Long summer ahead for Reagan and Ford

By LEWIS LORD
United Press International
Suddenly, in a reversal of nearly all campaign predictions, Democratic presidential candidates are taking party unity while President Ford and Ronald Reagan knuckled down for a summer-long fight for the GOP nomination.
Jimmy Carter, way out front in the Democratic race, is calling for unity in talks with party leaders. He has talked by telephone this week with Sen. Hubert Humphrey, New York Gov. Hugh Carey and New York Mayor Abe Beame.
Two of Carter's remaining opponents, Morris Udall and George Wallace, said they would support Carter if he's nominated. It was the first such declaration from Wallace, who earlier termed the former Georgia governor "a warmed-over (Sen. George) McGovern."
Udall, still struggling to keep his chances alive, told a Washington news conference Wednesday there will be "no blood on the floor" once the nomination is decided.
"We're not going to screw it up the way we did in '68 and '72," Udall Watergate Committee, said he will enter the race himself if a nominee isn't produced on an early ballot.
Ford — now trailing Reagan in committed delegate votes as a result of the legislature, and regulation on the shipment of nuclear wastes through the state had been tightened.
In the area of employment, Mrs. Grasso said, the legislature provided state funding for a mini-job program

It was smiles all around
William Johnson, master of ceremonies at Wednesday night's annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, escorts Dr. John Rogers to the head table to receive the Chamber's "M" Award.

Gov. Grasso tells legislators future is bright for state

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut's future is so bright she's named the state entry in the Calaveras County Frog Jumping contest "New Hope," Gov. Ella T. Grasso said in closing the 1976 legislative session.
"The legislature has weathered the financial storm that led her to name last year's entry 'Austerity,' and has passed measures helping consumers and business, she told the final meeting of the House and Senate Wednesday.
"Austerity" was not among the winners of the annual contest in California.
Law makers praised in a brief speech not once interrupted by applause, the governor praised lawmakers for setting a $1.8 billion budget for next fiscal year and closing a $38 million shortage this year despite sagging tax revenues.
"Despite difficult fiscal constraints, a budget has been enacted that will not raise the overall tax burden on our citizens," she said.
"Some of the burden has been shifted to offer a degree of relief for business and industry."
The budget is $120 million higher than this year's $1.68 billion, but the only tax increase will be $14.5 million on the gasoline levy, from 10 to 11 cents per gallon. Another $100 million will be generated through several bookkeeping changes.
Revitalization have prepared "The responsibility demonstrated by the state will provide the necessary foundation on which we can build to revitalize the Connecticut economy," said Mrs. Grasso.
She faulted the legislature only for rejecting her proposal for a shakeup of the Special Revenue Commission, in charge of legalized gambling. She urged legislators to study the overhaul for possible action next year.
"The people must be assured of efficiency, expert management and protection against abuses," she said, referring to the Republican-controlled commission she has battled for nearly a year.
The governor said $4.5 million in extra state aid to financially beleaguered cities had been ap-

Coveted Chamber of Commerce 'M' Award presented Dr. Rogers

Dr. John E. Rogers, civic and church leader and an authority on history of blacks in New England, received the "M" award Wednesday night at the 76th annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce.
Dr. Rogers had left the room at Flano's briefly and re-entered just in time to hear William Hale, outgoing Chamber president, announce the name of the winner. It is kept secret until the announcement.
The honored guest had already made an acceptance speech, in effect. Earlier he had been given a special award by the Chamber for his booklet, "Inner City Bicentennial Booklet: 1776-1976."
He was escorted back to the head table by William Johnson, master of ceremonies, and began another acceptance speech with the simple declaration: "This is too much."
With the modesty that has come to be regarded as characteristic of him, Dr. Rogers disclaimed personal credit for his accomplishments and lauded the nation, the community, his friends.
"We have been the beneficiaries of our country," he said. "We get out of it what we put in, but some of us want to take it out before we put it in."
Dr. Rogers made that observation after receiving his first award of the evening. Ironically, he said, "I'm getting too many honors. I don't want any more."
"What I have done, if anything, I have done by faith," Dr. Rogers said.
Presentation of the awards to Dr. Rogers was the highlight of the annual dinner. Hale, as outgoing president, received a plaque in appreciation of his service. Suzanne Flocken, executive vice president of the Chamber, introduced chamber directors who were present.
Dr. Rogers was born and reared in Hartford where he received all of his formal schooling, which ended with graduation from Weaver High School in 1929.
His school days were uneventful as such. Like several other athletes in high school, he excelled in football. In fact, a teammate of his was John G. Rotner, a Manchester attorney. Dr. Rogers' career began with enrollment in an electronics course after high school which reached a dead end when he was unable to find employment.
Much of Dr. Rogers' experience with human relationships began perhaps in his job as a "personal man," a more refined term for valet, to the president of the Hartford Accident and Indemnity Co., a position he kept for ten years, and a period when he enjoyed many a conversation with his employee on the cultural aspects of life.
Also, during this time, he worked part time for the U.S. Post Office in Hartford.
His fulltime employment with the Post Office began in 1959 and continued until his retirement in 1968 at which time he was superintendent of the Bishop's Corner branch in West Hartford. He was the first Negro to hold such rank in the Greater Hartford area.
Dr. Rogers' interest in Negro history had been prompted by his father who was a Danish subject and had traveled widely, and whose philosophy on black men clashed with that of his wife who was from New Jersey, and often with their son. He owes thanks to his father for his history book for black men.
A prying mind and a curiosity to learn the history of his race, particularly the Negroes in New England, have spurred Dr. Rogers

