Getting involved is legal

Suppose, during a traffic tie-up, Motorist A drags Motorist B out of his car and begins beating him up. Does Spectator C have a legal right to go to B's rescue?

Generally speaking, courts today do recognize a right to intervene. They consider it a logical outgrowth of the ancient right of self-defense.

"What one may do for himself," observed one judge, "he may do for another."

Of course the law prefers a call to the police if that is practical, instead of direct action. The law also insists (to avoid a mere escalation of the violence) that an intervenor must not resort to excessive force.

In one case the foreman of a construction crew saw two workmen having an argument. When one started swinging fists, the foreman stepped over and slugged him on the head with a shovel.

In a subsequent lawsuit the jury decided that the foreman would have to pay damages because he had applied more force than the situation reasonably called for.

Furthermore, the intervention must be for the purpose of protecting someone, not for the purpose of retaliation or revenge. Consider this case:

The dotting father of a sixteen-year-old girl became enraged when he saw a teenage boy toss a stone at his daughter. The father stormed over and gave the boy a thrashing. Sued later for assault and battery, the father insisted he had a right to protect his daughter from harm. But the evidence indicated that before he went into action, the boy had already sat peacefully down on the grass. Result: the father's attack was held unlawful. The court said that while he had a right to protect his daughter, he had no right after the danger was past to "get even."

Beirut battle toll mounts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Moslem leftists and Palestinian guerrillas fighting under a joint command attacked Christian positions in downtown Beirut by land and sea today in what a leftist leader said was the start of the "decisive battle" of Lebanon's civil war.

Fierce fighting raged throughout Beirut and the countryside for the ninth straight day, claiming about 140 dead and 300 wounded over the past 48 hours, one of the highest tolls of the war. Estimated casualties since April rose to about 5,565 dead and 16,200 wounded.

Moslem leftist militiamen opened up a new front — the sea — in their two-day-old offensive against downtown Beirut. This reporter witnessed several boatloads of gunmen moving along the coast from their strongholds in the upper western half of the capital to link up with Palestinian forces in Karantina, the slaughterhouse district downtown.

They moved east in rowboats with outboard motors a few hundred yards off the coast, circling widely to avoid the sniper fire from the shell-damaged Holiday Inn and Hilton hotels from where Christian Phalangist are battling to hold on to their last remaining positions in uptown Beirut.

Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt, who has retained a former Syrian army chief of staff to command his 2,000-man leftist militia, said the outcome of Lebanon's civil war would be decided over the next two months.

South of Beirut, Moslem and Palestinian forces shelled Christian positions today. Initial reports from the Christian stronghold of Damour, 25 miles south of the capital, said casualties among the 15,000 residents were running high and the wounded were being evacuated by sea.

The stepped-up assault was in taking over the magnitude of a Palestinian refugee camp in the fiercest fighting of the nine-month-old civil war.

Sets of legislators have said they would now be willing to vote on them (the governor's proposals).

Jury acquits one defendant in Shelton firebombing case

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — A U.S. District Court jury today acquitted one of the eight remaining defendants after acquitting one defendant Wednesday in its first day of deliberation in the Shelton firebombing trial.

Donald "Blackie" Connors, 43, of Butler, Pa., was declared innocent at 4 p.m. and left the courthouse to catch a bus home. The jury, which had begun deliberating at 1 p.m., left for their homes.

U.S. District Court Judge Jon O. Newman has not sequestered the jury and approved its plan to deliberate from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. The jury will announce each verdict as it is reached.

"I don't know what to expect. I feel pretty good. I'm going back to Pennsylvania," Connors, a truck driver, said after his acquittal.

Connors was accused of driving a truck, loaded with gasoline used to set the fire at Sponge Rubber Products Co. March 1, from Pennsylvania to Shelton. In his defense, he disclaimed knowledge of the cargo or its intended use.

Donald A. Browne, Fairfield County state's attorney, said after the verdict that similar state charges against Connors remain on the books. Browne said, "I certainly am not planning to drop the charges against Connors."

Christmas trees recycled

William Gould, left, and Walter Irwin, both of the Manchester Park Department, feed discarded Christmas trees into the town's chopper at the park department garage on Harrison St. The chips will be used as mulch on park properties in town. This year the annual tree recycling program took on a new aspect when a number of trees were sent intact to Wickham Park. There they will serve as roosts and shelters in the bird cages. Thus far, according to Park Superintendent Ernest Rutek, about 1,300 Christmas trees have been recycled. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Gov. Grasso's antideficit plans now more likely to be adopted

HARTFORD (UPI) — A legislative leader says lawmakers are more likely to adopt Gov. Ella T. Grasso's budget-balancing proposals now that they know she wasn't bluffing about laying off state workers.

Senate Minority Leader Joseph Lieberman, D-New Haven, after a 90-minute meeting with Mrs. Grasso and the Democratic legislative leadership, said Wednesday that the legislature would now be willing to vote on them (the governor's proposals).

Mrs. Grasso in November announced her plans to meet a projected $80 million budget deficit for the current fiscal year. She said state workers would have to be let go unless it was enacted.

At a special session during the first week in December, the legislature surprised many persons, including its leadership, by rejecting her proposals. The program included taking over the $9 million Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Fund and lengthening — without an accompanying pay raise — the work week of state employees.

Administration officials have said the projected deficit for the current fiscal year, which ends June 30, has been cut to $35 million. But the legislature's Office of Fiscal Analysis has issued a preliminary estimate that Connecticut faces a $147 million shortfall for next year.

