Pope Paul Pleads For World Peace

MANILA (AP)—Pope Paul VI today called for an end to the Vietnam war as a means of working for peace in the world and the well-being of all mankind.

In a dramatic address, the pontiff urged "the pursuit of honest and sincere negotiations" and begged world leaders "to avoid any action that could harm the climate of understanding so necessary for the success of the current talks" in Paris.

The Pope told 150 Vietnamese clergymen and laymen that he was sure their embattled homeland would someday "know better days."

Speaking in French at the home of the papal nuncio, where he is staying while he is in the Philippines, the pontiff asked his audience: "But, you will say, what is the Pope doing here to help us attain that peace which everyone longs for?"

"Dear sons and daughters and dear friends," he continued, "we are doing everything in our power. In particular we are urging the pursuit of honest and sincere negotiations. This seems to us not only the best way to end the war, but also the only way to bring about a just and lasting peace, but the only way worthy of love."

The pontiff had been invited to stop briefly in Manila during his current 25,000-mile swing through Asia and the Pacific. But Vatican sources said he turned the invitation down because he had not been able to go to Manila. The pontiff did not mention the invitation in his address today.

While he was en route to Manila Friday from his stop in Cebu, he was struck by a plane, his chartered jetliner flew him directly over Cambodia and South Vietnam, sites of the conflict he has so often deplored in his seven-year pontificate.

Before he made his address, the Pope rode in motorcoaches through the streets of Manila, addressed cheering students at a university and heard Roman Catholic bishops from 15 nations commend him for the calm way he reacted to a sniper's attempt on his life.

With loud applause, the 89 delegates to the first pan-Asian bishops' meeting passed a resolution condemning the attack on the Pope at the Manila airport Friday and expressing admiration for the "courage and serenity" which characterized his illness in a difficult situation.

The resolution was proposed by Valerian Cardinal Gracias of India and was passed by acclamation.

The bishops' meeting was the highlight of Pope Paul's visit to the Philippines, the third of his ten-day, eight-nation tour of Asia and the Pacific.

Stephen Cardinal Kim of South Korea set the tone of the meeting by welcoming the Pope and expressing admiration for the "courage and serenity" which characterized his illness in a difficult situation.

Cardinal Kim was at the Manila airport Friday to greet the Pope and his entourage. He was spattered with blood when he was struck by a bullet.

After Cardinal Kim spoke, the bishops debated resolutions on the role and responsibilities of the Catholic Church in Asia.

One resolution said the church should "be more truly the church of the poor" and another urged church leaders to avoid entanglements "with the rich and powerful."

The bishops voted on the resolutions by secret ballot. Results will be announced Sunday.

Pope Paul listened to the debate, then mingled with the bishops during a long coffee break.

Other witnesses said it was a momentous standing near the Pope who blocked the attack. Police said today that Mendoza denied his attack was part of a plot and isolated he was acting alone. They said there had been speculation that outside interests might be involved because he is a foreigner.

Jolly Bugarin, director of the National Bureau of Investigation, said his men were checking on the man who attempted to stab the pontiff.

The agreement doesn't necessarily indicate that a quick end of the strike is likely, the board and the Hartford Federation of Teachers still must resolve the basic issues behind the strike, including issues of pay, grievance procedures, and just what the Panthers, Big Man said.

Vietnam-Bound Jet Crashes In Alaska, 48 Persons Die

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—A chartered DC8 jetliner carrying military personnel and dependents crashed, exploded in towering flames and burned on takeoff Friday night, killing 48 of the 230 persons aboard.

Three persons were missing, said an Alaska Air Command spokesman who gave the death toll.

The spokesman said 188 persons, more than 100 of them injured, were counted at a hospital on nearby Elmendorf Air Force Base. He said 11 others were in Anchorage hospitals.

The spokesman said the plane carried 219 passengers and 11 crewmen, one more crewman than given in earlier reports.

The spokesman said the plane, owned by Alaska International Airways, was moving "too fast to land and too slow to take off" when it crashed at Anchorage International Airport after refueling and changing crewmen.

A survivor said the plane "only climbed a few seconds, then it sort of glided down." John Pedersen, an airport mechanic, said the plane "nose dropped, then ran off the runway. It caught fire, he said, and then exploded twice about three or four minutes later.

Master Sgt. Robert L. Kellar of New York City, a 15-year Army veteran who said he survived two previous crashes, told of "panic" at first, three or four seconds at most.

The father of six said other DC8s quelled the panic "instantly, and this was one of the things that pulled us out."

Another survivor, Spic 4 William Goetz of Tacoma, Wash., said the plane approached the end of the runway.

"I thought, 'We're not going to make it,'" he said. "The plane was coming apart." Goetz and Kellar, both of whom suffered minor injuries, DC8 which killed a fifth of the 230 persons aboard said today.

