ROME — The government raises gasoline prices for the second time in six days and purchase taxes on autos, liquor and restaurant meals in an effort to stop the tailspin of the lira.

In the wake of terrorist bombings

London mass transit security tightened

By United Press International
More than 1,000 policemen and armed plain clothes officers rode London's trains and subways today in an all out effort to halt the recent wave of terrorist bombings. The beefed up security was unprecedented in the 113-year history of the city's mass transit system. The police aboard the commuter trains and subways searched parcels, briefcases and handbags suspected of containing Irish Republican Army bombs.

In Northern Ireland, authorities warned the public to be on the lookout for letter bombs in their St. Patrick's Day cards. The stepped up security followed a renewed bombing campaign in Northern Ireland that killed two persons and the discovery of three bombs in three days aboard London subways. Two of the London bombs exploded, injuring eight persons, but the other was defused.

In Belfast, police today found the mutilated body of a man behind a Protestant-owned pub. They said the man — the sixth sectarian murder victim this year — had been beaten savagely and stabbed at least 16 times.

The use of plain clothes officers carrying guns on commuter trains drew immediate protest from civil libertarians, who pointed to the long-standing British tradition of rarely issuing firearms to police officers.

"Plainclothes policemen with guns can easily be mistaken for terrorists," said Brian Richardson of the National Council for Civil Liberties. He termed the stationing of armed officers aboard subways a "frightening development."

But police spokesmen said the concerted IRA terror campaign had created the "most desperate circumstances," warranting the step. At the height of the morning rush, police and the subway's private security force searched bags and briefcases at scores of the 270 stations serving an estimated two million Londoners a day.

Overground commuter trains emptying at center city terminals also were scoured to ensure no bombs had been left behind.

In Northern Ireland, two persons died Wednesday night in a bomb blast near Dungannon, 30 miles west of Belfast. The bomb, estimated to contain 70 pounds of explosives, was planted in an automobile trunk outside a Roman Catholic-owned bar.

Forty miles south of Belfast at Caledon on the County Armagh border with the Irish Republic, a bomb affixed to the door of a Protestant farmhouse was triggered by a dog, police said.

The bomb caused extensive damage to the front of the home but no injuries.

Rivals exchange views

Thomas Ferguson elected local GOP chairman

By SOL R. COHEN
Herald Reporter

Thomas F. Ferguson is the new chairman of the Manchester Republican Town Committee. He succeeds Nathan Agostinelli, who declined re-election after 15 months in the post.

Elected to the position Wednesday night, Ferguson defeated Wally Irish Jr. by a 38 to 22 count, with 25 of the town committee not present. The voting was by paper ballots.

Following announcement of the vote, Irish moved that it be made unanimous and it was so voted.

Irish pledged all of his efforts to helping Ferguson and said he'll work with him "to insure victory for the Republicans in November."

It was St. Patrick's Day and the candidate named Irish noted that his name didn't do him any good — he lost anyway. "The leprechauns weren't with me," said Irish.

Ferguson, in a short acceptance speech, said, "We're going nowhere if we don't get the voters. We've got to be a realistic party and recognize the fact that every time there's been a change in this country there's also been a little shift to the left."

"If the two-party system is to be preserved, we Republicans must build a party to accommodate everyone, from the conservative, to the moderate to the those leaning to the liberal concept. And, the time to start is right now and right here, so let's get started."

Ferguson is chairman of the GOP State Key Committee, which raises funds to operate State GOP Headquarters. He said Tuesday he'd resign the state post if elected town chairman.

Ferguson is former co-publisher of the Manchester Herald. He has been on the Republican town committee since the early 1950's and was its treasurer in 1952.

Re-elected unanimously and without opposition were all other officers of the town committee: Elsie Swenson, vice-chairman; Patricia Lawrence, corresponding secretary; Harriet Haslett, recording secretary; and Charles McKenzie, treasurer.

Ferguson's name was placed in nomination by M. Adler Dobkin, former GOP town chairman, and Irish's by Donald Genovesi, former state representative.

Dobkin stressed Ferguson's background in Manchester and his association with the Manchester Herald as great assets. He said Ferguson's maturity, his depth of experience and his steadiness would prove of tremendous worth to the town committee.

