

Cemetery charge increase recommended by Harrison

Manchester's superintendent of cemeteries is recommending an increase in cemetery service charges. "In order to keep pace with the town's ever-increasing costs," Robert D. Harrison is proposing a $25 increase in the cost for grave openings (including grave liners and lowering devices), to bring the cost to $110 from its present $85. And he's proposing a $25 increase in the cost of grave spaces, to place the cost at $180 from its present $155.

U. S. Senate confirms Seranton

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has confirmed the nomination of former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton as ambassador to the United Nations.

President Ford's appointment of the former diplomat was approved by voice vote after little debate Wednesday. Seranton succeeds outspoken ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who resigned to return to the Harvard faculty.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Seranton is "a man of ability, integrity and distinction who will represent us ably and well."

GOP Leader Hugh Scott said Seranton would "bring to the United Nations a quality of sensitivity."

Rise noted in building

The estimated cost of Manchester construction last month was about 42 per cent higher than in February of last year, almost even with two years ago, and about 33 per cent below three years ago, a report by Francis Conn, chief building inspector, indicates.

Building permits totaling $434,565 were issued in February 1976, $304,982 in 1975, $455,531 in 1974 and $683,280 in 1973.

Permits were issued last month for 8 single-family dwellings, 1 garage, 1 barn, a commercial building on Green Rd., 1 garage, 1 swimming pool, 2 fences, 3 signs, 3 wood-burning stoves, 1 Franklin stove, 1 demolition and 38 alterations and additions. Also, 49 electrical, 18 heating and 14 plumbing permits.

Mrs. Sadloski heads MPOA

Mrs. Peter Sadloski of 48 Hollister St. is the new president of the Manchester Property Owners Association, (MPOA), succeeding Charles Pillard.

Her election was by the MPOA's executive board this week. Others elected are Alfred Kargl, first vice-president; Henry Krajewski, second vice-president; Frank Utakis, secretary; and Mabel Sheridan, treasurer.

Mrs. Sadloski was named chairman of the committee studying the town budget and Pillard chairman of the committee studying the school budget.

Utakis said it's the consensus of the MPOA executive board that in light of the current economic problems in the area, high unemployment and inflation, it's time for the town directors to make some significant cuts in state spending and, in fact, "come up with a reduction in taxes, not an increase."

Unemployment drops to 7.6% in February

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment fell to 7.6 per cent in February, continuing a rapid plunge that brought the nation's jobless rate to its lowest level in more than a year, the Labor Department said today.

The February unemployment rate was 0.2 per cent below January's 7.8 per cent rate and 1.6 per cent below the recession peak established last May.

The jobless figures, combined with earlier news that wholesale prices had declined 0.5 per cent in February, lent substance to President Ford's campaign claims that his conservative economic policies are working.

The improvement in February brought unemployment to its lowest level since December 1974, when it stood at 7.2 per cent.

Unemployment declined by 150,000 persons to 7.1 million during February while total employment increased only slightly to 86.3 million.

Most of the new jobs went to the so-called "traditional breadwinners" — men in manufacturing and construction. There were continued declines in joblessness among full-time workers, white workers and heads of households. In fact, the unemployment rate for heads of households fell below 5 per cent for the first time since late 1974.

The unemployment rate for married men and adult women remained unchanged. Blacks experienced an 0.5 per cent increase in joblessness to 13.7 per cent while unemployment among teen-agers fell 0.7 per cent to 12.2 per cent.

After falling 2.2 million, total employment has now returned to its pre-recession peak of 86.3 million workers. Most of the recovery has taken place among women. Employment among men is still 700,000 below its high point.

Adult women also have accounted for most of the 1.9 million increase in the total labor force over the past year. The labor force held steady at 92.5 million during February.

Non-agricultural payroll employment rose 210,000 in February, capping months of steady increase. At 78.3 million, payroll employment is still 400,000 below its all-time high set in September, 1974.

Agricultural employment dropped 170,000 while nonagricultural employment grew by 300,000 in February.

Manufacturing jobs continued to rise, but available jobs in the construction industry dropped by nearly 60,000 after a slight uptick in January. Jobs in construction continue to hover around their recession low.

