Look over storm sewer plans

Tony Dzen props his foot on the backhoe in a trench in Duval St. as he and his son, Ray, look over the schematic for the storm sewer project they are constructing in the Duval-Woodland-Hilliard Sts. area. The project is one of those being paid for by the $2 million bond issue Manchester voters approved Nov. 5, 1974 for townwide storm-sewer improvements. In the trench is Al Otis and on the backhoe is Albert Dodd. This trench is at the beginning of the project, for tying into an existing storm sewer at Duval and Woodland Sts. About 200 feet of pipe will be laid in Duval St., 400 in Woodland St. and 300 in Hilliard St.

Ford chances only fair in two crucial votes

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
United Press International
President Ford looked to West Virginia and Nebraska today to end conservative challenger Ronald Reagan's string of four straight primary victories. His chances were rated only fair.
On the Democratic side, Jimmy Carter hoped to win his first face-off against newcomer Frank Church in Nebraska and keep his bandwagon rolling in Connecticut's Democrats-only contest. Carter was not on the ballot in West Virginia, where Senate whip Robert Byrd was the favorite—and favorite son—over George Wallace.

Ford was a heavy favorite in West Virginia and Nebraska a few weeks ago after beating Reagan in New Hampshire, Florida, and Illinois. Then what seemed like a lost cause came alive when Reagan scored sweeps in Texas, Indiana, Alabama and Georgia during the first four days of May.

Now Reagan's chances of running his victory string to six primaries is improved. Both states are rated tossups.
Dual defeats in Nebraska and West Virginia would mean serious trouble for the President as he goes into next week's big delegate contests in Maryland and his home state of Michigan.

There are 107 Democratic and 53 Republican delegates at stake today. Republicans will pick 25 in Nebraska and 28 in West Virginia. Democrats elect 51 in Connecticut, 33 in West Virginia and 23 in Nebraska.

The latest UPI delegate tally gave Reagan a 408-318 edge over Ford, but the President expects to be the beneficiary of large blocks of uncommitted delegates from New York and Pennsylvania.

In the Democratic contest, Carter, winner of 12 of 15 primaries, has pulled out to a wide lead with 571 delegates, compared with 198 for Henry Jackson who is no longer active, 189 for Morris Udall and 138 for Wallace.

The Nebraska contest was the first outing for Church, who entered the presidential race late and is concentrating on the Western states. He says he has closed the gap on Carter in the confusing 11-candidate field on the Nebraska ballot that includes such noncontenders as Hubert Humphrey and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Udall hoped to rekindle his liberal cause in Connecticut and said he senses a "swell of support." Jackson has also campaigned in Connecticut, but because of his wide lead nationwide, Carter had to be rated the favorite.

Manchester polls open until 8 p.m.

The polls opened at noon today for the Democratic preference primary being conducted in all 169 towns of the state—the first ever in Connecticut history. When they close, at 8 p.m., an estimated 20 to 40 per cent of registered Democrats will have cast ballots.

The reason for the wide range in estimating voter-turnout is because the primary is a first and there's nothing to base the estimates on.

In Manchester, just under 10,500 Democrats are eligible to cast ballots and, if the activity by backers of presidential candidates is any indicator, the turnout will be higher than the state average.

Paper ballots are being used and all election workers are volunteers. The cost of the primary is being borne by the party, and not the town.

The ballots in Manchester list the names of anti-abortionist Ellen McCormack, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Arizona Rep. Morris Udall and Washington Sen. Henry Jackson. In addition, a box marked "Uncommitted" is listed for those Democrats wishing to vote, but not committed to any of the four names shown.

Because paper ballots are being used, the tallying process will be slow and results will be later than usual.

Udall, Jackson White House hopes on the line in Connecticut today

HARTFORD (UPI)—Connecticut Democrats, with the White House ambitions of Morris Udall and Henry Jackson at stake, held their first presidential primary today. Polls opened at noon.

Democratic frontrunner Jimmy Carter, who gave his Nebraska tussle with Frank Church priority, was given the edge here also, but more because of his national momentum than tangible evidence.

Despite predictions of generally fair weather and seasonal temperatures until near the poll's 8 p.m. closing time party officials said they expected a light turnout.