The plane, en route to Vietnam, left a trail of fuel and scattered wreckage as it slammed off the end of the runway at Anchorage International Airport in darkness and freezing drizzle.

Another survivor credited quick action by fellow DC8s as being a key factor in evacuating most passengers from the flaming jetliner.

The aircraft was about halfway down the runway, Spic 4 William Goetz of Tacoma, Wash., said, "when we felt three or four bumps like the plane was going over rough spots or as though the tires were blowing out."

Near the end of the runway, the pilot gunned the engines, then cut them back fast," Goetz said in an interview after treatment for minor injuries. "I thought, 'We're not going to make it.'"

Joe Heywood of Anchorage, who saw the accident from his car near the runway, said the fuselage "split in the middle and a big ball of flame went up, and another crack opened behind the wing."

On the runway he could see hearing a series of loud reports (See Page Eight)

Three-Car Crackup Kills Nine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Nine Thanksgiving weekend travelers—six of them children—died in a collision on the Pennsylvania Turnpike as the four-day holiday period passed the halfway point.

The three-vehicle pileup near Downingtown, Pa., late Friday was by far the worst so far in the weekend and pushed the nation's holiday traffic toll toward 100.

An auto carrying a family of nine had stopped on the turnpike pavement. Another car slammed into it, and seconds later a pickup truck raked into both vehicles.

Both adults in the first car and five of the seven children plus a woman in the second auto died in the collision. Another victim died of injuries two hours after entering a hospital.

The lead car either skidded out of control and stopped or it was trying to make a turn, a policeman said. "I don't suppose we'll ever know."

Three generations of a Jackson, Mich., family including an 11-year-old girl perished in a crash that killed five persons Thursday near Jackson.

Doctors gave treatment for exposure to Oakland, Calif., policeman William Holmes who peeled off most of his clothing and dived repeatedly into Lake Merritt near downtown Oakland to hunt for a man whose car plunged into the water before dawn Friday.

Painter Says He'd Repeat Pope Attack

MANILA (AP)—The Bolivian painter charged with trying to murder Pope Paul VI admitted his guilt today and said he felt "loopy" because his attempt failed.

He also said he would try the same thing again, "with pleasure," if he had the chance.

Benjamin Mendoza y Amor, 36, of La Paz, who has been charged with assassination, commented to newsmen after being brought to a news conference by police.

"Are you the one who attempted to assassinate the Pope?" one newsmen asked.

"Yes, sir," Mendoza replied without a pause.

A man in priest's robes tried to kill Pope Paul with a knife at the Manila airport Friday, moments after the pontiff arrived on the third stop of his tour of Asia and the Pacific, Mendoza was carried away by police. The Pope was not hurt.

The news conference was held at the National Bureau of Investigation, where Mendoza is being held.

Mendoza said he thought Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos was the man who parried his hand when he attacked the Pope.

Shown a photograph of the president, he said: "After seeing this picture I am now reminded that this is the person who parried my hand."

"It was not sure yesterday but now, upon seeing the picture of Marcos, he is," Mendoza said.

Several witnesses had said the president, standing close by the Pope, hit Mendoza's hand with a karate chop as the man attempted to stab the pontiff.

Other witnesses said it was a momentous standing near the Pope who blocked the attack. Police said today that Mendoza denied his attack was part of a plot and isolated he was acting alone. They said there had been speculation that outside interests might be involved because he is a foreigner.

Second Phase of Black Panther Convention Takes on 'Camp-In' Look in Nation's Capital

By AUSTIN SCOTT. Associated Press Writer. WASHINGTON (AP)—Part two of the Revolutionary People's Constitutional Convention turned into a sort of community organizers' camp-in Friday, its meeting places, its length and the number of people who intend to stay with it all uncertain.

The Black Panther party found it impossible to stick to its original plan of workshops and mass working sessions, a spokesman told a Friday night open-air rally, because Howard University refused Wednesday to let the Panthers use its building.

"We're still going to have our convention and our program presented," Gilbert "Big Man" Howard, deputy Panther minister of information, told a cheer-in crowd of about 1,000 that had been sitting in the chill November air for three hours.

"However, we see that in Washington, D.C., the only people that are organized are Richard M. Nixon and J. Edgar Hoover and Martin Mitchell," he said in a comment that brought waves of laughter. "And we see these conditions could not exist if the people of Washington, D.C., were organized."

Therefore, he said, "we have got to go out to organize and liberate some territory to hold a convention whether it takes one day or two weeks, or three months."

New Conservative Coalition Pushing State Income Tax

By DON MEIKLE. Associated Press Writer. HARTFORD (AP)—There is a new coalition forming behind a state income tax a more conservative coalition than the one that pushed the idea last legislative session.

