Burkamp plans hit snag; liquor variance needed

By DOUG BEVINS Herald Reporter Developer Kenneth Burkamp's plans for a downtown Manchester mini-mall have hit a snag: He says he may lose the key to the entire project if he doesn't get a zoning variance.

Burkamp has leased about 5,000 square feet on the lower level of the old Jaffe & Podrow Building for a restaurant liquor permit. And town zoning regulations won't allow it.

So Burkamp has filed a variance application with the Zoning Board of Appeals, and he's trying to organize support for a Monday night public hearing on the issue.

Burkamp's application seeks a waiver of regulations which prohibit similar liquor outlets within 1,000 feet of each other downtown. It appears that it won't be easy for Burkamp to win approval of the plan. Opposition is expected from already-established restaurants throughout Manchester, and the usual difficulty of proving legal hardship is anticipated.

In order to grant a variance, the ZBA has to determine there is a definite hardship (other than financial) which is borne by the specific property involved. According to zoning experts who cite several court cases, it's nearly impossible to prove a legal hardship in a liquor case.

There are local precedents on both sides, Burkamp said. And a major factor in his favor, he says, is the apparent need to reinvigorate downtown Manchester.

The proposed Manchester Mall - a three-level project to feature small specialty shops - would contribute heavily to downtown Manchester, Burkamp said. The proposed restaurant would be a major "drawing card" not only for the mall itself but for the entire Central Business District, he said.

The zoning problem stems from the recent opening of another restaurant with a liquor permit just a short distance away from Burkamp's location. Ev Murphy's Italian Spaghetti House, which obtained a restaurant liquor permit, opened at 35 Oak St. in April.

Murphy's, if it had opened one year earlier, would have had the same zoning difficulties now faced by Burkamp. Zoning regulations were amended last year to ease restrictions in the Central Business District, negating former rules which prohibited any type of liquor outlet within 1,000 feet of another.

The regulation change, approved by the town Planning and Zoning Commission after months of controversial debate, specified 12 different types of liquor outlets and prohibited only outlets of the same type within 1,000 feet of each other.

The amendments, adopted in May, were preceded by an unsuccessful attempt to ease restrictions everywhere in Manchester. If the hopes of averting a disaster that could cripple his bid for the GOP nomination.

Recovery, Inc., offers aid to former mental patients

Recovery, Inc., the Association of Nervous and Former Mental Patients, invites those interested to attend one of its many free weekly group meetings in the New England area.

Meetings are held every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Wind House, 71 Hayes St. Meetings are also held every Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at St. Bernard's School Library in Rockville.

Recovery, Inc., is an international agency organized in 1937 to prevent recidivism in former mental patients and chronic symptoms in nervous patients. This non-profit, non-sectarian organization offers a systematic self-help aftercare method developed by the late psychologist, Dr. Abraham Low.

The agency holds weekly group meetings in more than 1,000 locations throughout the United States and other countries, with 15,000 participating members in all walks of life.

Some members have been hospitalized, some have not; some have been or are still under the care of a psychiatrist or other mental health professional. They share a common set of symptoms which may include heart palpitations, dizziness, fatigue and depression.

Among their objections listed are the potential effects on Keeney St.

School and on the sewer treatment plant, the possibility that high density housing would require more in services than it produces in taxes, and the fact that present property owners bought their homes not suspecting that the attempts would be made to impose a high density housing zone in that area.

Although the MPOA favored the large surplus that Town Manager Robert Weiss applied to the benefit of the taxpayers, the group feels that the town's political leaders have not yet learned how to reduce governmental spending.

State NEW ORLEANS - Despite strong dissent, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Friday declined to review the case of William A. Williams, who kidnapped Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy in 1974, but won reversal of his conviction because of excessive pretrial publicity. Murphy said the court was "more interested in arcane legal principles than in the conviction of a confessed kidnaper."

HARTFORD - Connecticut has less than a week to provide $25,000 as its share of construction cost of a solar-heated armory in Norwich or it will lose a $18 million grant for the project, according to Maj. Gen. John F. Freund, state adjutant general.

Regional BOSTON - Still calling it a "wasteful and irrational program," Gov. Michael S. Dukakis has reversed himself and ordered state officials to proceed with a $66 million interstate highway safety project. He took the action under heavy pressure from members of his administration, legislators and construction industry officials and workers.