Trade services gained 100,000 jobs, most of them in retail stores. Transportation and utilities provided 30,000 more jobs.

South Windsor man killed; neighbor faces charges

Leonard Flannery, 54, of 110 Pine Tree Lane, South Windsor, was stabbed to death in his home about 6:30 a.m. today and a neighbor has been charged with murder and burglary.

Police said John M. Franklyn, 24, of 430 Benedict Dr., was arrested and arraigned this morning in Common Pleas Court 12, East Hartford. Bond was set at $100,000 and he was taken to the Hartford Correctional Center. His case was continued to March 12.

Police Chief John Kerrigan said Flannery and his wife, Madeline, were at home when the house was entered about 6 a.m.

Chief Kerrigan said the Major Crime Squad of the State Police is at the scene today conducting a thorough investigation. No more information was available at press time.

South Windsor official resigns

Terry V. Sprekel, town manager of South Windsor for the past 14 years, has resigned.

Sprekel announced his resignation to members of the town staff today. He will take a $30,000-a-year position as city manager of Ames, Iowa, April 20.

Sprekel said today the recent move by some to change the local form of government from council-manager to strong mayor had "absolutely nothing to do with my decision to take a different position."

"I was approached by the city (Ames) as early as the beginning of November," said Sprekel. "My decision to accept this post in Ames is based solely on the opportunity for self improvement in my career."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fiddle-playing Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, who has tried to introduce efficiency into the Senate, has the inside track to succeed retiring Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

But Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine has already announced he will try to install one of their own. Byrd is now assistant Senate leader.

"There is a time to stay and a time to go," Mansfield told the Senate in a brief speech at the start of Thursday's session.

His announcement touched off Senate tributes which went on for 40 minutes. Mansfield listened, his head cupped in his hand, then finally rose and cut it off. The accolades resumed later in the day.

Senate insiders say Muskie might provide the smoothest transition in the leadership position. Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota is a likely candidate also, and Sens. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, Birch Bayh of Indiana, and Alan Cranston of California are other possible Byrd opponents.

Mansfield, who began his career in public service at the age of 14 when he enlisted in the Navy, has served as Senate Democratic leader longer than any other man in history. There has been speculation in recent years that he would not seek another term because of his age.

A former history and political science professor, Mansfield served five terms in the House before his election to the Senate in 1952. He easily won re-election to three additional terms.

He was born in New York City's Greenwich Village, but his parents moved to Great Falls, Mont., when he was three.

He never finished the eighth grade. At 14, concealing his real age, he left home and enlisted in the Navy in World War I. He served for two years before shifting to the Army in 1919-1920, then finished up as a Marine in China from 1922.

Returning home, he worked around Butte as a miner and mining engineer. He went to Montana School of Mines in Butte in 1927-28, and Montana State University from 1930-1934, earning undergraduate and graduate degrees.

But Mansfield carved a strong liberal voting record on domestic issues and has had strong labor support throughout his political career.

Veterans fund compromise unacceptable to governor

HARTFORD (UPI) — A compromise to liquidate the $29 million Soldiers, Sailors and Marine Fund but replace it within five years was opposed today by Gov. Ella T. Grasso.

Mrs. Grasso said the compromise, to borrow rather than appropriate the fund in order to create part of a $40 million state deficit predicted by June 30, would only postpone the state's financial troubles.

"It is a due bill that must be paid at some future time," the governor, recuperating from the flu, told a news conference. "It still adds to the state's indebtedness."

"In other matters, Mrs. Grasso said she will ask for an explanation of state laws on the transportation of nuclear wastes and that she was not sure bilateral state budgets would be the answer to state financial troubles.

