Carter wins handily on Democrat side

Ford edges Reagan in New Hampshire

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — President Ford narrowly defeated Ronald Reagan early today and Jimmy Carter whipped four other Democrats in a New Hampshire primary that gave no one an open road to the 1976 presidential nominations.

The Republican contest was the closest in the primary's history and looked for some time like a replay of the state's no-decision 1974 Senate election. But Ford finally seized and held a small lead in the final hours of unofficial vote-counting today. Carter led from the start and now becomes the man to catch in the crowded Democratic race.

Ford nearly swept the boards in separate balloting for selection of 21 national convention delegates, but he scored no knockout over the former California governor, his only challenger. More likely, it was only the first skirmish of the grimmest battle for the GOP presidential nomination since the Taft-Eisenhower struggle of 1952.

Carter, the former Georgia governor who pledged to wage war on Washington red tape and bureaucratic waste, opened a wide early lead and whipped runner-up Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma and Sargent Shriver, the party's 1972 vice presidential candidate.

On the Democratic side, with 97 per cent, Carter had 30 per cent with 22,806; Udall 24 per cent and 18,309; Bayh 16 per cent and 12,374; Harris 11 per cent and 8,691, and Shriver 9 per cent and 6,547.

Leading a handful of Democratic write-in efforts, an unauthorized campaign for Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., got 5 per cent with 3,999 votes.

Carter, to chants of "We're No. 1, we're No. 1" said, "I believe when we get to the convention in July — after a lot of hard work — it's going to be a very quick decision. I think (I'll win) on the first ballot."

In separate balloting for national convention delegates in America's Bicentennial presidential year, the indicated results with three-quarters of the votes counted were 19 for Ford and 2 for Reagan; 13 for Carter and four for Udall.

With 97 per cent of the vote counted, the Republican tally was Ford 54,645-51 per cent; Reagan 53,438-49 per cent.

Carter got four delegates at the Mississippi state Democratic convention last weekend, for a total of 17 to date. Gov. George Wallace got nine and Shriver three at that same convention. No other GOP national convention delegates have been chosen.

The Democratic results made Carter the frontrunner for at least the next week and probably speeded the process of winnowing the field of nine announced major candidates. But the real shakeout awaits future primaries — notably Massachusetts, Florida and Illinois in the next three weeks and New York in the first week of April when major contenders such as Wallace and Jackson will be in action.

Before Ford took the lead briefly after midnight, Reagan told supporters "We came here believing that if we could achieve 40 per cent of the votes, it would make us a viable candidate. If it continues the way it is, we of course have far exceeded our expectations."

Ford went to bed without issuing a statement. But Stuart Spencer, one of his campaign aides, said publicly about the Nixon China trip had hurt Ford. "If President Ford loses in New Hampshire, Richard Nixon will be the reason."

For the Republicans, the battle looks long and hard, perhaps rivaling the 1952 struggle between Dwight Eisenhower and Sen. Robert Taft that went all the way to the GOP national convention.

Flu epidemic may have peaked

Convalescent home eases visiting rule

Effective Thursday, visiting restrictions at Crestfield Convalescent Home, 565 Vernon St., will be modified. For a while, there were no visitors allowed because of the flu-like epidemic in the area.

Only members of the immediate family will be permitted one at a time to visit a patient.

Those visitors are to check in at the nursing station inside the main door. It will be the only entrance open to visitors.

Francis Dellafera, director of Crestfield, said people with any sign of a cold or respiratory ailment are still requested to stay away.

Visitors permitted will be required to wear a surgical mask provided by the staff.

At Manchester Memorial Hospital, visiting restrictions will remain in effect for another week or so, a spokesman said.

Several school nurses think the epidemic has reached its peak. Absenteeism in schools is still high, but the nurses aren't sending home as many children as they did before last week's school vacation.

Marijuana laws invalid; state plans an appeal

NEW HAVEN (UPI) — New Haven State's Attorney Arnold Markle says the court decision striking down Connecticut's marijuana laws will be appealed.

Superior Court Judge Robert I. Berdon ruled Tuesday that the 1974 state statute classifying marijuana in the same category with two "far more dangerous drugs," barbiturates and amphetamines, is unconstitutional.

"This is the first time a Connecticut court has held with this view," said attorney John R. Williams of New Haven who argued the case. He said marijuana laws have also been struck down in Michigan and Illinois. Williams, who represented a Hamden man charged with possession of marijuana with intent to sell, said the defense rested heavily on medical testimony showing marijuana to be a relatively harmless drug.

In a 50-page opinion, Berdon said persons convicted of intent to sell marijuana, amphetamines or barbiturates face the same maximum penalty and that violates the equal protection clause of the state and federal constitutions.

The maximum penalty for a first offense is a seven-year prison term or a $1,000 fine or both. A second-time offender faces 15 years in prison or a $5,000 fine.

Fire fighters honored

The awards, given by the tool's manufacturer, Hurst Performance Inc. of Warnister, Pa., cite the men for their use of the tool in a life-saving action last May. The other recipients were (left to right) Deputy Chief William Stratton, Fire Fighters Philip Morriss-tie, Thomas Raimondo, Albert Constantino, Peter Beckwith, William Whitaker, Richard Skoglund, Robert Bycholski, Raymond Finnegan, and Walter Scadden. Kevin Connolly, not in the picture, also received the award. Another award given by the company cited the men for completing three hours of training with the rescue tool. (Herald photo by Pinto)

GOPl leader urges businessmen to get involved in politics

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

"Get involved," was the message to Manchester businessmen Tuesday night by the minority leader of the Connecticut House of Representatives.

"Or, to put it more strongly," said State Rep. Gerald Stevens, R-Milford, to about 45 members of the Manchester Rotary Club, "get into politics or you'll find you might have to get out of business."

Stevens, a five-term legislator who was House majority leader when the Republicans were in control in 1973-74, said, "There's a great lack of input from the business community into the General Assembly, and that's not good for the state as a whole."

He said the current session of the General Assembly "is shaping up as one of the most difficult sessions in my 10 years in the legislature, yet, more often than not, no one speaks for the taxpayer and no one speaks for the business community."

He said the state is in a worse financial bind now than even in 1975, "when money earmarked for pension funds were used to make up a budget deficit." He said, as a result, the state's credit rating dropped from Triple A to Double A.

Criticizing the Connecticut Business and Industry Association (CIBA) for endorsing Gov. Ella Grasso's recommended budget for 1976-77, Stevens urged his listeners to "pick up the phone and, as responsible businessmen, ask the CIBA what it's doing and point out that the governor's budget is utilizing a false accounting system."

