Carter win makes Weinberg happiest man in Manchester

By SOL R. COHEN. Stanley Weinberg Jr. was one of the happiest men in Manchester yesterday - exultant about Jimmy Carter's victory Tuesday in New Hampshire's Democratic presidential primary and confident it's only the beginning in a series of primary wins for the former Georgia governor.

Time to shed the coats. With temperatures soaring into the high 60s, it was only natural for Manchester boys to shuck their winter jackets and pick up a bat for a little impromptu spring training even though the first day of spring is almost a month away.

News summary

State: HARTFORD - Gaming Commission Chairman Paul Silvergield says he is "quite certain there is nothing improper" about a commission member's providing information to a lawyer for the Florida-based owners of Hartford's jail area.

Regional: BOSTON - Attendance at Boston's public schools has increased this week to its highest percentage since the start of court-ordered desegregation in the fall of 1974.

National: WASHINGTON - The Federal Election Commission is working overtime to certify as much matching campaign money as justified before its authority to dispense the funds expires March 1.

International: BEIRUT, Lebanon - Two kidnapped U.S. Embassy officials, Charles Gallagher and William Dykes, released by Palestinian guerrillas after four months in captivity.

San Francisco - The judge tells the jurors only they can decide if Patricia Hearst is telling the truth, no matter what her psychiatrists claim.

Ford, Carter claim momentum

By LEWIS LORD. Jimmy Carter and President Ford have found a handy word in their campaign vocabulary - momentum.

Each claims to have it on the basis of showings in the New Hampshire primary. They say it will last through this summer's nominating conventions.

Looking ahead to Connecticut's May 11 Democratic presidential primary, Weinberg said, "I'm delighted at our candidate's showing in New Hampshire and I'm looking forward to working with state coordinators for Carter at all levels - congressional and below."

major battleground for the Democrats. "We are playing with a full deck here," said Democratic hopeful Morris Udall in Boston.

GOP directors ask comments on town budget and tax rates

By SOL R. COHEN. Manchester's Republican directors are soliciting public comments on the budgets and tax rates the Board of Directors soon will be considering and pledge to take a "long and hard look" at the town manager's recommendations.

Calling on the committee members to express their views, she said, "Our job is to represent you. We represent the Republicans of the town."

Paul Willhite said he's getting lots of letters and calls from PTA's and the like, all asking him to back the school budget, with no calls or letters opposed to it.

Reagan, politicking in Champaign, Ill., said it will be "an accomplishment" if he gets 40 per cent of the vote in Illinois' March 6 primary - the same thing he had said about New Hampshire's primary before it was held.

Chamber group favors Blue Law retention

The Retail Trade Commission of the Greater Manchester Chamber of Commerce will advise the state legislature that it advocates retaining the present Sunday Blue Laws.

This action was taken today when the results of a poll showed that the majority of Manchester merchants responding to the survey conducted by the commission favored either keeping the present Sunday closing laws; six favored making the laws more restrictive with heavier penalties.

Of the 108 local merchants contacted during the poll, only 23 returned survey forms to the commission. Eleven of the 23 favored keeping the present Sunday closing laws; six favored making the laws more restrictive with heavier penalties.

Five advocated repeal of the laws and one was for revising the exemption listings so that additional items could be sold on Sunday.

The boss is back at J. Garman, Clothier, and Coret Casual. Joe Garman, far right, got a big greeting when he returned to store after convalescing following open heart surgery.

The "Welcome Back" poster is signed by scores of Garman's customers and friends. Admiring the sign with Garman, are those who were keeping the store while he was away.

From left, Vincenzo Pensaquer, tailor; A. Cashman, sales; Mary Ketch, bookkeeper; and Ellen Schmedding, manager. Before he had been back very long, Garman took advantage of the good weather to test some fly rods out in the parking lot behind his store.

The weather: Cloudy, but some sunshine, high upper 50s, lower 40s. Increasing cloudiness tonight, low in mid 30s. Friday cloudy, chance of scattered showers, high in low 50s. National weather forecast map on Page 17.

Democratic hopefuls invade Massachusetts

BOSTON (UPI) — Hardly missing a beat as they moved from New Hampshire's open spaces to Massachusetts' crowded cities, the Democratic presidential hopefuls begin the stretch run for the Bay State's rich prize of 104 national convention delegates.