New program not club: Shedd

VERNON
BARBARA RICHMOND
"The name of the game is improving instruction," Dr. Mark Shedd, state commissioner of education, told a large audience of Vernon teachers Thursday.
"The program is not a club with which to beat teachers over the head," Shedd said.
"The program is a teacher evaluation. He spoke at Rockville High School and later, along with others, was taken on a tour of the school's new wing.
Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, Vernon's superintendent of schools, said Dr. Shedd's visit to Vernon was the first time a state commissioner of education has visited the town since 1938.
Dr. Ramsdell explained the program has been made compulsory through an act of the General Assembly. Vernon, and the towns of Enfield and Windsor Locks have joined forces to develop a program through a $10,000 mini-grant.
Dr. Shedd said the ultimate benefit will be the student in the classroom, "and how better to improve than to take stock of our own teaching."
He said the state has made a request for a quarter of a million dollars in its 1976-77 budget to develop the programs across the state.
He said self and observer evaluation are necessary. "It should motivate inner incentive."

Town to consider paper ballots

A Town Meeting has been set for Wednesday to consider an ordinance requiring paper ballot voting at all Town Meetings.
The meeting was called by the Board of Selectmen after the town clerk received petitions with over 150 signatures requesting it.
The petition was circulated by the Andover Committee for Better Government.
It plans to circulate another petition so the ordinance can be voted on at a referendum (voting machine).

Fire Chief William Borst told the Board of Finance at a recent meeting there are problems in the department's budget in the fuel oil and vehicle maintenance accounts.

Borst said the appropriation in the fuel account is $2,370 and it is estimated some $2,003 will be spent.
Finance Board chairman Richard Grant has asked First Selectman Aaron Reid if the town could take over the maintenance of the fire equipment. Reid said the town has been doing the labor but the major

Town lost $4,000 says Butterfield

BOLTON
H. Virginia Butterfield told the Board of Finance this week it may have lost over $4,000 in interest monies due to the way the town bought the E. J. Holl lands.
Mrs. Butterfield asked the board Monday night whether the town had received reimbursement by the state or federal government for its purchase of the Holl property. Members said no.
She asked them to short-term bond the amount of the purchase price and return it to the general fund so it can be used to reduce the next year's mill rate.
The town paid for the property with $30,000 from capital and non-recurring funds and $90,000 from the general fund.
Mrs. Butterfield contends the town should not have taken the money from its accounts. It had short-term bonded the purchase price, it would have paid out a low interest on the bonds. At the same time, the town's own funds would have been earning a higher interest in the bank.
The difference amounts to over $4,000, she said.
She said she spoke to Norman Preuss, selectman, about the matter.

program has its critics and problems.
Dennis Gessay, president of the Vernon Education Association, asked Dr. Shedd the intent of the law. He said it was not very specific.
"Will it eventually lead to a tool of teacher destruction or teacher improvement?" he asked.
Dr. Shedd said when the law was first introduced some thought it could be employed as a club with which to beat teachers over the head. He said evaluation should be a tool to improve teaching and learning.
As I examine the guidelines I'm satisfied that, in the main, they are attempting to carry out the program in that light," Dr. Shedd said.
"It's important at this time to concentrate on in-service education of teachers," he said.
Philip Audibert, a teacher in the system, asked if students have a role in teacher evaluation.
"If not, they should have," he said.
Dr. Shedd said if the program doesn't take into account what happens to the students then it's not a total evaluation.
He added, "The question is what should the mechanics be in checking on what happens to the kids in the program."

Panel rejects 'bottle bill'

HARTFORD (UPI) — The legislature's Environment Committee Thursday rejected the so-called "bottle bill" by a 15-15 vote. It was the second straight time the measure — banning flip-top cans and requiring at least 3-cent deposits on returnable bottles and 5 cents on non-returnable bottles — was rejected. It passed the committee in 1975 only to be voted down on the House floor.

Rep. James O'Connor, D-Killingly, the only committee member to vote against the bill before the vote, said he opposed it because it would cause the loss of many jobs in the bottling industry. "The whole bowl of wax is jobs," he said, adding the Dayville Bottling Co. in his home town could have to lay off up to 300 of its about 1,000 employees if the bottle bill was enacted. Backers of the measure have argued it would drastically reduce highway litter and create new jobs in the collection, cleaning and reuse of returnable containers.

Before the vote, most committee members watched the meeting room doorway, counting the comings and goings of supporters and opponents of the bill. Lobbyists for the bottling industry pecked in from the hallway outside, keeping their own count of the votes.