Lebanese attempting 30th cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Rival rightist, leftist and Palestinian groups showed some respect for a 30-day cease-fire today and fighting died down to sporadic sniper fire. The truce, the 30th in 13 months of civil war, went into effect at midnight Friday and battles that have killed more than 250 persons in two days.

It lasted a bare 15 minutes before shooting erupted in Beirut's commercial and port districts and artillery and rockets thundered across battle lines in the Mount Lebanon area.

By mid-morning, however, the fighting dropped away to occasional sniper shots though gunmen aimed at Beirut in the capital's main trouble spots. In the northern port city of Tripoli, troops of the Syrian-led Palestine Liberation Army pulled out of the fighting, obeying an order from PLO leader Yasser Arafat. Arafat's order to the PLA was issued after anti-Syrian Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon clashed for three days with pro-Syrian Saiga Palestinians and the Syrian-backed PLA.

The new cease-fire was arranged after the Tripoli clashes threatened to spread and fighting between rightists and leftists flared in Beirut and the eastern mountains.

Divers search Pawcatuck River for woman's body STONINGTON (UPI) - Scuba divers planned to search the swift Pawcatuck River today for a missing woman presumed drowned in an apparent accident which killed her husband and two daughters.

Stephen Cherry, 24, and his two daughters, ages one and four, drowned Friday when the family car plunged into the river in the Pawcatuck section of Stonington, police said. Mrs. Cherry was reported missing and presumed drowned.

Police said divers removed Cherry and his daughters from their submerged car which was found overturned in 10 feet of water around 5:30 p.m.

Police said they believe Mrs. Cherry also was in the car and may have been swept away in the fast-moving water which empties into Long Island Sound.

A spokesman said "there is no reason to believe" the incident was anything other than an accident.

Tents and beds sought for earthquake victims UDINE, Italy (UPI) - Officials have appealed for tents, beds and other essentials for the 100,000 persons made homeless by the earthquake that shook northeast Italy nine days ago killing at least 1,000 persons.

"The material most needed at this stage is tents, beds, blankets, family kitchens and prefabricated toilets," government commissioner Giuseppe Zamberletti said Friday.

Reports from tent cities housing survivors of the May 6 earthquake said supplies on the whole were adequate, but there was too much of some items and too little of others.

Levi may ask court to vacate Boston desegregation plan

NEW YORK (UPI) - Attorney General Edward Levi, in a disagreement with the head of his civil rights division, is considering filing a friend of the court brief with the Supreme Court asking it to vacate the Boston desegregation plan. The New York Times reported today.

Quoting "sources close to the matter," the Times said Levi and Mayor Kevin White, the Boston School Committee, the Boston Home and School Association, and an association of parents representing mostly white, antidesegregation forces - are in various stages of appeal.

John Wilson, assistant information director for the Justice Department, told UPI in Washington early today the department is reviewing the Boston matter because "it is a major case and particularly because it is a school desegregation case."

"The Justice Department always takes a look at major cases that come before the court to determine if we should take a position," said Wilson, who stressed that no decision had been reached on whether the department should intervene.

A spokesman for Boston Mayor Kevin H. White, Frank M. Tivnan, said White was supporting an effort by Levi before the U.S. Supreme Court.

"The city of Boston has filed its own brief with the Supreme Court challenging the scope of the judge's authority to direct the financial affairs of the city.

"While these two suits, therefore would have something in common, obviously the attorney general's motion would certainly take precedence and we would support it," Tivnan said.

"The city of Boston would be fully prepared to provide any material necessary to show why desegregation in Boston has not worked and the problems inherent in the desegregation order," he said.

Rooney appeals case to state arbitrators

The Connecticut Council of Police Unions has filed a grievance with the state Board of Mediation and Arbitration on behalf of Manchester policeman Brian Rooney, who was demoted from sergeant to patrolman Jan. 6.

The council's grievance comes as the third step in a procedure outlined by the Manchester Police Union contract and seeks full relief from the demotion action, Atty. Jerome Walsh, who represents Rooney, said.

Walsh said the grievance seeks a reversal of Police Chief Robert Lannan's decision to demote Rooney, restoration of rank and pay.

There was no indication when the grievance would be considered. The local police contract specifies that the state arbitrators' decision is binding.

