'Law enforcement arts' class in action

Manchester Policeman Jon Hawthorne defends himself with a billy club as East Windsor Policeman Isidro Torres attacks with a knife during "Law Enforcement Arts" classes Wednesday at the Manchester Teen Center. The "arts" classes, part of the curriculum during spring sessions of the Manchester Regional Police Academy, included instruction and demonstration of self-defense techniques and special deterrent equipment. The academy, which opened its sessions this week, will be attended by about 200 policemen from six towns in the next 11 weeks. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Businessmen urge repeal of services sales tax

HARTFORD (UPI) — Business spokesmen, wearing labels urging lawmakers to "repeal 7 per cent on business services," testified in waves after wave that striking the tax would spur the state's ailing economy.

The representatives, of everything from employment agencies to junk dealers, Wednesday urged the legislature's Finance Committee to pass Gov. Ella T. Grasso's plan to repeal the 7 per cent levy on business services.

"We are hopeful the repeal of this tax will be the start of the revitalization of the Connecticut construction industry," said Robert Werme, of Norwalk, speaking for the Subcontractors Association of Connecticut.

"Similarly, since leading economists feel that a healthy construction industry means a healthy state economy, we feel the passage of this measure will be mutually beneficial to the State of Connecticut and the construction industry," he said.

He said the bill was vital because in recent years the industry had become heavily involved in renovation work, which was taxable. He said the levy was causing a slowdown on such orders.

The proposal is part of Mrs. Grasso's plan to balance the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. To compensate for the $25 million that would be raised by the tax, Mrs. Grasso is urging a hike in two cents per gallon in the levy on gasoline, which she says will raise $29.2 million.

No one spoke against the repeal and many witnesses wore the large tags which were handed out by a representative of the Associated Restaurants of Connecticut.

Consumer groups have opposed the gasoline levy, saying the switch benefits business at the expense of the average wage earner.

"This bill comes at a really good time to stimulate the economy," said Carroll J. Hughes, representing the Connecticut Solid Waste Association. John Singer, president of the Connecticut Hotel and Motel Association, said his 170 members needed the repeal so they could compete for the tourist business.

John Hobson, president of the State Association of Employment Agencies, said his group's 200 members were experiencing situations where persons refused jobs because they had to pay the tax on the commission.

Barbara Kamanitz, owner of Invest Management Group Inc., which she said manages more than 600 apartment units, said the tax was causing a hardship on landlords.

In Illinois showdown with Wallace

Carter out to prove Florida was no fluke

By LEWIS LORD
United Press International
Jimmy Carter says next Tuesday's Illinois primary will be another showdown between him and George Wallace, and will show that "Florida wasn't an accident."

President Ford, also fresh off a primary win in Florida flies to Illinois for a two-day sweep and a campaign visit Saturday to North Carolina; while Ronald Reagan played down the importance of coming in first and said his strong showings are reason to stay in the race.

With Fred Harris, Sargent Shriver and Wallace the only other Democrats on the Illinois ballot, Carter said his main opponent will be the Alabama governor he defeated in Florida Tuesday. "Illinois is my most important state in the nation," Carter said. "It will show that Florida wasn't an accident."

Reagan, campaigning in Illinois Wednesday night, didn't attach much importance to beating Ford in Illinois. His main objective, he insisted, was "to establish the fact that we can make a good showing."

"Getting 49 per cent of the vote in New Hampshire and 47 per cent in Florida," Reagan said, "does not mean that you fold your tent and silently steal away."

Ford said he assumes Reagan "will be in the ball game" until the GOP convention in August, although a Chicago Sun-Times poll showed the President ahead in Illinois by a margin of 53 per cent to 32 per cent.

Pleading process continues in fire district litigation

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

As part of the pleading process in the court action over fire-service jurisdiction in the Buckland area, Victor Moses, Manchester town counsel, has received replies to a list of questions he had submitted to John LaBelle, Eighth District counsel.

The Eighth District is suing the town in Hartford Superior Court, seeking a declaratory judgment determination of its right to furnish fire protection in Buckland, claiming that a Nov. 17, 1975 district referendum gives it that right. The referendum was in response to a petition for fire service, signed by more than half of the Buckland property owners. The petition was under the provisions of Public Act 200.

The questions asked of LaBelle by Moses are part of the pleading process. Under Rules of Practice and Pre-Trial Procedures, either party in an action can submit questions pertaining to the writ, requesting further information. Moses now must respond to LaBelle's answers. The procedure is intended to expedite trials and, in some instances, avoid a trial.

A trial is expected in this instance however, although it appears it will be several weeks before a court date is set.

Most of the questions asked by Moses deal with the petitions, the special meetings scheduled for considering the petitions, the Nov. 17 referendum, the procedure at the referendum, the list of eligible voters, etc.

However, one question by Moses asks, "In what way has the Town of Manchester thwarted the right of property owners of the Buckland Area to elect which fire department they wish to furnish fire protection services to their area?"

One of the complaints in the Eighth District court actions states, "...the defendant Town of Manchester has prevented and continues to prevent the District from extending its boundary lines within its authorized territory and from furnishing fire protection to the Buckland area."

Another complaint states, "The conduct of the Town of Manchester in preventing the District from extending its boundary lines and preventing the District from furnishing fire protection in the additional territory known as the Buckland Area vitally affects the public interest, has caused a serious conflict between the District and the owners of real property in the additional territory known as the Buckland Area on the one side and the Town of Manchester on the other."

A further complaint is that "the conduct by the Town of Manchester has thwarted the right of property owners of the Buckland Area to elect which fire department they wish to furnish fire protection to their area."

In reply to Moses' question relating to "thwarted the right," LaBelle wrote, "Since the Buckland property owners filed the petition and the District voted to extend the District lines to include the Buckland Area, the Town of Manchester has continued to assert fire protection authority for the area, including Fire Marshal authority."

Officials hope Wall St. investors will be bullish on Connecticut

HARTFORD (UPI) — State officials today seemed optimistic a Wall Street lobbying blitz by Gov. Ella T. Grasso will make investors bullish on Connecticut.

The governor went to New York Wednesday to plug a $100 million state bond issue, and while bankers and investment brokers who lunched with her were tight-lipped, one bond analyst said the sales pitch hit paydirt.

State officials were nervous about the March 17 bond offering because of the recent downgrading of the state's credit rating and the jittery bond market caused by New York City's financial troubles.

The bankers and brokers "seemed very pleased and almost all of them told me they thought Moody's was wrong in dropping its credit rating," said Robin Huntley, bond analyst for Connecticut Bank and Trust.

Moody's Investors Service dropped its Connecticut rating from AA to A1 last week, citing the rising state debt, but Standard and Poor's early this week retained its AA rating of the state.

State officials are reported expecting to pay between 6.2 and 6.5 per cent interest on the $100 million. An interest rate one per cent higher would mean an additional cost of $10 million.

