Sunny, high in mid 70s. Clear tonight, low in mid 60s. Friday sunny with high in 70s, increasing cloudiness late in the day. National weather forecast map on Page 28.

News summary

State

HARTFORD — The Department on Aging is looking for senior citizens who may have contributed to the "living history" of America as part of its plans to honor those over 65 for their contributions to the state and nation at a Bicentennial conference in Hartford Oct. 28-29.

BRIDGEPORT — Dr. Edwin Kilbourne, a member of the National Center for Disease Control, called President Ford's decision to order mass inoculations against a possible outbreak of the swine flu this winter courageous in that it might look foolish if such an outbreak does not occur.

Regional

BOSTON — Mayor Kevin H. White's veto of a proposed street curfew to curb racial violence may be overturned by the Boston City Council despite police insistence it would be impossible to enforce.

BEDFORD, N. H. — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said Wednesday the Jimmy Carter bandwagon may have hit some bumps and Democratic presidential campaign newcomers Frank Church and Jerry Brown must be reckoned with.

National

WASHINGTON — Doctors reported Wednesday Rep. Torbert Macdonald has shown improvement since his admission to Bethesda naval hospital last weekend in a "coma-like condition," but he still is considered seriously ill.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Democratic presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter today proposed a five-year ban on all nuclear test explosions — for peaceful or other purposes. He spoke at a conference on nuclear energy and world order and also called for an "alliance for survival."

WASHINGTON — AFL-CIO President George Meany's impending meeting with Jimmy Carter was described by union sources Wednesday as a signal to labor leaders that it is okay at least to talk to the Democratic presidential front-runner. Carter and Meany are to meet Friday.

WASHINGTON — The inquiry into allegations that Howard Callaway used his influence while Army secretary to expand his Colorado ski resort resumed today with Agriculture Secretary Earl Buttz testifying.

WASHINGTON — The official text of a treaty to limit peaceful nuclear explosions is being flown to Washington from Moscow for President Ford's signature. U. S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel and Igor Morokhov, chairman of the Soviet negotiating team, initiated the pact Wednesday.

International

UDINE, Italy — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller toured Italy's earthquake-stricken region as President Ford's personal emissary today and told survivors "we feel your loss as our own, as a tragedy in the family."

LONDON — Liberal elder statesman Jo Grimond took over caretaker chief of his party today in an effort to heal party wounds from a sex scandal that forced Jeremy Thorpe to quit the post.

Ford seeks crossover support

By LEWIS LORD
United Press International
President Ford, who blamed crossover Democrats for losses in Texas and Indiana, is appealing for their help in his showdown with Ronald Reagan in the Michigan GOP primary next week.

Reagan said Nebraska, where crossover weren't allowed, proved he didn't need the Democrats but he welcomes them anyway — now and in November. And George Wallace, whose backers were the ones crossing over in Texas and Indiana, said he wishes they would stay in their own party and vote for him.

Ford, campaigning in Detroit Wednesday, asked for support from every voter "who can feel confidence in what we've done... whether they call themselves Republicans, independents, or Democrats."

Reagan, who is stumping Michigan today, said his Nebraska victory can't be credited to the Democrats. "Nebraska, on the basis of the last two presidential elections, is the most Republican state in the Union and no crossover was allowed," Reagan said. "After all the rationalization others have done about the victories we've had so far, this was one that couldn't be rationalized away."

Reagan added, however, that he was "proud and happy" Democrats had voted for him in other primaries. "I'm going to keep on asking them to vote me, including next November," he said.

Democrat George Wallace expressed frustration so many of his backers had abandoned him for Reagan.

"I don't like it," the Alabama governor told reporters in Lansing, Mich. "But what can I do about it?" He told his Michigan supporters he remains a "viable candidate" and needs their votes for himself.

By Jewish leader

Soviet trade law changes suggested

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of one of the nation's most influential Jewish organizations today called for "a new diplomatic initiative" involving modification of trade restrictions with the Soviet Union as a means of increasing free emigration of Jews from Russia.

"We seem to be at an impasse—a standoff with the Russians," said Bertram H. Gold, executive vice president of the American Jewish Committee.

Gold's comments were made in his keynote speech to the 70th annual meeting of the American Jewish Committee, the country's pioneer human rights organization. "There are some signs that the Soviet Union may be ready to respond to such an initiative, and we need to pursue these signals more vigorously, to gamble (if the odds are not too great) that some modifications in the current most-favored-nation trade legislation will produce some movement on the part of the Russians," Gold said.

Gold's comment was one of the first statements by a Jewish leader that the Jewish community may be willing to accept some rollback in the so-called Jackson amendment which denies the Soviet Union trade privileges as long as Moscow enforces a restrictive emigration policy on Jews seeking to leave the Soviet Union.

In an interview, Gold said that he was not calling for repeal of the Jackson amendment but modification. "I'm calling for recognition of the fact that no piece of legislation is sacrosanct," Gold said. "I would imagine even Sen. (Henry M.) Jackson would not oppose changes if there was some sense that the Soviets were willing to make some movement." "In the last couple of months, they have freed a couple of prisoners of conscience," Gold said. "Perhaps they are sending some signals."

He said a possible modification of the Jackson amendment might involve enlargement of credits for the Soviet Union.

Strikers reject proposals

By United Press International
Striking NBC newswriters and technicians, owners of some 4,000 New York City apartment buildings and striking bottlers at Anheuser-Busch's main brewery have turned down the latest proposals to end their respective labor disputes.

Strikes also continued to idle United Rubber Workers at plants of four major tiremakers, Teamsters employed by United Parcel Service in 13 Central and Western states and bus drivers for Continental Trailways in 10 Southern states.

National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians members voted to reject contract proposals by NBC to end the month-long work stoppage, a NABET spokesman said Wednesday night.

"The contract proposals of the company, which were sent to the membership for their ratification or rejection, have been rejected," the spokesman said. "The rejection was by a substantial majority."

Union members walked out of NBC studios in early April when contract negotiations broke down but announced a return to work on April 5 when an agreement was reached on mediation. However, the company said some employees could not return and NABET declared it a lockout.

In New York City, the Realty Advisory Board, representing owners of apartment buildings being struck by some 22,000 service workers, turned down a fact-finding panel's recommendation to end the 11-day-old strike.

"The board found the panel's recommendation unsatisfactory because the suggesting increase would have a devastating impact on rentals and cooperative apartments," Board President Hamilton G. Ford said.

Later, union leaders said they would no longer bargain face-to-face with the board but would meet with individual landlords on a building-by-building basis.

Striking bottlers at Anheuser-Busch's main brewery in St. Louis overwhelmily rejected a proposed settlement to end a local walkout that began March 25.

Eight of nine Busch breweries nationwide remain crippled by strikes. Teamsters have been out since March 1 at seven of the eight, and those at Newark, N.J., returned to work Monday after a local settlement was reached.

Teamsters Local 1187 President Art Barstow said economic issues were at the heart of the rejection but the disciplining of two strikers accused of engaging in violence was "the emotional issue."

"It's one of the big things," Barstow said. "But the problem is the package itself. The membership told me loud and clear today that I shouldn't come back until I have a package they can accept."

Political newcomer seeking GOP State Senate nomination

David W. Cohen, 36, of Glastonbury, a newcomer to area politics and a candidate for the GOP nomination for Fourth District state senator, made a favorable impression on Manchester Republicans Wednesday night.

Speaking to the Republican Town Committee, he asked for local support, pledged to wage a vigorous campaign if he gets the nomination and said, "I know I can win and I want the nomination. I'm the only candidate at present and I'd be trying if I said I'd welcome competition for the nomination."

An articulate speaker with a sincere and personable appearance, Cohen said he admires David Odgard, who was Fourth District state senator from 1970 to 1974, and would hope to emulate Odgard's work and record in the State Senate.

He said he wants to run an issue-oriented campaign with no mud-slinging or personality attacks. Then, "because," as he explained later, "this was a partisan audience and I thought a couple of jokes would warm it up," he used nationally-known Democrats as the subjects of two jokes.

Acknowledging that incumbent Democratic State Sen. David Barry is very popular, he said he foresees several campaign issues, noting, "For one, Barry missed 25 roll calls in 1975 alone."

He said, "The Democratic party is a party that has promised all things to all people and, historically, it has been the party of convenience. The Republican party, historically, has been the party of responsibility and I see a resurgence of faith in it."

He said it's easy for himself, a conservative, to back Weicker, a moderate and sometimes liberal.

"Weicker is showing the way to our future," he said.

Top Rockville scholars named

Catherine Menard has been named valedictorian and Jeffrey Gledhill, salutatorian of this year's graduating class at Rockville High School. The announcement was made today by Martin Fagan, principal.

Moscow restaurants meatless on Thursdays

MOSCOW (UPI) — MOSCOW (UPI) — Thursdays have been declared meatless in most Moscow restaurants until further notice, apparently as a result of last year's disastrous grain harvest. "Fish every Thursday," said a sign outside one restaurant.

An official of the public catering department said the no-meat edict applied to all Moscow restaurants and cafes with the exception of those serving foreign tourists and regional specialties.

A telephone check confirmed meat was off the menu, relayed in most cases by fish, in most restaurants, but the National and Intourist hotels, which cater heavily to foreigners, were serving the usual fare. Asked the reason for the edict, the catering official said, "There is nothing bad in it. Why have meat every day?" But economists said it seemed clear the lack of cattle feed resulting from last year's crop disaster was largely responsible.

The Greening of Suburbia Dollars, as well as people, are fleeing to the suburbs. The Conference Board reports. Families in suburbia now earn 20 per cent more than their counterparts and hold 60 per cent of all personal income in the nation's metropolitan areas. One reason: Suburbia is more likely to work in white-collar occupations. About 83 per cent of all suburban men now hold professional, managerial or administrative jobs, against 26 per cent in the cities. And some 22 per cent of all female employees from suburbia are in these higher-paying positions, compared with 20 per cent of urban women.

Persistent penny pinching needed to maintain budget's slim surplus

HARTFORD (UPI) — Revenue and spending measures approved after the $1.8 billion state budget was put to bed amounted to an $11.3 million surplus, but officials warned that was on paper only. Figures released Friday by the legislature's Appropriations Committee showed added-on expenditures were $2.2 million higher than the budget, and revenues were $13.5 million higher.

Gov. Ella T. Grasso has claimed the revenue side of the budget was short by $10 million, which if true would leave the ledger with a razor-thin $1.3 million surplus for the year beginning July 1. "This is a super, super picture," said Appropriations Chairman Sen. Robert D. Hooley, D-Vernon, who said despite his optimism every penny had to be watched or the $1.3 million would disappear. Lawmakers approved the main spending and revenue packages in early April, but from then until adjournment Wednesday they passed many bills requiring both increased spending and higher revenues.