Rooney was demoted by Lannan Jan. 6 in what Lannan described as a disciplinary action. No reasons were revealed, but officials said there had been an intra-department hearing conducted by Lannan.

Last month, in the second step of the grievance procedure, Town Manager Robert Weis conducted a private hearing and upheld Lannan's decision. However, Weis ruled that a reversal of Police Chief Robert Lannan's decision to demote Rooney, restoration of rank and pay.

Rooney's former sergeant's position was filled on Jan. 11 by the promotion of Policeman John Mott.

The nine-man, three-woman jury deliberated four hours Friday before it announced LaBrecque innocent of manslaughter and charges he negligently operated an unseaworthy vessel.

LaBrecque said he has not been on a boat since the accident.

"We tried to put ourselves in his place," juror Mary Consonetti said outside the courtroom. "We were convinced that, given the weather and the waves, any attempt to move around that boat would have caused the boat to capsize. He saved those lives and they would have all been lost if the boat capsized," she said of the four survivors who were rescued by a passing ship off Little Beach Island several hours after Sagario and Blakely died.

"That boat was the last shred of life they had to hang onto," she said.

LaBrecque had testified that the lifeboat, which contained himself, his wife, Jessie, and a fourth crewman, would have capsized if he attempted to throw his 80-pound Labrador retriever overboard and allow the three men in the water to take turns sitting in the skiff.

LaBrecque hired the Wetherfield Island to help man the converted schooner during a trip from Essex, Conn., to Florida en route to the Bahamas.

LaBrecque still looked worried and nervous after a federal court jury acquitted him on manslaughter charges in the deaths of two crewmen who perished when his yacht sank off the New Jersey coast in 1974.

"They were friends of mine," LaBrecque said of the two victims, Bradford Blakely, 20, and Paul Sagario, 19, both of Wetherfield, Conn. "I got along well with them. I feel bad about this thing."

Blakely and Sagario died of exposure in 43-degree waters after clinging to a lifeboat for 10 hours when LaBrecque's 61-foot converted fishing schooner, "Sadie and Edna," sank during a storm on Jan. 28, 1974.

The government charged the two died because LaBrecque refused to throw his pet dog out of the 11-foot lifeboat and allow them and a third crewman to climb aboard.

A third crewman also forced to cling to the lifeboat, Michael Riker, 20, survived and testified LaBrecque refused to allow the men into the lifeboat, but admitted the captain did not use threats and explained his fears of tipping the boat over.

Conservation stresses need for acquiring land

Concern for the future of our country's land and what we can pass on to future generations was the theme of a talk given to members of the Manchester Land Conservation Trust at their annual meeting Thursday night at the Manchester Country Club.

Charles L. Scott II of North Guilford, executive director of the Connecticut Chapter of the Nature Conservancy stressed the urgency of acquiring land for conservation. With the increase of land purchases for development, there is no guarantee for perpetuity.

Scott said that 68 per cent of the land in Connecticut is forested, and that 50 per cent of the marsh land has been lost through development.

Armed Forces heritage

From Revolutionary times to the present, Connecticut servicemen have been in the forefront. During the opening months of the Revolutionary War, for example, Connecticut residents were among the first to join George Washington's fledgling Army gathering at Cambridge, Mass.

In every major conflict since 1775, Connecticut, continued to uphold its impressive record of service. When the Civil War began, the state rallied to the Union's cause. The first regiment to arrive in Washington completely equipped and ready for duty was the First Connecticut Volunteers under the command of Col. Daniel Tyler.

The British invade South Carolina

by Dr. Francis G. Walett

American Antiquarian Society
Learning that some 300 Virginia Continentals under Col. Abraham Buford had marched into South Carolina, Lt. Col. Banastre Tarleton raced with a mounted British force to catch the Americans. The redcoats rushed so fast that they rode many horses to death.

A bloody day
"Light-Horse Harry" Lee wrote about the Waxhaws Massacre in his Memoir: "This bloody day only wanted the war daced and the roasting fire to have placed it first in the hearts of Britain."

Appearances deceiving
Appearances were deceiving, however. Gov. John Rutledge, although ousted from Charleston, vowed to fight on and to organize resistance against the British.

Plantation plundered
Yet another prominent militia leader of the same type was Andrew Pickens. After his plantation had been plundered, his Scotch-Irish veteran of Indian wars raised a force and joined in the harassment of the invaders.