Mrs. Grasso promised Tuesday she could balance the budget without an over-all tax increase, although some levies would have to be raised if her plan to cut business taxes is adopted.

Lieberman said Mrs. Grasso had not been specific in her presentation of her program, but she was confident a tax hike would not be needed.

"I am saying that Soviet actions in Angola, if continued, are bound to affect the general relationship with the United States, (and) that a substantial deterioration of that relationship can also over time affect our strategic arms talks," Kissinger said.

MMH renovation on schedule

The in-wall communication system allows the nurse and other patient to talk back and forth. Large windows with tinted glass prevent glare. A thermal barrier in the windows resists heat and cold. The temperature in the area will be controlled by air conditioning.

Charles J. Crocini, left, director of engineering services and assistant planner at Manchester Memorial Hospital, explains to Andre Marmen, hospital development director, the pin that will permit a bed lamp in the renovated North Wing to be removed from its wall socket and inserted into a plug at the foot of the patient's bed to provide better light for a doctor's examination.

Don't ignore grain as bargaining tool

President Ford was both right and wrong in his statements regarding Angola, made before the American Farm Bureau Federation convention in St. Louis the other day.

In answer to those who have been urging that the United States cut off its grain shipments to the Soviet Union if the Kremlin does not cease its meddling in that African country, the President pointed out that the linking of grain with diplomacy would cause "disruption and hardship" for the American farmer, lead to a serious increase of tensions between the world's two super-powers and have no effect in Angola.

It would be naive, of course, to believe otherwise. The Russians have their pride, just like anyone else. Any blatant threat of punitive actions if they don't behave as we want them to behave would likely only harden their posture, at least in the short run.

There is little evidence that the attempt last year by Congress to force the Soviets to ease their emigration restrictions against Russian Jews by withholding most-favored-nation trade status had any beneficial result. It may, in fact, have worsened the situation of the Jews.

Mr. Ford would seem to be on shakier ground, however, when he dismisses entirely the idea of using grain as a diplomatic lever. The Russians, he says, could get along without American wheat.

Maybe they could — but again only in the short run and not as easily as the United States could get along without the rubles the Russians are paying for our wheat. Any hardship a cut-off of these sales might mean to the American farmer pales in comparison to the fact that an estimated-one of every five Russians is eating bread whose ingredients originated in, say, Kansas or the Dakotas.

And as for "disruption," it is difficult to foresee anything worse than the economic disruption occasioned by the infamous wheat deal of 1972, which had unhappy inflationary consequences for every American.

If the Russians can get along without American grain, well and good. No one wants to see them starve. Rather than investing millions in an uncertain struggle-by-proxy in Angola, we could spend the money to stockpile this grain the Russians don't need.

The world's grain reserves are down to a mere 30 days' supply, a perilously low level. Everything the American farmer can produce is going to be desperately needed by the earth's burgeoning population in the coming decades — and that includes the Russians if they have many more bad harvests or are unable to achieve a dramatic improvement in their agricultural productivity.

To restate it then, the President is right when he argues that any attempt to coerce the Kremlin before the eyes of the world would be counterproductive. Far better if quiet diplomacy — the "limited measures" he mentioned but did not specify — can bring about a solution in Angola.

But if at the same time the United States does not also make it quietly plain to the Kremlin that, if push comes to shove, we are perfectly willing to keep our grain for ourselves or sell it elsewhere, then we will be throwing away a bargaining tool of immense value.

Bicentennial suggestion

To the editor,

As my part for the contribution of suggestions to your paper as ideas to our Bicentennial celebration and activities. I would like to relay a message from fellow environmentalists.

The bald eagle, symbol of our great nation and heritage since 1782 is in need of our help. Hundreds of these great birds are poisoned each year by Dieldrin and PCBs (Polychlorinated Biphenyls). Mirex, a fire ant poison may again be used in the South. Rodents and fish absorb these poisons. These same animals are the natural prey of the eagle. The birds are then left emaciated and dying or unable to reproduce.

A ban on DDT reduced levels of this toxic poison in birds dramatically. Dieldrin has recently been banned but still takes its deadly toll. I urge our good members of the Manchester Conservation Commission to contact the proper government officials and urge her protection for our eagle and the banning and strict controls of deadly poisons that devastate our wildlife. Let us hope the bald eagle, a symbol of our freedom does not go the way of the now extinct passenger pigeon. It would be a terrible shame to have to in the future to go to a museum to see a stuffed eagle or to look on the back of a dollar bill to show our children what an eagle looked like.

Sincerely,

THOUGHT

Some years ago I remember waking up one morning in a near fit of rage. I was angry at a number of people whom I felt were making demands of me and then chastising me for not living up to their expectations. In my anger I kept making excuses for myself, over and over, with none of them helping.

