Retired senior group seeking more volunteers

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) needs volunteers to help in various non-profit organizations in Manchester.

The group, which uses "How Not To Retire From Living After 60" as its slogan, needs volunteers as assistants in local schools, libraries, the Lutz Junior Museum, convalescent homes and town departments. Days and time for volunteering can be arranged to suit the individual's schedule, preferably on a regular basis.

There are no special requirements for volunteers. When required, training and supervision will be provided.

Volunteers can also serve at home in such services as clerical work, sewing, light craft work, telephone activities, and kit assemblies.

Rooney demotion upheld

By DOUG BEVINS

Herald Reporter
Town Manager Robert Weiss has upheld Police Chief Robert Lannan's Jan. 6 decision to demote Policeman Brian Rooney from sergeant to patrolman, but Weiss has ruled that Rooney should get the first chance at regaining his sergeant's stripes when a vacancy occurs.

In a letter to Rooney released by Rooney's lawyer, Atty. Jerome Walsh, Weiss concluded that the police chief acted with due consideration of all information presented at the intra-department hearing conducted before the demotion.

The chief's decision was in the best interests of the Manchester Police Department, Weiss said.

Weiss said he supported Lannan's judgment that Rooney had violated two provisions of the Police Department's rules and regulations: Conduct unbecoming an officer, and use of cruel, harsh or unnecessary force toward any prisoner or other person.

However, Weiss' letter said, the chief's disciplinary action is being modified. As the next sergeant vacancy occurs, Rooney alone will be certified to fill the vacancy, without another examination, provided he maintains the Police Department's standards in the meantime.

Weiss' letter is based on a closed hearing he conducted last Monday on Rooney's appeal of the demotion. Copies of the letter are sent to all who participated in the hearing.

Auxiliary gives $67,500 to hospital

By JUNE TOMPKINS

Herald Reporter
A gift of $67,500 was presented by the Auxiliary of Manchester Memorial Hospital to Robert Smith, president of the hospital trustees, Monday at the group's annual luncheon meeting at The Colony in Talcottville.

Mrs. William Stuek of 43 Stephen St. was elected president to succeed Mrs. Samuel Smith.

Mrs. Stuek was formerly administrative assistant in the pathology department at the hospital.

She was a member of the Manchester Board of Education for several years and has served as president of two school PTAs as well as president of the PTA Council. She has also been a member of the Republican Town Committee, and secretary of the Manchester YWCA.

Mrs. Stuek's recent interest and activity is involvement with the American Red Cross Bloodmobile program.

Other officers elected are Mrs. Gerald Hall, first vice-president; Mrs. Jeffrey Barnes, second vice-president; Mrs. Norman Connolly, secretary; Mrs. Paul Martz, treasurer.

Directors elected for new terms are: Mrs. Robert Heavisides, baby photos; Mrs. Walter Johnson, hostesses; Mrs. John Wheeler, junior auxiliary; Mrs. Harvey Kahaner, library cart; Mrs. Samuel Smith, member-at-large; Mrs. Richard Bolin, membership; Mrs. Bruce Sobin, pediatric craft corner; Mrs. Charles Clark, physical therapy; Mrs. Jack Hunter, social.

Directors in unexpired terms are: Mrs. Francis Dieterle, coffee cart; Mrs. Stephen Romeo, community outreach; Mrs. Lloyd Foster, emergency room; Mrs. Robert Russell, finance; Mrs. Thomas Ferguson, gift shop; Mrs. Alexander Eigner, nominating; Mrs. Ruben Fialkoff, Penny Saver; Mrs. Richard Davis, program; Mrs. Raymond Peracchio, publicity; Mrs. Virginia Prior, receptionist; Mrs. Donald Aronson, tours; Mrs. Harold Davey, ward clerks.

Accepting the gift on the hospital's behalf, Smith called it a "fabulous gift," and said it would be used for capital improvements within the hospital, more specifically for renovation of the pediatrics area which is within the next few years.

The total donation, the most the auxiliary has presented to the hospital, represents $3,500 from the auction held last fall, and the balance from other sources.