He said, "A proposal by Gov.

Grasso for utilizing $90 million in non-existent revenue — by proposing 13 months of income for 12 months of expenditures — would put us one more step down the road to where New York City now is. Yet, the CIBA is endorsing the proposal and newspapers across the state are backing it.

"That's just not the way to do business, yet, the business community, which should be concerned the most, isn't saying anything. By business community, I mean the ordinary businessman who finds himself suffering the most every time shortsighted taxing proposals are imposed."

Said Stevens, "When I suggest you get involved, I don't mean involvement only when the legislature is in session. I mean during the off-season also and especially at election time. Businessmen, including their

Project Concern pact gets board approval

By JUDY KUEHNEL
Herald Correspondent

In a 6-2 vote Tuesday night, the South Windsor Board of Education extended and expanded Project Concern, ending weeks of heated debate.

The board agreed to a three-year contract, as well as accepted School Supt. Robert Goldman's recommendation that the number of inner-city children attending schools here be increased from 37 to 49.

Republican board member Joan Cushman, who along with Republican William Neal sought to delay vote on the issue until June, read a 12-page statement questioning the value of the program.

Mrs. Cushman prefaced her remarks by declaring, "I must admit I feel more than a bit annoyed by having to declare myself not a bigot in order to ask questions about a highly sensitive and emotionally charged issue."

Both Mrs. Cushman and Neal wanted the vote delayed until the results of a study determining academic achievement of Project Concern children is completed in June.

Board member Jack Giordano, Democrat, however explained that academic achievement is not the only scale by which the value of the program should be weighed.

For over two hours, the board fielded questions from the audience. When the final vote was taken, Republican Frank Devney joined five Democrats to vote in favor of a contract with the City of Hartford for three years. Republican Fred DeGiacomo was absent.

Proponents of the program argued that without Project Concern, a regional education program and possibly reverse busing, as in Boston, will result.

Dr. Goldman, defending his recommendation, said the board's commitment to Project Concern would be in its own best interest.

"This is necessary to 'continue local control of education. This board would not exist as a board if a regional board of education was created," he said.

What's in a number?

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

Have you ever wondered which colors and which numbers come up winners the most times in the Connecticut State Lottery? Well, we have and we've taken the time to check out the 52 winners in the 52 weeks of 1975.

So, for what it's worth, here they are:

The top winning color was YELLOW — showing up 16 times in the 52 weeks. RED, with 13 winners, was next, followed by ORANGE, with 12, then GREEN, with 11.

Now for the numbers — taking the two-digit number first.

Believe it or not, 0 was the winner, showing up 18 times. Next was 4, a winner 14 times; followed by 3 and 6, winners 13 times; then numbers 1 and 7 and 8, tied with 10 each. Tied at 5 each were numbers 2 and 5 and 9.

Double number 33 showed up 3 times; 00 showed 2 times; and 11 and 44 and 77 showed up once each.

Taking the three-digit numbers next, numbers 3 and 4 and 5 were the top winners — 18 times each. Numbers 1 and 2 and 0 tied at 15 each and number 6 showed up 14 times. Numbers 7 and 8 tied at 13 each and number 9 trailed them all with 9 times a winner.

Only once was there a triple digit winner of the same number. It was 444.

So, there you are. If you can figure out a system from this information, more power to you.

They say more gamblers went broke systematically than you can shake a losing ticket at.

He said, "Those are political animals up there in the State Capitol and they respond to the voices and concerns of their constituents. There's an election coming up in November — it's a fact of life — we're aiming for what's good in the long-term for the State of Connecticut, and not just for Republicans or Democrats."

He said, "In my opinion, we have only two options for fiscal 1977-78 — either increase taxes or reduce the level of spending. The only other alternative is gimmickry, such as the governor is proposing."

Acknowledging it isn't the most popular course, Stevens said he personally backs a reduction in state spending. "It would mean, among other things, cutting grants to the communities. That, in turn, would place the problem on the shoulders of that?"

Returning to the immediate fiscal problems of the state, Stevens said, "The decisions we'll be making in the legislature won't be popular. We can only hope that the facts get out and that people understand that what we're aiming for is what's good in the long-term for the State of Connecticut, and not just for Republicans or Democrats."

the municipalities — and that's certainly not very popular.

"The question is, where do you put your dollars when those dollars are few and far between? We must establish priorities and identify the areas to be cut, however painful it is. We just don't have the money to give everything to all programs, however vital they are."

Stevens was introduced Tuesday night by former Manchester State Rep. Donald Groves, who served three terms with Stevens and who was an assistant majority leader in 1973-74.

Stevens, who is being mentioned as a potential Republican candidate for governor in 1978, said when he was introduced, "I have the best of two worlds tonight. I get to make a political speech and I'm able to make up a meeting as a Rotary Club member."

Scranton named to U.N. post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today announced the appointment of former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton to be U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Ford, who personally made the announcement, said Scranton has a "big job to do" in defending the United States "against unfair attacks" in the world organization.

Scranton, 58, will succeed outgoing U.N. Ambassador Daniel P.

Moynihan who was expected to attend the ceremonial appointment in the Oval Office but had to bow out in order to chair a U.N. Security Council meeting today.

Ford stood beside Scranton and told reporters, "Let me say how pleased I am that my longtime friend Bill Scranton is going to be the next ambassador to the United Nations."

"He is a personal friend and a friend in many, many other ways," he added.

He said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had been trying to get Scranton to take a U.N. Security Council meeting today.

"He's got a big job to do and great responsibility," said Ford.

He said Scranton would be carrying out a policy started by Kissinger in a speech at the United Nations last fall of standing up for the United States against unfair attacks "by the Third World countries."

"You have a big job to do in carrying out my decisions and the secretary's policies," Ford said, adding he was "very, very confident" that Scranton would perform well.

Scranton's appointment had been expected to be announced last week but was held up by Kissinger who wanted to be present.

Eighth District clerk election Monday

The Eighth District board of directors is voting today to elect a clerk for the district on Monday.

The election is for the unexpired term to July 15, vacated last October when long-time clerk Joseph Voz resigned because of poor health. District Director John Flynn has been serving as acting clerk. The part-time position pays $1,700 a year and is filled annually.

Announced candidates are Edward M. Fitzgerald, 225 Main St.; Elwood A. Lechasse, 64 Tanner St.; and David L. Thompson, 117 Buckland St. All nominations will be from the floor and voting will be by paper ballots.

