State

HARTFORD — Gov. Ella T. Grasso Monday praised state agencies which cut energy use by 7.2 per cent in the first three months of this year compared with the same period last year.

HARTFORD — The investment banking firm of Lazard Freres & Co. is alleged to have made a secret profit of $12 million for its part in the merger of International Telephone & Telegraph and Hartford Fire Insurance, according to papers filed Monday in federal court by a stockholder seeking damages in connection with the merger.

Regional

AUBURN, N. H. — The badly beaten body of 6-year-old Stacy Ann Messina, missing since Saturday, was found late Monday and authorities arrested the girl's cousin, Ernest Therrien, 28, and charged him with murder.

CRANSTON, R. I. — California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a Democratic hopeful, said Monday night he doesn't think court-ordered busing will solve the problems of schools in the nation's cities. Brown entered the presidential race too late to be listed on the ballot for Rhode Island's June 1 primary; however, he is seeking support from an uncommitted delegate slate.

National

WASHINGTON — A federal court judge Monday ruled that the government will have to spend the full amount Congress appropriated for hot meals to senior citizens. A suit alleged the Department of Health, Education and Welfare was illegally impounding $37.5 million that Congress had ordered spent on the meals.

LOS ANGELES — The romanticized biography, "Eleanor and Franklin," was named television's outstanding special Monday night at the 28th annual Emmy Awards. Susan "Babe" Didrickson Clark and Anthony "Bruno" Hauptmann Hopkins won the top acting honors.

WASHINGTON — Federal Election Commission commissioners have been named, and after eight money-hungry weeks the flow of campaign funds to presidential candidates may be only days away.

WASHINGTON — The Court of Appeals Monday upheld the convictions of former White House aides John Ehrlichman and Gordon Liddy for the break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

International

MOSCOW — Sketchy official reports indicate a severe earthquake that rocked Soviet Central Asia Monday caused heavy damage, but there was no word on possible injuries or deaths in the sparsely populated region 2,000 miles southeast of Moscow.

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Christians and Moslems battled house-to-house across Beirut's port and commercial district today and bombarded each other with heavy artillery in the eastern mountains, raising the casualty toll for two days of fighting to more than 1,200 dead and injured.

Republican showdown in Michigan today

DETROIT (UPI) — President Ford, his political future at stake, today sought to stop Ronald Reagan's drive for the Republican presidential nomination in the pivotal Michigan primary.

Jimmy Carter, the 51-year-old former Georgia governor, was favored to win the Democratic primary and add industrial Michigan to his string of election victories.

Mostly cloudy weather dominated the state, except for sunny skies in the western areas. Temperatures were expected to climb into the 60s.

There was a "rather heavy turnout" in Ford's home town of Grand Rapids, which he represented in Congress for a quarter century.

But early reports indicated light to moderate voting in Detroit, which has about half the state's population. City officials said fewer persons were voting than in 1972.

Both Ford and Carter were rated favorites. But one poll showed Ford only 4 percentage points ahead in the GOP race — an unimpressive margin in what he called his "must win" state.

A loss in Michigan, following five defeats by Reagan in the last six primaries, could crush Ford's hopes for nomination to the presidency in his own right.

Polls in 6,351 precincts were open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. EDT. Michigan has 4.6 million registered voters.

Eighty-four Republican and 133 Democratic delegates were at stake. Both Carter and Udall stayed in Michigan to wait out the returns.

Ford, after his most strenuous effort of the campaign — including an old fashioned whistlestop campaign over the weekend — was back in Washington.

By a twist of political fortune, the man who won the Michigan Democratic primary four years ago — and who is given little chance to repeat today — may be the key factor in the Republican primary.

His name is George Corley Wallace, governor of Alabama, one of seven candidates on the Democratic ballot. In 1972, the day after he was shot in Maryland, he won the Michigan primary with 809,239 votes and a 51 per cent majority.

Now, politicians of both parties believe, many of those voters have largely given up on Wallace and are looking for some place else to go. Much the same thing happened in Indiana two weeks ago, where Wallace votes went to Reagan and helped him win.

