Rare wine sells for $14,200

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A 170-year-old bottle of Chateau Lafite-Rothschild red Bordeaux wine brought a world record $14,200 Thursday in hushed, tense bidding at the eighth Premier National Auction of Rare Wines. David Lyons, a bearded 37-year-old California outbid local restaurateur Jimmy Brennan for the 1806 vintage in a silent test of will after scores of others dropped out when the bidding passed the $5,000-mark, the old record. Throughout the bidding the ancient red Bordeaux sat on a small, polished table protected by a security guard seated alongside. Several hundred wine merchants, private collectors and restaurateurs gathered for the auction broke into applause for Lyons when the bidding finished. He acknowledged the recognition with a smile and remained in the room to bid on other younger vintages. The $14,200 price tag worked out to $92 per ounce. The previous record price for a single bottle of wine was $5,000 paid two years ago in San Francisco for an 1846 Lafite-Rothschild. Buyers made their bids by holding up numbered cards. Except for excited murmuring that began when the bidding hotted up, the only voice heard was that of the auctioneer. Lyons and Brennan merely kept their cards in the air when the other bidders dropped out and the auctioneer, who had started at $3,000, raised the price in $100 steps. Earlier, a lot of yet-to-be-bottled 1975 vintage from Inglenook Vineyards in California's Napa Valley sold for $106 per 12-bottle case. The highest point in Ireland is Carranshill, 3,414 feet, in County Kerry.

Gov. Grasso anticipates $7.6 million surplus

HARTFORD (UPI) — Connecticut, once seemingly drowning in a sea of red ink, today appeared swimming along fine with announcement that the state's ledger will be closed June 30 in the black. Gov. Ella T. Grasso announced Friday the deficit in the $1.62 billion budget — set at $80.1 million last November and cut to $1.8 million only a month ago — has been replaced with a $7.6 million surplus. Mrs. Grasso credited her Democratic administration and the legislature for paring the deficit, but Republicans have charged at least half the $80.1 million shortage was not a real deficit. They have said unspent fund allocations, in effect savings, have ranged from $20 million to $60 million in the past five years and there was no reason why it shouldn't happen again this year. Finance Commissioner Jay O. Tepper said the turnaround in the last month was due mostly to higher-than-expected cuts in the state payroll and lower than expected unemployment payments to 500 employees laid off last Jan. 2. More than 1,300 state jobs have been eliminated since last November, he said. The job cuts saved $2.5 million in fringe benefits, and together with the reduced unemployment benefits and fuel cuts they saved $1.8 million in the Transportation Department and $1.4 million in the health agencies, Tepper said. State revenues for the past month were $1.1 higher than expected and the Tax Department saved $1.5 million through lower-than-expected tax breaks for the elderly and others, he said. Another factor cutting the deficit, Tepper said, was $4.5 million in unanticipated revenues from the Plainfield dog track.

Carter labels Udall criticism as attacks on his integrity

By LEWIS LORD
United Press International
Rep. Morris Udall described Jimmy Carter Friday as "a pretty clever politician" and the Democratic front-runner protested that his integrity was being attacked. Both candidates stumped Ohio for the June 8 primary and Sen. Frank Church — who has defeated Carter in three of three contests — announced he will campaign in both the California and the Ohio primaries. Udall told a Cleveland audience that Carter was "fuzzy" on the issue — a claim which helped the Arizona congressman come within a percentage point of upsetting the Georgian in the Michigan primary. "It takes a pretty clever politician to come out on both sides of the important issues," said Udall. "And they don't come any more clever this season than my opponent Jimmy Carter." Carter protested that Udall was attacking his honor and integrity. Udall replied that Carter should "stop complaining and start explaining."