Udall and Jackson both made last-minute visits and hoped to surprise Carter—who chose to rely on a strong media campaign—and prove he did not have a lock on the nomination.

An uncommitted slate endorsed by State Chairman William O'Neill and thought by some leaning to Hubert Humphrey was on the ballot statewide.

Party officials set up the primary after the national committee ordered the convention method of choosing the 51 national delegates junked.

But the contest, which offers more delegates than either the West Virginia or Nebraska primaries, played a supporting role because of its confusing rules and lack of a Republican contest.

There was no Republican race between President Ford and Ronald Reagan with the GOP naming its 35 national delegates at a July state convention.

Udall, looking to unite liberals, said Monday he was convinced the tide was turning from Carter, virtually conceding the nomination by some observers after his victory in Pennsylvania two weeks ago.

"I sensed all day yesterday traveling around... it's out there, there's a swell of support," Udall said Monday. "Whether it's big enough to give us a victory I don't know. But the potential for a Udall victory is very real and it's very promising."

But Udall faced problems on the eastern shore where his plan to curtail development of the Trident submarine, built in Groton, sent fears of unemployment through 17,000 employees of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics, which has that contract.

Carter and Jackson both seized upon Udall's plan—which he said would not cost jobs because of the smaller, less expensive boats with which he would replace the Trident—and emphasized their support of the $18 billion program.

Jackson, once given the edge because he is backed by most of the state party organization including Gov. Ella T. Grasso, said a strong showing could resurrect his campaign, halted nationally because of a lack of funds.

Party officials estimated 25 per cent of the 574,000 registered Democrats would vote in 169 separate primaries. The town delegates named Tuesday meet June 12 at congressional district caucuses to pick the actual national representatives.

In addition to the three major Democratic contenders, anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack and Fred Harris were on the ballot in some communities.

Neither, however, were expected to get 15 per cent of the vote in many communities, the minimum needed to qualify for delegates to the district caucuses.

Under party rules, the votes of those candidates not meeting the minimum requirement will be turned over to the uncommitted slate.

New teacher contract leads board agenda

Although several town directors are unhappy with the two-year contract negotiated with the Manchester Education Association (MEA) by the Board of Education, it appears unlikely the Board of Directors will reject it.

Consideration of the agreement, already approved by the MEA and the school board, is on the Board of Directors' agenda tonight. A motion to reject appears likely, but it is expected to lose.

The directors need not approve the contract, which raises average salaries for the 550 teachers by 6.99 per cent in the first year and 7.10 per cent in the second. Failure to reject corresponds to approval.

In other business tonight, the board will consider action on four additional appropriations for the current fiscal year, all to be financed by equivalent funds received or to be received; on transferring $118,475 from 10 accounts to 7 others; on allocating $10,535 from the Capital Improvement Reserve Fund for three projects; on making several appointments and on approving a Suspense Tax Collection List totaling about $72,000 most of it uncollectable taxes on vehicles and personal property.

NYC building workers strike

By United Press International
Owners of 4,000 New York City apartment buildings rejected a counterproposal by striking building workers Monday night, but Teamsters union members ratified the agreement that ended last month's nationwide strike of truck drivers.

State Mediation Board Chairman Vincent McDonnell said the building owners rejected the proposal for a $50 a week pay raise over two years plus $8 in fringe benefits.

"This has been rejected as far beyond anything they (the landlords) desire to conclude a contract for," McDonnell said. "As I talk to you now, the matter is at an absolute impasse."

Both sides also said they "are not

Town seeks bids on mini-computer

By DOUG BEVINS
Herald Reporter

The Town of Manchester is seeking proposals and bids for a Police Department mini-computer system which local officers say will be the first of its kind in the country.

Town maintenance personnel are already renovating a portion of the police station's first floor to make way for the new system, which is expected to become operational in about a year.

Bids will be opened June 2, but decisions about the specific type of equipment won't be made until the individual proposals are evaluated, Patrol Capt. Richard Sartor said. There are many different systems on the market, he said, and the department wants to look at all the possibilities before buying.

Planning for the computer system has been in the works for several years. Equipment purchase and start-up costs are funded by federal grants totaling about $170,000, from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) through the Connecticut Justice Commission.