Making a point — for freedom

Patrolman Albert Scables leads The Rev. Mr. R. N. Baker of United Pentecostal Church in handcuffs from the basement of a home at 178 Woodbridge St. where he was teaching a class of young persons when Scables and Patrolman Gary Minor burst in on him. The whole episode was preplanned, but the class didn't know that. The Rev. Mr. Baker was trying to make a point: In this country you don't have to worship secretly in basements and you have no fear that policemen will clamp you under arrest for what you say. The Rev. Mr. Baker said the class thought as first it was a joke, but the policemen and Mrs. Baker carried it off so well, the class became alarmed and a couple of young men were ready to interfere. Brown-Carter Maryland race tagged as too close to call BALTIMORE (UPI) — Maryland voters decide today whether to give frontrunning Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter another push toward the nomination or to set up a roadblock by handing the primary to California Gov. Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown Jr.

While there are a number of other Democratic candidates' names on the ballot, the Maryland primary has become a two-man race between Carter and Brown that most political observers say is too close to call.

Brown, facing his first presidential primary test, is hoping an intensive campaign which drew surprising political support will give him an upset win and propel his fledgling candidacy.

Carter, the former Georgia governor who has won 13 of the 18 state primaries he has entered, downplays the importance of the Maryland race, saying that a loss to Brown would "not be a serious setback."

A poll released Monday by the Baltimore Sun newspaper showed Carter with 31 per cent of the vote and Brown with 28 per cent. Brown campaign aides said another independent poll showed both candidates with 35 per cent, but they refused to name the poll.

Besides Brown and Carter, other

Democrats on the ballot are Henry Jackson, Morris Udall, George Wallace, Fred Harris, and antiabortion candidate Ellen McCormack.

Forty Maryland delegates to the Democratic National Convention will be elected today; another 13 will be picked in June by state Democratic leaders.

Brown entered the Maryland race too late to field a slate of delegates and will compete with Carter only on the "popularity contest" portion of the ballot.

On the Republican side, President Ford faces challenger Ronald Reagan but both bypassed Maryland to wage a major effort in the Michigan, also today.

Ford is expected to beat easily the former California governor in Maryland, according to both Ford and Reagan state campaign chiefs.

Burkamp granted liquor variance

By DOUG BEVINS

Herald Reporter

The Manchester Zoning Board of Appeals, citing the applicant's good faith and creditable effort to revitalize the downtown area, has waived restrictions for a liquor-serving restaurant in the Central Business District.

The ZBA voted 4-1 Monday night to grant the zoning variance sought by Kenneth Burkamp, developer of the proposed Manchester Mall at 811 Main St.

ZBA members favoring the variance were Chairman Bernard Johnson, Vice Chairman Clarence Brown, John Caglianella and alternate Harriet Haslett. The lone dissenter was ZBA Secretary Paul Rossetto.

The decision followed a 45-minute public hearing which included a somewhat controversial exchange between Burkamp and downtown restaurateur Everett Murphy and their respective lawyers, Josiah Lessner and Paul Groobert.

Lessner and Burkamp argued that it would be in the best interests of downtown Manchester for the ZBA to waive a regulation which prohibits similar liquor outlets within 1,000 feet of each other in the Central Business District.

Groobert and Murphy countered with arguments that Murphy was there first, and there were no legal grounds for a zoning variance because the only hardship was financial.

Groobert said today that a court challenge of the ZBA's decision is in order and appears likely.

Burkamp was seeking the variance because he has leased 5,000 square feet of the old Jaffe & Podroze Building for a restaurant, which would be the major tenant in the planned mini-mall.

But Ev Murphy's Italian Spaghetti house, which opened recently at 35 Oak St., already has a restaurant liquor permit. And Murphy's is just across the Purnell Parking Lot from Burkamp's building, within the 1,000-foot limit specified by zoning regulations for liquor outlets.

Lessner said Burkamp began his mini-mall plans and leased the restaurant space long before Murphy's opened. Urging a favorable vote, Lessner asked the ZBA "to do its part to help downtown Manchester."

One of the lessees for the restaurant in Burkamp's building, William Bracken of Manchester, told the ZBA he envisions a full-service restaurant with 200 to 230 seats. He said plans call for a daytime delicatessen/evening steak house operation, with entertainment geared for the over-25 age group.

Groobert, presenting the opposition case, emphasized that an economic hardship isn't a legal reason for a variance. Groobert said Murphy won the race for a restaurant liquor permit downtown, and Burkamp knew of the zoning regulations when he was planning his development.