Another $594,000 was the result of the legislature's rejection of parts of a bill meant to save the state $1 million. The savings had been accounted for in the budget. Lawmakers reinstated $480,000 that was to be saved by putting themselves on a new payment schedule — although their salary would have stayed at $10,000 for two years — and $112,000 that was to be saved by abolishing state coroners. Among the smaller unaccounted expenditures was $8,000 for state regulation of the sport of falconry, even though only 12 persons are known to participate in it in Connecticut.

On the revenue side, the largest unaccounted income was $10 million from a new daily state lottery. It was approved because of Mrs. Grasso's claim of the $10 million shortage in the budget. The governor complained the budget set spending too low in three areas: $3 million for the state payroll; $3 million to $4.5 million for welfare; and at least $3 million for salaries for patients who work at state institutions.

Several bills raising or setting new state fees for a number of activities and licenses were expected to generate $1.4 million not accounted for in the $1.5 billion income package. Another $900,000 in unaccounted revenues was expected through a change in the way the state collects workers' compensation payments from employers. The overall payments would not rise. One area where the precariously balanced budget could get snagged and wind up with a deficit was in the payroll for the state's 40,000 employees. The payroll allocations were figured on the basis of a 40-hour state work week — requested by Mrs. Grasso and rejected by lawmakers — rather than the 35-hour week they now work.

The budget assumed the increase in man-hours worked per state employee would permit the state to abolish some jobs when employees resigned, and therefore the payroll was trimmed to a minimum. Without the longer work week, an attrition rate lower than that predicted by the budget could result in higher-than-expected payroll costs and put the state on the brink of a deficit.

Mary Cadrette of East Hartford, Miss Connecticut and 1976 Easter Seal chairman, tries a 10-speed Raleigh bicycle, two of which Manchester's six banks will award to a rider and a walker collecting the most money for the "Wheels for Easter Seals" bike-hike on Sunday in Manchester. With Miss Connecticut are William A. Moorhouse, left, assistant vice-president of the Hartford National Bank & Trust Co.; Thomas Matrick, vice-president of SBM; Nathan Agostinelli, president of Manchester State Bank; Noel J. Bonner, assistant vice-president and branch manager of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association. (Photo by Butler Photographers)

Bike-hike will help Easter Seals Center

Several hundred teen-age students are expected to participate Sunday, rain or shine, in a bike-hike to benefit the year-round Hemlocks Outdoor Education Center in Hebron for crippled children and adults. The 18-mile "Wheels for Easter Seals" bike-hike will start and finish at Manchester High School. There will be four check points along the route for rest and refreshments. Registration for walkers will be 9:30 a.m. and for bikers, 11 a.m., at MHS. Manchester's six banks will award two 10-speed bicycles, one each to the cyclist and the walker who raise the most money in pledges for crippled children. Other prizes include awarded to the lucky number winner by the Hartford Rd. Dairy Queen. MacDonald's will award gift certificates to the best grade in each school.

Parochial school aid opponents to organize

NEW BRITAIN (UPI) — A group that opposes public aid to Catholic schools will try to organize its 1,000 Connecticut members into a state chapter, a spokesman said. Edd Doerr of Americans and Others United for the Separation of Church and State said a meeting will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Unitarian Universalist Society in New Britain. The civil liberties group, which has been involved in many lawsuits against public aid to Catholic schools, is based in Silver Spring, Md. Doerr said an official state chapter is long overdue and "will enable us to pay closer attention to church-state issues in Connecticut." The group filed a supporting brief in a 1968 suit that challenged the constitutionality of a federal law that gave money to four Catholic colleges in Connecticut. The suit, sponsored by the American Jewish Congress and the American Civil Liberties Union, wound up in the U.S. Supreme Court. The high court ruled in 1971 that the federal aid was constitutional, providing the facilities involved were never used for religious purposes. William Olds, executive director of the Connecticut Civil Liberties Union, said Americans United probably would have initiated suits in several cases if the ACLU had not done so. William Wholean, executive director of the Connecticut Catholic Conference said he did not think much of Americans United. "I certainly don't see them as my pals," he said.

Let's get ready now for next budget crisis

If past experience is any guide, we can expect interest in the state's fiscal problems to wane considerably now that the budget has been adopted and the legislature adjourned. But perhaps we would be wise to pursue some of those problems to a solution now rather than wait for the next crisis. During next fiscal year, Connecticut will be operating on the premise of several high hopes or, if you prefer, gambles. The Democratic administration and legislators are hoping for the weekly lottery just as the instant lotteries have to some degree. Once the novelty wears off on the lotteries, new gimmicks must be devised to get players. We have seen it in the weekly lottery since it began several years ago. Promotion costs are going up and we could reach a point of diminishing returns. What it all adds up to is that while these hopes or gambles might pay off this new budget, fiscal 1977-78 is frighteningly near at hand and now is the time to start thinking about how we will balance that budget. If we don't, the only gimmick left may be the state income tax. For an income tax without fundamental and thorough tax reform is nothing more than a gimmick. We think we have too many fiscal gimmicks now. We think it is imperative that a bi-partisan effort be initiated to evaluate the state's fiscal condition, the options available to us, and such reforms that will insure fiscal integrity of the state and equitable taxation to fund essential services. We doubt the state can survive another fiscal wallpaper job. Economic recovery will continue but whether it will increase the revenue flow above

Ted Kosakowski is doing just fine

WASHINGTON - Twice a year or so, a package of fresh air is delivered by the postman. It is a fat manila envelope bulging with clippings from the Evening News in Southbridge, Mass., and it is a gift from Ted Kosakowski. That's right. Everybody who grew up in a small town or in one of those special neighborhoods of a big city knew Ted Kosakowski, even if his name was O'Brien or Colucci or LaFlamme or Epstein. He is the schoolboy pal who stayed home and made a good life for himself, while keeping in periodic touch with the friends who look off for bigger, if not greener, pastures. Ted Kosakowski's package of clippings is always warm, rich with the stuff of amiable nostalgia. In his latest batch, there is the story of the high school team's football victory over hated Webster. There is a picture of George Delehanty marking the 100th anniversary of the furniture store founded by his father. Delehanty's sold on credit, sometimes for as little as $1 a week, with no interest. There is a letter to the editor from Claire LaFontaine, a high school

Rabe Girard died at 87. He ran a basement lunchroom on Main Street where Pa used to take me for bananas and milk. Later, he had a bigger place on Central Street, where I called it The Tire, Treimbay, Taylor, Earls and Waite made a nickel cup of coffee last all night while they discussed LIFE. Seaver Rice, a politico who was kind to me when I was a cub reporter, reminisces about "The Irish of Southbridge" in his weekly column. He recalls a meeting in the Hibernian Hall; over Delehanty's shoulder when a member proposed the installation of new chandeliers. "Lardy Celt" sat down and asked what the meeting was voting on. "Putting in chandeliers," he was told. "Chandeliers, it is," replied the latecomer. "And who in hell is going to play them?" Then there was the Irishman who was laid off at the Hamilton Woolen Co. and was drowning his sorrows at the Pleasant House bar. "To think after 30 years I've come to this," he moaned. "Ah, begone will ye John," said Pat Horrigan. "Did I tell ye it wouldn't be steady work when ye went there."

Let freedom ring again throughout the land

WASHINGTON - "Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women. When it dies there, no constitution, no law, no court can save it." American jurist Learned Hand put the case for individual commitment to liberty in those terms. Another jurist, the late Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, said it this way: "We have in this country but one security. You may think that the elaborate machinery of government is your security - it is nothing but a piece of paper. You may think that the statutes are your security - they are nothing but words in a book. You may think that the elaborate mechanism of government is your security - it is nothing at all, unless you have sound and uncorrupted public opinion to give life to your Constitution, to give vitality to your statutes, and to make efficient your government machinery." As the United States enters the homestretch leading to the Bicentennial of the American Revolution, it is instructive to contemplate just what like-wise have seen in the event an essential refreshing of the tree of liberty. We hold this annual celebration, "to remind ourselves of all the good done in the process of time, and how it was done and who did it, and how we are historically connected with it. And we go from these meetings in better humor with ourselves - we feel more attached to the one to the other and more firmly bound to the country we inhabit." Slogans without facts to support them, however, are of little value. This is why it is essential for the preservation of liberty - which, after all, is an extremely fragile gift despite its historic heartiness in America - that citizens here understand how blessed we really are. Otherwise, the sly deceptions of such "educational" groups as the Peoples Educational Commission are bound to fool many. The best single publication this writer has come across to document the fruits of American freedom, and instill a personal pride in our country as it heads toward its third century, is a small, soft-cover volume published by the American Historical and Cultural Society, located in Washington, D.C. I term it "best" because it can be read at one sitting, yet effectively telescopes salient lessons of nearly 300 years of the American experience, starting with Columbus, into 55 well-honed pages. Copies of the handsomely illustrated volume are available free at a time making a tax-deductible "contribution" of $15 to the Society. Its address: 227 National Press Bldg., Washington, D.C. 20045. From the book, entitled "Let Freedom Ring Again": "...Down through the ages, most human beings have lived out their lives in poverty, oppression and

Coevery town budget called illusionary

The editor, Richard Cromie pulls a new budget for this town. Cromie would have us believe that he can magically create an additional $80,000 by re-estimating revenues and cash surplus. The hand is quicker than the eye. In fact, Cromie's budget is based on guest work. This illusionary budget prepared, single-handedly, by Cromie appeared one day, as if by magic. The Town Council prepared their budget under full public scrutiny. Their proposed increase meets the public demand not to exceed 5 percent. It doesn't take slight of hand to take a fully prepared budget, already

Foot Health Week

"Shoes are not the villains," said Dr. Elliot Pollack, president of the Hartford County Podiatry Society. "Many people with foot problems today falsely blame the shoes they wore as a child for their present foot problems." Speaking for Hartford area podiatrists during Foot Health Week, May 8-10, Dr. Pollack stated that painful corns, calluses, and bunions are often the physical signs that show that the feet are not working properly. Each youngster deserves thorough podiatric examination, including a study of the child's foot structure, posture, and walk." It continued, "If any problems are found, early treatment can frequently reduce the chance of long-term ailments later. "Bunions and hammer toes can and do run in families." Dr. Pollack added, "They can occur even though a child usually is not born with these problems." Dr. Pollack explained that some podiatric procedures can lessen or control these in-born tendencies while the child is still young. Early detection, however, is necessary, he stressed. This highlights the wisdom of periodic foot examinations by today's podiatrists. Ignoring the signs of early problems can lead to the need for podiatric surgery later in life.