Genovesi said Irish has the drive and the goals for showing the way for Manchester Republicans to go forward toward again becoming the majority party in Manchester. He

Town's 75-foot ladder truck shifted to Central station

By DOUG BEVINS
Herald Reporter

Manchester's Town Fire Department has moved its 75-foot aerial ladder truck to Central Fire Headquarters because the 100-foot ladder truck assigned to the central station is inoperable.

Fire Chief John Rivosa, explaining the change in assignments, said the 75-foot ladder truck carries the same equipment as the 100-foot ladder truck, except for the obvious difference in ladder length.

The 75-foot ladder truck, usually assigned to the Co. 1 station on McKee St., is a "first-line" piece of apparatus even though it's older than the 100-foot ladder truck, Rivosa said.

Both trucks are American LaFrance vehicles. The 75-footer is a 1952 truck; the 100-footer is a 1967 truck. Each meets current fire specifications and insurance requirements, Rivosa said.

The 100-foot ladder truck has been inoperable for about 10 days due to engine failure, Rivosa said. The fire department is now seeking cost estimates for replacing the gasoline engine with a diesel engine. The cost is expected to be about $12,000, he said.

Until the 100-foot ladder truck is back in service, the 75-footer is responding to all alarms which require aerial apparatus, Rivosa said. Usual procedure is to send just one ladder truck anyway, and the truck is assigned according to the area of town, Rivosa said.

Rivosa said department procedures call for two ladder trucks only at alarms at Manchester Memorial Hospital. If extra aerial apparatus is needed for such a call, Rivosa said he would summon fire apparatus from one of four surrounding towns with such equipment: East Hartford, Glastonbury, South Windsor, or Rockville.

Other assignment changes forced by the inoperable 100-foot ladder truck have included a move of the department's Hurst Rescue Tool, used to extricate victims from wrecked automobiles. The special tool, usually carried on the 100-foot

Key Grasso budget proposal rejected

HARTFORD (UPI) — The process of erasing a $40 million state deficit this year has been thrown into disarray by the rejection of a key element of Gov. Ella T. Grasso's budget-balancing plans.

Democratic majorities in the House and Senate Wednesday turned down Mrs. Grasso's proposal for a takeover of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Fund. They agreed instead to study a complicated accounting procedure expected to pump some $35 million into state coffers this year.

Mrs. Grasso said she was not surprised by the total rejection of her proposal to liquidate the veterans fund — which gives financial help to needy vets — but warned lawmakers still must face up to the budget shortage.

"The ball is in the legislature's court," she said.

Meeting behind closed doors in separate rooms, the House and Senate Democrats even rejected a compromise to borrow the fund and replace it within three years with the proceeds from a new daily state lottery.

The overwhelming agreement to study early a speeded-up schedule of payments for the state corporate business tax signaled its rising popularity as a budget-balancing tool.

The proposed schedule — almost the same as the so-called "accrual accounting system" proposed by Mrs. Grasso for next year — would shift the tax due on one payment of the tax from next fiscal year to the present fiscal year.

Legislative leaders said the maneuver would pump the payment, expected to reach $35 million, into this year's $1.68 billion state budget, which ends June 30.

But it also would create a $35 million deficit in Mrs. Grasso's proposed $1.8 billion budget next year because the lower payment scheduled would have credited the $35 million payment to that fiscal year.

"What are they going to do next year?" Mrs. Grasso said.

One Democratic House leader felt the answer would be major cuts in the spending side of the budgets because lawmakers are scared of the political repercussions of enacting election-year tax hikes.

"You've got to remember this is an election year," said Appropriations Committee Co-chairman John Gropo, D-Winsted, because it is more politically dangerous to face irate taxpayers than the few affected by spending cuts.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph I. Lieberman, D-New Haven, said the compromise to borrow the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Fund was rejected by the senators because it was "too gimmicky."

"We felt we should either take it or not take it, and the vote was not to take it," Lieberman said.

Lieberman said the senators voted against "short range tax hikes to get us through this year," but left open the possibility of higher taxes next year to cover the deficit created if early enactment of accrual is approved.

The governor's plan to liquidate the $29.5 million veteran's fund was rejected by the legislature in an emergency session called last December when the budget deficit first was announced.

Library book data now computerized

By JUNE TOMPKINS Herald Reporter
Typing up the many cards necessary before a new book can be introduced for circulation in Manchester's libraries is a time-consuming job that will be considerably reduced in the future.