The so-called "race" developed a year ago, when Manchester's Planning and Zoning Commission eased restrictions on downtown liquor outlets. Until May 1975, there was a 1,000-foot restriction for liquor outlets of any type downtown.

The regulation change, decided after months of debate, was proposed by another developer, Albert Lindsay, who was planning a liquor-serving restaurant in a mini-mall at 881 Main St. Lindsay has since abandoned his development plans.

Monday night's ZBA hearing on Burkamp's application also include pro and con arguments by two people and in letters.

John Eicholtzer of 128 Highland St., speaking for the Manchester Property Owners Association, urged a favorable vote because Burkamp is trying to revitalize the downtown area.

Other favorable evidence presented Monday night included a 35-signature petition submitted to Burkamp, and letters from Town Manager Robert Weiss and William Sleith, chairman of the defunct Mayor's Downtown Action Committee.

Speaking in opposition was Donald F. Denley of 2 Alpine St., owner-operator of the Brass Key Restaurant at 829 Main St. Denley said Burkamp hadn't proven a hardship and a favorable ZBA vote would create a monster by setting a precedent and lessening the integrity of town zoning regulations.

ZBA members discussed the issues briefly in their business session after the public hearing, and the majority agreed that Burkamp's hardship was the "race" for a liquor permit and liquor regulations which are "too restrictive."

Rossetto, opposing the variance, didn't agree that the ZBA had cited a hardship which could stand up in court. He also said the variance might set a precedent which would obligate the ZBA to approve similar applications in the future.

Environmental impact hearing tonight at 7:30

The environmental impacts of the proposed Wilbur Cross Highway widening and I-84 connector construction will be aired in a public meeting tonight at 7:30 at the Manchester Municipal Building Hearing Room, 41 Center St.

Tonight's meeting, called to comply with federal requirements, is the first of two meetings to be conducted by the Wethersfield engineering firm of Close, Jensen and Miller. The firm, preparing an Environmental Impact Statement on the highway projects, plans a similar meeting next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the East Hartford Town Hall.

Representatives of the engineering firm will outline the proposed highway location and anticipated environmental effects at each meeting. The proposed I-84 connector is the unbuilt section of highway between the Wilbur Cross Highway in East Hartford and the Manchester segment of I-84 which ends at Spencer St.

The proposed I-84 link is part of the larger interstate highway project to build an expressway between East Hartford and Providence, R.I. Reconstruction and widening of the Wilbur Cross Highway is proposed between a point just west of Roberts St., East Hartford, to a point just east of W. Middle Tpke., Manchester.

In East Hartford, the planned highway will have a total of eight travel lanes (four lanes each direction), plus two special lanes for buses and carpool vehicles. A special set of on and off ramps for the bus and carpool lanes is proposed at Silver Lane near Mercer St., East Hartford.

President to greet Queen at Newport

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — President Ford will meet Britain's Queen Elizabeth II here July 10 and dine with her aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

Navy spokesman Monday confirmed Ford would meet the Queen at the Naval Education and Training center and then dine on the royal yacht, which will be moored at the Newport Naval Base.

Opinion

Law and order or justice?

No criminal has been executed in the United States since 1967. Nevertheless, we do have a form of capital punishment which is likely to continue, no matter what the Supreme Court finally decides.

Between 1960 and 1970, 561 policemen and 2,846 civilians met with violent death, according to a study by University of Washington psychiatrist Dr. Arthur L. Koblner, as reported in Human Behavior magazine.

Of 1,500 incidents where police killed civilians during the 1960s, only three resulted in the punishment of the officers involved, even though, says Koblner, 60 per cent of the killings were deemed to be of questionable or unjustifiable necessity.

The law specifies that police are justified in using "deadly force" only when they or others are in danger of grave bodily harm, or to prevent the escape of a felon. But the police and the legal system have pushed the limits much farther, Koblner charges.

He found that almost 30 per cent of police victims were either involved in a misdemeanor such as a traffic violation or were doing nothing at all wrong. Another 27 per cent were stealing a car or committing some other property crime.

Most people believe that if a policeman shoots a criminal, or suspected criminal, in the course of duty, the killing is justified. After all, no honest person will run away if ordered to stop by a policeman, and if the police ever become afraid to use their weapons for fear of prosecution - there goes law and order.

But the result, says Koblner, may be that we have law and order in lieu of justice.