Postage meter may be key in validating Hughes' will

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Partial decipherment of a hard-to-read number on a postage meter strip has increased the possibility that Howard Hughes really did write the controversial "Mormon will" giving a large chunk of his $2.5 billion fortune to a desert god samaritan. The strip used to seal the envelope containing the will bears a number that could identify the machine that imprinted it in fees. At least two, and perhaps three, of the eight digits — all that can be made out — correspond to a machine assigned to the Hughes-owned hotel in Las Vegas where the billionaire lived in 1968, the date on the will, an attorney revealed Friday. "It's too early to be certain of anything, but it at least looks like we may be on the way to showing this document was at least handled by someone in the Hughes organization," said Harold Rhoden, attorney for Noah Dietrich. Dietrich, Hughes' top aide for longer than anyone else, is fighting to have the will declared valid. "This is quite a coincidence, at the would make him executor of the estate, a position worth more than $1 million in fees. Rhoden said investigators had managed to determine that the second digit of the barely visible identification number is a 4, the fourth is an 8 and the fifth is either a 6 or an 8. The numbers could fit postage meter 841862, said Carl Moore, manager of the San Diego office of Pitney Bowes, which keeps track of its postage meters and located and who is authorized to use them. That machine was registered to the Desert Inn in Las Vegas in 1967 and was still there in 1968, she said. Hughes lived at the Desert Inn. Remembrance

Day of hope

It was in 1868 that John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, directed all G.A.R. posts to set aside the 30th of May "for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion."

This was the first Memorial Day, although it was not until long afterward that it was called that. Rather, it was known as Decoration Day, and people still occasionally refer to Memorial Day by that alternate name.

Later, too, Memorial Day came to be observed as a day in which to honor not just the dead on the Union side of the Civil War but also the Confederate dead, as well as the fallen of all America's wars, before and since.

More recently, Congress has seen fit to change the date of Memorial Day from May 30 to the last Monday in May for reasons of long-weekend convenience. At least 18 states, however, have opted to return the holiday to its original date. But if the states remain somewhat disunited in terms of the observance of a holiday which had its origins in the war fought between the states to preserve the Union, Americans are one in agreeing what this day should stand for. It is, first, a day of remembrance, especially for the families and loved ones of the tens of thousands of young men who died in this country's last — that is, latest — war. For them, the memory remains fresh, the sense of loss keen, though perhaps not really more so than for those who lost sons or husbands in World War II and Korea.

It is also a day of quiet thanksgiving, of thoughts of gratitude and appreciation that America has never lacked for young men willing to lay down their lives for their country.

Finally, Memorial Day, a day set aside to honor the dead, should be a day of renewed dedication on the part of the living, of resolve that America's last war shall truly have been her last, that never again will there be need of fresh graves to receive the battle-fallen.

Memorial Day. Day of beauty and bittersweet remembrance. Day of sorrow and inspiration. Day of hope.

A hymn for Memorial Day

O Love that will not let me go,
I rent my weary soul in thee;
I give thee back the life I owe,
That in thine ocean depths its flow
May richer, fuller be.
O Light that followest all my way,
I yield my flickering torch to thee;
My heart restores its borrowed ray,
That in thy sunshine's blaze its day
May brighter, fairer be.
O Joy that seekest me through pain,
I cannot close my heart to thee;
I trace the rainbow through the rain,
And feel the promise is not vain
That morn shall fearless be.
O Cross that liftest up my head,
I dare not ask to fly from thee;
I lay in dust life's glory dead,
Life that shall endless be.

"Much the greatest rogue of all is the man who has gilded his city into the belief that he is fit to direct it." "Does this sound up-to-date?" It is a quotation from Socrates in Xenophon's "Memorabilia." Socrates condemned imposters saying they are found in every walk of life, but worst of all in politics.

Today is Saturday, May 29, the 150th day of 1976 with 216 to follow.
The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.
The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.
The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Gemini.

John F. Kennedy, 35th president of the United States, was born May 29, 1917.

On this day in history:
In 1553, Constantinople (now Istanbul), capital of the Byzantine Empire, was captured by the Turks. Some historians say that marked the end of the Middle Ages.

In 1790, Rhode Island became the last of the 13 original states to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1953, Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand became the first person to reach the top of Mt. Everest.

In 1972, President Nixon and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev ended their Moscow summit meeting with a joint declaration of peaceful coexistence.

A thought for the day: In his 1961 inaugural address, President John Kennedy said, "Let the word go forth from this time and place that the torch has passed to a new generation of Americans."

Arthur H. Illing, superintendent of schools, reports to the Board of Education that an admittedly conservative estimate of the 1951-52 elementary enrollment indicates the need for 10 to 12 more classrooms next year. This estimate does not assume the use of the Broad St. school which is now under construction, he says. Miss Jean H. Smith is installed as worthy advisor of Manchester Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls.