Connecticut's last bond issue, shortly after its credit rating was dropped from AAA to AA last spring, was sold for 6.16 per cent. The previous bond issue was sold for 5.55 per cent. Mrs. Grasso and her aides arrived in New York on a Greyhound bus from Hartford, an apparent attempt to show she's tight on spending. She returned to the Capitol on a Connecticut police car to be able to make a 5 p.m. meeting.

The governor, who told the money men during a luncheon, "all I can think of is the lambs and the lions," assured them the state budget is tightly controlled and pledged she would not borrow to cover possible deficits.

"The State of Connecticut can and will overcome the problems that have plagued other states," she said.

"I can assure you I will not tolerate bonding any future deficits, should they occur," she said in the only remark that drew applause from the about 40 bankers and brokers.

When Mrs. Grasso opened the floor for questions, none was asked. "I think this is a good omen," she said.

An after-lunch "work session" between state officials and bond analysts drew few questions from the floor.

Mrs. Huntley said most analysts knew a lot about Connecticut's financial conditions and didn't have to ask questions.

Attending the session with the about 40 analysts were House Speaker James J. Kennedy, Treasurer Henry E. Parker, Finance Commissioner Jay O. Pepper, Comptroller J. Edward Caldwell and Senate Majority Leader Joseph I. Lieberman, D-New Haven.

State

HARTFORD — Barry Brunelle, 17, today cynically waited for further legislative action to see if he would collect the $10,000 he won in the lottery that state officials refused to pay because he is under age.

STAMFORD — Dr. Michael Sveda, discoverer of cyclamates, says an indefinite government report on marketing of the chemical sweetener is comical. The report said the committee studying the chemical could not say for sure whether cyclamates are capable of causing cancer in humans. It was disclosed that rats used in tests which led to the 1969 ban were not fed cyclamates alone but a mixture including saccharin.

Regional

WESTON, Mass. — Two short, sharp earthquakes were recorded in the southern part of Massachusetts about 3:29 a.m. today, according to the Weston Observatory. No injuries or property damage were reported, but radio stations in Rhode Island and Massachusetts received numerous calls from concerned residents.

AUGUSTA, Maine — The constitutional ban on prayer in the schools has no effect on prayer before legislative sessions, cabinet meetings or other government functions, according to Attorney General Joseph Brennan.

ATLANTA — Medical officials may recommend free flu vaccine to protect the nation from a major epidemic next fall.

DALLAS — A federal judge has ordered the busing of 20,000 students to desegregate the nation's eighth largest school district.

LOS ANGELES — Defense attorneys representing SLA suspects William and Emily Harris have asked for a one-year delay in their trial, claiming that a prejudicial pretrial "publicity blitz" makes it impossible to pick a fair and intelligent jury.

WASHINGTON — The House Armed Services Committee has completed work on a $33.3 billion military procurement bill, including $1.1 billion more than recommended by the administration for new ships, according to congressional sources.

WASHINGTON — A voluminous deposition from Richard Nixon reveals discrepancies between his recollections and Henry Kissinger's regarding just who chose the officials and newsmen to be wiretapped in search of leaks in 1969.

International

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Extremist Protestants have claimed responsibility for killing prominent Protestant leader Sammy Smyth. He was shot down in his sister's home Wednesday for recently advocating negotiations with Roman Catholic groups to end Northern Ireland's sectarian warfare.

School opening delayed by snow

Extra snow accumulation during Wednesday night and early this morning caused slippery road conditions in certain areas of Manchester so that school bus routes were delayed two hours.

School had originally been delayed one hour, but when Elmer Thrall, school bus contractor, and some of his drivers started out about 8 a.m. on their first run, they discovered hazardous driving conditions in the Wyllys and Porter Sts. area. Upon their advice, James P. Kennedy, school superintendent, delayed school opening another hour to give the snow a chance to melt.

Town Democrats re-elect committee officers

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

It took Manchester Democrats just over a minute Wednesday night to re-elect all officers of the Democratic Town Committee — unanimously and without opposition. It was on a motion by Mayor Matt Moriarty, seconded by a chorus of voices.

Re-elected to two-year terms were Ted Cummings, chairman; Dorothy Brindamour, vice-chairman; Mary LeDuc, secretary; and Paul Phillips, treasurer.

Cummings, who is state representative from the 12th Assembly District and is a former town director and school board member, has been chairman since January 1961, when he succeeded Steve Cavagnaro.

Except for brief "thank you's" from the four officers, there were no speeches.

The 80-member town committee seated Wednesday night was elected by caucus Jan. 21. It includes 10 newcomers — 7 elected to fill vacancies and 3 who unseated 3 incumbents. The terms are to March 1978.

Phillips reported a $2,299 balance in the treasury, compared to a $3,510 balance a year ago and $3,261 two years ago. He said the November 1975 election cost $8,294, compared to $7,024 in 1974 and $7,096 in 1973.

The committee voted a $25 contribution to the Edward Moriarty Scholarship Fund and a $10 contribution to the Town Meeting '76 (a Bicentennial effort). The late Edward Moriarty was long-time Democratic registrar of voters.

Phillips, co-chairman with Herbert Stevenson of a dinner-dance planned for May 15, said it will be at Willie's Steak House, 444 Center St., with about 300 persons expected. The event is the fourth annual dinner-dance for "Honoring Democratic Friends."

Cummings and Stevenson (Democratic registrar of voters) told the committee members of the ambitious schedule ahead of them, starting with March 24 at 8 p.m.

That night, the Democrats will endorse delegates to the July 18-19 state convention; July 20 First Congressional District convention; July 21 Third and Fourth Senatorial Districts conventions; and July 22 Ninth and Fourteenth Assembly District conventions, all to name

Math team wins second in league

The Manchester High School math team won second place last week in a Capitol Area Mathematics League contest at East Hartford High School in East Hartford.

Manchester High is in overall second place in CAMEL standings and has qualified to take part in the Connecticut State Association of Mathematics Leagues competition May 1.

At the last meet, the Manchester team scored a total of 67 points and is topped by only Conard High School of West Hartford.

Doug Baker, senior, led the team with a perfect score of 18 points. Other team members were Dave Hardy, Bob Weiss and Mark Otter, all juniors, and Dave Ostrom, sophomore.

In the B-League competition, Sandie Bellone, sophomore, scored 15 points.

Manchester High School will host the next and last math meet of the year April 7 at 3 p.m. in the school cafeteria. The public is invited.