Liberal Democrats who backed an income tax last year have cooled on the subject, now that they have to deal with a Republican governor. Their feeling seems to be: "Why should we make the first move? Why should we stick our necks out and make things easier for Thomas Meskill?"

But as the liberal Democrats have cooled off, the business community has warmed up. The Insurance Association of Connecticut paved the way for a pro-income tax position recently by issuing a report that income tax is a positive good. But its supporters say it is preferable to the alternatives, such as boosting other taxes even higher, cutting back needed state services, or failing to help the support of a "piggy-back" tax that would simply be a percentage of everyone's federal income tax.

No one says a state income tax is a positive good. But its supporters say it is preferable to the alternatives, such as boosting other taxes even higher, cutting back needed state services, or failing to help the support of a "piggy-back" tax that would simply be a percentage of everyone's federal income tax.

There is a very good reason why business and industry have softened their position. They want business taxes lowered. And the feeling seems to be that if they want to be taxed more, let the state government be the one to be taxed more than individuals.

There is some difficulty, however, in phrasing their request so that it won't come out sounding something like: "We want all you middle-income people to make up for the tax cuts we want for our corporations and insurance companies."

Mediator Named In Hartford

HARTFORD (AP)—The way has been paved for mediation sessions to begin Saturday in the two-week-old Hartford teachers' strike.

Daniel Gallagher of the state mediation service was named as mediator by both sides in the dispute late Friday night, after the teachers and the school board agreed that they should enter mediation in an attempt to end the strike.

Friday was the first day of formal negotiations between the two sides since the strike began on Nov. 16.

The agreement doesn't necessarily indicate that a quick end of the strike is likely, the board and the Hartford Federation of Teachers still must resolve the basic issues behind the strike, including issues of pay, grievance procedures, and just what the Panthers, Big Man said.

Lines Living Most Lower

Once again, solemn signatures are being affixed to a document which, unless many things more fundamental than signatures and more permanent than ink are brought to pass, will merely constitute another historical fiction.

The document in question is the quite prosaically titled treaty negotiated between Poland and West Germany, and its purpose and merit is that it fixes, for the umpteenth time in history, a permanent peace border between the two countries, this time by recognizing the changes and territorial concessions dictated by the victors in World War II.

The fiction is, of course, in the idea that this is any more permanent, or any more peaceful in itself, than all the other treaties in history which have drawn geographical lines establishing a Polish border.

There can be no permanent peaceful Polish border with either Germany or Russia until this has first been transformed into a different kind of world, in which borders themselves have been dissolved into something real and unobstructive as to constitute hardly more than an imaginary line on a map, of some slight sentimental or historical importance, but of no major significance in the actual living of the people on either side of it.

Even though one recognizes this ultimate necessity, which constitutes the basic flaw in such treaties as that now being concluded, one cannot fault the statesmanship involved. The present day leaders of West Germany and of Poland are doing their best to deal with the world as it is, and not as it would be if they were supposed to be fenced somewhere. They are trying to agree together on where they shall be located and then make their joint maintenance a friendly affair. But even as they make progress toward such agreement and such relationship, people on both sides of the line must know that there is injustice being imposed and the cause of future quarrel being perpetuated for possible revival in some future generation. There can be no permanent peace until the barriers between nations have been lowered so low there is no longer any compelling reason for wanting to move them in one way or another. We devote our main energies to the effort to make the nation, system work, and we alternate, in our results, from cataclysmic tragedy to temporary minor successes to choices between evil and not quite so evil, and good, well-intentioned men take their roles in such struggle with the complications history which is the sum of past accomplishments by men, hands to them.

There ought to be more good men, and more good energies, involved in the effort, not to keep trying to patch up the old system, but to create the new necessity, which is for international living, citizenship, and law. There were signatures, the other day, to make the nation, wedging sanity over a new line on a map. Some day there must be a map on which such lines have been rubbed out by so much living across them.

Polio Was Relatively Easy

Dr. Jonas Salk, who helped save many from crippling and death from polio, has now shifted his concern from the individual as patient to all mankind.

His idea of an optimistic diagnosis is to say that in about three more generations we may have developed a system of values and a mood of conduct which will enable us to survive.

It would be our great grandchildren, then, who would, to use the words of Dr. Salk's language, finally cure the "cancer of man" in which man himself and his contraptions have been proliferating unchecked like malignant cells, heedless of the good of the whole.

What our great grandchildren will arrive at will be, it is comforting to know, a "more responsible middle course" than is being charted now by either the

Every change in a state administration still brings about, even in these modern times, something of an old-fashioned job rush.

That form of political patronage which consists of a job on the public payroll bids, for the duration of the country's great post-war boom, not been too much of a worry for our political parties. Indeed, at many levels of government the problem has often been more one of finding positions for public payroll jobs than that of finding jobs for the political faithful.