NEW YORK, May 29 — The radical activist Mechanics Committee adopted a resolution asking the provincial congress to support separation from Great Britain and to instruct the delegation at independence. The legislators hesitated by saying it could not instruct the delegates until a resolution of independence was actually brought to the congress.

The treason of Benedict Arnold

by Dr. Francis G. Walcott

Order was changed
The order was changed, however, and "Anderson" was brought back to North Castle. When he learned that the incriminating papers had been sent to Washington, Andre identified himself, but did not mention his connection with Arnold. The latter, getting news of Andre's capture, barely escaped to British ship further down the Hudson.

Disclosure of plot
The negotiations for Arnold's compensation for his services and the transfer of West Point had culminated in the meeting with Andre at Haverstraw. Thereafter had come the tragic consequences for Andre and the disclosure of the plot.

Got his price
Benedict Arnold got his price, 6,000 pounds and a commission as a brigadier general in the British army. His defection stunned Washington and Americans in general. But Arnold's services were not indispensable in the War for Independence and Americans struggled grimly on.

There is probably no figure in United States history more despised for his treachery than Benedict Arnold. His name is virtually synonymous with treason.

Today's thought
Memorial Day
Almighty God, by whose grace they people gain courage through looking into the heroes of faith. We lift our hearts in gratitude to thee for all who have lived valiantly and died bravely that there might be truth, liberty, and righteousness in our land.

Help us to prize highly and to guard carefully, the gifts which thy loyalty and devotion have bestowed upon us.

Grant us the joy of living a vigorous faith that we may be true as they were true, loyal as they were loyal, and serve thee and our country selflessly all the days of our life, and at last receive the victors crown.

Character flaws
The principal reasons for Benedict Arnold's treason must be found in flaws in the man's character. Although brave and resourceful, he was also tempestuous, vain, and sensitive. In addition to this he wanted to live well, even far beyond his ordinary means.

This was conspicuously true during his service as commandant of Philadelphia. He bought an expensive house, lived handsomely, and traveled in high social circles. After his marriage to Peggy Shippen of a wealthy, Loyalist family, Arnold used his official position for personal gain. This brought on the wrath of Pennsylvania enemies, a court married by the British, and a mild reprimand from the World Council of Churches of being too concerned with social causes and not enough with evangelism. Bishop Mortimer Aris of the Evangelical Methodist Church in Bolivia considered this question at the Nairobi meeting. He said:

"To whom must we say 'Man does not live by bread alone' and with whom must we pray 'Give us this day our daily bread'? Can we continue to treat men as 'souls with ears' or, as 'stomachs without souls'? Can we announce the gospel the same way to the oppressor and the oppressed, to the torturer and the tortured? In other words, how can the gospel be authentic unless it is faithful both to the scriptures and to real people in real contexts?"

The Rev. John Stott forcibly expressed his concern for more evangelism in the total program of the WCC, but made clear his position, saying:

"In asking these questions I am very far from using the WCC to drop its social and political concerns. Nor am I wanting to administer a fresh dose of opium to the oppressed in order to tranquilize them into an acquiescence of the status quo. My plea is that the WCC will be concerned with the total demands of justice and love, and with the fullness of freedom, humanization and life with which God Himself is concerned."

(quotes are from Slack: Nairobi) Social action or evangelism? From my viewpoint these are like the two ends of a tunnel. Whichever end you enter you must leave by the other.

Earthquake Relief
Recently I received a letter from Church World Service about Guatemala. Right after the earthquake they provided tents, plastic sheeting, water purification tablets, medicines, coats, blankets, clothing, and food. Now their help is shifting from relief to rehabilitation. They are now shipping in hundreds of picks, shovels, wheelbarrows and hand tools.

A candle in the darkness!
You can help light one, too, by giving now for earthquake relief in Italy, through your church or the Manchester Conference of Churches.

Well-child clinic begins Wednesday

Vernon

A well-child clinic for preschoolers will be sponsored by the Rockville Public Health Nursing Association starting Wednesday in the lower floor of Union Congregational Church.