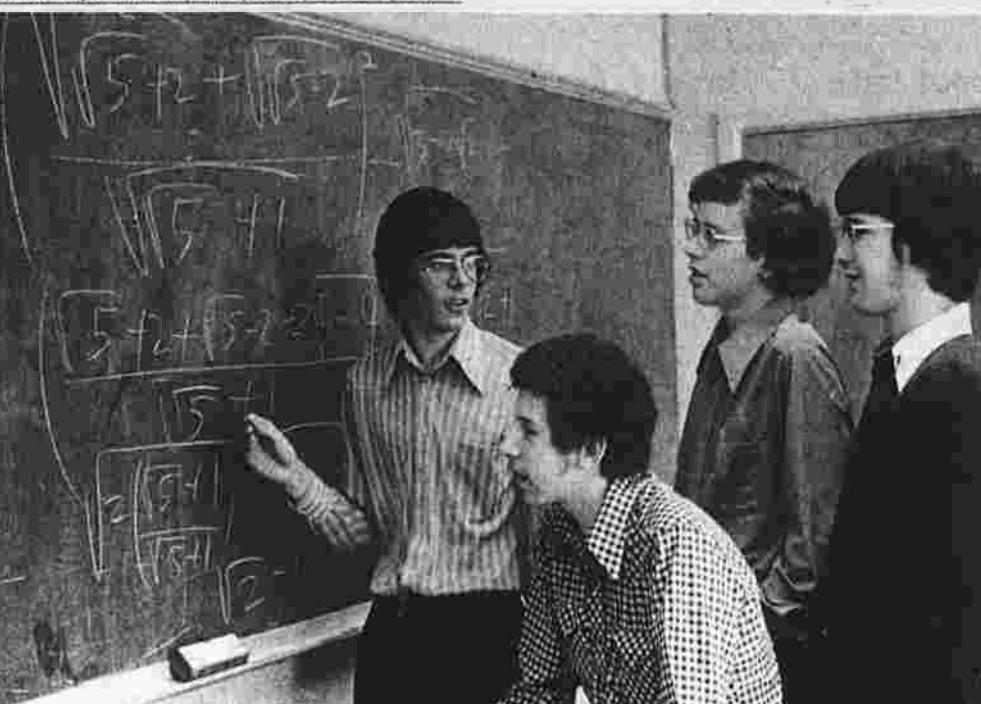

At this meet, 25 area schools will be battling for the top positions. The two schools with the highest ratings in each division will compete in the New England Mathematics League competition May 7 in Worcester, Mass.

In addition, a team of 15 students from Connecticut will compete with teams from Maine to Virginia in the first annual Atlantic Region Mathematics League contest at C.W. Post College in Waterbury June 4 and 5.

Juveniles accused of burglaries

Manchester Police detectives, continuing to investigate a large number of burglaries in recent months, have charged two 15-year-old boys with a variety of breaks into public and private buildings.

Detective Capt. Joseph Sartor said the two boys are accused of a total of eight burglaries. Each boy was released to his parents and referred to Juvenile Court, Sartor said.

Sartor said the first boy was responsible for two breaks into the Lutz Junior Museum, a break into the House of Chung on Broad St., a break into the Red & White Stand on W. Center St., a break into a local bakery and a break into a private home.

The other boy, Sartor said, was responsible for two breaks into private homes.

Sartor said it appears that more and more of the burglaries reported in Manchester are the work of juveniles.

F15 jet engine pact expanded

EAST HARTFORD — The U.S. Air Force has announced that United Technologies has been awarded a $524 million addition to its contract to build F15 fighter plane engines at its East Hartford Pratt & Whitney plant.

The Air Force plans to purchase 108 F15 Eagle fighters, which are being built by McDonnell Douglas Corp. at a total cost of $1.6 billion in the current fiscal year ending June 30.

Educators try to halt budget cuts at hearing

HARTFORD (UPI) — The bill, part of Gov. E. J. Depina's austerity budget-cutting attempt, would allow that would limit the schools to count only 180 amount of aid local schools days for their average day could get from state membership grants.

Despite the opposition, the bill appeared likely to emerge from the Connecticut Education Association and the Connecticut Association of Boards of Education the Democratic legislature's Education Committee. "I don't have any problems with it and it tends to would seriously interfere with the operations of these schools systems at a time when they don't need greater deprivalions," Barstow said.

Roger Rivers, representing the school boards, said his group's random study had found 66 per cent of the districts had teacher contracts requiring more than 180 days of work. He said the most days the survey had shown was 183.

Walsh said the loss was something local schools would have to absorb because of the economy.

Opinion

Income tax advocated for the wrong reasons

Rather than face certain economic realities, there are more and more people succumbing to the lure of a state personal income tax as a device to get Connecticut out of its deficit fiscal condition.

They would have us believe the deficit is the disease rather than the symptom of the disease. The real disease afflicting Connecticut is that we have for too many years lived beyond our means. More bluntly stated, we are currently paying for mismanagement.

The tax and tax and tax and spend philosophy got us to where we are today. Adoption of a state personal income tax would merely be a perpetuation of this downhill slide toward bankruptcy.

Supporters of the state income tax generally fall into three groups.

First, those who want more revenue for self-interest reasons like maintaining the 35-hour state employ work week.

Second, those who want to continually expand state services or funding of services.

Third, those—and these people are a very small minority—who see a state income tax as one form of taxation which must be considered in the whole tax perspective if Connecticut is to have an equitable tax system which adequately funds legitimate state functions.

The main objection to the first two reasons for a sales tax is that the demands in both instances are often open-ended and therefore the income tax would increase as demands for more funds are made. This is not to say that legitimate needs should be static but earmarking of funds either directly or indirectly carries with it the evil that funds often are expended regardless of justification.

Therefore, we would oppose a personal income tax which was designated in part or in toto for state salaries, or any other specific need.

Civil rights act needs some revision

WASHINGTON—Comment seems mandatory on a "freedom" cause our beleaguered Supreme Court has agreed to hear. Is this age of litigation imperiling the highest bench's collective sanity?

On today's docket is the Court's vote to decide whether employers must adjust business routines to accommodate employees whose religion prohibits working on Saturdays.

The case involves one Paul Cummins, who was fired in 1971 as a supervisor in the Berea, Ky., plant of the Parker Seal Co., which makes rubber seals. Cummins joined the World Wide Church of God, which has a rigid ban on Saturday work, in 1970, and for almost a year managed to observe his sect's sabbath day and hold his job. Then, he claims, a change in management and complaints from co-workers caused his dismissal.

Religious discrimination in private employment was outlawed by Congress in 1964 in a provision of the Civil Rights Act. In 1972, the law was amended to state that employers may not discriminate on the basis of such religious practices as Saturday sabbaths.

Since then, some courts have upheld the federal law requiring some adjustment by employers. Other courts have ruled that it is unreasonable to require employers to yield to the particular religious beliefs and practices of some of their workers. Cummins' suit was tossed out by one federal judge, but it was reinstated by a U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which said the company failed to show that accommodating Cummins' religious needs would work an "undue hardship" on the company.

The company argues that the law is an unconstitutional "establishment of religion." The company has a point. Instead of safeguarding religious liberty, the law does seem to violate the religious neutrality of the First Amendment by putting the government on the side of particular sects—and, for that matter, of religion per se.

But, pty the Supreme Court. By agreeing to hear the Cummins case it has entered an almost impregnable thicket.