Nevertheless, two circumstances are operating together to make the pending exchange of a Messick administration for a Dempsey-Bibbitt regime stir up more than the normal amount of interest in public payroll jobs.

First, the state of the outside economy puts something of a premium on public payroll jobs, for the first time in decades.

Second, the Democrats have been in power in Connecticut so long, for 18 years, they had forgotten what it was like to suffer for a political defeat and suffer the patronage consequences.

The result on Nov. 3, was, then, a signal for something of a panic in a special sector of the electorate. The Rev. Dr. Shaw, preaching Church School for infants-toddlers through adults.

Wonders of the Universe: Air Pollution in Spacecraft

By DR. I. M. LEVITT, DIRECTOR

The Fels Planetarium of the Franklin Institute. The problem of air pollution in spacecraft will become critical when the first manned mission to Mars is launched.

Will nobody protest the way asks Thoreau (beautifully played by Michael Fairman) at one point in the play, and by an effective device the audience hears the voice of a congressman from Illinois out-of-stage denouncing "the contemptible, unscrupulous, and unprincipled" congressman "a second Benedict Arnold" and his stand as a dove.

The thirty volume of Concord had a title page that was a sort of handwritten note. Emerson was 14 years older, and for a while he looked a bit like with his long nose, those long, low, poetry, both slender and thick, both low, poetry, both slender and thick.

There was a certain awe and reverence about the man. He was tall and thin, with a long, thin nose, and a pair of eyes that looked as if they were looking through a microscope.

There are other sources of poison: Carbon monoxide from heating sources, highly toxic acrolein produced by cooking fats and overheated lubricating oils; chlorine, arsenic and silicon from electric batteries, and toxic fumes from rocket fuels may leak into the cabin.

Many of these act as local irritants to the respiratory tract and can produce hypoxia by interfering with the respiratory process.

Literally hundreds of contaminants have been identified as air pollutants. Some are toxic, some are irritants, some are asphyxiants, some are carcinogens, some are mutagens, some are teratogens, some are neurotoxins, some are immunosuppressants, some are allergens, some are carcinogens, some are mutagens, some are teratogens, some are neurotoxins, some are immunosuppressants, some are allergens.

Mementos and Surprises Make This House Unique

You'd never guess what's inside the rather small, unimposing ranch house belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rucker in Rockville. The rooms are conventional but appear spacious because of an uncluttered look and the use of pastel colors.

The next time I'd ride into Hartford. Beneath the painting over the sofa, is framed an unusual collection of meerschaum cigar holders that had belonged to Mr. Rucker's grandfather.

The fireplace contains an elegant autumn arrangement of dried flowers. Very handy for the extra guest is an antique adjustable piano stool which received a facelift with antiquing and repolishing.

Marks 20th Anniversary The Filoramo Construction Co. Inc. of Bolton, Conn. recently celebrated its 20th Anniversary at the Hartford Hilton.

The firm is one of the largest mason contracting firms in New England presently employing 100 and expanding. It has done work throughout Connecticut and Massachusetts.

PROMOTED Two men from this area are among employees promoted recently in a major organizational change at J. M. New Co., Bloomfield, manufacturer of precious metals.

Salvatore J. Filoramo graph-Multigraph Co. Guilford; G. Fox Department Store, Enfield; Manchester Memorial Hospital; and presently the Clay Hill Middle School, Hartford.

The firm is under the leadership of Salvatore Filoramo, president and founder, who is keeping with family tradition, started as a youth in the building industry. He attended Pratt Institute while working in the construction industry. In 1959 he moved from Brooklyn, N.Y., and started the firm. He is president of the Hartford Chapter of the Mason Contractors Association, a member of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce and the Knights of Columbus, and is active in many civic and charitable projects.

Filoramo is assisted by his two sons, Frank and William, who are both officers of the firm. Frank joined the firm full-time in 1969 after attending Law School at Catholic University, Washington, D.C. He is a graduate of Fairfield University. William joined the firm this year after service in the United States Army in Germany. He is a graduate of St. Francis College, Biddeford, Maine.

BRANCH MANAGER John DePasquale of Manchester was recently promoted to branch manager of the Hartford Framing Co.'s new Manchester store at 341 Irving St. Edward L. Molans, president, has announced.

The store here, the fourth for the Hartford-based firm, opened early this month and carries a complete line of custom and stock frames, wall decor items, mirrors and "arty" gifts.

DePasquale has been with the company for six years. He and his wife, Donna, and their three children make their home here.

UTILITY EARNINGS DROP Northeast Utilities this week reported a decline in net earnings for the year ended Oct. 31, despite an increase in operating revenues of $28 million.

ASK EARLY W-2 The Internal Revenue Service is asking employers to issue withholding tax Forms W-2 to their employees early in January. This will enable prompt payment of refunds to taxpayers entitled to receive them.