Director Patrick Brown said today, "The directors feel that the individual who will be elected should be dedicated to the best interests of all the district. They feel strongly that the position is extremely important and will require a responsible person."

"The board urges all electors of the district to turn out and vote, so that the election will be representative of the feeling of the whole district as possible."

Explaining that those eligible to cast ballots Monday must be registered voters in the Town of Manchester and residents of the district for at least three months, Brown said District Counsel John LaBelle has advised that residents of the disputed Buckland area now are considered district residents and will be eligible to vote Monday night.

He said, "The directors feel that the Nov. 17 referendum was a mandate that Buckland is an integral part of the district and the election of a clerk was postponed for three months to permit them to meet the three-month residency requirement. The requirement has been met and, provided they are registered voters in the town, they now are eligible votes."

Governor couldn't afford D. C. trip

HARTFORD (UPI) — The nation's only woman governor says she did not travel to Washington D.C. this week for the National Governors Conference because she couldn't afford the trip.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso, the head of a financially beleaguered state, said Tuesday she adopted a policy last year of paying her own way on trips like that even when she is conducting official business. She said she did not attend the mid-winter gathering because "I couldn't afford it."

One rotten apple doesn't spoil the barrel

For the anti-business element in our society, the continuing revelations about bridges and kick-backs made to foreign officials by Lockheed and a few other major U.S. businesses has been a boost for their efforts to discredit free enterprise and capitalism.

By moralizing and finger-pointing these critics have all but written off modern business in favor of socialism or some other forms of government ownership. Of course, no one can defend the actions of Lockheed and other guilty firms in the context of accepted Christian and Judaic ethical codes. And those attempts to rationalize these acts as necessary for competitive reasons strike us as being akin to the communist dogma that the end justifies the means.

terfere in the internal affairs of foreign countries. We in Manchester know that we have some youngsters who create serious problems in our town; we also know that the overwhelming majority of our young people (and other older citizens as well) are honest, hardworking, and obey the law.

The same is true of our nation's businesses. True there are those like Lockheed who have stepped over the bounds of legitimate activity in world commerce and these should be punished wherever and whenever the law has been broken.

But let us be fair and not tar the whole business community with the brush of guilt because of the actions of relatively small minority.

Lawyer, defend thyself

Doctors, as everyone who reads the newspapers knows, have become the favorite targets of malpractice suits. The resulting skyrocketing of medical malpractice insurance has reached the proportions of a national crisis.

But now lawyers, who have had something to do with making Americans possibly the most lawsuit-prone people in the world, are experiencing a "quiet crisis" of their own, reports the Wall Street Journal.

It is a quiet crisis because legal malpractice is still pretty much swaddled in secrecy, with few cases ever seeing the light of a courtroom. Most are discreetly settled by insurers.

Today, however, people are using their attorneys almost twice as often as they were only a few years ago, and the cost of settlement has also roughly doubled. Like the doctors, the lawyers are beginning to worry that insurers may be driven out of the legal malpractice market altogether.

Reasons for this development, besides an apparent decline in public esteem for or awe of professionals in general, include the fact that recent court rulings have weakened some of the obstacles to legal malpractice suits.

Courts have ruled, for example, that the statute of limitations on legal malpractice starts from the time the malpractice is discovered by the client. Thus an attorney who, say, botched a will or contract through an error 20 years ago can be sued, even as a surgeon who left a sponge inside a patient's abdomen can be held accountable long after the event.

Lawyers should file the above under "H" — for hoist with their own petard.

The great American dreams?

A few weeks ago we told you of a woman who wanted some advice about dreams — how to keep from having them. Dreams, she said, are weird and for the birds. All they do, she insisted, is to wake her up — scared stiff — and tire her out. Well! Can you imagine what life would be like without our dreams — including the great American dream of a job, food and lodging for everyone who wants them, plus Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness, not to mention Peace for all Mankind?

We believe everyone is entitled to dream, including the near-sighted and sickly youth we heard about who dreamt he was the world's best sharp-shooter.

Night after night, he had the same dream — that he was on the firing range, winning medal after medal for his bull's eyes.

One night, he dreamt the country's top general was inspecting his targets and marveling at his unbelievable skill.

"Who is this astonishing marksman?" asked the general. "Just look at those bull's eyes," was the reply.

"I don't care who or what he is," shot back the general. "Any man who can shoot that well deserves..."

"But you don't understand," came the interruption. "You see, he shoots first, then he draws the circle."

Once in a restaurant, a waiter thought he was dreaming when he saw a customer whispering to a lake trout on his plate.

"What are you doing?" asked the waiter.

"I'm talking to the fish," replied the customer. "I asked him where he's from and he said he's from Newfoundland. I asked him how things are in Newfoundland."

"So, what did he say?" asked the skeptical waiter.

"He said, 'How should I know. It's been years since I've been there.'"

Two policemen in San Francisco thought they were dreaming last week when they saw several youngsters pushing a vehicle down Market St. in the dead of night.

They gave chase and the youngsters scattered. The vehicle was a helicopter.

The one-man chopper was towed to the police station to await being claimed by its owner.

Again in San Francisco, a guard on an armored truck realized the dream of a lifetime. He disappeared with $500,000 accumulated in pickups and stuffed into an empty champagne case.

He had his driver wait while he presumably dropped off the case of champagne to a restaurant — as a supposed favor for a friend.

He went in the front door and out the back, carrying the case of money with him. His car was found nearby with the message scrawled on it, "Look at me — I'm rich."

Members of a West German health insurance company thought they were dreaming when the company said in its newsletter a glass of schnapps is good for them if they feel a cold coming on.

That, a lot of lime blossoms and two ordinary cold tablets would help them sweat out the cold, they were told.

The dream was shattered by the company's announcement that the cost of the schnapps isn't covered by insurance.

We can't let Tuesday's New Hampshire primary pass without quoting these anonymous words that came to us as in a dream. "Some folks get elected because they are well-known... others are defeated for the same reason."

Food stamp program a horrible mess

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — Ancient Rome must have been something like this just before its fall. I can imagine the average Roman throwing down his Latin Times in disgust and bellowing at his wife that everybody in the country was a crook and for two pieces of silver he'd blow town and discover America —

Talk about scandals. Merely compiling a summary of the past decade's corruption would strain the facilities of the Encyclopedia Britannica. In and out of government, we've produced enough thieves and twisters to create an over population problem in the Sahara Desert.

You can bet tomorrow will bring another shocker, but at this writing the latest expose of infamy concerns the food stamp program — a $3.8-billion a year effort which long ago gave government charity a bad name.