The computer age has come to Mary Cheney Library and the town library system.

A system called NELINET (New England Library Information Network) has developed a computer that will give extensive information on any book that is listed in the data bank.

The computer now installed at the library was demonstrated to members of the town library board Wednesday night by Mrs. Ruth Prentice, cataloger.

Appropriately, she used the book by Dr. William E. Buckley, board chairman, "A New England Pattern: The History of Manchester, Connecticut, for her demonstration.

As Dr. Buckley watched the detailed information quickly revealed about his book on the scanner, he said he was not only fascinated with the speed with which the detailed information was shown, but also that his book is circulated among so many libraries in the country.

Surprisingly, one mid-west library had Dr. Buckley's book classified under travel.

There are 672 libraries along the Atlantic coast using the NELINET services, 19 of which have Dr. Buckley's book. The University of Toledo in Ohio was the first one to enter the book in NELINET, and the most recent one to enter it was the Florida-Atlantic University in Florida.

Information available from NELINET about a book are its title, author, publisher, libraries where it is available, its language, Library of Congress number, Dewey classification, author's name and birth date, number of pages, price, and subject heading.

If the catalogue scanning this information about any new book recently received in the library finds it correct, it is confirmed and cards will be printed at a center in Toledo and sent back to the library requesting them.

These are the cards that are normally typed at the individual library. Mrs. Prentice said each fiction title requires a minimum of five cards, and each non-fiction title about eight cards. The cards are for classification, cross-indexing and check-out.

An average of about 36,000 cards a year are typed, proofread, and filed in Manchester, head librarian John Jackson said.

There would be a time lag of about 10 days in receiving the cards from Toledo once the book information is confirmed.

The NELINET service including the computer and hookup cost $5,000 and will be in complete operation in about 10 days after a training session for local library personnel.

NELINET is a program of the New England Board of Higher Education and was begun in 1966. It has been developed to provide computerized library technical services, consultation, and library research capacities on a regional basis for the academic, governmental, and public libraries of New England.

It can be used in cooperation with other similar computer-assisted library networks in the nation.

The computer may also be used as an inter-library resource.

Mrs. Prentice said the time saved in use of the computer services would enable library personnel to spend more time in other jobs where there is a backlog.

said Irish youth would prove an asset to the party and would help bring in the new voter to the Republican cause.

Seconding speeches for Ferguson were by Vincent Diana, his classmate at Trinity College and a long-time friend; Sandra Taylor, former GOP vice-chairman; and Town Director Carl Zinsser.

Seconding speeches for Irish were by former State Sen. David Odegaard and former Mayor James Farr.

Agostinelli expressed thanks to the committee members for the "faith and confidence given me in word and deed by so many fine people." He cited the fair treatment given him by the newspapers in all his endeavors as mayor, state commissioner and town chairman.

"It's been an invigorating experience," he said, "many times difficult, but always invigorating. I've had the cooperation of many, many fine people and I leave you with the knowledge that without that cooperation neither I nor my predecessors nor my successors could do it."

Odegaard, on behalf of the entire committee, expressed "heartfelt thanks and very good wishes to Nate for showing us the way."

And Director Vivian Ferguson said, "He came into our party when we were at the lowest ebb. He hung in here and he gave us a tremendous lift!"

Agostinelli received a standing ovation.

ment of ground extension ladders. Each truck has a 50-foot ladder, two 25-foot ladders, and several ladders of shorter lengths. The total footage of ladders is about 200 for each truck.

Rivosa said he's not considering replacement of the ladder truck because it's of recent vintage (1967) and it has such a high cost. Between $110,000 and $130,000 for comparable apparatus.

The trend in fire service is overhauling and refurbishing of older apparatus rather than purchase of new trucks, Rivosa said. It's common for a ladder truck to remain in service for at least 25 years, he said.

The 100-footer is inoperable because water got into engine cylinders through a cracked block, Rivosa said. He said he never expected serious trouble with the truck's engine and had actually planned overhaul of the older truck's engine before doing anything to the newer truck.

Conversion to diesel is recommended by the truck's manufacturer, Rivosa said. He said the department has converted one other piece of apparatus to diesel: A 1951 American LaFrance engine housed at Co. 4, School St.