Trustees praise C. Elmore Watkins

To the editor: The Board of Trustees of Manchester Memorial Hospital adopted the following resolution of tribute to the late C. Elmore Watkins, which was written by Connecticut Chief Justice Charles S. House, an honorary trustee of the hospital.

At this first meeting of the Board of Trustees of Manchester Memorial Hospital to be held following the death of our beloved and revered President Emeritus and Honorary Trustee, C. Elmore Watkins, it is fitting that we spread upon our records an expression of our grief at his passing, a tribute to his accomplishments and acknowledgment of the great debt which our community in general and Manchester Memorial Hospital in particular owe to him.

While we share with the bereaved members of his family and the community at large a deep sense of loss in his death, we join with all those who have been honored by his friendship and close association in thanking the Board of Trustees for having known and worked with him. We will long treasure the memory of his association. While we grieve, we are deeply grateful for the life among us of C. Elmore Watkins and his dedicated service to Manchester Memorial Hospital.

uncle was sexton of the church, and part of his job was taking care of the cemetery. He would hire 4 or 5 high school kids and believe for one year and his help was a lot better than what the "Association" does. Many a day we go over to the cemetery and you would be surprised how many wives, husbands, daughters etc., are fixing their loved one's grave.

Council argues over planner

Coventry
The Town Council Monday was unable to pass a motion that would have started a search for a full time town planner.

Only five members of the Town Council attended. The charter says if only five are present, then there is a unanimous vote of all attending to pass a motion.

A motion was made to authorize the town manager, Frank Connelly, to recruit a list of candidates for the position of town planner. This list would then be submitted to the Planning and Zoning Commission which would then recommend one to the Town Council. The council would do the actual hiring.

This motion was approved by Jesse Brainerd, Douglas Whipple and Robert Keller. Robert Olmstead and Len Giglio were opposed.

Olmstead was concerned the council was abdicating its responsibility. "The hiring is being done by others with just the approval of the Town Council. I do think we need a town planner but if we put it under the authority of another commission, we will never get the authority back," Olmstead said.

The consensus of the five was that the town needed a planner and four agreed the planner should be hired fulltime. Olmstead said he could live with a fulltime planner.

Conolly, former town planner and the acting town manager, said the manager should appoint the town planner with the approval of the council. Because the PZC must live with the planner, they should have input into the selection.

Sondra Stave, chairman of the PZC, said, "We would be pleased to have Frank Conolly coordinate the search for a new planner. We are concerned the feelings of the commission be taken into account when the hiring is done."

The council will hold a special meeting Monday to continue the discussion of the hiring of a planner. Other items on that agenda will be the discussion of the roles of the town planner and the town council, and a discussion of a loan to the Housing Authority. This meeting will be at the Town Hall at 7 p.m.

They do have the operating staff from day camp and group reservations to be used in the area of Newhoca. "This would be offset against cost but that would be negotiable," Wirth said.

He said that a best that could be done for this summer would be to get set up to handle group reservations and any organized function and then the town should conduct discussions to determine what the program would be for 1977.

Wirth said while the camp abuts the Middle Bolton Lakes, this kind of water is open to public use so water access would be very difficult to control. He said the fishing is good during the summer and the water is "OK" for swimming.

He further recommends the outdoor charcoal cooking unit be repaired, that new electrical service poles be set, that an access road be constructed along with more parking areas.

The latter would require some major work such as cutting down trees and removing stumps and putting in rough grading.

Wirth said the lawn area needs more fertilizer, a resident moved to accept the total town proper budget with those at the meeting approving it and immediately approving tabling the budget until May 27. At that time residents expressed hope the selectmen will have answers to questions on disposal of town waste.

Residents appeared concerned only with the dump part of the town proper budget. They seemed to object to having only $46,000 showing in the budget for a disposal area with $43,000 "hidden" in the contingency fund.

Jerry Hasset, chairman of the Board of Finance, said the board did not feel it could suggest approval of $76,000 for disposal without knowing what it was getting. At the time the board members Albee, Mrs. Foeckel, Barbara Stanfield, Robert Nickles and Louise Bourret, all Democrats, voted in favor. Opposed were board members Charles Barrasso, Caroline Murphy, Joseph Pelletier and Patricia Mulligan, Republicans.