Manchester, Tolland authors write first UoFH Press books

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Writer
A Manchester resident and a former Tolland resident, now living in Tolland, have authored the first two books to bear the imprint of the University of Hartford Press, under the university's new publications policy.
"Inner City Bicentennial Booklet: 1776-1976" was written by Dr. John E. Rogers, who lives at 1183 E. Middle Tpke., Manchester. Dr. Rogers is a UoFH consultant in Black History and Culture.
"Issues in Financing and Connecticut Governments" is a collection of essays compiled and edited by Dr. John J. Sullivan, a Manchester native now living on Crestwood Rd., Tolland. Dr. Sullivan is associate professor of economics at UoFH.
The 64-page Rogers' work is printed in four colors on heavy-coated stock and is illustrated liberally with colonial portraits. The book stems from a state grant under which 7,500 copies were printed, with delivery to superintendents of schools throughout Connecticut.
The Sullivan report, which runs to 92 printed pages, was published in cooperation with the Capitol Region Council of Governments. The book represents the proceedings of a tax symposium held by the Capitol Region on the UoFH campus in October 1975.
Topics covered in the Sullivan work are school finance, city-suburban exploration, politics and economics, all related to Connecticut. Prepared and published with federal, state and Capitol Region support, it is being distributed to all members of the General Assembly.
The Rogers' book was a joint effort with the state Board of Education, the Afro-American History Section within the UoFH Black Studies Program, and Greater Hartford Community College. It bears a tribute to the late Paul Laurence Dunbar, noted black poet, in the form of one of his verses:
"Little folks, be like the seedling,
"Always do the best you can."
"Every child must share life's labor,
"Just as well as every man."
The book honors state-wide figures and notable personalities during the Revolutionary War period.
The university's new publications policy is to place emphasis on faculty-initiated textbooks, with an ad hoc faculty committee reviewing suggestions by faculty members.
Both the Rogers' book and the Sullivan book are available at the Student Book Exchange in the Geogras Student Union, UoFH. Plans are to place them in area book stores.
Dr. Sullivan joined the UoFH faculty in 1966. He holds three degrees from the University of Connecticut, including a doctorate in economics. A consultant in state, local and public finance, he has many publications to his credit. His professional affiliations include the American Economic Association and the National Tax Association.
Dr. Rogers is a writer, lecturer and historian in black history. In recognition of his work in black culture, the UoFH awarded him an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree in 1970.
He was superintendent of the Bishop's Corner West Hartford branch post office in 1968 when he retired after 40 years with the U.S. Postal Service.
Dr. Rogers became associated with the Capitol Region Education Council, principally as a lecturer on Afro-American history and culture. In addition to his consultant's post at the UoFH, he teaches fall and spring courses as a member of the adjunct faculty.

Whelton's basket gives UConn win

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Connecticut was just "lucky" while Providence survived a "disaster," said the winning coaches Thursday after opening round victories in the New England ECAC Division I basketball tournament.

"We fell behind, gained our poise, then got lucky," said Dee Rowe, whose Connecticut team scored five points in the final three seconds to beat top-seeded Massachusetts, 73-69.

The Providence story was similar, as Bruce "Soup" Campbell grabbed a pair of rebounds and sank four free throws in the last 20 seconds to give the Friars a 64-61 win over Holy Cross.

"Campbell had some key rebounds for us," said Providence coach Dave Gavitt, "but our offense was almost a disaster. We had trouble getting inside the Massachusetts defense as Tony Hanson drove for

Biennial budget merits debated at hearing

HARTFORD (UPI) — The man who is in charge of drawing up the state's budget doesn't care whether he does it one year at a time or not, but some lawmakers do.

Finance Commissioner Jay O. Tepper Thursday told the legislature's Government Administration and Policy Committee he had mixed feelings about a proposal to put the state back on a system of two-year budgets abandoned in 1971.

Proponents of the measure argue it would prevent the crisis management forced recently by the wave of financial problems the state has faced. Some lawmakers claim two-year budgets would stop officials from trying only to meet their goal of ending the year in balance without thinking about the future.

"This type of legislation is essential if we want to encourage long range planning and budgeting and discourage stop-gap fiscal measures," said Sen. Joseph P. Flynn, D-Ansonia.