Wholesale prices up 0.8%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices leaped 0.8 per cent in April, propelled by the biggest increase in farm and food prices in a year, the Labor Department reported today. The increase, reflecting a nearly double-digit annual rate of 8.8 per cent, brought an abrupt end to a virtual five-month lull in the wholesale market. It was the biggest monthly jump since last October.
The April wholesale increases soon will be passed along to consumers and, combined with an upcoming round of meat price hikes, threaten to weaken President Ford's campaign promise that his economic policies can defuse inflation.
Led by livestock, eggs and green coffee, farm prices rose a healthy 4.2 per cent after declining sharply the previous three months. Processed food and feed prices rose 1.9 per cent—the biggest rise since November, 1974.
Combined farm and processed food prices rose 2.8 per cent. Not since April, 1975, have these prices taken such a large leap.
Despite already announced future price increases for steel, aluminum, copper, lead and some wood products, industrial prices rose a slight 0.3 per cent during March.
Metal prices began to heat up slightly in April, but wood prices dropped.
The Wholesale Price Index in April stood at 181.3, up 5.3 per cent from a year ago. That means that wholesale goods costing $100 in 1967 now cost $181.30. The index for farm products was 8.6 per cent higher than a year ago, and for industrial goods it was up 6.1 per cent.
Wholesale prices increased a slight 0.2 in March after declines in January and February. A similar lull in consumer prices and a downward trend in unemployment also were expected to be reversed during April.

HARTFORD — Connecticut will join 15 other states in filing suit against soon-to-be-published food stamp regulations, Gov. Ella T. Grasso said today, because they could "cause severe hardships among the needy in our state." She said 189,064 persons in Connecticut use food stamps.

Firemen seek help in naming new mascot
The Eighth District Fire Department's new mascot, a 15-month-old Dalmatian, gets ready for this week's spring cleanup/fire prevention visits to schools in the district. At left is fire fighter Ken Roback, official handler, and at right is firefighter Jim Sarles, fire prevention coordinator. The school visits kick off a "Name the Dog Contest" for elementary school pupils. Entries will be judged by the fire department and the winning pupil will ride with the newly named Dalmatian on district fire engines in the June 12 Bicentennial Parade. The new district mascot succeeds Mack, the Dalmatian owned by Rick Skoglund, who both joined the Town Fire Department last year. (Herald photo by Pinto) for more than 40 years to acquire hundreds of books which occupy wall space on two floors of his home at 1163 E. Middle Tpk., the books which have been a source for his many writings and hundreds of educational lectures to school, church and civic groups.

City and federal funds furthered his study after his retirement from the postal service. As his expertise became recognized by authorities in education and government, he received appointments to serve in both fields and was honored for his accomplishments.

He set up and introduced courses in Afro-American history in schools throughout the Hartford area, and is a consultant to University of Hartford in black history and culture, and teacher of credit courses in the subject there and at Manchester Community College.

His research has taken him on a tour of Europe where he made a study of Negroes abroad, and to two African universities for similar studies.

One of his more exciting appointments was from the U.S. Navy to conduct Negro history courses aboard a Navy vessel under the Program for Afloat College Education off the coast of Italy.

Dr. Rogers received a top award from the University of Hartford when they conferred the Doctor of Humane Letters for his contributions and achievements.

Dr. Rogers' concern is not limited to education alone, but extends to civic and community work. He has served on numerous committees and boards concerned with Hartford's redevelopment and North End community efforts. He served a governor's appointment as a delegate to the White House Conference on Aging.

He received the first St. Benedict Award at the Catholic Interracial Council of Hartford for outstanding achievement in the field of human rights. St. Benedict is a Negro saint.

He was also appointed to the New England regional executive committee of the Boy Scouts of America.

Locally, he is a citizen member of the Permanent Memorial Day Committee and a corporator of the Savings Bank of Manchester.

Other appointments to various educational and civic committees and groups are numerous, as are his various honors and awards.

Much of Dr. Rogers' life has been devoted to his religious interests. With his wife, Oretta, he joined the Bolton Congregational Church on Christmas, 1936, where he has since served just about every capacity on church boards, including a long term as Sunday School superintendent.

During a special ceremony in his honor by the church in 1966, Pastor J. Stanton Conover said to Dr. Rogers,

Simsbury man recalls surrender at Bataan

Suzanne Flocken, the Chamber's executive vice president.

SIMSBURY (UPI) — Thirty-four years ago today, America was forced to surrender U.S. military to the Japanese in the Philippines. The memory is still fresh and painful for Dan Crowley, who spent nearly four years as a POW.

Between 35,000 and 40,000 American soldiers were captured and imprisoned, and only about 1,200 are alive today, said Crowley, who remains embittered despite the passage of time.

"This was the largest group of Americans ever surrendered in the history of the United States," Crowley said. About 40 per cent died in concentration camps, he said.

"That attack was the result of being unprepared. We fought with Civil War cannons, World War I weapons, grenades that didn't explode, anti-aircraft guns that didn't reach the bombers and poor ammunition," he said.

In April, the American forces on Bataan Peninsula were surrounded by the U.S. Crowley said he and thousands of others escaped to the tiny island of Corregidor, but eventually were captured.

"Then they marched us through the streets of Manila so the people could see the white man being crushed," he said.

As a group "we're dying faster than World War I or Vietnam veterans," said Crowley, 54, who walks with a cane and is disabled from beriberi resulting from his captivity.

Experts believe the accelerated death rate among the ex-POW population resulted largely from coronary heart disease caused by stress, strain and starvation, he said.

"Ninety per cent have had heart attacks and are suffering from other effects associated with starvation, horrible diet, stress and forced labor of up to 16 hours a day," Crowley said.