The highest source of income for the auxiliary continues to be the Penny Saver thrift shop which raised $39,000 this year. The gift shop at the hospital raised $22,000.

This year the gift shop will celebrate its 25th anniversary. Smith read a resolution adopted by the Board of Trustees expressing sincere gratitude to all who have contributed to the shop's success during its operation.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said in a major policy speech delivered here today. Grasso signs $1.8 billion budget

HARTFORD (UPI) — Gov. Ella T. Grasso today signed a $1.8 billion budget for next year, but said she liked her plan better than the one approved by the legislature.

"I signed it this morning," Mrs. Grasso told a Capitol news conference. "I think the budget I submitted was a better budget."

The legislature's final product, approved earlier this month, had virtually the same bottom line as Mrs. Grasso's proposal, submitted in February. But lawmakers added and cut certain programs, much to the governor's dismay.

Among the key areas of Mrs. Grasso's program that were shelved by the legislature was a plan to lengthen the work week of state employees from 35 hours to 40 hours.

"The extension of the work week would have made it easier" to cut state personnel costs she said.

Her plan, which died under a wave of protest from state employee unions, was projected to save $20 million.

Mrs. Grasso, joking with reporters and making faces at a television camera that was not turned on, said she was especially concerned the legislative budget she signed did not do enough for welfare recipients.

Because of this, she said she was pleased with a provision passed by the House Monday that would set aside $1 million in food relief for the needy.

That amendment was tacked on to a bill instituting a daily lottery, which is expected to raise $10 million.

Mrs. Grasso has said the funds are needed because the legislative spending and tax package she was given was short on the revenue side. Asked of her assessment of the state's fiscal situation, she said, "I'd say our situation with regard to the budget this year is vastly improved."

Late last year Mrs. Grasso said the state faced an $80 million deficit for the fiscal year ending July 1 and the legislature Office of Fiscal Analysis said the state could be $145 million in the red next year. The state is expected to end the year with a small surplus, according to state officials.

Carter confident he'll win

HARTFORD (UPI) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, campaigning today in Connecticut while his Democratic fortunes are on the line in Pennsylvania, said he would arrive at the party's July convention with about 1,000 delegates.

Carter said he felt efforts against his candidacy were decreasing as he gained momentum.

"I believe 'the stop Jimmy Carter' movement is dissipating instead of increasing. By June 8, I am likely to have about 1,000 delegates," Carter said.

Carter arrived at Bradley International Airport in Windsor Locks shortly after 10 a. m. and motored to Hartford where he went on a downtown street walking tour then spoke at a $100-a-plate fundraising luncheon before heading for rallies in Meriden and New Haven.

School board ratifies contracts

By DOUG BEVINS

Herald Reporter
Labor settlements with three school employ groups — teachers, nurses and secretaries — were ratified Monday by the Manchester Board of Education and by the respective employ groups.

Agreement with the largest group — the teachers — is still subject to approval of the town Board of Directors. Nurses' and secretaries' contracts don't have to be approved by town directors.

Each of the contracts was approved unanimously by the employ groups and by 5-2 votes of the Board of Education. The dissenting school board votes were cast by Republican Earl Odom and Democrat Albert Harris, who said the contracts shouldn't be ratified until the school system's 1976-1977 operating budget is approved.

The two-year contract with the Manchester Education Association (MEA), which represents 550 public school teachers, calls for a salary increase of 4.75 per cent in the first year and 5 per cent in the second year. There are no changes in fringe benefits, upward adjustment of salaries to reflect advanced degrees, and several "language" changes including major items sought by teachers on layoff-recall procedures and secondary school teaching load.

About 300 MEA members, meeting Monday afternoon at the U.A. Theater East, voted unanimously to ratify the contract. The school board actions were taken Monday night at Washington School.

Including the cost of increments and other adjustments, the teachers' contract represents an increase of 6.99 per cent from 1975-1976 to 1976-1977.

The 6.99 per cent increase means a dollar increase of $497.674. The school board, in preparing its 1976-1977 budget request still awaiting action by town directors, estimated a 7.2 per cent increase (a total of $512,625) for teachers. The lower settlement is a "savings" of $14,951 from the budget request.