President Ford and Ronald Reagan also were on the ballot here, but neither planned to campaign in the only state that voted Democratic in 1972. The Republicans give Massachusetts only 43 national convention delegates, compared to 66 for Florida and 101 for Illinois.

Wrong — even for the right reasons

"Saving the Queen," a first novel by journalist, editor and eloquent conservative spokesman William L. Buckley, deals with the leaking of atom bomb secrets to the Russians back in the 1950s. At one point, the hero, a CIA agent, muses that "We (the good guys) might in secure conscience lie and steal in order to secure the escape of human beings from misery and death; Stalin has no right to lie and steal in order to bring misery and death to others."

The operative word, it should be noted, is "might." And as long as it is left in the realm of fiction, it is the age-old philosophical question of the end justifying the means restated in entertaining form. Citing the passage in an adulatory view, however, columnist Holmes Alexander says that "here Buckley has given us the right retort to the moral shock we feel when the CIA is caught doing what is wrong and illegal. After all, motives do count. There is a difference between actions taken to enslave people and actions taken to provide and guard their freedom."

Unfortunately, there is little in the recent revelations about the CIA to suggest that anything the intelligence agency has been caught doing has enhanced anybody's freedom. But even accepting the argument that evil may sometimes legitimately be used to serve a higher good — that the United States might, for example, "in secure conscience" plot the assassination of leaders of foreign countries with whom we are not at war — the great difficulty with this kind of moral pretentiousness is that anybody can employ it, including a dedicated Communist.

Buckley's hero's statement, or Holmes' reading of it, could just as easily justify the excesses of the antiwar activists in the 1960s who, in their own eyes at least, burned draft board office files or stole papers from the Pentagon "in secure conscience." If Americans should ever learn to overcome their moral shock at wrong and illegal actions, by whomsoever committed and from whatever motives, we will have gone a long way towards becoming indistinguishable from our enemies.

Will Bicentennial make our lives better?

To the editor:
In answer to article "Bicentennial parade protection" on page 1, issue Feb. 20, 1976, Friday, $3,000 for protection for the Bicentennial Parade. And I wonder how much money the State of Connecticut and the Federal Government are going to spend to perpetrate the biggest crime this whole country has ever committed. In Manchester alone we have Senior Citizens eking out an existence on inadequate Social Security benefits, taxpayers and welfare recipients both with bona fide gripes about our antiquated welfare system, and families being on starvation levels (yes, we have them right here in Manchester). Will a 200-year celebration make their lives any better?

Will a celebration become a panacea for inadequate housing, insufficient medical coverage in our town, state and nation, inexcusable mental health care, useless penal systems and proscribed laws aiding the criminal, infamous racism and bigotry (second only in the world to South Africa), and last but not least, a sick, drug oriented society? A celebration is going to aid all this? This country is supposedly in depression and we see "cuts" everywhere in vital areas affecting the lives of thousands of our citizens. How much better if the money for such a celebration were to be redirected into programs to rectify these areas.

Sunday opening will raise costs

To the editor,
There are now serious efforts to abolish the Sunday Blue Laws to permit major supermarkets and shopping centers to be open for business on Sundays. We hope that this day will not come to Connecticut. Almost every person with any knowledge of the food business understands that opening supermarkets on Sunday will do nothing else but raise the cost of food in this state. There are only so many dollars people have to spend on food. They now spend those dollars in six days. If we extend the shopping time to seven days, it will merely split up those dollars more ways — not add dollars. The facts are costs will surely rise, but the pie will be split seven ways instead of six. Greater consumption of gasoline will result if people drive around on Sunday shopping. Survival of the small merchant will be threatened. From my personal point of view, we look at the idea of Sunday openings for supermarkets as a further erosion of the quality of life of which we hear so much. Let's not kid one another. There is already too little emphasis on the "day of rest" theme and whether we reserve that extra day for the Lord, or our families or a combination of both, we believe everyone is better off by not having Sunday a widespread day of business. Any who need items like bread, milk, or soft drinks can still get them. It is necessary to have gigantic stores open on Sunday as well? Finally, we are opposed to the idea of Sunday openings because it will mean that some food store people are going to give up a deserved day of rest to go to work. From almost any viewpoint — dollar splitting, energy wasting, employe leisure and quality of life, we believe the idea of opening supermarkets on Sunday is a proposal which should be beaten down by everyone in our industry who recognizes that it will do little for the public in general and certainly will damage the food industry. We thought you would enjoy some creative views as opposed to the very shallow position of the people on this question.