Rep. Russell L. Post Jr., R-Canton, suggested a compromise, urging lawmakers enact two-year budgets with the provision the second half of the budgets could be altered if income and spending expectations changed.

"The present system has not served us well, we've had a series of fiscal crises from year to year," he said, "but federal programs and the economy are difficult to project two years ahead."

Tepper, the chief architect of Gov. Ella T. Grasso's proposed budget, said he saw benefits and problems with either system.

"I could accept either," he said. "The main advantage of the annual budgets is you don't have to project so far in the future. But with biennial budgets you would have that off-year to analyze what was happening."

But Adolph G. Carlson, the finance commissioner under former Gov. Thomas Meskeli, a Republican, said the problem with forecasting revenues so far in advance made the idea impractical.

"There's a long gap between theory and practice," he said, noting the failure of revenue estimates to be on target could cause severe problems.

Drug price information bill gets CCAG support

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Connecticut Citizens Action Group has endorsed a measure requiring pharmacists to disclose drug prices over the telephone.

Last year, legislators pushed a law ordering drugstores to disclose prices to "potential customers," but many pharmacists interpreted it to mean persons physically in their area of service. Drug prices available over the phone would be especially helpful to elderly persons who find it hard to walk from store to store seeking the lowest prices.

The CCAG told the legislative General Law Committee Thursday.

Another bill under consideration by the committee, aimed at providing more consumer safeguards in door-to-door sales, was endorsed by a spokesman for the Washington-based National Direct Selling Association.

Future brighter for Tech quintet

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sports Editor

Sometimes life is good and sometimes not so good. This season was not so good for Cheney Tech's second year basketball coach Gerry Blanchard.

A year ago the Beavers compiled a 12-9 mark and qualified for post-season play after a lengthy hiatus. This campaign didn't turn out too well as the Techmen wound up 1-17 and tied for ninth in the Charter Oak Conference with Rocky Hill at 1-17.

There were two big drawbacks.

No. 1 and most importantly it went into the 1977-78 season without any returning starters. Secondly it found putting the ball into the hole most difficult.

"We just could not score," emphasized Blanchard. "We couldn't score from the field or from the foul line. We played without one seasoned veteran and confidence plays a big part in scoring."

Cheney started four seniors in the finale — Emil Haberern, Paul Strycharz, Jim Bartle and Lance Schors — but still Blanchard has hope for the future. "Despite the season we had it was a great year because we had a great bunch of kids to work with. This season makes me optimistic for next year because I saw a lot of good things from our young kids," he stated.

Haberern wound up as Cheney's top scorer with 216 points (10.8 average). Strycharz was next on the list with 213 markers followed by junior George Praxser (125), sophomore Tim Martin (103) and Bartle (83).

"We'll be doing again next year but a team with skills. We're getting some youngsters who can score — that's because they zoom up and down the court. We should be quick next year," Blanchard noted.

Among the promising junce performers are 6-2 sophomore Bernie Ertel, 5-10 sophomore Tony Broder, 6-0 junior Dave Mills and a pair of 5-8 sophomores, Brian Brown and Jim Bourdreaux. One player who could play a key role is 6-2 sophomore Kevin Tyler. "He could make the difference for a winning year," Blanchard offered, "but he is a definite question mark because of his attitude. If his attitude improves he'll be a big help."

Three current freshmen could play prominent roles with the varsity. They are 5-7 Gary Marinaca, Doug Landry and 6-3 Brian Connolly who missed most of this year with a fractured arm. Progress by all hinges on whether or not many of the hopefuls play in the summer. Blanchard has indicated strongly he wants the summer used as time to improve skills.

Whalers bombed

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Rookie Joe Norris scored just six seconds after the opening faceoff, the second fastest ever scored in WHA history, Thursday night to trigger the San Diego Mariners to an 8-2 rout of the New England Whalers.

The Whalers, who play Saturday at Phoenix, lost a chance to go ahead in the Eastern Division since front runner Cincinnati also lost Thursday night to Indianapolis. The Whalers, 3-2-4, were one point behind the Stingers.