The summer schedule will be: June 2, 8, 16, and 22; July 13 and 21; August 4 and 10; and Sept. 8, 14, 22, and 28, from 9 to 10:30 a.m., by appointment only.

The clinic will serve eligible families from Vernon, Ellington, Bolton, and Somers. The winter schedule is expected to be expanded to four days each month.

The clinic will offer physical exam, blood and urine tests, developmental testing, full immunizations, and later will also offer periodic vision and hearing tests.

Applications must be made by contacting the association's office on Park St., Rockville. Miss Elaine Shattuck is director.

Eligibility will be based on income levels according to how many persons are in the family. For a family of two, the income level would be $6,053; three, $8,256; four, $10,189; five, $11,900; six, $12,000; seven, $12,500; and eight, $13,000.

However, each case will be judged separately and extenuating circumstances will be considered. Families receiving Title XIX Medicaid assistance will not be eligible.

Miss Shattuck said she figures some 50 to 100 families in the four towns will be eligible for the service. More than half of them are from Vernon she said. The staff will include a pediatrician, three nurses and volunteers.

Johnson offers towns hiring help

HARTFORD (UPI) — Four suburban towns have not replied to an offer of help in setting up minority hiring plans, according to the director of the city Human Relations Commission.

Arthur L. Johnson said he extended the offer to Glastonbury, East Hartford, Newington, and Westfield. All have been cited by the federal Office of Revenue Sharing for failure to employ enough women and minorities.

He said now that the towns have been cited, he wants to help them improve their hiring practices. The federal citation could lead to loss of revenue sharing funds unless such improved practices are introduced.

Johnson said his office can provide technical help in preparation of minority hiring plans and could refer persons to fill job openings.

He said loss of funds would have a negative impact on regional cooperation.

"It is clear that the best interest of the region would not be well served by a reduction in the total amount of federal funding to any town in the region," Johnson wrote the towns.

Construction man touts I-84

Construction of I-84 through eastern Connecticut "will create jobs and eliminate the depressed economic status of that section of the state," said Donald J. Lynch, executive secretary of the Connecticut Construction Industries Association Friday.

Lynch said he was answering a group of opponents who said I-84 will not create jobs.

The state Department of Commerce in its Economic Impact statement for I-84 said corridor towns have over 3,000 acres zoned for industrial expansion, said Lynch.

Towns off the route of the highway have over 2,000 acres, he said.

Within the route of the highway, there are at least seven industrial parks planned with an employment potential of over 15,000 jobs, he said.

Lynch said any report to the contrary is just one man's opinion.

He was referring to the opinion by University of Maryland economist professor Curtis C. Harris, Jr., who said "only 100 jobs would be created." Opponents to the highway project used that opinion to stop it.

"All one has to do is look at I-84 West Hartford to Danbury," said Lynch.

The Department of Commerce has documented the industrial and tax base growth along that section of highway. Union Carbide and Unroyal recently built along I-84 West.

Lynch said his association has endorsed both the state economic reports and the Eastern Connecticut Economic Development Council as to the need for I-84 East.

Short-term gains from I-84 are income and jobs say the reports. Estimates of the department show of 4,000 jobs over a four-year period and $50 million in new income.

"From a long-range perspective, it will help create a climate to induce employment in a region which is underdeveloped and which has never regained the economic strength it once had, Lynch said.

"I-84 is a reasonable and responsible effort to retain and increase jobs in Eastern Connecticut," he said.

How to note a new holiday

Vernon
In a memo to Dr. Raymond Ramsdell, superintendent of schools, Dr. Mark Shedd, commissioner of education, explained the rules governing Martin Luther King Day.

Whenever Jan. 15 occurs on what would otherwise be a scheduled school day, that day will be a legal holiday and no public schools will be in session.

When Jan. 15 falls on a Sunday then the following Monday will be a legal holiday and schools will be closed.

However, when Jan. 15 occurs on a Saturday, there is no requirement for the Friday preceding to be a legal holiday. But the last school day before the holiday should be suitably observed in the public schools, Dr. Shedd said.

Board elects committee members

Hebron

Five persons were elected to serve on the Regional School Reapportionment Study Committee at a recent town meeting.