Sartor said the LEAA agreed to fund the proposal because it will be the first of its kind. Other police departments have computers, but not the new mini-computers, and no department has as extensive a system as is proposed for Manchester, he said.

The system, described as an Integrated Police Information System, will be used mainly for routine record-keeping, statistical research and report writing, according to the bid documents. But the system will also be capable of expansion.

Opinion

Stop on red, go on green ... usually

In California, it's okay for a driver to turn right at a red stop light, but 3,000 miles to east, in New York, it's not. In between, the same maneuver may be legal or illegal depending on what state you're in. Half permit it, half don't.

The right-turn-on-red confusion is only one example of the lack of uniformity in state traffic regulations, notes newsman Sy Ramsey, writing in "Small World," a magazine published for Volkswagen owners.

Even worse is the confusion about what a yellow light is supposed to mean. In some states, a motorist may proceed through an intersection on yellow, in others he must stop immediately.

Everyone knows that slower moving traffic must keep right — right? Well, not quite in Alabama, South Dakota and Louisiana there are exceptions to this rule.

Laws pertaining to pedestrians also vary widely. In Oklahoma, for example, a pedestrian may cross a street on a yellow light, unless specifically prohibited. But in parts of Massachusetts, a blinking green light is a signal for pedestrians to cross.

Accident statistics suggest that traffic law confusion is something more than merely a nuisance. According to National Safety Council statistics, six per cent of the drivers involved in all collisions are not residents of the immediate area, and 13 per cent involved in fatal accidents are non-residents. The latter figure goes to a high of 35 per cent in Wyoming.

Leading the fight for nationwide standardization of traffic laws is the National Committee on Uniform Traffic Laws, a nongovernmental advisory agency in Washington, D.C., which has long been trying to get the states to adopt its "Rules in the Road."

Unfortunately, says the committee's executive director Edward F. Kearney, "the lawmakers are always busy, they meet only a few months every year, they have no office staff and they respond to citizen complaints, not to organizations like ours."

In other words, there doesn't seem to be any real public clamor for standardization of traffic laws, despite the fact that more Americans than ever will be driving throughout the country this year. But as one newspaper has editorialized, it's time to insist on uniformity in traffic regulation, so that a motorist schooled in the laws of one state can drive into another without feeling he is in a foreign land.

It would be a worthwhile Bicentennial project.

Amost like being there

Speaking of Bicentennial travel, an estimated one-third of all Americans will be off on trips when the summer vacation season gets into gear in July. Millions who travel by car to places of historic or scenic interest will be taking "personalized" tours in the form of rented tape players.

Descriptive tape tours are available at such attractions as Gettysburg National Park, the Great Smoky Mountains and Grand Teton, Glacier, Yosemite and Rocky Mountain National Parks. One of the newest auto tape tours guides visitors through the fascinating Pennsylvania Dutch country.

By driving along prescribed routes at suggested speeds and following the directions of the switched-on guides, vacationers are both informed and entertained on the go. Commentary on the tapes is synchronized with the passing scene and includes facts about the history of the region, what to do, where to stop and what to look for. In many cases, appropriate mood music and sound effects accompany the commentary.

It's almost like being there.

Today's thought

When dear dad died
"Dear Dad! So peacefully you died!
Your loved ones by your side
Saw a soft smile bless your face
Glowing with touch of God's Grace!
On bedded knee — my eyes blurred
I knew it was God's Call you heard!
With faith I could understand
That Dear Jesus took you by the hand!
At the altar — my eyes would not cry
"Son! In glory raise your chalice high —
Cry not sad tears for me — but rejoice —
I have come home!" spoke his voice!
The Requiem Mass held a joyous refrain —
Not one of sadness — or sorrow's pain —
But joys of a soul's Resurrection
To new life — with God's Benediction!

Panamanian leader linked to drug traffic

WASHINGTON — A former high official in American intelligence has shown me a copy of a government document which alleges that Panamanian "strong man," Gen. Omar Torrijos, "has links with" a Latin American heroin smuggling ring.

Andrew Tully

The official, who insisted upon anonymity, also said he had been informed by "intelligence sources" that Torrijos has deposited several million dollars in Swiss banks during the past 10 years.

The government document I was shown said Torrijos' contact with the ring was his brother, Moises Torrijos. "Both men apparently have substantially shared in the profits of the illicit trafficking organization," the report said.