The game also was highlighted by the first goal by U.S. Olympic star Bob Doherty, currently on a 10-game trial with the Mariners.

Doherty, who scored three goals and had four assists for the U.S. at Innsbruck, poked in a short-range shot at 12:55 of the final period to give San Diego a 7-2 lead.

Eight separate Mariners scored with Norm Ferguson collecting a goal and three assists to lead the way, John French and Ray Addomo each had a goal and two assists for San Diego.

FOC to show slides of Guatemala quake

Slides taken before and after the Guatemala earthquake will be shown by the Friends of Children Monday at 8 p.m. at Talcottville Congregational Church.

Miss Ana Marie Alvarado, an American Friends exchange student from Guatemala, will talk about her country. The slide program will also show some of the children aided by Friends of Children, which was constructing orphanages in that country when the earthquake struck.

A free-will offering will be taken to benefit the orphaned and homeless children. Donations of baby food, powdered milk and other nursery items will also be welcome.

Those wishing more information may contact Mrs. Lois Barnes, 64 Kenneth Dr., Vernon, the local Friends of Children representative.

State Democrats to have wide choice in May primary vote

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut Democrats will be able to choose from the full ideological spectrum of Democratic presidential candidates in the May 11 primary.

A United Press International check Thursday showed seven would enter the primary, ranging from Alabama Gov. George Wallace, considered the most conservative, to former Oklahoma Sen. Fred R. Harris, thought the most liberal.

Bunched somewhere in the middle are the two men who have claimed primary wins this year, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., the winner in Massachusetts earlier this week, and former Georgia Gov. Jim Carver, who won the New Hampshire ballot last month.

Also in the first primary in state history is Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., who has emerged as the liberal front-runner, former 1972 vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver and anti-nuclear candidate Ellen McCormack.

Party officials Thursday refused to disclose the candidates that have compiled with the deadline and state Chairman William O'Neill called a new conference for today to formally announce the field. Carver is the only of the participating candidates who has made a trip to Connecticut so far this year and his Manchester-based operation was the

Mike Hill's wife helpful

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Mike Hill's wife Sandra is no great shakes as a golfer. But she may have helped her husband improve his game.

"I hadn't been putting well of late," said Hill. "I felt my left hand was breaking. I asked my wife to take a look and she agreed."

"My wife isn't what you'd call a golfer, but she can tell what I'm doing if I tell her what I look for, so I firmed up my right hand."

The result was a 65 Thursday that sent Hill into today's second round of the $200,000 Citrus Open tied for the lead with Mark Hayes, one of the bright younger players on the PGA tour.

Actually, it was the 37-year-old Hill's iron shots that paved the way to Thursday's 7-under score. Hayes, a 27-year-old Oklahoman in only his third full year on the tour, is the one who had the hot putter.

Hill's longest birdie putt Thursday was only 16 feet and five of his seven birdie putts were 10 feet or shorter.

Hayes, who had eight birdies and a bogey, made five long birdie putts — two over 30 feet.

"It was a good feeling to see all those birdie putts go in," said Hayes.

"The greens were so good that all you had to do was read 'em right and stroke it in."

Despite those fine 65s, Hill and Hayes lead by only a stroke.

Gay Brewer, who will be 45 years old in a couple of weeks, had a 66. And there are four golfers just two strokes off the pace — four rookie George Barnes, Kermit Zarley, Pat Fitzsimons and John Schroeder.

Zarley, the leader among the half of the field that started in the morning, was fearful less than five months ago that he might never play golf again after a serious neck operation.

"I was just glad to shoot in the 60s," he said. "I've been in a slump for a long time. I've played poorly for about two years now and, after my operation last October, I didn't know if I'd ever play golf again."

Lease cleared

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The way has been cleared for the Buffalo Braves to sign a 15-year lease for the use of city-owned Memorial Auditorium with the Braves and Canisius College agreeing over the use of the auditorium on Saturdays.

The compromise, announced Thursday in the office of City Corporation Council Leslie G. Foschino, permits Canisius to play no more than eight college basketball games in the Auditorium on Saturday night. The agreement guarantees the National Basketball Association Braves at least 16 Saturday playing dates in the auditorium.