If there is a lesson to be learned, Crowley said it is to keep strong as a nation.

"Keep the American people aware of what happens when you offer yourself to a potentially big bully in a weakened state," he said.

Crowley was an 18-year-old Army Air Corps private when captured and spent 42 months as a POW, starting at the infamous Palawan concentration camp, where he said he was "broken to a pulp" by Japanese soldiers with pick handles. About 150 Americans were burned alive with gasoline at Palawan, one of the biggest atrocities committed by the Japanese, Crowley said.

He is a member of a small group of Japanese concentration camp survivors, called the American Detainers of Bataan and Corregidor, who try to help themselves while keeping alive the memory of those who died.

Economic reporters criticized

NEW YORK (UPI) — The president of the Bethlehem Steel Corp. says many reporters covering business do not have the background in economics required to do the job properly. Speaking at a general session of the American Newspaper Publishers Association's 90th annual convention, Frederic W. West Jr. declared, "The evidence is that a lot of journalists are over their heads when reporting business news."

He suggested that reporters enroll in courses designed to give them a working knowledge of economic matters or, if they do not have the time, make a habit of reading the business press.

West, meanwhile, praised those news organizations that have hired economic experts for full-time business coverage.

At the same time, he urged private industry to abandon its long-held suspicion of the media, saying, "Business has to work with the press, not against it. If we ever hope to get top quality business and economic coverage."

"It's true that journalists often seem to be suspicious of business," he said. "But they're equally suspicious of just about everybody in positions of power, influence or wealth."

West cautioned that the press must understand the desire of the companies to avoid hasty answers to complex, sensitive questions, declaring, "Confidence has to be earned, and that goes both ways."

In another address to the convention, Prof. Steve Starr of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration said it is going to take more than just a few articles on rock music and the counterculture if newspapers are to have any chance of winning new young readers.

Starr told the news executives they have to "move on a lot of fronts simultaneously" if they hope to establish a foothold in the young adult market, where readership is below that of older age groups.

One possibility, Starr suggested, would be to run special supplements regularly for young adult readers and distribute them in areas where a potential market has been identified.

Opinion

Where do we draw the line?

We live in an age where there seems to be an insatiable thirst for digging up the past. There is also an attitude in the wake of such national scandals as Watergate, that many coverups have occurred because our leaders and others in positions of power did not trust the common sense of the American people to act in a just and reasonable manner if given all the facts.

The problem is where to draw the line. And not being infallible the line is sometimes drawn too soon or too late. In summary, given the general climate today of a desire to determine what is true or not true about incidents in the past like the Gulf of Tonkin or the murder of the Kennedys and Martin Luther King, and the all-to-prevalent attitude that coverups have gone on in addition to the ill-fated attempted one involving Watergate, many old wounds are reopened.

We can only hope that when this occurs, the evidence will reaffirm the original conclusions given the public. If it does not, the reinvestigation is probably justified. If the original conclusion is affirmed, it should be stronger for it. Whatever we do, we must first and foremost take care that we do not impede in any way the pursuit of truth even if it does at time seem to unnecessarily, but not maliciously, intrude into areas some may feel quite sincerely, has been honestly and fairly resolved. For truth never really hurt anyone, but to complacently accept everything we hear and read as truth without question is the thing which nurtures Watergate-type scandals.

Dr. John E. Rogers honor well-deserved

Dr. John E. Rogers is a modest man. He thinks more about what he can do for his town, his country, and his fellowman. He thinks he has received too many honors. Wednesday night he said he doesn't want any more. Those remarks were made when the Chamber of Commerce honored him for his booklet: "Inner City Bicentennial Booklet: 1776-1976." They came early in the program of the 75th annual Chamber Dinner.

Dr. Rogers had left the room momentarily. He did not hear Bill Hale, past president of the Chamber, read the Rogers biography, a citation waxed in eloquence that kept in mystery the identity of the winner for several minutes. But as if by prepared script Dr. Rogers returned in time to hear Bill Hale ask Bill Johnson, master of ceremonies, to "escort this year's Chamber 'M' award recipient, Dr. John E. Rogers." He was overwhelmed; he had spoken his piece earlier; he had only one further comment to make: "All I can say is I hope to be able to make the contributions to the whole community and all of mankind that will make me worthy of this honor." You have, Dr. Rogers, you have.

Jimmy Carter and big government

Tom Tiede

PITTSBURGH - About this time a year ago, before Jimmy Carter became Jimmy Carter, I visited the peanut farmer at his home in southwest Georgia. He was then trying to convince the earless nation he was a presidential candidate, and I arranged to listen to the argument in between a morning date at a cocktail and an evening meeting with two Atlanta prostitutes who said they had information (they didn't) on the morals of some Watergate figures.

Carter was at the rear of his home - a nice but not sumptuous place of the suburban gentleman category. He had been clearing growth from a small woods, "holding back the jungle" as he put it. He was dressed in tan jeans and sneakers. And sweating. We retired to a kind of recreation room study - books on the walls and do-it-yourself vinyl tiles on the floor. At his wife's asking, he requested a Coke and I a Pepsi; it being Georgia we both got Coke.

It was a time when the image of Richard Nixon was still that of a dangerous man rather than a sexless vegetable. Only a few days earlier I had been told by another White House hopeful, North Carolina's Terry Sanford, that the power of the "imperial president" must be harnessed. But Carter would have none of the popular notion; in our form of government, he said, one man has to have ultimate responsibility, thus in effect ultimate control.

If people want a softer for president," he added, "they shouldn't vote for me." I suggested that his position might be abusive to many, that people were increasingly worried about the government's muscle. He would not be swayed. Removing his sneakers to let the steam escape, he said people are not so much worried about strong government as inefficient government.