Sincerely,
Frank Toranquidini,
president

Today's thought

A small boy reading a list of the chief causes of death was alarmed to discover a new fatal disease. When asked what it was he answered with one word: "Miscellaneous."
We smile at the boy's misunderstanding of the report he was reading but we have to admit that millions have died from "miscellaneous" life has been smothered out by a landslide of miscellaneous things.
Dr. Lucock wrote: "Going through life comes to be like parading before an endless succession of brightly lit store windows filled with merchandise. We need to be selective, to establish some priorities."
One of my friends had his house catch on fire in the night. He dashed out with a tuxedo had rented, his wife with a pillow case into which he had scooped a few valuables. Once outside, they remembered the other members of the household and the family pets crying with terror. Fortunately all were rescued.

Dateline 1776

By United Press International
MOORE'S CREEK, N.C., Feb. 26 — Another contingent of Americans led by Col. Richard Caswell arrived at Moore's Creek and joined Col. Alexander Lillington in fortifying both banks of the slow-moving stream. The bridge was partially dismantled and the girders greased to prevent the loyalist Highlanders from crossing.

'Society winds up the patsy'

Andrew Tully

WASHINGTON — This desk has been flooded with letters chiding me for assuming a vengeful stand because I take a dim view of the parole system and the custom of releasing suspects accused of violent crimes on probation or without bond. I plead nolo contendere. That is to say, I believe society has both the right and duty to revenge itself on vicious creeps who beat old ladies to death. But I am opposed to mass leniency mostly because it doesn't work, it doesn't make judicial sense. Don't take my word for this. Statistics show that 50 per cent of all crimes are committed by people out on bail, on parole or on probation. The reason is simple: Such people have discovered that crime does pay, so they resume their trade as soon as they get back on the street. Other statistics show that the rate of recidivism is rough, the same whether criminals are exposed to such programs as group therapy and work release or are simply shipped off to a lesser crime.

Obviously, then, rehabilitation as now practiced is not the solution to the nation's rising crime rate. Maybe we need to know more about how to apply rehabilitation. Meanwhile, we should stop kidding ourselves that it's a cure-all.
In fact, crime is much more of a paying proposition than it used to be. The crime rate has gone up 144 per cent in the last 10 years while the arrest rate has increased only 33 per cent. Some readers cite our overcrowded prisons as training schools for criminals. But 10 years ago there were 20 per cent more people in prison per 100,000 inhabitants than there are now. Figures have been known to lie, but these are irrefutable.

And please, gentle woman readers, do not give me that trendy argument that poverty and social injustice have caused certain members of the national community to turn criminal because they're angry and frustrated. Sure there are those who steal because they're poor and underprivileged. But in fact most prospective criminals today are better off than they've ever been.
The good pedagogy has something there. Since the death penalty was abolished, the percentage of murders where the murderer and victim "are not acquainted," has gone up nearly 40 per cent. Put another way, people today kill other people during an armed robbery or a rape because it's so much safer. Grisy.

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

Visitors to the office of The Herald are noticing a number of green plants recently added to the decor. They have been brought in by The Herald's editor-publisher, Raymond F. Robinson, who likes plants and believes that "we ought to bring some greenery inside."
Mr. Robinson, in turn, credits his wife, Claire, with encouraging the idea of plants in an office, with helping him select several of them at local nurseries, and with giving him one of them as her personal present to her husband.

This is a zebra plant that she put in a ceramic pot and in the publisher's office. It's about a foot high and a yellow blossom is opening at the top of the plant. Striped green and white leaves give the plant its common name. Also in Mr. Robinson's office is a rubber plant, with a heavy stem and thick large leaves, which can grow to a foot in length. The bottom-most leaf apparently grew from part of the root system since the stem appears from below the surface of the soil. The rubber plant, Ficus elastica, is fairly common in homes, but it takes space, and so is not a good choice for a small living room.