Betty's notebook

By Betty Ryder

By the time you read this I should have completed my tour of Ft. Dix (New Jersey that is) with the U.S. Army, but I can't tell you how tired I am, cause I haven't gone yet.

Confusing, I know. Well the trip was Monday, but I wrote this Friday, cause how else could I have a column in Tuesday's paper when I'm out of the office all day Monday.

All I know is that if all went well I met the U.S. Army recruiter between 6 and 6:15 a.m. Monday at the Army Recruiting office on Main St. and he should have scooped me over to a waiting bus in Hartford. The rest I have to relate later, "cause it hasn't happened yet."

Goodbye Norm

A very tender gathering of some 180 people honored Norman Fendell with a dinner meeting of the Manchester Association of Retarded Citizens, Inc. at Willie's last week.

He was really surprised and many grateful parents and educators expressed their appreciation for his unifying efforts in their behalf on the behalf of the community, and especially for his bringing the dream of a Regional Occupational Training Center for the handicapped to fruition.

Comic gifts were bestowed upon him, as well as a very beautiful desk set for his new office at the ROTC on the campus of Manchester Community College. Jean McElravey, who turned her MARC president's gavel over to Robert Gorman that night, had even checked with the interior designers of the center to be sure it didn't clash.

Perhaps the most touching moment was when two young blind men, clients of the Manchester Sheltered Workshop, bid Norm farewell and said "Shalom" to him musically.

It was a beautiful night for a great man who deserves all the praise bestowed upon him.

Incidentally, whatever happened to the proposal put to the Board of Directors about naming the ROTC "Fendell Center?"

What could be more appropriate? After all, it was all his idea, and one that has set Manchester off as an example to the state and the nation.

A credit to his country, his state and his community, I believe Norman Fendell should be so honored thereby etching his name in town history — and giving its residents a chance to say "thank you" for a job well done.

Love is having friends and a friend can be loved, but love is mostly to be friends with your enemies. Love can be hated by fear of a broken heart. Brown, Sheridan make it official; both leaving 8th District board

By SOL R. COHEN

Herald Reporter

8th District Directors Patrick Brown and William Sheridan made it official last night — each with an announcement to the district board.

Brown said he won't be a candidate for election to his second three-year term and Sheridan said he's moving from the district June 15 (but still in Manchester) and tendered his resignation effective July 15. Sheridan's term still has two years to run.

District voters will elect three new members of the six-member board June 23 at the district's annual meeting. In addition to the seats being vacated by Brown and Sheridan, the motivating reason for not seeking re-election. He offered his services in any advisory capacity asked of him.

Paul Cervini will be vacant. Cervini previously announced he won't seek re-election — after 34 years in district offices.

Announced candidates for the three posts are Lawrence Noone, George Bingham and Samuel Longest. All three appeared at Monday night's board meeting and announced their candidacy.

Brown, a teacher in the Vernon school system, said he will be attending graduate school during the next academic year and cited the demands of his profession as the motivating reason for not seeking re-election. He offered his services in any advisory capacity asked of him.

Unsafe tires

WETHERSFIELD (UPI) — Motor Vehicle Commissioner Stanley J. Pac says inspectors are finding Connecticut motorists have fewer automotive violations in all area except tires.

"I'm disturbed by the report that 847 defective equipment warnings were issued for unsafe tires, out of 10,387 vehicles stopped (in April) by three MVD inspection teams," Pac said.

"National studies have shown that unsafe tires are one of the major vehicular factors in accidents. For their own safety, I would hope Connecticut motorists would replace tires that are unsafe," Pac said.

Sheridan's resignation, dictated by district bylaws, was accepted by the board.

The directors finished their review of a tentative budget for 1976-77 and agreed to recommend a $254,181 budget and a repeat of the present 4-mill tax rate (2 mills for fire protection and 2 mills for sanitary sewer service).

The budget and tax rate will be voted upon by district electors at the June 23 annual meeting.

Except for increasing the salaries of the tax collector, the treasurer and the clerk, the recommended budget is substantially the same as the one considered May 3. The tax collector's salary goes to $3,000, from its present $2,400. The salaries for the treasurer and clerk go to $2,000, from their present $1,700 each.