My source said he believed it was "in the public interest to circulate this document at this time because the United States is negotiating a renegotiation of the Panama Canal Treaty and the negotiations have become a Presidential campaign issue." He added: "I have no political affiliation, but I feel the American people are entitled to demand a full investigation of the charges against Torrijos."

A White House source who also declined to be quoted by name called the charges against Torrijos "ridiculous." He said, "If the charges had any substance you can be assured the President would be investigating the charges as they are still incomplete. 'I don't think we can convict anyone of anything at this time,'" he said.

In fact, similar charges were contained in a draft report of the Panama Canal subcommittee of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries committee in 1972. But that report, based on a briefing by officials of the Customs Service, did not mention General Torrijos' name. It concluded only that Customs investigation showed that the heroin ring's connections "reached into the highest levels of Panamanian officialdom and included Moises Torrijos ... and the Panamanian Minister Juan Tack."

The subcommittee charged that the State Department "has had an historic policy of ignoring or denying the involvement in the narcotics traffic into the United States of high-ranking officials of friendly foreign governments."

At any rate, the State Department seemed uninterested in 1971 when one Guillermo Alfonso Gonzalez Lopez, a Panama subject, was arrested in New York City in the breakup of a smuggling gang.

On Gonzalez' person were found various papers and an address book which — in Customs' careful language — "indicated" that he had "associations" with some big names in Latin American governmental and diplomatic circles, including "at least one head of state, at least two ambassadors, assorted cabinet ministers and a couple of high-ranking military officers."

Law enforcement officials involved in combating the dope racket claim that more than one-sixth of the heroin smuggled into the United States arrives here via Panama.

United Press International PHILADELPHIA, May 11 — Congress voted to place two Rhode Island battalions in continental service and to send medical instruments to Virginia and North Carolina and the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries committee in 1972. But that report, based on a briefing by officials of the Customs Service, did not mention General Torrijos' name. It concluded only that Customs investigation showed that the heroin facilities and program provided by the region.

If you don't want your children to have a second-class education opportunity, get out to these board meetings, where you have an opportunity to state your views and see what makes the regional system go. It is doing a fine job for your children. Your support can help it work even better. Even your board members, and I am one, can work more enthusiastically with a good word now and then.

Waddell teachers praised

To the editor,
During Dental Health Week in February, the Town of Manchester sponsored a contest in the thirteen elementary schools. Waddell School students received three of the six prizes awarded for posters and essays concerning dental health. We think that is quite an accomplishment. We're proud of Dawn Noonan, Stephen Balon, John Thurston and also their teachers.

We are also proud to have within the Waddell School community a woman such as Arlene Swanson. Mrs. Swanson has been active in many phases of girl scout's for over 21 years and was very honored by the Connecticut V Boy Scout Association for all her good work. Mrs. Swanson still remains a leader of Troop 814 at Waddell School and we're thankful that she has worked with many hundreds of our girls in scouting.

The PTA provided funds to reimburse after-school sports for fifth and sixth grade girls and boys in January. This is an activity which until a few years ago had been funded by the Board of Education but was cut when the school budget was cut. Not only did Miss Cusano, Miss Peterson, Mrs. Casavant and Mr. Clifford volunteer to supervise this program, but they donated their small salaries to buy a new volleyball net for the school and purchase supplies for the after-school activities. We are proud and fortunate that they are at Waddell School.

The after-school activities program is a pilot program being undertaken at Waddell School, and if successful and if possible, it may be implemented in all the town's schools. Not only has Mr. Morrison undertaken the organization of this program, but he, along with Miss Dowling, Miss Cusano, Mrs. Morse, Mrs. Larson, and Miss Peterson have volunteered to teach courses. There were also other teachers who volunteered, but whose courses are not presently part of the program. We thank them all for this extra effort with our children. We're proud to have them at Waddell.

Somewhat similar proposals are now before Congress. Hearings are being held as this is written. As now conceived, one measure would require a thoroughgoing review of our most powerful regulatory agencies. The bodies on natural resources, environmental and energy would come up, for example, in 1981 under the provisions of Senate Bill 225.

