Democrats shed kid gloves in Massachusetts campaign

BOSTON (UPI) - For more than a year before the New Hampshire primary, the Democrats seeking the 1976 presidential nomination tried each other with kid gloves. Since Tuesday it has been naked knuckles all around.

Former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia has been the punching bag since he came in first in the primary Tuesday. But some of the other contenders are catching elbows, too. Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., kept his sights trained on the Georgian Friday. But Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., managed to zap both Carter and Jackson at one news conference. And Sargent Shriver aimed a major blast at Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, with some firecrackers tossed toward Carter, Jackson, Bayh, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

The Democrats may be spitting because there are no Republicans around. Neither President Ford nor former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California are campaigning here, although both are on the Massachusetts ballot March 2. Another theory is that with eight Democrats in the field, the only way to get recognition is to make the loudest noise.

Bayh's criticism of Carter came just a short time after the front-running Georgian returned to Boston for a quick final round of campaigning. Carter shrugged off the previous darts from the others, and in the course of answering questions, commented "I don't think it makes any difference" whether a state has a "right to work" law forbidding compulsory unionism.

Opposition to right to work laws is an article of liberal Democratic faith and Bayh called a news conference to denounce Carter's statement as "incredible" and "insensitivity" to the plight of Massachusetts textile workers whose jobs disappeared when their factories moved to Georgia and other states with right to work laws. He also said he would spend the remaining time until the primary pointing out his differences with Carter.

MIAMI (UPI) - President Ford today denounced the Fidel Castro regime as "an international outlaw" and warned that the United States would take "appropriate measures" against any armed intervention by Cuba in the Western Hemisphere.

In his toughest language to date, as he launched a 190-day campaign swing through Florida, Ford said Castro had committed "a flagrant act of aggression" by intervening in the Angolan civil war with a 12,000-man expeditionary force.

"My administration will have nothing to do with the Cuba of Fidel Castro," Ford said. "It is a regime of aggression."

Ford's remarks were prepared for delivery to a naturalization ceremony at Dade County Auditorium where 1,178 immigrants, most of them Cuban refugees, were being sworn in as American citizens.

More than 500,000 Cuban refugees now live in south Florida and many of them will vote in the March 9 Florida primary, in which Ford faces another showdown with Ronald Reagan.

Ford announced he was directing the attorney general "to place a high priority" on reducing the backlog of Cuban applicants for citizenship and is asking that 10 immigration and Naturalization Service examiners be transferred to Miami within the next two weeks "to deal with the priority situation."

Ford also directed the attorney general to take all possible administrative actions and, if necessary, to seek additional legislation to assure that Cuban refugees can be awarded permanent resident status without being delayed by the immigration quota system.

"The Fidel Castro regime of Cuba, by sending an expeditionary force of 12,000 soldiers to intervene in a civil war in Angola, is acting as an international outlaw," Ford said. "Fidel Castro has committed a flagrant act of aggression."

"I solemnly warn Fidel Castro against any temptation to armed intervention in the Western Hemisphere," Ford said. "Let his regime, or any like-minded government, be assured that the United States will take the appropriate measures."

Stevens complained the state was in "bad shape" if the lawmakers lack of attention during the debate was an indication of their interest in the state's fiscal condition.

Talking on the floor while the debate was going on was "so loud you could not hear yourself think," Stevens said.

Stevens and other Republicans argued the overspending request should not be passed without first passing a bill producing the revenues to pay for the overspending.

They also charged Gov. Ella T. Grasso's Democratic administration was the result of "moral and contractual obligations" of the state to people and organizations that had already supplied services to the state.

O'Neill, who also is Democratic state chairman, said, "I am no more happy with this bill than anyone else," but added it had to be passed.

Stevens called for a hard, non-partisan look at the overspending request, then asked that it be tabled. His request was defeated 98-34.