LAST YEAR 909,682 Connecticut taxpayers received refunds amounting to $28,460,796.30. Lelan F. Sillin, chairman and president, attributed the decline in earnings to a continuation of the recession in fuel prices experienced during recent months.

Sillin reported 12 months earnings were $6.5 million or $1.18 per share compared with $4.4 million or $1.26 per share.

Obituary

Mrs. William F. Gold
ROCKVILLE, Md., Mrs. Gertrude Handke Gold, 68, of 110 W. Franklin Park, widow of William F. Gold, died yesterday at Rockville General Hospital. Mrs. Gold was born May 25, 1902 in Rockville, daughter of Gustave and Emma Starke Handke, and had five children. Survivors include two sons, Mrs. Rose Newmar of Rockville and George Starke of Uxbridge, Mass.

Private funeral services will be Monday at the Ladd Funeral Home, 19 Ellington Ave. The Rev. Richard E. Bertram, pastor of the First Evangelical Lutheran Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Grove Hill Cemetery.

There are no calling hours. The family suggests that any memorial contributions may be made to the Building Fund of the First Evangelical Lutheran Church of Rockville.

Banks Agree to Accept Gifts for Hospital Fund

A number of banks located in Manchester or with branches in the area have agreed to participate in Manchester Memorial Hospital's annual giving drive by accepting donations for the hospital during the entire month of December. Anyone wishing to make a donation may see any employee of a participating bank and the gift will be accepted and turned over to the hospital fund, said Bert Dittus, hospital development director.

"Many $1 and $10 donations are needed as well as the $10,000 memorial gift. If we are going to meet the growing needs of the hospital," Dittus said.

The participating banks are Connecticut Bank and Trust Co., Hartford National Bank, First Federal Savings Bank, Manchester Savings and Loan, Savings Bank of Manchester, South Windsor Bank, Peoples Savings Bank, and Vernon National Bank.

Drug Center Pope Pleads For Peace In World

The Drug Advisory Center, 81 Russell St., is observing the following schedule:
Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.
A telephone backup service is available Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.
For drug advisory information, call 647-9222.

"Here we are together at last," he said. "This meeting makes us very happy."
He urged the bishops to offer the Catholic faith to all, "with-out distinction of condition, without any privileged link with one race, continent or civilization."
"It is better than an Asian can speak to an Asian," he said. "None better than he should speak to the people of the world. He is one and catholic, founded upon the apostles, and an indirect result of the church's past policy of linking missionary activity with trade and elsewhere with attempts to imbue the natives with Western ways."
The Pope also reiterated his belief in collegiality, which means giving bishops a role in the decision-making, but he cautioned against interpretations "which would weaken it."
Some progressive churchmen say the Pope should be required to work with his bishops before making major decisions.

Guinea in New Charges Of Portuguese Invasion

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — Portuguese forces have penetrated Guinea's frontier in the Koundara region, which abuts on Portuguese Guinea.
Guineans, speaking on Conakry radio, called on U.N. Secretary-General U Thant to order the Portuguese to withdraw from the area created by the attack, which began Friday night, six days after Guinea charged Portuguese mercenaries invaded its capital.
A U.N. investigative team is now in Conakry looking into the situation.
"The 'States of Revolution' radio said about 300 members of the Portuguese armed forces were involved in the Koundara attack."
"About 10 of the Portuguese mercenaries were seen in the area, 'put out of commission' and crushed like flies. They received all the punishment they deserved."
"Other elements of the infiltration force were seen in Koundara's defense committee since yesterday, are vainly attempting to find a way out of the Koundara area."
The broadcast said Toure sent the following telegram to Thant: "The government of Guinea informs you of the following: At the same time as the U.N. observers mission is going ahead with its investigation of the Portuguese mercenaries in Guinea, the battle of Conakry, following the armed Portuguese aggression of Nov. 27, 28, 29, the Portuguese aggressors launched another attack during the night Nov. 27-28, violating the frontier north of Koundara."
"The battle is continuing in Guinea territory toward pushing back this second aggression, the area of which leaves no doubt as to our responsibility for Portuguese colonial troops. We ask you for an examination of the newly created situation."
This was reported from Moscow, meanwhile, that the Guineans said the new invasion was defeated.
No correspondents have been permitted to enter Guinea to observe the situation first-hand. Indications in Dakar and in other capitals of countries with common frontiers with Guinea suggest that the invasion most likely involved Guineans who oppose Toure's Marxist-type regime. They were assumed to have had the benefit of training and other support in Portuguese Guinea.
Conakry has long served as a base for the guerrillas fighting the Portuguese colonial regime in the colonial territory.

MCC Senate Asks Ruling On Fund Use

Manchester Community College's Student Senate, in a letter to Attorney General Robert Killian, has resurrected a disagreement that arose last summer between the senate and the administration over the control of student funds.