Now the Agriculture Department reports $8.7-million in food stamp receipts are missing, and suspected of being stolen. The receipts are money collected by assorted food stamp vendors across the U.S. — dough that is supposed to be deposited in the Federal Reserve System within 24 hours, under federal regulations.

In addition, Agriculture Department investigators have located some 1,100 vendors — many of them banks — guilty of "lapping" millions of dollars more. Lapping is the cute practice of holding onto food stamp sales receipts for weeks and even months instead of turning over daily to the Federal Reserve banks. Some of the vendors are believed to have used the receipts to pay operating expenses or make loans.

An example of this practice is alleged against St. Phillip's Pentecostal Church in Washington, which was said to owe Uncle Sam a whopping $99,000. A Washington furniture company owes $200,000. Both stamp vendors are located in the city's mostly black ghetto.

Of the country's 14,119 food stamp outlets, 7,300 are banks, 3,700 are government agencies, 1,200 are post offices, and 986 are listed as "miscellaneous," meaning mostly churches, stores and credit unions that are eligible to receive any stamps at all. That's your tax money, Mrs. Balderdash. Just try not to think about it when you fill out that Internal Revenue form due April 15.

Meanwhile, what I thirst for is government action against those private businesses and institutions found guilty of willfully withholding food stamp receipts, for whatever reason. None of them can cop the plea of the petty street crook that he didn't know any better. All were apprised of the rules and proceeded to break them. Hauling them off to jail would be the most effective medicine for the nation's epidemic of white collar crime.

Parent praises Dr. John Malone

To the editor,
Our three children were under the medical jurisdiction of Dr. John Malone throughout their childhood. Dr. Malone proved to be most competent, most conscientious, and was thoroughly concerned for their well being. My wife and I considered ourselves most fortunate to be living in the town in which Dr. Malone practiced because the service which he rendered to us was invaluable.

We appreciated the fact that Dr. Malone told us whenever he was concerned about one of our children and I advised him. He explained that he went to bed each night with twenty-five heartaches and that it helped to share one of them with parents who preferred to be told.

I well recall another occasion when our oldest daughter awoke about 3 a.m. with an abdominal pain. We were reluctant to phone the doctor at that hour. Since we were then neighbors, we watched from our picture window and called as soon as a light went on in the Malone bathroom. Dr. Malone blasted me on the phone for waiting so long and came running to our house unshaven still spluttering at us for permitting an abdominal pain to go on for four hours without contacting him. We did not hesitate to sue such matters thereafter.

I had planned that when our youngest child reached post-pediatrician age, I would write a letter to the editor of The Herald publicly thanking Dr. Malone for a job exceptionally well done. I did not get around to writing that letter. When I heard that Dr. Malone had suffered some sort of heart attack, I immediately decided to visit him in the hospital as soon as he was out of the intensive care unit, just as he had visited me on two occasions when I was a patient in the surgical wing of the hospital. I did not make that visit nor did I send a "Get Well" card, which was my alternate intention.

Finally, it was Dr. Malone's own splendid letter in The Herald which stirred me out of my inertia and brought me back to my original intention.

It came to mind that a program of this nature should be implemented into the Manchester high schools. The benefit to the students would be to prepare them in emergency situations. Keeping a cool head, acting with speed and confidence, could invariably save a life. Our thanks goes to the Manchester Fire Department for the fine presentation and also for keeping so up to date with today's new procedures.

Sincerely,

Today's thought

We are all inclined to be impatient. We want what we want when we want it, and that is usually now. We are not prone to wait. We can't see the value of it or any point to it. But whether we recognize it or not, time is a great boon to mankind. It helps heal the wounds of sorrow; it is needed in all growth; it can clarify our thinking and rightly direct our action.

All of us have faced a problem that seemed insurmountable. No matter how hard we tried we couldn't find the right set of answers. We may have lost a lot of sleep over it. We saw no solution. We just wait. After waiting a while, the pieces began to fit together. Light came out of darkness. New ideas came to us and the problem was solved.

Waiting, however, takes a basic faith in God. If we don't have that we simply work ourselves into such a state of mind that no rational thought is possible. One of the most valuable words of Scripture is found in Psalm 37:7. "Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for Him."

Conditional approval asked for health service agencies

Gov. Ella Grasso has asked the federal government to give "conditional approval" to Connecticut's five Health Service Agencies including the North Central Area Health Service Agency which involves Manchester and several area towns.

The governor told each of the agencies they must meet strict conditions on public access and participation to receive final approval a year from now.

Mrs. Grasso's request for approval was contained in a letter to the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) which will administer federal funding of Health Service Agencies under the National Health Planning Law (P.L. 93-641).

Gov. Grasso recommended that each HSA minimize the "perpetuation" of old, existing health planning units. She also cited assurance of low-income and minority representation.

The governor said that prior to final approval by the federal government, each HSA must notify the HEW that the membership selection process for the 30-member boards which will operate the HSAs in each region, insures broad consumer presentation on the HSA board.

The National Health Planning Act has mandated a reorganization of health systems planning units in Connecticut. The state established a five-region system several months ago with an HSA in each region coordinated by the state health department and the soon-to-be-established Statewide Health Coordinating Council.

Gov. Grasso's recommendations for the North Central HSA's interim board is to give careful and serious consideration to the development of a revised member selection process for the 11 "at-large" directors.

PTA council backs $14.1 million budget

The executive board of Manchester's Parent-Teacher Association Council has endorsed the Board of Education's budget request of $14,590,083 for 1976-1977.

The board decided to support the budget plan after a study of the spending proposals by the PTA Council's budget review committee.

The executive board will present its recommendation for support to the entire PTA Council Thursday night.

The PTA Council's budget review committee, headed by Patrick Brown of 91 Washington St. and Charles Bruder of 37 Holt St., met with school administrators several times before the Board of Education adopted its budget request.

Several of the budget review committee's suggestions — including a shuffling of improvement priorities — were incorporated into the budget request when it was adopted by the Board of Education earlier this month.

Thursday's PTA Council meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Nathan Hale School. Brown and Bruder urged all representatives to attend.

The Board of Education's proposed budget is now being reviewed by Town Manager Robert Weiss.

Weiss and the town Board of Directors, which will decide the final education appropriation, are to discuss the budget with the Board of Education in an informal meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the school board room, 45 N. School St.