An amendment by Rep. Russell L. Post Jr., R-Canton, making strikers ineligible for welfare benefits, failed 86-62. He said it would save the state $34,000 this year and $1.02 million next year. Other House bills approved and sent to the Senate:

• allowed Manchester to sell bonds for firefighting equipment at an interest rate higher than the five per cent allowed in an act passed in 1959.

• allowed the commissioner of environmental protection to take a hunter's license when he or she enters a game preserve, to return it when they leave only if they answer questions about the game there.

• included urine tests as evidence for driving under the influence.

• included the age and marital status of employees as factors in reports required of state contractors.

★ State HARTFORD - A drive to make the late Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday Jan. 15 an official state holiday has gotten the endorsement of Gov. Ella T. Grasso. She said Friday she thought commemorating the civil rights leader's birthdate would "honor an idea and an idea."

NEW HAVEN - In a ruling that may have statewide implications, a federal judge Friday temporarily blocked major rent increases for about 800 New Haven welfare families living in public housing. Legal Assistance lawyer Bruce A. Morrison argued that welfare recipients were denied an opportunity to participate in the rent increase decision and were denied due process rights.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. - Former Rhode Island Gov. Frank Licht has endorsed Jimmy Carter for President and plans to actively campaign for the Georgia Democrat in several states, he announced Friday.

BOSTON - Negotiations between city officials and union representatives were to continue Monday over proposed employee layoffs which could result in a strike by more than 5,000 workers. The city, in a drive to cut a $23 million deficit, has plans to lay off more than 800 workers and the union says it will strike if this is done.

ATLANTA - Influenza cases were reported occurring in all states with the exception of Maine, Rhode Island and North Carolina Friday by the National Center for Disease Control. The report said 875 lives had been lost - 379 above the epidemic threshold nationwide - primarily due to the A-Victoria type flu.

TSUNG HUA, China - Former President Richard Nixon went to a people's commune today where a Chinese farmer gave him a lecture on Communist politics. Nixon toured a chicken hatchery, a commune factory, a commune hospital, a dam site, grain fields and the home of a commune peasant.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland - Belfast Protestants, protesting Britain's announcement it would end special provisions for jailed Protestant activists, rioted Friday in their largest outburst of violence since a general strike toppled the provincial government in 1974.

Deficit funding bill advances

HARTFORD (UPI) - Connecticut has overspent its budget for the year ending June 30 by $37.7 million and the legislature has begun the process of approving the act.

The House Friday gave preliminary approval, 123-15, to a measure appropriating the extra money. It now goes to the Senate, where quick approval is expected, according to Appropriations Committee Co-chairman Robert D. Houley, D-Vernon.

Some Republicans complained there was no provision for raising revenue to cover the cost overrun. But 15 Republicans joined 108 Democrats in favor of the measure.

Their argument was that two-thirds of the expenses were uncontrollable and most were already spent.

The measure would raise the state's estimated budget deficit, the combined effect of overspending and dropping revenues, by $3.3 million to $40.3 million on a budget of $1.68 billion.

The agencies will actually overspend by $31.5 million. The federal government, however, reimburses $2.3 million of the expenditures, primarily welfare benefits. The two-hour debate was dominated by Republican questioning of the deficit spending measure. Minority leader Gerald F. Stevens, R-Milford, and Majority leader William A. O'Neill, D-East Hampton made the closing arguments.

Trade deficit in January Economic index up 2.2 per cent

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The U.S. balance of trade was tipped into a marginal deficit in January for the first time in 12 months, the Commerce Department reports. However, the government's index of leading economic indicators had its biggest jump in a half a year.

The Commerce Department said Friday the United States imported $9.176 billion in oil, autos, food and other products in January and exported $9.103 billion - a deficit of $73.6 million. Last year the United States had a trade surplus of $1.1 billion, its biggest ever, and January was the only deficit month. The deficit of January, 1976, was $282 million - more than triple that of last month. Strong demand for imported petroleum boosted the Commerce Department's index of economic indicators 2.2 per cent, the biggest gain in six months. The index - which shows the direction of the economy - had been nearly unchanged for four months after rising 2.5 per cent last July.