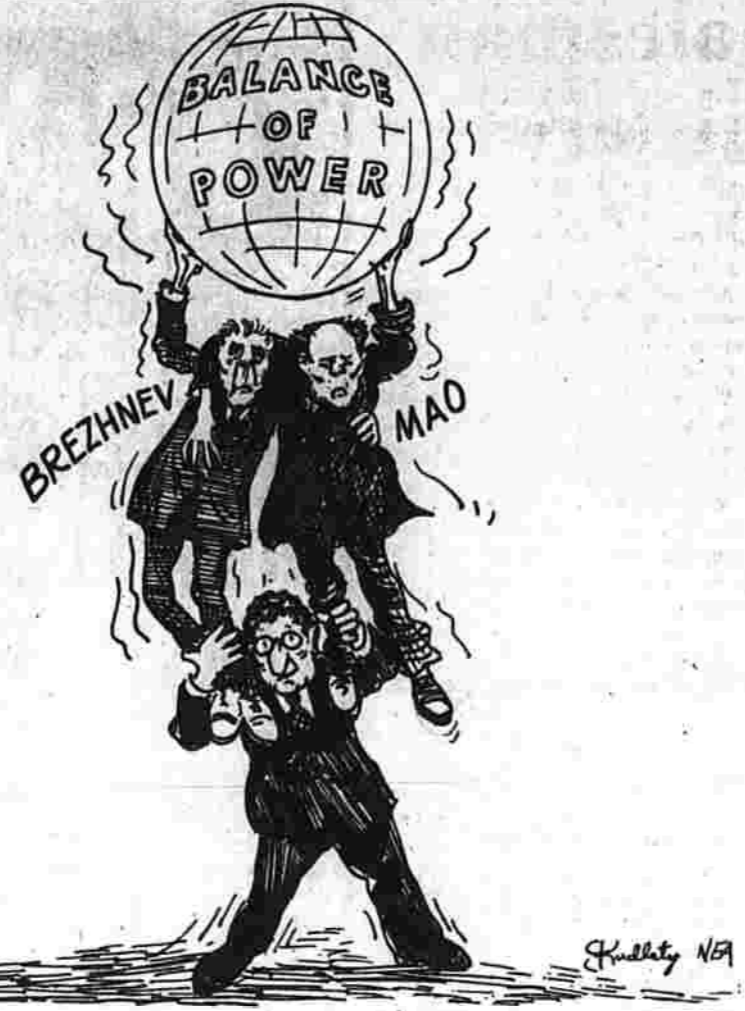

In a spontaneous plea to God for some kind of help I cried, "Why am I so defensive?" The answer like a flash came to me, "Because you are worth defending."

And then I began to discover that I, too, am loved by God. I became free to say NO to some demands because

I could not do everything. To my amazement, I found that being free to say No gave me YES much more power. Now I can meet more demands of others because I know I am free to meet my own needs as well.

I know so many people who work themselves to death trying to please others. I want so much for them to see that God cares for them, too. If only they could see that they, too, are loved, they'd be able to joyfully love others in freedom and not in drudgery.

The Acrobats

The anonymous bosses of Congress

WASHINGTON — Most Senate and House bills are written by staff assistants. The important details are all too frequently known only to themselves and other staffers, who advise their bosses how to vote.

No member has the time to research, write or frequently even to study his own bills, let alone those of others.

Even if they had the will, which most Congressmen don't, they couldn't possibly read, digest and analyze the data necessary to make intelligent decisions on the thousands of measures presented each session.

The average senator belongs to 16 committees and subcommittees. It is not unusual to see these committees meet with two, three or four legislators present. The Senate and House floors are largely empty most of the time as most bills are being debated. Some measures pass, or are radically amended with a handful of members present.

Congress is thus, in a very real sense, run by its staff assistants. And here is the rub. The public doesn't know who these men are. We don't know their conflicts of interest, their personal biases, their connections, their abilities or weaknesses. They remain largely hidden behind their committee chairman or the individual senator or representative they serve. We don't regularly see them on television and we get no chance to vote on them.

Though the committee staffers write some very influential reports, these are not normally researched for accuracy by the lawmakers under whose name they appear. Neither the members of Congress nor the public usually know how sound or how frivolous the data is on which conclusions are reached in staff studies.

We hear reports form time to time on the power of the bureaucracy in the executive branch of the federal government — how in some considerable measure these men and women are a government unto themselves.

For sizable numbers, staff jobs on Capitol Hill are a lifetime career. If the member they work for retires, or fails of re-election, they move to a new boss or to a committee staff position.

Once head of a committee staff they gain, by default, awesome power over what laws are written. An acquaintance in one such staff recently turned down an offer to head one of the major independent agencies of this government. He did so in large measure, he told me, because it would have meant a step down in actual influence, though a sizable step upward on paper.

Among these staffers there are men and women like my friend with super backgrounds and ability which would qualify them for high-level posts in government or private life. But a good many of these assistants have little experience in the world they legislate for. A hefty percentage have such limited backgrounds they must deal in theories and goals; they are frequently unaware of the effects the seemingly minor requirements in the bills they write can have on our lives, our incomes and our jobs.

A random study of the biographies of dozens of staff assistants indicates that many have moved from the academic world or military service, to Congress and the time had come for a Cuban-American reconciliation.

Although there was abundant evidence to refute these cheery pronouncements when they were made — and the Cuban expeditionary force sent to Angola rendered them totally laughable — each of these men proceeded to vote for the amendment sponsored by Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., in December which

They get it when they shatter dreams

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan is trying to recover from an attack of the ailment common to the 40-year-old politician: trade, wit, delirium brought on by infatuation with an idea.

In the case of the former California governor, the virus has come to be known as "the 90-billion dollar problem." It bit Reagan in Chicago last September when he made a speech suggesting that some 90-billion in federal programs be transferred to the states.

Reagan did not demur when folks interpreted his suggestion as a plan to cut the federal budget by 90-billion and thus permit a tax cut of about the same yummy size. But the opposition has been going around asking, in effect, what kind of a nut Reagan is to think he could impose all those programs on the states. So Reagan has been trying to get out from under his "plan," much as Sen. George McGovern sought to forget his 1972 $1,000-for-everybody brain

For heaven's sake, says Reagan, he was not plumping for any quick-fix 90-billion federal budget cut and corresponding tax reduction. All he proposes, he says, is an orderly phased transfer of control, authority and responsibility from the federal government to states and localities.