Giants were once glamorous team

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — When National League owners announced they had approved sale of the San Francisco Giants to a combine headed by Bob Lurie, it brought to an end Steneham family ownership in a franchise that produced 10 championships in 57 years and once was baseball's most glamorous team.

It was in 1919 that Charles A. Steneham purchased controlling interest in the Giants—then based in New York—and made them the best team in the National League in the 20s under John J. McGraw.

It wasn't until Bobby Thomson hit his dramatic homer in the ninth inning of the final playoff game against the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1951 that the Giants were then manager Leo Durocher was then manager

Feeney said the conditions were not financial and consisted only of "things which can be written down on papers" to satisfy the league requirements.

The new owners were given until next Monday to meet the conditions, and Feeney said he "had no doubt" they would be able to comply.

A possible stumbling block to completion of the documents by Monday was the fact that Short, a former owner of the Texas Rangers, was injured seriously in a fall last Thursday and is hospitalized under heavy sedation.

Two platoon system
After the Alumni defeat, Clarke regrouped his talented squad, and featuring a two platoon system, saw them brush aside the next 14 foes before Coach Tom Monahan's Bristol High snapped the streak in a 40-30 win.

Randy Smith 'out front'

Sports briefs

NEW YORK (UPI) — On the court or off, Buffalo Braves guard Randy Smith is always 'out front.'

"I know I'm the fastest player in the NBA," said Smith, who was out front on the fast break often enough to match teammate Bob McAdoo's 34 points in a 109-103 victory over the New York Knicks Tuesday night.

"I also believe I'm the fastest with or without the ball," said the candid Smith. "The next two speedsters are Cal Murphy and Tiny (Nate) Archibald."

Smith and McAdoo, the league's leading scorer who has averaged 38 points in the last five games, are the prime reasons for Coach Jack Ramsay confidently predicting "we'll be in the playoffs even though that issue is far from settled."

However, the Braves were losing, 103-100, with just over a minute to play before blowing open the game with nine straight points. Smith opened and closed Buffalo's scoring in the fourth quarter with nine of his 20 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Washington beat Chicago, 92-83, Kansas City edged Phoenix, 120-117 in overtime and Philadelphia defeated Portland, 106-102.

In the ABA, the New York Nets ripped Virginia, 111-100, and St. Louis whipped Kentucky, 116-102.

Bulls — Phil Chenier scored 20 of his 32 points in the second half to pace Washington. Chicago took a 42-41 halftime lead as Mickey Johnson scored 14 straight points to put him within one of the NBA record for consecutive points held by Wilt Chamberlain.

King's 120, Suns 117. Rookie Bill Robinson came off the bench to score five overtime points for Kansas City. Robinson replaced of them in the third quarter, as the Nets outscored Virginia 34-24 and led 92-83 going into the final period. Louisville 116, Colonels 102. Marvin Barnes' 33 points helped St. Louis snap a three-game losing streak and give the Spirits their first victory in Kentucky in 12 attempts over two seasons.

Hartford now 157 for the season, while Williams dropped to 9-12. The victory was Coach Gordon McCullough's 20th.

1,000 pointer — WEST HARTFORD, (UPI) — Senior co-captain Bill Brown reached the 1,000-point career plateau, scoring 19 points Tuesday night, and teammate Mark Noon poured in 21 points to lead the University of Hartford to an 86-79 win over Williams College.

At 17, Karen speaks with the wisdom of an adult about such things as ecology, drugs, and the plight of teen-agers in today's world.

Las Vegas, Nev. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors scheduled his first practice workout early today in preparation for his challenge match against Manuel Orantes, the Spaniard who beat Connors for the U.S. Open tennis championship last year.

Connors and Orantes are in town for a $250,000 winner-take-all challenge match Saturday.

Join Eagle staff — PHILADELPHIA, (UPI) — Duane Putnam and Ken Iman, two former standout NFL linemen, have joined the staff of new Philadelphia Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil.

Vermeil said Putnam, 47, a former All-Pro guard, will be offensive line coach while Iman, 37, who had a 14-year playing career, will coach the special teams and assist with the offensive line.

Youth movement — SEATTLE (UPI) — Bob Holloway, defensive coach for the Seattle Seahawks, predicts his team will go for youth and Tampa Bay will select special teams and assist with the offensive line.

She makes her own sign

Coventry
MONICA SHEA

Mrs. Nancy Galinat and Ms. Vivian Lesage of Daily Rd. have posted a large "Sharp Curve" sign on their property to encourage the town road crew to post signs.

Official signs have since been posted but Mrs. Galinat said she does not think they are adequate.

Mrs. Galinat said, "I feel we need street lights to show the curves and slow the cars down."

The DOT survey also showed the Daily Rd. and South St. intersection as the most accident-prone. But this was before that intersection was made a three-way stop.

Coventry Police ordered Mrs. Galinat to take down her sign today or face penalties for placing a non-regulatory sign. She said she would take it down.

The chief said, "The road is not always the problem in accidents. There is a driver responsibility to drive according to the roadway. If you see a sharp curve you should slow down."

Upon receipt, the town will seek cost estimates for the job. The repair would come under a 90 per cent federal funding program.

Sandberg said, "This road is one of our major thoroughfares and goes through a heavily populated area. It is a heavily traveled road with a lot of accidents."

Chief of Police Robert Kjellquist said, "A DOT study done of the town from Jan. 1, 1969 to Dec. 31, 1973 showed 12 accidents at Daily Rd. Seven were between Knowlton Dr. and South St. and the remainder from Knowlton Dr. to Rt. 31."

"There were personal injuries in four of these accidents. Our latest update shows seven accidents on Daily Rd. from July 1, 1975 to date."

"Many cars have come into my yard in the past two years. These cars have failed to make the curve as they come off South St. onto Daily Rd."

"The last driver that came into the yard bounced off the large tree that is between the two ends of my driveway. The driver told me that he didn't realize that the road curved in that direction."

Mrs. Galinat has appeared before the Town Council on this matter. She is also seeking the improvement of the state pageant and her ecology projects. Karen is busy as senior editor for the high school year book.

This year Karen will be vying for the state title with the experience of last year's pageant behind her.

In 1975 she won the "What's Right About America?" segment.

With the glow and optimism of youth Karen answered, "That's easy. Our opportunities are unlimited. We need to get together for one common goal and we even make great apple pie."

"Oh, we have our troubles times like all countries, but we always come through."

If Karen Sladyk brings the state title home to South Windsor in May it won't be through luck.