The largest plant at The Herald is a Ficus also, the genus that includes the many kinds of fig trees. John Zapadka went back in his files to be sure he had the right name for the plant that went from his Woodland Gardens greenhouse to The Herald. It is Ficus cyathistipula and will be referred to by the staff. I'm sure, as "the fig tree."
It is four feet tall and three feet wide, in a 12-inch pot and stands on a box-like piece of furniture that raises the main part of the tree to eye-level. It makes a good stand for this big plant and is wide enough to keep people who are walking across the room from accidentally brushing against the branches and, perhaps, breaking off a leaf.
I measured several leaves that were eight inches long and three inches wide and there are several round, green fruits that I suppose are figs, but at Woodland Gardens I was told they are not edible. The tree was purchased by the local nursery from a Florida wholesaler but

John Zapadka said there is no telling when it was started as a small plant, it may well have been in Puerto Rico, John said, since Florida nursery companies are buying up increasing numbers of tropical plants in the Caribbean area.
Land is cheaper there and wages of hired labor are lower. The climate is such that tropical plants can be grown outdoors until they are ready to be dug, potted and shipped. In Puerto Rico, he said, one can usually get away with an hour or two of rain every night, so plants rarely need to be irrigated. Such reliable rainfall cannot be expected in Florida.
Looks like home
In a corner of the front lobby at The Herald, where it has maximum light, is a large pot of Dracaena, known commonly as the corn plant. The stalks and the narrow sword-like leaves make it look remarkably like corn but it is a tropical houseplant which will not produce any tassels or ears.
"We love it," he said. The corn plant, Mr. Robinson said, reminds him and his wife of their former home state, Illinois. Before coming to Manchester, Mr. Robinson was publisher of the De Kalb, Ill., Daily Chronicle. The city is surrounded on all sides by land "as flat as a table" where thousands of acres of corn and soybeans are grown.
This is the Robinsons' first opportunity to live in New England state where the view in every direction includes hills.

"We love it," he said. There is one container of plants that the Robinsons brought with them to Manchester. It is a planter, rather than a pot, and stands on the front counter near the telephone switchboard. It contains two kinds of Sansevieria. One is the so-called Snakeplant, with long narrow leaves that are green with longitudinal yellow stripes. The other is a dwarf form, with broad, short leaves. It is a tight rosette. The two varieties look well together.

Dental program having trouble finding money

Dental hygienists in the Manchester schools are having trouble finding resources to help students with dental programs, the hygienists told the Board of Education this week.
It's a big problem finding money to help needy students pay for necessary dental work, Mrs. Nancy Tyrell and Mrs. Dorothy Thompson told the school board.

One of the few resources available to families who can't afford expensive dental work, Mrs. Tyrell said, is the University of Connecticut dental school. But the UConn school has a one-year waiting list, and the school won't accept a patient unless the case fits in with the school's teaching program.
Local dentists have cooperated to the extent possible, Mrs. Tyrell said, but dentists can't be expected to provide free services.

Neither Mrs. Tyrell nor Mrs. Thompson could offer a solution to the problem, but they suggested a public plea for donations to help disadvantaged students needing dental care.
Discussion of the problem came as Mrs. Tyrell and Mrs. Thompson explained the schools' dental health program to school board members. They said the dental program stresses education, prevention, and some treatment, but the program is limited by the available staff. The program used to have three dental hygienists but budget limitations forced reduction to two hygienists for the entire school system.
So expansion of the program beyond the elementary schools has been difficult, Mrs. Tyrell and Mrs. Thompson said.
An attempt to provide a dental program in the town's junior high schools began in this school year, with dental hygienists

Architects selected

(Continued from Page One) who headed the committee, members were impressed by the qualifications of several they interviewed but were swayed in favor of the local firm because of the success they have had working with them in the recent Benet and Illing school projects. Giles said he will discuss the projects and requirements with the architects before awarding contracts. The immediate problem is to bring plans only to the status necessary to be prepared if state funds do become available. Work already done by the Board of Education by Mankey may satisfy many of the preliminary requirements, Giles said. In its initial discussions over choosing an architect, the committee expressed the hope that the town's clear intent to go forward with the project, evidenced by a referendum vote in favor, would make it possible to engage an architect without committing funds over which it has no clear control.

Makes debut

First time visitor to the Connecticut Sports Writers Alliance pre-basketball tournament luncheon Monday was Manchester High Coach Doug Pearson.

L called toughest

The plurality of coaches (9) came from L Division schools and their consensus was that their division is the toughest this year. James Kish, coach of MBIAC coach Warren Harding of Bridgeport and of the favorites, calls the division "awesome. I've never seen so many good teams in one division in my life."