Civil strife
The Carolinas, in short, were torn by almost incredible civil strife in the years 1780 and 1781.

Palm Beach Formals GOOD TIMES FOR RENT The worst solitude is to be destitute of sincere friendship. (Sir Francis Bacon) Why do you have friends? Because real friendship involves identifiable benefits. That may sound selfish, but it is true. You may prize one friend because of the stimulation he supplies to think, to new ideas. Such stimulation often motivates to action. You may value another friend because of the ego-support you derive. Some people are peculiarly gifted to encourage others, giving them a feeling of adequacy. Yet they can correct when it is needed. "Faintly" are the words of a friend; profuse are the kisses of an enemy. (Proverbs 27:6) Still others are valued friends because they are useful in more visible ways. And for all these reasons your friendship is sought by others. REGAL MEN'S SHOP 903 MAIN ST., MANCHESTER TRICITY PLAZA, VERNON Phone: 646-2003

Town meeting okays budget

Coventry
By MONICA SHEA
By a vote of 222 to 190 Coventry residents last night accepted the proposed budget for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The meeting was a quiet and sedate one and ended at about 10:50 p.m.
Residents spoke for and against various items but no motion to delete any items was passed.

Frank Kristoff of Cooper Lane makes a motion the police and the roads departments overtime accounts be deleted. His motion failed. (Herald photo by Shea)

Robert Olmstead, a Republican councilman, said, "I would have assumed that the phone campaign by the Republicans and the ad had something to do with the results of the meeting. It got people out. I thought that people were very concerned with the budget."
A motion was made to delete the overtime funds in both the police and the roads departments but this motion failed on a hand vote.

Richard Cromie, chairman of the Democratic Town Committee, presented the budget that some Democrats had prepared.
Paul Diehl said the board did not give any consideration to the burden placed on the taxpayers.
With the exception of last year and this year's annual town meetings, Coventry's annual town meetings have traditionally lasted well into the early hours of the morning.

Brinard said, "We believe that the Board of Education and the town government, with careful fiscal management, can live within these budgets."
Frank Perrotte made the motion to accept the budgets as presented.
A question of the legality of the budget format was raised by Mrs. Dorothy Wilmont. Town Attorney Abbot Schwebel ruled her question was not germane to the issue.

Bill Kenyon said, "I think this is a realistic budget. We should be able to live within this budget."
George Coon said, "I am asking everyone to consider the fact that the Board of Education budget has been cut to less than a five per cent increase. I'm asking you to defeat this motion to accept the budget."

Selectmen discuss bids

Bolton
The Board of Selectmen met Friday night to discuss the bids submitted 11 days ago for meeting the town's needs for solid waste disposal.
The three men had hoped to decide Friday what to recommend at the Monday Town Meeting as a way to dispose of the refuse.
The meeting is called partly to decide whether to try to continue sharing the Andover disposal area at a cost of up to $56,000 per year or try a new route.
Among the new ways is acceptance of the bid of Anthony Botteicello, owner of Sanitary Refuse of Manchester, for 100 per cent pickup of residential and commercial refuse along with a site to dispose of it at a total of $94,288.

Manchester needs more baseball diamonds and Ernie Turek, Park Department head, reports there are two choice locations available.
One is south of the Redwood section off Hillstown Road on town owned land. The other is a 12½ acre tract of land off Kennedy Road.
Nothing is being done at the moment on either, except talk, and that's cheap as everyone knows. Money is the holdup.
Turek said the area off Kennedy is being held up until an elementary school is built and an athletic field would be part of the complex. That would be years away.
Regulation baseball fields are at the West Side Oval, Mt. Nebo, East, and Manchester High. Cheney Tech and Manchester High.

Town meeting to be Monday

Bolton
Bolton resident will be asked to approve a $2,207,298 budget for 1976-1977 at the special Town Meeting Monday at 8 p.m. at the Town Hall. The Board of Education budget totals $1,373,840 and the town budget $833,458.
The present year's budget totals $2,991,690. The present school board budget totals $1,332,665 and the town proper $759,024.
If the proposed budget is approved, the tax rate will be 65.5 mills, a four and a half mill increase over this year.
Jerald Hassett, chairman of the Board of Finance, said the major reason for the increase is the dump.