First, there is the problem of other religious sects which observe Saturday as the sabbath, notably Orthodox Jews, Seventh Day Baptists and Seventh Day Adventists. If the Court rules in Cummins' favor, it rules in effect that members of these other sects may not be required to work on Saturday.

There is no law against a group or individual establishing a religion, as the recent past especially has demonstrated. Nobody can stop me from appointing myself a prophet, authorized by higher authority to save souls—and, incidentally, to decree that members of my sect may not work on a Thursday, or a Monday.

Don't kid yourself that there aren't precedents to support such a hypothetical case. Christmas is still an official U.S. holiday, and so is New Year's Day, the feast of Christ's

Missile balance tips to Soviet Union

WASHINGTON—The signs are now clear. Leonid Brezhnev and associates in the Kremlin believe time is on their side in the strategic missile race.

They're happy with the present treaty, expiring late next year, which gives the USSR virtually a free hand to develop and build strategic missiles to the limits of its scientific and economic ability. And binds the United States, through unilateral "understanding" announced by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, to very strict limits on what nuclear expansion this country can undertake.

With Soviet military-strategic research, now roughly double that of the U.S., the Russians could overtake and surpass us in critical areas within the next two decades.

Kissinger's failure in his Moscow mission to break the impasse in the in this cruise business, there's a military pig in the poke. Short-range cruise missiles—with longer ranges barred—give the Soviet Union a major advantage. Longer-range cruise missiles would bring back a balance.

Because 40 per cent of major U.S. targets lie along our coasts, Soviet submarines with short-range cruise missiles could hide in the nearby seas and, in war, destroy a considerable chunk of our industry and population. By contrast, the Soviet Union is effectively an inland country; less than 2 per cent of the key military targets would be within the range of U.S. submarines armed with short-range cruise missiles.

Though its anti-missile defenses are almost worthless, the Soviet Union has developed a highly sophisticated air defense system. It would be difficult indeed for U.S. bombers to penetrate at all in any numbers without the assistance of long-range cruise missiles fired from without Russia's borders. Short-range cruise missiles would be of little value.

By contrast, the continental U.S. has so little in the way of air defense, Soviet bombers could penetrate at will. Short-range cruise missiles are adequate.

Lower taxes may be key to White House in 1976

By DONALD LAMBRO
 WASHINGTON (UPI)—A certainty in this year's crowded scramble for the White House is that almost every presidential candidate will make almost every political promise except one: permanently and substantially lower taxes.

True, President Ford is hammering away on behalf of his proposal to reduce spending and cut taxes. And GOP challenger Ronald Reagan, has floated an ambitious plan to cut spending by $50 billion and reduce taxes by 23 per cent.

But their battle appears to be a lonely academic exercise in party philosophy, for the ideas have raised little interest among most of the Democratic party's brigade of announced candidates.

Proposed programs and policies are already filling newspapers and the airwaves, but will anyone say anything about cutting taxes?

Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., is pushing national health insurance. Former Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., wants to break up large corporations and redistribute the nation's wealth. And Alabama Gov. George Wallace says he is aligned with the "little people."

But it is hard to find any candidate who is giving paramount importance to the one issue most complained about most.

Rich, poor, or middle class, taxes affect the livelihood of every American. It is particularly true of large lower middle class families and persons nearing retirement, who are trying to put enough income away for their later years.

But the subject seems to be traditionally absent from presidential campaigns. Why?

The question is prompted by about a dozen letters to this reporter following a piece on wasteful federal spending. Here's a sample from a Woodland, Calif. couple:

"We know we are being ripped off, but we people in the upper middle income don't know what to do about it. We try to tell our congressmen and they make promises, but we sure don't see any results. My husband is 60 years old, we have raised a large family (five kids), and right today one third of our income goes to taxes. We love our country, but it is infuriating to see the rich get richer, the poor get poorer, while we in the middle strive for financial independence and the security that a paid-for home and an adequate income will see us through our later years."

"So far we have not read about a plan to let a couple retire in dignity and comfort."

The presidential candidate who offers a sound tax plan to allow this couple and millions like them to keep more of their income to raise their families and provide for their retirement years will win the election.

Bat's gun gets $36,000

This Colt .45 pistol which had been owned by the legendary western lawman and gambler Bat Masterson sold this week at a Sotheby Parke Bernet auction in Los Angeles for $36,000. It was purchased by an anonymous Texas collector who flew in for the sale. The pistol rests on an original letter Masterson wrote the Colt company in Hartford ordering the gun and making the request "make it very easy on the trigger." (UPI photo)

Pistol Pete and Tiny

Neither the New Orleans Jazz nor the Kansas City Kings will win the National Basketball Association title this season and the chances are good that neither will even win their divisional title. However, each boasts one talented individual who ranks with the top 10 players in the NBA, Pistol Pete Maravich of the Jazz and Nate Archibald of the Kings.

Atlanta and New Orleans went home with victories, Portland and Kansas City fell to the green and white clad Celts. Cleveland, one of the most pleasant surprises in the NBA this season, will close out the Celtic state in Hartford April 6.

Notes off the cuff Elgin Baylor, one of pro basketball's all-time greats and now an assistant coach with the New Orleans Jazz, told me this week in Hartford that he is just one player away and a year's experience from being a winner.

Thinking man: Charlie Finley

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whether you happen to be a Charlie Finley fan or whether you don't, you have to give him this — he's always in there thinking. Ever since baseball was invented, ballplayers generally ran around in working clothes that were tattle-tale gray. Finley fixed that. He changed the entire concept of baseball uniforms, stitching half the colors of a rainbow into those of his Oakland A's, and after all the other owners got through laughing at him they went out and did the same thing he did.

CHARLIE FINLEY

Undeclared season surprise for coach

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sports Editor

Twenty-one wins in 24 games — the CCLL championship — this has been quite a year for Manchester High basketball.

The Indians won the league by five games with an unblemished 15-0 record. They upended defending LL Division champ Bridgeport Central in first round play before being sent to the sidelines by Lee High of New Haven.

I was surprised we went through the league undefeated," stated Coach Doug Pearson, "but I knew we'd have a good team which would make the tournament. You have to give the players credit. They had a tremendous desire to do well as a team and they gave much more effort than any coach can ask."

Manchester loses five seniors to graduation — newly crowned single season and career scoring champ Mike Quesnel, Bruce Ballard, Jim McNickle, Mark Demko and Brett Carlson. Quesnel, 6-4 forward, pumped in 407 points playing in all 24 games and averaged almost a dozen rebounds hitting in 282 caroms. He was also in the assist department with 86.

Thinking man: Charlie Finley

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "numbers game" between baseball's clubowners and the Major League Players Association gets more complicated every day. It was the owners' turn Wednesday to throw a new curve at the players and they did with an offer to allow a player to become a free agent after seven years of major league service.

Miller has compromised to the point where he says he could negotiate a six- or seven-year reserve clause for players of the future but that he hasn't got the right to do so in regard to existing contracts.