In order to do this, he adds, he would transfer certain revenue-raising powers now held by Washington. Reagan's tardy explanation acknowledges that the idea is not new. A lot of experts for the past 50 years have wanted to do pretty much the same. Among the idea's advocates were Presidents Franklin Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Kennedy.

Reagan's mistake in Chicago was in not stealing the language used by Ike in 1957, when he urged creation of a task force to designate functions of the states could and would assume and make recommendations for federal-state "revenue adjustments"

Helping enemies and hurting friends

LEE RODERICK

WASHINGTON — Events of recent months which have buffeted American institutions and allies fall into a disturbing pattern perhaps best described by a twisted notion of this Biblical admonition from Matthew: "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you..."

The liberal establishment that has adopted that approach toward such ideological enemies of the United States as the Soviet Union and Cuba, however, fails to appreciate that, while such forbearance may be healthy for the individual soul, as policy to guide a nation it can be deadly. These individuals in Congress and the media also seemingly have adopted this corollary to their "Christianity": While loving your enemies, hate your friends.

Examples of both attitudes abound. Two of the most glaring involve Cuba which, at least up until its wholesale involvement in Angola, was about to be accorded new official status in this country despite its hostility toward America and American ideals; and the CIA which has been on the front line of providing security to the U.S. but has now been systematically emasculated by Senator Frank Church and his committee.

First to Cuba which, some 15 years after Castro's takeover, continues to hold at least 20,000 political prisoners and eight or more U.S. citizens imprisoned on trumped up charges of espionage. During 1975, Sens. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., and Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., visited Castro in Cuba, returning stateside to sing the praises of the Communist dictator and report that he no longer was "exported revolutions." They were shortly followed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., who returned to Washington saying Castro had "mellowed" and the time had come for a Cuban-American reconciliation.

Although there was abundant evidence to refute these cheery pronouncements when they were made — and the Cuban expeditionary force sent to Angola rendered them totally laughable — each of these men proceeded to vote for the amendment sponsored by Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., in December which development of the Housing Services Agency.

Mrs. Jacqueline Smith, vice chairman of the commission, said the new agency would also act as a housing authority to towns where it is desired.

Also requested by the commission was the establishment of a short and long-range housing policy, an allocation of a certain number of housing units which would be based on the town's number of households, and a request to Mayor Sandra Bender to support the resolutions.

Under the proposal about 140 low and moderate income housing units would be built. South Windsor has about 3,950 households.

Of the 140 units, only 10 could be for elderly, according to the resolutions.

Four of the nine commission members voted in favor of the resolutions with three abstaining. Abstentions were based on the need for more time to study the matter.

Two members were absent at the time of the vote.

Federal funds question raises fury in council talks

Coventry MONICA SHEA 742-9495

After lengthy and often heated discussion Wednesday night, the Town Council agreed to continue seeking federal "Off Systems Roads" funds for the replacement of the Flanders River Bridge.

The bridge crosses the Hop River and joins the towns of Columbia and Coventry.

The two towns will hold in abeyance any work for up to 60 days to see if the federal funds will be available.

If within that time, written confirmation has not been received, then the towns would proceed with their own funds to replace the bridge.

As soon as work is received concerning the federal funds and this work is favorable, then the two towns would replace the decking and the stringers on the bridge with timbers

Mrs. Jacqueline Smith, vice chairman of the commission, said the new agency would also act as a housing authority to towns where it is desired.

Also requested by the commission was the establishment of a short and long-range housing policy, an allocation of a certain number of housing units which would be based on the town's number of households, and a request to Mayor Sandra Bender to support the resolutions.

FOI commission orders votes be made public

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's Freedom of Information Commission has ordered state and local agencies to make public the votes of each agency member cast in closed-door meetings.

The commission Wednesday also ordered Bridgeport building officials to permit public access to construction blueprints for the embattled Bridgeport jail area.

The Legislative Management Committee was ordered by the commission also to report the votes of each member on a motion to fire a legislative employe for accepting a speaking fee from a private interest group.

The commission ruling applies to all other state and local agencies. A spokesman for the Legislative Management Committee, which supervises the administration of the legislature, said an appeal to the decision would be filed in Common Pleas Court.

A television reporter (Don O. Noel, WFSB) filed a complaint against the committee when it refused him a list of how each member voted on the motion to fire Roderick J. MacKenzie at a secret meeting last Nov. 5. MacKenzie, a lawyer who drafts proposed legislation, told newsmen he first refused about $175 offered to him by the private interest group, whose proposals he had drafted.

But later he accepted the money when it was offered in the form of a speaking fee and on the advice of a superior, MacKenzie said. The superior has denied advising him to take the fee.

The Freedom of Information Commission ruled state laws requiring disclosure of public documents supersede the State Building Code, a set of regulations which says building blueprints and specifications should be kept secret.

The complaint against Bridgeport building official Frank Mercaldi was filed by a New Haven Journal-Courier reporter who was denied access to the jail area blueprints Dec. 29.

In other matters, the Commission also ruled zoning boards are public agencies and, therefore, must adhere to state laws limiting closed-door sessions.

The West Hartford zoning board had claimed it was a quasi-judicial agency because it sometimes handled appeals from its previous zoning decisions.

Free counseling available to parents of deaf

WEST HARTFORD (UPI) — The American School for the Deaf has begun a free parent counseling service for any Connecticut parent of a deaf child.