"We used to see the government as our friend, something there to help us when necessary. Now many people find that it has become an impediment of sorts. I don't think they are angry at government's strength; they are angry at its weaknesses, its failures."

For instance, Carter said, one German official at a cocktail party, "We simply do not plan well." And then he told a story of meeting a high level German official at a cocktail party.

"He told me that in his country every possible eventuality is thought out and preparations made for it. If the price of oil goes up 5 per cent and the supply goes down 10 per cent, they have already mapped strategy as to what they can do. And they have it down in writing. We could do the same in America."

Now, one year later, as Carter has at last convinced the nation of his presidential chances, it is clear that he has yet to convince it of his philosophic fundamentals. He is projected as a Washington outsider, a conservative running against the government, and we take this falsely to mean he is aiming his lance at centralized power.

It's not that he's tried to deceive us. He's been consistent from the beginning: big government is necessary, good government is the argument. The only change I see in Carter in a year's time is a quaint one: I have in my notes of my early visit with him that he "seems too serious," and I remember in our long talk he did not smile much at all.

U.S. taxes support Indira's propaganda

Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON - Frances R. Valeo, secretary of the Senate, recently made a quick trip through India, Bangladesh and Pakistan, came home, issued a 16-page pamphlet of conclusions, and all at government expense.

Writes Valeo, "There is little doubt that the concept of the Emergency has gained public acceptance in India, and opposition politicians, militant religious-oriented factions and separatist groups."

Meanwhile, a UPI report from New Delhi notes "club-swinging police waded into a crowd of hundreds of slum dwellers resisting eviction from New Delhi's main tourist shopping center Monday so bulldozers could level their shanties. Despite claims by some nearby residents that police opened fire on the crowd killing several persons, police sources insisted there were no deaths."

And the Wall Street Journal recently reported a passive resistance movement in various cities and towns with 80,000 people courting arrest in one eight-week period. In one day 600 people were arrested for merely protesting the abolition of civil liberties.

Then note the news estimate of 180,000 to 190,000 political prisoners. Yet Valeo writes, as an official of Congress, in a report published by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, that "the Emergency seems to have been far more widely disapproved abroad, and particularly in the United States, than in India."

Valeo lays particular stress on a list of Gandhi economic and management improvements: "Inflation has been halted. Hoarders and speculators are disgorging their holdings and corruption has been curbed. Civil servants have become more attentive to public needs. Industry and labor seem to be responding to the government's pleading or pressure for increased output. Similarly, the railroads are providing better service."

condemned. He had talked of "planning," of "programs," of "reorganization of priorities," the latter especially synonymous with government strength. And I came away feeling he was an FDR with an accent, a new New Dealer, a man like JFK who wanted to move the planets.

Now, one year later, as Carter has at last convinced the nation of his presidential chances, it is clear that he has yet to convince it of his philosophic fundamentals. He is projected as a Washington outsider, a conservative running against the government, and we take this falsely to mean he is aiming his lance at centralized power.

It's not that he's tried to deceive us. He's been consistent from the beginning: big government is necessary, good government is the argument. The only change I see in Carter in a year's time is a quaint one: I have in my notes of my early visit with him that he "seems too serious," and I remember in our long talk he did not smile much at all.

Legion to play ball at East Catholic

The American Legion Committee agreed unanimously after much discussion on option No. 3. The offer of East Catholic was made sometime ago by East Coach Jim Penders to Donahue Legion baseball chairman. With all games at East it will be more convenient for out-of-town teams, spectators and officials rather than accepting option No. 2. A campaign by the Legion committee to publicize games at East will be promoted to achieve the gate necessary to offset expenses.

The committee is sincerely grateful to the 373 Manchester citizens who supported our cause. We are equally appreciative to the officials of East Catholic for their generosity. Legion officials expressed feelings that, in the future, they will continue to remain an active part of the Manchester Recreation Community and with this thought in mind, it is desired that playing fields be made available to accommodate all baseball programs in Manchester. Sincerely, Henry Wirzbick Sr. Public relations officer and assistant.

To the editor, Inclosed is a copy of a letter I have sent to John Bengston, postmaster, which may be of interest to Open Forum readers. Dear John, Time and time again people have complained about the inconvenience of parking and doing business at our post office. Isn't it time to put some new ideas to work on this troublesome matter? I have the authority to borrow an idea from Joseph Swenson, town constable, which would do much to solve this problem. Why not abandon the antiquated post office at the corner of Main and Center Streets? The Masonic Lodge might be interested in purchasing or leasing it; we might even reap an improvement in traffic flow. Where would we then relocate the post office - at the old A&P store, of course. I believe this should get top priority by the post office and the Board of Directors. Respectfully yours, Paul E. Willhide, Town Director, 475 Porter St., Manchester

God does not leave His children alone in any circumstances. He rules, and causes everything to come out right for His children. In due time the faithful are exalted. "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord." (Isaiah 54:17).

Kissinger unveils program to combat world poverty

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) - Secretary of State Henry Kissinger today announced a far-reaching program to attack poverty in developing countries and urged them to seek prosperity in cooperation rather than "economic warfare" with the West. In a 10,000-word address to the U.N. Conference on Trade and Development, Kissinger offered the Third World the prospect of bigger Western capital investments, more stable prices for commodities, direct financial aid and more know-how through a privately financed "technology corps."

Kissinger planned to fly back to the United States via Crete and Paris, ending a 13-day, six-nation tour of Africa that he said would lead to a new U.S. policy toward the continent. In his speech, Kissinger rejected some of the developing countries' own cherished projects for overcoming poverty and warned that confrontation with the West through cartels and other means would only harm them. The developing countries (which) only hurt themselves... through contrived scarcities, cartels, embargoes or arbitrary seizures of property."