Credit for jai alai probe debated at public hearing

WATERBURY (UPI) — The Special Revenue Commission says it was the state police that failed to spot trouble at the Bridgeport jai alai, and not the gaming panel as State Police Commissioner Edward P. Leonard has charged.

Leonard Wednesday said the commission overlooked early signs of problems at the facility, and contradicted a commission and the Statewide Organized Crime Investigative Task Force (SOCTF) asked for them last Aug. 25, he said.

Silvergeld spoke at a legislative hearing on Gov. Ella T. Grasso's plans to abolish the commission, in charge of legalized gambling, and replace it with a more efficient panel.

Leonard told the General Law Committee at Crosby High School inadequate action in the commission's present structure and workings kept it from spotting questionable activities at the jai alai.

Silvergeld said since the state police is the commission's investigative arm, the department should be blamed for any failures in the licensing of the $15 million facility.

"We assumed that the investigations conducted by the state police were proper," Silvergeld told reporters.

Leonard said the commission never asked to see the corporate books and minutes of the jai alai owners, Connecticut Sports Enterprises, until after state police raised questions about the operations.

The books in fact did not exist and were made up only after the commission and the Statewide Organized Crime Investigative Task Force (SOCTF) asked for them last Aug. 25, he said.

"Indeed at one point during the licensing process CSE claimed to have $1.8 million in cash, however a review of the books by a SOCTF accountant reflected a cash balance of only $2,000," Leonard said.

The commissioner said the commission's SOCTF investigators got the first lead in the case last May 19.

Working in an unrelated case, they spotted jai alai vice president Lidizio Renzulli of Fairfield meeting with a suspected Connecticut organized crime figure in Bridgeport, he said.

SOCTF earlier identified the individual as Vincent Pollina.

"The information was relayed to the state policeman assigned to the gaming commission and he was ordered to conduct further inquiries," the commissioner said.

Manchester Young Marines will meet tonight at 7 at Howell Cheney Technical School.

Tax increase possibilities discussed

HARTFORD (UPI) — The Senate chairman of the Finance Committee says she has discussed with legislative leaders a variety of tax hikes to meet the state's cash shortage.

Sen. Audrey Beck, D-Mansfield, Wednesday said she had raised the possibility of increasing the sales tax from 7 to 7.5 per cent to meet the projected $40 million budget deficit expected by June 30.

She said there had also been discussion of raising taxes on gasoline, cigarettes or alcohol.

Mrs. Beck emphasized the discussions were of a preliminary nature only.

Opinion

No easy solution to deficit spending

The nation is being rocked by two powerful and conflicting tides in this, the 200th year of its existence.
On the one side is a growing public disenchantment with big government, especially big government spending and its inflationary consequences. An indication of this is the fact that the legislators of eight states so far have passed resolutions asking Congress to submit a constitutional amendment that would prohibit federal deficits.

At its 57th annual convention in January, the American Farm Bureau Federation called for a similar antideficit amendment, and in addition adopted a resolution urging "that no salary increase be granted to any elected federal official until the federal budget is balanced."

At the same time, however, there is as much, or more, pressure in the opposite direction — toward even more federal spending on a host of needs.

The federal bail-out of New York is only the worst and most publicized example of the fiscal plight of the cities. Cleveland, one of many large cities on the ailing list, is depending upon $54.8 million in federal aid during the next year just to maintain its already low level of public services. Four years ago, Cleveland's federal subsidy was only $17.8 million.

Because of the "nightmare" of staff cuts and budget cuts facing urban school districts, delegates to the recent annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators talked about boosting federal aid to education to fully one-third of the total national cost.

Said one Oklahoma superintendent, "Our only hope is the federal level. We have no other choice."

At the National Conference of Governors recently, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller recommended a five-point program to "move as rapidly as possible toward 100 per cent federal financing of public assistance" — a total federal takeover of welfare.

The question, of course, is where the federal government is going to get the money for all this except through higher taxes or the creation of even cheaper money by further deficit spending, or both.

Theoretically, it would seem logical that the more the federal government underwrites the responsibilities that once belonged to the state or local communities, the less Americans would have to be taxed on the local level. But it hasn't worked out that way. As federal subsidies have risen, so have state and local taxes — and deficits.

Nor does the record offer much hope that a plan like Ronald Reagan's to return both federal money and responsibilities to the states would reverse this situation.