The contract with the Manchester Association of Educational Secretaries, which represents 69 employees, includes just salary changes because negotiations were conducted for the second year of a two-year contract. The secretaries' contract, approved by about 35 members of the group meeting Monday afternoon, calls for a salary increase of 5 per cent in 1976-1977.

Considering the normal increments and an adjustment of the maximum step salary, the secretaries contract represents a total 6.96 per cent increase from 1975-1976 to 1976-1977.

The 6.96 per cent increase means a dollar increase of $30,303. The school board's budget estimate was for 7.5 per cent, or $32,655, so there is an extra $4,354 in the budget request for secretaries' salaries.

The contract with the Manchester School Nurses and Dental Hygienists

Association, a new two-year agreement for the 13 nurses and hygienists, calls for a salary increase of 5 per cent each year. There are no changes in fringe benefits and only minor "language" changes.

Considering normal increment hikes and an increase for the head nurse, the nurses' contract represents a total increase of 6.99 per cent from 1975-1976 to 1976-1977.

The 6.99 per cent increase for nurses means a dollar increase of $7,598. The school board's budget estimate for nurses' increases was 7.5 per cent, or $8,152, so there is an extra $554 in the spending plan for nurses.

The school board ratification of the three agreements came Monday night after little comment, except for the effort by Odom and Harris to table action until the school appropriation is decided by town directors by May 7.

Both Odom and Harris said the school board could be in hot water if directors don't allocate enough money for school operation to cover the salary increases.

The majority of the school board, however, indicated that the three contracts were fair and reasonable, and even lower settlements through reopened negotiations would be unlikely.

Asst. School Supt. Wilson Deakin, chief negotiator for the school board, said talks are still in progress with three other employ groups: School custodians, para-professionals (teacher aides) and administrators. Deakin said he expects a tentative agreement within two weeks with the custodians, who are part of the Manchester employees union Local 991. There are about 100 school custodians in the union.

The other two contracts — with about 65 members of the Manchester Federation of Paraprofessionals and about 35 members of the Manchester School Administrators Association — are expected to take longer, Deakin said.

Funds sought for buses for aged, handicapped

To meet the transportation needs of Manchester's elderly and handicapped, Town Manager Robert Weiss has applied for operating funds for two buses and in the next few months will apply for capital funds for the Greater Hartford Transit District to buy the two new buses.

This was reported by Alan Mason, director of the Department of Human Services, Monday night at a meeting of the Commission on Aging.

With the recent passage of the Urban Mass Transit Act, the ability to meet these transportation needs has become a possibility, Mason said. This, in turn, will allow the Transportation Department to plan programs to meet the recreational needs of the handicapped, he said.

The second-year Community Development plans call for the purchase of a bus to transport handicapped individuals to the recreation center at the former Nike site for a variety of programs and to Verplanck pool, which will be ramped for the use of the handicapped, Mason reported.

He said it has been demonstrated that the two buses operated by the Senior Citizens Center cannot meet the demands for elderly transportation and serve the center at the same time.

It is proposed that one bus will be used primarily, but not exclusively, for the elderly. The second bus will be used as an integral part of the handicapped program operated by the Recreation Department as well as providing such things as shopping

Calvin E. Bragdon, 19, of 11 Harriet Dr., Vernon was charged with sale of hallucinogenic substance and possession of controlled substance. He was released on a $1,000 cash bond for court appearance May 17.

Fredrick K. Olivanti, 24, of Elizabeth, N.J., was charged with sale of hallucinogenic substance. He was released on a $1,000 cash bond for court appearance May 17.

And a 14-year-old Rockville girl, unidentified because of her age, was charged with sale of hallucinogenic substance. She was released to her grandparents and referred to Juvenile Court.

Capt. Sartor said the arrests were made at about 6:30 p.m. as the four persons entered Manchester in a car. A total of 300 tablets of suspected LSD were seized when the arrests were made, Sartor said. The tablets have an estimated "street value" of about $900.

The arrests were the result of an intensive surveillance and investigation effort by local detectives, Capt. Sartor said, and are part of a beefed-up, continuing narcotics probe which has resulted in 42 arrests so far this year.