Stock market prices made the most significant contribution to the solid rise in the index. Other categories showing improvement were the average work week, the layoff rate, vendor performance, sensitive wholesale prices, contracts and orders, net business formations, new orders and building permits.

The "accusation" rate of hirings, recalls and transfers rose from 3.8 per cent in December to 4.4 per cent in January. That was the highest level in more than two years, due mostly to recalls of laid-off workers.

Volunteers wind up Heart Fund drive Sunday

About 700 volunteers will be winding up their heart drive solicitation Sunday in a final thrust to cover Manchester for contributions.

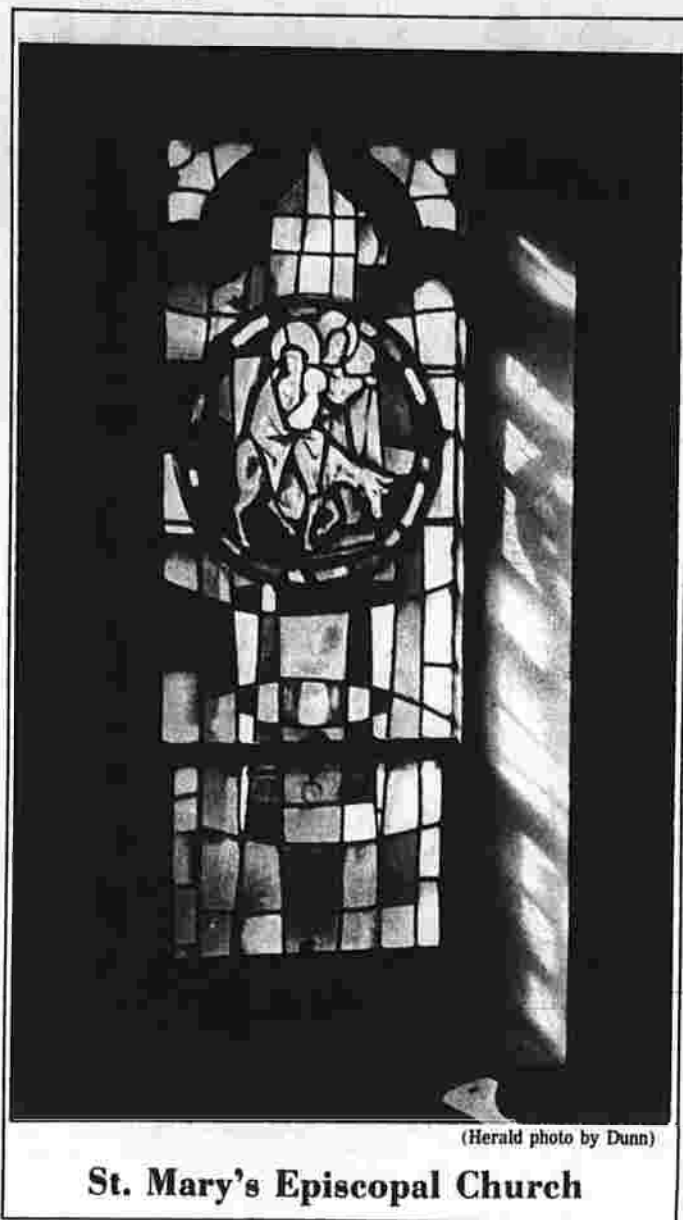

Called Heart Sunday, it is the day when the volunteers correlate their efforts and turn in their collections to their captains.

Mrs. Shirley McCray, chairman of Heart Days which have been in effect since Feb. 9, said the flu epidemic has taken its toll of the volunteers, but she hopes those who can will make an effort to complete their assignments.