Police union

MERIDEN (UPI) - State police men and women have chosen the Connecticut State Employees Association as their official bargaining agent with the state. Joseph Oliva, president of CSEA State Police Chapter 174, said Wednesday the CSEA drew 380 votes and the International Brotherhood of Police Officers 268 while seven persons voted for no union representation.

Immediately after the speech, Kissinger's major proposal called for establishing a $1 billion international resources bank. Its main purpose would be to encourage multinational corporations to invest in development of minerals and other resources in poor countries by offering them insurance against nationalization.

UConn Health Center trailer rentals costly

FARMINGTON (UPI) — The University of Connecticut Health Center has spent more to lease up to 33 trailers for temporary storage than it would have cost to buy the trailers outright, according to a published report today.

The report said the estimated cost over eight years for leasing the dilapidated trailers was over $100,000 more than it would have cost to purchase trailers for storage purposes.

Health Center Vice President James Leming said Wednesday the health center, now under investigation by the legislature, uses the trailers because the legislature has not authorized $1.2 million to build permanent storage facilities.

Leming said the legislature has rejected requests for the funds each year since 1969. He said this was the first year the governor in office did not endorse the fund request.

The trailers, containing both furniture and equipment no longer used and also surplus items that are used, are spread out in three locations at the $100 million UConn complex.

Leming said the health center continued leasing the trailers, instead of buying them, because it was expecting its request for permanent storage facilities to be approved.

State Auditor Henry Becker said the health center paid $19,900 in 1975 to lease the trailers from the Eagle Leasing Co. of Orange.

Two state labor unions swing support to Udall

HARTFORD (UPI) — Some state labor support swung to Morris K. Udall today, according to his state campaign coordinator, Amy Brennan.

She announced John Stupak of the United Auto Workers and Wayne Gilbert of the International Machinists Association would head the "Labor for Udall Committee."

She said Udall was confident he would win labor support in the state. The candidate plans a weekend campaign swing through Connecticut to boost his sagging campaign.

The only union local president in the group announced was Alverne Mayhew, who heads machinists local 707.

"We are extremely pleased to have the help of these labor leaders," Miss Brennan said.

She said Udall "supports the repeal of 'right to work' laws, has made jobs his number one priority and has a 90 per cent favorable rating from COPE (the political arm of the AFL-CIO)."

To Have and Have Not nations are growing much faster than the "haves." The Conference Board reports. Only 30 per cent of the world's four billion people live in developed countries. Population in the "have not" countries is growing 1.8 per cent a year, compared with about 1 per cent in the "have nations." By the year 2000, 20 per cent of the world's 8 billion population will live in "have not" countries.

Many issues not acted upon

HARTFORD (UPI) — Proposals to give prosecutors more latitude in collecting evidence and allowing persons dissolving a marriage to charge their spouses with rape were casualties of legislative inaction.

The legislature ended its 1976 session Wednesday without taking action on a number of issues.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso had asked lawmakers to reduce the degree of immunity which must be granted, in criminal trials, to witnesses who are forced to testify. It didn't have the votes for passage.

The change would have allowed authorities to force a witness to testify and only grant him immunity from prosecution regarding evidence gained through his testimony. Law now orders that witnesses forced to testify be given immunity regarding any event testified about.

The legislation was designed to give authorities more latitude in investigations, supporters said.

"There wasn't any sentiment for it," said Senate Judiciary Chairman David Neiditz, D-West Hartford.

Under the existing law, rape charges cannot be brought when the alleged assailant and the victim are married to each other.

The proposal allowed to die in the Senate would have permitted women seeking divorces, annulments or separations to charge their spouses with sexual assault.

Among other legislation that was not acted on were bills that would:

Boston's tourism unhurt by violence

BOSTON (UPI) — expected $700 million spent at the retail level. "We'll have about 50 more national conventions this year than last year, mostly because of the Bicentennial," he said. "To date we've had no major cancellations."

Between six and nine million tourists are expected to visit Boston's historic sites by Dec. 31, with retail business measured in the hundreds of millions of dollars by business experts.

"Surprisingly — and fortunately — we haven't had any trends that people are staying away," said Harron Etelson, director of Boston 200, the city's Bicentennial Commission.

"We've gotten a few calls — people wanting to know if it was safe to come here, but not too many," she said.

Boston has been desegregating its schools under a federal court order since September of 1974. Intermittent incidents — stonings, beatings, marches, unrest in a number of schools, and general tension — have marked the period.

Most of the violence has involved fewer than 100 persons and few persons have been seriously injured.

The incidents have been confined primarily to four sections of the city: the predominantly white, blue collar neighborhoods of South Boston and Charlestown and black sections of Roxbury and Dorchester.

James Lyon, public relations director of the Sheraton Corp., one of the largest hotel chains in the Boston area, said business has been brisk with little concern about the violence evidenced by clients.

"That [violence] hasn't come up at all," said Lyon. "There is some concern that if the street violence in Roxbury and Dorchester continues, there could be an effect. We've had no cancellations."

Robert Cummings of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce said 925 conventions would be held in Boston this year, with an

Income needs go up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A hypothetical middle income urban family needed an annual salary last fall of $15,318-or 6.9 per cent more than the previous year-to pay its bills, the Labor Department said Wednesday.

The figure was about $200 less than was announced last month. Officials at the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said they undertook a revision to better reflect federal income taxes in 1976.

