper truck with Charles Burkdale, 34, and pulled the Girl Scouts to safety, established the fund with help from the Wells Fargo Bank in Martinez.

The total has passed the $7,000 mark, Ellis reported Thursday, but more will be needed to help pay the girls' serious injuries.

Two of the girls, Lisa and Trudy Harrington, were orphaned. Their parents died when their truck and an accompanying car collided head-on. If any money is left after extensive day events from 7 to 9 p.m. and women will meet Thursday during the same hours.

A program for boys age 10 through 13 will be sponsored Dec. 8 from 1 to 3 p.m. Registration will be held at the high school gym Saturday during these hours. Boys are asked to bring markers, sheets and a towel.

Ex-Premier Sees Revolt in Burma

NEW YORK (AP) — U. Nu, the deposed premier of Burma, plans a armed attempt to regain power from General Ne Win as Burma restores democracy, he reports in The New York Times.

Nu, from "somewhere in Burma" wrote for today's edition of the newspaper that "about the time that this appears in print I should be broadcasting a general alert to the people of Burma, preparing them for the start of hostilities."

Nu was deposed eight years ago and the Burmese constitution suspended.

"Mine has been likened to a Castro-type revolution," Nu writes of his plans. "The parallel is both close and false."

"True, we have the same sort of enemy, the same number of guns arrayed against us. The difference is that we are not a band of bandits seeking to set up a different kind of dictatorship."

Nu writes that he determined last year "despite my religious convictions" to take up arms.

He writes that he hopes to hold elections within a year of his return. He claimed the support of the minority races in Burma and said "we have the greatest reliance on our youth."

"I have a shadow cabinet, but I cannot announce it yet because the leaders in exile want their counterparts within Burma to have their posts as soon as possible," the former premier wrote.

Burglary Roundup

BERGSPONT (AP) — Police have arrested six young persons on charges connected with the theft and handling of goods worth nearly $1,000 from a Stratford home.

Police said the six — all Berkeley residents — were rounded up after the theft of a television set, liquor, radio, books and a coin collection valued at $950.

They said the burglary may have been part of the operation of a ring of burglars in the area.

Head of Household at 19 Job for Marshall Soph

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — A 19-year-old sophomore premed student at Marshall University, Jeff Heath, has been plunged into the role of head of the household.

His primary concern now is the care and upbringing of his 11-year-old brother Kevin and 10-year-old sister Holly.

They were orphaned when an airliner crashed Nov. 14 on approach to Huntington's Tri-State Airport.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Heath, were among 79 passengers aboard the plane, chartered for a trip by Marshall's football team.

Another sister, 18-year-old Kathy, recently married. She and her husband are moving into the Heath residence to help fill the place of the missing parents.

Jeff had been at home part-time attending school. He plans to continue his studies.

Heath's father, a local service agency, but now is struggling to keep his head above water.

Pope Paul Pleads For World Peace

MANILA (AP)—Pope Paul VI today called for an end to the Vietnam war as a means of working for peace in the world and the well-being of all mankind. In a dramatic address, the pontiff urged "the pursuit of honest and sincere negotiations" and begged world leaders "to avoid any action that could harm the climate of understanding so necessary for the success of the current talks" in Paris.

Three-Car Crackup Kills Nine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Nine Thanksgiving weekend travelers—six of them children—died in a collision on the Pennsylvania Turnpike as the four-day holiday period passed the halfway point. The three-vehicle pileup near Downingtown, Pa., late Friday was by far the worst so far in the weekend and pushed the nation's holiday traffic toll toward 100.

Vietnam-Bound Jet Crashes In Alaska, 48 Persons Die

Emergency crews fight lingering fire as others search for bodies following the crash of a four-engine DC8 jetliner bound for Vietnam Friday. (AP Photo)

By KENT STUBBS, Associated Press Writer. ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A chartered DC8 jetliner carrying military personnel and dependents crashed, exploded in towering flames and burned on takeoff Friday night, killing 48 of the 230 persons aboard.

Painter Says He'd Repeat Pope Attack

MANILA (AP)—The Bolivan painter charged with trying to murder Pope Paul VI admitted his guilt today and said he felt "sorry" because his attempt failed. He also said he would try the same thing again, "with pleasure," if he had the chance.

Over 14,000 Incidents Reported To Show Cong Activity in DMZ

By GEORGE ESPER, Associated Press Writer. SAIGON (AP)—The U.S. Command said today there have been more than 14,000 incidents and sightings indicating enemy activity in Vietnam's Demilitarized Zone since the United States stopped bombing North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968.

Mediator Named In Hartford

HARTFORD (AP)—The way has been paved for mediation sessions to begin Saturday in the two-week-old Hartford teachers' strike. Daniel Gallagher of the state mediation service was named as mediator by both sides in the dispute late Friday night, after the teachers and the school board agreed that they should enter mediation in an attempt to end the strike.

New Conservative Coalition Pushing State Income Tax

By DON MEIKLE, Associated Press Writer. HARTFORD (AP)—There is a new coalition forming behind a state income tax increase in the legislative program, which will be released next week. There is a very good reason why business and industry have softened their position. They want the business taxes lowered. And the feeling seems to be that if they want to be taxed more, they should be taxed more as individuals.