Here, theoretically, federal expenditures should fall as local expenditures rise. But again, it is unlikely that they would work out that way in practice, for it is very failure of inability of the states to meet their own needs that is the cause of the expanded role of the federal government. The suggestion that the citizens of the poorer states "vote with their feet" and move elsewhere is somewhat less than brilliant.

We are, in short, on a dizzying merry-go-round. The rising needs and expectations of Americans have led to federal deficits, which in turn has impoverished local governments and led to still more demands for federal spending.

Praise police

To the editor, I wish to take this opportunity to comment and congratulate the Manchester Police Dept. and especially Det. Capt. Joseph Sartor and his men for their tenacity in exercising ever-increasing pressure on the drug scene as it pertains to our young people in Manchester. Only by constant pressure and arrests, with subsequent front page coverage by the Manchester Herald, will our drug abuse problems be curtailed, and the health and well-being of our youth be preserved. In many cities, police have been conducting surveillance on users and pushers, hoping to apprehend the large suppliers. This method only allows more young people to become addicted while the long, time-consuming investigations are being conducted. We must harass and apprehend the users to the extent that the pushers or sellers will be forced to move on to areas outside of Manchester.

We the citizens of Manchester must stand solidly behind the police in what they are doing, even though some soft-headed judge might later decide some rights were violated! Active involvement by the people of Manchester is a must!

I urge all of us who really care about what is happening to our young people to attend the Drug Abuse Forum at Hing Jr. High School on March 30th, and add our input and collective common sense to this community endeavor.

Coventry mother wants earlier announcements

To the editor, This is a copy of a letter I sent to the Coventry Board of Education. To whom it may concern, As a mother of a Coventry High School student, I can tell you I am more than slightly irritated with the time you announce school closings.

Most of the high school students are picked up or waiting for the buses before 7 a.m. My daughter leaves the house no later than 6:55 a.m. therefore, any announcements that there will be late openings or no school that are on the radio after that time are useless to her and many others.

This morning (3-11-76) the first announcement was made at 7:10 a.m. In my opinion this is extremely inconsiderate of the health and welfare of the students. This isn't the first time that this has happened this year.

It appears that we have people on the board who are unable to make up their minds. Mrs. Lawrence Feniman

Big military spending is inflationary

WASHINGTON — What this country needs more than an electric light bulb that lasts more than three days is a hard look by plain citizens everywhere at President Ford's proposal for a 14 per cent increase in military spending for fiscal year 1977, which starts next Oct. 1.

In a year when everything costs too much and public schools are rotting, it is disconcerting to see both Ford and Ronald Reagan wooing voters by promising to increase America's armed strength. What they are promising of course is another big raid on the taxpayer's pocketbook — more than $101-billion in Ford's 1977 budget.

Neither body of water, of course, would protect the U.S. from nuclear attack. But, again, we just don't need to increase our nuclear power, despite all the talk about Moscow's new missiles. Moreover, the Soviets have more artillery, more tanks and more men under arms — but Russia is attacked to both Europe and Red China and consequently must prepare for possible conventional warfare on two fronts. America has natural defenses in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.

Damned if they do, broke if they don't

WASHINGTON — There is a question that brings foreign officials to secure business favors is wrong. But consider the problem of the small firm which refuses to engage in this practice, so common in many countries it have lived or toured. What happens when the small company, as a result of its refusal, loses more of its investment than it can afford?

According to excerpts from the testimony before a congressional committee of Dr. William B. Carden, an official of one such modest company, which has apparently lost its $3 million investment while being praised by the foreign host government for its development work.

"By mid-April we felt that a new contract would soon be signed. But early on the morning of April 15, I was telephoned by a (company) employe and asked to stop at his house. When I arrived, I found the employe quite frightened. I was told that he was instructed to get me to his house and wait for further instructions. A telephone call summoned us in separate cars to the square in Petionville, a Port-au-Prince suburb. Sitting there in my car, I was joined by a man.

"Speaking English, he refused to tell me his name... He purported to be a member of the government and promised no contract would be forthcoming unless (my company) did the following: 1. fire our (local) attorney who was well-known... for his refusal to make payoffs, and hire M... (who later turned out to be an employe of the Department of Justice); 2. Deposit $500,000 in the National Bank and 3. Give yet-to-be named third parties one-half of the stock in... (my company)."