Tornadoes touch Texas

(UPI)
Tornadoes touched down in Texas late Wednesday night, while thunderstorms accompanied by strong winds and hail rolled through the Southern Plains and the lower Mississippi Valley.
An active cold front produced numerous thunderstorms and some severe weather in parts of Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.
At least three tornadoes touched down in Texas, but no damage was reported.
Strong winds overturned three trailers and toppled trees and power lines near Habel, Okla. Golf ball-size hail was reported in several parts of the Southern Plains and lower Mississippi Valley.
Occasional wind gusts of up to 60 miles per hour were reported at Guadalupe Pass, Tex., and six power poles, each a foot and a half in diameter, were blown down near El Paso.
Nearly one and a quarter inches of rain fell within a six-hour period at Little Rock, Ark. Almost one inch fell at Austin and Dallas, Tex., and Shreveport, La.
Scattered light showers were also reported in portions of the middle and upper Mississippi Valley.
A heat wave was again felt in the desert Southwest and also throughout much of California. Gila Bend, Ariz., soared to 108 degrees for the nation's high.
Hot spots in California were Palm Springs and Paso Robles with 105, Bakersfield 103, Red Bluff 102 and Sacramento 100. Phoenix, Ariz., reached 103 and San Francisco set a record for the date with 96.
Skies were clear over the Western United States, except for parts of Washington and the Southern California coast. Fair weather also prevailed over the eastern third of the nation, except for extreme northern New England.
Temperatures Wednesday night were about 60 in the Northeast, with some below freezing marks in parts of Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania.

Psychologist blames punishment practices for kids going bad

TORRINGTON (UPI) — Parental punishment practices are at the root of repeated juvenile delinquency, says Dr. Ralph Welsh, a clinical psychologist.
Welsh said he has concluded that television violence, lying with toy guns and overindulgence in material possessions do not cause delinquency.
"Bad friends do not make good kids bad. That's not what causes delinquency. I know what causes it. It's parental punishment practices," he said.
Welsh, who has a private practice in Danbury and Bridgeport, has spent seven years researching the aggressive behavior of about 2,000 delinquents.
He said male delinquent offenders do not come from permissive homes. "I have yet to see my first case where that has happened," he said.
Male delinquents "come from belts, boards, extension cords and fists and I have yet to see the exception to that rule," he said.
He told about 120 parents this week that he is not opposed to punishing a child for bad behavior.
"I don't consider an open hand to the rear a detriment to anybody," he said.
"Open defiance from a child is the one time I sanction a slap on the rear just to get his attention."
"But Welsh deplored excessive punishment, saying there is no question that cultures which use corporal punishment have a high crime rate. He placed partial blame on teachers and the police for encouraging parents to "discipline" their children more.
He said battered children often become battering parents and a mother who was beaten as a child finds it much more difficult to stop herself than a mother who was not beaten as a child.
Even a child who appears passive can grow up to be a delinquent if the passivity is a shield for hidden aggression and resentment, he said.
Welsh advocated an end to violence on television because he said it can have a negative effect on children who are already aggressive and violent. For other children, the effect of television violence tends to wear off after about 45 minutes.
He said giving a child many material possessions does not seem to be related to juvenile delinquency. "There's no evidence that I'm aware of that overindulgence is particularly bad."
Welsh had some advice for parents who wonder how best to bring up their children: "Raising kids is nothing more than being good judgment and letting them know you love them."
Awareness week — WATERBURY (UPI) — Rep. Ronald A. Sarasin, R-Conn., plans to travel in a wheelchair Sunday as part of "Awareness Week" sponsored by the Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center of Greater Waterbury.
"We wished to have a prominent person kick-off Awareness Week in this fashion to illustrate the difficulty in negotiating our man-made terrain," the organization said.

Mrs. Christian Kaefer with lavender creeping phlox which grows in a circle around a large maple tree at the Kaefer home, 519 Woodbridge St. This spring it has provided a mass of bloom. Dark ring on the tree is trace of protective material placed there a few years ago to keep gypsy moth larvae from climbing the trunk. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Gardening

By Frank Atwood

When the Christian Kaefers bought their home 25 years ago it was in the newly developed Green Manor area. The lot had no trees or shrubs and it sloped steeply up from the street. It presented some real difficulties to people with ideas for landscaping their home and the Kaefers have struggled with them, achieving remarkable success.

Their first tree was a maple planted in their front lawn by the developer and it proved to be a rapid grower. It is a large tree now though it lost some sizeable limbs in the 1974 ice storm.

Troublesome earlier was a tendency for the roots to grow out on the surface of the ground and difficulty in getting grass to grow close the trunk and the contractor had built a level terrace part-way up the slope for the house, with a strip of level lawn area behind the house.

At the back of this terrace, where the ground sloped steeply up again they had the contractor build a stone retaining wall, and they have planted flowers at the base of the wall and again above it.

Flowers in succession At the top of the wall when I was there, bridal wreath and flowering quince were just fading. Basket of gold was in full bloom. At the foot of the wall Oriental poppies were opening. Then will come lilies and day lilies, with many other perennials. Roses are climbing a trellis at one corner of the house and annual plants will be set in the ground soon. Some repair work will be needed on the wall but Mrs. Kaefer knows that everything can't be done at once and it is a rare day when the gardener feels he can say that everything in his garden is in perfect order.

She has been handicapped this spring because she fell last fall on the steep slope of the lawn and broke her left arm. The break has healed but she still does not have normal use of her arm and hand.

Mrs. Kaefer has always had the help of her husband, and now more than ever, but she makes most of the plants for the garden. Her hope is to have something blossoming at all seasons, and this means using many kinds of plants.

A row of lilacs stands along the sidewalk up the slope of Green Manor Rd., which forms one side of the corner lot. Mrs. Kaefer feels they shield the house from street noise and besides they are her favorite flower.

Now well acquainted with staff members at the institutions, Mrs. Kaefer checks first to see what patients have no plants she avoids taking plants to people who are well supplied with flowers by their families and friends and for this reason takes comparatively few plants to Manchester Memorial Hospital. More plants go to nursing homes and to the school children. Her helper now in this work is Mrs. Gina Clark.

Homestead gets 'Liberty Tree'

A "Liberty Tree" is starting life on grounds at the Cheney Homestead after having been presented by the Manchester Garden Club. Looking at the sturdy young pin oak are Mrs. Anthony Sherlock, left, president of the garden club; Mrs. Anton Latawic, horticulture chairman; Mrs. Stuart G. Segar and Herbert Swanson, co-chairmen of the Manchester Historical Society. The presentation was in honor of the Bicentennial year. Hopefully, the sapling will flourish like the old oak tree in the background. (Herald photo by Pinto)

Science today:

Important clue found in cause of crib death

By AL ROSSITER JR., UPI Science Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI)—A Pennsylvania pathologist has discovered what may be an important clue in the effort to unravel the mystery of crib death, the puzzling syndrome that is one of the leading causes of death in infancy.

Dr. Richard Naeve, professor of pathology at Pennsylvania State University, examined 58 victims of this sudden infant death syndrome and found that 86 per cent had abnormal carotid bodies.

He said it is reasonable to assume that if a carotid body is structurally abnormal, its function might also be abnormal. A defect in the carotid body could contribute to the abnormal, maladjusted breathing control found in crib death victims.

"This is by far the most striking abnormality ever described in crib death victims," Naeve said in a telephone interview. "It's something that could not arrive at time of death. It's something that probably has been going on since birth. It's probably a chronic abnormality."

Sudden infant death syndrome claims about 7,500 to 10,000 infants each year. In the majority of the cases, the baby is apparently in good health when put to bed for a nap or for the night, and several hours later is found dead.

Why these babies die is unknown. Naeve said he was sure researchers will find that it has multiple causes.

He said since the carotid body abnormality was seen in most of the victims he examined with the help of the Maryland Chief Medical Examiner's office in Baltimore, "this could well be the major clue to a sizeable proportion of the total cases."

The carotid body is located in the aorta, the artery that carries oxygen-enriched blood to all parts of the body. The carotid body samples blood passing by and regulates breathing to keep the level of oxygen and carbon dioxide normal in the blood stream.

Naeve found that in 83 per cent of the victims he studied at autopsy there were a substantially reduced number of cells in the carotid body. Twenty-three per cent had an abnormally high amount of cells.

He said it is reasonable to assume that if a carotid body is structurally abnormal, its function might also be abnormal. A defect in the carotid body could contribute to the abnormal, maladjusted breathing control found in crib death victims.

"This should stimulate clinical investigators, hopefully, to develop simple tests for looking for high risk symptoms."

Tax relief deadline near

Manchester Assessor Ed Belleville is reminding elderly homeowners, 65 years or older and not presently receiving tax relief under the Elderly Homesteaders' Tax Relief Act, that they may make application with his office in the Municipal Building up to Friday.

To be eligible, the claimant or spouse must have been at least 65 years of age by Dec. 31, 1975; must own the home he or she resides in, or hold a tenancy in common with a spouse or other person, and the income of husband and wife must be combined. He or she must be a resident of Manchester for at least five years before filing the claim; and have a net worth not exceeding $50,000.

Qualifying income is defined as adjusted gross income plus tax exempt interest, as determined under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended. Income of husband and wife must be combined. Social Security benefits are not considered part of qualifying income.

MHS Math Team ends big season

The Manchester High School Math Team was awarded the second place trophy in the large school division of the Capitol Area Mathematics League recently at the league's banquet at Willie's Steak House.

The team ended a successful season by placing first at the April meet held at MHS, bringing their accumulated point total up to 434, only 20 points behind Concord High School Math Team of West Hartford, Hall High Math Team, also of West Hartford, placed third with 350 points.

At the banquet, MHS senior Doug Baker was named second place senior in the league, and also most valuable player for the school team. He was also honored for having one perfect match, and for being chosen a member of the Connecticut All-Star Team, which will compete against teams from Maine to Virginia at the Atlantic Region Mathematics Contest to be held June 4 and 5 at C.W. Post College in Waterbury.

Other team members honored were Sandie Bellone and David Ostrom, sophomores, who placed first and second, respectively, in the B-League individual competition.

Team members who contributed to the successful season were Dave Beaulieu and Micky Simon, seniors; Mark Otter, Robert Weiss and Dave Hardy, juniors; and Kim Noone and Steve Latham, sophomores.

Mrs. Roberta Thompson is the team coach.

The MHS team placed third in the state large school division in a competition against the top schools from the four-state math leagues at the Connecticut Association of Mathematics Leagues contest held May 1 at Central Connecticut State College.

Last weekend, the team competed in the New England invitational meet in Worcester, Mass. Mrs. Thompson said the results were not received yet, but Manchester was not one of the winners.

The members of the Manchester High School Math Team pose proudly with the trophies they have won this year from their various competitions. Standing are Steve Latham, left, Dave Hardy, Robert Weiss, David Ostrom, Mark Otter, Micky Simon and Dave Beaulieu. In front are Kim Noone, left, Doug Baker and Sandie Bellone. Youthful burglar finds out chimneys are for Santa only FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — A 16-year-old youth has learned a bitter lesson — chimneys are suitable for house entry only by Santa Claus.

Police said Wednesday he tried to get into the home of James Gadsberry by sliding down an 11-inch square chimney, but he got stuck.

Firemen were unable to pull him out and were forced to use an air chisel to demolish the fireplace so he could be extricated without injury.

The youth was cited for burglary and turned over to his parents.