Board of Education Chairman David Albee and Louise Bourret, board secretary, were elected by voice vote to be members from the local school board on the committee.

The three other members elected by ballot vote were Marion Foots with 28 votes, James Derby with 23 and Stewart Stockwell with 20.

H. Clay Osborn and Salvatore Mastrea were defeated in their bid to be elected with 10 and 18 votes respectively. Richard M. Grant withdrew his name.

The committee will have five members from each district town with at least two of the five to be members of the local board.

The towns are Hebron, Andover and Marlborough.

The state Board of Education will name a consultant to work with the study committee. The consultant will call the first committee meeting. The committee will have three meetings after its first meeting to prepare a plan for the state board which has 30 days to approve or reject it.

The committee has three choices. One is that the number of members on the regional board be determined in the proportion that the population of each town bears to the population of the district.

Another is to elect members of the board at large in the district as a whole.

A third would be to weigh the votes of members in the proportion the population of each town bears to the district population.

The committee may propose any method of voting power that is con-

Polio, measles vaccinations urged

ATLANTA (UPI) — Measles epidemics could get worse and massive outbreaks of crippling polio are possible unless about 5 million young children are vaccinated against both diseases, according to a national Center for Disease Control official.

Dr. John Witte, director of the Immunization Division of the CDC, has warned 65 to 70 per cent of pre-school age children — or about 5 million — lack proper immunization against polio and measles.

"The thing that really concerns us is that there are safe, effective vaccines against the childhood diseases of polio, measles, diphtheria, rubella and mumps and parents are not getting their children immunized," Witte said.

He said measles epidemics already are occurring in many areas and the number of reported cases of polio is well above last year.

"We're keeping an eye on the polio situation," Witte said. "The possibility of outbreaks is there. There are many susceptible children."

He said both middle class and ghetto children are among those not properly immunized.

"If polio gets into a central city ghetto, it is very likely to spread," he said.

Witte noted an "effective oral polio vaccine is now available," but its use has decreased because of high levels of immunity.

"So far this year, 23,880 cases of measles have been reported, compared to 13, 635 for the same period in 1975. Witte said the actual number of cases probably at least since 1968.

He said there have been four cases of polio reported so far this year, compared to six in all of 1975, with 15, there were 2,350 cases, the late summer and fall polio season yet to come.

Ask Kleiner

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: I have noticed that Lee Majors, The Six Million Dollar Man, wears what appears to be a P.O.W. - M.I.A. bracelet. Can you find out the name of the man on it and if he is still unaccounted for? KATHY TREADWAY, Yorba Linda, Calif.

DEAR DICK: There was ever a movie made out of the book, "The Secret Garden," by Frances Hodgson Burnett? If so, is it still playing? Who starred in it? ANDREA DAY, Indiana, Pa.

DEAR DICK: There was not one, but two movies made from that book. The first, in 1919, starred Lila Lee. The second, in 1949, starred Margaret O'Brien. I doubt it's still playing anywhere. But it's almost time for another re-make.

DEAR DICK: I hope you can solve a minor mystery for me. Why is almost everyone in "Barry Lyndon" left-handed? FLORENCE CANNON, La Mesa, Calif.

DEAR DICK: I went to see that splendid film again, just to see if you were right. And there are quite a few southpaws in the film. But I checked and there's nothing mysterious about it. Ryan O'Neal is a natural leftie. But his co-star, Marisa Berenson, isn't - she signs all those checks with her right hand in the film. I think you're just a little leftie happy.

DEAR DICK: Has Phyllis Diller had her bust reduction yet? I am thinking of having one myself. Mrs. J.E.D., Santa Ana, Calif.

DEAR DICK: Bust reduction? Phyllis? If anything, she'd want just the opposite. But, nevertheless, I asked her and she said: "I have not yet had my bust reduction, because I first had to lose my pot which I got from eating popcorn and mayonnaise - but not together."

DEAR DICK: I watch I Dream of Jeannie almost every day and I've been wondering if Barbara Eden and Larry Hagman will ever make new shows? And how old is Barbara Eden? VICKIE LUTTRELL, Billings, Mont.

DEAR DICK: They stopped making new Jeannies back around '69 and what you've been seeing are re-runs and there will be no new ones made. Barbara, at last count, was 42.