Regional economic plan backed by area governors

FARMINGTON (UPI) — A $150 million plan to spur economic development in New England has been endorsed by at least five governors in the region, but they are wary of committing state funds to the project.

The governors approved a $100,000 grant for initial work on the project at a meeting Monday of the New England Regional Commission. The working capital was expected to come from private investors.

The first phase of the program will be to determine how investors, including banks and insurance companies, will react when asked to put up the $150 million for loans to small and medium-sized businesses.

Investor backing key

If the investors do not support the project, it will be abandoned because there was little chance the financially strapped states could come up with the needed capital.

Only Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island was absent from the five-hour session, which also voted to study support of the New England Board of Present at the meeting were Govs. Ella T. Grasso of Connecticut, Meldrim Thomson Jr. of New Hampshire, James B. Longley of Maine, Michael S. Dukakis of Massachusetts and Thomas P. Salmon of Vermont.

Long-term loans

The economic development project ultimately would set up the New England Capital Corp. to make long-term investment loans to businesses that cannot get capital through normal financial channels.

The corporation was part of a 12-point program recommended by the commission's Task Force on Capital and Labor Markets. The other 11 proposals will be taken up at the governors' June meeting.

Salmon argued $175,000 was needed to begin the project but Thomson and Longley, both well known as fiscal conservatives, said $100,000 was enough and more funds could be

Integration okay for commoners' kids

Literally hundreds of senators and representatives, as well as other top Washington officials, have sent their children to predominantly white private schools even while working or voting for public school busing to end segregation among the children of common folk.

To name all those "who have avoided authentic integration of their children in schools by resorting to the private school or white suburban route" would be to compile a Who's Who in Congress, writes syndicated columnist Nick Timmesch in the April Saturday Evening Post.

Nevertheless, Timmesch takes a stab at it and his list may be of some interest.

Among those who are either present or past presidential candidates or whose names have been mentioned, and who have sent their children to private schools in the Washington, D.C., area, are: Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana and Sargent Shriver.

Other prominent Washington figures who have sent or who are sending their children to private schools are: Illinois Sens. Adlai Stevenson III and Charles Percy, former New York Sen. Charles Goodell and Sens. Edmund Muskie of Maine, Howard Baker of Tennessee, Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, John Tunney of California, Jacob Javits of New York and Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut.

Rep. Donald Fraser of Minnesota, whom Timmesch terms "an ardent advocate of busing," enrolled his daughter in a Washington public school but withdrew her when she fell behind in reading and placed her in a private school. Likewise another Minnesota liberal, Sen. Walter Mondale, after his son found a public junior high school "too rough and tumble." Ditto ex-Sen. Goodell.

"At least these three tried and lost," says Timmesch. "Virtually every other congressman, administration official and opinion-maker in Washington area either charged with the responsibility of implementing school integration or on the record for busing copped out when it came to his own children."

Let anyone conclude, however, that this failure of nerve is exhibited only by white liberals, prominent blacks in the District of Columbia "are no exception to the rule that integration activists find it difficult to live up to their preachments," notes Timmesch. Among them he cites Percy, Walter Washington, Rep. Walter Fauntroy and Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall.