Millstone leak report released

WATERFORD (UPI) — A federal inspection report says operators at the Millstone 1 nuclear generating plant logged evidence there was a leak in the isolation condenser for six weeks before a Feb. 12 spraying incident.

The report, issued Wednesday by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said that Northeast Utilities could not produce evidence the leak was investigated and that the operators violated federal regulations in not checking for the leak.

Plant records showed there was a 900-gallon increase of water in the condenser's shell during the first week of January, the report said.

During the two weeks before the radioactive material spewed outside the plant, the water level in the shell indicated an increase of 1500 gallons each week, the NCR inspector said in the report.

Federal safety specifications for nuclear power plants state that leakage of reactor water through the heat exchanger can be detected by changes of water level in the condenser, the inspector said.

The radioactive release involved a pipe which burst, letting loose the radioactive steam which condensed in the outside atmosphere. An emergency shutdown went into effect.

The report said the discharge was confined to the plant's grounds and was not a danger to area residents. After the incident, about 20 concrete 55-gallon containers were filled with dirt from the grounds, sealed and then hauled away for burial.

Northeast Utilities announced Wednesday it will replace tubing in its main condenser at the Millstone II plant at an estimated cost of $2.5 million.

The main condenser uses cold water from Long Island Sound to cool steam from the reactor. The water and the reactor steam are in separate, enclosed piping systems.

Northeast said it will replace the aluminum brass alloy pipes with copper nickel alloy pipes when the plant shuts down sometime next year for refueling.

Sen. Humphrey not ready yet for retirement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., recently received a letter from the Social Security Administration extending "greetings" and informing him he soon will be eligible for a pension.

He will be 65 on May 27.

Humphrey said he wrote a reply "telling them not to rush it."

"I'm sending it over to my friend the President," he said during a hearing of Congress' Joint Economic Committee Wednesday, "telling him I'm not ready to retire yet."

Newtown policeman accidentally wounded

NEWTOWN (UPI) — A Newtown policeman on patrol was accidentally wounded early today in what Police Chief Louis Marchese called "a freak accident."

Patrolman Richard Wrabel was listed in fair condition at Danbury Hospital with a leg wound as a result of the 1:30 a.m. accident that occurred in the Commerce Park area on Churchill Road.

Marchese said Wrabel, a nine-year-veteran, was wearing a heavy coat because of the chilly weather. When he stepped from his cruiser to patrol the area, the coat somehow twisted the leather strap holding his service revolver in a manner that activated the hammer of the gun.

The bullet entered Wrabel's thigh and came to rest just above his ankle, Marchese said.

The chief called it, "A freak accident. If we were to reconstruct it, it would be very difficult to do so."

The lighter side

Fish sniffers

are unsung heroes

By DICK WEST
 Fortunately, it doesn't happen very often, thanks to the dedicated men and women who make up the cracking crumblers crews of America's food processing chain. They have got the system down to a science. I recently learned something about their craft from Luigi Biscotto, chief crumbler for a retail food outlet here. He told me the secret is teamwork. "Theoretically, the crumbling process starts back on the loading dock at the factory," he said. "If the shippers are doing their job, they will bring the crates around enough to weaken the crackers structurally. Then, after further jouncing in the wholesale warehouse, the boxes should arrive at the supermarket with the end crackers already in the first stages of disintegration. "Nevertheless, we inspect each box individually before it goes on our shelves. If we find it has been insufficiently impacted, we drop it twice more, once on each end, with just the right amount of force to induce crumblization. I said, "How can you tell without looking inside the box whether the crackers are cracked?" Biscotto confided that a well crushed cracker box will have one or more dented corners. Asked how he acquired the expertise to become a professional cracker crumbler, Biscotto said he got his start as a part time postal employee handling fragile packages during the Christmas rush.

Both are unusual jobs all right, as are the others on the list. Oddly, however, the release omits one of the most peculiar lines of work in the entire manpower spectrum. It says nothing of cracker crumblers, those unique but indispensable specialists in the food industry. Their vital function is to make certain that a few crackers in each end of the box you select from your supermarket shelf have been properly managed. If you are like most consumers, you know there is nothing more annoying than to open a fresh box of crackers, remove one of the inner packages and find that all of the crispy wafers are still intact. For this reason that if you happen to be in the mood for a few cracker crumbs, you must go to the trouble of crumbling your own.

Souvenir stocks turn into $42,000 bonanza

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — For nearly 40 years Dwight H. Ellis Jr. held onto 1,000 shares of stock even though he considered his investment worthless. "I was hanging on to them for a souvenir," he said. "I didn't think they were worth anything." For a while he kept the shares, which cost him a quarter each for a total of $250, in a trunk. When he retired to his current home in Inverness, Fla., he put them in a file cabinet. Last week, a Canadian stock trader told him the stock is worth approximately $42,000 and that he is entitled to another $5,800 in back dividends. "It's like a fairy tale," Ellis, 52, said in a telephone interview. As a Harvard student, Ellis would occasionally send money to his father, a New York investor, and ask him to buy stocks. In 1937, his father bought him 1,000 shares of North European Oil Corp. stock for 25 cents a share. Ellis lost track of the company with the outbreak of World War II. "When Hitler overran Europe, I thought the Nazis gobbled it up," he said. "I forgot about it." But earlier this year, Ellis read a newspaper story about Micheline Masse, president of Stock Market Information Service Inc. in Montreal, a company that specializes in finding the worth of old stocks. He read that Miss Masse charged a flat fee of $30 to trace a stock and decided "For $30, I'd take a chance." A few weeks later, he got a call from Miss Masse with the good news. "My God, I just nearly dropped my hat," Ellis said. "I was never so excited in my life. My wife thought I was going to have a heart attack." Miss Masse told Ellis the company had evolved into the North European Trust Co. and over the years his stock had grown to approximately $42,000 in value. The president of the firm, John H. Van Kirk of Red Bank, N.J., explained that the old North European Oil Corp. "passed out of existence in 1939." But after World War II, he said, his German subsidiaries remained in existence and in the mid 1950s, the firm was revitalized and later became the North European Trust Co. Miss Masse, who started her business in 1969 after finding that old stocks she planned to use as decorative wallpaper were worth several thousand dollars, said Ellis' good fortune was the biggest bonanza her firm has been associated with. Ellis, a retired Navy lieutenant commander who worked for the State of Connecticut before retiring to Florida, mailed his shares to a transfer agent earlier this week. He plans to take at least $30 from his fantastic profit to pay Miss Masse for another stock search — this time into a few shares of Utah he bought 19 years ago.

Patty Hearst refuses to answer charges

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst refused Wednesday to enter a plea to state charges, on grounds she may be mentally incompetent, setting off a request from the judge for another round of psychiatric tests. Her attorney complained he must somehow convince federal prison officials to provide time for the mental examination requested by the state court while Miss Hearst is undergoing tests for a federal court. Miss Hearst appeared in Superior Court Wednesday to enter a plea to 11 charges of kidnaping, robbery and assault, stemming from an alleged Symbionese Liberation Army crime spree with William and Emily Harris, former captors and comrades. There were no fireworks when Miss Hearst was reunited with the Harrises, and although the joint appearance was the first time they had seen each other since they were arrested eight months ago. Since then their friendship soured, turning them into legal and personal enemies as Miss Hearst offered to testify against the Harrises for her kidnaping and other crimes. The Harrises accused her of being a traitor, selling them out to soften her own punishment, and rejoiced when she was convicted of bank robbery. Sitting at the defense table with lawyers interposed between them, they ignored each other until just before the end of the 2 1/2 hour session. Miss Hearst glanced at Mrs. Harris, who returned an icy stare, then tossed her head in disdain. Miss Hearst gave a small smile. The judge indicated he will grant Miss Hearst's request to stand trial independently of the robbery and assault charges. When Miss Hearst was asked how she would plead to the charges, Johnson interjected, "The defendant will stand mute." State law forbids the trial of mental incompetents, he noted, and the fact that she is undergoing psychiatric examination at the direction of a federal court shows "there must be some doubt about the current mental competency of Miss Hearst." The judge gave Johnson until May 28 to produce evidence to support the argument.

Lutz Junior Museum re-elects officers

VERNON - Raymond H. Young, 57, of 88 Hyde Ave. died Wednesday at the Newton Veterans Hospital. He was the husband of Mrs. Ruth Waterman Young.

Mr. Young was born April 19, 1919 in Springfield, Mass., and lived in the Vernon-South Windsor area most of his life. He was an Army veteran of World War II. He was employed for many years at the Hollywood Service Station on E. Center St., Manchester.

Mrs. Jerome Dvornek of Hebron was re-elected president of the Lutz Junior Museum Wednesday at the 17th annual dinner meeting of museum members held at Willie's Steak House.

McCarthy to defend town before FOI commissioner

Asst. Town Manager Charles McCarthy will appear June 2 before Freedom of Information Commission member Herbert Brucker to defend the town's action in denying access to the personnel records of four persons hired by Manchester for federally funded jobs.

McCarthy says that with permission of the group that administers CETA requirement can be waived so that the town can fulfill affirmative action hiring plans.

Indians capitalize on errors to win

Manchester High, not primarily of its own volition, captured a 4-1 CCLL baseball victory yesterday over mistake-prone Hall High in West Hartford.

Manchester added a run in the fifth as a fly ball by Ballard to right was misplayed into a double and Ray Gilha, who has been on a hitting tear ever since he switched from an aluminum to old-fashioned wooden bat, singled him home.

Witch's brew helps RSox snap long losing skein

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was indeed a potent witch's brew that enabled the Boston Red Sox to end their 10-game losing streak Wednesday night — and even Edgar Allen Poe couldn't have written a more bizarre script.

The Red Sox, who hadn't won since April 23, finally found the victory column by beating the Cleveland Indians, 11-5, Baltimore toped Milwaukee, 8-6, and Texas blanked California in the only games scheduled.

American League
single runs in the next three innings to tie the game.

Before the game, Bernie Carbo of the Red Sox poked the Phillies, Jones struck out two and walked four behind an 11-hit attack which included three hits each by Jerry Remy and Dusty Baker.

Kingman gives Mets' punch

NEW YORK (UPI) — No one in the National League is likely to make the classic mistake about Dave Kingman that Hall of Famer Rogers Hornsby made in judgment of Roger Maris' back in the spring of 1962.

"He's just a 268 hitter," Hornsby snorted when asked to comment on the fact that Maris had broken Babe Ruth's single-season home run record by hitting 61 during the 1961 season.

National League
Dodgers 6, Cards 3
Ron Cey's tie-breaking double was the big blow of a three-run eighth inning, which enabled the Dodgers to score their 15th victory in their last 17 games.

SILK CITY
Bogner's whipped Fogarty broke Boston's losing streak at the Fitzgerald Field. Dave White, Phil Yering and Mike Jordan each had three hits and Ron Mosher tripled and homered for the Bankers.

CANDLELIGHT
Nine runs in the second inning gave impetus to a Wayne Colton two singles for CBT. John Fuller and Mike Escavich each had two singles for Fire.