The new counselor is Mrs. Carol Robinson, 34, a trained teacher of the deaf and parent of an 11-year-old fifth grader at the special school. Funds for the program came from a drive that raised $12,000 to cover the part-time counselor's salary for two years.

From Your Neighbor's Kitchen

By Vivian Ferguson

The proper cutlery makes food preparation easier.

A few years ago, I learned how to cut and chop with a professional chef's knife. I wish I had known this years ago. Such a time-saver.

Prior to this knowledge, I spent hours with a small knife cutting one slice of vegetable after another, my thumb lined from the knife cuts and brown with stains. It is so very simple that I have taught many ladies since then.

It is difficult to describe — much easier to learn when demonstrated. One simply grasps the handle with one hand using the other hand atop the lower tip of the blade. Then, with a rocking motion you can chop as finely as you like.

When cutting, the left hand holds the food. It uses the four fingers as a marker with the thumb tucked backwards so you don't chop off your fingers, nail or the thumb itself. Sliding the knife back and forth on the cutting board, you can cut even slices of anything in no time at all.

Recently, in visiting a friend, we talked about this system. She had trouble with her knife. It just could not be sharpened. I tried and did a little better but I suddenly realized what was wrong.

The knife was made of stainless steel. Now, at first thought that the sounds marvelous. What she needed was high-carbon stainless. The large chef's knife in the picture is carbon steel which takes the sharpest edge of all and is insisted upon by many chefs. It does stain if not washed immediately after use but that is no big problem.

Stainless steel is truly hard which is why it is so difficult to sharpen. A good cook knows the value of a truly sharp knife. It really should be sharpened every time it is used. The handled piece in the photo is called a sharpening steel. This is what the professionals use. I must confess that I use the sharpener on my electric can-opener to very good advantage.

Don't ever think that a dull knife is safer than a sharp one. Dull knives slip far more readily. More cuts are gleaned from a dull blade than a sharp one. Of course, you should take precautions.

Don't soak knives in water. They shouldn't be that soft and it doesn't handle any good. If you forget, you can cut yourself. Don't put them in the dishwasher. It sometimes affects the tempering of the metal. For proper storage, use a knife rack.

A discussion of knives could fill pages. There are three knives which I consider basic to the kitchen. Most of us will own a paring knife. The knife I use the most is the chef's knife, the largest one in the photo. The slimmer narrow knife is the second one that is always in daily use. A chef would use the big knife for cutting raw meat but I like that narrow one.

From the basic three, you will have your own preferences. You may like a serrated knife for bread

YWCA groups plan meetings

Arey-Dostoler

Debra Dean Dostoler of Auburn, Mass., and Bruce Duncan Arey of Manchester were married Nov. 8 at the Grenadille People's Church of Worcester, Mass.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Dostoler of Auburn, Mass. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth D. Arey of 133 White St.

The Rev. Lyndall Jackson of the Church of Christ in Worcester officiated. Miss Lynn Thompson was organist. The church was decorated with daisies and chrysanthemums in fall colors.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white organza trimmed with white silk applique daisies. Her nylon tulle chapel-length veil was attached to a princess crown. The gown was adorned with a cameo handed down by her great, great, great-grandmother. She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

Miss Sharon Frick of Worcester was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Miss Denise Dostoler and Miss Gloria Dostoler, both of Auburn, Mass., the bride's sisters; and Miss Pamela Faucher of Paxton, Mass.

Douglas Arey of Baldwinville, Mass., the bridegroom's cousin, was best man. Ushers were Paul Rolko of South Hadley, Mass., Michael Kallet of Great Neck, L.I., N.Y., and Kenneth Lindberg of Worcester.

Parker urges holiday honoring Dr. M. L. King

HARTFORD (UPI) — Today should be a state holiday because it is the birthday of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., according to Treasurer Henry E. Parker.

Parker, the state's highest elected black official, said Wednesday he had sent a letter to various groups and individuals urging legislation making Jan. 15 a holiday.

He said recent revelations the FBI had tried to discredit King "increased the magnitude of the injustice" that King's birthday had not been set as a holiday.

Ferguson's return spoiled by Canucks

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Ferguson's "homecoming" turned out to be a bitter disappointment for the new coach of the New York Rangers.

The 37-year-old Ferguson, former "enforcer" for the Montreal Canadiens, got off to a fine start as the Rangers won their first two games under his direction. Road games are always tough but Ferguson and his Rangers had a right to think they would make it three in a row Wednesday night when they visited Vancouver, B.C., where Ferguson learned to play hockey as a boy.

Instead, Ferguson and the Canucks got an unexpectedly hot welcome from the close-checking Canucks, who won a 5-1 for Ferguson's first defeat.

John Gould scored two goals as the Canucks took a 3-1 lead in the first period. Vancouver held the Rangers to three shots on goal in the second

Expansion wish of AL

PHOENIX (UPI) — The American League, which twice before tried to settle its problems by expanding, is on the verge of doing it again.

American League club owners Friday adopted a recommendation of the combined franchise committee, headed by M. Donald Grant of the New York Mets, and voted to expand to 13 teams in 1977.

Maryland, North Carolina come back with vengeance

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Atlantic Coast Conference powers Maryland and North Carolina flexed their muscle Wednesday night, with Wake Forest — for one — learning it might be better to let sleeping giants lay.

Fourth-ranked Maryland and seventh-ranked North Carolina, each knocked from the list of the unbeaten by Wake Forest during the past two weeks, rallied to lopsided victories.