Town meeting to be Monday

He said the budget provides for virtually no increase in services.
Robert Morra, chairman of the Republican Town Committee, said people in reviewing the budget may conclude as he did that the town boards did a fine job in trying to hold down expenses.
He said if any cuts are made, they will affect existing town services and school programs. Morra said costs and priorities must be balanced together and it is the townspeople's responsibility to come out and express their opinion.
Residents will be asked to approve $8,855 from the capital and non-recurring budget for various items for the school board.
The first plan calls for using the Andover Disposal Area at a cost of up to $56,000 annually.
The second plan calls for curbside pick-up at a cost of $78,000 annually.

Volunteer center holds open house

Vernon
The Tri-Town Center for Voluntary Action will conduct an open house Thursday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the offices of the Hockanum Valley Community Council, 1 Court St., Rockville.
Jake Friedman is volunteer coordinator for the center established last December as a branch of the Greater Hartford group.
During the open house representatives of area agencies will meet with center officials and some of the 18 local volunteers.
Funds for the center come from the Greater Hartford United Way. Friedman said the agency tries to match the volunteers with the types of jobs they would like to do.
He said placements are also followed up to make sure the volunteers and the agencies are satisfied with the arrangements.
To date, volunteers have been provided for such agencies as Big Brothers, the Red Cross, the hospital, senior citizens, day care centers, and the meals on wheels program.
Interviews of potential volunteers are conducted in the council offices on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5 to 8 p.m. and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.
Appointments for interviews may be made by calling the office of the Hockanum Valley Council.

The commission received a letter from town sanitarian Frank Richardson concerning the proposed 15-lot Sachem Hills Subdivision on East Street and Jagger Lane.
He told Richard Mihok, engineer for the property owner, that a wetlands applications should be filed and this can possibly be considered by the Inland Wetlands Commission, which is also the PZC, at its next meeting.

Attorneys arrested

VERNON (UPI) — Two lawyers charged with bribing and tampering with a witness were ordered to appear in Tolland County Superior Court June 1.
The two law partners, Samuel Schragger, 27, of Mansfield, and Owen Sanderson, 34, of Coventry, were arrested by state police Friday. They were brought in handcuffs before Judge John F. Shea and released on $5,000 bond each.
Authorities said they bribed a Somers Prison inmate, Carl Larson, so he would not testify against Carroll Gardner, 32, of Vernon, who is free on bond awaiting trial on arson charges. Gardner was arrested last month on a charge of bribing Larson at the prison.
An attorney for the two lawyers, John F. Murphy, said, "It's our belief the state police have chosen to believe a convicted felon to destroy the reputation of these two attorneys."

Sets drub Lobsters

By EARL YOST
Sports Editor
Conditions were described as near perfect by members of both sides last night at the Hartford Civic Center as Billie Jean King, Virginia Wade and Sandy Mayer paced the New York Sets to a convincing 30-20 win over the Boston Lobsters in World Team Tennis play.
Playing before the largest crowd ever to watch WTT in New England, 4,394, New York swept the men's and women's singles, men's doubles and women's doubles in the five-match program.
"This was one of our best nights for the whole team," King said. She was the main attraction on the multi-colored playing surface which noted, "I'm just happy we won 2-0 in the women's singles, it gave us the momentum and we won the last two matches rather convincingly (men's singles and men's doubles), she noted.
"This is a perfect stadium for tennis," winning captain Fred Stolle said and King echoed, "The Civic Center is just great."
With the portable court placed on the ice, Jon Trirat, Lobster's playing coach, felt there "were a lot of bad bounces." But he was quick to laud the appreciative crowd.
"There was a lot of response from the crowd, a lot better than in Boston. I prefer to play before more than 2,000. The people will come out if the tennis is enjoyable to watch, and we think it is." The Hartford audience, watching the first of four Lobster "home" games this season, was most appreciative of the play although perhaps disappointed in the outcome.
Actually, the crowd was equally divided in its rooting.
The biggest disappointment was John Alexander against Mayer. The latter won, 6-3.
"Sandy got the jump on me and played outstanding tennis. I played my average game, but was soundly beaten; he made very few errors and gave me very few points. He doesn't waste any movements. He's lost a set this season (in WTT play)," Alexander offered.