Simmons rewarded

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Ted Simmons rubbed the lump on his head and talked about the lump in his wallet. Simmons was forced to leave Wednesday's 6-3 St. Louis loss to the Los Angeles Dodgers when the backswing of Bill Buckner's bat caught him squarely on the side of the head and flattened him. A couple of hours later he had what he called "a nice little softball" on the side of his head.

Water firm gets rate okay, praise

Coventry

The South Coventry Water Supply Co. won approval Wednesday for a 60 per cent rate increase from the state Public Utilities Control Authority.

In the PUC's report of its decision to give the small firm its total requested increase, it praised the volunteers who run it.

It reported, "This Authority wishes to commend the management of the Company, Mr. (Earl) Lassen and Mr. (Herman) LeDoy Jr. among others, who have demonstrated a true spirit of community in operating this utility."

"It is rare, indeed, in this day and age, to find individuals who are willing to work unselfishly and without remuneration in the public cause."

The firm serves 88 year-round customers and one seasonal customer in the Village of South Coventry, sometimes referred to as "downtown." About 20 of the customers are unmetered and had been paying flat rates. They are to convert to meters within one year by PUC order.

The firm's water sources are three wells which produce about 35,000 gallons per day. The firm also has a connection at Lake Wangumbaug for emergency purposes only.

It maintains 10 hydrants. It does not charge the town for fire protection service.

Dump sharing okay; price doubled

Andover DONNA HOLLAND

By a close margin, 58 to 40, Andover townspeople voted Wednesday night to allow Bolton to use their disposal area for another year.

By a 79 to 15 vote they authorized the firm to share the area with Bolton.

A lengthy discussion preceded the vote. Many Andover residents speaking against sharing the area with Bolton.

However, they said if the two towns were to share the area, the charge of Bolton should be considerably higher than the present $20,000. Suggestions ranged from $20,000 to $100,000 annually.

Andover officials were criticized for bringing the question of sharing the area to a town meeting for the first time.

James Rogers from Bolton spoke of how hard a group of Bolton people worked to reopen talks with Andover and how they pushed the Bolton selection to accept an annual $40,000 figure. Rogers comments were well received by almost everyone.

Alysius Ahearn, state representative for both towns, said it was "extremely important" for both towns to work together. He said every year people have to depend more and more on people around them.

But Ahearn said the suggested $75,000 figure was blackball.

Residents also approved paying tax bills in excess of $50 in quarterly installments.

Robert Post said if Bolton was allowed to stay, it should be charged $15,000 to $20,000 over the cost of operation. The money should be put in a special fund for use if and when needed for a new site.

Pete Manegga said if Andover goes on its own, it will cost a lot of money because the state will start making the town correct its problems. He said Andover cannot afford to go alone.

Those attending the Town Meeting approved an ordinance to prohibit the throwing of waste on town roads by a 62 to 22 vote.

Residents also approved paying tax bills in excess of $50 in quarterly installments.

Principals keep judge power

Vernon

The principals of the Middle School and the Rockville High School will continue judging pupils for suspension.

The suspension policy adopted by the board in November 1975 states that the principals are responsible for the proper conduct of the pupils.

However, the policy does not define the penalty for each day a rule, such as skipping school, is broken or for how long a suspension period should run.

for a clearer policy concerning cutting classes or skipping school. She said the administration is being asked to make a judgment and she feels the policy should state the terms of suspension.

David Parker, principal of the Middle School, said he prefers the flexibility that the present policy gives him to deal with individual cases.

"Sometimes it's not the answer but sometimes it's a good shock treatment," he said.

Michael Blake, a "house" principal at the high school, said he was glad the principals have the latitude they have. He said suspension is a curb that helps with the majority of the high school students.

Preparing for a baseball fund drive

Vernon Mayor Thomas Benoit signs a proclamation to signify the start of a door-to-door fund drive to be conducted Saturday by the Rockville and Vernon Little League Associations. Mrs. Irene Pinkham, president of the Vernon league and John Gill, president of the Rockville league look on. The fund drive will involve about 450 boys from both leagues. The Vernon funds will be used to purchase uniforms and equipment and the Rockville funds will go toward the upkeep of the two fields. (Herald photo by Richmond)

Graff is RGH patient advocate

Vernon

George Graff of Rockville has been named Vernon's Patient Advocate. He will help patients in convalescent and nursing homes in town.

Vernon's Health Director Dr. Joseph Kristan appointed Graff. The job is volunteer. The only compensation Graff will get is a minimal amount for mileage.

Graff is a professor emeritus of Williams State College. He retired six years ago. He also served several years ago as superintendent of the then regional school district and prior to that he worked with the Veterans Administration in Buffalo and Brooklyn, N. Y.

Vernon is one of 18 towns with a Patient Advocate.

Charles Halgren, manager of the Rockville Memorial Nursing Home, introduced Graff Wednesday to the Board of Directors of the Rockville Area Chamber of Commerce.

He said the nursing home, historically, has had a bad name and he said he wanted to dispel those ideas. He referred to the investigations conducted around the state several months ago and said had publicity for some nursing homes that the investigations turned up.

Bolton gets plane trees

Two "Bicentennial Trees" were planted at Bentley Memorial Library by local businessmen. John Whitman of Bentley Nursery and Robert Treat of Bolton Nursery Nursery.

Both men are members of the New England Nurserymen's Association and are planning to plant more trees. They are plane trees, platanus acerifolia. They are a favorite shade tree in both the United States and Europe. They can reach a height of 100 feet.

Budget cuts hurt arts

South Windsor

Art and music were the main victims of the $180,000 cuts to be made in the Board of Education budget for 1976-77.

Board member Marge Hutensky said, "We've only just begun."

The board must find areas to cut a total of $243,000 from their originally proposed $7,236,710. With the $67,000 put back into the budget at the emergency meeting held Monday, the board now has to work with $7,123,966.

Car hits woman; driver leaves scene

Vernon

Mrs. Madeline Preston, 24, of 1238 Hartford Tpk., Vernon, is reported in satisfactory condition at Rockville General Hospital where she was taken shortly after midnight after being struck by a car on Rt. 30.

Police said someone called the station about 12:15 a.m. and reported they could hear a woman screaming. Police responded and found Mrs. Preston lying on the side of the road.

The uniforms, an emotional issue here, cost about $180 each.

For music, supplies the band with uniforms. The board was to have supplied funds for 40 new Timothy Edwards students entering the band next year.

Also cut this far is the new position of wind and string instrument teacher, a salary set for $9,400.

Total cuts to the music budget to date amount to $38,534.

Also victim of cuts is the art department, with $10,000 slashed from their budget, mostly in the area of supplies.

The controversial human development and health education program was $2,426 pinched in the area of materials.

Each year the board contributes $1,000 to the town's cultural arts program. It will not this year.

The board has cut about $60,000 thus far with about $180,000 to go.

Blanket testing to be limited

East Hartford

Robert Bannon, senior Board of Education member, took over as acting chairman at Monday's school meeting. Bannon has served as secretary for the past year.

Richard Welch, supervisor of special services, explained the school policy on testing to the board.

Joyce Ruggles moved to amend the policy as she did not feel blanket testing should be done to determine social, emotional or attitudinal characteristics of a student.

The board supported the Ruggles' amendment. As its board procedure, the policy was tabled to be discussed further before a final vote is taken.

Players perform Saturday

Hebron

The Podium Players will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe," Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in the Rham High School auditorium. John Sibun of Hebron is the director; Gillian Howell Stokes of Marlborough is musical director and June Nygren of Hebron is the choreographer.

Production managers are Cheryl Steel and Kisty Sibun of Hebron and Bob Fancher of East Hampton. Louise Gagen and Mickie Vinkels of Andover are in charge of makeup and Wilda Devine of Marlborough is writing the program.

Heidi White of East Hampton has designed the posters and program cover and Mrs. Sibun is handling publicity. Gail Layden of Glastonbury is in charge of costumes; Carolly McKeever of West Hartford is the pianist and Mrs. Steele is stage manager assisted by Judy Babin and Judy Ward of Hebron.

Tickets are being handled by Bob Fancher. There is a reduced rate for students. Tickets may be purchased from cast members or at the door.

With Jackson's votes and the 31 votes for uncommitted slate that were cast, it leaves the uncommitted with a total of 54 votes which will be good for 29 of a delegate for the convention. This delegate will be Tony Walsh.

A total of 313 or 22 per cent of the 1,500 registered Democrats voted.

Coventry backed tide for Udall

Morris Udall won Tuesday's primary with 153 of Coventry votes. This was 49.4 per cent of the 313 votes cast and will entitle Udall to 1.96 of Coventry's four delegates to the Second Congressional District convention June 12.

Bruce Stave and Peter Halversen will be the two delegates.

Jimmy Carter with 104 votes came in second with 33 per cent of the votes cast. This will entitle Carter to either one full delegate at the convention.

The first Carter delegate was George Boland Jr.

Henry Jackson received only 24 votes, seven per cent of those voting so that his votes will be placed in the uncommitted slate.

A total of 313 or 22 per cent of the 1,500 registered Democrats voted.

The commission has also authorized the sending of a letter to the Residents for the group requesting a public retraction of the Responsible Planning.

Mrs. Stave in her letter declined to retract the statement and said the commission was attempting to respond to the wishes of the whole of the residents of Coventry in its zoning decisions.

The permit was granted subject to conditions such as provision for a septic system; the extent of the excavation

Cannon talks to board

Bolton

Ili Cannon told the Board of Selectmen at its recent meeting concerns expressed to her by townspeople since she became chairman of the Democratic Town Committee.

Mrs. Cannon asked if the firemen had a liquor permit. She visited the firehouse recently on a Sunday before noon and found "a beer party going on."

The selectmen said because it is public property and there is ordinance against it, the men can drink anytime they wish.

She then asked why the town accepted the liability for an accident recently from the volunteers test drive of the new vehicle they purchased.

Norman Pressas, selectman, said the accident happened during a Wednesday night drill. The volunteers are covered by town insurance in any vehicle when they are drilling.

Mrs. Cannon asked the selectmen to try to remedy the situation with Ernie Reed, local contractor planning to move.

Reed attempted to get a zone change for his property on which his business is located. The request was denied.

It appears Reed will be moving his business to another town.

Edward DeSignore said Reed's situation is an isolated incident that no one could foresee.

Mrs. Cannon asked for a policy to attract new businesses to town to help its tax base.

David Dreselly, first selectman, said the town's topography does not lend itself to business.

Mrs. Cannon asked the selectmen if a high school student could be hired in the school's cooperative work experience program to help in the assessor's office.

Besides work experience, the student could also obtain firsthand experience in the workings of town government.

Calvin Hutchinson, assessor building inspector, has expressed a need for help.

Parade times all set

Hebron

The schedule for the Memorial Day and the June 12 Bicentennial Day's parade have been announced by Jones-Keefe-Batson Post 95 Commander Russell Anderson.