Lusa, Quesnel festival picks

Two local cagers have been selected to play in the second annual Connecticut High School Coaches' Association Basketball Festival March 20 in Southern Connecticut State College in New Haven.

Everybody will have to chip in a little bit more. In my opinion he is the finest player Manchester High has ever had. He does it all," Pearson appraised.

Replacing Ballard, defensive specialist who found time to be third leading scorer and rebounder (137 caroms), might be the most difficult job. "You need a forward capable of shutting off the opponent's big gun. It makes your job that much easier," Pearson remarked.

McNickle started slowly but as the season went on improved tremendously and was the steadiest guard. He was the one who directed the attack, winding up second in the assist department with 85. Demko played in 19 games, missing five, and was in pain the entire year. He has had knees which will require surgery according to Pearson.

The Silk Towners will return two starters next year — junior guard Jeff Kiernan, No. 6 man, 6-3 sophomore Scott Hyde also returns. Pisch was the second leading scorer with 275 points and the light-fingered backcourt performer led in steals with 46 swipes. Kiernan moved into the starting lineup in the season and came on strong at the end. He was fourth leading point producer

Celts shoot badly, play worse, win

BOSTON (UPI) — It's getting to be like a broken record. The Boston Celtics have established a trend where they shoot badly, play worse, and then beat themselves after the game for their terrible performance.

And lately, it hasn't mattered whether they've won or lost. The post game quotes always come out sounding the same.

Wednesday night's song and dance came from Dave Cowens after his free throw with 48 seconds left in the game enabled the Celtics to squeak past the Los Angeles Lakers, 92-89. "We're shooting very poorly as a team," remarked Cowens, echoing the sentiments of the entire team over the last month. "We haven't scored 100 points in our last six games, and we're a fast-breaking team. We've struggled since the all-star break. Only played about 500."

The Celtics shot 43.4 Wednesday night, and they won because the Lakers shot 37.2. Boston couldn't take advantage of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's foot trouble until the last quarter.

"I can't explain it," said Cowens. "I wish I could, but I think I'd do something about it. We just can't go on like this."

The two teams went the first two-and-a-half minutes without a basket before a Cowens layup put Boston ahead. And with only 3:30 remaining in the first quarter, Boston had only scored 10 points.

"It couldn't be just because John Havlicek's out with his injury," said forward Paul Silas. "We all know what we have to do. Sure we need him, but we should be able to band together without him. It's just a slump."

Charlie Scott took over the second stanza, and the Celtics had a 44-43 halftime lead.

But Boston went cold in the second half, and the Lakers rallied to a 67-63 lead after three quarters. But Stacom and Don Nelson triggered a 9-4 Boston spurt early in the fourth quarter and gave Boston a 72-71 lead.

Shortly thereafter, Scott and Stacom led an 11-4 run and the Celtics led 83-75.

But Los Angeles got six straight points and trailed 83-81 with only 3:50 remaining.

It became a seesaw battle until Jabbar fouled Cowens with 48 seconds left and the score tied at 89. Cowens hit one of the free throws and Stacom sealed the game with a running layup with six seconds remaining.

The next Boston game is Sunday at home against the Washington Bullets.

Pro basketball

76ers 125, Suns 108
Joe Bryant scored a career high 26 points and George McGinnis had 13 of his 17 points in the final period to help Philadelphia rally to defeat Phoenix, 125-108.

Knicks 113, Blazers 110
Calvin Murphy scored 31 points and led the final 24 seconds with a dribbling exhibition to preserve New York's victory over Portland.

Pacers 129, Nuggets 119
Indiana overcame a 42-point performance by Dan Issel to beat Denver. Don Buse sparked Indiana with a team record 19 assists. Buse also added six thefts. Billy Knight led Indiana with 31 points.

Knicks 128, Spurs 124
Julius Erving had 18 of his 39 points in overtime to give Kentucky its fourth straight victory. Johnny Neumann paced the Colonels with 31 points.

Blazers 2, Leafs 2
St. Louis captain Gary Unger played in his 631st consecutive game to become the NHL's all-time iron man, surpassing former New York Ranger Andy Hebenton. Unger also pulled the Nets even.

Canadiens look good

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Montreal Canadiens are looking more and more like their fabled high-scoring ancestors of the 1960s and 60s.

The Canadiens scored twice within 21 seconds in the first 5:36 minutes, three times in the first period, and coasted to a 5-1 victory to run their unbeaten string to 11 games. The Hawks' losing streak went to five games.

Flames 4, North Stars 1
Bill Flett, Larry Romanchuk and Eric Hall scored third period goals to give the Canadiens their best ever in 1972-73 when they lost only 10 games, a league record. This year the Canadiens have lost only nine of 69 games.

Goalie Jack Norris played the percentages and Phoenix came away a winner by a 3-2 margin in a World Hockey Association contest against the New England Whalers Wednesday night.

Norris scored a pair of quality opportunities by the Whalers' Thommy Abrahamson and Garry Swain in the third period to protect the one-goal margin. The Roadrunners owned going into the final 20 minutes of regulation play.

"When an opponent has a clear shot, you have to know his tendencies because it gives you that little edge that a goalie needs. Luckily, I guessed right over there tonight and so we got a win we needed badly," Norris said.

"We had lost four games in a row on the road and it was time for us to change things," the Phoenix goalie added. "I got great help from the wings tonight as they backchecking made things easier for me."

The Roadrunners improved their record to 34-27-9, but they still trail first-place Houston by 12 points in the West Division. The Whalers dropped into third place in the East Division race with a 28-34-6 record. Cleveland, which beat Cincinnati 5-2 Wednesday night, moved into a first-place tie with the Stingers at 83 points.

A goal with only 40 seconds remaining in the second period by left wing Del Hall proved to be the game-winner. Hall's shot came from the left point after picking up a deflected drive off Whalers' defenseman Allan Hangesleben.

The game also marked the debut of defenseman Ron Busnik which played for the now-defunct Minnesota Fighting Saints.

Busnik, a 5-foot-11-pounder who weighs 188 pounds, had 16 minutes in penalties with an aggressive style of play. The Roadrunners also received goals from Jim Boyd and Robbie Florek. Boyd's second-period goal was his 20th of the season. Florek's 32nd goal of the campaign came in the opening period.

Larry Pleau collected both goals for the Whalers, his 26th and 26th of the season. They came in the second period as the Whalers worked their way back from a 2-0 deficit.

But the comeback went for naught on the strength of Hall's goal and the solid work in goal by Norris.

The next game for the Whalers is against Cleveland Friday night at Hartford.

Pro hockey

the Canucks to grab a share of the NHL's Smythe Division lead in the wake of Chicago's loss to Montreal, 5-4, on Wednesday.

Seals 4, Red Wings 3
Fred Ahern's third period tally capped a final period comeback that enabled California to overcome a 3-0 deficit. Bob Girard, Dennis Maruk and Al MacAdam scored the goals for the Seals and Ahern scored the game-winner with less than seven minutes left. The game had 132 minutes in penalties and six fights.