Determination, confidence and a willingness to work hard

Grandpa makes heirloom cribs

By BETTY RYDER
Family/Travel Editor

When Richard Berthiaume started spending his spare time putting around in his cellar workshop at his home at 40 Litchfield St., little did he realize his work would become so popular—especially with his family.

Berthiaume, who enjoys making and refinishing furniture, decided to make a colonial-style crib for his daughter, Mrs. Richard (Denise) Wojteczko of 78E Spencer St. who was expecting her first child.

"It took me nearly six months to make the crib from blueprints I had obtained from Yankee Magazine," Berthiaume said.

"I had checked out the library, but couldn't find an authentic design. In the magazine, a company called 'Furniture Design' had advertised so I wrote and ordered one of their blueprints.

Berthiaume, who said he had to vary his specifications from the blueprint and determine different angles than shown, added his own special touch to the finished product.

Now, little 9-months-old Diane

Rose has outgrown her crib, but her mom is happy to have it as a family heirloom to pass down from generation to generation.

The proud grandpa, presented another daughter, Mrs. Timothy (Dayna) Ahearn of 66 Spencer St. with a crib for Christmas for the baby she is expecting in a few months.

"I don't have the proper tools," Berthiaume admitted, "but have a saber saw, a few files. Consequently it takes quite a bit of sanding and a little longer to complete.

"I particularly like a fruitwood stain on the wood because it gives it a nice satin finish," he said.

Both cribs have wooden pegs and are polished and waxed to a fine patina.

Berthiaume says he doesn't like to throw anything away, and manages to utilize as much scrap material as available.

When not working on big projects, the youthful grandfather likes to refinish furniture that he picks up at auctions and flea markets.

"My wife and I enjoy flea markets and usually are out on a Sunday in the good weather shopping around.

"It's really a family affair. Sometimes we start out, only to find the rest of the family out looking, too," he said.

The Berthiaumes are the parents of eight children, five sons, Robert,

Denise Wojteczko lets Diane Rose stand in the crib her father made and which the youngster has now outgrown. In the foreground is wall table he refinished and copper lanterns he made. Lamp made from old kerosene can is in background.

On Second Thought

By Jan Warren

I'm an expert beginner!

I don't ski down slopes with names like Hurricane or Suicide. I don't know how to vade, or sidlestep or do parallel turns. I don't own a downhill jacket or warm-up pants, and my skis are not the latest in design.

But, I am a skier and when it comes to the beginner's slopes where I see all my action, I'm somewhat of an expert.

I took up skiing for just one reason. I'd rather wait for the kids outside in the fresh air than inside a stuffy ski lodge.

Over the years I've mastered slopes with names like Whisper, Puff, and Zephyr... gentle open slopes that lend themselves to the perfection! At one point during the afternoon she watched me make a run down the hill and said in a wistful voice, "If only I could snowplow like perfect and I'm feeling brave, I can still get a warm feeling when I stop at the bottom of the hill with a satisfying swish, my skis sideways and parallel.

Half the fun of skiing is getting up the hill. You rest your skis in a groove of snow, lean back and let the T-bar do the work. It's a wonderful way to enjoy the outdoors; ice etched on an evergreen bow, rabbit tracks through the woods, the sun glistening on the snow.

At the top of the hill there's always someone to talk to because no one's in a hurry on the beginner's slope except for some very young downhill racers and I quickly learned to stay out of their way.

The first few years I skied, my major problem was getting up when I'd fallen down, but it never failed that some kind person would stop to lend me a hand or a pole and some smiling encouragement.

That feeling of helpful comradeship is what distinguishes the beginner's slope from the rest of the ski world.

Last week I had the chance to help a woman who was on skis for the first time. She was still falling on flat ground! At one point during the afternoon she watched me make a run down the hill and said in a wistful voice, "If only I could snowplow like perfect and I'm feeling brave, I can still get a warm feeling when I stop at the bottom of the hill with a satisfying swish, my skis sideways and parallel.

My kids think I'm in a rut. They tell me I should challenge myself by trying the intermediate slope, going to the top of the mountain, or taking a series of lessons. I'm sure they're well-intentioned but I wish they'd leave me alone.

I'm not in a rut. I've simply found my niche. You see, on the beginner's slope, I'm somebody!

When she's not strumming her guitar, playing the flute or vocalizing with her twin brothers' band, Denise Gagnon of Vernon likes to cook.

Denise, who resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gagnon of 18 Miriam Dr., especially enjoys baking.

A graduate of Rockville High School, she had her own apartment until recently when she lost her office job and moved back home.

The attractive 20-year-old is currently job hunting and would like to work in a clothing store. In the meantime, she is helping her mom called "The Morning After" together with two other friends they perform in teen spots locally and in Rhode Island, while Denise sings clipping and bathing poodles, and along. She refers to their music as "rock and roll blues."

"I worked with mom for two years now that I'm home again, I help out when I can," she said. The Gagnons have a poodle named Caniche, and Denise has her own Pomeranian she is for baked tuna-stuffed potatoes.

"When I was living alone, I was always baking. Even when I couldn't afford anything else, I always cheese, so I tried putting it all together, and it tastes great," she said with a smile.

Here's her recipe:

Dr. Jerome Kagan reached conclusion on the basis of a five-year study that compared young children that remained home all day with those placed in a special Harvard-operated day care center seven hours a day, five days a week.

"There were no important differences between the two groups," Kagan said in a report for a children-rearing symposium at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Only four years ago, Kagan said, he was among those who warned against taking young children from their home environment for fear the change would harm their social and intellectual development during their critical early years of life.

But he said exhaustive tests looking at everything from language development to attention spans to relationships with other children did not find any substantial differences in children tested at age intervals from three and a half months to 29 months.

"The entire corpus of data supports the view that day care, when responsibly and conscientiously implemented, does not seem to have hidden psychological dangers," Kagan said.

"I expected differences. We did not find them. It is not easy to say why. It is a bit of puzzle. "Merely being outside the home for seven hours a day for 100 weeks does not seem to have a profound effect. There's no difference in aggressiveness, there's no difference in social play. There are just as many shy children in the day care center as there are at home."

Kagan emphasized, however, that the Harvard day care center presented close to an ideal situation for the youngsters with conditions that may not be duplicated very often in centers across the nation.

Among other things, the Harvard facility had one caretaker for every three children during their first year of life and one for every four or five toddlers. The cost of such care, Kagan estimated, would be $85 a week if it were not subsidized.

Kagan said he still believes poor day care centers can be harmful to young children and he estimated 15 to 20 per cent of day care centers in the nation may fall in that category.