May 30 the Memorial Day Parade and exercises will be in Gilead. The parade will form at the church at 1 p.m. Parade time is 1:30 p.m. and the line of march will be the same as previous years, the church to the cemetery for brief observations and back to the church.

The Memorial Day parade in Hebron Center will be May 31. Parade time is 11 p.m. with participants forming at Rham High School at 10:30 a.m.

The parade route will run south on Wall Street, west on Rt. 86 to Rt. 85, south on Rt. 85 to St. Peter's Cemetery. From the cemetery the parade will return over the same route to the American Legion Home in the center.

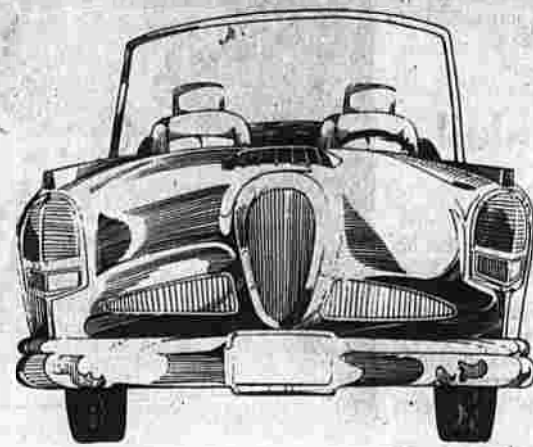

The Bicentennial Parade on June 12 will be at 11 a.m. with units forming at Ted's parking lot.

The Rham band will play for the May 31 and June 12 parades. The Marlborough Fire and Drum Corps will play in Gilead on May 30 and again in the center on May 31.

The North Branford Minutemen Ancient Fife and Drum Corps Inc. will be in the Bicentennial Parade.

Prizes are encouraged in the Bicentennial Parade. A $50 gift prize, a $30 second prize and a $15 third prize will be awarded.

The answer man finds the crossover

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Campaign Answer Man, our own intrepid observer of the political scene, has checked in to give us the benefit of his latest soundings. Combing the hustings out of his hair, he is prepared to reveal an astounding discovery.

Question: Sir, it now appears Governor Carter has pulled away from the Democratic field and that Governor Reagan has made a contest of the Republican race. How do you explain that?

Answer Man: Crossovers, my boy, crossovers. Intense field work and scholarly analysis of the data have resulted in an irrefutable conclusion. Namely, all the Democrats are voting for Reagan and all the Republicans are voting for Carter.

Question: But sir, that boggles the mind. What does it mean?

Answer Man: Of course. Eventually, the Democrats will start holding their annual banquets on Abraham Lincoln's birthday and the Republicans will make speeches invoking the spirits of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson. After a while, nobody will even notice the difference except the people who cater $100-a-plate dinners.

Question: But how about the liberals and the conservatives? Which party will they go to?

Answer Man: Oh, they will be in both parties. There wouldn't be any point to having parties if they chose opposite sides. The purpose of the political parties is to give the liberals and the conservatives something to fight for control of.

Question: I always thought the purpose of the parties was to compete for control of the government. What about the presidency and Congress and all those state and local offices?

Answer Man: That's the key to it, young man. While the liberals and the conservatives have been laboring each other in the two parties, the middle of the roaders have taken the government. But they're smart: they haven't formed a political party that can get all tied up in power struggles. Benjamin Franklin has carried the day.

Question: Now wait a minute. The Democrats and Republicans are going to nominate presidential candidates and one of them is going to be elected this fall. Doesn't that destroy your theory?

Answer Man: Not in the least. One or both of the candidates will be middle of the roaders. If both are, the election will be close. If only one is, he'll win with a landslide. But mark my words, within six months of taking office, whoever is elected President this fall will be denounced by either the liberals or conservatives in his party for abandoning the party's principles.

Question: One more question. If this discovery of yours becomes common knowledge, isn't that going to put political experts like you out of work?

Answer Man: No way. Look at professional wrestling. When that became a show instead of a contest, the sport writers simply became drama critics. Everybody's the wiser, but nobody's out of work. Only in America, boy, only in America.

FTC set new rules on consumer credit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New credit rules to protect consumers from being victimized by shoddy merchandise will apply also to such intangible things as health spas and job placement services, the Federal Trade Commission said Wednesday.

The new regulations going into effect later this week mark a major change in the "holder in due course" doctrine — a precept tracing back to English common law.

The principle traditionally held is that people who sell things on credit may turn the bill over to a third party — such as a collection agency or bank — which in turn may collect regardless of whether the consumer is satisfied with what he bought.

Sellers may still turn the bill over to a third party. But effective Friday, the people doing the collecting are just as responsible for customer satisfaction as the person who sold the product or service.

Floppy's tastes make gardening difficult

By BETTY RYDER
Family/Travel Editor

Maureen holds card which accompanied plants Floppy sent Mary for Mother's Day.

When anyone asks Mary Marshall of Vernon how her garden grows, she winces.

Oh, it's not that Mary isn't a good gardener. It's because the family has a pet goat named Floppy.

It seems Floppy has a hankering for roses and geraniums which grow in the yard at the Marshall's home at 14 Welles Rd.

When Mary came home from her job at the Crestfield Convalescent Home in Manchester the other day, she was appalled to see that Floppy had nibbled her plants. Now, wouldn't that get your goat?

Floppy is usually fenced in, Mary says, but is allowed to wander in the yard when members of the family are present.

"When my husband, John, (he's an officer with the Vernon Police Department) and any of our five children are outdoors, Floppy usually joins them," she explained.

"After viewing the remains of some of my favorite plants, I let them all know, Floppy included, that I was upset," she said.

Upon entering the house, Mary came to an abrupt halt. There on the table were rose bushes and geranium plants with a big card which read "Happy Mother's Day, Love Floppy."

Now how can you stay mad at a goat who will do something like that?

Whether Floppy can resist the fragrance of roses or bright red geraniums is anybody's guess.

But he promised he'd try.

United States loses richest nation rank

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Population Reference Bureau says the United States has lost its first place as the world's wealthiest nation.

At $6,640, the U.S. per capita income ranked only fifth in the bureau's latest compilation of population data.

Because of runaway oil prices, it said, the United Arab Emirates ranked highest with $12,500 and Kuwait second with $11,000 even though the two are little different from other so-called developing countries with most of their people living at subsistence levels. But the United States also fell behind Sweden, with $6,720 and Switzerland, with $6,660.

The world's poorest nations were in Asia and Africa. Bhutan, in South Asia, and Mali, in Africa, were at the bottom of the list with a per capita income of only $70.

Although declining birth rates are slowing the growth of the world's population, it still will surpass 6 billion by the end of the century, the bureau said.

Mankind is growing at a yearly rate of 1.8 per cent, and the current population of just over 4 billion will reach 6.2 billion in the year 2000 and will have doubled to over 8 billion by 2045, it said.

"New evidence on population totals and more rapid declines in birth rates than previously projected have resulted in slight downward revisions of some earlier Bureau estimates," it said.

The birth rate dropped 1.5 per cent in one year — from 21.5 per cent in 1975 to 20 per cent now.

PRB put the current U.S. population at 215.3 million and said it will reach 322.5 by the year 2000 and will have doubled to 430.8 by 2063.

In its "1978 World Population Data Sheet," it said Latin America and the Caribbean area, which now have a population of 326 million, is growing fastest of the world's major regions — at a yearly rate of 2.8 per cent.

Hilton's ancestors settled this site in New Hampshire

By BRENDA W. ROTZOLL

NEW MARKET, N.H. (UPI) — Edward Hilton of London sailed up the Piscataqua River in 1623, stopped at a spot of land now known as Hilton Point and became the first settler in New Hampshire.

His descendants are living to this day on some of the land granted him in 1631 by King Charles I of England — hoping they won't be forced off by ever-rising property taxes.

George Winthrop Hilton Sr., 63, an animal husbandry specialist recently retired as superintendent of the Rockingham County Home, and his wife are the 10th generation of Hiltons to live on Grant Rd., which takes its name from the land grant to their ancestor.

They live in a Hilton home dating to about 1700. Their two sons and their families live across the road in modern homes built in the roughly 150 acres remaining of a grant which once stretched a dozen miles from Dover Point to Exeter, and three miles inland along that line. The tip of Dover Point now is called Hilton Point and houses a state park called Hilton Park.

The Hiltons own far and away the oldest family homestead in New Hampshire, as shown by a search for Bicentennial farms in the state. Owners of 49 such farms were to be honored at a luncheon in Concord May 14 for their contribution to agriculture.

The Hilton farm now is a tree farm, but for most of its existence it was a dairy farm and orchard. The 1623 land grant was sold off before Hilton's mother's death, when it became too much for her and his uncle, another Edward Hilton, to manage. They also had to give up their milk route and an old cider mill which George's father, Richard, always said at least gave him money each year to pay the taxes.

Property taxes are a worry because New Hampshire taxes on the potential most costly use of land. Since a road splits the Hilton property, most of it is considered as potential house lots. A new valuation this year would have put taxes at $2,300. A recent state law allows for taxation based on current use of the land, not potential use. The Hiltons applied for such taxation, reducing what they owed to $900.

"It made quite a difference to us in being able to hold onto our land. George would feel very badly to have to dispose of this land. He'd like to keep it in the Hilton name. We have four little grandsons, so we hope it will go to them," Mrs. Hilton said.

The Hilton land includes a hill they allow people to use for sledding, snow-

Still farming the land which was settled by his forebears over three hundred years ago is George W. Hilton, a direct descendant of the first settlers in New Hampshire. The farm, which is in Newmarket, N.H., was granted to Edward Hilton in 1631, and has remained in the Hilton family ever since. George Hilton is the tenth generation to live on the farm. (UPI Photo)

Zion churchwomen to attend Lutheran district conference

Mrs. Ernest Ruebin of 52 Lenox St. and Mrs. Jack Soares of 528 Wetherell St. will represent the Ladies Aid Society of Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church Friday and Saturday at the convention of the New England District of the Lutheran Missionary League in Hartford.

Other members of the society planning to attend the convention are Mrs. Henry Nelson, Mrs. Charles Kuhl, Mrs. Wilma Wiley and Miss Helen Janssen. Mrs. Wiley, who is in charge of all musical arrangements for the convention, will be the organist.

The local society will enter a banner along with other societies on the theme "Freedom in Christ."

Miss Laura Lieber, a member of the Zion Youth Group, will carry the banner. The banner and over 300 valentines were made under the direction of Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. John Hilyak.

The Manchester Bicentennial Quilt was displayed at the last meeting of the local group. Mrs. Beatrice Shetler, originator of the quilt, spoke.

The quilt was put together by Recreation Department volunteers including Mrs. Dale Reynolds, a member of Zion, who inserted a design of the church in the quilt.

Coffins stolen from hospital

TOKYO (UPI) — Police Tuesday arrested Hideo Matsuzawa, 44, for allegedly stealing 10 coffins valued at $500 dollars apiece from the morgue of Juntendo Hospital in Tokyo and selling them to undertakers for $23 on the black market.