Jim Harrison scored his 30th goal and Ron Ward hit 29th as Cleveland beat Cincinnati to move into a tie for first in the WHA East. Mats Lindh scored two goals to lead Winnipeg's rout of Quebec in a game marred by a major brawl that required police to quell 184 penalty minutes.

Del Hall scored with 40 seconds left in the second period to provide the game-winning goal in Phoenix' triumph over New England.

Knicks 38-37
John Wierczok led the Knicks with 15 points and Dave Hall added seven. Rick Costello's 14 points paced the Braves.

Bob Smith's 10 points led the Lakers. It was his 20 successful free throws with 10 seconds left that broke a tie and decided the issue. Darryl Downham added eight points to the cause. Best in defeat were Mike Keenan and Craig Ostroff with 15 and eight point markers.

Jabbar raps game official

BOSTON (UPI) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar believes NBA referee Bob Rakek is holding a grudge against him because Jabbar accused an official of ineptitude last year.

Jabbar made his feelings known after his Los Angeles Lakers were defeated 92-89 by the Boston Celtics Wednesday night. He was in foul trouble all night and eventually fouled out with 48 seconds left. Rakek was one of the referees.

"One of the officials is holding a grudge against me, and I think it has something to do with the color of my skin, and I think it has to do with an incident last year," said Jabbar. "Remember, last year I had that incident with Jerry Loeber and Bob Rakek was officiating the game with him. I guess he and Loeber are friends. I think Rakek is carrying a grudge against me."

Jabbar's said last year Loeber "set a standard for ineptitude that is unequalled."

The 7-foot-2 center said Rakek is looking to call fouls on him.

Explosion hurts youth

SOUTH WINDSOR

A youth lost a finger from his left hand in an accident Wednesday night in the garage of his home.
Brian Oliveira, 16, of 83 Murray Rd. was experimenting with an expanded Co-2 cartridge, police said. He allegedly placed match heads in the cartridge. While attempting to hammer in a screw, the cartridge exploded, police said.
The youth was first taken to Manchester Memorial Hospital and then transferred to Hartford Hospital. He suffered other injuries to his hand. His brother, Robert Oliveira, 12, suffered a slight injury to his leg and was taken to MMH, police said.

COVENTRY

Lanlaw Lindinger Jr., 17, of Hartford, was arrested Wednesday on a warrant charging him with assault on a police officer, second degree larceny, criminal attempt to commit fourth-degree larceny, and third-degree criminal mischief.
The arrest involved an incident at a Gasland on Rt. 44A during which a police officer was injured and a chase involving three stolen cars ensued. Others have been charged on a $2,000 non-surety bond for appearance in court in Rockville, March 31.

Students brighter

BOLTON

The results of the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills show Bolton students are working above grade level when compared to national scores.
Specific strengths were noted in Grade 4, math concepts and usage, and Grade 5, vocabulary.
The only area below the national average was Grade 7, maps. It reflects a two month lag.
Grade 8 students showed a 16-month improvement in math since being tested last year.
Grade 7 students showed a 15-month growth in math and a 14-month growth in capitalization.

The results of the testing were presented to Board of Education members in a slide presentation by Janice Spear, guidance counselor. Mrs. Spear had packets of charts depicting the results for all board members.
Supt. Raymond Allen said the schools are moving in the right direction and he is pleased with the evenness of growth.

Rotary honors Thomas Benoit

VERNON

BARBARA RICHMOND
For his "contributions toward the betterment of the community," Mayor Thomas Benoit was named Rockville Rotary Club's 20th annual "Citizen of the Year," Wednesday night.
The award was given on the basis of his civic work over the past several years.
William Repoli, rotary president, outlined Benoit's contributions.
Repoli said in Benoit's Manchester High School yearbook, it says, "Personality and wit make a man who does not quit."
As a member of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce for about eight years, he served on the Board of Directors for three years and was chairman of the Beautification Committee. He proposed the program for the renovation of the Fox Hill tower.
He has been chairman of the T.B. Scholarship Fund since its start six years ago and set a goal of $10,000 which has almost been reached.
He has served as merchants' chairman of the Red Cross fund drive for three years as well as for the Heart Fund and the Cancer Fund drives.
He and another member of the Kosciuszko Club helped start a local Cystic Fibrosis fund drive. In the past seven years it has raised in excess of $20,000.
He is now president of the Rockville Exchange Club. He has served four years as an officer. This year he hopes to attain his goal of $5,000 to be donated for furnishings for the senior citizen center.
He is co-owner of Steve and Tom's Pizzeria in Ellington. He and his partner, Steve Bellinghieri, donated $4,000 to buy uniforms and equipment

Democrats elect Hornish as chairman

South Windsor

Robert R. Hornish, former South Windsor councilman, was elected chairman of the Democratic Town Committee Wednesday night.
Referred to as "a man who can bring us together" by State Rep. Abraham Glassman, Hornish will succeed outgoing chairman Dennis Moryhan.
"The Democratic Party of South Windsor is the majority party," said Hornish.
"I intend to do all I can to improve our position and status. I will endeavor to strengthen party unity and develop lines of communication that are so vital."
Hornish was elected for a third term as vice chairman. Sydney Cole was elected secretary and Richard Nicholson, treasurer.

Cohen challenges Myette's meeting

South Windsor

South Windsor Councilman David Cohen Wednesday night challenged the legality of a meeting of Second District Democrats, charging he received no notice of the meeting.
The meeting was called by Deputy Mayor Robert Myette, chairman of the Second District, for the purpose of election of officers. Myette was re-elected chairman.

"I challenge the legality of the meeting and the legality of the action that took place there," charged Cohen.
In his defense, Myette produced a letter signed by postal worker Dudley Morrell, stating that he had, in fact, sort 14 postal cards on Friday, March 5.

Among the cards giving notice of the meeting was a card addressed to David Cohen. Following the bitter encounter between the two Democratic councilmen, newly elected chairman Robert Hornish remarked, "It's rather apparent we have our little problems."
The executive board of the Democratic Town Committee is expected to make a decision regarding the legality of the Second District meeting within a few weeks.

Bolton's Grade 2 students serve breakfast

Area briefs

Andover — A "Flame For Freedom" ceremony will be held Friday from 6:30 until 7:30 p.m. at the school by Junior and Cadet Girl Scouts. Parents have been invited.
The ceremony is being repeated by Girl Scouts all over the nation to celebrate the Bicentennial and the 80th birthday of girl scouting. Across the country candles will be lit at exactly 7 p.m.
In Andover the Bicentennial taper will be lit by Helen Donahue, Sachem service unit area coordinator. Each girl present will have her own taper lit from the taper.
In a gesture of friendship, world association pins will be presented to all Girl Scouts who do not have them by those who do.
Each scout and parent was asked to bring one piece of fruit. The fruits will be combined to make a friendship salad for all to enjoy.