Good day care centers not harmful

By Al Rossiter Jr., UPI Science Writer

BOSTON (UPI)—In a finding with important implications for working mothers, a Harvard psychologist reported today that good day care centers do not seem to harm the development of young children as he expected.

Sometimes everyone thinks something new is happening only to find out it had occurred long before. This case recently bobbed up to illustrate it.

In the 1920s or 1930s the newspapers had numerous tales of a strange wild animal at large in Glastonbury.

Many people reported hearing the awful cries at night and some even during daylight. Most people thought it was a feline cat from a panther, escaped circus lion, leopard, tiger, or at least a fox or bobcat.

Many people would not venture outdoors after dark and were afraid to have their children travel the roads alone and to from school. School buses were not thought of then in Glastonbury.

Since no one had seen the critter to identify it, one of the newspapers coined a name for it and it became known as the Glawackus; "Gla" for Glastonbury, "wack" because it was so wacky, and the "us" added to make it sound like a Latin scientific identification.

Many hunters and trappers tried to be the heroes. Some possies were in the field with packs of hounds. O.G. has a clipping of a letter he sent to a newspaper as follows:

"We haven't heard from the Backingwoods since the Glawackus for a long time. I wonder if I saw it yesterday. While in the woods in the John Tomm Hill section of Glastonbury, south of, and near to Manchester's watershed property, I could see a hill in that property. The animal crossed the side of that hill."

"At first glimpse it appeared to be a large dog of the German police type. Then it stood for some time in an open space affording a broadside view and not over one hundred yards away."

There were no reports of the Glawackus ever being taken. Could it be that it migrated north to found the generations of new species that have been increasing enough to attract attention during the last decade?

News for senior citizens

Hi there. Well, our one bus of travelers are well on their way to Florida. Now they only tell who is discharged, and it has created a problem. Quite often I have mentioned in this column that if someone is in the hospital, please contact us so we can make mention of it. Also, every Fun-Day (Thursdays), when we open our meeting, I always ask those present if they know of any of our members who are in the hospital.

This is the only way we have of finding out who is in the hospital. I always felt it was nice to mention those who are patients, so that our members could cheer them up with cards, or possibly visit with them. However, we now have over 6,500 Gold Cards out, and it becomes almost an impossibility for us to know who is a patient. I might add that we can read the obituary column for those who pass away, but then again with that many members, we can't keep up with everyone. So letting us know of a deceased member would be of great help to us.

So, unless we get better cooperation from you members, I am seriously considering dropping the idea of printing any names regarding illness, hospitalization of patients, or deaths unless informed.

Those who know that their spouse, son or daughter has passed away in the hospital should take the time to give us a call. If they can't take the time, then they shouldn't feel hurt when they don't see their names in the paper. We would like to know, and so would many of the members, but unless we get the word, how can we print their names? I leave it up to you, and if I continue to receive flack, I'll just drop putting any names in regard to this subject.

Okay, let's get on with the happenings here at the center, and on Sunday afternoon the performers for the up and coming Variety Show held their first rehearsal, and spent the afternoon learning three new songs. Next Sunday will be rehearsal time again, and we'll be doing much of the same, singing the new songs to get them down early, so that we can spend more time later with the acts.

Pinochle On Monday we had a nice turnout for our kitchen social games in the morning. After lunch we had 48 players for pinochle with the following winners: Fritz Wilkinson, 702; Grace Windsor, 665; Paul Schueta, 652; Grace Moore, 645; George Last, 641; Gladys Seelert, and Ann Ferras, 637; Helena Gavello, 632; Ann Fisher, 619; Esther Anderson, 612; Archie Houghtaling, 608; Peter Frey and Sam Schors, 605.

By the way, we still have room for the Las Vegas trip, and if you think you might be interested, give us a call or better yet, stop by and pick up a flier explaining what it's all about. With this being our 200th birthday, it should make the trip through the canyons more meaningful, and maybe a few extras will be added along the way.

Our sincere heartfelt condolences we offer to Georgina Vince whose nephew and brother-in-law passed away this past week.

Business LaPointe mulls new acquisition

LaPointe Industries Inc. of Rockville and EPSCO Inc., a Massachusetts-based electronics manufacturer, jointly announced they have begun negotiations toward the possible acquisition of EPSCO by LaPointe.

The chairman of LaPointe, John Stillbach, announced that an acquisition of EPSCO for LaPointe stock is being seriously considered. He said, however, that negotiations are in a very early stage and that many terms of the possible acquisition have not yet been agreed upon, including the number of shares at LaPointe which would be exchanged for shares of EPSCO.

There is no assurance, therefore, that the companies will ultimately reach a firm agreement, Stillbach said. In the event that the acquisition takes place, LaPointe Industries' product line would gain sophisticated test equipment, simulators, data processors, radar altimeters, navigation equipment and displays, Stillbach said.

IRS warns against dishonest tax men

Taxpayers who have their returns prepared by someone else should seek an honest, ethical tax preparer, Joseph J. Conley Jr., district director of Internal Revenue for Connecticut, said today.

"While most tax return preparers are extremely reputable, competent, and honest," Conley observed, "a small percentage of preparers do a great disservice to the remainder of the profession by misrepresenting both themselves and the nature of the federal tax returns."

"Choosing a tax return preparer is important because, no matter who fills out the return, the ultimate responsibility for the accuracy of a taxpayer's return remains with the taxpayer."

Conley urged taxpayers to follow four guidelines when dealing with a tax preparer: Never sign a blank return; never return a return prepared in pencil since it might be changed later; never permit the tax return to be mailed directly to a tax preparer; and insist that the preparer sign the return.

Who is dependent?

By ROBERT J. PUE
President
Conn. Society of CPA
Although taxpayers realize they can claim a $750 exemption for each dependent, not everyone is sure who qualifies as a dependent.

How about that 20-year-old away at college? Or the elderly parent who doesn't live with you but whom you help support? Or the family member who died last year?

The right answers to these questions are more important than ever, thanks to the 1975 Tax Reduction Act. This year, each of your dependents is worth not only the deduction but an extra credit of $30 - that's $30 you can subtract from your tax bill, or claim as a refund if your taxes were fully covered by withholding.

To begin at the beginning, your first dependent is yourself, and that is true even if you are also the dependent of another taxpayer, as in the case of a young person with a part-time job whose parents provide more than half his support.

On a joint return there are at least two dependents, husband and wife. And if either of them is over 65 or technically "blind," there are extra exemptions for each of those conditions (although they do not qualify for the $30 tax credit).