DEAR DICK: In a recent column, you talked about the old movie, "Only Yesterday," with Margaret Sullivan and John Boles. Why can't that be shown on TV now? And do you know when John Boles passed away? MRS. WANDA OKRAGLY, Detroit, Mich.

DEAR DICK: Very few 40-year-old films show up on TV. But you never know; watch your Late, Late, Late Show listings. Boles died in 1969.

Goodspeed notes birthday with historic production

By JUNE TOMPKINS

The Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam is celebrating its Centennial year (the opera house was built in 1876), with a Rodgers and Hart revival which has a Bicentennial theme, set in 1776.

The musical, "Dearest Enemy," which dates back to 1925, is based on an incident when, at General George Washington's request, Mrs. Murray of Murray Hill detains the British Generals Howe, Tryon and Clinton, with sociabilities while General Putnam and his 4,000 men escape to Harlem Heights.

There's also a sub-plot involving a romance between Mrs. Murray's niece and a handsome, young British captain.

The music is lively and one recalls the one song that has retained its popularity through the years, "Here In My Arms."

Nancy Andrews stars as Mrs. Murray and gives the starring role all the charm and graciousness that is needed to entice the British officers to enjoy her hospital-

ty. Her and her daughters' feminine wiles are used most effectively.

The Redcoats present a colorful dance number in the first act with intricate steps. The girls are gowned in beautiful costumes of the period that add to the grand manner of Mrs. Murray's mansion.

Playing the somewhat pompous General Howe is Louis Edmonds, who complements well the enthusiastic hospitable suggestions of Nancy Andrews.

The play, by itself, does not seem to be a strong play, perhaps because it was one of the early Rodgers and Hart efforts. Its chief attributes are its color and appropriateness to the Bicentennial year.

The finale is a rousing display of colonial music while actors fill the stage and balconies.

Setting the mood for the play, the Moodus Fife and Drum Corps performs for the half hour preceding the show in the court yard.

Film pirates trouble movie makers

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Yo-ho-ho and a bottle of developer. The film pirates are on the loose.

It's no laughing matter to the Motion Picture Association, which represents all the leading movie producers. Film piracy probably rips the big studios off to the tune of more than $100 million a year.

"It's hard to arrive at a definite figure," says William J. Nolan, "because we're talking about revenue that has been lost."

Nolan is one of two ex-F.B.I. agents — the other is Ewing G. Layhew — who have been hired by the MPAA to set up a Film Security Office to deal with the pirates. In the years that the F.S.O. has been in existence, it seems to be working, to some extent.

"In this past year," Nolan says, "we've had in excess of 20 convictions. In prior years, the total was zero."

Film pirates are people who somehow get hold of a print of a movie. They then make copies of them and sell them, either to private collectors or to exhibitors — usually overseas — who get films without having to pay the legitimate producers a dime.

Nolan says one of the biggest market places for pirates films is South Africa. The trade of selling illicit movies to South Africa had gotten so big, he says, that some of the smaller producers lost their South African market totally.

Tom Dunnahoo is an admitted ex-pirate who has now gone legitimate.

"I used to be a pretty good-sized film pirate," says the redbearded Dunnahoo. He got into the business through a side door. He was a newsreel cameraman by trade. He would chase ambulances and fire engines to the scene of a newsworthy tragedy, film it and then peddle his footage to local TV stations for $25 an event.

"I decided," he says, "I'd be better off printing my own stuff and selling it to more than one station. So I bought a printing machine.

"Then I met a film dealer. He asked me to make a print of a feature film for him. I did that then pretty soon I found myself making a lot of prints."

He "acquired" a mailing list and began peddling his own films, some legitimate (meaning they were old films whose copyrights had expired) and some pirated films.

"It built up in eight years," he says, "into a six-figure business. I saw a need and I filled it."

He says that during his piratical days, he did not feel as though he was doing anything wrong.

"I wasn't hurting anybody," he says. "I'd only sell to collectors and they don't charge admission. Collectors just keep the film for themselves and show it to their friends."

He was doing all right until he was sued by several of the big studios.

"We settled out of court," he says. "I don't sell their copyrighted films any more. And they don't hassle me any more."