Successful theme

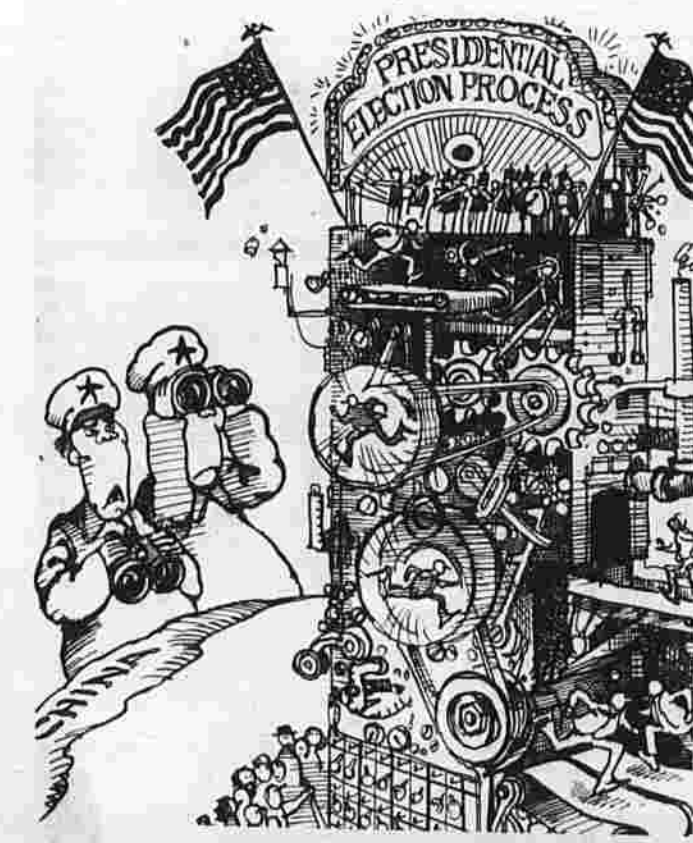

Was there ever a gasoline shortage or a recession? The travel industry is anticipating a boom year in domestic tourism as Americans by the tens of millions take plane, train, bus and private automobile to view the Liberty Bell, Concord Bridge and other historic shrines and scenes.

But it is not just areas associated with the Bicentennial that will experience the boom. Among the biggest beneficiaries, say industry spokesmen, will be the so-called "theme" parks which are expected to attract 70 million visitors this year as compared with 57 million in 1975 and just 10 million in 1965.

Since Walt Disney pioneered the concept in 1955, some 22

theme parks have sprung up all over the country and existing parks, such as Cedar Point in Ohio, Knott's Berry Farm in California, Hershey Park in Pennsylvania and Busch Gardens in Florida, have been similarly updated. Latest to enter the competition for the leisure dollar is the Marriott hotel chain, which will open two "Great America" parks this year near San Francisco and Chicago.

Last year alone, attendance at the theme parks was 25 per cent greater than at all professional football, baseball and basketball games combined. This isn't counting the estimated 900 other traditional amusement parks in the country.

Economists hope good news isn't temporary

WASHINGTON — "What I'm doing now," said one of President Ford's house economists, "is praying that the good news isn't just temporary."

The good news, of course, is that output of goods and services increased at an annual rate of 7.5 per cent in the first quarter of 1976, while the overall inflation rate dipped from a 6.8 per cent annual rate in the fourth quarter of 1975 to an annual rate of 3.7 per cent in the year's first three months.

Such figures certainly are cause for rejoicing, if not for dancing in the streets. After all, the Gross National Product fell 1.8 per cent in 1974 and 2 per cent in 1975, and prices rose last year by a whopping 8.8 per cent. At the same time, the unemployment rate for March fell to 7.5 per cent, and if production keeps improving that rate should continue to fall.

But there are some "buts." Administration experts fear that food and fuel prices will increase in the months ahead. And another inflationary spiral could be produced by big wage-increase packages. The Teamsters, for example, won a three-year, 33 per cent wage boost for their members. If such gains are made in other industries, that old devil wage-push inflation would be with us again.

Moreover, the recovery from the 1974-75 recession has been stimulated by consumer buying, rather than by business spending. The experts agree that there can be no sustaining improvement in the economy unless businesses increase their buying — for plant and equipment and for bigger inventories.

No such thing as no say by stockholders

WASHINGTON — There is only one way to stem the shady practices by managements of multi-million dollar companies.

That is shareholder action.

Most owners of stock, major and minor, routinely send in the proxies solicited by management. In practice, this means that the chairman of the board, the president and a few other company officers make all the major decisions with little or no action.

The main body of stockholders know little of what is going on. Elected directors, many of whom are operating officials of other major companies, usually have little time to determine what is going on.

It is a credit to the basic integrity of the men in upper management that so many firms are competent and honestly run despite this lack of oversight.

Now it is obviously impossible for the ordinary stockholder to assemble a group sufficiently large to capture a majority in most companies, or even a working block of 25 to 30 per cent.