A low level budget for the same hypothetical four-member family was $9,588, an increase of 4.2 per cent over last year. A high level budget was estimated at $22,294 or 7.3 per cent more than 1975.

The department annually releases estimates of budgets for three standards of living as an additional measure of the impact of inflation. The hypothetical family includes a 38-year-old full-time employed husband, an unemployed wife, a 13-year-old son and an 8-year-old daughter.

New Hampshire gears up for summer tourist season

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — You can't ski at New Hampshire slopes this summer, but where the snow was this winter, come this summer you can.

Play tennis; swim; camp; hang glide; go on a ride; fish; hike; play volleyball, badminton, baseball; see Revolutionary militia musters; attend a 1776 town meeting; watch a logging championship; join a bicycle race; shop at a host of arts and crafts shows; or go to a dog show.

Ski resorts making a push to attract summer business figure they'll draw 10 to 30 per cent more visitors this summer than last year. In large part because of the Bicentennial.

The state Department of Resources and Economic Development is doing no projections for 1976, but notes state parks drew four million visits last year.

Gunstock Area in Gilford, the nation's only county-owned ski area, puts on a Summerfest May 21 through Aug. 29 to keep the money rolling in.

"None of the other areas have camping that I'm aware of," said marketing director David Buckman. "We have 520 units in here and we could average four people to a unit, with sites in the woods, and fields, and near brooks."

Gunstock offers campers a swimming pool, recreation area with volleyball, badminton, baseball and ping pong, a new teen center, fishing, and hiking trails up Belknap Mountain, along with toilets, showers and laundry facilities.

Mother-Grandmother Day

Three generations have a hand in a special May Day observation at Singer Learning Center as Paul Bayer of 15 Winter St., his mother, Mrs. Terry Bayer, and his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Bayer, help prepare peanut butter-cereal balls for refreshments.

The bodies of the couple were found Tuesday morning by Mrs. Robinson's son, Henry J. Warner of West Hartford. Police said each had been shot once from a German-made handgun, found on the floor near the bodies.

Police said preliminary investigation showed Robinson first shot his wife and then himself.

Mr. Robinson had lived in Hartford for three years before he and his wife moved to Manchester about 10 days ago. He has been employed as a welder at Aetna Special Mfg. Co., East Hartford, until laid off about three weeks ago.

He has no known survivors. Mrs. Robinson was born in Hartford and lived there until coming to Manchester.

She is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Rose Simmons of Hartford and Mrs. John J. McKimm of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and two grandchildren.

Former South Windsorite on trial for manslaughter

CAMDEN, N.J. (UPI) - An attorney defending a yachtman against manslaughter charges says jurors must decide if his client's alleged refusal to throw his dog out of a lifeboat so two crewmen could climb in was an accident or a crime.

The defendant, Cyril LaBrecque, 51, of Santa Ana, Calif., and formerly of South Windsor, is accused of the 1974 deaths of Bradford Blakely and Paul Sagarino, both of Wethersfield, Conn., after his schooner sank off the New Jersey coast.

The indictment against LaBrecque charged he refused to jettison his 80-pound Labrador retriever and allow the two men to alternate in the lifeboat after the schooner foundered Jan. 28, 1974, in a storm off Little Beach Island, N.J.

Both men died of exposure. John McMahon, a public defender representing LaBrecque, told the jury in opening statements Wednesday that his client "went through a tragic event but your concern is was that a tragic accident or was that a crime?"

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bruce I. Goldstein told jurors, "We charge that this man refused even to attempt to rotate persons in the water with those in the boat."

McMahon said he would prove that LaBrecque never "attempted to get that dog out of that boat."

Council works to cut taxes

South Windsor The South Windsor $3.7 million general government budget went back to the drawing board Wednesday night as councilmen labored to cut as much as another mill from the 4.3-mill increase.

Mayor Sandra Bender and Councilman David Cohen offered further cuts contending further cutting would be a step backward for the town. It would eliminate too many services and facilities.

For weeks the council has debated what began as an estimated 10-mill increase for the town. The general government budget was the first proposed at $4.1 million, or a 10 percent increase.

Councilmen suggested hiring a full-time attorney. However, according to councilman, a study of comparable expense has shown the present system less expensive.

The present arrangement costs the town $12,000 plus $7,500 for partial office reimbursement and about $15,000 for complex court cases.

Some councilmen Wednesday night again looked to the school system for another mill cut in the total budget.

Councilman Edward Havens suggested $100,000 more could be cut by closing the Ellsworth School. Officials are talking about this for some time.

Councilman Leonard Sorosiak suggested cutting personnel, however the 80 percent of salary in unemployment compensation that would have to be paid by the town made the idea unfeasible.

A cut of $500 was made from the Planning and Zoning Commission for secretarial help and engineering consultants.

The council has until May 10 to complete talks. It must set the tax rate by July 1.

Calchera named to post

The association conducted a three-month search reviewing 38 applications. Eleven applicants were selected for interviews, and three finalists were recommended to the club.

He said if the users could get cost figures, he thinks they would be happy.

"We want to pay our way but we want to know what we're paying for," Salley said.

Walter Skinner who said he was representing 30 senior citizens said, "I don't know where we are going to get the extra $40 to pay you people. What are we going to do? We haven't got the money."

John Girardini a senior citizen, too, said, "You're robbing us. If you don't come to some agreement, we're going to take it to court."

Governor rebuffed three times during legislative session

By UAN TAMAYO HARTFORD (UPI) — The 1976 legislative session was marked by fiscal troubles and three major setbacks for the administration of Gov. Ella T. Grasso.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso presided over the closing ceremonies Wednesday after the House and the Senate cleared their desks of the last remaining items, mostly traditional congratulatory resolutions.