The budget is in three parts — $25,875 for administration, $123,686 for public works and $104,620 for the fire department. The fire department budget includes a $5,500 item for purchasing a Hurst Rescue Tool. It was left in after minor discussion. Also approved for the fire department budget is $250 for an assistant fire marshal, $15,000 for the Reserve Fund for future new equipment and $4,000 (added to $4,000 in the public works budget) for closing in the old greenhouse and converting it for use as a garage and storage area.

District Fire Chief Granville Lingard reported his men answered 36 alarms in April — 2 car fires, 2 rescue calls, 15 woods and grass fires, 2 complaints of illegal burning, 4 dumpster fires, 9 miscellaneous calls and 1 mutual aid call from Vernon for standby duties.

The board voted unanimously to send a letter of commendation and praise to Richard A. Arnold of Glastonbury. Ar-

Firefighters Leonard Luzusky and Victor LeGeyt, who suffered smoke inhalation at the April 30, when they were trapped in an intense house fire on Hudson St. Letters of commendation to continue fighting the will be sent also to District fire.

Three killed in crash

A Manchester man was one of three persons who died Monday night as the result of injuries received in a three-car accident near Exit 39 on Interstate 94 in Farmington.

Richard (Cochise) Slagger, 55, of 11 Eldridge St. was alone in his car when the accident occurred about 9:40 p.m.

Also killed were Francis J. Keas, 54, and his wife, Mary, 47, both of Farmington.

According to Farmington police, the Slagger car was westbound on I-94 near exit 39 when it apparently sideswiped a car driven by Richard J. Jones of Farmington who was not injured.

The Slagger vehicle veered into the eastbound lane and collided head-on with the Keas car.

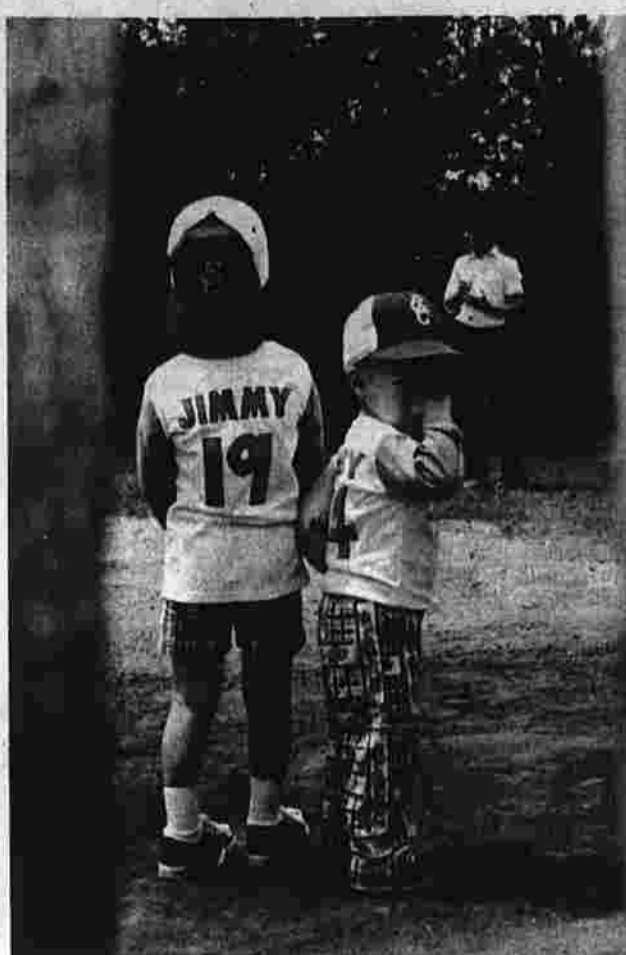

Mr. Slagger was born Aug. 28, 1940, in Houlton, Maine, and lived in Manchester many years. He worked several years for the General Cleaning Service. He worked for the Union Carbide Corporation in East Hartford at the time of his death.

Survivors are his common-law wife, Pat, and a son, Ricky Slagger, of Manchester; two brothers, Gerald Slagger of Norwich and Charles Slagger of Phoenix, Ariz.; two sisters, Mrs. Lena Spellman of Houlton and Mrs. Anna Cruz of The Bronx, N.Y.

After the winning match, a score of 30-20, King met with the press and his main points.

The Whalers pumped new excitement and enthusiasm into the sport and their stretch drive in the playoffs fell short but no one can say the team didn't go all out in an effort to win the United States championship against Houston.