But this reporter has studied cases in which determined stockholders owning a tiny per cent of the stock in a major firm have been able to achieve their objectives by the pressure of publicity they generated at stockholder meetings with well-founded demands for information.

Unfortunately, in the cases I've looked into, these amounted to one-shot operations, aimed at quick-fix solutions and not long-term remedies.

What's wanted is for groups of small or medium shareholders in companies to band together and elect one or more directors independent of company management but not tied down with 24-hour-a-day responsibilities to another company. With sufficient publicity, cogent arguments and the right candidates, this could be accomplished. Not the first go-round perhaps, but the second, third or fourth.

The ideal independent director could most logically be found in that growing group of able men and women retired from high posts in industry, government and the academic world, retirees who have proved their physical and mental ability to handle major decisions. Not all retirees would qualify, of course. But with the "65-and-out"

Thought for the day

God of our forebears, hear our prayer this day for the United States of America and for all of us, its people of many diverse races and cultures. May we learn to become one people out of our many heritages. May we learn to hear, respect, admire those who are different from us so that our differences will at last enrich the whole community of the nation and not increase or multiply those confrontations, suspicions, and hatreds which threaten our internal peace, prosperity, and unity.

Maybe one mouse

It was early morn (4:45) of Easter and all through the house not a creature was stirring, well maybe one mouse.

The children were sleeping all snug in their beds, covered in blankets right up to their heads.

When all of a sudden I heard such a clatter, I rose from my bed to see what was the matter.

Much to my surprise I heard Bolton's fire truck wailing quite loudly, followed by four cars flashing their blue lights quite proudly!

Now, I wonder why the fire truck's siren was wailing so loudly, and the blue lights were shining so brightly.

When in the road not a creature was stirring.

Well, maybe one mouse?

"We ask our hosts not to do anything elaborate when entertaining their guests — but in true Bahamian hospitality, some of them will be visiting. Clams can be substituted for the conch if that is unavailable.

Milk substitute
Earlier this week on the radio I heard you know what's his name that has the brother Staines tell about a cooking tip he received from a very "reliable source."

It seems if you substitute the water you boil potatoes in for the milk called for in your cake recipe, the cake will stay nice and moist much longer. Besides, it's less expensive.

Friendly people
Speaking of cruises (and I love to go) you are planning a trip to Nassau, you can write ahead and let the Bahamian Ministry of Tourism know and they will arrange for you to visit with some Bahamians of similar interests.

At the movies
During my vacation, I had an opportunity to see "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," and also the "Hindenberg." Both were shown abroad the s.s. Oceanic during our cruise to Nassau.

Andover teacher-thespians display their wizardry

By DONNA HOLLAND

Hundreds of Andover residents attended performances Thursday and Friday of the Wizard of Oz put on by the Andover Elementary School staff and friends.

One can only feel bad for the many residents and friends unable to get tickets and for those turned away at the door.

The amateur production was fantastic. Full credit must go to all the director, the cast and the production staff.

The scenery done by the teachers and Grade 6 students was plentiful and eye-catching.

The costumes by Evelyn Lauder deserve special mention. From the wizard's lit chest to the apple throwing tree. The make-up done by Debra Cohen-Stone also deserves mention, especially that of the wicked witch (who you believed she was).

Although all the amateurs (this was their first play) deserve praise, this writer feels special mention should go to Carol Wheeler as Dorothy, David Turkington as Toto, Mary Keenan as the scarecrow, Sue Gradual as the cowardly lion, Carter, Eileen O'Brien as the wicked witch, Dorothy and Toto were played by the Grade 6 teachers.

Other cast members were Kay Carl, tin man; Clara Ursin, good witch; David Kravet, wizard; Peter Allison, guardian of the gate; Jane Jones, Auntie Em; David Caron, Uncle Henry; Peg Yeomans and David Calichera, trees.

The list and the play wouldn't be complete without mentioning the munchkins played by Linda Carter, Eleanor Figueira, Nancy Hutchinson, Bett MacDonald, Mary McNamara, Joanne Whalon and Lucinda Stadnick.

Stage fright wasn't evident in any of the cast.