More have shot

There are maybe three or four clubs which can win the LL, M and S Divisions. Weaver, Lee and darkhorse Wilbur Cors (can you believe that name!) in Middletown, Northwest Catholic and St. Paul in M and St. Joseph of Trumbull, even a candidate of Danbury and Central Catholic of Norwalk in S.

Pro basketball

Ramsay said, "They've been playing it all season. I don't know how much they've been called for it but it was just very obvious."

East buries Wilcox, 94-51

By LEN AUSTER
Herald Sports Writer

After Jeff Heim and John Lusa put in the first four points for East Catholic in last night's Class L Division playdown the question wasn't who but how much.

How much was 43 points as the ninth-ranked Eagles pulverized 24th-ranked Wilcox Tech of Meriden, 94-51, at Bristol Eastern in a mismatch if there ever was one.

The victory moves East, now 18-4, into Tuesday's first round against the winner of the Crosby-Waterford playdown. Wilcox closes out its campaign with a 10-11 mark.

East came out quickly in the first quarter and popped in 11 of 16 shots from the floor. Leading 13-7 at the 3:34 mark - after Wilcox finally got

Seven NE quintets gain tourney bids

BOSTON (UPI) - Seven college basketball teams in New England have been selected so far for post-season tournament play.

Massachusetts, Providence and Holy Cross were selected Wednesday to play in the ECAC tournament, March 4 and 6 at the Springfield Civic Center. One more team will be added Sunday and it is probable that the winner of Saturday night's Connecticut-Rhode Island game will get the final berth.

The University of Bridgeport, the only New England Division II team named thus far, will host the New England NCAA regional at Fairfield University, March 12-13. Merrimack College probably would have been in-

Win skein eight for SuperSonic

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Seattle SuperSonic won their eighth straight National Basketball Association game Wednesday night, clobbering the Buffalo Braves, 126-94, with reserve Fred Brown and Tom Burleson providing the punch.

"We're out there having a good time and enjoying ourselves," said Brown, who came off the bench to score 31 points. "We're playing good defense and we're playing good offense. We're working together now."

"We have a good time playing," agreed Burleson, who added 20. "It's a great atmosphere. If we just keep playing, we'll be all right."

Coach Bill Russell praised his club. "It's as nice a bunch of young men as I've ever been associated with in team sports. They pull together and help each other out and they have no petty jealousies, and this is the result."

Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsay, meanwhile, charged that Russell has men playing an illegal defense. "Seattle plays a zone defense,"

Kaceys to honor Leber, hoopsters

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor

Honored guests at the 21st annual Knights of Columbus Irish-Sports Night Monday, March 15 at the Kacey Home will be Jim Leber and the Manchester High basketball team.

Fran Mahoney, general chairman, made the announcement today.

Leber has long been active in the Little League baseball program in Manchester and was the key figure in the establishment of a much needed playing field off Love Lane for the expanding program. He also served two years as its president.

Manchester High's hoopsters, coached by Doug Pearson, won the CCIL crown with a perfect record. Jack Daly will be the speaker with the usual corned beef and cabbage dinner being served at 7. Music will be provided by John Keane, Larry Moran and Bill Liggett.

Rutgers tops

CENTERVILLE, Mass. (UPI) - Undeclared Rutgers leads the list of 13 Division I basketball teams selected to participate in the four Eastern College Athletic Conference regional tournaments early next month.

Three more teams will be picked Sunday to complete the tournaments, which serve as preliminary tests for the NCAA championships. The regionals will be held March 4 and March 5, except for the Southern regional, which will take place March 5-6.

Chairman Wilbur Renken of the ECAC selection committee announced Wednesday all four teams had been selected for the Metropolitan New York-New Jersey regionals, while three of the four states have been filled in the New England, upstate New York and Southern regionals.

Celtics trip Rockets as both coaches scream

BOSTON (UPI) - Lest it gets lost in the heat of coaches' harangues, let's start with the score: Boston Celtics 103, Houston Rockets 102.

Now, the story.

Celtics coach Tom Heinsohn got ejected with 1:35 left in the third period of Wednesday night's game to cap an evening of shrieking at referee Bill Jones.

Rockets coach Johnny Egan, who stayed at court-side until his team had finished blowing an 11-point, fourth-quarter lead, said he was robbed of a win by poor officiating.

The local point of the rowdy game came at 10:25 on the third period. Boston's Dave Cowens had just been called for his fourth foul - an offensive foul - when Heinsohn himself stationed himself behind the Celtics' center and fell down as Cowens turned to shoot.