Bands needed
VERNON — Bands are wanted to compete in a "Battle of Bands," March 26 at the National Guard Armory, West St., Rockville. Proceeds from the show will go to the Cystic Fibrosis Fund. Any band group interested should contact Stanley Blomart, 36 Vernon Ave.

Mrs. Lucile Carlson, right, and Mrs. Hazel Dombek, both of Rockville, look over a copy of the June 1926 Rockville Journal which contains information of their class along with pictures.

Ladies plan 50th reunion

Mrs. Lucile Carlson and Mrs. Hazel Dombek, both of Rockville, are a two-member committee making plans for the 50th reunion of the Rockville High School Class of 1926.
There were 50 persons in the class, 12 of whom are deceased. Mrs. Carlson said the committee has been able to learn the addresses of all but three.
One is somewhere in Italy. Julia Crotta is a nun and the last Mrs. Carlson heard she was in Italy.
The other two are Philip Ain and Benjamin Kaufman.
Helen Sparrow Hicks was salutatorian of the class and she is postmistress in North Woodstock. Lucina Ackerly Sparrow is living in Texas.
Superior Court Judge Simon Cohen of Hartford was also a member of that class as was the late Congressman Antoni Sadlak of Rockville, president of the class and the late Rev. George S. Brookes who before his death wrote a history of the town.
Besides the 50 who graduated there were 16 others who started with the class and, for various reasons, left before graduating. Any of these persons interested in attending the reunion should call Lucile or Hazel.
Plans are to have the reunion June 23 at the Senior Citizen Center, Park Pl., Rockville. The affair will start at 5 p.m. with a social hour. A buffet dinner will follow.
The letters sent out to class members bear the greeting, "You can neither fool mother nature nor father time. Can you believe it! It's 50 years for our class of 1926."
The class of 1926 was the first full-term class to graduate from the Sykes School after it was given to the town by the Sykes family of Rockville. The principal at that time was Philip M. Howe.

Club foods escape town licensing law

The Town Council has tabled action on a proposed ordinance on food service sanitation.
Most council members agreed recently the ordinance would be unenforceable in many areas.
The ordinance would require the issuance of licenses for any food service on a yearly basis and for temporary licenses for temporary food service operations.
It would require complete inspection and approval of the property before the license is issued.
Many feel the problem would be in enforcing the law concerning temporary licenses for such operations as church suppers and fairs where food would be prepared in private homes.
Councilman Peter Humphry asked Charles Vassilopoulos, the town's sanitarian, if the town had cases of food poisoning.
He said probably the most cases ever were three or four in the first part of 1975 and in that case the food came from other towns.
Humphry said he would have some second thoughts about restrictions on churches and such. He asked if there was another way to do the job.
Vassilopoulos said he was not concerned with foods prepared and served right away as with those foods prepared and then stored for later use.
Mayor Thomas Benoit said the workshops Vassilopoulos runs to educate members of organizations concerning food handling are a good idea.
He said the town does not have the money to hire a force large enough to enforce the proposed ordinance.
With these thoughts in mind the council decided to rescind its action of its prior meeting which set a public hearing on the ordinance for Tuesday.
They asked Vassilopoulos to come back some time with a new proposal.

Chamber is winning challenge

Last month the Rockville Chamber of Commerce was challenged to a membership drive by the Ellington Chamber of Commerce and as of now Rockville is ahead by one member.
The contest started Feb. 18 and ends Monday. The score is Rockville, 10 new members and Ellfield, 9.
The winner will receive a "Door Knockers" plaque.
Rockville's new members are: Carousel Bake Shop, East St., Rockville; Connecticut Association of Health Care Facilities, Hartford Tpke., Vernon; Durand's House of Furniture, West Rd., Ellington; Interstate Scientific, Talcottville Rd., Vernon; and Morse Shoe, Tri-City Shopping Plaza, Vernon.
Also: National Home Food Service, Hartford Tpke., Vernon; Nutmeg Pharmacy, Hartford Tpke., Tolland; P.C. Custom Home Builders, Sugar Hill Rd., Tolland; Ranco Builders, Reed St., Tolland; and Rizzo Pool Co., Vernon Circle, Vernon.

Thieves hit market; steal lottery tickets

Thieves and other incidents reported to Manchester Police Wednesday include one burglary into a business, five residential burglaries, a purse-snatching case, and two reports of a half-naked prowler.

The largest theft occurred at Floyd's Market, 1 Broad St., police said. Burglars broke through the front door and stole about $450 worth of state lottery tickets and an undetermined amount of cigarettes.

The break was discovered by two men at about 10:30 p.m., who relayed the information to police by Citizen Band radio. Police said a group of CB operators helped them search the neighborhood, but nothing was found.

Two homes on Chambers St., two homes on Trent Rd., and a garage on New Bolton Rd. were the target of burglars. Thieves made off with $260

Police report

A Manchester High School junior was arrested on drug charges Wednesday and a quantity of suspected marijuana was seized at the school, Manchester Police detectives said today.

The student, James A. Wagner, 17, of 11 West St., was apprehended and searched at midday and charged with illegal possession of a controlled substance. Police said 21 marijuana cigarettes and two plastic bags of the substance were seized.

Wagner was released on a $1,000 non-surety bond for appearance March 22 in Common Pleas Court 12, East Hartford.

Other arrests made or summonses issued by Manchester Police included:

- William K. Mahoney, 16, of 63 Bissell St., charged on a court warrant Wednesday with two counts each of third-degree burglary, fourth-degree larceny, and third-degree criminal mischief. Police said the charges stem from February breaks into the West Side Rec and Garner's Rug & Upholstery Cleaning Co. Court date is March 29.

- Bridget Vogelsang, 37, of 35 Forest St., charged on a warrant Wednesday with breach of peace, in connection with a Jan. 29 disturbance at the West Side Rec. Court date is March 22.

- Edith R. Carter, 66, of William-tic, charged Wednesday with fourth-degree larceny (shoplifting) at Sears Roebuck & Co., Manchester Shopping Park. Court date is April 12.

- Four persons charged with disorderly conduct after an alleged fight Wednesday afternoon at a Main St. address. The four are James J. Wilson, 18, of 699 Main St.; Raymond E. Jeffrey, 21, of East Hartford; Terri L. Aoe, 16, of 17 Trumbull St.; and Charles Duff, 19, of 699 Main St. Court date is March 22.

- James J. Selbie, 39, of 14

Oakland St., issued a summons Wednesday night, charging failure to grant right of way and driving an unregistered automobile. Police said the charges stem from a 7 p.m., two-car accident on Tolland Tpk. which resulted in major damage and no injuries. Court date (not required) is March 30.

Cutting state expenses requires soul searching

(Editor's note: This last installment of a series on Gov. Ella T. Grasso's budgeting problems in trying to cut state spending, and the possible need for higher taxes.)

By JUAN TAMAYO
HARTFORD (UPI)

Cutting government spending requires lots of soul searching, arouses passions and the end result could be few real savings.