To give you an idea of how popular the play became in the second day writer attended the one day showing and arrived a half hour early for a front row seat, only a few back rows were empty.

Ruth Munson, director, received the school's first annual "Rotten Apple" award. It was presented to her by Kravet, school principal.

Those who participated in the production were presented "Ozvie Poo" awards by Kravet.

Proceeds from the play and the sale of ice cream sundaes afterwards will help finance the Grade 6 trip to New York City.

Dear Abby: I am 13 and so is Todd. Everytime we are alone, he tries to touch me in places I don't want him to. The only thing is that part of me wants him to, but the other part of me stops him.
I have been feeling Todd for about five months, and I have never felt this way about any other boy. I wouldn't say that I am 'in love' with him, but I sure do like him a lot.

Glastonbury man seeks GOP senate nomination

David W. Cohen, 36, of Glastonbury today announced he will seek the Republican nomination for state senator from the Fourth Senatorial District. It is his first try at public office and, except for former membership on the Somers GOP Town Committee, his first involvement in politics. He has resided in Glastonbury for nine months.

The incumbent state senator is Democrat David Barry of Manchester. Prior to 1974, the state senator (for four years) was Republican David Odegard, also of Manchester.

Cohen, a New Haven native, is an electrical contractor — president of Electrical Construction and Maintenance of Enfield. He is married to the former Lynne Sayet of Rockville. They have three boys and a girl, ages 21 months to 13 years.

He said, if nominated, he "will conduct a hard-hitting campaign based on specific factual issues."

Claiming that "spending has become a popular pastime instead of a considered action," he said that "state and federal strings make independent thought and activity almost impossible."

Rooney

Rooney, Walsh, Town Counsel Victor Moses, Asst. Town Counsel Thomas Prior, Asst. Town Manager Charles McCarthy, and two officials of the Connecticut Council of Police Unions No. 15, New Haven.

Rooney, of Bolton, has been with the Police Department for 14 years. He joined as a patrolman in 1962 and became a sergeant in 1968.

He was demoted Jan. 6 without reasons being revealed, and since then he has been working as a senior patrolman. On Jan. 11, Lannan promoted Policeman John Mott to fill the sergeant's vacancy.

Walsh declined to comment today on Weiss' decision. Others involved in the case either declined to comment or couldn't be reached for comment.

Chief can't restrict vendors, says Moses

Manchester's chief of police cannot keep out-of-town vendors from operating during the Bicentennial parade, but he can control their number, location and merchandise, according to an opinion by Town Counsel Victor I. Moses.

Moses issued the ruling at the request of the Bicentennial Committee which would like to restrict paradeside vendors to those approved by the committee.

Moses drew a distinction between the classes of vendors, those under contract with the committee, and those not.

The chief of police has authority over vendors without contract or approval of the Bicentennial Committee.

They are required to obtain a vending license and are bound by town ordinances giving the police chief controls over their operations. His restrictions are subject to the Board of Directors approval.

Organizations under contract with the committee are exempt from the provisions of the ordinance and are under the complete control of the Bicentennial Committee.

According to their contracts, the local vendors' proceeds will go to charities and the cost of the parade.

Moses stresses the cooperation of the police chief and the parade committee to preserve the rights of both classes of vendors.

The local chapter was organized last November by the Manchester Hospital Auxiliary as part of its community outreach program. Services provided include both crisis intervention and continuing help through weekly meetings with Mrs. Wolcuff.

Parents Anonymous meets every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Concordia Lutheran Church. Those wishing more information may call 1-800-842-2288 (toll free). There are no fees or dues. Free transportation and baby-sitting are provided.

AD CRAFT

Over 125 entries were received for The Herald's second annual "Ad Craft" contest. Entries were judged by The Herald advertising staff and prizes were awarded in the following categories: (1) 4th, 5th, and 6th grades; (2) 7th, 8th, and 9th grades; (3) 10th, 11th, and 12th grades. A first prize and two honorable mentions were awarded in each category, and an over-all grand prize winner was named. Many excellent entries were submitted and judging was very difficult. The Herald regrets being unable to publish all entries. Our congratulations to all the winners and our thank you to all the entrants.