The coffins were supplied to the hospital by an undertaking firm from which Matsuzawa, a mortician, had been fired in February.

Police said Matsuzawa carried away a key to the hospital store room at the time of his discharge.

Voyage sets out to prove Irish beat Columbus here

By DONAL O'HIGGINS

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — By the time Christopher Columbus stepped ashore in 1492, the American Indians probably greeted him in Gaelic. At least that's the way they see it in County Kerry, birthplace of Ireland's 6th-century seafaring saint, Brendan the Navigator.

Local tradition holds that St. Brendan and other Irish missionaries were familiar faces to the American Indians 900 years before Columbus turned up.

Now, a 36-year-old Englishman and a crew of four plans to row 4,000 miles to prove the Irish right.

Next Sunday, Londoner Tim Severin and his crew will climb aboard their curragh — an all-leather, banana-shaped boat that is an exact replica of the one used by St.

Brendan — and set sail. The curragh, built at Crosshaven boatyard in County Cork and launched with a bottle of Irish whiskey instead of the traditional champagne, will set out from the County Kerry jumpoff point used by St. Brendan.

The boat, christened Brendan after the saint, is 36 feet long with an eight-foot beam. Like the ancient seagoing curraghs, she will depend on her curved bow and stern for buoyancy — riding the waves rather than cutting through them.

Externally the St. Brendan is a replica of the medieval vessels used by the Irish monks. But on board the crew will use the latest modern equipment for seagoing cruising and survival.

The crew — a navigator, meteorologist, cameraman and sailing master — will sail northward from Kerry around the coast of Ireland to Iona in Scotland and the Faroes Islands and then on a westerly course to Iceland and Greenland, finally turning southwest to Labrador and their eventual destination, Boston.

The voyage is expected to take about four months "give or take a month" says Severin, author and explorer, who will write a book on the venture. He is a former geography scholar at Oxford University and Harkness Fellow at Berkeley, California, and Harvard.

The legend of St. Brendan and his voyages seems to have some foundation on both sides of the Atlantic. Researchers point to folklore of some Indian tribes that tells of white men emerging from the sea wearing long garments with crosses on them.

Raising pulse rate called key to proper exercise

By WILLIAM M. COOMBE
GREENBROOK, N.J. (UPI) — Most Americans who go on a crash exercise program to get into shape are wasting their time.

And a game of tennis may wear a player out, but it will do little good unless it is played regularly and properly. Worse, most people don't realize it but they actually may be hurting themselves unless they follow rules emerging out of recent research by physical fitness specialists.

This advice comes from Dr. Paul Lessack, one of the new breed of exercise physiologists. Ninety-five per cent of the American people are out of shape, according to the President's Council on Physical Fitness but Lessack says the epidemic of flabby hearts and limbs is even worse than that because the President's Council counted amateur tennis buffs among the fit 5 per cent. Lessack says you've got to play tennis and certain other sports the right way before they do you any good.

"The reason that so many people are not in shape is that most Americans don't exercise at all, and those who do exercise don't do the kinds of things that will get them into shape," Lessack said in an interview at the New Jersey College of Medicine and Dentistry, Rutgers Medical School, where he is director of adult fitness and cardiac rehabilitation at the Harrigan Valley Hospital.

Among physiologists, shape has nothing to do with the curve of a woman's hips or the flatness of a man's stomach. It is the health of a person's circulatory system and its ability to fight off heart disease.

"Exercises such as golf, softball, stutps, pushups, lifting weights, yoga — these can be done religiously but they won't get a person into shape," Lessack said. "A game like golf, you can play 18 holes five times a week and it's not doing anything for your fitness level."

The "right" kind of exercises are tennis, swimming, cycling, jogging and jumping rope.

A word of caution is the first advice Lessack gives anyone over 25 who embarks on an exercise program.

"The summer athlete who says 'I think I'll take up tennis to get in shape' is doing the wrong thing. You shouldn't use sports as an exercise. You should get into shape first, and then play."

A gradual shape-up program will help the heart withstand the rigors of proper exercise, and doctors recommend an exercise stress test on a treadmill for older people, who have not exercised for years.

Exercise physiologists say the body is getting the proper benefits of exercise when the heart beat is raised to 60 to 80 per cent of its capacity and is kept at that level for 12 minutes, and the exercise is done on alternate days no less than three times a week.

"If you do it four or five times a week, there are no greater benefits unless you have a weight problem and have to burn calories," Lessack says.

But three times a week is important. "If a person does exercise once a week it is potentially dangerous. Twice a week the danger is lessened but there is still no benefit," Lessack says. "A person, who plays tennis all year 'round' but only on weekends, is in danger because the body is not used to exercise and there is less stress on the heart."

A key factor in raising the heart beat to its proper pace is the intensity of the exercise, and Lessack says the President's Council overestimated the value of an hour on the tennis court.

"If you are playing with someone, who is of equal ability and you're moving around, you're going to get good exercise. If you're a tennis player who just swings the racket without moving around, such as you might do when you play doubles or when a man plays with his wife, you're not going to get much exercise," Lessack says.

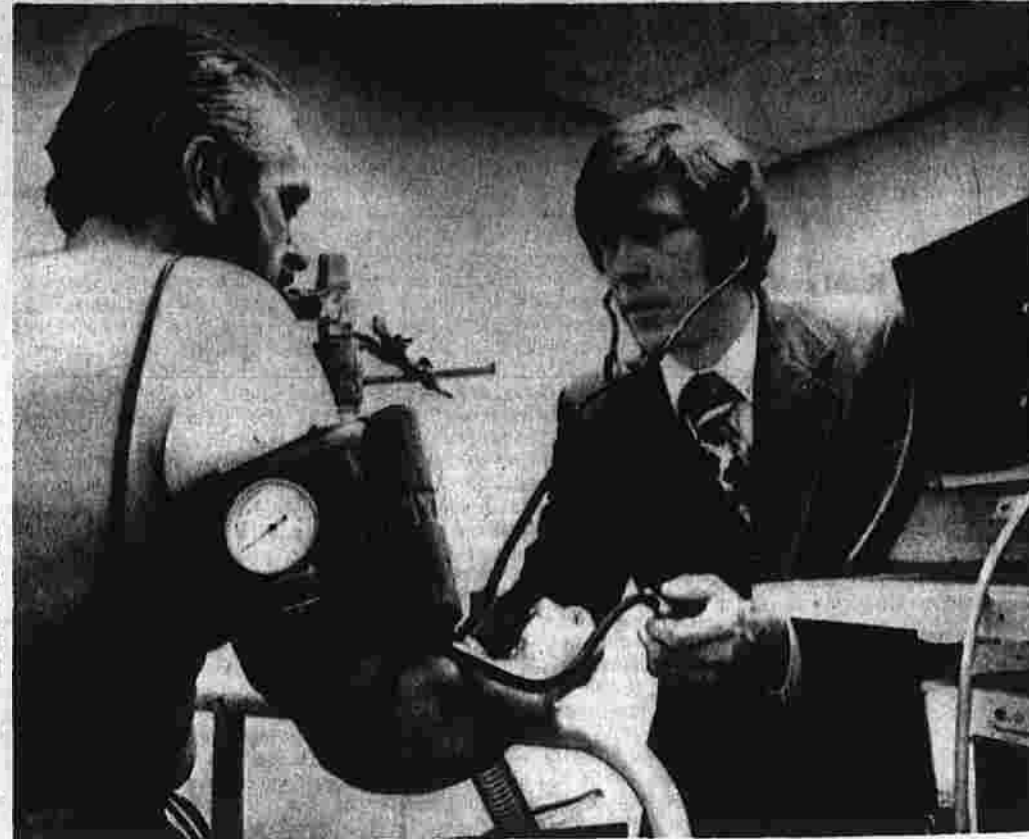

Strange as it might seem, Lessack says people should exercise immediately after playing to make sure they are raising their heart beat to the proper level.

To find the right level, a person takes the number 220, subtracts his age and then subtracts the number 40. A 30-year-old man should aim for a heart beat of 150 beats per minute under athletic stress. The one-minute pulse rate is found by counting the number by six.

"If the rate is below the target, you're not working hard enough," Lessack said.

Tests have shown the heart will reach the proper level within a few minutes, and trainers warn it is important to warm up before starting strenuous activity.

Lessack says the benefits gained by this heart exercise are many. The lungs breathe more efficiently, the heart pumps more blood and the circulatory system carries more oxygen through the body. That means a physically fit person's normal heart rate is actually lower than most everyone else's, and there is less

Dr. Paul Lessack of the Rutgers Medical School adjusts equipment that measures a patient's level of physical fitness in an examining room at the school. Lessack is one of the "new breed" of exercise physiologists who believes that casual exercising and sports participation is not enough to stay in shape. He claims that 95 per cent of Americans are out of shape.

strain on the heart over the years because it doesn't have to pump as hard to do the same amount of work.

Lessack points out that one is never too old to begin a proper exercise program. Even people who have suffered heart attacks can regain a remarkable degree of fitness, and Lessack cites last April's 26-mile Boston Marathon as an example.

"You can start at any age," Lessack said. "There were 50 cardiac patients in the Marathon running under medical supervision, and most of them finished. These people were given a stress test, and they were given the right kind of exercise. It was done scientifically. That's the most important thing about exercise."

Lessack, who is 23 years old, puts his theories to good use. He also ran in the Marathon and completed the 26-mile endurance test.

In Lessack's view, proper exercise is an activity that should be part of everyone's lives whether they are young or old.

"I personally feel 90 per cent of the children of this country are not in good physical shape," he said. "A lot of them are developing heart disease in the seventh and eighth grades, even though it's not going to manifest itself until they are 35 or 40 years old. It's really sad."

Square dance club to name officers

Manchester Square Dance Club will elect officers at its annual meeting Saturday at Manchester High School. The event will open at 6:30 p.m. with a potluck served by members of the executive board.

Admission for club members is a casserole, salad or dessert. Members are asked to bring their own silverware and plates. Changes in the bylaws and other issues will be considered during the meeting.

Later in the evening, Earl Johnston will call for dancing. Russ and Anita White will cue the rounds.

Members of the nominating committee are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Heck, chairman; Mrs. and Mrs. Heinz Bartel, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sandall and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Scott.

Alaskan oil plan sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Coast, the long-awaited Rep. Stewart B. McKinney, R-Conn., wants Congress to support his efforts to have President Ford's oil export authority suspended until a specific plan is developed regarding distribution of Trans-Alaskan oil.

McKinney, in a letter to other congressmen released Tuesday, said "exportation would fly in the face of the nation's effort to develop a program of self-sufficiency."

The Fairfield County politician said officials had told him that because of storage and distribution problems on the West

Letter says two crewmen were kept out of lifeboat

CAMDEN (UPI) — Saying, "No way, babe. You'll tip us over," a yachtman charged with manslaughter in the deaths of two crewmen refused to take them aboard a lifeboat after their schooner sank in a winter storm in 1974, a survivor testified.