I have not been able to determine that any of the presidential candidates committed in the most urgent terms to the eradication of bureaucratic proliferation have testified at these hearings. Jimmy Carter, in speeches, has talked vaguely of zero budgeting, but one gets no details.

President Ford and his administration men likewise have not been pressing Congress to push with vigor for these measures. But perhaps Mr. Ford is discouraged. It must be said in all fairness that he did send to Congress several lists of programs he recommended be dropped. Nothing happened.

The bodies on natural resources, environmental and energy would come up, for example, in 1981 under the provisions of Senate Bill 225.

I have not been able to determine that any of the presidential candidates committed in the most urgent terms to the eradication of bureaucratic proliferation have testified at these hearings. Jimmy Carter, in speeches, has talked vaguely of zero budgeting, but one gets no details.

President Ford and his administration men likewise have not been pressing Congress to push with vigor for these measures. But perhaps Mr. Ford is discouraged. It must be said in all fairness that he did send to Congress several lists of programs he recommended be dropped. Nothing happened.

Somehow similar proposals are now before Congress. Hearings are being held as this is written. As now conceived, one measure would require a thoroughgoing review of our most powerful regulatory agencies. The bodies on natural resources, environmental and energy would come up, for example, in 1981 under the provisions of Senate Bill 225.

Betty's notebook

By Betty Ryder

Had a very busy week—so much to do, but as always it was fun. Earlier in the week the Canadian Government hosted a dinner party at the Ramada Inn in East Hartford for travel editors and travel agents. It was just great.

Cocktails were served by the swimming pool and the various airlines and tour services were on hand to answer questions about their services to and in Canada.

The food was delicious and the entertainment memorable.

Youthful singers from the Le Festin Du Gouverneur at Fort Helene in Montreal dressed in costumes of 1911 in old French Canada entertained.

If you will recall sometime ago I wrote about dining at Le Festin du Gouverneur. It was during a visit with the Montreal Modes (a group of fashion designers) and this was one of the highlights of our visit.

First you visit the wine cellars and taste the wine right from the massive casks. Then you are escorted to the restaurant, where your name and that of your escort is announced as you descend the stairs into a huge room reminiscent of a scene from King Arthur's Court.

During the arrival of guests, a gouverneur is selected; then the festivities begin. The gouverneur signals for the feast to begin and the hall comes alive with delightful revelry. Pretty maidens serve flagons of wine. Singers, musicians and jesters entertain in the manner of the period while course after course of delectable foods and drink are placed before you.

You sip your soup from handless bowls, sip your wine from a pewter goblet, and the only eating utensil that is offered is a knife. Now this can be risky, but one feels so adventurous as you spear a piece of meat (it's Cornish game hen but they tell you it's grouse just about in the royal forest) with all the splomb of Henry VIII.

If you happen to visit Montreal for the summer Olympics or anytime for that matter, be sure to visit the Old Fort at St. Helen's Island. It's very different dining and the atmosphere and entertainment is marvelous.

"From the halls of ..."

The other day I was surprised when two nice Marines came into the office and presented me with a framed "Certificate of Appreciation" for my service to the U. S. Marine Corps.

It commended me for my patriotism, loyalty and service to the U. S. Marine Recruiting Service and was signed by a lieutenant colonel. Can you believe it?

Well, I was tickled and when I arrived home I proudly displayed my award to the family.

They read it and then one of my self-appointed guardians said, "Mom, just what did you do for the Marines?"

I quickly explained that I had written several articles about the Marine Corps, practically slaved over the "Our Servicemen" column, and inwardly always felt like saluting whenever a recruiting officer came in with his new list of enlistees.

Then, I stopped abruptly. After all the award was, in part, for loyalty. Semper Paratus!

Seriously, I was pleased. It's all in the line of work (the writing I mean).

Foot Health Week

The American Bicentennial will be one of travel and sightseeing, mostly on foot. Bearly going places and seeing things, vacationers may find foot comfort in short supply.

"There will probably be a foot fatigue epidemic," said Dr. Elliot Pollack, President of the Hartford County Podiatry Society, which is now sponsoring Foot Health Week. "This will stem from crowded hotels, long lines at historical sites and restaurants and from extra walking."