Now his film — Thunderbird Films — is a thriving and completely legitimate operation. It sells films to collectors. And all the films he has are either in the public domain — films on which the copyrights have expired — or films he has acquired the rights to.

Dunnahoo feels that film pirates sometimes perform a useful function.

"If it weren't for the pirates," he says, "lots of good films would have been lost. They may steal them, but they preserve them."

Piracy still exists, of course. Some time before "Earthquake" was to be released, an answer print disappeared from the studio. It showed up again, three days later. That's all it takes to make some illegal copies — and prints of "Earthquake" are being offered on the pirate market.

Some of the pirates operate in a big way. Nolan, the head of the Film Security Office, says one bold pirate is currently sending his brochures to a mailing list of 6,000 collectors.

But Dunnahoo finds he can operate legitimately, with a nice profit and fewer worries than when he was a pirate.

He currently takes delight in outwitting the studios. He enjoys it when he finds — and he's done so often — that they have neglected to renew their copyrights on films and hence the movies are now in public domain.

"The studios become forgetful," he says. "And some very important pictures have slipped into P.D. Two Capra pictures — 'Meet John Doe' and 'It's a Wonderful Life' — weren't renewed. I have the original 'A Star Is Born,' Errol Flynn's 'Santa Fe Trail,' 'They Made Me A Criminal' with John Garfield, and the first major MGM musical 'Til the Clouds Roll By.'"

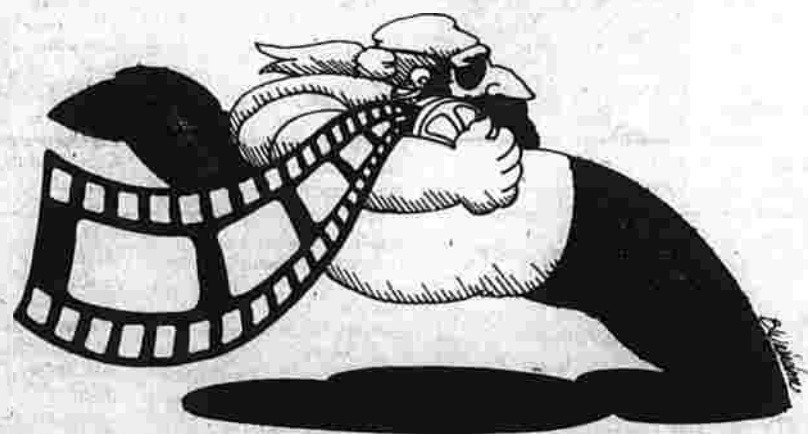

Not long ago, he began listing a Shirley Temple film, "The Little Princess," in his catalogue. Twentieth Century-Fox screamed piracy. They said it was still under copyright.

"I proved to them it was P.D.," he says. "They were very upset — they'd just forgotten to renew the copyright. It had slipped by them, but it hadn't slipped by me."

Some of the studios are now attempting to bypass the pirates by selling their own films directly to collectors — but in Super-8mm., not in exhibition 16 mm. size. That way, they feel their films will not wind up in some African theater, or on some small TV station.

It's still a big problem for the movie industry. When the MPAA set up its Film Security Office, Jack Valenti, the Association president, said, "The illegal pirating of prints in this country and around the world is a cancer in the heart of the film industry, and we aim to cut the cancer out."

The treatment seems to be working — but there's still a long way to go.

Sacred cow of philately due for auction

By RUSS MacKENDRICK

Here is one of the sacred cows of philately (so called by the noted author, Barbara Mueller, who doesn't think much of inverted centers). This block is coming up to auction at Herrner's of New York on June 8. They hope for a bid of $175,000. Ten years ago a similar piece was offered at $23,000. There are only three other recorded blocks of four in existence. The stamps had to be printed in two talles for the different colors and this one got turned around when put back in the press. Only one such printing was ever found.

Stamps and coins

Originally the block shown was part of a sheet of a 100, picked up at a Washington, D.C., post office on May 14, 1918. The buyer, who had been collecting only two years, was planning to swap first-day covers with various far-away friends. The sheet was first sold for $15,000, which was good considering the expectation that others might appear.