Brian Frucker, senate president, has asked Killian for an interpretation and a ruling on the constitutionality of state statutes for procedures governing student-sponsored activity funds.

The breakdown in relations between the senate and MCC administration occurred when the student group objected to administrative use of Student Activity funds for salaries of three staff members, a change by the Board of Trustees for the District Community Colleges in the distribution of state monies, and a change in the administration of monies in the surplus fund.

In April, the senate drew up its budget for 1970-71 to include control of all student activities but excluding administrative expenses. Dr. Lowe rejected it in late June and froze funds as of July 1.

Of two subsequent budgets prepared by the senate, it approved one that included intercollegiate athletics and administrative expenses. On the day it was adopted, the trustees, without student consultation or knowledge, reduced the $15,000 student per semester Student Activity fee to $10, and added the $5 to the administrative expenses. This prompted the senate to rescind approval of its budget.

The problem seemed to have been quietly interred at the last meeting of the Regional Council of executive committee members. Frucker, W. Lowe Jr. informed the members a compromise had been reached. The trustees' action and senate, he said, would settle the salaries of the student activities director, secretary, and an accounting clerk.

Now Frucker is asking Killian to force the trustees to switch section which states that "Each activity fund may be used only for the control of the students of educational institutions, branches, or schools thereof, but shall not be used for the support of an administrative institution, and may be operated to carry on all strictly student-sponsored activities."

The students claim this means that "The administrative heads supervision can be used but not a form of supervisory review, and in no way can be used to carry on administrative activities from student to administrative jurisdiction. He added that Dr. Lowe would be able to use the fees "as he sees fit." Dr. Lowe's qualification of the statement was that "It is a college fund, not a student fund," and that he could use the money "as I see fit in accordance with rulings of the state comptroller's office."

Frucker's letter points out that from July 1, 1968 until this year, athletics were managed by the student government. He further charged that the fee change was made to switch athletics control from students to administration as a result of their magnitude. Other reasons, are beyond the capabilities of a student body to adequately manage.

Stating that the trustees acted on the recommendation of the Council of Presidents, the senate said that "At no time did the Board seek review, or hear evidence to prove that athletics at MCC were beyond the capabilities of a student body to adequately manage."

The senate letter to Killian concludes, "This seems to represent fraud. . . . An obvious attempt to silence student questioning. . . . If it is determined that the college president, then there can be no such thing as a student government."

Rev. Carberry Named Vicar In Oxford

The Rev. Timothy O. Carberry, assistant at St. Mary's Church, has been named vicar of the First Evangelical Lutheran Church of Oxford.

The Rev. Carberry will be leaving Manchester on the first of December. A reception is planned for them tomorrow from 2 to 4 p.m. in Neill Hall at the church. The reception is open to friends of the Carberrys.

three or four wounded persons, he said, one of them a woman. He said the plane carried several military dependents, including at least one child.

On the ground, airport mechanic John Pedersen said he saw the plane strike runway lights, nose down, then crash off the end of the runway.

One survivor, who refused to give his name, said the plane sort of glided down. It just kept going and going, then suddenly everything went all at once.

Master Sgt. Robert L. Keller, a 18-year Army veteran from New York City and father of six children, said there were "three or four seconds" of panic at first.

"Other GIs quailed the panic instantly," said Keller. "This was one of the things that pulled us out. I got the exit sign just seconds after the plane stopped."

He said he had been in two previous minor plane crashes.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fiery crash of a Vietnam-bound DC-8 jetliner Friday night raised to 152 the number of persons killed in three separate air disasters involving chartered airplanes within the past two months.

Bugari also said Mendoza was being held under $4,000 bail. The maximum allowed by the Department of Capital Interests, said he said Mendoza's charges include kidnapping, raising the amount of bail authorized from $2,000 to $4,000.

Two weeks ago today, a Southern Airways DC-8 jet crashed into the water off the coast of Florida. The plane was carrying 127 passengers and crew. The crash killed 127 people.

As an attempt Friday morning to remove two rear wheels from a car parked in the yard at 15 Andover Rd., resulted in damage to the car and the wheels.

Cong Activity Reported In Viet DMZ

Informants said the number of reported sightings goes up sometimes and down at other times, but that they attach no real significance to the pattern.

The sources said, however, that elements of one North Vietnamese regiment infiltrated across the DMZ into South Vietnam two months ago to a point north of Quang Tri City.

The sources said they have no indications of any unusual buildup in the zone at this point, but they did not rule out the possibility that the North Vietnamese might launch some attacks against allied positions along the DMZ.

There has been speculation that because of the U.S. air strikes over the North last weekend, the North Vietnamese might retaliate with attacks across the DMZ.