Sale benefits Heart Fund

Roger Knauth, co-chairman of the Manchester Heart Fund Drive, accepts a check from Linda Mercer, president of the Manchester High School chapter of DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) as a result of a sale of heart-shaped lollipops at the school. Every year students of DECA are encouraged to undertake at least one project to demonstrate civic consciousness. The amount of the lollipop sale was $65. Wings of evening

A stained-glass Jesus? Recently I have been reading a number of lives of Jesus, the latest is called "The Jesus Story" by William A. Emerson Jr., whose career began in journalism and included an editorial post at Newsweek. He later became editor of a magazine, almost Evening Post. It is a book I recommend. This excerpt from his prologue will give you an idea of his light we see a delicate, almost feminine figure with doe eyes and reddish beard. This image is elusive, untried, and, in translation, his voice is sweet and the fire banked. Jesus, the Palestinian Jew, hasn't traveled too well. The contemporary version is a faint print of the man who died in the city of Galilee two thousand years ago. This filtered Jesus isn't the only one we have. In the aggregate there have likely been a whole lot of Jesuses, some marching as to war and some dawdling in the flowers with little children.

Howe likes league future Despite the dark clouds hanging over several franchises in the World Hockey Association, Gordie Howe feels that the future is bright.

"Some mistakes were made, like setting up teams in established NHL arenas, and the WHA's future is bright. It's not enough dollars to go around."

"I feel that we may lose two or three franchises but the stronger ones, such as Hartford, will survive. I know that in our case, we turned the corner but, three months ago and we are now doing fine."

"I know it was Ley. He's a tough competitor. That's the way hockey should be played. He probably learned that from me," he quipped.

"The WHA has the talent and the excitement and that's what the game is all about," Howe said after he had paced the Aeros to a 5-2 win over the Whalers at the Civic Center.

"He calls the world into being, creates man in his own image and sets before him the way of life and death."

"I'm afraid I didn't notice that either," said Mr. Peterson. "Oh, for heaven's sake," snapped Mrs. Peterson. "A lot of good it does you to go to church."

"What about the Whalers, floundering around and losers of their last three home starts and seven of their last eight. During the process, the Eastern Division defending champions dropped from a comfortable lead to second place in the standings."

"The Whalers are hurting. They have lost too many key players," Howe offered.

Whaler Publicist Kevin Walsh pointed out that the Whalers have been minus an average of two regulars for each game.

Howe, who leads the Aeros in scoring with 67 points, including a goal and assist against the Whalers, felt 19-year-old Gordie Roberts was the reason the club is more competitive.

"I'm not satisfied with it. I won't be satisfied until we're winning on a regular basis," he said Friday night after his club spotted the Boston Bruins a three-goal lead and then rallied for a 3-3 deadlock in the only National Hockey League game. It was the second time in the Capel history they have been able to score points in two straight games; they tied the Philadelphia Flyers 5-5 Tuesday night.

Bob Sirois, who banked the winning goal of Bruin defenseman Darby Edstrand's skate 5:11 into the final period, credited McVie with the Caps' mini-turmoil.

"When I first came here, it was like a country club," he said. "McVie

Celtics win game of 'chess'

BOSTON (UPI) — The Celtics and Sonics played "chess" at triple speed Friday night and one mistake put Seattle's eight-game winning streak in check.

The mistake was made by Fred Brown, the most powerful knight on Seattle's team, when he missed a close-range jumper. The Celtics pounced on the error and took a 122-118 squeaker.

For most of the fourth quarter Friday, the action was one fast break after another. If Seattle got a basket, Boston responded. And if Seattle got two straight, Boston would do likewise.

Toward the end, the contest turned into a shooting match between guards Jojo White of Boston (32 points) and Brown (33 points). But it was Brown's miss and White's subsequent fast-break bucket that spelled the end for the Sonics.

"I couldn't believe it," said Celtic Charlie Scott, who scored eight of his 18 points in the fourth quarter. "It was like chess. Incredible. No one was missing. It was one of those deals where as soon as Brown missed that basket, we won the game. Because the pace just continued where we left off."