Harry Neale, the third coach of the season, apparently pumped new life into the squad after taking over and he was able to pool the talents and get the best out of all men.

Anyone who heard Neale as the second period guest last Sunday night with Hal Kelly from Houston had to be impressed with his outlook on hockey as well as his views on life.

Neale is scheduled to return next season and the guess here is that the Whalers will be a much better team.

No one man turned the team around, from a so-so club, brilliant at times, disorganized at times, but Neale has to be credited with blending the talents into a winner.

The hockey season was long but the fans would have been willing to shell out playoff prizes to gather up all seats for the WHA Avco Cup finals had the Whalers won.

As it stands now, the WHA's two best clubs, Winnipeg and Houston will meet for the cup.

Meanwhile, the Whalers can pack away their skates and walk down any street with their heads held high.

Pickoff play backfires, Indians bow to Fermi

By LEN AUSTER Herald Sportswriter

Manchester High's baseball team has lost some heart-breaking decisions this season but yesterday's 1-hour, 40-minute tilt had to be the worst.

Barry Ballard, locked up in a pitcher's duel with Fermi High's Bill Petlotta, pegged wildly to third base on an attempted pickoff allowing Roger Giguere to score the lone tally in a 1-0 Falcon win in Enfield.

The victory by Fermi qualifies the 9-5 Falcons for post-season play for the fourth time in the five-year tenure of Coach Gene Ryzek.

Manchester, which entertains Enfield High Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 at Kelly Field, is now 7-7 and must win two of its last four to gain post-season status.

Ballard and Petlotta, each who threw in the neighborhood of 100 pitches, matched zeros through seven innings with the Fermi junior righthander having an easier time. He set the side down in order three times during this span and was aided by a doubleplay in the fourth.

Ballard, meanwhile, was working out of a mild two-out jam in the sixth inning.

The victory by Fermi qualifies the 9-5 Falcons for post-season play for the fourth time in the five-year tenure of Coach Gene Ryzek.

Manchester, which entertains Enfield High Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 at Kelly Field, is now 7-7 and must win two of its groundout to shortstop by Jim Chevalier.

With Doug Saley at bat, Ballard tried to get Giguere wandering but his loss over went errantly with third sacker Bob Nurni not having a chance. Saley grounded out meekly first to pitcher covering with Ballard flinging the ball down in disgust.

Petlotta, 3-3, completed his three-hitter by getting Manchester in the ninth on six pitches. He had excellent control walking none and fanning seven. Ballard struck out eight and walked one.

Farthest advancement for a Manchester runner was second base and that was by Frank Livingston on a two-out first inning double. He stroked two of the three blows off Petlotta.

Some UPS workers fired

(UPI) Some 125 United Parcel Service employees were fired for refusing to return to work Monday, while a Continental Trailways official said he expects union members to ratify a tentative contract agreement and have buses rolling again in nine Southern states "maybe Wednesday night."

Most UPS employees returned to work under a tentative contract settlement in 13 Central and Western states affected by a Teamsters strike, which started May 1.

However, bands of dissidents held out in Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio, Kansas City, Kan., and Louisville, Ky., protesting the tentative agreement as just a "resurrection of the old contract." They said they wanted to remain out until a ratification vote is concluded.

About 125 picketing employees in Louisville were dismissed after they defied orders from a UPS official to return to work.

Amalgamated Transit Union members probably will approve a tentative agreement and end a walkout that has crippled bus service in nine Southern states, said H. W. Loring, general manager of Continental Tennessee, one of the Continental Trailways operating companies affected by the strike. The strike began May 1.

From the temperment of the negotiating meetings, I'd say the union will ratify and we'll be back in operation maybe Wednesday night," Loring said.

Copies of the restaurant, licensing and food-regulating ordinance being proposed for Manchester have been sent by Director of Health Alice J. Turck to all owners/operators of the town's food-service establishments and to private clubs, churches and schools.

A public hearing on the proposed ordinance is scheduled by the Board of Directors for June 1 at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Building Hearing Room.

Prior to the public hearing, Dr. Turck has scheduled three comment sessions on the proposal, where members of the health department will explain the ordinance and will answer questions pertaining to it.

The first comment session will be Wednesday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the conference room at Lincoln Center. The second will be May 16 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., also in the conference room at Lincoln Center. And the third will