Fifth-ranked Wake Forest paid for its upset two weeks ago of the Tar Heels in the Big Four Tournament, which did not count in the ACC standings, with a 96-74 pounding on North Carolina's homecourt at Chapel Hill.

Maryland, which lost 89-83 at Wake Forest Saturday, bounced back with an impressive 87-69 victory over 14th-ranked North Carolina State at Raleigh.

Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy, now 11-2, has seen his team upset UNC, N.C. State and Maryland in the past two weeks, but only the Maryland game counted in the ACC standings.

North Carolina, now 11-1, often has looked as if it had only a three-man team this season, but the three, Phil Ford, Walt Davis and Mitch Wechsler, were exceptional against the Deacons combining for 71 points.

Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell, looking to learn from his defeat, had concluded the Terps' three-guard offense could not win against top teams, so he benched Mo Howard for forward Larry Boston.

Howard shot that theory and the Wolfpack defense full of holes as the Maryland senior came off

Sheppard and Chief lead way

BOSTON (UPI) — Sheppard and the Chief — it sounds like a new Elton John tune.

In reality, it's a goal-scoring combo that has Boston Bruins Coach Don Cherry whistling all the way to first place in the National Hockey League Adams Division.

"Sheppie" is Gregg Sheppard, the "too-small" center who will play for the Campbell Conference squad in next week's all-star game. The "Chief" is part-Indian John Bucyk, a 20-year veteran forward with 515 career goals.

Each player assisted on the other's 20th goal of the season Tuesday night as the Bruins clubbed the Pittsburgh Penguins, 6-2, in the last 10 games. Sheppard has recorded six goals and a dozen assists.

In the past four games, Bucyk has scored five times and added four assists. The linemates are tied for the club lead with 47 points each.

"I said before the start of the season that I wanted all the players to report to training camp in good shape," Cherry said recently. "And Bucyk showed up 15 pounds lighter than he was last year. He has a fantastic attitude."

Bucyk also has a pretty good goal-scoring touch. His tally against the Penguins gave a 20-goal season for the ninth straight time and 15th time in his career.

And Sheppard? "He's been playing just great," said the 40-year-old Bucyk of his 26-year-old friend.

The 5-foot-7, 170-pound Sheppard, who supposedly lacked sufficient size to play in the NHL, has been a prime penalty-killer for the Bruins in addition to centering the power play.

Sheppard, on the way to breaking his own season mark of 30 goals, said the only difference in his performance this year has been increased playing time.

Rhode Island retreats

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Rhode Island basketball Coach Jack Kraft had experienced all kinds of officiating in his years of coaching but never felt compelled to pull a team from the floor as he did Wednesday night.

Kraft's Rams were losing to South Florida, 72-56, with 5:50 to play when guard Jim Williamson was knocked down by Florida's Eddie Davis while passing. Williamson was called for being out of bounds on the play and the increased crowd took his team to the locker room.

"I could not subject my players who are playing their hardest to incompetent officiating by referees who obviously did not know the rules," said Kraft, who added he had never taken such an action in his years of coaching at Villanova and Rhode Island.

The coach also said he hoped his action was a reflection on the reputation of the officials and not on that of South Florida.

In the 34:10 of the game that was played, the Rams whittled a 30-12 first-half deficit to 49-46 midway through the second half. Then South Florida's Mike Dickerson scored all but one basket in an 11-0 streak to put the game away for the Bradmans and give them their 10th win in 14 games.

Another apparent reason for Kraft's displeasure was evident in the statistics. Rhode Island was whittled for 10 more fouls in the game and in the first half shot five free throws compared to South Florida's 17.

Stags winners

FAIRFIELD (UPI) — The Fairfield Stags, paced by Joe DeSantis with 29 points and Danny Odum with 20 points, came from behind to beat Stonehill, 89-74, Wednesday night.

The Stags trailed by 11 points with 15 minutes left in the second half, 91-80, but went on to score 38 points in the last 10 minutes.

The Stags took the lead for the first time, 70-68, on a 20-foot jump shot by DeSantis, who scored 18 of his points in the second half.

New Orleans best Joe Greene says

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — All-Pro defensive tackle Joe Greene of the Pittsburgh Steelers is happy to be in the Super Bowl again this year. He just wishes it was in New Orleans instead of Miami.

"Miami is too blue," said Greene prior to the Steelers' daily workout Wednesday. "This is where the blueblonds come to have fun, not the average person like me."

"New Orleans is the only place to have a Super Bowl," he said. "It was in New Orleans last year the Steelers upset Minnesota 16-4 in Super Bowl IX. 'It has atmosphere—it's close together and compact.'"

Greene will split his playing with Steve Furness against the Dallas Cowboys said Coach Chuck Noll. Furness started in Greene's place on pro football's most feared front four when Greene went to the bench at mid-season with a pulled groin muscle and a pinched nerve in his neck.

Bank seeks okays for Ashford branch

The Savings Bank of Manchester, now operating 11 offices in five towns, has filed applications with state and federal agencies to establish a branch office in Ashford.

The bank has filed applications with the State Banking Department and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and expects action on the applications next month, said Thomas Matrick, SBM assistant vice president.

Matrick said the bank has been studying the Ashford area for about three years and the town's population has now reached a level where SBM thinks it warrants banking facilities.

The nearest banking facilities are in Mansfield and Willimantic, Matrick said.

If SBM's applications are approved, opening of a small branch office, with a drive-in window, is planned for early spring. The proposed location is at the junction of Rts. 44 and 44A.

SBM's last application for a new branch, in South Glastonbury, was rejected by the State Banking Department last year.