With a little over two minutes left in the game and Boston nursing a 114-112 lead, the Sonics drove up the floor on a break. The pass to Brown left him in excellent shooting position, but the guard's soft shot bounced off the rim into the hands of Paul Silas.

Silas whipped the outlet pass to Scott, who fed White for his crucial basket that made the score 111-112. "That definitely decided the game for us," said White, who scored 14 points in the wild quarter. "I was just fortunate that all those shots went in. We finally got to the point where we were controlling the boards, moving the ball well."

The Celtics heaped their cause by employing a tenacious press at the beginning of the fourth quarter that turned a 91-86 Seattle lead into a 96-85 Boston edge.

"That got us back into the ballgame and kept us there," said White. "That turned it around for us."

John Havlicek, who scored 28 points, started the quarter with two quick hoops and when Dave Cowens dropped one in at 3:07 the Celtics had the lead. Two more baskets by Havlicek gave the Celtics a 100-97 advantage.

Scott hit two straight sandwiched around a Tom Burleson hook and for us," said White, who scored 14 points in the wild quarter. "I was just fortunate that all those shots went in. We finally got to the point where we were controlling the boards, moving the ball well."

Double for Jan Merrill at Garden

NEW YORK (UPI) — Filbert Bayi, the Tanzanian running sensation, tried to explain all week long that his goal for the 88th National AAU Track championship Friday night would be a mere, routine four-minute mile. And he was trying to say the same thing after his run but a sensational 3:56.1 winning performance, the third fastest in indoor history, didn't make him very convincing.

"This wasn't an important race to me," he said after his effortless victory. "I was just trying to break four minutes ... no more, no less."

The 22-year-old world record holder in the outdoor 1,500-meter "metric mile" looked like a man who was trying, however, when he grabbed the lead right away and sped to a 57.9-second closing in the first quarter-mile. He held off challenger Paul Cummings of the Beverly Hills (Calif.) Striders and Ken Popenoy of the University of Chicago Track Club and led all the way. Cummings kept it close until the final lap, but Bayi opened up a 12-yard margin. Only Tony Waldrop's 3:58.0 mile in 1974 and Martin Liqueori's 3:58.8 in 1975 have been faster.

Cummings finished second in 3:58.4 and Popenoy was third in 4:02.5.

Bayi, who had run only one indoor mile previously this season, was named the outstanding performer in the meet.

Another outstanding performance was turned in by Roland Carter of the Gulf Coast Track Club, who set a meet record in the pole vault at 18 feet, 1/2 inch. Wladyslaw Kozakiewicz of Poland also vaulted that height but lost a jump. Rick Wohlbuter ran his string of 1000-yard victories in the meet to a 3:00.3 time.

Still at odds NEW YORK (UPI) — The major league baseball owners have proposed to the Players Association further modifications of the reserve clause in hopes of getting spring training open on time — but still there was no sign of a breakthrough.

The owners early in the week ordered the camps shut until a new basic agreement could be reached with the Players Association, which traditionally gets under way March 1.

First for Howe TORONTO (UPI) — Gordie Howe scored the first overtime goal of his 27-year professional career Friday to give the World Hockey Association's Hartford Whalers a 7-6 win over the Toronto Toros.

Howe flipped the puck over Toronto's Wayne Wood after 11 seconds of overtime play in the sudden death ending to a wide-open contest.

Connors, Orantes play match today

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors, returning to form after a siege of the flu, battles Manuel Orantes today for $250,000 and a little vengeance for the defeat the Spaniard handed him in the U.S. Open last year.

Connors, 23, hits the ball harder and is speedier about than the catlike Orantes, who dishes up a lot of soft drop shots and slices.

This is the first meeting between the pair since the 27-year-old Orantes beat Connors at Forest Hills 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

The match has been called the Caesars Palace Tennis Pavilion. He opened up a 12-yard margin. Only Tony Waldrop's 3:58.0 mile in 1974 and Martin Liqueori's 3:58.8 in 1975 have been faster.