In addition to the air strikes, the sources said, the Pentagon disclosed Friday that U.S. warplanes struck North Vietnamese positions near the Son Tay prison camp during the unsuccessful U.S. attempt last week to return or capture the camp.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Daniel Z. Harkin told newsmen in Washington that "positive actions were taken to carry out the small force of Americans who landed in the camp 25 miles west of Hanoi and found it empty of prisoners."

Harkin indicated that three North Vietnamese soldiers in the area "immediately adjacent" to the camp because there were known to be some enemy troops and anti-aircraft installations in the area.

He acknowledged the attack under questioning at a news briefing, describing it as a diversionary move to draw the attention of the U.S. to the area "immediately adjacent" to the camp because there were known to be some enemy troops and anti-aircraft installations in the area.

In Saigon today, only scattered admiralships were reported across South Vietnam.

In Cambodia, the High Command said two airports had been reopened on two battle convention fronts. The reopening of the airports to bring in supplies and reinforcements was "very significant and encouraging."

how they would prepare information on the delegates to the party, and how they would organize the people.

There were indications, however, that large numbers of the delegates were not prepared to say anything as long as the administration thought the organizing might take.

Some of the young people, about half of them white, who stood in long registration lines at the party, said they were looking for housing lines at all South Unitarian Church Friday afternoon. They were looking for housing lines at all South Unitarian Church Friday afternoon.

Others have their own homes or return or come in chartered buses scheduled to leave Sunday, or have duties to return to school or work.

So much of Friday was spent searching for possible meeting places and straightening out the mechanics of food and shelter that the main reason for coming to the convention was dismissed.

The new constitution was drafted by the convention and adopted by a vote of 130 to 10.

Panther co-founder Huey P. Newton had said earlier that the convention would draft an alternative to the existing U.S. Constitution, which he said the Panthers would use as a basis for their new constitution.

The alternative, Newton said, would emphasize "the common man," and bring about "a new economic system in which the people would draft an alternative to the existing U.S. Constitution, which he said the Panthers would use as a basis for their new constitution."

Rev. Palangio To Speak At Center Church

The Rev. J. Roland Palangio will speak tomorrow at the 9:15 and 11 a.m. church services of the Center Congregational Church.

The Rev. Mr. Palangio joined the Connecticut Conference staff in January of 1963. He came to Connecticut from the Park Place Church in Pawtucket, R. I., where he served for five years.

He received the Congregational Church in Westerly, R. I. During the eleven years he was in Rhode Island, the Rev. Mr. Palangio was most active in denominational and interdenominational activities, especially in the field of radio and television.

Before his Rhode Island pastorate the Rev. Mr. Palangio was the Department Head and Professor of Speech and Dramatics at Iowa Wesleyan College, Mt. Pleasant, Iowa for six years. He was also on the staff in the Department of Philosophy at the University of Denver from which he received his AB and AM degrees.

He and his wife live with their two children in East Windsor. In his eight years on the conference staff the Rev. Mr. Palangio has averaged about 200 talks per year. He is also the editor of the Conference monthly, 'The Missioner.'

John Wayne

Wayne Collects Stars

"I don't think there have ever been so many top stars on a television show before, except maybe the Oscars," said Academy Award-winning actor John Wayne, obviously pleased that so many Hollywood headliners had turned out to help him with his first television special.

Twenty-eight individuals and one major musical group join John Wayne in "Swing Out, Sweet Land," an upbeat musical-comedy salute to the United States of America from 1600-1900 to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Sunday at 8:30.

"Just about everyone in town wanted to be on the show, but we had to limit the guest list or we'd still be shooting," Wayne explained.

The cast includes Bob Hope (entertaining the troops at Valley Forge), Jack Benny (questioning George Washington about that silver dollar he tossed across the Potomac), Bing Crosby (as Mark Twain), Dan Blocker (as the Indian who sold Manhattan Island for $24) and Lucille Ball (as a real live Statue of Liberty).

Also featured are Johnny Cash, Phyllis Diller, Lorne Greene, Dean Martin, Dan Rowan, Dick Martin, Red Skelton, Tommy Smothers and many more, including the Doodletown Pipers.

"I originally wanted to do a show on the American tradition for the kids of this country, but we didn't have time to visit the historic places back East and film it," Wayne said. "So we decided to do the show right here in Hollywood and invite people I've worked with over the years."

Many of the guest stars on the special are longtime friends with whom Duke has appeared in the past. Others were attracted by the patriotic flavor of the show.

"For years I've been appearing on everybody else's show," Wayne said. "I figured it was time I got them to return the favor, to do a show I wanted to do."

For instance, Duke guested on NBC-TV's "The Dean Martin Show" in 1966. And, in 1968, he paved the way for top personalities to appear in blackouts on the same network's "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In."

"We'd go any place for Wayne," stated Dick Martin, recalling the success of his appearance on "Laugh-In."

"It's nice to know you have so many friends," Wayne added. "With this kind of company, I can't get into too much trouble with my first television special."