"Unless the demands were agreed to, the project would be shifted from department to department until (my company) would finally give up and leave Haiti... It was only... a couple of weeks before the contract dissolved. The town "in not so bad shape as I had expected." During his inspection, he misplaced his sword and advertised a reward for anyone returning it.

He feels that everyone needs someone in whom he can confide his heavy bomber, and would be much more efficient and deadly than the B-52. But the argument still rages over whether, in this nuclear age, the manned bomber has become obsolete. It makes horse sense to resolve that argument before we spend more billions on the B-1 "Jobs." The quite respectable "National Campaign to Stop the B-1 Bomber" cites chart and verse in claiming that at peak of production in 1969, the B-1 program will employ only 70,000 persons, whereas the same money spent on health and welfare programs would create jobs for 120,000 people.

Andrew Tully

Russians are realistic. They know Communist China is more of a military threat than the U.S. Pentagon brass has been led to believe. That having been said, Ford's defense budget is a real threat to the state of an economy that is still in trouble. Big military spending is inflationary. It is wasteful because the weapons and equipment it buys cannot be used in the civilian sector of the economy. Thus, as this spending continues, prices rise, taxes rise and public services are cut back. Take a look at the Postal Service and the deterioration of your friendly neighborhood trash collection agency.

Apologists for big Pentagon budgets like to claim that such spending produces jobs. It does. But every independent study shows that dollar for dollar more jobs are created by civilian spending than by military spending. Indeed, one national survey showed that $40,000 jobs were lost between 1969 and 1972 because of the diversion of federal funds to military projects.

The Pentagon wants to go ahead with development and production of the B-1 bomber. It would be a good piece of equipment and supplies into rusted wrecks. The Ford administration is now proposing a code of ethics to be agreed to by countries worldwide. Officials admit privately there is no evidence this will make more than a dent in the demand by politicians worldwide for bribes. It is usually impossible to prove demands for bribes or discrimination against firms which refuse to offer bribes, especially in developing countries with tightly knit oligarchies. It is impossible to prove that is, until a government is replaced by another anxious to discredit its predecessor.

More effective would be the agreement among major industrial nations to enforce regulations on bribery and require strict auditing procedures by private accountants to back the regulations. If companies in those nations, which supply the world's investment capital and are the recipients of forgiveness and the Gospel of a second chance. Today's thought Criminals do not belong primarily to one ethnic group. They are not all stupid; nor do they all come from broken families in the lower income bracket. Surely most offenders are not very wise, not very smart, not even very lucky.

More often the offender is a persistently perverse, lonely, and resentful individual who joins the only group to which he is eligible — the outcast and the antisocial.

Into such a setting comes the chaplain.

Grasso hopes lawmakers won't stick business with new tax increases

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso today said she hoped lawmakers do not plan on "sticking it to business" in their search for revenues to plug part of a $40.3 million deficit this year.

"Business tax hikes under study by legislators since they rejected her plan for liquidation of the $29.5 million Soldiers, Sailors and Marines fund could lead to a loss of jobs in the state, Mrs. Grasso said.

"I just don't think sticking it to business is the way to go about it," she said. "We've got to have a posture that will not deter employers from coming here."

Mrs. Grasso also said she will not remain inactive while lawmakers search for the alternate funds, but neither will she offer alternatives to her proposal to liquidate the veterans' fund.

"I am not going to sit back, but I am going to wait," she said. The Democratic majorities in the Senate and House Wednesday rejected the takeover of the veterans fund and agreed instead to study raising some of the needed cash through a speeded-up schedule of payments for the state corporation business tax.

The new schedule — shifting one payment from next fiscal year to this year and therefore crediting the income to this year — would cost businesses more money because many would have to borrow in order to make the payment.

"This could be considered to be in the nature of an add-on," Mrs. Grasso told reporters at a news conference.

"Why do we have to keep talking about increases? Why can't we just live within our means?" she said.

"I would be opposed to these things because they would lessen the attractiveness of Connecticut as a place to do business," she said. "This hard action can be counterproductive."

The governor restated her previous position to lawmakers that in the absence of a takeover of the veterans fund they should first consider spending cuts, including layoffs of state employees, before turning to tax hikes.