Thompson hoops 50 NEW YORK (UPI) — David Thompson, who forsook the National Basketball Association for an estimated $3 million contract with the Denver Nuggets, reeled off a career high 50 points Friday night in pacing his team to a 140-116 romp over the San Antonio Spurs.

Denver, which has gradually been turned into a first-rate basketball town over the last few years, has gone ecstatic this season with the presence of Thompson and perhaps the best basketball team in the country.

The Nuggets, 44-15, own New York's best record in the ABA and have the best win-loss record in the pros. Even the torrid NBA defending champion Golden State Warriors, another run-and-gun style team with a 43-16 record, might have trouble staying with the streaking Nuggets.

Thompson made his first nine shots and finished by hitting 17-of-20 from the field and 16-of-19 free throws. He also had four assists and three steals; Houston defender Buffalo Bill Russell never seen anything like it, said Denver Coach Larry Brown.

"He didn't take a bad shot. He did it unselfishly and I think the team responded to him out there."

Weiss set date for budget hearing

Town Manager Robert Weiss announced this week that Manchester's annual budget hearing is scheduled for April 5. Weiss, who hasn't announced his spending plans, said the budgeting is difficult this year.

Weiss indicated he may recommend a hike in water rates. He said his plans will be announced during the last week of March. Deadlines for adopting a budget and tax rates are May 7.

The Republican members of the Board of Directors, which will decide the budget and tax rate, said they'll take a "long and hard look" at Weiss' spending plans. The three minority directors asked for public comments on budget planning.

Who is employe?

Manchester's Pension Board decided this week to get legal advice on a continuing question: Are federally funded town personnel considered town employes and does the town have to contribute for their retirement?

The problem surfaced this week when three employes in the school system — paid with federal grants — asked the Pension Board to approve contributions for their retirement.

Housing

The Manchester Housing Authority, after blasting state officials a week ago for stalling their 40-unit elderly housing project, got their first green light this week from the

Manchester week in review

Council group this week. The $14,150,063 budget plan faces its first test Monday, when the Board of Education meets the Board of Directors to discuss spending.

Drug survey
A drug use survey conducted by Crossroads, the town's counseling and referral center, indicated that alcohol and tobacco are more of a problem in Manchester schools than other, illegal drugs.

Results of the survey were made known this week when Crossroads conducted its first parent awareness program.

In the wake of controversial discussion about illegal drug trafficking in Manchester, local police made several arrests and seized small quantities of marijuana and heroin this week.

Four persons were arrested Monday after an "undercover buy" of a pound of marijuana, and three persons were arrested Thursday night police learned they were allegedly bringing heroin to Manchester, authorities said.

Other news on this week's police blotter included a Wednesday night incident in which a patrolman, checking the rear of a Green Rd. store, was knocked out by an unidentified assailant, and a Thursday night auto accident, with minor injury, in which a local motorist's sta-

Bonus
Manchester's Board of Education this week authorized spending a $62,581 bonus it received from the state, the proceeds from Connecticut's last Instant Lottery.

The extra money will go for graphic arts, science and musical equipment, and for instructional materials for reading and guidance programs, the board decided.

In other education news this week, the school board was old that follow-through on the school system's dental health program has been difficult due to lack of money. Dental hygienists said they're finding many serious dental problems in school children.

Negotiations for a new contract for the town's 550 public school teachers were said to be going well this week, although each side — the school board and the teachers — estimated different settlement dates.

The school board's budget request for 1976-1977 got the support of a PTA tion wagon went off W. Middle Tpke. into the Hockanum River.

Three new patrolmen were sworn in by Police Chief Robert Lannan Friday in the first hirings under plans to fill vacancies in the force. The new officers begin training Monday and will return to Manchester April 22.

Architects chosen
Two local architectural firms, Lawrence Associates, and Manky Associates, were selected this week to begin planning renovations at Washington School and Bentley School, respectively. The projects will be done only if money for a state grant becomes available. The architects' task at this point is merely to do as much work as will be necessary to apply for a grant.