He stated that Hartford area foot specialists are using the May 9-15 observance to issue a few tips for "saving your feet" during the Bicentennial. Extra walking and foot discomforts can ruin a long-planned vacation unless prevented.

Dr. Pollack noted that corns, calluses, hammered toes and bunions can become painfully aggravated with each step, if cramped into ill-fitting shoes or perched on a platform heel. Before any expedition is begun, the area foot specialists advise getting your feet back into shape.

Obtaining a preventative check-up before foot troubles begin can, he notes, keep America moving in '76.

Of Consumer Concern

Home refrigerators have limits

People often expect the home refrigerator to do things it can't do—such as kill harmful bacteria in food. Refrigeration only retards bacterial growth. The same is true of freezing, but the bacteria will be active again as soon as the food is thawed.

Do you have a thermometer in your refrigerator? You probably have one gauge or dial saying "warmer" or "colder" with appropriate numbers. Good thermometers for freezers and refrigerators are available at reasonable cost and give you a true indication of the inside storage temperature.

In a normal home refrigerator a temperature of 45 degrees F* may be adequate to hold food three or four days, but if items are to be kept longer, they should be refrigerated at 40 degrees or lower.

Foods to be held for long periods of time in the freezer compartment should be kept at zero degrees. It's probable that zero is not maintained throughout the compartment. A thermometer is helpful, especially in older model refrigerators.

Check the gaskets around the door to the refrigerator with a dollar bill. Hold it half way in the door, shut the door, and see if it can be easily pulled out. If it can be removed easily, the gasket is allowing air to escape and should be repaired or replaced.

Fresh meat should be wrapped loosely for refrigeration but the reverse is true with leftovers—wrap them securely. Raw poultry should be unwrapped, placed in a dish and covered. Giblets should be wrapped stored separately. All containers of food should be closed or covered. Placement of food in the refrigerator is also important. Milk, meat and most leftovers should be stored in the coldest part—usually nearest to the freezer compartment. Don't stack your foods if you can avoid it and arrange items so that the oldest is used first. Proper storage is important for safety, as well as for flavor, texture and nutrition.

Correction
The Herald's public records column yesterday contained an error in the marriage license of Kevin Guy Conderino and Susan Clare Lytle. The Herald erroneously identified Conderino as "Jeffrey" Guy Conderino.

MHA receives rent subsidy requests from 23 families

Twenty-three families applied Monday for rent subsidies from the Manchester Housing Authority (MHA), which has been allocated funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for 45 housing units.

Leon Enderlin, MHA executive director, says the authority will verify income levels before issuing "family participation certificates" to eligible families.

The 5-year renewable contract with HUD entitles the MHA to $11,204 annually. The MHA must grant at least 13 subsidies to very low income families and about 20 to large families.

Notes off the cuff
Denny Carlin, Manchester's 1976 10-pin bowling champion by virtue of his 53 game win over Bruce Moquin last Sunday at the Paradise Lanes is no stranger to the local sports scene.

The happy-go-lucky fellow has been a right-hand man for the Middletown Football League program in Manchester for better than two decades and has also served in a number of capacities with the Little League baseball program since its inception in 1950.

Portside swingarm Mark McMahon greeted reliever Joe Grakowsky by drilling a 380-foot shot on the line over the rightfielder's head for a two-run triple. McMahon scored on a wild pitch by Grakowsky.

Hamrick walked, took second on a wild pitch and came around on a bloop single to right by Dumais for the inning's final tally.

East Catholic's baseball team finally scored a win on the road.

The Eagles, losers of five previous attempts, registered a 6-1 victory over Windsor Locks High yesterday in Windsor Locks to snap the skid.

East, 8-5 over-all for the season, did its best in time as it has an HCC encounter against St. Bernard today in Uncasville.

The triumph was a costly one as starter Bill Stanley pulled a muscle in his right (pitching) elbow and his status is unclear.

Stanley, who picked up his third win compared to one loss, was forced to leave in the sixth frame with no out and Frank Netoch at first on a single.

East Coach Jim Penders called upon Southey Kevin Martin and the sophomore in his varsity debut performance. Showing good control and poise he struck out one, walked three and allowed just one hit and no runs in four innings.

"I'm sorry about Stanley's arm," Penders stated, "but it was gratifying to see Kevin come in and do the job. It's nice to have a lefty on the staff who can throw strikes. This could give our pitching staff a big boost."