Flying Host

"Have plans, will travel" could be the motto of Art James, host of NBC-TV's "The Who, What or Where Game." Instead of taking a commercial flight, Art piloted his own plane to make a personal appearance in Philadelphia recently. He's a qualified multi-engine pilot.

James Arness--Backstage

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The unmistakable figure of Matt Dillon hustles a burly drunk out of the Long Branch saloon. The drunk takes a swing at Matt, who cools the unfortunate with two swift blows, then orders him out of town.

"Cut! That's fine," says the director, and Matt—James Arness—ambles over for a chat. Two things are unusual: Arness giving an interview; a fight on "Gunsmoke."

"That's the first fight we've had in a long time," said the television star, "and I suspect that the network will cut it out of the finished show."

Like all action series, "Gunsmoke" underwent a clampdown on violence in the wake of the Kennedy-King assassinations two years ago. Said Arness: "We have a little more freedom now, but not much. I can understand the reasons for cutting down on violence, but I must say it makes it damned hard to film a Western when you can't use fists or guns."

Despite the restrictions, "Gunsmoke" continues to flourish. On the day we met, the CBS series was No. 1 show in the Nielsen ratings.

That was one reason Jim Arness seemed happy. Another was that he was nearing the end of his 16th season as the marshal of Dodge City. He would soon be departing for other climes, as is his custom when not filming.

A shy and retiring man despite his fame and wealth—

"Gunsmoke" has made him a millionaire two or three times over—Arness rarely gives interviews. But he invited me for a talk in his dressing room, and unpretentious place with a photo mural of a surfer sliding down a monstrous Hawaiian breaker—surfing is an Arness hobby.

He spread his sturdily built 6 feet, 4 inches on the soiled bed cover and talked about his double life as Matt Dillon and Jim Arness.

How does he keep up his enthusiasm after 16 years in the same role?

"That's not hard to do. Sure, a lot of the work is routine, like walking in the saloon and saying, 'Hello, how are you,' and that sort of thing. But every now and then I get scripts that really make me stretch as an actor. That's where the fun is; that's how I keep alive."

Does the filming routine get him down?

"Not really. I spend a lot of time here, but the shows are planned so that only one out of every four or five are heavy with my scenes. The rest of the time, I'm in and out, and the others in the cast carry the load. So I get a couple of days off here and there. Then we get eight to 10 weeks off in the winter and eight to 10 weeks off in the summer."

What does he do on vacation?

"I usually get out of town. I've got a house up at Mammoth Lake (ski country in mid-California). I've also got a place at Makaha on Oahu in Hawaii. I like Hawaii, but I'm afraid it's soon going to be built up around each island like Miami Beach. I'm looking for somewhere else."

"Lately I've been spending a lot of time in Baja, California. I've found some great beaches down there, and some wild and desolate country. I suppose it will become spoiled, too, like everywhere else. But right now it's a great place to get lost in."

Why the urge to get out of Hollywood when not working?

"I like to get away, that's all. Most of my friends are outside the TV business. Not that I have anything against it. But it has never been my bag, that's all."

Choosy Singer

When Marc Copage (co-star of NBC-TV's "Julia" series who also moonlights as a singer) learned he had to sing "Row, Row, Row Your Boat" in an episode, he remarked: "I don't sing songs about old things like boats, only about space and love and stuff."

Natural Casting

Celeste Holm, star of NBC-TV's "Nancy," will have Wesley Addy (playing a widower) fall in love with her in the Dec. 10 episode, "A Case of Spring Fever." It's natural casting; the actor is her real-life husband.

Leonid Kinskey turns up in a guest star role in a "Mayberry R.F.D." episode, filming for that Monday night comedy.

Nominees

Robert L. Crawford, writer-director for NBC-TV's Nov. 29 special, "The Making of 'Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid,'" is a former actor nominated for an Emmy Award in 1969 (at age 14) for a "Playhouse 90" dramatic role. That year, his brother Johnny also was Emmy-nominated for TV's "Rifleman," as was their father Robert for editing "The Bob Cummings Show."

Extended Stay

Jerry Maren, the Little General on NBC-TV's "The Andy Williams Show," came to Hollywood for a one-film deal as one of the little people in "The Wizard of Oz." One job led to another and Jerry is now in his 37th year of "temporary" residence in California.

Sen. Fulbright To Face Nation

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will be the guest on "Face the Nation" Sunday on CBS.

The broadcast will originate in Washington.

Sen. Fulbright is author of the recent book "The Pentagon Propaganda Machine." He will be interviewed by CBS news correspondent George Herman, moderator of the weekly broadcast, and two other reporters to be selected.

His head full of spiders and his arms full of stolen Christmas presents, the Grinch sneaks across NBC TV screens Dec. 2 at 7:30 p.m.