SBM now operates offices in Manchester, East Hartford, South Windsor, Bolton and Andover.

Saves power costs

Powerside valve, key to a new line of industrial air compressors, is positioned in rotor housing at the West Hartford plant of Dunham-Bush, a subsidiary of The Signal Cos. Inc. Company engineers say the breakthrough can save 20 per cent in power costs because the valve meters air to be compressed. Conventional screw compressors have a steady output. (UPI photo)

Herald plans drawings for Home Lines cruise

The Manchester Evening Herald — along with LaBonne Travel, Home Lines Agency and Manchester area merchants — is conducting drawings through mid-February for a vacation cruise for two persons.

The contest, which started Tuesday, involves weekly drawings at 19 participating stores and a final, grand prize drawing Feb. 24.

The prize is a seven-day cruise for two aboard one of the Home Lines' luxury cruisers: The s.s. Doric or the s.s. Oceanic. The cruise may be taken from April through June; the ships leave New York each Saturday.

The cruise, arranged by LaBonne Travel, features superior cabin accommodations, four meals daily, nightly entertainment, recreational activities, cocktail parties, and special programs and contests.

The grand prize winner can pick the s.s. Doric for a cruise to Hamilton, Bermuda, or the s.s. Oceanic for a cruise to Nassau, The Bahamas. While in port, the cruise ship serves as the winner's hotel.

At 11 a.m., advertising director of The Herald, outlined the contest rules: "Vacation Cruise" coupons will appear in The Herald each Tuesday and Thursday through Feb. 19. You may enter as often as you wish but entrants must be at least 18 years old.

Coupons must be deposited at one of the 19 participating merchants, and the coupons will be gathered each Thursday afternoon for a weekly drawing.

Two winners will be selected from each store each week, and the weekly winners will be eligible for the Feb. 24 final drawing. Names of the weekly winners will be published by The Herald.

Participating merchants in the contest are Agway Inc., Country Loft, Minit Auto Care, The Craft & Hobby Center, Nassiff Arms Co., Mari-Mad's, Consumer Sales, Living Room Interiors, B.D. Pearl & Son, Regal Men's Shop, 20th Century TV, Wholesale Tire, Optical Style Bar Inc., Manchester Motor Sales, House & Hale, Shoor Jewelers, Vittner's Garden Center, Frank's Supermarket, and King's Department Store.

Good time to buy

If you're thinking about buying a house, the Connecticut Association of Realtors says it might be a good idea to do it in the first three months of 1976.

Realtors say the housing industry is dependent on the mortgage market, and they expect home financing funds will have competition from business and industry in the spring and summer.

Connecticut's housing recovery will probably continue to be led by resale of existing homes, the association said, and new construction will probably remain sluggish in 1976.

Priorities set for data processing

A fully automated personnel system, a comprehensive budget and accounting system, an assessment and collection system, and a student record system are the top priorities for use of Manchester's data processing services.

The priorities were established in the first phase of a town-school study of how to make better use of the town's computers. A 117-page report by the Information Systems Planning Team was released this week.

Completion of Phase I, which started last September, provides background material for Phase II of the study — detailed recommendations on how to meet the needs — which will be done by April. Phase III of the program, not yet scheduled, will implement the priorities.

Both town and school administrators were involved in the Phase I study and agreed that the top two priorities for both agencies were personnel and budget-accounting systems.

"They differed on the third priority, which in the final recommendation included both the town's assessment-collection system and the school's student record system.

A fully automated personnel system include availability of accurate information for contract negotiations, improved personnel selection, and increased efficiency and confidence in personnel and labor management.

Benefits of a comprehensive finance and accounting system include availability of better financial reports, better information about capital improvement projects, and better revenue and expenditure forecasting, the report said.

The assessment and collection system would allow better access to tax, water and sewer payment records, faster transfer of funds for investment, and more equity in the tax system and more taxpayer confidence in the system, the report said.

The student record system would improve teacher effectiveness, improve program and staff evaluation, and improve services, the report said.

Copies of the report were distributed to members of the Board of Directors Tuesday night. A brief discussion among directors indicated they are concerned that the Phase II report may recommend expansions which will involve expenditures to be considered late in the budget-making schedule for the next fiscal year.

The remarks showed that most of the directors are not enthusiastic about such an expansion.

The existing data processing system provides services for payroll, personnel, accounts payable, tax assessment-collections, water-sewer billing, student information reports and student scheduling, but the report said there have been many problems with the services.

The problem areas, according to the report, dealt with accuracy of information, the timeliness of reports, the format of data provided, the availability of information, or the lack of information.

At one point early in Phase I of the study, officials considered shutdown of the existing system and contracting with a private firm for data processing services.

That proposal was ruled out, however, when the study group found that buying data processing services would be too costly and might not meet future needs of the town.

Excess capacity in the existing system had been used by selling data processing services to other communities, but demand for the services has declined, the report said. So the study group decided it would be wiser to improve services to the town and schools instead of selling more services.

Data processing services began in Manchester when the school system established a system at Bannet Junior High School in 1964. In 1969, the data processing service was reorganized as a town department to serve town government, the schools,

HARTFORD (UPI) — A man accused in an alleged plot to rob a Hartford bank using a machine gun, hand grenades and pistols, has pleaded innocent to two charges but declined to plead to charges of murder, arson and threatening.

Richard J. Smith, 44, of Hartford, sometimes called "Soapstone Smitty," appeared in Common Pleas Court Wednesday before Judge William S. Ewing Jr., who continued proceedings until Jan. 27. Smith was held on $100,000 bond.