But spending slashes may be Gov. Ella T. Grasso's only way out if the legislature rejects her plans to balance the state budget this year and next year, since she has ruled out tax increases.

Lawmakers could override her on the tax hikes, but it could be politically unwise to make an election-year raid on taxpayer's pockets before conducting a thorough search for possible spending cuts.

Mrs. Grasso has tightened the purse-strings since Connecticut's financial troubles were uncovered last September, yet the state still could face a $40 million deficit by June 30 and another gap by mid-1977.

Mandated expenditures — required by state and federal laws — make up nearly 75 per cent of next year's $1.8 billion budget. Mrs. Grasso says, leaving her to apply her scalpel to $550 million.

The mandated expenses include $255 million for interest payments on the state's $2.2 billion bonded debt, and millions more for welfare and health programs.

The nonmandated portion of the budget is for such programs as state colleges, consumer protection, utility regulation, state police, corrections, courts and highway upkeep.

Deficit $38.6 million

A $38.6 million deficit appropriation — letting state agencies overspend their budgets this year by that amount — was studied two weeks before it was trimmed by some $600,000, a 1.5 per cent cut.

We might be able to find a couple of million in relatively painless cuts, but after that we'd have to eliminate a lot of programs completely, and they would hurt," said committee Chairman Rep. John Groppo, D-Winsted.

As for next year's $1.8 billion budget, several spending cuts are being considered but lawmakers have yet to balance the potential savings against the passions they would arouse.

Elimination of the University of Connecticut would save only $40 million, Groppo said.

Some sunshine on Connecticut's cloudy financial future could be shed by two citizens' panels named by Mrs. Grasso to study the state and recommend improvements.

One panel, headed by West Hartford millionaire E. Clayton Gengras, said earlier this week an overhaul of the Central Motor Pool could save $2.2 million in fiscal 1977.

Another ray of hope, although an unlikely one, is that the federal government will take over the administration of the welfare program which now costs the state millions of dollars.

Postal deficit all in family

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar warned this week that the postal system is heading for potential disaster unless the public is willing to accept mail service cutbacks.

Does the postal service remind you of anyone you know? Your brother-in-law, for instance?

"I ran into that no good brother of yours on the street today," he says. "Wonderful. How is the dear boy?"

"Down on his luck as usual. Claims he's going to get $3 billion in the hole this year."

"Poor kid. He has such a hard time. Nothing seems to work out right for him."

"Poor kid, my foot. Your brother is more than 200 years old. It's about time he pulled himself together and started making ends meet."

"That's unfair. It isn't his fault that he can't get by on what he takes in. He's caught in a vicious economic spiral."

"We're all caught in an economic spiral, but most of us manage to cope with it somehow. Why should your brother be an exception?"

"Because he's in a position of having to provide services that are no longer economically justifiable. Couldn't we let him have a small rate increase to tide him over?"

"Thunder! We gave him a three-cent increase not more than two or three months ago. What did he do with that?"

"It was too late to get him back on his feet this year."

"Well, we can't keep handing out rate increases indefinitely."

"You expect too much of him. Don't forget that he's only been on his own since 1970. For most of his life, Congress subsidized him. When he got into financial difficulty, he could run up to Capitol Hill and they would bail him out."

"Okay. We all know your brother was spoiled by an overly permissive Congress. How long is he going to keep using that as an excuse? It's time he learned to stand on his own feet."

"Oh, you're, you're insufferable. Just because your mail is a little late occasionally, you act like he's totally incompetent. My brother has done a good job with what he has to work with. You don't know what it's like mucking around in the rain, snow, sleet and gloom of night."

"Look, if he won't try to do something, you wouldn't be defending him this way."

"How can you say that? It's mostly your fault anyway. You keep demanding uneconomical services that drive up costs, cause many mailers to seek cheaper alternatives and thus leave fewer mailers to bear the burden. Instead of griping and complaining all the time, why don't you try doing something constructive for a change?"

"Like what?"

"Like giving up Saturday deliveries." "Listen, if I didn't care about prompt delivery, I wouldn't need your brother at all. I'd send a telegram."

Although he will be the Senate Majority Leader until the end of this year, Montana Sen. Mike Mansfield relaxes in his Washington, D.C., office as jockeying begins among his colleagues to succeed him in the powerful post. Mansfield, who has served as majority leader longer than any other senator, recently announced his decision not to seek re-election.

Noon speaker series scheduled at MCC

The Manchester Women's Center is sponsoring a "Noon Speakers Series" at Manchester Community College.

Speakers on subjects of interest to women will be at the MWC headquarters on the MCC main campus Fridays from noon to 1:30 p.m. The talks will be informal and coffee will be offered.

Day care arrangements can be made by calling 646-4600, ext. 286 a few days in advance.

This Friday the topic is "Feminist Therapy," alternatives for women considering therapy.

March 19, Juanita Roth, psychiatric social worker, will discuss "Women and Aging." She will focus on personal growth for women of all ages, including sexuality, personality and transitions.

March 26 the topic is "Women and Media." Elaine Webster, coordinator of the Greater Hartford Feminist Committee for Media Reform, will

Mechanic has song in his heart

By JAMES V. HEALION
WILLINGTON (UPI) — Automobile mechanic Ray Pacheco has song in his heart but all some people want to talk to him about are valve jobs.

"How much?" the customer asks. "That's all I ever hear. How much and what is a guy with a voice like yours doing in a place like this?" he says.

But the customers sometimes get a little bonus at Ray's Texaco. They may find on the front seat his 45 rpm recording of "I'm In Love With The World," or the Italian love song, "Solo Tu," also known as "Only You."

"I started singing when I was 14 years old. I remember walking down Elmwood Avenue in Cranston, R.I., singing, and a woman opens the door and yells out I sound like Sinatra. That was the start of it," he said.

He once negotiated a contract with a record company through an agent who kept upping the ante. "The record company put me on the shelf and I've been there ever since," he said. He fired the agent.

Ray, 42, gave up singing until his daughter's wedding in 1971.

The exposure they are getting is in Italian restaurants, pizza palaces, and similar places in Connecticut.

Ray walked into a pizza joint in Rocky Hill one day and they were bug all over again.

Enter Sy Quinto, composer, song plugger and kid violinist with Barney Flapp and the New Englanders, a dance band popular in the 1930s. His songs have been recorded by Kate Smith, Tony Motola and Lawrence Welk. He has done arrangements for Tolle Fields, who once worked at a Hartford insurance company and never forgot it.

Quinto and Pacheco formed a record company called "Intro," and pooled $3,000 to make 1,000 records of "Solo Tu," and "I'm In Love With The World."

And that's how Ray has some left over for his customers.

"We were hoping some big record company would pick it up. We were hoping for some good exposure. You're dead unless you get exposure," Quinto said.

A Girl Scout display by Senior Troop 2 is being exhibited now through Saturday at Watkins on Main St., in observance of the 64th birthday of scouting.