The Human Relations Commission this week prepared arguments to present to the Board of Directors March 9 in favor of giving the commission a role in monitoring the town's Affirmative Action Plan for preventing bias in town employment practices. The commission contends that the ordinance setting it up charges it with that responsibility. At least some of the directors do not agree.

Seek reinstatement
Manchester Community Services Council decided to ask the Board of Directors to include funds in this year's budget to reactivate the Department of Human Services. The department was cut out of the budget last July, and Alan Mason, director, became administrator of the Community Development Funds. It would cost the town between $6,000 and $7,000 to assume the portion of Mason's salary which has been paid to date by HUD (U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Town Manager Weiss said.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if Cliff Osmond, who played in "Shark's Treasure," is related to the singing Osmonds? —C.M., Summerside, P.E.I., Can. Again, no relation.

DEAR DICK: Please settle an argument. Is actor Barry Sullivan dead? If so, when did he die? —N. POLE, Lethbridge, Alta., Can.

I suppose your first name is North, right? To answer your question, Barry Sullivan is still alive and well.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me Barbara Eden's approximate age, what movies she appeared in and the name of her spouse, if married. —F.S. WISSINGER, Home, Pa. Barbara is around 40. She's made six movies — All before her big TV fame. The best were "The Wonderful World of the Brothers Grimm" and "The Seven Faces of Dr. Lao." At the moment, she's unmarried, but she used to be Mrs. Michael Ansara.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me when Omar Sharif was born? Also, what was the first movie he was ever in and what are some of his more recent movies? —ANNIE BALLARD, Cleveland, Tenn. Sharif was born in '32 and made his movie debut in something called "Goha" in '59. Among his latest movies: "The Last Valley," "The Horseman" and "The Tamarind Seed."

DEAR DICK: During the '30s, my brother and I attended Saturday matinees at our local theater. We would see a few cartoons, an Our Gang or Charlie Chase comedy, a serial chapter, a Pete Smith specialty, Movietone news and two westerns, all for a dime. We each had our favorite cowboy star — his favorite was Tom Keene, mine was George O'Brien. Are they still living? —WENDELL L. ROBINETTE, Stockton, Calif. You do bring back the good old days. Today you see one feature and it costs $3 to $4.50. But anyhow, to your question — Tom Keene died in '63, but George O'Brien is still with us. He's 75.

DEAR DICK: Will Happy Days be making any more shows? My friend said they were taking it off the air in 1976. —NICK RILEY, Winterville, Ohio. It's still on, and will stay on through this season. Nobody yet knows if it will be back next year, however.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who played the part of Gunga Din in the movie of the same name that starred Cary Grant. I say it was Sam Jaffe. Am I right? K. JARVIS, Stockton, Ca. Right on the button. Jaffe played the title role in that memorable '39 film.

TV to air 'The Sound of Music'

"The Sound of Music," firmly entrenched as the most popular musical in movie history, has earned more than $78,400,000 since its release in 1965. On Sunday at 7 p.m. the television sets of America will be alive with the sound of that music when ABC brings the family story to television for the first time.

Officially born as a Broadway musical on the stage of the Lunt-Fontanne Theatre in New York on Nov. 16, 1959, "The Sound of Music" was the last collaboration of Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. The musical ran for almost four years in New York, more than five years in London, and continues to play in theaters all over America.

When 20th Century-Fox released the film version in 1965 the critics were quick to embrace the dazzling visual sweep that could only happen in a movie.

Based on the real-life adventures of the von Trapp Family Singers, who fled Austria when the boots of Nazi storm troopers destroyed their peaceful and musical way of life, "The Sound of Music" stars Julie Andrews. Christopher Plummer is also starred.

Syrup pitchers hold value

The syrup pitcher is a relatively "new" interpretation of one of man's oldest utensils. It wasn't until the mid-19th century that it gained popular acceptance and was considered a necessity in every home.