Heinsohn shouted angrily at Jones but escaped unscathed - for the moment.

Newlin took the subsequent inbound pass, dribbled downcourt and was hit lustily by Cowens. Jones called a "flagrant" foul and awarded Newlin two shots.

Heinsohn, less than kind in his assessment of Jones' judgment, was ejected.

Cowens, now with five fouls, was ejected in favor of the technical Jim Ard, and Newlin fell into the vicious and the two free throws to give the Rockets a 76-75 lead.

Houston built the edge to 86-75 early in the fourth quarter before Cowens came back in. Jo Jo White scored nine of his 21 points (and before the referees called everything Boston's way, according to Egan) to give the Celtics the win.

The third quarter foul on Cowens "ruined the whole game," said Heinsohn. "Houston's general tactics are to take falls. I think they ought to clean it up. It's disgraceful."

"Unless someone gets really belted, which seldom happens, they shouldn't go flying into the stands,"

Weigh in today

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) - Like pugilists before every fight, Jimmy Connors and Manuel Orantes will weigh in today for their challenge match at Caesars Palace Tennis Pavilion Saturday.

The weigh-in at noon PST is a new gimmick to the challenge match, the third in what promoters call the "heavyweight championship series." The winner of the Connors-Orantes best-of-five sets will take home $250,000.

Federation head

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) - Nicholas Rodis, athletic director at Brandeis University, has been appointed to the volunteer post of general secretary of the new International Federation for American Football. The Federation's executive committee also selected Boston as its international headquarters.

Coaches clinic

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) - Football coaches from campuses across the country will attend a three-day clinic at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton, on Feb. 27-29. Among the coaches expected to attend are Johnny Maffei of Pittsburgh; Lou Holtz, formerly of North Carolina; George Church, offensive coordinator for Ohio State, and George Welsh of Navy.

Second season

NEW YORK (UPI) - The Maryland Terrapins are ready for their "second season" to begin.

With North Carolina's victory over N.C. State Tuesday night, the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season title chase officially ended. But as everybody in the ACC knows by now, there's still another season to go - the post-season league tournament that will decide at least one NCAA tourney berth.

Rigney or Dark

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) - Bob Lurie and Bob Short are tied up at the moment, but once they get the final nagging items concerning their purchase of the San Francisco Giants out of the way, they will name a manager, and the choice, it is believed, will be between Bill Rigney and Alvin Dark.

Key men injured

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) - Two key injuries were to hamper Providence College's top major college basketball team.

The Friars were without senior captain Mark McAndrew and possibly sophomore Bob Mischevich, both injured Tuesday night in an 85-66 victory over Rhode Island.

No progress

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - The principals in the major league baseball dispute have had another negotiating session, but neither side has yet to get out of the dugout.

"No progress" was the report Wednesday after the three-hour meeting of Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, and American President Lee MacPhail, National League President Charles Finley and John Gaherin, chief negotiator for the owners.

Dan Isel scored 35 points and David Thompson added 26, enabling Denver to snap a two-game losing streak. Isel also had 16 rebounds and scored 10 of his points in the final period. Billy Knight led Indiana with 33 points.

Mile feature

NEW YORK (UPI) - The AAU, stung by its usual array of disputes and defections, offers a Filbert Bay-lee mile field plus world record holders in three other events Friday night for its 88th annual indoor track and field championship.

Bay, whose threatened pullout in last year's indoor championship touched off a week-long controversy with the AAU's Games Committee, goes into the meet after a rare losing effort. The Tanzanian air force mechanic, whose toughest competition should come from former NCAA champion Paul Cummings of Brigham Young, was upset in his first USA start last week by New Zealand's Dick Dixon.

Lyle in fold

NEW YORK (UPI) - The New York Yankees announced Wednesday the contract signings of Sparky Lyle, Rich Coggins and rookies pitchers Ken Clay and Doug Hiebold.

The Yankees also announced outfielder Rick Hadt has been assigned to their Syracuse Triple A roster.

26 under contract

CHICAGO (UPI) - The Chicago White Sox Wednesday announced the signing of six players, making a total of 26 men under contract.

The most recent to sign are left-handed pitchers Dave Hamilton and Claude Osteen, catcher Pete Varney, first baseman Lamar Johnson, second baseman Jack Brohamer and outfielder Jerry Hairston.