Michael J. Riker, 29, of South Windsor, Conn., said in a letter introduced as evidence Wednesday that Cyril LaBrecque ignored suggestions men swimming outside the 11-foot lifeboat be allowed to rotate places with those inside.

"No way, babe. You'll tip us over," the 52-year-old yachtman responded, Riker said.

LaBrecque, of Santa Anna, Calif., was indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of involuntary manslaughter for keeping his wife, Jessie, and his pet Labrador retriever on the lifeboat while forcing three of his crewmen to swim in 45-degree waters after the 61-foot schooner went down a few miles off the New Jersey coast on Jan. 28, 1974.

Two of the crew members — Bradford Blakely, 20, and Paul Sagario, 19, both of Wethersfield, Conn., died of exposure after some 10 hours in the water. They were on a cruise from Essex, Conn., to the Bahamas when the ship sank.

Riker's letter, read by Coast Guard Lt. Calvin Perkins who investigated the shipwreck, also quoted LaBrecque as saying he "admired the courage of the boys in the water. I don't think I would have lasted more than 15 minutes out there."

LaBrecque himself took the stand for the second day Wednesday and said he had no intention of taking the 80-pound dog in the lifeboat. He said he helped the dog into a larger lifeboat but he did not intend to put it in the smaller lifeboat when the larger one foundered, he said.

"I forgot the dog was there," LaBrecque said. He explained the retriever apparently climbed into the lifeboat or was helped by a crew member.

Riker, who testified last week, said LaBrecque repeatedly refused to throw the dog out of the water to make room for the crew members in the water.

He said he asked the captain to allow him inside the boat after his rubber wet suit was filled with water, making it impossible for him to stay afloat. Riker quoted LaBrecque as replying, "We can't do it now. Wait until things calm down."

LaBrecque testified the lifeboat kept taking on water and his wife used a snorkel and later a cosmetic bag to bail out the lifeboat.

"I didn't think there was any chance of anyone surviving," said LaBrecque. He added he helped grab the men each time they floated away from the side of the ship.

While the three clung to the outside of the lifeboat, LaBrecque said, he kept trying to row toward shore. "If we stopped rowing we would have been lost," LaBrecque said.

Before the converted schooner sank, LaBrecque estimated, he was about seven miles and within sight of shore.

LaBrecque's wife also testified for her husband's defense and said the men outside the boat "seem satisfied the way they were as long as the skill didn't turn over."

Bridgeport jai alai fronton to open under new owners

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — After a six-month opening delay because of an influence-peddling scandal, the Bridgeport jai alai fronton has been given state permission to open June 1 under new ownership.

The Commission on Special Revenue decided Wednesday the present owners are fit and qualified to operate the $16 million Teamsters-incorporated gambling facility.

The original owners, a Florida-based corporation headed by David Friend, had to give up their gambling license because of Friend's arrest.

He was charged with financial irregularities and perjury because he said he paid $250,000 cash to the late Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey for help in winning a gambling permit. Friend is free on bond awaiting trial.

In other action, the gaming commission postponed until next week a decision on a proposed horse racing track for Connecticut. The commission heard from lawyers for Sawmill Brook Racing Association, which wants to build a track in Middletown.

They said the recent rejection of a rival application for a Wolcott horse track, on environmental grounds, leaves the commission open to rescind the license for that track and grant one to Middletown.

The commission voted to hear presentations from the state attorney general and Sawmill lawyers at its meeting next Wednesday in an effort to determine the legal status of the license already granted Old Rock Road Inc., the Wolcott promoters.

Operators of the Bridgeport fronton were granted 182 evening sessions and 66 Wednesday and Saturday matinees between June 1 and Dec. 31. A request for Monday matinees was denied.

Paul J. Silverfield, chairman of the special revenue commission, said the Statewide Organized Crime Investigative Task Force investigated the new Bridgeport operators and issued a favorable report.

Story clarified

It was incorrectly stated in Wednesday's Herald that Globe Hollow reservoir has no treatment plant.

The water there is treated through the Cooper Hill treatment plant. However, for the Porter-Howard reservoir, Water from the Buckingham Reservoir is treated by the Line Street filter plant which is about 50 years old and not performing at adequate levels, said Jay Giles, public works director.

The information was given to the Advisory Board of Health in a water report in connection with the federal Safe Drinking Water Act. In compliance with the act, the town will be required to clear the water from existing contaminating elements.

Negotiations authorized for Tuesday race results

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — The Connecticut Gaming Commission has authorized chairman Paul Silverfield to start negotiations for rights to receive live racing results for Tuesday racing.

Silverfield said Wednesday that Pimlico racetrack had agreed to sell its Tuesday results to Connecticut, along with Saturday's Preakness Stakes, but that deal fell through when the Maryland gaming commission turned down the request this week.

The Maryland commission's action came when it refused to permit Pimlico to sign a contract with Connecticut's off-track betting system for the rights to receive the live results.

Silverfield said the Maryland commission rejected the request because a bill is pending before Congress which could prohibit intrastate gambling.

Directors reaffirm town hiring policy

The 1976-77 budgets adopted last week by the Manchester Board of Directors adopted the following policy, as spelled out in its budget message by Mayor Matt Moriarty Jr.

"We wish to maintain the freeze on filling vacancies without specific permission from the Board of Directors. We recommend the same policy for the Board of Education."

The adopted budgets create the new position of deputy police chief, two new positions in the water department and the new position of

Police report

No charges have been lodged in connection with a Friday afternoon accident in which a car struck a mailbox and a utility pole on Gardner St., police said.

Driver Bruce C. Blakelock, 28, of Helaine Rd. told police he had swerved to avoid a dog in the roadway, lost control and hit the mailbox and pole.

Police said Blakelock and two passengers in his car, which was towed, suffered minor injuries.

- A 10:45 p.m. accident Tuesday in which a car driven by John T. Radigan, 24, of Glastonbury hit a utility pole and rolled over on Broad St. Police said Radigan was treated at Manchester Memorial Hospital. No charges were lodged.

A Wednesday night accident on Strickland St. in which two 3-year-old boys apparently caused a parked car to roll down a steep grade and hit a tree. Police said the boys — Justin Hickey of 77 Strickland St. and Andrew Salo of 85 Strickland St. — were treated for minor injuries after the 6:25 p.m. crash. The car had been parked and it appeared the boys got in and disengaged the transmission, police said.

An accident at Center and Main Sts. Wednesday morning in which a car driven by Robert L. Spinetta, 37, of New Britain struck and knocked over a fire alarm box. Police charged Spinetta, who wasn't hurt, with failure to drive in the established lane. Court appearance (not mandatory) is scheduled May 25.

Other incidents reported by police today included:

- Apprehension of a 15-year-old Manchester boy and his referral to juvenile court on a charge of third-degree criminal trespass. Police said the charge stems from a break into the vacant Allied Building Systems complex on Oakland St.
- Burglaries at the Senior Citizens Center, 63 Linden St., and an apartment on Main St. It wasn't known if anything was missing from the center; about $40 in change was taken in the apartment break.
- Theft of a Durant St. man's car Wednesday night, from its parked location on Durant St., and its recovery on nearby Essex St. this morning.

Mazda announces the Air Break.

Free air conditioning worth $435 off the list price.

From now until May 31, you can get free Mazda® air conditioning on 1976 Mazda RX-4's and the exciting new Cosmo as participating Mazda dealers. That's a cool $435 off the list price.

29 mpg highway, 18 mpg city*

It's just one more reason to come in and test drive a rotary engine Mazda. Another is our great gas mileage. Both Cosmo and the RX-4 line are EPA rated 29 mpg highway, 18 city.* As

Car and Driver raves: "There isn't a new car on the road able to match both a Mazda's acceleration and its fuel economy!"

Now extra value
And now there's free Mazda® air conditioning, too. But you'll lose your cool if you don't act fast.

Come in for a test drive today!

TOWN OF BOLTON
Notice is hereby given that on Thursday, May 27, 1976, at 8:00 P.M. o'clock, at the Town Hall of Bolton, Connecticut, a Public Hearing will be held by the Zoning Board of Appeals, Town of Bolton, to hear the following appeals:

Appeals of Denise P. Budrick of 35 West Street, Bolton, Connecticut, for a variance of minimum frontage requirements of Section P of Bolton Zoning Ordinance for property on the south side of Bolton Center Road, Lot No. 10, Block No. 20, Map No. B, owned by Mrs. Eva Morra of Clark Road, Bolton, Connecticut.

Zoning Board of Appeals of the Town of Bolton, John Roberts, Chairman

TOWN OF MANCHESTER
NOTICE OF ADOPTION OF ORDINANCE
In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 3, Sections 1 and 2 of the Town Charter, notice is hereby given of the adoption by the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Town of Manchester, Connecticut, of Ordinance as follows:

PURCHASE OF PROPERTY — 468 ADAMS STREET BE IT ORDAINED BY THE ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS OF THE TOWN OF MANCHESTER, COUNTY OF HARTFORD, STATE OF CONNECTICUT, that certain parcels of land, bounded and described as follows:

-Beginning at a metes and bounds description of the southerly street line of Middle Turnpike West and the westerly street line of Adams Street in the Town of Manchester, Connecticut, for a distance of nine feet and 3/100 (9 3/100) feet to a point, said point being located nineteen (19) feet westerly of Urban Systems Project #76-116 base line station 24 plus 56.1. Said point being located forty-nine and 54/100 (49 54/100) feet southerly of the southerly corner of other land of the grantor; the line runs thence in a northerly direction along the arc of a circular curve to the left having a radius of 94 feet and a delta angle of 77° - 39' - 00" for a distance of thirty-two and 51/100 (32 51/100) feet to a point, said point being located twenty-nine (29) feet southerly of the southerly street line of Adams Street in the Town of Manchester, Connecticut, for a distance of nineteen and 31/100 (19 31/100) feet easterly of the northerly street line of Adams Street; thence the line runs in an easterly direction along the southerly street line of Middle Turnpike West for a distance of nineteen and 31/100 (19 31/100) feet to the point of beginning.

Said piece or parcel of land being a part of the premises known as 468 Adams Street and being the same described on a map or plan entitled, "Graveland and Puss, Inc., Consulting Engineers and Surveyors, Manchester, Connecticut, Land to be Acquired from Ruth L. R. Fanta by the Town of Manchester, Manchester, Connecticut, Scale 1" = 20", Dated 1-24-75."

Said map or plan to be placed on file in the Office of the Town Clerk of the Town of Manchester, reference to which is hereby made for further description.

Voted Board of Directors May 1, 1976.

This Ordinance shall take effect ten (10) days after this publication in this newspaper provided that within ten (10) days after this publication of this Ordinance a petition signed by not less than five (5) percent of the electors of the Town, as determined from the latest official lists of the Registrars of Voters, has not been filed with the Town Clerk requesting its reference to a special Town election.