The syrup pitcher is usually five to eight inches high and is distinguished by a metal top. The pitcher spout was incorporated in the metal top and the lid usually had a thumb piece by which the cover could be raised for pouring.

Recently, I discovered that Beverly Hageman has assembled a small but select collection of syrup pitchers. It is fairly representative of the variety of materials used to manufacture syrup pitchers.

They range from the humble Majolica earthenware to fine handpainted porcelain of Austria. The oldest is an English salt glass pitcher with graceful Sheffield pewter top, dating from 1840. Two porcelain pitchers have matching plates.

Beverly, wife of an abstract been careful to receive a guarantee of authenticity with each purchase.

Even with this precaution she expresses doubts about three pitchers as she offered them for inspection. One was in Spanish Laze, another cranberry and opalescent swirl and the third a satin glass of pink shaded to white. "I really think these are reproductions."

"The good ones are scarce and hard to find," and she has several dealers scouting for her. Reproductions are fairly common, she said.

Her prize in pressed pattern glass in Sandwich "Buckle and Star." Others are "Lion," "Cordova," "Currier and Ives," and "Double Ribbon." They represent a rainbow of colors.

Although it's nice to find an old pitcher with its original top, most authorities agree that a broken or missing top does not detract from its desirability. But the patina of old pewter or silverplate adds a look of genuine age not duplicated by the new.

We had a 'war' over these coins

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

We had a pint-sized holy war over coins in 1908. Here is some of the evidence. In one encampment there was Theodore Roosevelt and his sculptor friend, St. Gaudens; in the other, the members of the 60th Congress.

Note that the middle coin shown here has no "In God We Trust." This motto had first appeared on the two-cent piece in 1864 "...due largely to the increased religious sentiment during the Civil War crisis." In 1866 it was added to the quarter, half, and dollar, and to three of the country's gold pieces.

However, Roosevelt "...personally objected to the use of the Deity's name on coins" (per Red Book). He had met the artist socially some years before and was quite taken with his work. So when the watchdogs were out of town they got together on new designs for the eagle ($10 gold) and the double-eagle, that omitted the motto.

T.R., speaking of accomplishments in his autobiography, says: "Securing a great artist, Saint-Gaudens, to give us the most beautiful coinage since the decay of Hellenistic Greece was one such act. In this case I had power myself to direct the Mint to employ Saint-Gaudens. The first, and most beautiful, of his coins was issued in thousands before Congress assembled..."

The total mintage of the "no-trust" $10 gold piece came to nearly half a million.

Since Congress and Roosevelt had been at each other's throats anyway, when it did reconvene, the oratory on this motherhood-and-apple-pie type of subject must have been magnificent!

At any rate, in the midstream of 1908 an act was pushed through that demanded the use of the motto. So, considering mintmarks, to get all the appearances of the 1908 eagle you would need five coins.

Another artist, Bela Pratt, even managed to squeeze the words onto a tiny new quarter-eagle that year — and the war was over.

the way. The only exception is for foreign surface mail — that would be too confusing.

Another condominium

"Yes, Johnny, there can be more than one kind of condominium. You can have a housing project, or it can be a government jointly administered by one or more powers."

"Thanks, Dad, I'm glad you looked it up." The Condominium of New Hebrides is governed by Great Britain and France together and it is just the right place to come out with a stamp honoring their other common cause — the Concorde.

There are two stamps really, one in French and one in English, with the same design. The New Hebrides have done this for years — put out twin stamps with the coat of arms of each country on both. To save confusion the value is always in francs. The recent Concorde issue is 5fr.

Competitive night

There will be a Competitive Numismatic Night at the KofC Hall on Tuesday, March 2. The CCCoin Club will put on something like the philatelic "clothesline" contests where you hang up an album page. Informal, wide-open entries, large or small. The doors open at 7 p.m. (138 Main St.)