Satisfied Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - The St. Louis Cardinals said Wednesday all but six players on the 40-man winter roster have signed contracts or agreed to terms for the 1976 season.

Six regulars - first baseman Keith Hernandez, second baseman Mike Tyson, shortstop Don Kessinger, third baseman Hector Cruz, centerfielder Bake McBride and outfielder Reggie Smith - are among the 34 players signed.

Unsigned players are Lou Brock, Ted Simmons, Al Hrabosky, Ron Fairly, Mario Guerrero and outfielder Joe Lindsey.

The contest was the second straight "ridiculous" happening between Boston and Houston. The Celtics were beaten in Houston on Feb. 11 in a game marred by a fight between Cowens and a fan.

This time the Celtics won, barely, because Cowens applied his muscle under the boards. Cowens gathered 22 rebounds to go with 16 points. John Havlicek added 19 points, including five straight after Boston had gained the lead in the fourth quarter, and Scott Skiles 17.

Calvin Murphy led Houston with 24 points, 12 in the first quarter, while Johnny Johnson scored 23 and Newlin 21.

Heinsohn continued, "Jones got faked out; he made about 80 per cent of the calls in the first quarter." The Houston coach took 14 foul shots to Boston's three.

"His officiating was for a high school game," Heinsohn said. "We should know when there's acting. It's a contest to see who takes the biggest part. We should send all players to the stadium acting in school a week before training camp."

Fade out Heinsohn, fade in an irate Egan muttering in the Rockets locker room.

"If the referees (Jones and Jake O'Donnell) hadn't got caught up with

Second incident

Policeman assaulted while checking store

A Manchester policeman suffered minor head injuries this morning when he was knocked out by an unknown assailant near a Green Rd. business, police reported. It was the second incident of an assault on a police officer in the last two weeks. Officers said Patrolman Gary Benson, 29, was on a routine patrol at about 4:10 a.m. today when he noticed that security lights at the rear of the Seven-Eleven

Girl Scout rummage sale starts Friday

Girl Scout Troop 10 will conduct its annual rummage and tag sale Friday from 7 to 9 a.m. and Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to noon in the Parish Hall of St. Mary's Episcopal Church. Donations for the sale may be left at the church tonight or Friday. Those wishing to have donations picked up may contact Jean Kelsey, 28 Autumn St. The scouts are earning money for their April school vacation trip to Boston and hiking the Heritage Trail. They will stay at Cedar Hill Scout Camp, Waltham, Mass., and will also visit Lexington, Concord, Salem and Gloucester.

Record 70 degrees recorded

(UPI) Sherry's request to Santa was for a doll, but Billy wrote in a spirit of giving instead of receiving. He said he just wanted to tell Santa Claus: "I love you."

The National Weather Service was predicting some sunshine today, but said the high temperatures in Connecticut would most likely reach only the low 60s.

Folk concert here Friday

Two weeks ago, on Feb. 12, Patrol Officer Audrey Paradis was knocked out when she left her cruiser to check suspicious activity at the rear of the Sunset Service Station, E. Middle Tpke.

Officer Paradis, who suffered minor head injuries, had seen a man walking at the rear of the station. When she went to investigate, she was hit over the head with a blunt object by an unknown assailant.

Meeting postponed

Tonight's meeting of the revolving loan fund subcommittee of Manchester's Community Development Advisory Committee has been postponed to next week, town officials said today. The subcommittee will meet next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Municipal Building Coffee Room, 41 Center St.

Merrill Lynch is bullish on Greater Hartford

(That's why we've moved our office to 100 Constitution Plaza, Ground Floor.)

Greater Hartford is our kind of area. Bullish. And growing. By growing with it, we think we can give even better service to our Hartford area customers. Call us at (203) 278-5850. Or better yet, drop by for a visit. We're on the Ground Floor at 100 Constitution Plaza. Meet Herbert H. Hedick, Resident Vice-President and Manager of our office, and all our Hartford Account Executives. They will show you the many ways we can put your money to work. Common stocks. High-yielding investments. Over-the-counter stocks. Municipal bonds. Corporate bonds. Commodity futures. Options. And more. We think it could be the start of a better way to share in America's growth.

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Last year you had something in your column about the Living Will. I'm sorry to say I didn't pay much attention to it then, but I am interested in it now. I am Jewish. Is it against my religion? Is it "outrageous" or merely killing?