Many lawmakers will be working during the summer on interim legislative committees, and most will be campaigning for the November elections when all 151 House seats and 36 Senate seats will up for grabs.

More than 510 bills

The three-month session supposedly was restricted to fiscal and

'Uncommitted' to campaign on telephone

The "uncommitted" slate of delegates for next Tuesday's Democratic preferential primary is mounting a townwide telephone campaign and door-to-door canvass of Manchester Democratic voters — urging them to vote Tuesday and express their preference for a Democratic nominee.

Coordinators for the townwide campaign are: Henry Becker, Voting District 1; Walter Simon, District 2; John Sullivan, District 3; Nicholas Jackson, District 4; Charles Reimittis, District 5; Pascal Mastrangelo, District 6; Alfred Campbell, District 7; Joseph Gerwalk, District 8; Richard McConville, District 9; and James Cunningham, District 10.

Tuesday's paper ballots have boxes for the names of candidates for the Democratic nomination for president, plus a box for the "uncommitted."

All but one charge dismissed against ambulance operator

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — All but one of 439 larceny charges has been dismissed against a Hartford-area ambulance operator in connection with the use of ambulance transportation for welfare patients.

Court of Common Pleas Court Judge Frances Allen ruled Wednesday after a two-day hearing the state failed to prove the crime of larceny in the charges against Harvey Kagan, owner of Professional Ambulance Co., headquartered in Westchester.

The judge did not dismiss one count against Kagan but agreed to a request that he be given accelerated rehabilitation. She said Kagan would be put on probation for six months after which time the charge could be dropped, pending a recommendation from probation officials.

The charges involved ambulance transportation handled by Kagan's firm during a period in 1973. The state charged that the disputed bills submitted to the state Welfare Department were questionable as to whether actual trips had been made. Judge Allen said based on testimony that the Welfare Department's policy was to pay all such bills submitted in behalf of welfare patients by ambulance companies, it failed to investigate circumstances to determine if the billing was improper.

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

One thinks of a rock garden as built on a slope, perhaps with natural outcroppings of rock ledge, yet one of the finest rock gardens in the area is on land as flat as a table, once part of an East Hartford tobacco field.

Mrs. Edward A. (Fran) Libera has constructed her garden over the past eight years, piling up mounds of earth separated by narrow paths, and keeping many of her plants in planters or various shapes and sizes which she also has made with her own hands.

She makes the planters of a mixture of peat, vermiculite and perlite and builds enough of them to have some for sale. How she makes the outside surface resemble rock in appearance is her secret. When she wants to enter a plant in a flower show she simply lifts the planter and puts it in the car, returning it later to the spot where it stood before.

There are rocks in the Libera rock garden and I asked where they came from in the sandy Connecticut River meadow.

Phlox divaricata, in an unusual white form developed by a Connecticut gardener, Henry Fuller of Easton, is one of the prize plants in the East Hartford rock garden of Mrs. Edward A. Libera, 15 Bedford Ave. The phlox ordinarily is blue. (Atwood photo)

The garden will be open to members of the Connecticut Horticultural Society on Saturday, May 15, and my visit was a preview. The first plant Mrs. Libera called to my attention was a patch of tiny leaves growing very close to the ground. It is Silene hookeri, she said, from California; the plants look three years to germinate after she planted the seed. It will have "luscious pink flowers" five or six inches high if she gets it to bloom.

Europe which turns red in the winter, "magnificent against the snow," when other heather plants are brown.

A wild garden contains yellow lady-slippers and a rare Linnaea borealis, the only plant that the famous Swedish botanist, Linnaeus, wanted named for himself. It is very low-growing and sends up two-inch stems with twin bell-shaped pink flowers.

There is a bed of sempervivums, close to the ground and growing close together in what Mrs. Libera likens to the colors of a Persian carpet.

How many kinds of plants? We asked the question, but Mrs. Libera's answer was indefinite.

"Hundreds," she said, "perhaps a thousand. I don't know."

One we recognized with some surprise, our tiny wild blue, or Quaker Ladies. Since bluests do not grow naturally in England and they are considered very desirable by English gardeners.

Mother's Day proclaimed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford issued a proclamation Wednesday "But for all that women do, there is no designating Sunday as Mother's Day and undertaking more challenging, no recognizing Americans 'to remember your sibility more awesome than that of being a mother in some very special way.'"

Ford said that "by responding to new 'Motherhood is more than a life role,' challenges, and assuming new roles, Ford said, 'it is a job that is continuously America's women are contributing much demanding and rewarding.'

Daley clamps down

CHICAGO (UPI) — City employees, who have fled to suburbs, better head back to the city by Aug. 1 or face losing their jobs, Mayor Richard J. Daley says.

Vendors compete at parade

Manchester organizations planning to operate concessions during the June 12 Bicentennial Parade may run into competition from outside vendors along the parade route.

Police Chief Robert Lannan has told the parade committee that he thought the number of outside vendors could have been limited if the local concessions remained in fixed positions. However, two local groups are planning to be walking the route selling items.

"If we allow our own people to walk up and down the street selling their wares, we can't stop others," Lannan said.

Local vendors permits are issued annually and are not issued for only one day, according to a Police Department spokesman. Those with such permits will be allowed to sell during the parade.

The parade committee, had told concessions that outside vendors would not be allowed during the parade because it had received a report that the police would not issue permits to outside vendors for that day.

The local concessions are giving 40 per cent of their profits to the parade committee to defray the cost of the parade.

Lannan told the Bicentennial Committee at its April meeting, that he had been misquoted and the police would have to allow outside vendors with permits to sell during the parade.