The over-65 and blindness exemptions can be taken only by the taxpayer, but the dependent's dependents are the dependents of another taxpayer, he doesn't get the added break.

Your child under 19 is a dependent if you provide half his support. That is, he must be true after he passes 19 if he is a full-time student.

Generally, there are five tests that determine whether a person is your dependent. To qualify, he must meet all five: You provide more than

Welfare recipients take protest to Grasso

HARTFORD (UPI) — State officials today, under orders from Gov. Ella T. Grasso, were looking for ways of helping welfare recipients, who stormed from a committee hearing into her office pleading for help.

About 25 recipients, upset at what they said was a run-around from the state bureaucracy, Tuesday walked out of the Human Services Committee hearing and caught Mrs. Grasso's attention with their shouts. She rearranged her schedule to meet with them and promised to get state officials working on their problem.

The recipients, many of them mothers carrying young children, told Mrs. Grasso inflation and rent increases at their housing project in Bridgeport left them in an impossible position.

The governor, after listening for about 20 minutes with her glasses characteristically balanced on her head, told them she would do what she could to "mitigate" a rent increase caused by new federal regulations.

The group came to the Capitol to support a proposal to increase welfare benefits. But they left the hearing, apparently frustrated by lawmakers who told them to lobby the Appropriations Committee which is expected to kill the bill because of the state's financial crisis.

"If they don't give us the money, we'll have to go downtown and rip off the stores for what we need for our children," added Mrs. Barbara Gill. "We're going to scrounge around and see what we can find," Mrs. Grasso later told reporters who asked her if further aid would be forthcoming.

"It comes at the worst possible time," she said noting the state's tight money situation. "Appropriations is working under very difficult restrictions."

The group congregated in the hall outside the reception area of Mrs. Grasso's office and when she walked by they shouted their complaints. The later apologized for their manner of getting an appointment and applauded for Mrs. Grasso at the close of the meeting.

"We're sorry we had to come in this way," said Mrs. Gill, "but we had to talk to you."

The immediate problem, they said, was a new federal regulation ordering municipal housing authorities to raise rents to the maximum rent subsidies provided by welfare payments.

They said their rent would go up by $50 a month. Previously, welfare recipients who paid less rent than they got in welfare rent subsidies could use the difference for other purposes.

The governor's plans to save $20 million in the fiscal year beginning July 1 by putting state employees on a 40-hour work week, five hours more than they now work, deserves particular attention, he said.

Veterans fund liquidation gaining steam

HARTFORD (UPI) — A proposal to liquidate the $29 million Soldiers Sailors and Marines Fund and use the money to plug a state budget shortage is building up steam, according to Gov. Ella T. Grasso.

Her latest information indicated increasing support for the proposal, Mrs. Grasso said Tuesday, which would fill part of a $37 million budget shortage predicted by the end of this fiscal year June 30.

Last week, the head of a legislative committee considering the bill said it appeared to have little backstop, and another legislative leader complained the governor was not lobbying hard enough on behalf of her proposal.

Mrs. Grasso denied her lobbying lacks strength, saying she was continually meeting with leaders to discuss the measure and has implemented some of the steps they recommended to gain passage of the measure.

She did not detail those steps. The Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Fund was established nearly 20 years ago with revenues from a one cent tax on cigarette packs. Income from its investments are paid to needy veterans.

Mrs. Grasso's proposal for liquidating the fund was rejected in an emergency legislative session last December in the face of strong opposition from veterans groups. The veterans are again opposing the takeover.

Six favored extending revenues sharing — giving the state federal grants with few strings attached — and two are against the extension but she is not sure their opposition will translate into votes against it. The governor also has asked the National Governors' Conference that started Monday because neither she nor the state could afford to pay for her trip to Washington D.C.

Donohue also warned the legislators to study the governor's proposal to spend in the next fiscal year some $44 million in tax revenues not expected in state coffers until the following year.

He said the procedure, known as "accrual accounting," was accepted as sound business practice but only if it was coupled with the accrual of expenses. The changeover may lead to a cash shortage in July, 1977, he said.

"When you're accruing income just to cover a hole in the budget, you should be aware that you are going to have a problem in the following year," he said. The governor also wants to accelerate Federal revenue sharing grants she expects after July, 1977, he said.

State auditor urges close study of Gov. Grasso's proposed budget

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso's $1.8 billion budget proposal is based on many income assumptions that need thorough questioning, according to Democratic State Auditor Leo V. Donohue. Donohue told a coalition of young and liberal Democratic lawmakers Tuesday that he was not suggesting they oppose or endorse Mrs. Grasso's budget, only that they should study it closely.

The auditor said the lawmakers should find out which employees can be cut from the state payroll, and how the longer work week will affect overtime payments and the earnings of those now working more than 35 hours a week.

Donohue pointed out that state employees worked an average work week of 38 1/2 hours during 1975, when the state's civil service system was started, and 1967, when the work week was cut to 35 hours.

Donohue also warned the legislators to study the governor's proposal to spend in the next fiscal year some $44 million in tax revenues not expected in state coffers until the following year.

Grasso won't campaign against Sen. Weicker

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso says she will wage a "positive campaign" on behalf of the Democratic candidate opposing Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., said she sees no need to campaign against Weicker.

"I honestly think you can support a candidate positively, without campaigning against someone," the governor said Tuesday.

Weicker is "deserving of much praise for many things he has done," she said when asked how she regarded the freshman senator's record.

Mrs. Grasso, following closely remarks made last weekend by Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., said she sees no need to campaign against Weicker.

Said Cummings, "Political parties are essential under our system of elections and it's the responsibility of both parties to open their doors and invite more people to participate. We in the Democratic party are doing just the right thing."

Cummings said his belief more open caucuses for Democrats in April and the Democratic Presidential Primary on May 11 "will add still more registered Democrats to Manchester's voting lists."

Cummings says caucuses promote voter registration

To support his contention that open caucuses promote voter registration, Democratic Town Chairman Ted Cummings has cited registration figures in Manchester for January. On Jan. 21, the Democrats conducted townwide caucuses for the election of their 80-member town committee.

Noting it was the first time in months that Democratic party signups lopped the unaffiliated, Cummings reported 69 new voters for January, just two months after the town election and normally a very quiet month for signing new voters.

Of the 69 new voters, 36 signed up as Democrats, 7 as Republicans and 26 unaffiliated.

As further proof of his contention that open caucuses stimulate voter registration, Cummings showed that 22 of the 39 new Democrats reside in the three districts that had contests for committee seats — eight in District 1.