"Some activities may have to be eliminated completely," she said. "They will have to look at curtailing of services." Mrs. Grasso said one area that cannot be cut is state aid to municipalities, which accounts for about $30 million of this year's $1.68 billion budget.

A three-car traffic accident early this morning resulted in minor injuries to four persons, but only one of them needed hospital treatment, authorities said.

Guncontrolbill sent to senate

HARTFORD (UPI) — It measure to increase the powers of the Bureau of Support, making it easier to enforce Connecticut's family support decrees on people who move out of the state. The House also turned down an amendment to an elections bill that would prevent self-endorsement of political parties' town committees. That amendment was on a bill passed by the Senate and the differences will be resolved by a conference committee. Rep. William A. Collins, D-Norwalk, who argued for the bill, challenged House Speaker James J. Kennedy's ruling a voice vote had gone against the amendment. Kennedy, a Hartford Democrat, ruled Collins' challenge had come too late. The Senate gave final approval to the nomination of Richard B. Black Hawks back on top

NEW YORK (UPI) — Once surprised, the second time prepared. Surprised isn't even the proper word to describe the shock of the Chicago Black Hawks last year after they had been an overwhelming favorite to win the Stanley Cup. Instead, they wound up third behind Vancouver, which had never finished better than sixth in four previous campaigns in the National Hockey League, and St. Louis.

At the 3:19 mark, his second goal of the evening, Ivan Boldirev then tied the score little more than a minute later and Pat Martin got the winner with only 4:30 left in the game. Toronto, which early in the second period enjoyed a 4-1 lead, got goals from Lanny McDonald, Errol Thompson, Stan Weir, Dave Williams and Darryl Sittler.

The Black Hawks were trailing 5-3 entering the third period when Dale Talbot got them started by skating the length of the ice for an unassisted goal.

NFL decides not to widen field

CORONADO, Calif. (UPI) — National Football League owners Wednesday refused to take a stand on whether to widen the playing field, saying a decision would ultimately affect college football.

Dick Anderson, president of the National Football Association, was scheduled to meet with owners to discuss the Rozelle Rule. A suit has been filed in Washington against the NFL claiming the rule damages the career of football players.

Previously held 30 minutes before game time, will be conducted live over a field microphone to be heard by everyone watching the game.

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

Wet snow was falling in big soft flakes when our bus from Hartford stopped up to the curb at the Philadelphia Civic Center and 37 passengers, most of them without rubbers, hurried up the steps and through the door to see the Philadelphia Flower Show.

golden daffodils were bordered by neat green turf. The vivid colors and the heady fragrance of hyacinths, in large beds of red, white and blue varieties, reminded visitors that this is the country's Bicentennial year and that Philadelphia is where the Declaration of Independence was written and signed 200 years ago.

Entrance to the exhibit hall of the Philadelphia Flower Show had masses of azalea blooms, a rhododendron or two, and evergreens bordering an enticing pathway. (Photo from Pennsylvania Horticultural Society)

From the South in what must have been a huge truckload. This is a famous flower show and one of the largest in the country. The publicity people, who let me thumb through their stacks of pictures and help myself, said they expected an attendance of 200,000 in the eight days of the show, March 7-14.

Worth Extra Cost I have been on the executive board of the Connecticut Horticultural Society for several years. Every year we have arranged for a bus to take members to the Boston Flower Show, and each year some members have said, "Why don't we go to the Philadelphia show instead?"

We saw everything from tropical jungle to dry, hot desert areas, each with temperature and humidity to suit the vegetation. There were flowers on every side.

Besides the red, white and blue hyacinths there was a garden of red salvia, blue ageratum and white cineraria. A floral clock, built by a commercial nursery, was a large and steeply sloped garden of red and white tulips with two fountains continually throwing up streams of water, one to mark the minute and the other to mark the hour.

A Friend from Home A good judge of show crowds and a veteran exhibitor at Philadelphia is Mrs. Adeline Simmons of Capriandis Herb Farm in Coventry, running a busy booth at this year's show.

Outdoors everything was covered with six inches of new snow. Many early flowers had blossomed they were well concealed. The wet

LeGrand to lead footballers

Coventry The Coventry Football Association recently held its annual meeting at which board members and officers for the coming year were elected. Gerry LaGrand will serve as president. Bob Tate as first vice-president. Al Carrille as second vice-president. Mrs. Roger Broun as secretary. Dr. LaVerne Gordon as treasurer, and Bob Martin as equipment manager.