The Bicentennial Committee April 15 asked Town Counsel Victor Moses for a ruling on the problem.

Moses, in a letter to the Bicentennial Committee said that only through sincere and active cooperation between the chief of police and the Bicentennial Parade Committee will the rights of both classes of vendors be preserved. The chief of police, Moses said, has the authority to regulate and control the number and location of outside vendors so as "to eliminate or at least minimize the possibility of severe financial damage to and disruption of the parade." The parade committee, he said, must be flexible and fair in its demands so as to avoid any possible infringement upon the rights of individuals in the pursuit of legitimate business interests.

Moses, in his two-page opinion, however, did not address his remarks to those groups of local vendors who will be walking the parade route selling their wares, Lannan said.

Gun laws force man to seek a wife

WELCH, W. Va. (UPI) — The 85-year-old proprietor of a combination grocery and gun store says federal regulations governing gun sales are forcing him to seek a wife.

G. C. Thompson's problem is that he can neither read nor write. Federal regulations require that persons buying firearms must register with the store where the weapons are bought.

Thompson, who has already outlived three wives, says he needs a wife to help check the forms before he sells the guns at his store in nearby English.

But, to use an old West Virginia turn, he doesn't plan to buy any pig in a poke. "I don't want to marry no walking cane, hospital or graveyard," said Thompson.

She has to be between the ages of 35-55, with no living husband and "willing to live right." Those are the specifications Thompson listed in the classified pages of the Welch Daily News.

The next Mrs. Thompson will be "a good woman" who doesn't smoke, is in good health, attends church and has no children at home.

Because of the good T-Shirt Revolution U.S. clothing styles are being increasingly influenced by American youth. The American youth, the Conference board finds.

Retail experts report that T-shirts and jeans have become the fastest-selling apparel in the country. As one leading retail expert puts it: "Youth seek a wife in the fashion part. The couture doesn't initiate a fashion any more. The kids on the street are the fashion. Our young men's shops are exploding."

Udall group seeks backers of Church

Manchester's Udall coordinating committee is inviting supporters of Idaho Sen. Frank Church to join in support of Arizona Rep. Morris Udall, now that Sen. Church has removed himself from Connecticut's May 11 Democratic primary. The invitation is on the belief that the record and aims of Sen. Church are similar to those of Rep. Udall.

The Udall steering committee is meeting Friday at 8 p.m. at the home of Dorothy Brindamour, 5 Dover Dr., and the Church backers have been asked to attend.

Rep. Udall will be in Hartford Sunday evening at the home of Hartford Councilman Richard Sismet and Manchester coordinator Irene LaMotte. Fissette has been invited to attend.

Mrs. Fissette said she is pleased with a recent telephone canvass, now completed, and said Udall campaign literature will be distributed in the downtown area and at shopping centers.

Strike unemployment benefit bill dies

HARTFORD. (UPI) — labor disputes," so long as legislation providing workers with unemployment benefits in cases where they are idled by strikes or lockouts was not considered. The House vote was defeated by a 26-12 Senate vote, with opponents calling it "horrendous legislation."

The House refused to adopt a House amendment to the bill it passed earlier in the session. The House declined to consider changing its mind on the issue and the bill was shelved. House Labor Committee Chairman Joseph P. Moakley said the bill "was taken up because it didn't appear to change the law until opponents would still not participate in strikes by their national unions against a national employer."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I received the following letter in the mail:

Five months is long enough for anyone to wait for an acknowledgment of a wedding gift. In spite of my continual urging, my daughter, who incidentally was taught better, has not gotten around to writing her thank-you notes, so please try to forgive her laziness and accept my thanks for the lovely wedding gift you sent. Sincerely yours, MRS. SLANE.

Well, Abby, What do you think of the above?

Sign me, FLABBERGASTED

DEAR FLABBER: I think it's evidence that there is at least one mother who finally backed up her back with a lit-

DEAR ABBY: When a boy asks a girl to the senior prom, how long should he be kept waiting for her answer? Our son asked a girl, and so far she has kept him dangling for five days. I think she is keeping him dangling until she gets a better offer, and if she doesn't get any, she'll accept. So, Abby, how long should he wait?

TONY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: After dangling for five days, Tony should consider himself cut down and free to ask another girl.

DEAR ABBY: This isn't the most earthshaking problem in the world, but it bothers me enough to write a Dear Abby letter. My husband always has to be reading something. He has a newspaper, a magazine or a book in his hand all the time. He even takes reading material to the table to read while he eats. Naturally this precludes any conversation. He uses an electric shaver so he can read the morning paper while he's shaving. When we're visiting friends or relatives in the evening, my reader picks up anything he can find to read, and he's lost in it for the rest of the evening. I know there are worse faults, but we've been married for four years and it's getting worse. GREAT FALLS FAN

WIN AT BRIDGE

Best play for club suit

and the ace of diamonds to win up with a lie for top bid his partner said. "You played the clubs wrong."

This started the fight and we were appealed to. We hate to decide in favor of a partner who criticizes success, but South did not bid a club to his right. With clubs breaking 3-3 it didn't matter which way he played the suit. But had he broken 4-2 as they do some 48% of the time, he would only have scored four club tricks if one opponent held the doubleton queen-jack. The correct play would produce four club tricks against many more combinations.

Ask the JACOBS

By Orwald & James Jacoby

A Carolina reader wants to know the way to bid 20-20-4. I've declared and you're supposed to be on top and make either four or five odd depending on whether you or not be lost a heart trick.

Nevertheless it did cause a real argument at one table in Dallas. South won the spade lead on his own hand, cashed his ace of clubs, led the 10 of clubs to dummy's king and a third club which he felt that trick was more than one ace.