The Eagles plated a run in the second off starter and loser Matt Wezowicz on consecutive singles by Garry Hamrick, Mark Dumais and John Murphy. They put it away with a four-run uprising in the third.

Bill Moffett drew a two-out walk, went to second on a wild pitch, and John Krashelski also drew a bases on balls. That was all for Wezowicz.

Upping its record to 13-1 yesterday was the East Catholic golf team with a pair of victories. The Eagles topped St. Paul, 4-1, and bested host Glastonbury High, 5-0, at Glastonbury Hills.

Mike Cooney, Brad Strella and Tim LaFrancis each won two matches for East with Strella taking medalist honors with a one under par 71.

LaFrancis fired a 78 with Cooney two strokes better at 76.

Results: East vs. Glastonbury (medal play) - Cooney (EC) def. Frank Bowman 76-88, Strella (EC) def. Frank Schroll 71-77, LaFrancis (EC) def. Tom Hunter 78-83, Roger Poudrier (EC) def. Phil Mumford 80-87, East won medal point 305-333; East vs. St. Paul - Cooney (EC) def. Brian Baker 6 and 4, Strella (EC) def. Chris Malone 6 and 4, LaFrancis (EC) def. Pats move camp
SMITHFIELD, R.I. (UPI) - The New England Patriots will move their summer training camp from Amherst, Mass., to the rolling hillsides campus of Bryant College in Smithfield this year.

The National Football League team trained at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst from 1969 to 1975. It also trained there in 1960 and 1961 when the team was born.

BOSTON (UPI) - Rico Petrocelli, third baseman for the Boston Red Sox, was hospitalized Monday for diagnosis of a back problem.

"We wanted him to get a thorough examination by the doctors," Manager Daniel Johnson said. "Our trainer has done all he could and the back condition is not getting any better."

MCC racquetmen gain second spot

Culminating a glittering fall and spring season, the Manchester Community College tennis team finished second in the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) New England tournament in Rhode Island over the weekend.

Host Rhode Island Junior College won by taking both the singles and doubles. MCC's Mike Murray lost a tie-breaker in the semifinals in singles.

The Cougars' doubles tandem of Murray and Dan Arenas, playing together for the first time, reached the semifinals before bowing out.

MCC finished its season with a combined record of 12-3, including a spotless 6-0 fall campaign.

The Cougars, with a second place finish, qualify for the National Tournament in Arizona from May 24-29. It is doubtful that MCC will be able to send the team, however.

Unorthodox strategy pays off for Alston

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Alston's unorthodox strategy paid off when Ron Cey's two-run homer gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in the nationally televised Monday night game.

The Dodgers went into the top of the ninth inning trailing, 3-2, but Dusty Baker started the frame with a single. Ordinarily, the visiting team's strategy is to play for a victory rather than a tie in such a situation—especially when its best hitter is the next batter—but Alston ordered Steve Garvey to bunt. Garvey's sacrifice advanced Baker to second base and Cey followed with his game-winning homer. "There are times on the road when you don't try to be like that and this may have been one of them," Alston conceded after the game. "But Garvey hasn't been hitting the ball real well, so I went the other way. "Garvey didn't give himself up," Alston added, "and nearly beat it out." Alston's strategy became academic when Cey hit his homer to break up the game and give Mike Marshall his second win night game.

against one loss. Marshall pitched 2 1/3 innings, allowing one hit and no runs after taking over for Bert Hunter.

The Cardinals, who got two hits pitched from Pete Falcone for the first seven innings, took a 3-2 lead in the seventh on doubles by Don Kessinger and Lou Brock and a single by Vic Harris. Joe Ferguson had given the Dodgers a 2-1 lead in the top of the inning with a two-run homer after Cey reached base on a fielder's choice. Falcone, who had a no-batter going into the sixth, gave up to Harry Rasmussen in the eighth. Rasmussen suffered his third loss against three wins.

In American League games, the only other action in the majors, the Chicago White Sox defeated the Texas Rangers, 7-6, in 11 innings, the Minnesota Twins beat the Kansas City Royals, 5-4, in 10 innings, and Oakland's A's topped the California Angels, 6-3.