Col. E.H.R. Green was in his philatelic heyday then, and he soon latched onto the sheet and broke it up, selling 49 and keeping 51. Later about 20 of these got blown off his desk and zopped into a vacuum cleaner.

The stamp was issued on May 13, to be ready for the first air-mail flight, from New York to Washington, on the 15th. This book placed in an Army plane, a Curtis "Jenny," flown by an Army pilot. (No, he did not fly it upside down). At that time, (and again now) airmails were valid for all postal purposes, so look sharp at any old envelope or wrapper on a package.

This particular block of four belongs to Princeton University. They have had many stamp collections languishing unseen for years in a vault. With the proceeds from the above-mentioned auction they intend to set up exhibition facilities in their Firestone Library — sacrificing one for the good of many.

It will be shown at the Interphil, in the Harmer superbooth, May 29 to June 6. Collections with "conditionitis" will avert their gaze and hasten by, because it has several hinge marks, there is a gum bend, one stamp has a thin, and there is a brown paper speck on another.

The Smithsonian publishes a postcard in color with a four-times enlargement of a straight-edge copy of the stamp. On this the number 38262 can be made out on the body of the plane.

There is a new multi-volume Encyclopedia of Collectibles about to hit the market. The cover of the inspirational brochure shows one of the Jenny inverts along with a Tiffany lamp, Betty Boop watch, and an old railway guide.

Although not all have been accorded full sacred-cow status, there have been many other U.S. inverts. The 1869 15-cent pictorial (the Landing of Columbus) is listed at $50,000, higher than the flipped Jenny, actually. There were two other inverts in that series and three more in the Pan-American issue of 1901.

The real happy-hunting-ground is among the Revenues of 1871-75. Out of 59 stamp issues, fully 21 have been found with inverted centers. One is fairly common at $60; the rarest is the 5-cent Proprietary (Scott RB5), catalogued at $30,000.

A sour note: Scott warns us that some "excellently made" fraudulents are rife in this group.

Coin club meeting

The Central Connecticut Coin Club will meet at the KofC Hall, 138 Main St., on Tuesday, June 1, 7:30 p.m. Program, bourse, and refreshments as usual. Visitors welcome. This is the last scheduled meeting until September.

One book publisher also a big promoter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The trouble with book publishing today, says independent publisher Lyle Stuart, is that it's run like the Broadway theater — like a giant crap game. Stuart says most of the 30,000 hardcover titles released annually in the United States get no more sale promotion than a prayer; a lot of them have nothing to offer the reader, they're just ego trips for their authors and the publishing house editors.

Often that's the way a Broadway play is launched. The producer is a newcomer who sells himself on a script, raises money and tries it out. If it goes good reviews, he begins to promote it; if it doesn't, he kills it.

Stuart, a controversial figure in the publishing world for years, works differently. He does not wait until a book starts to sell well to crowd on the promotional steam. And he writes most of the advertising copy himself.

"I refuse to pay authors big advances," he told United Press International. "I pay maybe only $1,000 but I promise if I publish I will do so soon and I will shovel in the money on promotion before the book hits the streets."

Stuart is unorthodox in other ways. Even though he makes all the final decisions, he seldom reads more than one chapter of a book he publishes. His editors read and correct the manuscripts and his lawyer reads to guard against libel. Stuart talks with the authors.

"The first thing to decide," he said, "is what will this book do for the reader? If you can't come up with a good answer to that, don't publish it."

What he likes are controversial books and books that satisfy people's burning curiosity about matters that have been hidden away hitherto by puritanical convention, snobbishness or the censorship inherent in social, economic and political privilege.

Stuart runs one of the few remaining small independent publishing houses and one of the few that have gone public. He says this enables him to bring out books faster and to be much more flexible and bolder in making decisions than the big publishing house or the prestigious old line publishers that have been gobbled up by conglomerates — Knopf and Random House by RCA; Holt, Rinehart by CBS; Bobbs Merrill by ITT and Van Nostrand by Litton Industries, for example.

Stuart currently catalogs about 800 books including paperbacks. He published about 20 titles a year. His current best seller is "The Rockefeller Syndrome," by Ferdinand Lundberg.

"Dateline: White House" by Helen Thomas, chief of UPI's White House Bureau, is a book about people, not serious political analysis.