Jackson sparks O's

NEW YORK (UPI) — After sitting out the first month of the season because of a salary dispute, Reggie Jackson joined the Baltimore Orioles and suddenly they are winning again.
Friday night's 6-2 win over the New York Yankees, which brought them to the 500 mark, made it four straight. Jackson triggered a four-run first inning with a two-run homer.
"I'm not in midseason form yet," said Jackson, "but I think in the next couple of days I'll be where I want to be."
"We've finally got something together," said the Orioles' peppery manager, Earl Weaver. "We've finally got it and we didn't have it in the season—all our guys together."

Cincinnati's Red machine rolling

NEW YORK (UPI) — All it takes is a high performance battery like Jack Billingham and Johnny Bench to make the "Big Red Machine" perform like a Rolls-Royce.
Billingham tossed a four-hitter and Bench drove in three runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly Friday night to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-1 triumph over the New York Mets. In posting his fourth win against only two losses, Billingham blanked the Mets' towering right-hander before losing his shutout on a pinch-hit homer by Benny Avila in the ninth. His performance drew raves from Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson, who seldom lets his starters pitch a complete game.
"In other NL games, Los Angeles nipped Pittsburgh, 3-2, Philadelphia beat Houston, 5-1, San Diego topped Chicago, 7-4, and St. Louis downed San Francisco, 3-1. Montreal at Atlanta was rained out.

Hobby led to directing stamp museum

By RUSS MACKENDRICK

"No way!"
Bob Deming, president of the MPS, had just asked Sister Fidelma, Director of the Cardinal Spellman Philatelic Museum, to be a judge at the recent MANPEX.

Stamps and coins

It turned out that in her early days as a teacher, she had found it distressing to have to mark anybody down and she was not going to do it now to some aspiring stamp exhibitor.

The phone conversation had a happy ending, though, and Sister Fidelma was the guest of honor and speaker at the Awards Banquet of the Manchester Philatelic Society on the Saturday of the show.

Sister Fidelma Conway's interest in collecting began with the retrieval of three colorful Vatican stamps from a wastebasket in 1938. They were forthwith peeled off the envelopes and stuffed safely into a deep pocket. Later they were unscrunched, smoothed out, and affixed nicely onto a notebook page with a dependable glue. (No, kids, this is not the best way).

A few years later, now trained in museum work and well versed in the care and handling of stamps, Sister Fidelma found herself before a blank sheet of paper with the awesome task of designing the world's first and only museum building dedicated to philately.

What went down there was not a sketch of so many feet by so many feet, but a request to the architects for a building of hospitality adapted to the needs of stamp storage, display and protection.

On May 4, 1963, the place was ready and open on the campus of Regis College in Weston, Mass.

It is in two stories. The upper one has an exhibition gallery, a library of 10,000 volumes, offices, reading rooms and an old-fashioned country store with a U.S. Post Office where you can get a special cancellation. Down below there are meeting rooms, a graphic arts lab, a kitchen (that took a bit of finagling to get), and a security vault holding 300,000 stamps and covers from all over the world.

There have been thousands of visitors and some national stamp societies have held conventions here. It is a place for research projects — a toughie going on right now is the plating of the 1840 British Penny Blacks.

At the end of a witty and informative talk, Sister Fidelma got a standing ovation and a plaque engraved with a recognition of her services to philately.

MPS members have been inspired to join the Museum and a caravan will assemble in Vernon on the 23rd for a trip to Weston, just a week before Sister Fidelma's retirement day.

Big foreign book

All-out foreign coin people go for the big book — the Krause & Mishler "Standard Catalog of World Coins." Now in its third edition covering 563 countries, states, provinces, and cities, it dwarfs even the Hartford phone directory (you know — that publication so kittenishly called "The Book of Names"). The catalog lists 55,000 coins by date and mnt, and has original photographs of over 30,000.

Along with the Krause you might as well subscribe to the "World Coin News" out of Iola, Wisconsin (from the publishers of Numismatic News). This has just become a weekly and has a section that keeps the catalog up to date with new coins, price changes, and goof corrections.

Something to do

If you are at your wit's end for something stampish to do tomorrow, you might draw a bead on the Plymouth Bicentennial Committee's Philatelic Expo and Sale at Terryville. This is to be in the Immaculate Conception Church on Rt. 6, about 20 miles beyond Hartford.

The theme is "History Through Stamps." The best displays will get Plymouth medallions. There will also be a bourse, P.O., and collections to look at from the U.N., Italy, and Switzerland.