Smith was arrested Jan. 6, the day the robbery was committed. He was turned in to police by an alleged accomplice.

Police said when they arrested Smith he was trying to push another man out a third floor window at the Hartford Hotel. He was charged with assault and conspiracy to commit robbery, along with the other three charges.

The arson and murder charges stemmed from the death Jan. 5 of Orell Watkins, 32. Police said Smith strangled Watkins with his own belt and tried to gouge out his eyes.

When Watkins pleaded for mercy, police said, Smith set fire to a mattress in the room at the Royal Hotel, where they fought.

Police also said that the night of Jan. 4, Smith threatened to knife his accomplice, who, unknown to Smith, had already informed on him. The informer has not been publicly identified.

The informer first went to newsmen Tom Seem of station WFSB-TV. Seem eventually persuaded the informer to go to police, leading to Smith's arrest.

VFW voices objection to anthem substitution

HARTFORD (UPI) — "America, the Beautiful," according to the Connecticut Veterans of Foreign Wars, when it's substituted for the "Star Spangled Banner."

The VFW has taken umbrage at the playing of "America, the Beautiful," composed by Samuel A. Ward and Katherine Lee Bates — instead of Francis Scott Key's "Star Spangled Banner" — at some Hartford Civic Center hockey games of the New England Whalers.

"If anyone believes the song 'America, the Beautiful,' should be the national anthem, he, or she, has a perfect right to express such an opinion," Warren B. Wilson, state VFW commander, said Wednesday.

However, Wilson said if any song is substituted for the national anthem, the Civic Center audience should refuse "to allow any function to begin until proper respect has been paid to our national anthem."

HARTFORD (UPI) — A political violence costing five lives in Kingston last week prompted hundreds of tourist cancellations to Montego Bay, on the opposite side of the island, jeopardizing the Jamaican national economy.

If reports of violence in New York City had had such drastic repercussions, the city might have reached the brink of bankruptcy years ago.

Kingston, like New York, is a violent city. Come of the inhabitants of Caribbean tourist spots, like Americans, are violent peoples.

And like the United States, the governments of these islands are trying to solve the complex problem of a growing inclination among their populace to take out their frustrations by assaulting one another.

Prime Minister Michael Manley has banned public demonstrations in Kingston and is planning life sentences for illegal gun holders.

The Puerto Rican police have established special patrols in crime-prone sectors of San Juan. The Virgin Islands police force has been strengthened. Dominican authorities have rounded up members of the murderous "Dread" underground.

The measures are familiar to Americans.

What is not familiar is that, when word of Caribbean violence gets to the United States, the stakes are enormous. All these nations are dependent on vacationers for a large chunk of their national income; in some cases, tourism is the only major industry.

No charges were filed against anyone in the leasing probe but a legislative committee recommended reform laws to bar future abuses.

Gunther says Weicker belongs on 'back burner'

BRIDGEPORT (UPI) — A Republican state lawmaker said today he would like to see his party put Sen. Lowell F. Weicker, R-Conn., "on the back burner."

Sen. George R. Gunther, R-Stratford, who said Weicker's "ego took off on the Watergate matter," said he would not support the senator who announced Tuesday that he will seek re-election.

"I'd like to see some good Republican challenge the great white knight to a primary," Gunther said in an interview with radio station WNAB.

Gunther clashed bitterly with Weicker last year over the senator's strong campaign to have Republican

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband has had a lot of back surgery, which required several long stays in the hospital. While there, a couple we were friendly with sent him get-well cards regularly, which we both appreciated, but all their cards had the same theme: "The male patient was looking around with his nurses." After my husband came home, this couple visited him, and their conversation was full of teasing about the nurses giving him massages, backrubs and baths. I was even asked point blank if I wasn't afraid my husband would run off with a pretty young nurse. Whenever we are with this couple now, they get back on the pretty young nurse subject until I am sick of hearing it. Perhaps because I am neither young nor pretty and have such a meager quotient of self-esteem, I'm depressed for days about these remarks, especially when they are made in the presence of others, which is often the case. My husband never stands up for me, which may indicate that he enjoys the talk. What can I do to put an end to this? I've tried to avoid being with this couple, but I can't do that forever.

HURT

DEAR HURT: Bring your feelings out in the open and tell them exactly what you've told me. After that they would be glad "I" you in that vein again.

DEAR ABBY: This problem has me upset. My husband and I must attend a course one evening a week, and we have one child who is deaf. A young woman who lives in our apartment building has two small children, and she is willing to babysit for us, but she refuses to take any money. Her husband is unemployed, and I know they could use the money, but I gave her a check once, and she tore it up. Things would be okay if I could sit with her kids in return, but they can't afford to go any place. I threatened to find another sitter, but she looked so hurt. Should I accept it as a blessing in disguise? Any suggestions will be appreciated.

BELWILDERED

DEAR BE: Put a ribbon on a basket and fill it with fresh fruit, canned foods and other goodies, and present it to your generous, hard-to-repay neighbor.

DEAR ABBY: In a column, some time ago, you said that some airlines offered a course designed to help persons overcome their fear of flying. I have a daughter-in-law who is terrified of flying, so I immediately telephoned American Airlines, TWA and United, and none of these airlines could help me. Where do I go from here?

NEEDS HELP IN L.A.

DEAR NEEDS: My researchers advise me that such programs did at one time exist, but they seem to have disappeared into thin air. However, if someone out there knows of a course available in the Los Angeles area, please let me know.

In the meantime, phobias are best treated by psychologists and psychiatrists.