Dog owners warned

Hebron The Board of Selectmen reminded residents of the state statute regarding "raining dogs at large." The statute states, "No owner or keeper of any dog shall allow such dog to roam at large upon the land of another and not under control of the owner or keeper or the agent of the owner or keeper, nor allow such dog to roam at large on any portion of any public highway not adjacent to the premises of the owner or keeper and not attended or under control of such owner or keeper or his agent."

Police seek public's aid

Bolton Connecticut State Police at Colchester Troop are requesting assistance from the public in the investigation of an armed robbery in Bolton Saturday at 8 p.m. The owner of the X-Tra Gas Station was robbed at gunpoint by two white males who were wearing ski masks.

Junk car statute debated

HARTFORD (UPI) — The legislature's Transportation Committee has gotten comments on a bill of junk cars directly, rather than through auto junk yards, under a measure the committee considered at a public hearing Wednesday.

Scrap metal processors would be able to buy cars directly, rather than through auto junk yards, under a measure the committee considered at a public hearing Wednesday. Owners of both scrap and auto yards jammed the small room. Committee members indicated concern the public would be ill-served by the measure, which might lead to increased supplies of used auto parts.

The scrap dealers said any car which had usable parts would bring a better price at a junk yard than at a processor, so the parts supply would not be affected. The junk yards said some people might take their cars to the scrap yard without knowing they could get more money elsewhere.

On another matter, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stanley J. Pac told the committee he favored a measure restricting the use of dealer plates, which he told reporters are used and towns about $500,000 annually in lost property taxes.

He said at least half of the 10,000 special plates in the state are used for personal, rather than business reasons. A measure proposing maintenance work on the state's railroads be put out for bid was favored by the Connecticut Business and Industry Association but opposed by railway labor leaders.

Railway labor leaders said use of outside contractors was unsafe and a violation of their contracts. The CBI said the measure would reduce construction industry employment and keep the money inside the state.

Woman accused of spying wants Weicker donor list

HARTFORD (UPI) — A woman Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., accused of spying on him says the senator should reveal the names of all contributors to his 1976 senatorial campaign. Brenda Brody said Wednesday the reason Weicker accused her of spying was the figure reported in a newspaper reporter her posing as a newspaper reporter to spy on him was to obscure the situation in Connecticut is even more critical due to the heavy reliance upon property taxes as a source of municipal revenues," the group said.

The conference has repeatedly urged the legislature to reduce the tax burden on the elderly by making state aid for municipal services one of its major priorities.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Well, here we go again! A secretary requested a practical solution for business letters to office in which both men and women work. Obviously, the traditional "Dear Sirs" and "Gentlemen" are now out of date.

DEAR ABBY: How about "Greetings"? I borrowed that idea from Uncle Sam who used it extensively to draft men during World War II.

DEAR J.L.: Sorry, the "Greetings" salutation would never catch on. We'd have "old soldiers" fainting all over the place.

DEAR ABBY: The Romans knew what they were doing. They never would have risked insulting the powerful women behind the successful man by excluding them, so they used the salutation, "Lector Saluton," which means "Hello to the reader!"

DEAR CORVAIR: Hall no! Most Americans have enough trouble with English!

DEAR ABBY: During a meeting I brought up the question about salutations that was raised in your column, and a lawyer sitting next to me came up with the ideal solution. Why not "Gentlemen?"

I like the idea and plan to start using it immediately. CLEGGYMAN, INDIANA, PA.

DEAR ABBY: The matter with a straightforward, friendly "Howdy?"

DEAR FORT: Not worth much—outside of Texas.

DEAR ABBY: Re your column concerning salutation to groups. In the business and management seminars given by the University of California at Berkeley, we are suggesting that this problem be handled by omitting both salutation and the closing ("Sincerely," etc.), ending the letter as I have done below.

DOROTHY SATIR

GOOD MORNING, ABBY: I have solved the salutation problem in both my business and personal correspondence as follows:

To someone with whom I'm on a first-name basis, it's "Good Morning, Abby."

And to anyone in general, it's just "Good Morning!" I think the cheerfulness of this is preferable to the legalistic "To whom it may concern" or the aloofness of "Dear Sir or Madam."
